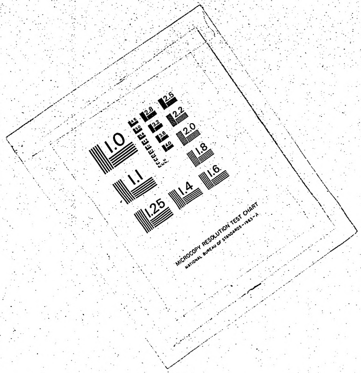
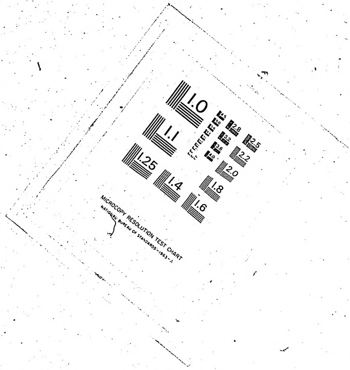
1.0
1.1
1.25
1.4
1.6
1.8
2.0
2.2
2.5
MICROCOPY RESOLUTION TEST CHART
NATIONAL BUREAU OF STANDARDS—1963—A

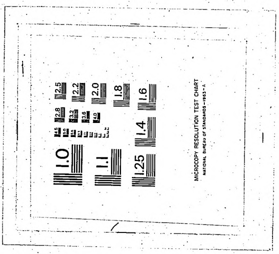


1.0
1.1
1.25
1.4
1.6
1.8
2.0
2.2
2.5
MICROCOPY RESOLUTION TEST CHART
NATIONAL BUREAU OF STANDARDS—1963—A

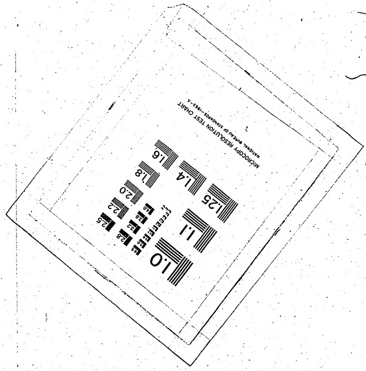


1.0
1.1
1.25
1.4
1.6
1.8
2.0
2.2
2.5
MICROCOPY RESOLUTION TEST CHART
NATIONAL BUREAU OF STANDARDS—1963—A

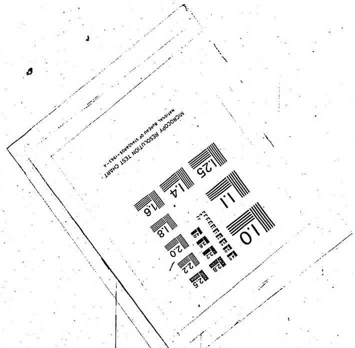
5



1.0
1.1
1.25
1.4
1.6
1.8
2.0
2.2
2.5
MICROCOPY RESOLUTION TEST CHART
NATIONAL BUREAU OF STANDARDS—1963—A



1.0
1.1
1.25
1.4
1.6
1.8
2.0
2.2
2.5
MICROCOPY RESOLUTION TEST CHART
NATIONAL BUREAU OF STANDARDS—1963—A



1.0
1.1
1.25
1.4
1.6
1.8
2.0
2.2
2.5
MICROCOPY RESOLUTION TEST CHART
NATIONAL BUREAU OF STANDARDS—1963—A

Historical Society

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Jany 7 [illegible] 92
April 14 Complete

The Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Editor and Proprietor. DEVOTED TO THE WELFARE OF POLK COUNTY. TERMS---$1.50 Per Annum

VOL. XV. CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA, JANUARY 7, 1892. NO. 38.

Polk County Journal.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

ADVERTISING RATES.

SPACE.	1 w.	2 w.	3 w.	1 m.	3 m	6 m.	1 year
½ inch	$.50	$1 00	$1 25	$1 50	$3 00	4 50	$ 6 00
1 inch	75	1 25	1 75	2 00	4 50	6 00	10 00
2 inches	1 50	2 25	3 00	3 50	6 50	9 50	15 00
3 inches	1 75	2 75	3 75	4 50	9 50	13 50	20 00
4 inches	2 50	3 50	4 50	5 50	10 00	18 00	25 00
5 inches	3 00	4 00	5 00	6 00	12 50	20 00	30 00
¼ column	3 50	4 50	5 50	6 50	15 00	25 00	35 00
½ column	6 00	7 50	10 00	12 00	25 00	35 00	50 00
1 column	9 50	12 00	15 00	18 00	35 00	60 00	100 00

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.
2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.
3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.
4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class matter.

AN INDEPENDENT RAILROAD TO DULUTH.

How to Get it.

While all the platforms of the new party are having "planks" inserted favoring government ownership of railroads, no one seems for a moment to consider the possibility of public ownership, except through the general government. The fact seems to have escaped the politicians, not only of the old, but also of the new party, that if the people ever expect to own railroads they must take the initiative step themselves. While there is a great cry for railway communication via an independent line with the head of Lake Superior, no one seems to think it possible that the people of the Red River Valley are able to build and pay for a road from the lake to some central point in this valley, with the necessary branches to take in the largest part of its area.

There never has been a more favorable time and place for the building of a road by the people than is here and now afforded, and bear this in mind, whatever corporation builds this line, whether it be the Duluth & Winnipeg or some other, the people of this valley will pay for it, anyway. If they build it themselves they will pay for it and own it, while in case they allow some corporation to build it, they will pay for it just the same, but they will not own it, not one foot of it. Why then this grumbling and inaction? The corporations have confidence enough in this valley and its people to know that they are able to pay for all the railroads that they will need, as they have been and are paying for the Great Northern and Northern Pacific roads many times over. All the people need is to have as much confidence in themselves as the corporations have in them. What, but the people's timidity prevents them from constructing and maintaining this line themselves? Are they waiting for some high and mighty railroad magnate to take hold of it, who by his high and lordly mien will try to convince them that he is doing them a great favor by allowing them to build it for him? It seems so! But if they are to get a road that will be of any material benefit to them they must build it themselves, and allow no private corporation to gain control of it. We have already ample railroad facilities for our present business, if we could only obtain fair rates, but the roads that we have, instead of competing for business, combine in order to more effectively skin us. They gauge their rates, not by what it costs to build and operate them, but what the people are able to pay, and the fact that the people are compelled to pay over a large part of what they ought to add to their wealth every year, retards the growth of this valley, both in wealth and in population.

If we were to get another road under the same kind of management, what security have we that it will not join the combine and still further fleece us. We have no security whatever, but we know that this is exactly what is liable to happen. The question here is, can it be built by the people? and if it can, what is the best way of going about it? In order to answer the first question, it is necessary to ascertain approximately what such a road would cost, and then take stock of our resources to ascertain if they are large enough to warrant the outlay. The first part of this question must be decided by the number of miles of line to be built and the average cost per mile. The number of miles required to be built would aggregate somewhere about four hundred. This would mean a road to some central point east of the Red River, and two branch lines from such central point extending northwest and southwest respectively, across the Red River, cutting it diagonally in both cases. Two hundred and fifty miles of these lines would be across our wild prairies and could be constructed at a minimum of cost, while the balance, 125 miles, would pass through a more or less broken country, where the expense would be somewhat greater.

The first 250 miles above indicated can be built at various estimates averaging not over $10,000 per mile, or $2,500,000, while the other 150 miles would probably cost on an average nearly, if not quite, twice as much per mile, or $3,000,000. Total $5,500,000, an average of $13,750 per mile for the whole road. It may be argued that these figures are not high enough, below however is the estimated average cost per mile of roads in Illinois, and the topography of Minnesota is so similar to that of Illinois that the average cost will probably be about the same. The figures given below were prepared at the request of the Illinois Railroad Commissioners by a railroad official, so that the probability is that they are at least high enough.

Right of way	$ 1,500 00
1,200 yds grading, 20c per yd	2,400.00
Bridging	2,000 00
2,700 ties at 40c	1,080 00
95 tons steel rails, $31 per ton,	2,945 00
Rail joints and fastenings	200.00
Track laying, surfacing, spiking and spikes	350 00
Fencing	800.00
Hand cars, section hand tools, &c	100 00
Water-supply	200.00
Side tracks	400.00
Section buildings and stock pens	400.00
	$12,375.00

Some of the above items would certainly have to be cut down if applied to a road from North Dakota, across northern Minnesota to Lake Superior. For instance, the first item, right of way. In a mile of right of way there is about 12 acres of land; at $1,500 per mile this would make it worth $125 per acre, which is rather high even for our prairie land, to say nothing about the wild country to the east of us where the cost would be almost nothing. Instead of $1,500, the actual figures would not exceed $500, and perhaps not half that sum. The next item, grading, would also have to be reduced. The 240 miles of prairie road can be graded with patent graders at less than $500 per mile, allowing twice the average cost of Illinois roads for the other 150 miles, would still only make the average cost per mile for grading of the whole line $2110 25.

Fencing is an item that can be dispensed with almost entirely. The item of rails, however, would have to be raised to 70 pound steel, making 126 tons per mile and costing $3,906. This increase would, however, not quite offset the reduction in other items, so that it appears quite safe to accept the figures of the Illinois Railroad Commission, $12,275 per mile, making 400 miles cost $4,500,000. The cities at the head of the lake could be depended upon to give right of way and terminal facilities at least.

Now, without counting on the country to the west of Duluth for the first 200 miles for any aid whatever, is the Red River Valley able to construct this line? Taking a strip of country 40 miles wide on each side of the Red River and 180 miles long, we have an area containing 9,216,000 acres, ninety per cent. farming land. The road then would cost less than 50 cents per acre of the territory it would control, not taking into condition town and city property which would reduce the burden on the farming land somewhat. Allowing the net earnings of the road to accumulate to pay off the principal, at would leave, at 6 percent interest, 3 cents per acre annual increase of taxes on account of this road. Deducting one-third of the number of acres contained in this territory for government, state and railroad lands, not taxed, would increase the tax on the balance to 4½ cents per acre, on a farm of 160 acres this would amount to $7.20 annual increase of taxes. Without taking into consideration the increased value of land in consequence of cheaper transportation, which alone would build the road twice over, let us see what the actual cash saving to each farm of 160 acres would amount to on the one item of wheat. Allowing 100 acres for wheat, at an average producing capacity of only 15 bu. or 900 per acre, a reduction of 5 cents per cwt, would make an annual saving of 45 cents per acre, $45 for a 100 acre field or 160 acre farm. Deducting $7.20 increase of taxes from $45.00 decrease of expenses, would give a balance of $37.80 per annum clear profit. Taking all other classes of freight into consideration the saving would be at least $50.00 or about enough to pay all taxes. It is clear then that this valley, so far as resources are concerned is amply able to build this road, and that as a business investment it should not be neglected.

The second question is, how to go about it, and it is here that the main difficulties present themselves, we have become so accustomed to leave all large undertakings in the hands of corporations that many of us have come to look upon public ownership as a visionary theory well enough to talk about but in no ways practicable, but let us see. This project being an interstate affair the first thing to be done is to see that we have the lawful sanction of the government, if no law already exists under which we can legally go to work, our congressmen should be communicated with and urged to put forth every effort to have the necessary law passed The matter of management is a great bugbear to some people, because, they say, it would fall into the hands of the politicians and be controlled by them. Indirectly they affect it, as they do the postal department, but directly they would have no power over it. Let one or more directors be chosen from each county with power to appoint the manager and to decide the general policy of the road. The manager to hold his office so long as he shows ability and willingness, to operate the road in the interests of the people, but he must, before being appointed be able to show that he is a practical railroad man and is competent to manage the business. He should have full power to appoint his own assistants, and subordinates, but not to discharge them, except for cause, and subject to appeal to the directors, who should meet once a month to decide such cases beside transacting other necessary business. Appointments to fill all vacancies should be made by competitive examinations from the ranks. In this way the best of service would be obtained and the managment taken entirely out of the hands of the politicians.

With regard to the method of raising the money wherewith to carry out the enterprise there is the usual way of voting bonds and floating them on the eastern markets, besides this method, a goodly sum could be raised by issuing non-interest bearing script to be given in exchange for loans from private parties interested in the development of the country, this script to be redeemed from the earnings of the road by accepting it at face value in payment of freight, to the amount of 5 per cent of any freight bill. There is hardly a business man, or a farmer owning 160 acres of land and upward but could well afford to loan from one hundred to one thousand dollars in this manner, knowing that every time he shipped or received a pound of freight, five per cent of the cost of such transportation would have to be accepted in script, making it absolutely good, and while outstanding it could be used to a certain extent as money, as merchants and others having large sums to pay in freights, could use it in limited quantities to the same advantage as cash.

Further details could be gone into with regard to the scheme, "if so you choose to name it," but it is hardly practicable within the necessary limits of a newspaper article to do so, furthermore it is not the intention of the writer to lay down any infallible rules, to be followed out in every detail, but rather to bring the matter up for discussion in order that people might ascertain each others' opinions in regard to it. If after duly considering it the people conclude that they can agree to undertake the project, it is time enough then to decide upon details. Now I will permit myself to urge upon the alliance especially (although all classes should be interested) to take the question up and discuss it thoroughly. If the matter is taken up in earnest, there is not much doubt but that the verdict will be in favor of building this line.

Whether the plan, partially outlined above be followed with or without modifications, or ignored altogether makes no difference, so long as the result arrived at is the same as here aimed at, but at any rate let us wake up and do something, and not allow ourselves to be further driven like a flock of sheep by an arrogant railroad combination. Let us not by our sluggishness and timidity render useless the work of this country's pioneers, who, had they been given our opportunities would certainly not have allowed them to go by without taking advantage of them. All this weeping and gnashing of teeth over railroad extortions might elicit sympathy, were it not for the fact that we have the weapons wherewith to not only defend ourselves but to annihilate our oppressors, once our leatherpates become sensitive enough to distinguish a mule's kick from a maiden's caress and we get our eyes open to the fact that corporations have only the strength that we give them, and that as soon as the people, the real power, withdraw their support from the corporations, the latter's efforts to take undue advantage would be as futile as an attempt to tear down Gibraltar with a toothpick.

People of the Red River Valley! now is the time for you to show by your actions whether the title of Free American Citizens, upon which you pride yourselves so much, really amounts to something, or is only an empty parade of words, a shining coat to hide from superficial view your political imbecility. If the former, then sound the reveille, fall in line, forward march.

Yours truly,
P. M. RINGDAL.

Our Washington Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31st, 1891.

ED. JOURNAL.—The Cleveland and Mills wing of the Democratic party propose to execute a flank movement on Speaker Crisp. Their agents are now busily at work suggesting that a caucus might be held of the Democrats to determine the politics to be followed by the party in Congress. This plan is a new one. The Speaker has heretofore always outlined the politics of the party and the election of Mr. Crisp was a direct outlining by a Democratic caucus, but the Mills fellows, following the lead of Cleveland, are not satisfied with having been beaten once and are determined to try again to see if they cannot make the tariff the sole question in the coming campaign and by so doing secure the nomination of their little tin god on wheels, Grover Cleveland.

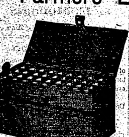
Breckenridge, of Kentucky, the silver-haired and golden-tongued orator from the blue grass region, fired the first gun in the campaign against Crisp on Wednesday. The House met for the purpose of receiving the report from the Speaker of his committees. As soon as Mr. Rusk, of Maryland, was announced as chairman of the committee on Accounts, he made the usual resolution that the committee on Accounts be authorized to designate the committees of the House to which clerkships should be assigned. Speaker Crisp stated that the agreement that no business should be transacted other than the announcement of the committees, a resolution as to adjournment for the Holidays and the swearing of new members, and that this required unanimous consent. Mr. Breckenridge, of Kentucky, objected. This single objection kept in all the Republican clerks until the House convenes on the fifth of January and kept out the Democrats, knocking them out of their pay from the 23d of December until the 5th of January. To say that the clerks were mad and that the chairman of the committees were mad would hardly express the condition of affairs when Mr. Breckenridge prevented the adoption of this resolution. The air was lurid and the gentlemen who were thus disappointed "swore like our army in Flanders." Breckenridge made a great many enemies by his action in this matter.

Henri Watterson, the self-selected knight who, with visor down and armed cap-a-pie, is fighting the battles of the star-eyed Goddess of reform, has issued his bulletin against the action of Congress in sitting down upon Mills and Cleveland. He attacks Crisp and says that his selection of chairmen and the organization of the House was a matter of personal aggrandizement fixed to reward those who supported him and to punish those who were against him, that he brings untried men to the front and the party and the country have the right to hold him to a very rigid accountability for the consequences. Of Springer he says the appointment "is positively unfortunate." He says that Springer has never shown any capacity as a House leader and his selection looks exactly like the result of a trade and is a pretext to turn down and degrade a man who has done efficient and eminent work. In short Mr. Watterson is very mad.

The World's Fair managers are resorting to desperate measures to secure their appropriation from Congress. They are now bringing suit against all the straw subscribers to the World's Fair funds in Chicago to show that they are in need of the money and are announcing that the work will have to stop by the first of February if they do not succeed in getting it. Let Mr. Pullman, Mr. Potter Palmer and Mr. Marshall Field, each of whom signed a telegram during the time that the question of locating the Fair at Chicago was under discussion declaring that they could raise all the money necessary, even to the amount of twenty-five million dollars pull out their pocketbooks and furnish the funds. The United States will not furnish a dollar.

L. E. GOSSMAN,
Attorney-at-Law,
No. 3 Fournet Block, CROOKSTON, MINN.

Farmers' Egg Cases.



Call and Get a Ticket

And when you purchase anything at our store have the amount punched. The case is made of tin, handsomely Japanned and ornamented. The Fillers are made of cloth paper and very durable. Saves both packing and counting, obviates loss from breakage and miscounts and is an ornament to any home. This case will be given you when your cash purchases amount to $25.00.

When empty these cases can be used to carry groceries in, and are very handy for that. Remember the place,

A. Sture's New Store,
Opera House Block, CROOKSTON, MINN.

A. J. & A. McKINNON,
CROOKSTON
CARRIAGE WORKS.
Manufactures everything that runs on wheels. Repairing done on short notice and in workmanlike manner.
GIVE US A CALL
A. J. & A. McKINNON, Main Street, Crookston.

Schmidt, the Painter,
CARRIES A FULL AND COMPLETE STOCK OF PAINTS,
OILS AND
VARNISHES.
ALSO A FULL AND COMPLETE LINE OF
WALL PAPER.
Painting in all its branches, and Paper Hanging artistically done.
Call at the Shop on Broadway.

BOSTON
ONE PRICE ONE PRICE ONE PRICE
CLOTHING HOUSE.
Our sturdy, steady, satisfactory business has been obtained by the honest industry and proper respect of the people's common sense. This season we speak to thousands of new friends who expect from us the lowest price for Reliable Merchandise that any house will name. We ask you in your own interest
To see our Overcoats,
To see our Suits,
To see our Trousers,
Before going elsewhere.
Business Suits, strong and stylish. Dress Suits in soft, silken, clinging clay worsted, that will never gloss or fade. Fur Coats, Fur Caps, Plush Caps. Furnishings and Underwear. Everything desirable, Everything good. Latest Novelties in Neckwear.
Mossefin & Lindell, Props.

HOW TO SAVE MONEY
BUY OF SLOCUM,
The Leading Grocer. The Best Goods for the Least Money.
SPECIALTIES | I MAKE A SPECIALTY OF | SPECIALTIES
TEAS, COFFEES, CANNED SALMON and CHOICE BUTTER.
HAVE YOU TRIED MY Wheat Germ Meal?
Everything in my line fresh from the wholesaler at the VERY LOWEST LIVING RATES. Give me a Trial.
W. E. SLOCUM, BROADWAY.

Our Duluth Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

DULUTH, Dec. 31.—The holiday season brought with it a cessation of business, to a large extent. Now that is about over signs of renewed activity are already to be seen. The principal interest just now is in the new mining country which was described in a previous letter. Duluth men are very sanguine as to its future and expect it to do much for the Northwestern country. Measures will probably soon be taken to secure for this city many of the benefits to be derived from it.

In a talk the other day with a prominent business man on local industries, he spoke of the market furnished them. It is really interesting to study this phase of the industrial question. Many places can furnish cheap fuel, others cheap raw material and others possess some other advantage as a manufacturing point, but no one of them alone, and at times not all of them will build up factories. The greatest advantage, after all, is a good market. This gentleman pointed out the markets supplied by some of this city's industries. The new blast furnace, recently put in operation, was mentioned. For the first two or three weeks the company were troubled with the delays and accidents usual to new plants, but the furnace is now working satisfactorily and producing 100 tons of pig iron daily, and this amount is soon to be increased to 125 tons. All this output is contracted for in advance to the steel works across the bay. Another plant at West Duluth is the Duluth Manufacturing Company's. Almost the entire output of its rolling mill is consumed at the head of the lakes. Of the local lumber cut, one-third or more is used here. For almost every industry here save for those like the flour mills and the manufactories of machinery of special paterns, which look to the entire country or even Europe, there is a market for a good part of their product. Of course the great interior Northwest furnishes one of the best markets for a large number of manufactured goods.

The wheat movement to Duluth was about 100,000 bu. less last week than for the previous week, being 1,047,626 bu. Last year for the same week it was only 154,322 bu. Stocks are increasing on an average now about 1,000,000 bu. a week. At this rate it will take three months to fill the elevators here, there now being in store over 6,000,000 bu. If there is as much wheat in the farmers' hands as generally supposed, and it moves freely, as expected, they will be full some time before navigation opens in the spring. Since September 1st, Duluth has received 32,173,046 bu. of wheat, and estimating the last three days of December, the receipts for the calendar year will be 40,500,000. Total receipts of wheat and flour will equal nearly 53,000,000 bu.

The Iron Range road has made in its shops at Two Harbors a new ore car, after designs of its own, and will send it to different car factories throughout the country and ask for bids on a large number. The road will probably add considerable to its equipment before the next season's ore traffic begins. HAYS.

$75 MONTH $300
Do You Want
Employment?
Cy which you can make from $75.00 to $250.00 per month—the amount depending on whether you work part or all your time, and on the amount of VIM and VIGOR and PLUCK and PUSH you put into the work. If so, it might pay you to write to us. WE'VE GOT SOMETHING THAT GOES, and there's room for a few more to come in. It won't cost you much to investigate—only a two-cent stamp. WE WANT A LIVE, WIDE-AWAKE REPRESENTATIVE IN OUR COMMUNITY, EITHER MAN OR WOMAN. If you are interested we'd like to hear from you. We'll show you where there's some money. All information by return mail. Then if you are not convinced, all right; there'll be no harm done—only YOU'LL MISS A GOOD THING. Letter write at once. Address
The Brodix Publishing Co.
WASHINGTON, D. C.

$60 REWARD.
FREE FOR TWO MONTHS.
THE HOME MAGAZINE
Every lady sending us the names of 20 housekeepers will receive a copy of The Home Magazine FREE for two months.
To those who may be desirous of sending us more than 20, we offer the following cash prizes for the largest lists received, viz:
For the largest list $20.00
" " next largest list 10.00
" " third " 5.00
" " fourth " 5.00
" " fifth " 5.00
" " 20 largest lists, 50c each 10.00
" " next 20 largest lists, 50c. " 10.00
Rules Governing this Competition.
1. All names must reach us not later December 1st, and all prizes will be made later than December 10th.
2. Put the names of those living in [illegible] towns on separate sheets of paper, giving name of the state and county in the upper left-hand corner, and [illegible] tained on [illegible] Thus:
Mrs. Henry Brown, [illegible]
Amelia Duggan,
Chas. Semple, Box 510,
Amelia Walker,
Give the total number of names on your list in the letter accompanying same.
4. Be careful to write as distinctly as [illegible] and on one side of the paper only.
5. Names of the prize winners will be announced in the January, 1892, number of Home Magazine.
THE BRODIX PUBLISHING Co.
WASHINGTON, D. C.

Polk County Journal.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.

Crookston, January 7, 1892.

'Round Home.

Wheat—1 Hard 73.
1 Northern 72.
2 Northern 67.
3 Northern 61.

It was sort o' dusty on Tuesday afternoon.

Albert Losey, of Euclid, has accepted a position in the post office.

Mrs. Geo. W. Tice, of Mentor, was in the city Monday evening.

Pleasant weather for sleigh-riding, and very many are enjoying it.

The old opera house is being fixed over into a fine church building.

No. 149 was the lucky number for the doll-carriage at Herb's. Who has it?

C. E. Reckett started for Missouri on Sunday evening to spend the winter there.

Herb Marshall, after spending the holidays at home has returned to Minneapolis to attend college.

Ole Meldahl sends us a New Years greeting in a renewal. Ole is coining wealth near Drayton, N. D.

Sheriff Grundysen went out to the Thirteen to spend New Year's Day with old friends and associates there.

L. H. Judson went down to Minneapolis on Monday evening to attend the annual meeting of the Alliance, Superintendent V. D. Carruth attended the meeting of the county superintendents in St. Paul last week.

Fred W. Davis came down last Saturday from Euclid to be in time for the opening of the high school on Monday.

The New Year came in rather cold but after a bluster or two moderated very materially and we have had lovely weather.

Col. Cobbam Post will hold the balance of last Friday evening's session on Friday evening, Jan. 8th. Muster in of officers.

Doc. Rutledge, the Fisher Bulletin rustler was in on Tuesday, seemingly interested in the proceedings of the county board.

Geo. Vine is supplying his customers with a choice line of bacon of his own curing. We know what we are talking about, having sampled it.

Archie Mc Kinnon has gone out east incidentally to look after stock but actually to get some wood if there is any between here and Duluth.

Moses Riel has purchased the Ole Meldahl place in Fairfax, about a half section. This place lies about five miles from the city and is a fine farm.

Rev. and Mrs. Battey rejoice in the arrival of a little stranger at their home on Saturday last. The young lady will remain and grow up with the country.

Jos. Laframboise left for his old home in Canada this week. Will be gone a month or six weeks and hopes to return in company with a goodly crowd from his old home.

The Rev. Washington, of Fertile, gave The Journal office a pleasant call on Tuesday. He thinks if there was more practical christianity in politics it would be better and we reckon he is about right.

By grape vine telegraph The Journal is informed that representative Will Carlton is grandpa—and by that same token so is Mr. S. Crookshanks, of Buffington, for it is said that a fine bouncing boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. A. Carlton, of Angus, recently.

Chas. Misner came down to his shop on Tuesday morning stepping as high as a Shanghai rooster and bearing underneath his left wing a box of Brown's Selects and as he extended the box to our reporter he put on the handsomest pompadour smile you ever saw as he said: "Little girl; yesterday; 7¾ pounds!"

The East Grand Forks Courier inquires how many hotels Crookston has, anyhow? A friend at our elbow suggests that that is a funny question for an East Grand Forks paper to ask, "seeing as how the large majority of her citizens always patronize hotel de Grundysen during their sojourn in Crookston."

The ladies of the Congregational church gave an excellent dinner at the church parlors on Thursday to which over 100 guests sat down. Some of our patrons kept us so busy writing receipts for subscription that we did not get time to leave the office before 5 p. m., however the ladies did not forget us and we did ample justice to the chicken pie later on.

On Thursday night a collision of freights occurred within the yard limits in this city, an east-bound freight train was struck by another and a pretty extensive wreck was the result, fortunately, however, with no loss of life. The storm prevailing prevented the engineer of the last freight seeing the rear lights of the train ahead until too late to avert the disaster.

At a special meeting of the city council on Tuesday evening it was decided to purchase the property on Ash Street between the Episcopal church parsonage and the Congregational church and present it to the County for county jail purposes. The county board agrees to build a jail to cost not less than $18,000 nor over $25,000. This is a wise move on the part of the city.

Wheat opened out on Monday morning at 72 cents.

Comrade Ira D. Blanchard departed for Minneapolis on Saturday evening and [illegible] be gone three or four months.

[illegible] Steelman and Geo. Tripp were [illegible] of the prominent farmers of Mentor who made us a pleasant call last Friday evening.

The county commissioners are in session this week. They will probably take some action on that jail matter at this session.

Note the change in Fontaine & Anglim's ad. and remember that their annual remnant sale affords great opportunities for bargains.

The St. Hilaire Spectator says that George Lipscombe was up to Thief River Falls to see his best girl New Year's Day. How is that, George?

A. O. Ralstad has purchased a building in Fosston and will go up there to open up a restaurant. A. O. knows how to keep a good restaurant and he tells us he has made big money in the business here.

Mr. W. W. Attix, of Mentor, received an apoplectic stroke last week. Dr. C.E. Dampier went down on Monday to attend him and pronounces it a very serious case, requiring a long time to cure. His many friends all hope for the best.

The leading articles of the month, as condensed for the January number of the Review of Reviews, comprise the most important essays and discussions that have appeared in the leading periodicals of the world in the month of December.

Emil Himmelback commenced the new year right by subscribing for The Journal and Farm Stock and Home with us. Having taken unto himself a wife he now sees the necessity for plenty of good reading matter and considers the family Journal the proper thing to have.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Durkee desire to take this method for returning thanks to O. J. Barnes for a liberal supply of groceries on New Year's Day. "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto Me."

Tim Donovan, who has been with Fontaine & Anglim so long has severed his connection with that firm and will go on the road. Tim has made many friends who will regret to see him leave but will unite with The Journal in wishing him lots of good fortune.

Since E. M. Walsh put his ad. into The Journal he is being deluged with letters from parties all over the United States inquiring for lands. Mr. Walsh is one of the oldest settlers of Polk County, coming before the railroad reached this point and he is thoroughly conversant with every farm in Polk County, and he will honestly answer all letters of inquiry. People do well to write to Ed.

Mr. A. Boddy, of Edna, dropped in on Tuesday to help oil the wheels and bid us God speed. Mr. B. has opened a real estate office in Edna and being an old resident, is perfectly acquainted with the lands in his neighborhood and is in every way reliable. Journal readers, desiring information about Polk County lands may impose implicit confidence in Mr. Boddy, who will cheerfully answer any and all questions asked. His address is Edna, Polk County, Minn.

On Tuesday evening the sad news of the death of W. W. Attix was brought us, which event occurred at his residence at 7 o'clock Tuesday morning. Mr. Attix was about 47 years old, one of the pioneers of the town of Grove Park, coming there with his brother H. S. 13 or 14 years ago, and he was at the time of his death one of the most prominent men of the town, respected and beloved by all who knew him. He has filled many positions of public trust in his life and with honor to himself and credit to his constituents. He was a man of liberal education, a hard worker a good kind husband and father, and, after years of toil had just begun to reap the reward thereof when the fatal appoplectic stroke was received that laid him low. On the day that it happened he had been unusually joyous and happy, joking and chatting with his wife and children and no indication of the coming sad and bitter trial for his loved ones was apparent. His wife had left the room but a moment, when, hearing a peculiar sound, she hastily returned and found him in a fit. Everything that loving hearts and willing hands could do was done; physicians were summoned as hastily as possible, but all in vain—the dread summons had been served and his time had come, and quietly and peacefully he passed into eternal rest, surrounded by family and kind neighbors. He leaves a family of six children and his faithful and loving wife, with whom he has walked life's pathway for 28 years, to mourn their irretrievable loss. And so a good man goes to his reward, ever faithful in the discharge of his duties, kind, honest and cheerful in adversity as well as prosperity he had ever a place in the hearts of his neighbors that but comparatively, few in this world attain, and though no grand marble shaft may mark his last resting place, he has a grander, far more noble monument in the hearts of his fellow-townsmen that shall endure co-equal with the history of the town he founded and did so much for, and we sincerely believe that he has gone to a reward far greater than the band of man could ever bestow. The funeral obsequies take place at Mentor to-day.

BUY A FARM

I have some of the best land

IN

Polk County

In my hands for sale

CHEAP!

And you can make prices and terms to suit you. Write me for lists.

L. F. Menage,

14-89] Minneapolis, Minn.

Council Proceedings.

Proceedings of a special meeting of the City Council of the City of Crookston held in the city hall on Monday evening January 4th, 1892.

Meeting called to order by President Cromb.

ROLL CALL.

Aldermen present—Buhn, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, Marshall, McGlogan, Marlette, Steenerson, Walker, Cromb.

Aldermen absent—none.

The call of the acting Mayor was for the purpose of considering the liquor application of Fred Sargent, also the matter of a jail site and the extention of the water mains to the county hospital.

The application and bond of Fred Sargent for a liquor license was read. On motion the bond of Fred Sargent was approved and a license ordered made out upon the payment of the required sum.

The committee to whom was referred the matter of extending the water main to the county hospital reported as follows:

CROOKSTON, Minn. Jan. 4, 1892.

To the President and members of the City Council of the city of Crookston:

GENTLEMEN:—Your committee to whom was referred the extension of water mains in the 2d ward from a point on west Fifth street, near the railroad track, thence westward on same street six hundred feet, with one hydrant at terminus, beg leave to report that your committee had an interview with the Superintendent of the Water Works, Power and Light Co., and they agree to put in this extension and the city pay the extra expense of going through the frosted ground; said expense not to exceed fifty dollars, and your committee would recommend the same be ordered laid.

Respectfully submitted;

A. C. SCHMIDT,
G. H. MCGLOGAN. } Com.

Moved by Alderman Marshall, seconded by Alderman Buhn, that the report be accepted and adopted and the committee discharged. Carried.

The committee appointed to look into the matter of a jail site reported as follows:

CROOKSTON, Jan. 4, 1892.

To the President and Members of the City Council of the city of Crookston:

GENTLEMEN:—Your committee to whom was referred the matter of looking up a suitable site for jail and other buildings beg leave to report that we recommend the city purchase a suitable amount of land for building purposes, and as near the business portion of the city as practicable, and the same be paid for in city orders payable July 1st, 1893, and the purchase price not to exceed eleven thousand dollars ($11,000) or as much thereof as deemed necessary.

Respectfully submitted:

A. C. SCHMIDT,
I. U. JENNINGS.
W. E. WALKER, } Com.

Moved by Alderman Marshall, seconded by Alderman Walker, that the report of the committee on a jail site be referred back to the same committee with instructions to confer with the Board of County Commissioners and to report to the Council on Tuesday evening, Jan. 5th. Carried.

Moved by Alderman Marshall, seconded by Alderman Steenerson, that when we adjourn it be to meet on Tuesday evening, January 5th. Carried.

At a special meeting of the City Council of the city of Crookston, held the fourth day of January, 1892, Alderman Schmidt offered the following resolution, which was seconded by Alderman McGlogan:

Resolved, That the Crookston Water Works, Power and Light Company be and is hereby ordered to construct a line of water main the proper depth below any danger of frost on the following street: Commencing at the west terminus of the present line on Fifth street (5th st.) thence in a westerly course to the corner of Pine street, with one (1) hydrant at the corner of Fifth and Pine streets, the city of Crookston to pay fifty dollars ($50) to defray part of the extra expense connected with laying pipes through frosted ground, provided said pipe is laid immediately.

Upon the call of ayes and nays, the vote stood as follows;

Aldermen voting in the affirmative—Buhn, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, Marshall, McGigan, Marlette, Steenerson, Schmidt, Walker, Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative—none.

Upon this vote the resolution was declared carried by the president of the council.

Passed this 4th day of January, 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
President of the Council.

Approved this 4th day of January, 1892.

Attest: ALEX. MCKINNON, Mayor.
E. C. CARRUTH, Clerk.

A communication was read from Constable Larson resigning as constable. No action taken.

An application was read from T. B. McManus to be appointed as constable in place of H. Larson, resigned. No action taken.

On motion council adjourned.

E. C. CARRUTH, City Clerk.

Council Proceedings.

Proceedings of an adjourned special meeting of the City Council of the City of Crookston, held in the City Hall on Tuesday evening, January 5th, 1891.

Meeting called to order by president Cromb.

ROLL CALL.

Aldermen present—Buhn, Jennings, Jerome, Marshall, McGlogan, Marlette, Schmidt, Steenerson, Walker, Cromb.

Alderman absent—Childs.

The claim of Mrs. Blanchard for damages from water from the street, damaging lots 6 and 7, block 6, Sletten and Cromb's subdivision, was referred to the aldermen of the 4th ward and the city engineer, to examine into the matter and report at the next meeting.

The committee on the jail site reported verbally that they had met with the county board and looked over the different locations for a jail site, among them the property known as the Lancester & Young property, also the property owned by Messrs Braley and Scott situated in block one, original townsite of Crookston in Fletcher & Houston's addition to Crookston, with 250 feet facing Ash street, 150 feet deep to the alley and 280 feet back of alley for the sum of $8,500.00.

The following proposition from the County Board was read:

To the Hon. City Council of the City of Crookston;

GENTLEMEN,—

Upon the delivery of a clear and warranty deed from the City of Crookston to the County of Polk to the following described real estate, viz:

The property now owned by Messrs Braley and Scott, situated in block one (1) original town site of Crookston and Fletcher & Houston's addition to Crookston.

We, the undersigned Commissioners of Polk County, will and hereby agree to erect and build a county jail on said premises at a cost not less than $18,000 and not to exceed $25,000 00, said building to be built during the year A. D. 1892.

M. E. KIRSCH,
CYPRIEN DEMERS,
A. O. STORTROEN,
A. C. RHINEHART.

Dated Crookston, Minn., January 5th, 1892.

The tax payers and business men present were invited by the president to express their views on the matter and remarks were heard from J. E. Morrissey, E. M. Walsh, H. E. Cooke, all in favor of the matter.

Moved by Alderman McGlogan, seconded by Alderman Jerome, that the report of the committee on site be accepted and adopted. Carried unanimously.

Moved by Alderman Steenerson, seconded Alderman McGlogan, that the matter of securing the deed of the property required by the proposition of the County Commissioners for a jail site be referred back to the committee who negotiated for said property and just made a report thereon, with instruction to said committee to proceed to carry out said negotiation and to secure deed for said property as required by the County Commissioners. Carried.

On motion, Alderman Steenerson was added to the committee on jail site.

Moved by Alderman Steenerson, seconded by Alderman McGlogan, that the recommendation of the jail site committee dated January 4th, 1892, be adopted. Carried.

On motion Council adjourned.

E. C. CARRUTH,
City Clerk.

Ship your wheat to O. Tharaldson general agent of the Northwestern Farmers' Protective Association, at Duluth, and make from 4 to 7 cents a bushel. For further particulars as to membership, &c., inquire of L. K. Hassel, Grand Forks, N. D. [25-tf]

Mrs. Mary E. Leavens, of Faribault, was in the city last week for the purpose of organizing a Ladies' Relief Corps. Forty-eight members joined as charter members forming Col. Cobham Corps No. 92, with the following officers:

Mrs. Van Arnam, President.
Mrs. I. U. Jennings, Sen. Vice-President.
Mrs. J. V. E. Wyatt, Jun. Vice-President.
Mrs. W. E. Slocum, Treasurer.
Mrs. C. S. Spendley, Secretary.
Mrs. M. B. Hayes, Chaplain.
Mrs. Geo. W. Peake, Conductor.
Miss Minnie Walker, Assistant.
Mrs. J. G. McGrew, Guard.
Miss Lizzie Zarracher, Assistant Guard.

Mrs. Leavens says she seldom organizes a larger corps and was highly pleased at the prospects of Col. Cobham Corps No. 92.

Ante-Inventory Sale

—OF—

COUNTER CRUMBS,

That's a good name for them, or we might call them

Clearance Crumbs.

They are the crumbs of our season's stock. You know how it is. Every season sees some broken lines left on our courters; remnants, odd pieces and patterns. These we call "crumbs." They go at "crumb" prices, too, as we want to reduce our stock to the lowest limit before invoicing.

NOTE THIS!

Most merchants make a sale after invoicing to work off old calamity catch-pennies. We make our sale before invoicing, and offer

The Pick of Our Entire Fall Stock.

Fontaine & Anglim.

Ladies, you ca nnotafford to miss seeing my new fall styles of millinery. The novelties of the season are rare and beautiful. Call and see them. Mrs E. E. Bangs.

W. J. Nickels was up from his school on the west-side on Saturday last. Nick says the Hayes boys have a yield of 28,000 bushels of wheat from less than 1,000 acres which is a grand yield on that acreage. Such crops as these emphasize the need for a railroad down that way.

O. H. Bang was up from the west side on Tuesday and did not forget to make The Journal a profitable call. Ole has developed into a first-class granger—raised a large crop of No. 1 Hard wheat and has 200 acres plowed ready for wheat in the spring. He will try sowing wheat on stubble land after a vigorous use of the spring-tooth harrow.

Since our last issue we have been kept busy writing receipts for subscription which is an extremely agreeable feature to us as it promises to enable us to carry out contemplated and much needed improvements in our mechanical department, as well as giving promise of our being able to meet maturing obligations on Feb. 1st. A few of these have been six or eight years in arrears, but the singular feature is that the majority of such cases are as dumb as oysters on the subject, however many of these have signified their intention to settle before Feb. 1st and things begin to look encouraging again. We trust the good work so well begun on this new year will continue until we have not a name on our list that is not paid up one year in advance. If this condition of things existed we could carry out our plans for improvements and not have to owe a cent for them.

HOLIDAY GOODS.

Before deciding what Xmas gifts you will purchase, please call and inspect my line of Pictures and Picture Framing Material, such as Oleographs, Chromos, Artotype and Steel Engravings, Monochromes, Water Color, Pastel and Oil Paintings.

Reproductions in Paintings and Etchings, Photogravures, Artographs, Typogravures, Mezzotypes and fac-simile Pastels, Genuine Etchings, Pastels and Steel Engravings. Etchings Remarque - Proof. Picture Mats, ouldings, Frames, Hooks, Nails, Cords, Wire and Room Mouldings.

I'm making a Special Sale of these goods for the Holiday trade. Call and examine.

Yours respectfully,
THE UNDERTAKER,
105½ Broadway,
Crookston, Minn. [35-tf]

ESTRAY.

A sorrel horse, with three white feet and white in face, came on my place Sec. 15 Town of Kertsonville, about the 20th of last month. Owner is requested to claim property, pay charges and take him away. FRANK LASARGE.

NEW FEED MILL

CHRIS. ANDERSON, Prop.

I desire to annouce to the farmers of Polk County that I have rented the

LAURENCE BUILDING, ON MAIN STEERT,

Next to Brown's New Livery Stable, and am now prepared to grind feed of all kinds promptly. You can get your feed in two hours after you bring me your grain. Prices Reasonable

Try My New Mill!

Mightier, Brighter, Busier

THAN EVER.

HAVING SECURED A

NEW LEASE

On my store building for another term of three years I am now better than ever prepared to serve my customers to their Best advantage.

THANKING MY FRIENDS and customers for their liberal patronage during and previous to the holidays, I now wish you all

A

HAPPY NEW YEAR.

C. H. SAAKE.

WHAT WILL YOU DO?

Since we broached the project of raising a fund to procure seed wheat and oats for feed for those who were hailed out last summer, many have expressed a willingness to aid in the matter, and in order to bring matters to a focus we suggest that all who are willing to contribute wheat, oats or money write us what they will do and how they will do it; all money received will be placed in the Scandia-American bank in the charge of Lewis Ellington. Those who will contribute oats or wheat can send to him an order upon themselves for the amount they will contribute, or they can send the same to us, and the party to whom it will be given can call for the grain. We would also suggest that any in need of grain leave their name at this office or with Mr. Ellington with proper voucher of loss so that an estimate of the amount required can be gained. A little judicious help extended to those who need it next spring would be an investment that would pay the county a hundred fold. Let us hear from those who are willing to aid in the good work. It will not require a very great outlay if all who are able take hold with a will and here goes to start the list:

POLK COUNTY JOURNAL..................$5.00

And Still They Come.

The Journal is happy to acknowledge the addition of 12 new names this week to its list. We would like the name of every dweller in Polk County but as that is impracticable then the next best thing is a large majority of them.

Mrs. E. E. Bangs' nice fall and winter display of millinery is the admiration of all the ladies who have called at her fashionable millinery parlors on Second street, and the prices are extremely low this fall.

"Prisoners of War," an original drama by Miss Aigen was the play put on by the May Louise Aigen Company, on Wednesday night of last week. Miss Aigen, in the dual character of "Kate Hardy" and "Sister Mary," was good, taking the part of the Sister of Mercy perfectly, while the Capt. Richard Hardy, of F. C. Huebner, for the concentrated essence of pure diabolism is hard to beat. He plots against his own brother's life with all the cool, calculating deliberation with which a man would trade horses or sell a farm. He realizes the old saw that a man "may smile and smile and be a villain." Owen Bartlett takes "Old Ned" nicely—he does everything well, while as Nell, an adventuress, Dot Bartlett excelled herself. Sid Hawkins, as Teddy O'Brien is a screamer. His very makeup is provocative of laughter and the audience is on the broad grin all the time Teddy is on the stage. His specialty work is good and he was re-called time and again until it would seem that even his Irish good-nature would give way. This is a strong piece well staged and well played.

"The Clemenceau Case," which was played by the May Louise Aigen Dramatic Co., on Friday evening was one of the best of the season. Each actor and actress fitted their respective characters like a new glove. The opera glass was awarded to Mrs. F. W. Bugg by a vote of 113; Miss Mabel Holt following her closely with a vote of 105. The hat, awarded to the homeliest man was voted to Frank Hertz by a large majority, no one else seeming to be "in it. We thought we had a dead cinch on that hat—sort o' entitled to it by right, but the ladies seemed to think differently and their judgement is generally pretty correct so we rather feel flattered than otherwise. Mid a storm of applause Frank marched up to the front and received his order for the hat and as he was returning one of Dick Hussey's little boys up in the gallery added to Frank's confusion by shouting out: "Oh, where did you get that hat?"

For Sale Cheap.

Buffalo robes and cutters. Mrs. Mary Schreader, Crookston, Minn. [35-tf]

At Your Own Prices.

Fancy feathers, ornaments, children's hoods and caps. Call early and get bargain. Mrs. E. E. Bangs.

ESTRAY.

Came on my premises on Thursday evening, Dec. 24th, 1891, one bay mare, about five years old, with white star in forehead, one white hind foot and two small white spots on shoulder, weighs about 900; also one light bay gelding about 5 years old, weight about 1,000 pounds, small white spot in forehead also one on shoulder.

GUNDER SCHEISTAD,
[37-39] Ash St., Crookston, Minn.

CHRISTIANSON BROTHERS

(Correspondents Fargo Loan Agency.)

REAL ESTATE.

Farm Mortgage Loans and Insurance.

☞ Special Bargains in Choice Farm Lands, improved and unimproved. Low prices and easy terms.

—OFFICE ON ROBERT STREET.—

CROOKSTON, - - - MINN

DEFINITIONS OF A BABY.

Some Definitions Called Forth by a Prize Contest.

The London Tit Bits recently offered a prize of two guineas for the best definition of "a baby". The following was the winning definition:

> A tiny feather of love, dropped into the sacred lap of motherhood.

The following is a selection from the best descriptions offered:

The bachelor's horror, the mother's treasure, and the despotic tyrant of the most republican household.

A human flower untouched by the finger of care.

The morning caller, noonday crawler, midnight brawler.

The magic spell by which the gods transform a house into a home.

A miniature Atlas that bears the whole world of wedded joys and cares on its little shoulders.

Father's rival in mother's love.

A stranger with unspeakable cheek, that enters a house without a stitch to its back, and is received with open arms by everyone.

The sapling of the tree from which will be built the bulwarks of our nation's future greatness.

A bursting bud on the tree of life.

The only precious possession that never excites envy.

A bold asserter of the rights of free speech.

The human screech owl, whose warbling sounds are demonical to some, seraphic to many, and appealing to all.

The best developer of the most beautiful part of a woman's nature, "unselfishness."

A tiny useless mortal, but without which the world would soon be at a standstill.

The member of the family that always cries when wanted to sleep, that always sleeps when wanted to keep awake, and invariably sulks when wanted to show off.

The latest edition of humanity, of which every couple think they possess the finest copy.

A native of all countries, who speaks the language of none.

An invention for keeping people awake at night.

That which increases the mother's toil, decreases the father's cash, and serves as an alarm clock to the neighbors.

A mite of a thing that requires a mighty lot of attention.

A diminutive specimen of perverse humanity that could scarcely be endured if he belonged to someone else, but being our own is a never failing treasury of delight.

A man or woman, making a start in life.

The unconscious mediator between father and mother, and the focus of their hearts.

A daylight charmer, and a midnight alarmer.

About twenty-two inches of coo and wriggle, writhe and scream, filled with suction and testing apparatus for milk, and automatic alarm to regulate supply.

A troublesome compendium of great possibilities.

A quaint little craft called Innocence, laden with simplicity and love.

A wee little specimen of humanity, whose winsome smile makes a good man think of the angels.

The sunbeam in the house that drives dull care away.

A curious bud of uncertain blossom.

A thing everybody thinks there is a great deal too much fuss about, unless it is their own.

A thing we are expected to kiss, and look as if we enjoyed it.

The one thing needful to make a home happy.

There is only one perfect specimen of a baby in existence, and every mother is the happy possessor of it.

The smartest little craft afloat in home's delightful bay.

A mite of humanity that will cry no harder if a pin is stuck into him than he will if the cat won't let him pull her tail.

A crying evil you only aggravate by putting down.

A baby is a tiny drop in the vast ocean of human life, capable of immense possibilities, and surrounded by great mysteries.

A little stranger, with a free pass to the heart's best affections.

The most extensive employer of female labor.

A padlock on the chain of love.

A soft bundle of love and trouble which we cannot do without.

A rose with all its sweetest leaves yet folded.

The sweetest thing God ever made and forgot to give wings to.

A pleasure to two, a nuisance to every other body, and a necessity to the world.

An inhabitant of Lapland.

A king who, though his sinews are only velvet, rules with a rod of iron, making strong men quail before him and women to answer and attend to every call.

A key that opens the hearts of all classes, rich or poor, in all countries.

That which makes home happier, love stronger, patience greater, hands busier, nights longer, days shorter, purses lighter, clothes shabbier, the past forgotten, the future brighter.

The delightful tyrant who rules the home, the mother's darling and father's pride, the cause of a thousand innocent joys, the blest pledge of matrimonial felicity.

The Czar Rebuffed the Duke.

The young Duke of Orleans is meeting with rebuffs on every side. A short time ago he applied to the Czar for permission to enter the Russian army in the same manner as young Prince Louis Bonaparte. The latter, immediately he made known his wish to Alexander III to serve for a time under the Muscovite flag, received a commission as Lieutenant Colonel of a crack cavalry regiment and was invited to visit the imperial family at Gatchina, where he was treated like a prince of the blood. No such courtesies were in store for the Duke of Orleans, for not only was the latter's request for permission to enter the Russian service curtly denied but moreover he was turned out of the opera at St. Petersburg for his indiscreet behavior in connection with Mme. Melba. Within the last few weeks he has scored another rebuff for having placed his sword at the disposal of the King of Denmark, that aged monarch having declined in even still more abrupt terms than did his son-in-law, the Czar. Possibly in course of time the Duke, finding all other military doors closed against him, may be driven to enter the army of the Shah of Persia, in which it is reported that ex-King Milan, of Servia is about to receive a command.—New York Recorder.

False in One,

False in All.

THE ENGLISH OF A LATIN PROVERB APPLIED TO A CONCERN WHICH IS NOW IN BUSINESS.

A Business started upon shams, must resort to shams, or retire.

The Royal Baking Powder Company garbled official documents to give it standing.

For this it was publicly branded.

The Food and Dairy Commissioner of Ohio caught the Royal Baking Powder Company in the act of misquoting his report, to make its goods appear unadulterated.

The same Company stole the livery of the Board of Health of the State of New York and went on dress parade in the garment.

The Board exposed this. When the apparel was removed, of course the deformity was left alone.

Then the Royal Baking Powder Company resorted to constructing a speaking machine.

It called this machine "A Government Chemist." When it mouthed its words to order, the Royal Company quoted the same and passed them around. These words represented the Royal Baking Powder as pure, etc.

"Government" is a stately word. Like everything good, it is abused by unscrupulous tricksters.

MAKE A NOTE.

There is no such office as that of Government Chemist.

A THOUGHT.

If a concern garbles official state papers, misquotes Boards of Health and Creates Official Mouth-pieces, for its own purposes, what will it do in adulterating its goods?

Dr. Price stands a foe to impure goods and tricky methods of advertising.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder is the only Pure Cream Tartar Baking Powder now to be obtained, and the thinking public are finding it out.

THE TWO HOUSEHOLDERS.

I will say this—speaking as accurately as a man may so long afterward—that when first I spied the house it put no desire in me but just to give thanks.

For conceive my case. It was near midnight by this; and, ever since dusk, I had been tracking the naked moors afoot, in the teeth of as vicious a nor'-wester as ever drenched a man to the skin and then blew the cold home to his marrow. My clothes were sodden; my coat-tails flapped with a noise like pistol-shots; my boots squeaked as I went. Overhead the October moon was in her last quarter, and might have been a slice of finger-nail for all the light she afforded.

It was at this instant that, far away to the left, a point of light caught my notice, faint but steady; and at once I felt sure it burned in the window of a house.

I cut straight across the heather toward the light, risking many quags and pitfalls, and soon a flicker of moonlight gave me a glimpse of the house's outline. It proved to be a deal more imposing than I had looked for—the outline, in fact, of a tall, square barrack, with a cluster of chimneys at either ends, like ears, and a high wall, topped by the roofs of some outbuildings, concealing the lower windows. There was no gate in this wall, and presently I guessed the reason, I was approaching the place from behind, and the light came from a back window on the first floor.

The faintness of the light was also explained by this time. It shone behind a drab-colored blind, and in shape resembled the stem of a wine-glass, broadening out at the foot, an effect produced by the half-drawn curtains within. I came to a halt, waiting for the next ray of moonlight. At the same moment a rush of wind swept over the chimney stacks, and on the wind there seemed to ride a human sigh. And then, to my dismay, the light faded from the window.

I was half-minded to call out, when it appeared again, this time in two windows—those next on the right to that where it had shown before. Almost at once it increased in brillance, as if the person who carried it from the smaller room to the larger was lighting more candles. During the minute or more that I stood watching no shadow fell on either blind.

But I now perceived that the surrounding wall advanced some way before the house. So much of it, too, as faced the road had been whitewashed, which made it an easy matter to find the gate. But as I laid my hand on its latch I had a surprise.

Along the wet surface of the walk fell a streak of light from the front door, which stood ajar.

That a door should remain six inches open on such a night was astonishing enough. But looking up and assuring myself that all the rest of the facade was black as ink, I wondered at the inmates who could thus be careless of their property. Along the wall by my shoulder ran a line of pegs, on which hung half a dozen hats and great-coats, everyone of clerical shape, and full in front of me a broad staircase ran up, with a staring Brussels carpet, the colors and patterns of which I can recall as well as to-day's breakfast. Under this staircase was set a stand full of walking-sticks and a table littered with gloves, brushes, a hand-bell, a riding-crop, one or two dog-whistles and a bed-room candle, with tinder box beside it. This with one notable exception, was all the furniture.

The exception—which turned me cold—was the form of a yellow mastiff dog, curled on a mat beneath the table.

But a man's habits are not easily denied. At the end of three minutes the dog had not moved, and I was down on the door-mat unlacing my soaked boots. Slipping them off and taking them in my left hand, I stood up and tried a step toward the stairs, with eyes alert for any movement of the mastiff, but he never stirred.

I was glad enough, however, on reaching the stairs to find them newly built and the carpet thick. Up I went, until I stood still, with a hand on the rail. A man who has once felt it knows there is only one kind of silence that can fitly be called "dead." This is only to be found in a great house at midnight. I declare that, for a few seconds after I rattled the stair-rod, you might have cut the silence with a knife. If the house held a clock it ticked inaudibly. Upon this silence, at the end of a minute, broke a light sound—the clink, clink of a decanter on the rim of a wine-glass. It came from the room where the light was. Now, perhaps, it was the very thought of liquor that put warmth into my cold bones. It is certain that all of a sudden I straightened my back, took the remaining stairs at two strides, and walked down the passage as bold as brass, without caring a jot for the noise I made. In the doorway I halted. The room was long, lined for the most part with books bound in what they called "divinity calf," and littered with papers like a barrister's table on assize day. Before the fireplace, where a few coals burned sulkily, was drawn a leather elbow-chair, and beside it, on the corner of a writing table, were set an unlit candle and a pile of manuscripts. At the opposite end of the room a curtained door led, as I guessed to the chamber that I had first seen illuminated. In the middle of a great square of carpet between me and the windows was a table with a red cross cloth upon it. And between me and the table stood a man.

He stood sidewise, leaning a little back, as if to keep his shadow off the threshold, and looked at me over his left shoulder—a bald, grave man, slightly under the common height, with a long, clerical coat of preposterous fit hanging closely from his shoulders, a white cravat, black breeches and black stockings. His feet were loosely thrust into carpet slippers. I judged his age at 50 or thereabouts.

"You startled me," he said, in a matter-of-fact tone, turning his eyes upon me, as he lifted his glass again and emptied it; "how did you find your way in?"

"By the front door," said I wondering at his unconcern.

He nodded his head slowly.

"Ah, yes, I forgot to lock it. You came to steal, I suppose?"

"I came because I'd lost my way. I've been traveling this God-forsaken moor since dusk—"

"With your boots in your hand?" he put in, quietly.

"I took them off out of respect to the yellow dog you keep."

"He lies in natural attitude, eh?"

"You don't tell me he was stuffed?"

The old man's eyes beamed with contemptuous pity.

"You are indifferently sharp, my dear sir, for a housebreaker. Come in. Set down those convicting boots, and don't drip pools of water in the very doorway, of all places. If I must entertain a burglar, I prefer him tidy."

He walked to the fire, picked up a poker and knocked the coals into a blaze; this done, he turned round on me, with the poker still in his hand. The serenest gravity sat on his large, hale features.

"Why have I done this?" he asked.

"I suppose to get possession of the poker."

"Quite right. May I enquire your next move?"

"Why," said I feeling in my tail pocket, "I carry a pistol."

"Which I suppose to be damp?"

"By no means. I carry it, as you see, in an oil-cloth case."

He stooped and laid the poker carefully in the fender.

"That is a stronger card than I possess. I might urge that by pulling the trigger you would certainly alarm the house and the neighborhood, and put a halter round your neck. As for the inmates of this house, it will refresh you to hear that there are none. I have lived here for two years with a butler and female cook, both of whom I dismissed yesterday at a minutes notice for conduct which I will not shock your ears by explicitly naming. Suffice it to say I carried them off yesterday to my parish church, two miles away, married them, and dismissed them in the vestry without characters."

"Sir," I answered, "I have held a pistol at one or two heads in my time, but never a one stuffed with nobler indiscretion. Your chilvalry does not, indeed, disarm me, but prompts me to desire more of your acquaintance. I have found a gentleman and must sup with him before I make terms."

The address seemed to please him. He shuffled across the room to a sideboard and produced a plate of biscuits, another of almonds and dried raisins, a glass and two decanters.

"Sherry and Maderia," he said; "there s also a cold pie in the larder, if you care for it."

"A biscuit will serve," I replied; "to tell the truth, I'm more for the bucket than the manger, as the grooms say; and, by your leave, the brandy you were tasting just now, is more to my mind than wine."

"There is no water handy."

"There is plenty out of doors to last me with this bottle."

I pulled over a chair, laid my pistol on the table and held out the glass for him to fill. Having done so he helped himself to a glass and chair, and sat down facing me.

"I was talking just now of my late butler," he began, with a sip at his brandy. "Has it struck you that, when confronted by more delinquency, I am apt to let my indignation get the better of me?"

"Not at all," I answered heartily, refilling my glass.

It appeared that another reply would have pleased him better.

"H'm! I was hoping that perhaps I had visited his offence too strongly. As a clergyman, you see, I was bound to be severe; but upon my word, sir, since he went I have felt like a man who has lost a limb."

"Look here," I broke in, "you want a butler?"

"Oh, you really grasp that fact, do you?" he retorted.

"And you wish to get rid of me as soon as may be?"

"I hope there is no impoliteness in complimenting you on your discernment."

"Your two wishes," said I, "may be reconciled. Let me cease to be your burglar, and let me continue here as your butler."

He leaned back, spreading out the fingers of each hand as if the table's edge was a harpsichord and he stretching octaves upon it.

"Believe me," I went on, "you might do worse. I have been a demy of Magdalen College, Oxford, in my time, and retain some Greek and Latin. I'll undertake to read the Fathers with an accent that shall not offend you. My knowledge of wine is none the worse for having been cultivated in other men's cellars. Moreover, you shall engage the ugliest cook in Christendom, so long as I'm your butler. I've taken a liking to you—that's flat—and I apply for the post."

"I give 40 pounds a year," he said.

"And I'm cheap at that price."

He filled up his glass, looking up at me while he did so with the air of one digesting a problem. From first to last his face was as grave as a judge's.

"We are too impulsive, I think," was his answer, after a minute's silence, "and your speech smacks of the amateur. You say, 'Let me cease to be your burglar and let me be your butler.' The mere aspiration is respectable; but a man might as well say, 'Let me cease to write poems, let me paint pictures.' And truly, sir, you impressed me as no expert in your present trade, but a journeyman house-breaker, if I may say so."

"On the other hand," I argued, "consider the moderation of my demands. That alone should convince you of my desire to turn over a new leaf. I ask for a month's trial; if, at the end of that time, I don't suit you shall say so, and I'll march from your door with nothing in my pocket but my month's wages. Be hanged, sir! but when I reflect on the amount you'll have to pay to get me to face to-night's storm again you seem to be getting off dirt cheap!" cried I, slapping my palm on the table.

We shook hands on our bargain, and catching up a candlestick, he led the way from the room.

Picking up my boots, I followed him along the passage and down the silent stair-case. In the hall he paused to stand on tiptoe and turn up the lamp, which was burning low. As he did so I found time to fling a glance at my old enemy, the mastiff. He lay as I had first seen him—a stuffed dog, if ever there was one. "Decidedly," thought I, "my wits are to seek to-night," and with the same sudden suspicion made me to turn to my conductor, who had advanced to the left-hand door and was waiting for me with a hand on the knob.

"One moment," I said; "this is all very pretty, but how am I to know you're not sending me to bed while you fetch in all the country-side to lay me by the heels?"

"I'm afraid," was his answer, "you must be content with my word as a gentleman that never, to-night or hereafter, will I breathe a sylilable about the circumstances of your visit. However, we will return upstairs."

"No; I'll trust you," said I; and he opened the door.

It led into a broad passage, paved with slate, upon which three or four rooms opened. He paused by the second and ushered me into a sleeping-chamber, which, though narrow, was comfortable enough a vast improvement, at any rate, on the mumper's lodgings I had been used to for many months past.

"You can undress here," he said; "the sheets are aired."

"Sir, you heap coals of fire on me."

Now it might be supposed I was only too glad to toss off my clothes and climb into the bed I had so unexpectedly acquired a right to. But, as a matter of fact I did nothing of the kind. Instead I drew on my boots and sat on the bed's edge, blinking at my candle till it died down in its socket, and afterward at the purple square of window as it slowly changed to gray with the coming of dawn. I was cold to the heart, and my teeth chattered with an ague. Certainly I never suspected my host's word, but was even occupied in framing good resolutions and shaping out an excellent future, when I heard the front door gently pulled to and a man's footsteps moving quietly to the gate.

The treachery knocked me in a heap for the moment. Then, leaping up and flinging my door wide, I stumbled through the uncertain light of the passage into the front hall.

There was a fan-shaped light over the door, and the place was very still and gray.

The light no longer shone out into the left-hand passage; but, groping down it, I found the study door open, as before, and passed in. A sick light stole through the blinds—enough for me to distinguish the glasses and decanters on the table and find my way to the curtain that hung before the room where the light had first attracted me.

I pushed the curtain aside, paused for a moment, and listened to the violent beat of my heart, then felt for the doorhandle and turned it.

All I could see at first was that the chamber was small; next, that the light patch in a line with the window was the white coverlet of a bed; and next, that somebody or something lay on the bed.

I listened again. There was no sound in the room, no heart beating but my own. I reached out a hand to pull up the blind, and drew it back again. I dared not.

The daylight grew minute by minute, on the dull parallelogram of the blind, and, minute by minute, that horrible thing on the bed took something of distinctness.

The strain beat me at last. I fetched a veritable yell to give myself courage, and reaching for the cord, pulled up the blind as fast as it would go.

The face on the pillow was that of an old man, a face waxen and peaceful, with quiet lines about the mouth and eyes, and long lines of gray hair falling back from the temples. The body was turned a little on one side and one hand lay outside the bedclothes in a very natural manner. But there two dark spots on the coverlet.

Then I knew I was face to face with the real house-holder; and it flashed on me that I had been indiscreet in taking service as his butler, and that I knew the face his ex-butler wore.

And, being by this time awake to the responsibilities of the post, I quitted it three steps at a time, not once looking behind me. Outside the house the storm had died, and white sunlight broke over the sodden moors. But my bones were cold, and I ran faster and faster.—Arthur Quinller Couch, London, Eng.

GRANT'S EMPHATIC DENIAL.

One Memorable and Brief Interview with the Great Leader.

It's rather an unusual statement for a newspaper man who has been in the traces long enough to be called an "old-timer" to say that he never saw Gen. Grant but once.

Such is the fact in my case, however, but that once I will never forget. I saw him in such a way as few people have.

It was at the black period in the great general's history when the scandal of the Grant and Ward failure and the Marine Bank collapse filled the city. The rumor that Fred Grant was more deeply implicated than he was, and that he had fled to Canada, had been started. The city editor sent me out to verify it. This was late at night, and I had but slight hope of accomplishing my mission. It was near midnight when I rang the bell at Gen. Grant's residence. After awhile a colored servant opened it. He only opened it a little way.

No, he said, I could not see Gen. Grant under any circumstances; he had retired. Neither would he take my card or a message up. Of course I did not give up so easily and tried to convince the man how very important it was for me to see the General.

While we were talking at the door a deep voice at the head of the stairs called out:

"What is it?"

I stepped inside and looked up. There was Gen. Grant in his nightshirt leaning over the balustrade.

I told him of the rumor concerning his son, and asked what truth there was in it.

He had evidently not heard it before and a queer look came over his face while he was talking. He thought for a few seconds and then said:

"Young man, it is not true. I doubt if there is money enough in the Grant family just now to take Fred to Canada. Good night."

And the white-robed figure of the sturdy old hero disappeared in the gloom back of the landing.

I had got what I wanted, an authentic denial, and, as subsequent events proved, the rumor was not true.

That was the only time I ever saw Gen. Grant, and I always associate him now with a stubby, sad-faced figure in a nightshirt.—New York Herald.

MISS WELLESLEY, a well connected English resident, was found dead in one of the streets of Naples on Christmas day. It was at first supposed that she had died of syncope, but it has since been learned that she was assaulted and suffocated. A reward of $500 has been offered for the capture of the murderer.

A writer in a Boston paper recommends women to study their countenances by aid of their mirrors. Good enough! But then if they do not cure their colds with Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup they run the risk of breaking their reflectors and destroying valuable property.

There's not a joy the earth can give, like the sudden surcease of violent and terrible pain. It is like the rest at the gates of Paradise, but how can it be found? It is the simplest matter in the world. Buy a bottle of Salvation Oil and rub it in.

When Italian robbers vent their feelings in song it is generally given as a banditty.

Like a Venomous Serpent.

Hidden in the grass, malaria but waits our approach, to spring and fasten its fangs upon us. There is, however, a certain antidote to its venom which renders it powerless for evil. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is this acknowledged and world-famed specific, and it is, besides this, a thorough curative for rheumatism, dyspepsia, liver complaint, constipation, la grippe and nervousness. In convalescence and age it is very serviceable.

Once a woman has reached ninety she no longer hesitates to give her age.

The Most Pleasant Way

Of preventing the grippe, colds, headaches, and fevers is to use the liquid laxative remedy Syrup of Figs, whenever the system needs a gentle, yet effective cleansing. To be benefited one must get the true remedy manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only. For sale by all druggists in 50c. and $1 bottles.

It is said that Russia is preparing for the worst. Some other power will see that she gets it.

A Cough, Cold or Sore Throat should not be neglected. Brown's Bronchial Troches are a simple remedy, and give prompt relief. 25 cts. a box.

Bitter experience comes to the man who drinks cocktails constantly.

For Faintness take Allen's Iron Tonic Bitters. All genuine bear the signature of J. P. Allen, Druggist, St. Paul, Minn.

New Year's calls are all right as long as they're not from bill collectors.

The Only One Ever Printed.

CAN YOU FIND THE WORD? There is a 3 inch display advertisement in this paper, this week, which has no two words alike except one word. The same is true of each new one appearing each week, from The Dr. Harter Medicine Co. This house places a "Crescent" on everything they make and publish. Look for it, send them the name of the word and they will return YOU BOOK, BEAUTIFUL LITHOGRAPHS OR SAMPLES FREE.

New Year's resolutions soon crease in the back and bulge at the knee.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Pay for your clothes and wish your tailor a Happy New Year.

Distress After Eating

Indigestion, Nausea,
Sick Headache,
Biliousness,

Dyspepsia

Sour Stomach,
Heartburn, etc.,
Are cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

IVORY SOAP

99$\frac{44}{100}$ Pure.

THE BEST FOR EVERY PURPOSE.

Vile cod-liver oil has lost its vileness in Scott's Emulsion and gained a good deal in efficiency.

It is broken up into tiny drops which are covered with glycerine, just as quinine in pills is coated with sugar or gelatine. You do not get the taste at all.

The hypophosphites of lime and soda add their tonic effect to that of the half-digested cod-liver oil.

Let us send you a book on CAREFUL LIVING—free.

SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, 132 South 5th Avenue, New York.
Your druggist keeps Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil—all druggists everywhere do. $1.

CONSUMPTION.

I have a positive remedy for the above disease; by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed so strong is my faith in its efficacy, that I will send TWO BOTTLES FREE, with a VALUABLE TREATISE on this disease to any sufferer who will send me their Express and P. O. address.
T. A. Slocum, M. C., 183 Pearl St., N. Y.

—ELY'S CREAM BALM—Cleanses the Nasal Passages, Allays Pain and Inflammation, Heals the Sores, Restores Taste and Smell, and Cures

CATARRH

THE CURE FOR CATARRH COLD IN HEAD HAY FEVER DEAFNESS HEADACHE ELY'S CREAM BALM 50c

Gives Relief at once for Cold in Head
Apply into the Nostrils.——It is quickly Absorbed.
50c. Druggists or by mail. ELY BROS., 56 Warren St., N. Y.

WILSON'S 1892 PLANT, TREE AND SEED CATALOGUE. LIVE STOCK ANNUAL.

112 Pages, 200 Fine Engravings, Handsome Colored Plates. Full of useful and instructive information. Unquestionably one of the most reliable catalogues published. All kinds of guaranteed Garden, Flower, and Field Seeds, Fruit and Ornamental Trees, Small Fruits, Choice Roses, Flowering Plants and Bulbs. Thoroughbred Land and Water Fowls, Registered Pigs, German Hares, &c., &c. Sent free, on application. Address, mentioning this paper,
SAMUEL WILSON, SEED GROWER, MECHANICSVILLE, PA.

CHICHESTER'S ENGLISH, RED CROSS DIAMOND BRAND
PENNYROYAL PILLS
THE ORIGINAL AND GENUINE. The only Safe, Sure, and reliable Pill for sale. Ladies, ask Druggist for Chichester's English Diamond Brand in Red and Gold metallic boxes sealed with blue ribbon. Take no other kind. Refuse Substitutions and Imitations. All pills in pasteboard boxes, pink wrappers, are dangerous counterfeits. At Druggists, or send us 4c. in stamps for particulars, testimonials, and "Relief for Ladies," in letter, by return Mail. 10,000 Testimonials. Name Paper.
CHICHESTER CHEMICAL CO., Madison Square, PHILADELPHIA, PA.
Sold by all Local Druggists.

"German Syrup"

Here is something from Mr. Frank A. Hale, proprietor of the De Witt House, Lewiston, and the Tontine Hotel, Brunswick, Me. Hotel men meet the world as it comes and goes, and are not slow in sizing people and things up for what they are worth. He says that he has lost a father and several brothers and sisters from Pulmonary Consumption, and is himself frequently troubled with colds, and he often coughs enough to make him sick at his stomach. Whenever he has taken a cold of this kind he uses Boschee's German Syrup, and it cures him every time. Here is a man who knows the full danger of lung troubles, and would therefore be most particular as to the medicine he used. What is his opinion? Listen! "I use nothing but Boschee's German Syrup, and have advised, I presume, more than a hundred different persons to take it. They agree with me that it is the best cough syrup in the market." ①

Hereditary Consumption

Health Restored!

NERVE.
BRAIN.
DR. E. C. WEST.
TREATMENT.

Dr. E. C. West's Nerve and Brain Treatment

A guaranteed specific for Hysteria, Dizziness, Convulsions, Fits, Nervous Neuralgia, Headache, Nervous Prostration caused by the use of alcohol or tobacco, Wakefulness, Mental Depression, Softening of the Brain resulting in insanity and leading to misery, decay and death, Premature Old Age, Barrenness, Loss of Power in either sex, Involuntary Losses and Spermatorrhœa, caused by over-exertion of the brain, self-abuse or over-indulgence. Each box contains one month's treatment. $1.00 a box, or six boxes for $5.00, sent by mail, prepaid on receipt of price.

WE GUARANTEE SIX BOXES

To cure any case. With each order received by us for six boxes, accompanied with $5.00, we will send the purchaser our written guarantee to refund the money if the treatment does not effect a cure. Guarantees issued only by JOSEPH R. HOFFLIN, Druggist, Minneapolis, Minn.
THE GENUINE IN YELLOW WRAPPERS ONLY.

PILES. INSTANT RELIEF. Cure in 15 days. Never returns. No purge, no salve, no suppository. Remedy Mailed FREE. Address J. H. REEVES, Box 3290, N. York City.

PENSION JOHN W. MORRIS, Washington, D.C.
Successfully Prosecutes Claims.
Late Principal Examiner U. S. Pension Bureau.
3 yrs in last war, 15 adjudicating claims, atty since.

ASTHMA CURED TO STAY CURED.
We Want Name and Address of Every ASTHMATIC
P. Harold Hayes, M.D. BUFFALO, N.Y.

MOTHERS Dr. Snyder's Kidney Balsam cures Enuresis (BED WETTING.)
For circulars and testimonials address, with stamp, Dr. O. W. F. SNYDER, McVicker's Theatre, Chicago, Ill.
For sale by all Druggists. Price $1.00.

Print YOUR OWN CARDS. For 25 Cents we will mail this Rubber Type Printer for cards and Linen Marker, consisting of box of Rubber Type, Indelible Ink, Pad and Holder. Five outfits for $1.00
MINNEAPOLIS STAMP CO., Minneapolis.

MEN BE MANLY

We send you the marvelous French Remedy CALTHOS free, and a legal guarantee that CALTHOS will STOP Discharges and Emissions, CURE Varicocele, Spermatorrhœa and RESTORE Lost Vigor.
Use it and pay if satisfied.
Address VON MOHL CO.,
Sole American Agents, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Please mention this paper when writing.

HOW TO MAKE MONEY QUICKLY AND EASILY!
Send 50 cents to pay postage on our Daily Market-Report and Special Letter of Advice, for one month. We can make you lots of Money. Agents wanted. Address, S. H. WOOD & CO., Investment Brokers, 212, 213, 214 and 215 Wright Block, Minneapolis, Minn.

DR. HARTER'S TRADE MARK LITTLE LIVER PILLS

DO NOT GRIPE NOR SICKEN.
Sure cure for SICK HEADACHE, impaired digestion, constipation, torpid glands. They arouse vital organs, remove nausea, dizziness. Act like magic on Kidneys and bladder. Conquer bilious nervous disorders. Establish natural DAILY ACTION.

ACTUAL SIZE.

Beautify complexion by purifying blood. PURELY VEGETABLE.
The dose is nicely adjusted to suit case, as one pill can never be too much. Each vial contains 42, carried in vest pocket, like lead pencil. Business man's great convenience. Taken easier than sugar. Sold everywhere. All genuine goods bear "Crescent."
Send 2-cent stamp. You get 32 page book with sample.
DR. HARTER MEDICINE CO., St. Louis, Mo.

A CHRISTMAS PRESENT

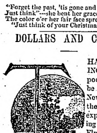
"I came to ask you"—his voice was low—
"For something"—his face had a ruddy glow—
"I hope that your answer will not be 'no.'
I came for my Christmas present.

"I think your heart knows what I mean,
I feel your eyes must have truly seen
How much I love you; I want, my queen,
Yourself for my Christmas present.

"My past is dark with grief and pain,
But not with any blot or stain.
Ah! shall I plead, my love, in vain
For thee, as my Christmas present?"

"Forget the past, 'tis gone and dead,
Just think"—she bent her graceful head,
The color o'er her fair face spread—
"Just think of your Christmas present."

DOLLARS AND CENTS.



THANKSGIVING Day—a poor day to be travelling! Nevertheless, the Chicago express speeding towards Elmira, N. Y., has on board John De Long of Chicago. Time, 5:30 p. m. Jack is feeling down on his luck. Called home by an urgent telegram in the midst of the Thanksgiving vacation of his senior year, he has missed a Thanksgiving dinner with a jolly party of his college mates, to say nothing of a broken engagement for the german with the prettiest girl in Binghamton.

When he pays the parlor car conductor 75 cents for a seat to Hornellsville and engages a berth in the sleeper to be put on at that station he makes the discovery that he has but $5.12 current coin of the realm in addition to his ticket to Chicago. This does not add cheerfulness to his frame of mind. And there is not a pretty girl in the car.

His gloomy meditation is broken by the arrival of the train at Elmira. On the station platform, in response to his telegram, are two gentlemen—Mr. Richard Robbins and Mr. Alfred Jameson—classmates and residents of Elmira. Jack jumps off, and an animated conversation follows. At this junction a group appears upon the station platform—two young ladies, an elderly lady, and a 10-year-old girl.

Jack—Boys, who's the young lady in the ulster; I've seen her somewhere?"

Dick—Miss Dodge; you met her last Winter at our german. Don't know the one in sealskin.

The young lady in the ulster bows to Jack's friends. The girl in sealskin enters the parlor-car, opens the window, and converses with her friends.

Whispered chorus—Can't you introduce me, boys?—Don't know the girl.—Haven't the nerve; look at the eye on the elderly party.

Jack—interrupting the conversation going on through the window and making a most profound bow to Miss Dodge—Pardon me, Miss Dodge! Ah—um—you remember me—Mr. De Long of Chicago?

Miss Dodge's face reveals the fact that she doesn't, but she murmurs something politely indefinite.

"I see you have a friend—we're in the same car—ah—um—won't you be kind enough to introduce me?"

At this critical point the conductor shouts "All aboard!"

Miss Dodge—Why, certainly. Delighted, I'm sure. Isabel! Let me introduce my friend, Mr. De Long, Miss Raymond, Mr. De Long. He's in your car.

"Mr. De Long."

"Miss Raymond."

Jack takes a hasty adieu of Mr. Robbins and Mr. Jameson, who respond feebly, being in a state of mental collapse, encounters for one brief instant the shocked and indignant gaze of the elderly personage, and springs on board just as the long train starts up. He enters the parlor car and takes a seat opposite Miss Raymond. Beside her sits the 10 year-old girl. He'd forgotten all about her.

"Hum—pleasant day."

"Yes, delightful."

"Do you think it will snow to-morrow?

With this auspicious beginning the conversation proceeds pleasantly and easily until interrupted by the entrance of the train conductor and the parlor-car conductor. Miss Raymond gives up her ticket and pays $2 for her seat to Buffalo, her destination.

Train Conductor (tapping little girl on shoulder)—Ticket!

Parlor-Car-Conductor (tapping little girl on the other shoulder)—Two dollars to Buffalo!

Little Girl—I don't pay any fare.

T. C.—Under 12 and over 5; half fare.

P. C. C.—You take up a whole seat just like a grown person.

"She's under my charge, but her mother said she wouldn't have to pay fare. Where's your purse, Lizzie?"

L. G.—I haven't any.

Miss Raymond, examining her purse and much distressed at the result—I haven't money enough. What shall I do?

T. C.—Pay fare, anyway.

P. C. C.—The little girl can go forward in one of the regular coaches.

Miss Raymond finds enough in her purse to pay half fare to Buffalo and hands it to the train conductor.

During this scene Jack has been intently looking out of the window in a decidedly uncomfortable frame of mind. His heart is not by any means broken at the prospect of losing the company of the little girl, but when he thinks he sees just a suspicion of a glisten under Miss Raymond's downcast lids, with their heavy, soft lashes, he can stand it no longer.

Jack (producing his one five-dollar bill with the air of a millionaire)—Allow me, Miss Raymond. Here, conductor!

The conductor takes his money without the slightest scruple, returns Jack $3 and passes on. Jack devotes the next ten minutes to assuring Miss Raymond that it isn't of the slightest consequence; that it will not inconvenience him the least bit in the world, etc. Miss Raymond says she will send it to him the next morning and asks his address in Buffalo.

When she finds he's going through to Chicago she is more distressed than ever and declares she will get that dreadful $2 from her uncle that very night when he meets her at the depot. Of course her distress gives Jack an opportunity to say a great many things of a sort suited to the circumstances, and he feels like hugging—the little girl. It is really a very interesting conversation that is interrupted by the appearance of a brakeman and a sound that resembles "Nellsvillentymintsfreshment."

Jack, thinking he will get his $2 at Buffalo, asks if he may get them some "refreshments." They declined with thanks. He excuses himself, invests in a sandwich, a cup of coffee, and a package of cigarettes—40 cents. He then hunts up the sleeping-car conductor and pays him $2 for the berth he had engaged, leaving only 72 cents in the treasury. He then draws the parlor-car conductor aside.

"Conductor, I have a berth in the sleeping-car and two young ladies in my charge have seats in your car as far as Buffalo. I'd like to sit with them and see that they get through safely."

"Sorry, sir, but if you sit in the parlor you'll have to pay. But it's only 50 cents.

Jack hands over 50 cents and rejoins Miss Raymond. The little girl goes to sleep; also the passengers. Time flies with a vengeance, and all too soon the train rumbles into the depot at Buffalo. They alight to meet Miss Raymond's uncle. The uncle kisses Miss Raymond with affection, but looks inquiringly at Jack. Miss Raymond introduces Jack. The uncle is not what one would call cordial. Miss Raymond is distressed beyond measure—"rattled."

Jack relieves the tension by taking formal leave of Miss Raymond, nodding to the uncle, and seeking his berth in the sleeper. Time, 12:30 a. m.; distance from home, several hundred miles; cash in the exchequer, 22 cents.

It is charity to draw a veil over the next day—15 cents for coffee and a sandwich for breakfast at Sarnia; 5 cents for a glass of milk for dinner at Marshall, Mich., noted for its fried chicken, its cold roast beef, its hot rolls; the 8 o'clock supper at the De Long mansion in Chicago that frightened his mother and astonished his father.

A week later a dainty letter postmarked "Buffalo" arrives. Jack opens it and finds a $2 bill and a conventionally polite note of thanks, regrets for any inconvenience, etc. It is signed, "Yours sincerely, Isabel Raymond." But Jack thinks he can read between the lines, for below is "No. 173 Rhodes avenue."

Thanksgiving Day again. A bad day for traveling, but John De Long of Chicago does not look as if he regarded it as a hardship as he gets off the Chicago express at Buffalo. And this fragment of conversation has rather a sound of thanksgiving than otherwise:

"Do you remember, Jack, how you stalked away that night in the depot at Buffalo? I never expected to see you again. You looked positively savage. I fairly hated my dear old Uncle Bob."

"He was a trifle chilly. And then to see you waste a kiss on him and peek out of the corner of your eye, as much as to say! 'Don't you wish?'"—

"I didn't—and s'pose I did?"

"By the way, how much do you suppose I had in my pocket when I said good-by?"

"I don't know. You put on airs enough for a millionaire."

"Just 22 cents."

"Why, you poor fellow, you must have starved! It served you right, though, scraping acquaintance with strange girls on a train. You won't do it any more, will you, Jack? There! there!—will that repay you?"

"No; you'll have to take that very same trip with me to make it square."

"But, Jack! Do take more than 22 cents—there'll be two of us, you know."

Taking a much worn letter from his pocket-book, opening it, and producing a $2 bill, Jack said: "Isabel Raymond, did you ever see that before?"

"Yes—no; I don't know."

"Yes, you do. Read what's written right under your name in this letter."

Isabel, reading—"I hereby dedicate this filthy lucre to a dinner for one, to be eaten at Marshall, Mich., the one to be John De Long and Isabel De Long, his wife. D. V."

"Ah, Jack, you won my heart that night in the car. But you wouldn't be stingy enough to leave out that dear little girl"—

"Wouldn't I? There wouldn't be any little girl around that trip to"—

"Hush, you wretch!"—John D. Sherman in the Chicago Tribune.

Spotting a Smell.

He was walking along Sackett street, near Court, in Brooklyn, the other afternoon, when he suddenly stopped and sniffed the air in all directions. His nose had found a familiar odor, and pretty soon he traced it to a certain chimney and ascended the steps of a house and rang the bell.

"Excuse me, ma'am," he said to the woman who came to the door, "but do you keep a cook?"

"Yes, sir," she replied as she looked at him in a puzzled way.

"Is she in at the present time?"

"Yes, sir, but she doesn't want to see no agents."

"O, I am not an agent, ma'am. You just call to the cook through the speaking-tube that the water has all boiled out of the potatoes, and that the said potatoes are burning. Smell them very plainly in the street. Happens every day at my own house. Cook is probably reading a novel or got a cold in the head. That's all, ma'am—no trouble at all—good evening.

FACTS FOR THE FARMER.

INSTRUCTIVE MATTERS PERTAINING TO THE FARM.

Advantages of Diversified Farming --Keep the Dairy Sweet--Watering Horses'--Horses Teeth-Area of Grain-Culture.

Keep the Dairy Sweet.

Milk is one of the most sensitive of substances to all bad odors. It readily absorbs every ill smell that floats in the atmosphere about it. And it not only absorbs and retains disagreeable odors, but it is equally hospitable to disease germs, which it will take in and convey carefully to the consumer. The products made from milk retain whatever impurities were incorporated with it.

So when city folk boast of the "pure country milk," and delicious butter, "fresh from the country," it isn't at all certain that their boastings are not vain.

One who recently made a tour of observation through a dairy region became convinced that the health of the people who consume dairy products—and who does not?—requires that the creameries, cheese factories and the cows that give the milk should be placed under the strictest legal surveillance and direction.

One of the most objectionable features in connection with butter and cheese factories is the inevitable pig pen. It is rarely, if ever, absent. But nothing could be more objectionable, for when, as is frequently the case, the pigs attached to the factory are fed entirely on milk, the stench arising from the pen is simply intolerable. For added to the natural odors of the pigs and their excrement is that of decaying milk, a combination whose ill fragrance may be detected, like the smell of battle, "afar off."

If the pigsty must be maintained as an economic adjunct of the butter and cheese factory it should be kept as clean as water and fumigation can make it, especially if for convenience, it adjourns the factory building. But the purity of the milk product imperatively demands that it should not be in close proximity to the building. It is almost impossible—and practically it is impossible—to keep the pen so clean that no deleterious odors will arise from it. The hog-pen should be located at a distance—a good long distance—from the factory, in spite of the inconvenience, and then be kept scrupulously clean. So greatly is the public health involved in this matter that it should be made an offense against the law, as well as to the olfactories, to keep a foul-smelling pigsty in the neighborhood of a creamery or cheese factory.

In fact the dairy factory needs frequent inspection, not only for this but for other reasons. The public safety requires that the buildings should be free from all injurious exhalations from whatever cause they proceed. Nor should the inspection stop with the factory. The sources of the milk should be regularly looked into to ascertain whether the cows are in sound condition and whether the milk is properly guarded against filthy odors and equally filthy solid substances.

Not far from where we write a milkman keeps a small herd of cows. His stable, although within the limits of a rural city, is so filthy that the stench often fills the entire neighborhood. The cows are rarely cleaned, and it is inevitable that some of the manure that covers their flanks should get into the milk pail. This is but a sample of many dairies from which milk is sent out, either directly to consumers or to the creamery or cheese factory. There ought to be some means of compelling cleanliness when self-respect and decency do not enforce it.

Watering Horses.

This is a subject on which there is still a great deal of controversy, although most horsemen are agreed that an unlimited supply is the best, providing an animal is in good health. An animal under these conditions will not take too much, but when we take into consideration how many stables are so fitted as to allow of this being carried out it is practically out of the question, the more so from the fact that horses are out on long journeys, coming home hungry, thirsty and fatigued.

Seventy-five per cent of the animal body is composed of water, and it is essential to the maintenance of health that this proportion between the fluid and the solid constituents be maintained. The secretions and fluid excretions are constantly tending to reduce the fluid parts below their normal standard, and at no time is this made more apparent than after long and active work, the loss resulting from increased perspiration and respiration.

It is at this time that popular opinion would withhold water until the animal cools down. Now I hold that it is just at this time when an animal is warm in all its circulative parts with an active circulation, that it is best able to resist the cooling effect of a draught of cold water. The stomach being empty, the fluid passes into the bowels and is rapidly absorbed, thus supplying the necessary fluid to the blood, without which the various secretions necessary to digestion could not be maintained.

The most dangerous time to give a horse a full draught of cold water is after he has cooled down from fatiguing work and has partaken of a meal. The comparatively small stomach of that animal is replete with energy, the circulation weak, the extremities cold the whole system languid, and not in a state calculated to resist the chill. The water mechanically washes the undigested food from the stomach to the bowles, where it undergoes decomposition, evolving irritating and poisonous gases finally causing flatulent and spasmodic colic or fatal enteritis. My own practice for twenty-five years has been to supply a full draught of water before feeding, giving no more for three hours after, and only to animals a little delicate have I taken the cold off. I disapprove of meal and flour drink, as it induces the animal to drink too much.—Western Agriculturist.

Advantages of Diversified Farming.

Texas Live Stock Journal says, the farmer who fattens his own beef and pork, mutton and poultry upon his own home-grown hay and corn and oats, who has no milk or eggs or butter or cheese to buy, whose cellar contains a sufficient supply of all the varieties of fruits and vegetables, that his family requires, and whose sheds are supplied with fuel from his own forests, can afford to sell his surplus products at low prices if necessary. He needs a little money for taxes and clothing. His tea and coffee and sugar cannot be produced at home, but such a farmer has but little to pay out compared to the specialist who devotes his year's labor to one thing alone. With only one crop to sell at low prices and all others to buy, he is dependent upon the season and subject to the whole chapter of accidents for his means, and the era of high prices that benefits his neighbor who has a greater variety of crops may prove his financial ruin. Having this in mind will it not be well for each and every farmer to try to so diversify his crops and his products that he can be sure of having abundance of all that he can produce for the wants of his own family first? Then he can provide for a surplus for his home market, and after that take his favorite special crop as a means of procuring that surplus of income above expenditure which should be the result of his knowledge and his labor. Thus he will limit the production to his own benefit, thus he will reduce his hours of labor when he desires, without feeling that he is likely to be limited in his supply of the farm products necessary for the comfortable support of his family. He will be more independent of the fluctuations of the market and the whims of the buyers, and he will begin to feel that he owns his farm, his stocks and his crops, and that they minister to his wants, instead of feeling that he is a slave to them, inexorably bound to make them produce a certain sum of money necessary to meet his expenses each year.

Horses' Teeth.

A very observing farmer said to us not long since that he was convinced that not one farmer in a hundred understood a horse's mouth as he should. He had helped a number of his neighbors by his knowledge in this matter when their horses were out of condition and the owners had no idea that the trouble was with the teeth. A veterinary authority gives the following as being some of the symtoms of derangement of the teeth of one kind or another: Slabbering and frothing at the mouth, weak eyes or partial blindness, bolting the grain without grinding, stopping short while eating and dropping the grain from the mouth, quidding the hay, turning the head on one side while eating or after drinking cold water, loss of appetite, loss of flesh, tender mouth when being driven, carrying the head on one side, pulling on one rein, nasal gteet, swelling or abcesses about the jaws, etc., and the horse is allowed to suffer on for months and often dosed with strong medicines, when an examination by a competent man would have relieved the true cause of the difficulty, and a few minutes' work on the horse's teeth would have relieved the animal's sufferings and enhanced its value to the owner as well.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Area of Grain Culture.

During the last ten years, the world's area in all the grains grown in temperate zones, and potatoes, shows an increase of but 7 per cent; the synchronous increase of the bread-eating populations having been at the rate of 14 per cent, the ratio being as one is to two. Since 1870 there has been added to the area devoted to the production of grain and potatoes—in the countries of the temperate zone—100,570,000 acres, and of this 82,134,000 appears to have been added in the United States, our contributions having been some 82 per cent, showing how dependent Europe has been and still is upon the United States for the means of keeping life in her swarming millions; and as our annual additions of new acres are now less than half our added domestic requirements, it is manifest that scarcity in Europe and resulting high prices are not far distant, and this would seem to mean an era of unexampled prosperity for all such areas as produce food largly in excess of local needs.—C. Wood Davis in Country Gentleman.

Valuable Hints.

The way to have healthy cows is to feed and care for them right from calfhood up to maturity.

Keep a supply of charcoal where the hogs can help themselves; it will help maintain good health.

Do not let the cow shrink her milk only as she must, in accordance with nature's laws, in reproducing her kind in her offspring.

One item with hogs on a farm is that they will consume much that would otherwise go to waste, and this with the small farmer is often an important item.

Money spent in improving property will usually yield more profit and happiness than money spent in making payments on more property than can properly be managed.

No man who has given the subject consideration doubts that the next few years will witness the extensive development of the beet sugar industry in this section of the union.

One reason why some farmers never seem to get entirely rid of hog cholera, is that proper care is not taken to disinfect the premises, and the disease germs are never entirely destroyed.

In feeding make a difference between full grown hens and ones that are still making bone and muscles. The full grown ones will fatten on what will barely keep the younger ones growing.

If the weather with you is as with us you may be tempted to turn the stock out to wander over the fields. It will hurt the grass land, do the plowed land no good, and will be of but little benefit to the stock.

THE YOUNG FOLK'S CORNER

INTERESTING READING FOR THE YOUNG PEOPLE.

At Hampton Court--A Cat's Whiskers- A Trade for Boys--Fire Crackers--Little Children of the Race.

At Hampton Court.

Two American women last summer went one day from London to Hampton Court, and spent the morning in the gardens of the old palace there. At noon they repaired to a neighboring inn for their luncheon. The waiter apologized for some trifling delay by saying some shop girls from Whiteley's, on their Saturday's outing, had unexpectedly just ordered luncheon.

The Americans, annoyed at the coming of what they supposed would be a noisy party, wished they had gone to some other house; but it was too late now, their luncheon had been ordered.

They were in a front room which overlooked the gardens of the palace. It was a sunny June morning, so still that they could hear the wind rustling through the branches of the great oaks in the avenues, and the bees buzzing in the roses which climbed up outside of the window. One or two old gentlemen were busied with their meal and newspaper in the room, but no one spoke. The quiet was almost profound.

"This is very restful and pleasant," said one of the Americans, "but we must hurry away. Think of thirty giggling shrieking girls out on a holiday! When do the young women come?" she added, turning to the waiter.

"They are here, madam," he said. "They are in that room," pointing to an open door covered with a lace portiere.

The strangers looked at each other with an expression almost of incredulity. They listened, and a moment later heard the hum of gentle voices, of which not a word could be distinguished.

The mystery was easily explained. The shop-girls were in the habit of dealing with English gentlewomen of the better class, and imitating them, had caught their low, controlled habit of speech.

"If our women would but learn it!" exclaimed one of the strangers. "Imagine thirty American girls out on a holiday! The clatter of voices! The shrill bursts of laughter; the shrieks and screams!"

This little incident is a literal fact which is worthy of the consideration of girl readers. Our climate gives to all of our voices certain high nasal tones. The training of the voice in speaking is unfortunately neglected in America, except among the most carefully educated people. Hence the American in Europe is known as soon as he opens his mouth by his shrill, strident tones.

Two American women in a salon or gallery will make more noise than a large group of their French or English sisters. Yet these last are probably not a whit more gentle or modest at heart than they are. But the possession of inward and spiritual graces does not atone for the lack of the outward and visible signs of good breeding.

It is true that a woman may have Cordelia's soft, low voice with the coarseness of Regan and malice of Goneril. But, on the other hand, what girl will be credited with Cordelia's tender heart if she persists in shrieking and giggling her way through life?—Youth's Companion.

"Jacko."

"Jacko" is a tame rook, whose owner, a lady, writes to the London Spectator that she had kept him for five years, when one afternoon she noticed him march by her two or three times with a stick in his mouth. He was hard at work on the foundations of a nest. For a fortnight he worked almost without cessation all day long.

I really felt sorry for him, and sometimes tried to help him by holding up sticks one at a time, which he took from my hand as he wanted them. When at last the nest was finished he often had his afternoon nap in it.

There is a small rookery here, and this year, instead of building on his own account, Jacko tried to help the wild rooks. He followed them about with a twig in his beak, and kept with them all day, often running after them on the lawn with some of his dinner in his beak, wanting to feed them as he feeds the tame jackdaw, between whom and himself there is a strong affection. But they snubbed him dreadfully.

One day poor social Jacko must have thought he had at last found a responsive companion, for I found him bowing and cawing to the rook in the looking-glass! And more than once since then he has been seen going up-stairs with some delicacy in his beak evidently intended for his shadowy love.

Once while I was calling on a friend, a lady whom I did not know came in. She owns a rookery, and my friend told her of mine, adding that I was fond of rooks.

"Ah," said she, "so am I. I often say that through the season we almost live on rook pie."

When I suggested that I should not like seeing my rooks in a pie, her really delightful answer was, "No some people prefer them stewed.

Little Children of the Race.

The following interesting view of "Childhood" is from an article by Miss Roseboro', on that subject, in the Christmas Century: "The little children of the race are intellectually more respectable than the majority of its adults. To be sure, it is their attitude and not their achievements that makes them so; but in estimating the human being as a mind rather than as 'a screw in the social machine,' who can help thinking the attitude more important than the achievement? The abounding intellectual curiosity of children, and their continual return to the biggest and deepest questions,—the origin of things, the sources and ends of beings—these are what make them superior. What if the question can never be absolutely answered? Is it not infinitely more respectable to have them earnestly in mind than, accepting some mumbo-jumbo reply, to dismiss them altogether and to devote existence wholly to the frivolties we call business, or pleasure, or learning? What else was Carlyle's fundamental raison d'etre but his power to call us to a degree of the serious reasonable wonder with which we start in life?

"Upon my word, I sometimes think that if the world were started now on a new plan, and peopled altogether with the middle-aged, religious, after going on a short time through the impetus of customs would die out all over the world from this simple lack of interest in the question, they primarily undertake to answer. As it is, the children force us to keep some sort of theory of existence furbished up.

A Cat's Whiskers.

Nature is an economical dame, and never indulges in useless gifts. If she gives an animal or plant an appendage of any kind, we may be sure that it serves some wise purpose.

Take a cat's whiskers, for instance, which may seem to you to be merely ornamental. They are organs of touch, attached to a bed of fineglands under the skin, and each of these long hairs is connected with the nerves of the lip. The slightest contact of these whiskers with any surrounding object is thus felt most distinctly by the animal, although the hairs themselves are insensible.

They stand out on one side of the lion as well as the common cat. From point to point they are equal to the width of the animal's body.

If we imagine, therefore, a lion stealing through a covert of wood in an imperfect light, we shall at once see the use of these long hairs. They indicate to him, through the nicest feeling, any obstacle which may present itself to the passage of his body; they prevent the rustling of boughs and leaves, which would give warning to his prey if he were to attempt to pass too close to a bush; and thus, in conjunction with the soft cushions of his feet and the fur upon which he treads—the claws never coming in contact with the ground—they enable him to move toward his victim with a stillness equal to that of the snake.

A Trade for Boys.

If I had my way I would insist that every boy should learn a trade, writes Foster Coates in the Ladies' Home Journal. It was so in the olden times, and it should be so now. The man who has a trade is a thousand times better equipped than the man who has none. Let every boy select the trade that best suits his ability, and promises the highest remuneration. When he has mastered his trade, if he dislikes it or it is not profitable, he can begin to study a profession, or enter upon a commercial life. If he should fail in both of these, he is still master of a good trade—something that no one can take from him, no matter what exigencies may arise. The man who is master of a good trade is as independent as a millionaire. He need never want; he can find profitable work in any corner of the world. I do not say one word against a professional career. But I do say emphatically that the man who has a trade and a profession as well, need have no fear of the future. The boy who wants to can master a trade between sixteen and twenty, and if he dislikes it, he still has time to study medicine, the law, or any other of the learned professions. But if he waits until he is twenty, or over, he may not have an opportunity or feel inclined to learn either.

Fire-Crackers.

The reason why the smell of burnt powder and smoke from fire-cracker stumps is so grateful to boys is not far to seek. It is the sudden force shown in the explosion and the little spice of danger as well as the noise that pleases the youth. The origin of firecrackers, according to Mr. W. Woodville Rockhill, the Thibetan explorer, is as follows:

Firecrackers were originally joints of bamboo. They are made of paper at present, but the Chinese name "bamboo gun," shows what they were. The bamboo crackers made a very loud noise like our "cannon crackers." Perhaps the fragments of bamboo flew about when they exploded, making them dangerous, so that paper was substituted. In making bamboo crackers the partitions in the joints of the bamboo were pierced, powder sifted in and a fuse introduced. It is interesting to see the way the present fire crackers, with their partitions of clay, follow the old bamboo pattern.

Jack's Answer.

The chaplain of a man-of-war was fond of catechising the young sailors, much to their disgust.

"What is your name?" he asked a new arrival one day.

"Why, Jack Bowling, sir, to be sure."

"Who gave you that name?" proceeded the chaplain.

"My godfathers and godmothers," replied the man, going on to answer the question correctly.

"What have your godfathers and godmothers further done for you?"

"Well, sir," replied Jack, getting tired of the lesson, "they promised to do a great deal, and it's precious little they've done yet."

A Quiet Dog.

My little dog is very quiet;
He's never known to rush
About the house in noisy riot,
Because he's made of plush.

English by Sound.

It was in one of our schools the other day where I picked up the following thrilling composition written by a twelve-year-old girl, which is one of the best pieces of English as she is "spelt" that I have yet seen: "A right suite little buoy, the son of a kernal, with a rough round his neck, flue up the road as quick as a dear. After a thyme he stopped at the house and wrung the bell. His tow hurt hymn and he kneaded wrest. He was two tired to raze his fare, pail face, and a feint mown of pane rose from his lips.

"The made who herd the belle was about to pair a pare, but she through it down and ran with all her mite, for fear her guessed would not weight; but when she saw the little won tiers stood in her ayes at the site. 'Ewe poor dear! Why do you lye hear? Are yew dyeing?' 'Know,' he said, 'I am feint.' She boar him inn her arms, as she aught, to a room where he mite be quiet, gave him bred and meet, held a cent bottle under his knows, untied his choler, rapped him up warmly, and gave him a suite drachm from a viol, till at last he went forth as hail as a young hoarse."

RICE AT WEDDINGS.

The Gauntlet the Bride and Groom Have to Run.

I wish a few heavy swells would set their faces against the hideous rice scuffle de rigueur at the close of wedding receptions. The custom of throwing rice after departing lovers comes to us from the east, where rice is a sign of plenty and prosperity. This emblematic idea is lost, and instead of a few grains softly falling, we pelt and smother and bombard our brides with thorough brutality, and finally the practice has degenerated into a senseless and unseemly fight. Formerly the "going off," with the pretty traveling toilet, the handshakings, friendly speeches, and farewell kisses was a trying epilogue to a trying drama. Now this episode is a thing of the past.

When the bride emerges, ready to start on life's journey her heart must fail at the thought of the ordeal in prospect. She says her principal adieus in private, for the guests, like ravening wolves await her below. A serried phalanx blocks the halls, lines the staircase and extends in masses to the door of the carriage. Flushed and excited faces are turned toward the victims, and every strong right hand is clenched. The bridegroom, white, determined and awkward, joins his wife, and they make a desperate rush. But it is of no avail! The upheaving hordes close upon them; the stinging grain is hurled in their smarting faces, trickles down their backs, gets into their mouths, and up their sleeves. Farewells are impossible, and no one gets a glimpse of the faultless costume evolved with such talent and time.

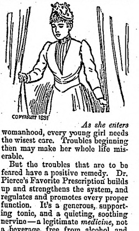
With the instinct of self-preservation, the bride defends herself as best she can, and the couple literally fight their way breathless and dishevelled. With a supreme effort they gain the door, bolt like rabbits into the brougham, and the couple, who have earned a little spoony peace, are forced to travel and make love with a pound of rice in the small of their backs.—London World.

A BOARD IN HER MOUTH.

Queer Cause of Loss of Appetite in a Mare.

A Morgan brood mare of vigorous appetite wouldn't eat. For two days I thought her sick. I finally turned her out and she played so much that I concluded she was well and that her teeth were troubling her. I tried whole and cut feed, ground and whole grain, green corn, oats in the sheaf and other things. Especially tempting food she would take in her mouth, only to drop it again. At last one bright morning I drew up her head by a cord around the upper jaw, and thence over a high hook, and let the sun shine into her mouth. What did I see? Front and back teeth apparently all right; tongue ditto; and the roof of her mouth—well, that did look odd. It seemed to be boarded all over. It was white, grained, polished and lower than it should have been. The ceiling of her mouth, so to speak, was certainly wood.

With a lever and a little prying to see if it were not loose the entire structure fell into her mouth and was dragged out. It proved to be a bit of inch board, 2 by 6 inches, which she had gnawed around the edges until it fitted so snugly between the teeth and their walls as to make its removal impossible for her. The lost desire for food returned instantly and the long fast was at once broken. The thought comes to me: Suppose the cause of the trouble had never been discovered until, weak from lack of food, the mare was killed to relieve her misery; would not the case have been parallel with others, where animals suffering with ever so simple a malady have been turned off or shot, unable to point out the difficulty.—Hollister Sage.



COPYRIGHT 1891

As she enters womanhood, every young girl needs the wisest care. Troubles beginning then may make her whole life miserable.

But the troubles that are to be feared have a positive remedy. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription builds up and strengthens the system, and regulates and promotes every proper function. It's a generous, supporting tonic, and a quieting, soothing nervine—a legitimate medicine, not a beverage, free from alcohol and injurious drugs. It corrects and cures, safely and surely, all those delicate derangements, weaknesses, and diseases peculiar to the sex.

A remedy that does cure is one that can be guaranteed. That's what the proprietors of "Favorite Prescription" think. If it doesn't give satisfaction, in every case for which it's recommended, they'll refund the money. No other medicine for women is sold on such terms.

Decide for yourself whether something else sold by the dealer, is likely to be "just as good" for you to buy.

I CURE FITS!

When I say cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my Infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office.
H. G. ROOT, M. C., 183 Pearl St., N. Y.

$100 IN GOLD.

Will be paid for one million cancelled postage stamps. An easy way to raise money for charity work. Send for particulars. G. H. MEKEEL, 1009 Locust Str., St. Louis, Mo.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.
CATARRH
Sold by druggists or sent by mail. 50c. E. T. Hazeltine, Warren, Pa.

LOVE FOR A DAY.

CHAPTER IV—Continued.

"I hope that you will like your rooms," said Lady Yorke. "I told Masham, the housekeeper, to give you the two most cheerful. They are in what we call the 'Queen's Wing.' I hope you will be very comfortable, Miss Chester. I think you told me that you had no relatives?"

"No," I replied; "I am quite alone in the world."

"Ah, then," said Lady Yorke, with a pleasant smile, "you will be the better able to devote all your time, thought, and attention to me!"

CHAPTER V.

In a few days I was quite at home at Westwood and understood my duties. They were certainly heavy. Fortunately for me, with my great love of early rising and fresh air, they did not commence until ten in the morning. Lady Yorke did not care to be disturbed before that hour. I do not think she had ever seen the sun rise or the dew lying like diamonds on the grass. So the fresh sweet hours were all my own. I rose almost with the sun, thinking often that if people knew how lovely the early morning was they would never waste much time in sleep, and went out into the park.

It seemed to me always that I spent those early morning hours with Mark; the only difference lay in this, that he was on one side of the blue sky and I on the other. And I was possessed with the idea that he could hear and see me. Ah, love, my love, how I loved you!

When I went back to the house after those hours of peace and rest, my mind was braced for the day. If I had not seen Mark, I had looked long and lovingly at the blue heaven where he was. I had not spoken to him; but the whisper of the wind, the ripple of the leaves, the song of the birds, all seemed so many messages from him. After ten o'clock I had never another moment to call my own. Then Lady Yorke was in her boudoir, and every morning she had a thousand new wants. It was a puzzle to me how she invented them. There were letters to answer, invitations to send out. She liked to hear me read. Every day brought its papers, periodicals, magazines, new novels, all of which must be read to her. Then we walked or drove. At luncheon Lord Yorke joined us, and then her ladyship rested. We had another drive in the afternoon, dinner at seven, and in the evening Lady Yorke requested me to sing. I liked that time best, for I sung every sweet love-song I knew, and I sung always to Mark. Oh, my love, how I loved you!

Lord Yorke was a kindly, generous man, quite fifteen years older than his beautiful languid young wife. He worshipped her, and she in her helpless way was fond of him. They were very rich. They owned this fine estate at Westwood, and they had a magnificent house in London and a villa in Florence. That was Lady Yorke's whim. When the winter was too cold and the spring too wet, she went to Mentone, where she could bask in the sunshine the whole day long. They had numerous visitors and friends. It was to fill the interval between the departure of one set of visitors and the coming of the next that I was wanted. Lady Yorke could not endure to be alone, she must be constantly amused. They had no children; and that was the one drawback. I liked Lord Yorke; he was always kind and courteous to me. He was not much interested in politics; the care and well being of his estate occupied his whole time. He would not have a land agent or a stewart; he did everything himself—kept his accounts, received his rents, saw his tenants, overlooked the home estate. Hardly a weed was pulled up without his orders. He was just as industrious as his young wife was the reverse. We were always excellent friends. At times he asked me to help him, and his thanks always pleased me.

Poor Lady Yorke! Young, beautiful, wealthy, she was yet one of the most discontented and miserable of women. She had not a useful interest in the world. She had servants who waited upon her hand and foot; she had a husband who indulged her and granted every wish that she expressed; she was never called upon to make any exertion either of body or mind. She was never compelled to think; Lord Yorke and Mrs. Masham thought for her. If twenty visitors were coming, it made no difference to her. Before I had been many days there. I had read her character accurately. She was ill from indolence.

Watching her for a whole day, seeing her study nothing but herself, her wants, her wishes, her whims, and her caprices, ordering things because she fancied and not because she wanted them, spending money profusely without ever looking at what was purchased—seeing her send away the most delicate of fruits, the most recherche of dishes, the most costly of wines, under some pretext or other too absurd to mention—I thought of the many poor women dying from want of food, of the many children perishing from hunger, and have wondered. She did not seem to know anything of the hard side of life. She ate from silver plate; she drank from the rarest of Bohemian glass; tea was served to her in the finest of Dresden china. She wore the finest of linen, of lace, silk, velvet, and satin; she had jewels of priceless value; in all her life she had never wished for one thing that had not been granted to her. She perhaps had read the words "hunger," "cold," "starvation," but she did not understand their meaning. How could she when she had never felt either cold or hunger in her life? Her life had been a Sybarite's life of pleasure, and the result was that beyond herself she had not a care or thought in the world. It seemed to me that if I could awaken this sleeping soul I should not have lived in vain.

I remember the first time she seemed to wake to a consciousness of suffering. She had never been ill herself, and she had never seen any one in pain. We were crossing the park, when suddenly above our heads we heard a discordant cry of birds. Suddenly a little bird fell fluttering and dying at our feet. It had been attacked and wounded by some bird larger than itself. I shall never forget the look in the dark eyes, the faint fluttering of the little wings ere it died. I had raised it in my hand, and it died there.

"Poor little thing!" I said. "It has had a short life, but a merry one, I hope, in those great green boughs."

"Is it really dead?" Lady Yorke asked, drawing near with a pale face. "I do not think I have ever seen anything dead."

"Is that true, Lady Yorke?" I asked, looking at her in wonder.

"Yes, quite true."

"Have you ever wondered what death is like?" I inquired.

"I do not think so. I have never thought of death at all."

"Have you ever lost any friends?" I asked again. "Has no one whom you loved died?"

"No—no one whom I loved. People I have known have died; but then they always seemed to me quite apart from the rest of us."

I looked in wonder at the beautiful face.

"Have you ever thought that you yourself must die?"

"I suppose I shall die some time," she replied; "but I am young now—I need not begin to think about it yet."

"have you ever heard of young people dying, Lady Yorke?" I asked.

"Yes; but that does not often happen, I should think. Age and death naturally go together."

"My Mark was young," I said, "and strong, he never had a day's illness, and he died."

"Where did he die?" asked Lady Yorke; and suddenly I remembered that I did not know. That which seemed so certain to me might be very much uncertain to others. "I try never to think of such disagreeable things," continued Lady Yorke. "It does no good, and makes one's life miserable."

"No life can be really happy that is not ruled by such thoughts," I replied. "We ought to live for the next world, and not for this."

"Madame de Deffand said you were very serious. For my part I could not give my mind to such ideas. The very sight o' that dead bird has made me feel ill and miserable."

"Yet everything living in this world has to die sooner or later," I said.

She made no remark, but I saw the indolent selfish soul was roused from its long sleep. The first thought of death and pain had come to her, never to be forgotten.

CHAPTER VI.

One morning, when several visitors were at Westwood, the conversation turned upon the Indian famine. We were all seated at luncheon. Some of the gentlemen remarked what a charitable country ours was—what large sums of money were forthcoming when any great disaster occurred.

Lord Yorke agreed.

"But," he said, "I do not think we realize what the word 'famine' means. In our happy land we have not seen women and children dying by the roadside, plucking the dry roots and grass in the pangs of hunger."

"I have seen something like it," said Mr. Devine. "I was in Ireland during the 'potato famine,' and I saw there scenes that will haunt me to my dying day—gaunt hungry men in whose eyes was a wolfish gleam, pale, patient women dying without complaint, children like specters, with famine written in their faces. I have seen mother and children lying dead together—and it takes a long time for hunger to kill."

"Did you really witness all this?" asked Lady Yorke.

"I did indeed," replied Mr. Devine.

"I did not know," said Lady Yorke, with a slight shudder, "that people ever died of hunger. I do not suppose that I quite understand the meaning of the word 'famine.'"

"Your life has been a happy one, Louise," said Lord Yorke. "You have seen only the rose-colored side of existence."

"That must be true," she allowed more gravely than I had expected.

The next morning I had to drive with Lady Yorke to Woodheaton; she wanted to make some purchases. The morning was lovely, but her mind was evidently still disturbed by the conversation of the previous day.

"Miss Chester," she said suddenly, "have you ever seen people who were really ill from want of food?"

"Yes, very often, when I was at home with my mother. She, out of her limited means, made a point of relieving some poor person or other every day."

"And I" said Lady Yorke, "have never, so far as I remember, relieved a poor person in my life. We send money to various charities; but I have never personally given any away. I have seen so few poor people."

I saw that her mind was awakened. We talked on the same subject during the whole of our drive. I told her what I had seen amongst the poor at Gracedieu—their patience, their industry, the pathos and beauty of their lives.

"The true heroes and heroines of this world," I said, "are the uncomplaining poor."

"Heroes and heroines!" she repeated. "Why, Miss Chester, what can there be heroic in poverty?"

"Poverty bravely born is true heroism," I said. "It is easy to be happy and contented when everything goes well, when one has plenty of money, plenty of food, and everything one can desire. What can be more heroic than the endurance of hunger and cold without complaint? I have read of what the world calls heroines—Joan of Arc, who won a throne for her king; Charlotte Corday, who slew the enemy of France, but to my way of thinking, the real heroine is the wife and mother whose life is one continual struggle, who works without ceasing, never complains, comforts her husband, brings up her children well, and practices heroic virtues unseen by any one, unknown even to herself. That woman is one of Heaven's own heroines."

Lady Yorke was silent and thoughtful during the rest of the day, but in the evening she relapsed into the old lackadaisical mood.

A few days afterward I asked her if she would go to Woodheaton again, and, having no other engagement, she consented. Just what I longed for happened. When we reached the shop of the stationer, the wife of the rector was there. She knew Lady Yorke in a distant fashion.

Mrs. Durant was an active energetic woman whose life was filled with good deeds, the very reverse of beautiful, luxury-loving Lady Yorke. To my great delight, she began to talk to Lady Yorke about the badness of the times, the want of work, the poverty of the people. I shall never forget Mrs. Durrant's face when Lady Yorke languidly took out her well-filled purse.

"Would money be of any use?" she said.

"Heaven bless me!" cried the rector's wife, startled out of all propriety. "Why, Lady Yorke, it is only money that we want! Money will purchase food, coal, clothes, shoes and everything else."

I heard the rustle of bank-notes, and Lady Yorke said gently—

"Will you distribute this amongst your poor?"

The eyes of the rector's wife filled with tears. She saw in the gift relief for many from utter misery.

"If you would see poverty in all its desolation, Lady Yorke," she said earnestly, "you should go to a place that is called Sandy Fields."

After the rector's wife had departed, I turned to Lady Yorke.

"Will you go?" I asked her.

"I do not know, Miss Chester," she said, drawing her rich silks and laces tightly around her. "I have never seen anything of the kind."

"When you die," I remarked, "you will like to have some good deed to remember. You will like to think then that you have lessened the burden of one human heart."

"You frighten me," she said. "Yes I will go."

Half an hour afterward fashionable self-indulgent Lady Yorke stood in the poorest cottage in Sandy Fields, looking round her in horror and dismay. Only a starving woman and a starving child were there; there was no fire, no food, no table, no chair, no bed. It was a most hopeless, helpless case.

"A contrast to Westwood," I whispered to her.

At first the woman was sullen and would not speak—her misery was too great. Then she cried out—

"No, you can do nothing for me. My husband died six weeks ago; and this is all I have in the world. Now she is dying. Heaven itself cannot help me." She looked at Lady Yorke. "You mean well," she said, "but the money that bought that silk gown would have kept my husband alive. He died hungry. Do you think I shall ever forget that? He moaned all night before he died from hunger—not pain, but hunger. I loved him with all my heart, and I had to sit and listen until I could have rushed out of the house to slay and rob the first person I met. He died hungry, while in your house good food is wasted. Ah, my lady, your dogs and horses are better off than we are!"

I saw Lady York's face grow very pale, and her eyes sought mine with a frightened look.

"He moaned all night," continued the woman, "and I had nothing to give him but water. He was not one to complain, but, when death came on him in the morning, he said to me, 'Ah, lassie, the rich have it in this world; we shall have it in the next!' I went out and sold the last thing that belonged to me—my wedding-ring—that morning, and I bought tea and bread. 'I have gone past it,' he said. 'It is all over, lassie. It has come too late.' Seven years ago when we were married, he was tall and straight and handsome. He took me to a pretty home, and he worked hard for me; but trouble came, and he died hungry. My poor lad! My poor, poor lad!"

I knew that in her heart Lady Yorke was thinking of the dainties that, sent away in capricious discontent, would have saved this poor man's life.

"Annie is dying," the woman went on, in the same hopeless, helpless voice, with a wild gleam in her eyes. "A few weeks ago good food might have saved her; now it is too late. Last night I went everywhere to get one penny to buy her an orange with. She had been craving all day for an orange, and every time she fell asleep she dreamed that she held the orange in her hands, and that it fell to the ground. I would have done anything for one penny, but I could not get it."

"I am very sorry," said Lady Yorke. "If I had known—"

"No one knows!" cried the poor woman. "We work and toil, we suffer and die, and no one knows—only Heaven. Heaven counts our miseries and pains, and will change them into blessings. Annie will be in heaven soon, and there will be no more hunger or cold for her."

For the first time I saw tears in Lady Yorke's eyes.

"Would you like very much to keep Annie with you?" she asked; and I hardly knew her voice. It had lost its languor, and was clear and sweet.

"Would I? Ah, my lady, Annie is the very heart that beats in my breast!" she cried. "When she is gone, all is gone. I shall not try to live; I shall lie down and die by her side."

"How long is it since you tasted food?" I asked her.

"Two whole days," she replied.

Her white quivering face and trembling hand bore testimony to the truth of her words. Lady Yorke looked at me.

"We must help them," she said; and, as she uttered the words, it seemed to me that a new soul shone in her eyes.

We left the house and went to the nearest shops.

"Tell me what to buy, Miss Chester," she said; and a basket of food, including some fine ripe oranges, was ordered to be taken to the woman's house.

The poor creature never thought of herself. I shall never forget the cry with which she seized an orange and gave it to the child; it was one of delirious delight.

"I shall do all I can for you," said Lady Yorke, as she came away. "If we can save little Annie, she shall be saved."

And again I saw tears in the blue eyes which until now had never looked out on others' woes.

CHAPTER VII.

The next morning Lady Yorke was downstairs, alert and energetic, before nine. Her husband looked up in surprise as he entered the breakfast-room. This happened to be one of the rare days when we were alone.

"A revolution!" he cried. "The most luxurious woman in England down at the early hour of nine! I cannot understand it."

"Do not laugh at me, Stanley," she said. "I am very much in earnest this morning. I want to talk to you."

When she had sought him before, it had generally been to ask for new jewels, or a check for some heavy bill—always something for herself, never anything for any one else; and I am sure that he expected the same thing now.

"I want to talk to you, Stanley," she continued. "Do you know what the world is like outside our yard gates? Here we have safety and shelter, warmth and luxury—the roses of life without the thorns. Do you know what it is outside?"

"I know something of it," he replied half sadly.

"Ah, such a world, Stanley!" she said. "There is sickness, sorrow, poverty, hunger. Hunger seems the hardest to bear," she continued, thinking no doubt of those tragical words, "he died hungry;" "and I have heard such words, but I never knew what they meant. I knew only the sound, not the sense, until yesterday." Here she paused.

"And then?" said Lord Yorke. "What happened then?"

She told him all that had occurred. Just for one half moment I was uncertain whether he would be quite pleased or not. Had I been mistaken in thinking that he was sometimes distressed at her supreme indifference to all things except herself? My doubts were soon cleared. He looked at her with the most loving smile I had ever seen on his face.

"I am glad, Louise," he said. "I have always thought that, if you understood more of what was going on in the world around you, you would try to help others. And now about this poor woman—Mrs. Clinton, did you say? What do you want to do for her?"

"Everything," was the comprehensive reply. "She must have a nice clean cottage in the fresh air, plenty of food and clothes—all that is wanted to make her daughter well."

"She shall have it," Lord Yorke said, smiling. "You could not employ your time or your money better than in relieving the poor. But all charity must be governed by discretion. While the woman and child are ill, keep them; but afterward, although you can go on helping her, let her work for herself. It will be greater charity to place the means of gaining her livelihood in her hands than to give her money enough to live upon."

"I see that," she replied gravely. "Oh, Stanley, if I had only thought before now, how many people I might have saved! It must be a terrible thing to die of hunger!"

TO BE CONTINUED.

EXPERIENCE WITH CANNIBALS.

How the Rev. Edmund Basset Came Near Being Roasted and Eaten.

It is more than fifteen years ago—in February, 1876—that I started away from Zanzibar with a score of natives, says the Rev. Edmund Bassett, English missionary to the Congo country, in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. I had a journey of over four months before I reached the chief village of the Aryumenari people. The King, who was afterward converted, treated me kindly, but the day after I arrived went away with most of his people, leaving me to the care of the women, children and a large guard.

On the fourth day I noticed that the men in the King's guard acted strangely toward me and my people. They watched us, but would not approach us. The next morning one of my men was found dead from a spear wound, and the Aryumenari replied sullenly to my accusations, neither admitting nor denying the crime. I made arrangements to bury the poor fellow that afternoon, but during a temporary absence the Aryumenari beat the guard I had stationed over the body, took the corpse, and when I returned all the people of the village were gathered about a great fire, over which I learned they were roasting a human being.

I did not see it. I dared not look at such a horrible sight, and the Aryumenari motioned me to stay away under pain of death. There was a great festival that night, and during its wildest moments I tried to steal away with my people, but the camp was guarded, and one of the guards said I was to die next day. That was a night of torture. In the morning the King came back and saved us. When I told him what his people had done he pretended to be very angry, and made a show of punishing them, while I left as soon as I could. A converted Aryumenari afterward told me that the King himself partook of the flesh of that poor, helpless Zanzibari.

THE SPLINTER TOOTHPICK.

The tablecloth was fresh and neat,
The china bright, the viands sweet,
And slim and straight beside the meat,
Stood proudly up—the toothpick.

Stood stiffly as a toothpick ought,
Which once was shunned but now is sought,
For time has turned and forward brought
To prominence the toothpick.

The dinner done they passed it 'round,
And none said "Nay," and no one frowned,
But all with dignity profound,
Applied the nimble toothpick.

O, other things of meanest sphere,
Comb! tweezers! brush! The time draws near,
Perchance, when each shall be the peer
Of the promoted toothpick.

Another Printer's Error.

The other day an official paper, in giving an account of the doings of the President of the French Republic, sent the following slip to the printer's office:—"The President enjoys excellent health notwithstanding the disquieting rumors which have arisen, and which every effort is made to put down."

The typesetter put it as follows: "The President enjoys excellent health notwithstanding the disquieting tumors, etc."

The inmates of the Elysee have withdrawn their names from the list of subscribers to that official paper.—Faits Divers.

OUR BUDGET OF HUMOR.

VARIOUS COMICALITIES OF RECENT PRODUCTION.

Curious and Laughable Phases of Life—Queer Sayings and Side-Splitting Incidents.

Didn't Know Maggie.

A very haughty, reserved-looking and elegantly-clad lady sat in one of the middle seats of a Western railroad train, with her elegant belongings beside her.

At Peterville a long, sallow, hatchet-faced woman in a green and black calico dress flounced to the waist and a yellow sunbonnet lined with pink, boarded the train, marched down the aisle past several empty seats and plumped herself down by the side of the "blue-blood" lady, carelessly sweeping that lady's belongings aside and saying calmly:

"I guess I'll set here so as to have company. Goin' fer?"

"To Denver."

"You air? Where you from?"

"Boston."

"Boston! We'l, I do declare! I was born in Varmount myself, but I an't never been back since I left there, 30 year ago the third day of next month. So ye air clean from Boston?"

"I am," icily.

"Lived there long?"

"All of my life."

"Is that so? Borned there?"

"Yes."

"Well, I do declare! Now, I ain't a mite o' doubt but you've some time or other bumped agin a own niece I've got livin' out in Boston. Mebbe yer well 'quainted with her. Her name's Maggie Smith, and she's my sister Sary's youngest. I an't never seen her, but I've got a photograft of her and I tell you she an't behind no one when it comes to puttin on style. An' I tell you she's smart. As smart as ever they make 'em.

"She's got on a big gold chain and six rings in the photograft, and a silk dress, and she's just style itself. I reckon like as not you know her. She's lived there five years, Name's Maggie Smith. Know her?"

"I do not, madam."

"Well, I'll tell you what you do. When you go back jes hunt Mag up and tell her you met her Aunt Jinny Sipes on the train, and you'll be all right with Mag after that, for she thinks a heap of me, and you jest say 'Jinny Sipes' to Mag and she'll neighbor with you from that time on. Lemme see; what street do you live on in Boston?"

"Beacon street,"—proudly.

"Well, Mag waits on the table in a restaurant down on the wharf. I'll bet you've eat there many a time and seen Mag and never knowed her. Now, next time you go in there to eat you ask for Mag Smith and say you're a friend of her Aunt Jinny and Mag'll hug you right there—you see if she don't."

A Distinction With a Difference.

John B. Furay was once a postoffice inspector, and on one occasion was sent down into Louisiana to take charge of an office from which the postmaster had decamped. A fight arose over the position, says the Omaha World, during the progress of which Maj. Furay remained acting postmaster in the quagmires of Louisiana, devoting all his spare time to shaking with the orthodox ague, and the longer the man stayed the more he shook, and the more profane he waxed. He had been there three weeks or more when one morning, while the fog was arising from around the little postoffice, Inspector Furay sat astride a keg of buttermilk reading "Pilgrim's Progress;" A tall, lean genus homo of the swamp entered.

A solitary suspender band held up a pair of blue jean pants, a white felt hat of doubtful age rested on the man's head, and his feet were incased in a pair of cowhides reddened by age.

"Howdy, pard," said the stranger, addressing the inspector, "be you the federal's agent?"

"I am the postoffice inspector," replied Maj. Furay without looking up, as he waded into "Paradise Regained."

"I am the new postmaster," said the stranger, tendering his commission.

"Well, I'll be d——d!" was the only reply as the inspector dropped his book to the ground and gazed at his visitor.

"Yes, sir," continued the stranger, squirting a mouthful of tobacco juice on the inspector's new trousers. "Yes, sir, and I've come to be qualified."

Rising to his feet Furay sighed, inspected his visitor from head to foot, and exclaimed;

"My friend, I am but human. I can only swear you in. All h—l couldn't qualify you."

The "Lion" and Giraffe.

The servant came to announce to Victor Hugo the arrival of visitors, viz., Lord S—— an English peer, accompanied by his wife and three daughters. Victor Hugo stepped into the drawing-room and inquired the object of a visit which did him honor. Lord S—— then turned to his wife and said:—

"Mr. Victor Hugo, great poet!"

Victor Hugo bowed in silence. Lord S—— then turned to his daughters:—

"Victor Hugo! Notre Dame de Paris!"

Victor Hugo again bowed his acknowledgement.

"Victor Hugo! great poet! Notre Dame de Paris!" Lord S—— repeated with enthusiam. He then opened what looked like an album as if about to solicit an autograph; Victor Hugo winced. But Lord S—— pulled out his watch, and looking at his memorandum book for such it was, remarked:—

"At ten o'clock go and see the giraffe at the Jardin d'Acclimatation" whereupon he stalked off with his family with him.—L'Echo de Paris.

Little Johnny Tells a Story.

One time there was a young gote wich felt butty, and there was a ole ram wich lay in the road, haf a sleep, chune his cud. The gote he had been shet up in a paster ol his life, an had never saw a ram, an he sed to his sister, the gote did, "You jest stan stil an se me whipe that freek off the faec of the erth."

So the gote he went up before the ram an' stomp his feets an' shuke his head real friteful, but the ram ne dident git up, but only jes kep a chune his cud and wotched out between his i lashes. Bime by the gote he backed of and tuke a run, an' then arose up in the air an' come down with his hed on the ram's head, wack! The gote's hed was busted, but the ole ram he never wank his eye. Then the ole ram he smiled with his mowth, an' sed to the butte gote's sister, "Pears to me, miss, that kangaroo of yourn is mitty careless when he lites, he come gum dasted near making me swoller my cud."—San Francisco Examiner.

The Last Division.

Teacher—"If your mother should wish to give each one an equal amount of meat, and there should be eight in the family, how many pieces would she have to cut?"

Class—"Eight."

Teacher—"Correct. Now each piece would be called one-eighth of the whole, remember that."

Class—"Yes'm."

Teacher—"Suppose each piece were cut again, what would result?"

Smart Boy—"Sixteenths."

Teacher—"Correct. And if cut again?"

Boy—"Thirty seconds."

Teacher—"Correct. Now suppose we should cut each of the thirty-two pieces again, what would result?"

Little Girl—"Hash."—Street & Smith's Good News.

Not the Same Party.

The Rev. Whangdoodle Baxter has the most flourishing Sunday-shool in Austin. He asked one of the pupils:

"Who is dat mysterious bein' from whom nuffin' am hid, who sees and knows ebery ding what happens? I axed yer dot queshun last Sunday, and now I wants de answer."

"I knows hit, My fodder told me de right answer," said one boy.

"Well, den, who does yer fodder say am dat mysterious bein' who knows all things what happens?"

"De foahman ob de gran' jury."

Not Sure.

Cashly—There! now that I have given that poor woman a quarter, I ought to have luck.

Flashly—Don't follow, my dear man; nothing to do with it.

"Why?"

"I went to the races one day and gave a blind man standing at the gate a quarter for luck. Lost every cent I had. When I came out, I tried to borrow a quarter of the blind man, but he couldn't see it."—Kate Field's Washington.

At the Private Detective Office.

Lady—"Do you happen to know any of those people who purloin topcoats, umbrellas, etc., from cafes and other places of public resort?"

Detective:—"Oh, certainly; has your husband——?"

Lady:—"No; I only wanted to ask if you could send one of these gentry to a confectioner's where I often call, and get him to steal my old cloak, so that my husband will have to buy me a sealskin for Christmas."—Der Ulk.

Found Their Level.

First Escaped Murderer—I say, pard, now we're out, what shall we do? The blood-shedding instinct is strong in me. I simply thirst for gore. How can we go on shedding and remain unhung?

Second Escaped Murderer—I have it, my sanguinary friend! We'll join a professional foot-ball team.—Pittsburg Bulletin.

Realistic Playing.

Petted Daughter—"They asked me to play at Mrs. Highupp's this evening, and I did; but——"

Fond Mother, proudly—"Were they not entranced?"

Petted Daughter—"Hum! When I played 'Life on the Ocean Wave' with variations half of them left the room."

Fond Mother, ecstatically—"That's wonderful! They must have been seasick."—New York Weekly.

Delicately Put.

Boireau converses with the old Baroness C——, at one time the most fascinating woman in society, but now all shriveled and wrinkled. "Ah!" exclaims her ladyship, "How sad it is to grow old!"

"To be sure," Boireau remarks, "it is hard lines when one has to turn again into a caterpillar after having been a butterfly!"—Le Figure.

A Popular Parlor Vocalist.

She—Ah, Miss Ashby is going to give us a solo, and she is the best parlor singer I know.

He—Yes. I'd rather hear her sing than any one else. She sings so well—and then she never insists on interrupting the conversation.—Kate Field's Washington.

Waiting For Her.

Winkle—Have you seen Miss Twitter in her new tailor-made gown?

Nodd—No. She was out walking when I called.

"Was any one else at home?"

"Yes. The tailor who made it was there.—Cloak Review.

The Term Was Misleading.

Grandma Gowkitt—Robert, what's a sweep-smelter?

Robert, just home from college—A man who buys the sweepings from jewelers' shops for the gold in them.

"Laws-a-me! Can he smell the gold?"—Jeweler's Weekly.

A Moment of Candor.

Mrs. Speakermind, at a chrysanthemum show—"Why is there such a furor over such a commonplace flower as the chrysanthemum?"

Everybody Else—"That's just what we came to find out."—New York Weekly.

Another Lie Nailed.

"I have a horse that has run a mile in one-twenty."

"Is his tail bobbed?"

"No; why?"

"Because it is best for a horse-tale like that to be cut short."—Kate Field's Washington.

What He Was.

"Are you a patient waiter?" asked one man of another as they sat in a doctor's office awaiting their turn.

"No, sir; I am a waiting patient."

SCIENCE AND PROGRESS.

INSTRUCTIVE AND INTERESTING READING FOR ALL.

Curious Inventions—Travels of a Star—Automatic Delivery of Letters—Photos Sent by Wire—Rain Making a Failure.

Curious Inventions.

The history and growth of inventions are the subjects in which we are interested.

The stylograph pen brought in £40,000 a year; the Indian rubber tips to pencils £20,000; metal plates for protecting the soles and heels of boots brought in £250,000 in all; the roller skates £200,000.

A clergyman realized $400 a week by the invention of a toy; another toy, the return ball, brought in an income of £10,000; the "Dancing Jim Crow," £15,000. The inventor of a copper cap for children's boots was able to leave his heirs £100,000; while Singer, of sewing machine fame, left at his death nearly £3,000,000.

There are other and wonderful things which people have thought it worth while to patent, strong in the hope of making a big fortune in the near future, only to find in so many cases that their inventions were impracticable and very often perfectly ridiculous.

Among such may be mentioned a child's bib with a trough attached, the whole formed of some waterproof material; a pocket which cannot be picked; a muff and boa filled with air to save you from a watery grave; cuffs and collars made of steel, painted and enameled white; trousers with double legs—on the outer legs getting soiled or bespattered you tuck them up, and behold a clean pair. This arrangement would be suitable. I should say, when worn with an overcoat.

Under the head of umbrellas and walking-sticks we find some marvelous inventions. One is an umbrella which in some wonderful way is converted into a walking-stick, and so formed that a spear can be attached, when it is used as a weapon of offense and defense. I recommend it to elderly ladies in the dog days, as a protection against the sun and mad dogs. The next invention is a rain-absorber, to prevent rain from running down from hats and umbrellas.

The absorber is formed either of uncovered sponges or covered sponges by a fabric. We are told that the absorber can be readily removed from the article which the inventor has named, take a long breath and shut your eyes, the "Rhabdoskidophorus." This is an umbrella which can be taken apart; the silk and ribs being hidden within the stick; it is thus transformed into a stout walking-stick.

Travels of a Star.

A communication from M. Camille Flammarion, the French astronomer, in the New York Herald of the 3rd inst. mentions his discovery at Juvisy Observatory of the movement of a star by the naked eye. This is the first time in the history of astronomy, he says, that the displacement of a star has been settled without instrumental aid.

The star to which he refers shines beneath the brilliant star "Cluster" in the constellation of the Virgo. It is numbered 61 and is of the fifth magnitude. Hipparchus described it 2,000 years ago as a double star. It was then optically double, only not physically connected with another star. But it is no longer double even in appearance. It was in the attempt to ascertain the stellar parallax by the study of double stars that the elder Herschel found evidences of the great law that the dominion of gravitation extends beyond the limits of the solar system to the most remote regions of space.

Star atlases constructed by M. Flammarion and others show that not infrequently many stars in the same region of the heavens travel in company, or exhibit, as one says, a "gregarious tendency." It is not often, therefore, that any change in the relative positions of stars can be detected. But when the star is in line of sight observations with the spectroscope make it possible to determine its rate of approach or recession. More than twenty years ago Huggins found by this means that Arcturus was approaching us at a speed of sixty miles a second, while Sirius was increasing his distance by nearly a third as much per second.

Star 61 in the constellation of the Virgo was once near star 63, forming with it, apparently, a double star. Now it is separated, says M. Flammarion, "by a distance exceeding by far that of the full moon, and it is flying with a rapid course to the southwest and preparing itself to abandon the Virgo, its arms and its 'Cluster,' to go and lose itself in the folds of Hydra, which unveil themselves in the south."

The Metric System.

Several British Consuls have recently warned their countrymen they were losing considerable trade in foreign countries owing to their persistent use of English weights and measures in their circulars and price-lists, which were frequently unintelligible to most of the foreign dealers, whereas their French, German and other competitors used the metric system, which was familiar to everybody, and naturally attracted custom. These warnings apply equally well to the exporters of the United States. The use of the metric or decimal system was authorized by our laws many years ago, but the use has not yet been made compulsory; hence the majority of people cling to the old system and dislike to change, although the metric is more simple and easily understood.

The metric system is so much more convenient, saves so much time and has now become so generally adopted throughout the world that the United States ought no longer refuse to fall into line. A very little pressure would suffice to bring about the change. It would do the business, probably, if Congress were simply to pass a law requiring that estimates, contracts and bills specifying weights or measures, when not made out metrically, must bear a revenue stamp of one dime. Rather than pay a small tax, everybody would at once use the decimal system, and the change would be as smooth as the system itself.—Scientific American.

Automatic Delivery of Letters.

An invention which is exciting a good deal of interest on the Continent, where the flat system of residence is so much in vogue, is an automatic electric letter and parcel deliverer, produced by a resident of Geneva. As its name implies, the apparatus is designed to distribute automatically on each floor, and to all the tenants of a house, the letters or parcels which may be addressed to them. A large box situated on the ground floor contains as many apertures as there are floors or tenants in the house. When a letter or other object is introduced into one of these openings the box rises and, in passing, distributes in each of the addresses the articles intended for them, each tenant being in turn advised of the arrival of the article by the ringing of an electric bell.

The working of the apparatus is extremely simple, as the following few details will show, and its cost is insignificant. The object introduced into the box on the ground floor effects, at the top of the house, an electric contact, which opens the valve of a water tank. The water fills a cylinder, which serves as a counterpoise, and raises the letter-box, which, while in the act of passing each private box, opens itself by an ingenious yet simple mechanical arrangement, and deposits the respective contents therein. When the box carrier has arrived at the top floor the cylinder empties itself, and the box descends to its place and is ready for another trip.

Photos Sent by Wire.

The transmission of pictures by electricity is one of the latest applications of the subtle but extremely useful fluid, and the principle of this new discovery is somewhat similar to that on which the telephone is based, use being made of varying degrees of light, instead of sound, as in the telephone. In order to send a picture over a wire it is first photographed on what photographers call a stripping film, composed of gelatine and bichromate of potash. After the picture is transferred to this film the film is washed with lukewarm water, by which all but the lines of the picture are removed, leaving the photograph in relief.

The point of a tracing apparatus, when drawn across this film from side to side, rises and falls as it strikes each line of the picture. This wave-like motion of the tracer is made use of to produce similar motion in another tracing apparatus at the other end of the line by means of a complicated electrical mechanism, and each depression and elevation in the picture is reproduced in a waxen cylinder on the receiving instrument. To accomplish this it is necessary to go entirely over the picture that is being transmitted, tracing lines across the surface. A single line conveys no idea of the picture, but as they follow each other they gradually outline the object.—From Electricity.

Strange Things In the Air.

When a flash of lightning darts through the air, it vaporizes any minute particles of floating matter that may be in its path. By examining the light of the lightning with a spectroscope, the nature of these vaporized substances may be determined, because every known element in nature shows in its spectrum certain lines that belong to it alone.

By studying the spectrum of lightning in this way, Mr. W. E. Wood, of Washington, has recently been able to show that sodium, which is the element from which common salt is formed, exists in the air.

He suggests various ways of accounting for the presence of sodium in the atmosphere, one of which is particularly interesting, and that is that it may have come there from interstellar space.

It is known that metoric dust is continually falling upon the globe from beyond the atmosphere, and if it should turn out that microscopic particles of sodium are included in this strange, unending show with which the heavens salute the earth, it would be only another proof of the unity of composition that extends from the earth to the sun, and from the sun to the stars.

An Electric Fog Consumer.

"At midnight last I noticed flashes of lightning illuminating my bed-room. A camera was loaded and an excursion into the country taken, hoping to obtain a few new photographs of Jove's handiwork.

"The night was very foggy, and the flashes of light (very frequent and vivid) gave only blurred images of trees in the foreground.

"At 1:30 in the morning, as I was about despairing of obtaining photographs, a sudden streak of lightning shot right through the fog, followed by a heavy peal of thunder, and in less than thirty seconds the fog had entirely disappeared, being precipitated by the electricity in the atmosphere.

"In these rain producing days perhaps some inventive genius will take a hint from this occurrence for the dissipation of a fog on a large scale by introducing large powder-driven Holtz machines on shipboard and sending a stream of electricity into the fog-laden air from various points along the rigging, thus producing a clear area in the neighborhood of the vessel. And who knows, perhaps, by the extension of the system, some day we may see a fogless London."—Engineering.

Rain Making a Failure.

The latest contribution to the rain-making controversy comes from Professor Curtis, meteorologist in charge of the experiments. In a communication from that gentleman, just published, he affirms in the most unequivocal manner that so far as the production of showers by means of explosions, either on the ground or in the upper air, is concerned, the experiments have been an utter failure. Showers were in some instances obtained, though by no means to the extent described in the telegraphic reports, the "torrents" of the imaginative reporters being in many instances mere drizzles. But even these were foretold by the Meteorological Department, and were due to natural causes, and not in any appreciable degree to the dynamite, and explosive balloons.

Polk County Journal.

CROOKSTON, - - MINN

Bishop Butler, of England, believes in the immortality of animals.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Osborne, of Knoxville, Tenn., are soon to celebrate the seventy-second anniversary of their marriage.

Rudyard Kipling has been sick with fever in New Zealand. He will visit Stevenson at Samoa and then go to India, returning to London in March.

Rudyard Kipling is to wed an American girl, and we wish him joy. She may train him into a decent regard for the American people—"but that's another story," as Private Mulvany wouldsay.

Sir Edwin Arnold says the worst to be said of a man in Japanese is that he is a "fellow." That country will have to borrow ot the United States vocabulary if it is going into politics.

The soldiers at Fort Niagara who have been smuggling Chinamen across the border should be relieved at once by a troop of Indian cavalry from the frontier. This and a slight bounty on Chinese hair would put an end to the business in that locality.

Stanley has recently been met by an old friend, who says he is a broken down man, and will never be able to travel in Africa again. The labor of bringing back Emin when he didn't want to be "brung" was clearly too much for the great explorer.

General S. C. Armstrong, who has been prostrated with paralysis in Boston, has so far recovered that he is expected soon to resume his duties at the Hampton Institute. This is the third time he has seemed to be at death's door.

Peru's anxiety to have the United States fight Chili is human and natural. Peru remembers her loss of the province of Tarapaca and the nitrate deposits, and has a hope that by aiding the United States she might get back the plum she lost in war with the shoe string nation.

As the wife of an earl, Belle Bilton, the concert hall singer, has been most mercilessly snubbed. As the mother of twin boys, one of whom will some day be Earl Clancarty, she may obtain that recognition to which her rank entitles her. It seems a little odd but it is right.

Governor Russell's fondness for sport is most catholic, ranging from whist and billiards, at which he plays an excellent game, to horseback-riding and foot ball. For foot ball he has an especial liking, and in the closely contested match between Harvard and Yale at New Haven in November, 1876, he was umpire for Harvard.

John P. Richardson, of East Carroll Parish, La., whose funeral took place in New Orleans, was the largest individual cotton planter in the world. He owned fifteen plantations in Mississippi and Louisiana, and eight large mercantile establishments in the same states. He was the king of the last Mardi Gras in New Orleans, and was only 36 years of age.

Most of the astronomers are discussing the probability of the reappearance of the "Star of Bethlehem" at the end of the century. Some insist that it was a veritable star, but the more prevalent idea is that it was a spiritual conception, and, of course, not subject to telescopic observation. No way is suggested to determine the question at present.

The duke of Portland no longer occupies the position at the head of winning owners on the English turf, a position he occupied for three seasons. His winnings in stakes alone during that period amounted to nearly $630,000, a yearly average of $210,000. This year his total reaches only $25,000. Noel Fenwick now occupies first position with $102,595.

Nature seems to have been partial to the New World in the distribution of its favors this year. The Argentine Republic has had the same experience as the United States in the matter of heavy harvests, the value of the crops exceeding that of last year by nearly 15 per cent. Similar experiences throughout South America ought to put an end for the present, at least, to the political troubles among those new republics. Prosperity is usually associated with contentment and peace.

THE SPLINTER TOOTHPICK.

The tablecloth was fresh and neat,
The china bright, the viands sweet,
And slim and straight beside the meat,
Stood proudly up—the toothpick.

Stood stiffly as a toothpick ought,
Which once was shunned but now is sought,
For time has turned and forward brought
To prominence the toothpick.

The dinner done they passed it round,
And none said "Nay," and no one frowned,
But all with dignity profound,
Applied the nimble toothpick.

O, other things of meanest sphere,
Comb! tweezers! brush! The time draws near,
Perchance, when each shall be the peer
Of the promoted toothpick.

AROUND THE GLOBE.

A Record of the Week's Happenings That are Now Part of the World's History.

The More Important Foreign and Domestic Events Arranged for Rapid Reading.

WASHINGTON.

The American Forestry and Historical associations open their annual conventions in Washington.

The revenues of the government for the month of Dec., were $28,500,000 or $2,500,000 less than the expenditures during the same period. This has had the effect of reducing the treasury cash balance to $30,405,749 including $14,000,000 in subsidiary silver and $12,356,927 on deposit with national banks. The balance Dec. 1 was $39,126,917. There has been a decrease in the bonded debt to the extent of the 4½ per cent bonds redeemed but the cash balance available for the payment of the dept is less than on the first instant. The principal item in the disbursement for the month was $13,125,000 on account of pensions.

PERSONAL MENTION.

George Dustin, over 100 years old, dies at Mora, Minn.

Miss Rachel Sherman, daughter of the late Gen. Sherman, is married to Dr. Paul Thorndyke of Boston.

Ex-Congressman Bishop W. Perkins, is appointed United States senator from Kansas.

Roswell P. Flower is inaugurated as governor of New York, David B. Hill retiring.

George W. Walling, for many years superintendent of the New York police department died at his home in Keyport N. J.

Thomas S. Applegate, proprietor of the Adrian Mich., Times died suddenly of heart disease. He was one of the most prominent Republican politicians of the state.

J. F. Coyle of St. Louis has been elected president of the Western Commercial Travelers' association, in session at St. Louis. John H. Bidleman of St. Paul is the sixth vice president.

John J. Nathan, an old-time circus man, died in New York, aged about seventy-six years. He entered the circus ring about sixty years ago, and for nearly half a century was prominent in the business, having at various times been partner of Barnum and other well known showmen.

RAILROAD RUMBLINGS.

The New York, Ontario & Western formally withdrew from the boycott of the Chicago & Alton.

W. H. Bliss, who resigned the office of general counsel of the St. Paul & Duluth several weeks ago, has been appointed associate counsel of the Northern Pacific.

General Manager St. John, of the Rock Island, announces the appointment of Dr. W. D. Middleton as surgeon-in-chief of the Rock Island company. Dr. Middleton's headquarters will be at Davenport, Iowa.

An effort is being made by the board of rulings to have the postponed meeting of the joint committee Trunk line and Central Traffic association held next Wednesday, Jan. 6. Vice Chairman Donald expects the call will be issued.

UNFORTUNATE EVENTS.

Several people are hurt in a railroad accident in Stillwater, Minn.

John J. Lingeman, the man who went to Cornelius Vanderbilt's house and wanted his brains, has been adjudged insane.

The Indiana Midland has practically abandoned business, due to its financial embarassments.

Twelve fishing boats belonging to Vinarose and San Carlos de la Rapita, Spain, have been lost in a storm, forty-three persons being drowned.

At Grand Rapids, Mich., Willie McDonald while skating broke through the ice. Walter Dolan attempted to rescue him. Both boys were drowned.

A panic occurs in a theater at Gates Head, England, in which ten persons, including nine children, are killed, and many others seriously hurt.

While oiling machinery in the Laclede Electric Works at St. Louis Ely Harrison eighteen years old, was caught on an immense fly wheel and was violently thrown against the ceiling, a distance of forty feet. His head was completely crushed and his brains scattered on every side.

The Winsted (Conn.) Christian association women, calling at the house of George Mallison, found the fires out, the house cold, and the whole family of five persons helpless in bed with the grip. Mrs. Mallison and her mother both died, and Mallison and his two children are very low.

A fire broke out in Jeannette, Pa., and before the flames were subdued a dozen buildings were in ruins. The fire started in McCune & Kern's livery stable and quickly spread to the Clay Avenue Hotel, Shrode's grocery, Freedberg's meat market, Middlang's billiard parlor and seven dwellings adjoining. A number of outbuildings and eight horses were also consumed. The loss was $50,000, insurance $25,000.

Jere Little, the famous Breathitt county outlaw, was accidentally killed near Jackson Ky, while rolling logs. His canthook slipped, throwing him down, and an immense log rolled over him, crushing every bone in his body and smashing his head to a pulp. Little was the leader of the famous Little-Strong war a few years ago in Breathitt county, and had twenty-six bullets in his body at the time of his death.

FOREIGN NUGGETS.

Members of a secret league whose object was to assassinate the czar are arrested in Russia.

Russia has formally intimated her readiness to negotiate a treaty of commerce with Germany.

The South Wales mining conference satisfactorily settled the sliding scale difficulty, and work will be resumed immediately.

The pope celebrated mass recently and afterwards received good wishes from the officers and men of the Guardia Mobile and members of other papal bodies.

Secretary Blaine and the British minister arrange a reciprocity agreement embracing the British West Indies and British Guiana.

It is reported from Rome via London that the United States has agreed to pay the indemnity Italy demands on account of the New Orleans executions.

Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein-Sonderburg was accidently shot in the face during a hunting trip on the Isle of Wight. He had a shot removed from his eye. Nothing serious will result.

The offers of Americans to supply the needy Mexicans with corn has stimulated the Spaniards to make similar offers with the object of out-vying the generosity of the Americans.

An attempt is made, presumably by the "physical force" party, to blow up Dublin castle. Only small damage is done. The air is thick with rumors of more attempts of the same kind in contemplation.

The royalist committee of the department of Finistere, France, intends to ask the archbishop of Aix to be a candidate for the seat in the chamber of deputies made vacant by the death of Bishop Freppel.

Hunza, not far from Gilgit, on the Pamir frontier, has been occupied by the British troops. There was no opposition to the advance of the British. The Hunza and other tribesmen submitted to the troops and tranquility has been restored.

At Clashevin cemetery, Dublin, the mother, brother and sister of the late Charles Stewart Parnell placed on his grave a floral Celtic cross with the inscription "May the principle for which he died revive with the new year and live forever."

The sensational report that an express train had run into the rear end of a military train near Basovo, Russia, and that twenty persons had been killed and one hundred seriously injured is declared to be entirely without foundation.

A Vienna special says: A wealthy squire named Hambeek living at Gratz shot two of his sons, six and seven years of age respectively, and then he committed suicide. He had an idea that his sons, who stammered, had an hereditary taint of insanity.

The Eclair states that M. De Brazza, at the head of an expedition of 1,200 persons, 600 being Senegal troops and 60 Europeans, with plenty of provisions and firearms, left Libreville, in the French Congo Colony, on Nov. 7, for the purpose of marching to Lake Tchad.

King Leopold of Belgium, is suffering from influenza. Many deaths from influenza have occurred in Vienna during the week, and business is suffering in consequence of the epidemic. Cognac is largely prescribed by doctors, proving effective in the initiatory stages.

The Galician papers are filled with articles advocating the renewed enforcement of repressive measures against the Jews in Russian Poland. A large number of persons have been arrested in Warsaw and the immediate vicinity. They disappear and no inquiries are made.

The new Spanish tariff was promulgated It contains little not already known. The government will no longer recognize the favored nation clause, and the ministry is absolutely debarred from making the slightest confessions on the alcohol duties. The free traders declare that several of the new duties are prohibitive.

SINS AND SINNERS.

Five hundred Chicago boys armed with tin horns attempted to drive a Chinaman, Lee Wah, into the lake.

At Holyoke, Col., the office of B. A. Haskins, county treasurer of Phillips county, was robbed of bonds valued at $10,000.

Miss Amanda Thomas of Springfield, Ohio, committed suicide at San Diego, Cal., by shooting herself through the head. Ill health was the cause.

Jacob H. Wight, one of the best-known tobacco merchants in Baltimore, committed suicide by shooting himself through the heart. Melancholy was the cause.

The Adams Express Company confirms the report of the capture of the robbers that robbed the St. Louis & San Francisco train just out of St. Louis early in December.

The committee appointed to investigate the conduct of ex-Secretary of State Soper of Michigan has made an exhaustive report, finding that Soper had mulcted the state in various ways of a large amount.

At Cincinnati, Peter Bender, a member of the school board from the Fifth ward, who keeps a low saloon, shot and fatally wounded Wm. Thornberry, a colored employe of the Licking Coal Company.

Lieutenant Anastuy, under arrest for the murder of the aged Baroness Dellard in Paris, has just affirmed the conviction of the police that he was the murder, by confessing that he committed the crime.

A. Holt, publisher of the Echo, a religious journal issue in Camden, N. J., was fined $1,000 for contempt in publishing a statement reflecting on the court. He was committed to prison until further order of the court is made.

John A. Anderson, who is under arrest at Cleveland, Ohio, charged with robbery and bigamy, has a wife residing on Concord street, Boston. She became a mother recently, and is now seriously ill. They were married in Hoboken a year ago last November, and have been living here since last August, Anderson telegraphed his wife that he would be in Boston on Christmas day but he failed to appear and Mrs. Anderson has been ignorant of his whereabouts since.

SPORTING TRIFLES.

Jack Barnett became tired of John L. Sullivan at Sacramento and closed all accounts with the big slugger and quit. Barnett ascribed his desertion of Sullivan to ill usage, but it is shrewdly suspected that the champion has ceased to be a drawing card since his return from Australia.

LABOR CIRCLE.

Eighty-five thousand miners in South Wales are locked out, but the difficulty is speedily adjusted.

At South Lake Linden, Mich., the Calumet and Hecla Smelting Company closed down three furnaces, throwing out of employment 30 men.

The leaders of the striking printers in Berlin and at Leipsic have intimated to the masters that the men are willing to resume work unconditionally.

The entire system of the San Antonio & Arkansas Pass railroad is tied up by a strike of its employes. The trouble was caused by the discharge of a conductor for an alleged violation of orders.

OTHERWISE.

Chicago and Aurora, Ill., are to be connected by an electric railway.

The cruiser San Francisco left the port of San Francisco under sealed orders.

The board of trustees of the state insane asylums confer in St. Paul.

The Minnesota Educational association opens its annual convention in St. Paul.

Natural gas in abundance is found in South Dakota.

Philadelphia is to have the largest tin plate factory in the United States.

Railroad contractors are accused of failing to pay their men for very hard work, and otherwise misusing them.

It is authoritatively announced that Interstate Commerce Commission Morrison will be reappointed.

The St. Paul chamber of commerce discusses the appointment of building inspector.

A new People's party is organized in Michigan, after a heated discussion and a split.

Committees on various branches of the work connected with Republican national convention preparations are appointed in Minneapolis.

In order to lower insurance rates, a pumping station will be established on the river in St. Paul and pipes laid under all the streets in the business district.

A young bride at Northfield goes to the station to meet her husband, at his request, and when the train arrives his corpse is taken from the baggage car.

Gov. Humphrey of Kansas asserts that he will take his own time in appointing a senator and will not be influenced by any faction.

At the meeting of the American Society of Naturalists in Philadelphia, H. F. Osborne, D. C. Columbia college, New York, was elected president.

Gen. Graham, presiding at a meeting of the Maxim-Nordenfeldt Gun company, in London, announced the company's intention to establish factories in the United States, the directors sent to inquire having reported favorably on the company's prospects of obtaining orders.

The American Chemical society, which has opened its annual convention in New York elected Prof. Mallet of Virginia, president. A committee was appointed to consider the advisability of holding a convention in Chicago in the summer of 1893.

The pope received the various diplomates who called upon him to express the customary New Year's greetings. All the diplomates remarked the healthy appearance of the pope, and spoken in high terms of extreme lucidity of the ideas expressed by him.

THE NORTHWEST.

A Summary of the Important Events of the Week in the Northwestern States.

Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, North and South Dakota News in a Nutshell.

MINNESOTA.

August Eveny's 12-year-old daughter, at Hastings, was badly burned with kerosene.

Arthur W. Dampier succeeds Northfield's Democratic postmaster, J. E. Kenedy.

The district school at Union has been closed on account of an outbreak of black diptheria.

William Bruce, an old soldier at Mankato, became insane through business troubles.

Thomas O'Brien, a deserter, gave himself up at St. Paul. He had been a soldier for twenty years.

Grand Rapids is to have a new bank by January 1, with E. J. Hastings, of Minneapolis, president.

A. E. Quinn, editor of the Pine Knot, of Cloquet, has been sued for criminal libel by G. B. Peterson.

Peter Smedley a brakeman lost a leg at Ramsey Station near Austin, and may die from the shock.

A. J. Meyers, late of the Mazeppa Tribune, has secured an option on the Graphic Sentinel, of Lake City, and will take possession January 1.

The heating stoves and pipes of a passenger car on a Chicago Millwaukee & St. Paul train exploded at Fairmont, wrecking the car and injuring one passenger.

J. J. Dayton, a prominent business man of Lake City, was granted a divorce from his wife at a special term of the district court in Winona.

At a meeting of the village council of Hallock the license fees were established as follows: One saloon, $5,000; two, $2,000 each; three, $1,500 each, and four, $1,250 each. This places Hallock as the high license town of the state.

Frank Perutka, who has been in the boot and shoe and dry goods business at Winona for several years, assigned recently to County Treasurer Fakler. The liabilities are $25,000 and the assets less than $20,000. Five attachments were served on the stock.

Scarlet fever has made its appearance in Albert Lea, there being cases in two different families. The board of health has the matter in charge and will see that a strict quarantine is enforced. There have been a number of cases of the disease in the towns of Newsy and Geneva, many of which proved fatal.

At the chamber of commerce meeting at Duluth, a committee consisting of Secretary Thompson, Collector of Customs C. F. Johnson and Ald. C. A. Long, was appointed to present the claim of the city against the government to recover the expense incurred by the construction of a dyke and also in building the canal.

Ole Kron, an old citizen of Evansville, committed suicide the other evening by shooting himself in the head with a revolver. Since the death of his wife some time ago he has been despondent, and made an unsuccessful attempt to take his life a year ago. The deed was committed on the grave of his wife in the cemetery.

The railway station house of the Great Northern at Hallock was destroyed by fire the other evening caused by a lamp explosion. Through the efforts of the local fire brigade a number of cars containing valuable freight were saved, as was also two horse power threshing outfits, that represented more than their actual value under the pressing needs of the farmers.

A young woman was in St. Peter recently asking alms, stating that she had been robbed of $30 in money and a railroad ticket to Butte, Mont. She excited considerable sympathy and received quite a little money. It now turns out that the woman was a fraud and that she had with her a male companion and that both lived in Mankato, she being one of the demi monde.

The Murray County Alliance held its annual convention at Slayton. The old officers were re-elected. B. F. Warren was elected delegate to the state convention. The Donnelly and anti-Donnely factions had a bitter wrangle before it was decided to avor the same for president, for another term. Donnelly was billed for a speech before the convention, but telegraphed his inability to be present because of sickness.

NORTH DAKOTA.

The residence of Michael Garrity, in the suburbs of Fargo, was burned to the ground. Garrity's wife and infant child narrowly escaped death in the flames.

Robert Lowe was found dead at Forest River in a shanty on the farm of William Graham, which he worked There were no indications of foul play. He was probably suffocated by coal gas.

The northbound passenger train was wrecked between Minnewaukan and New Rockford, and three freight cars were piled up, and the track demolished somewhat. One of the engineers was slightly bruised.

A special meeting of the Pembina presbytery was held in Larimore. R. J. Crumb accused of illegal connections with female members of his congregation was to be tried. Crumb did not put in his appearance and the meeting adjourned to try the case in Grand Forks, Feb. 2.

Many ugly rumors are afloat in connection with the late Farmers' and Merchants' State Bank failure at Ellendale. The president of the bank, H. O. Barratt, has been arrested on the charge of receiving deposits when he knew the bank was insolvent. He waived examination in justice court and was held to the district court in $500. There is strong talk of making other arrests.

Word has been received at Fargo that Mr. and Mrs. John Brunelle of Wild Rice were found dead in bed one morning, having been asphyxiated by escaping coal gas from the stove. A little girl came over to W. D. Brown's and said she thought her father and mother were dead. When help arrived they had been dead some hours. They leave nine young children, some of whom are also sick from the effects of the gas, but are expected to recover.

The North Dakota Teachers' association met at Grand Forks. A. J. O'Keefe delivered the address of welcome, which was responded to by the president, A. L. Woods. John Ogden, state superintendent of public instruction, read a paper on the "State Educational Columbian Exhibit." The afternoon session was held in the state university. The Great Northern railway furnished a special train. A lecture was delivered, tonight by Prof. H. F. Judson, of the University of Minnesota, which was followed by a banquet.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Stanley Island, has been placed under military rule.

An artesan well was struck on the farm of Col. C. J. Pontus in Troy Township, Sully County, at a depth of 1,456 feet.

A dispatch from Sioux Falls states that the jury in the case of W. B. Enos vs. The St. Paul Fire and Marine Insurance Company after a deliberation of only thirty minutes brought in a verdict for the plaintiff.

The cases of the state against Hagerty and Paul Hamus were entered upon Aberdeen, State's Attorney Cramer and Hon. A. B. Melville will prosecute and Attorneys Gordon, Crofoot and Huse defend the defendants charged with receiving bank deposits when they knew the bank was insolvent.

It is reported that natural gas has been struck on the farm of R. B. Coddington, three and a half miles north of Blunt. It was found at the depth of 2,000 feet. Mr. Coddington will use it for lighting and heating purposes, and the city of Blunt will put down other wells from which to light the streets.

A decree of divorce was granted by Judge E. G. Smith, at Yankton, to Louis Bernard, of Mayence, Germany, the well known landscape painter. Bernard claimed desertion as the ground for his desire for separation. He was married in Germany in 1867, and in 1882 his wife left him and they have continued to live apart since. There are three daughters, all above twenty years of age, with the mother. Bernard has left the city and will return at once to Germany.

C. W. Case, general superintendent R. W. Bryan, division superintendent of the Great Northern, have been looking the line over between St. Paul and Huron, with a view to making numerous improvements the coming season. It is rumored on good authority that the Great Northern is likely to extend its line from here to Chamberlain and cross the Missouri river with the Chicago, Millwaukee & St. Paul, or go to Wheeler, in Charles Mix county.

WISCONSIN.

Mrs. Washington, an early settler of Baraboo, died at her home of pneumonia.

Mrs. L. Chase, of Prairie du Chien, died at her home after undergoing a surgical operation.

The residence of Martin Bergh, at La Crosse was destroyed by fire. Loss, $1,000; covered by insurance.

Mrs. George B. Smith, of Watertown, died at the age of 38 years. She leaves a husband and four children.

Frank Tindell, an old resident of the town of Waterford, Racine County, passed away, aged 79 years.

Two boys, named Gotfried Zinskie and William Schalla, of Waukesha, were arrested for being drunk. They were 16 years of age.

S. D. Welch, an employe of the Lake Shore road at Appleton, had part of his foot torn off by getting it caught between two rails.

A brakeman named Dan Hayward, of La Crosse, had his hand crushed while coupling cars on the North-Western road near Winona Junction.

Peter Dalstrom, a Racine baker, made an assignment to Peter B. Hanson, of that place, for the benefit of his creditors. The liabilities are $400.

A. D. Waterman, a Milwaukee man, who forged a note for $118 at Boyd, Chippewa County, last June, pleaded guilty in the circuit court at Chippewa Falls and was sentenced to one year and a half at Waupun.

The contract for boring an artesian well at the Racine County Asylum was awarded to the O'Connor Artesian Well Company, of Fond du Lac. Their bid was $1.57 per foot for the first 1,000 feet.

Hyde & Jackson, of New York, have made an application to the Common Council at Kaukauna, asking for a franchise to put in a $100,000 water works plant. It is proposed to put in seventy hydrants.

The Swede, A. Bjorklund, who was robbed of a check on a Minneapolis bank for $1,400 at Fort Howard, a few days ago, has received word from Minneapolis that the check is safe.

While doing her housework Mrs. A. H. Morse, of Whitewater, was stricken with paralysis; a second attack followed shortly afterwards from which she died. She was 68 years of age.

An old lady named Mrs. H. H. Mills, of Hixen, Jackson County, aged 70 years, underwent an operation successfully a few days ago for the removal of a cataract. She has been blind for the past eight years.

Albert Ansem, the young fellow who passed a number of forged checks a few days ago at La Crosse, has made application to Judge Dyson for permission to plead guilty. He will be accommodated on January 4.

While Phil. Slack was climbing over a fence with a loaded shot gun near Baraboo, the firearm was accidentally discharged, the contents tearing away part of the boy's face. He will lose the sight of one eye. He is 16 years of age.

While Harry and Frank Parsons, of Fond du Lac, were driving, the horse became frightened at the noise made by the Salvation Army, and ran away. Both young men were seriously injured, Frank having one ear torn off.

IOWA.

The Trenck Wire Works of Dubuque, which have been in operation there for 11 years, made an assignment for the benefit of creditors. The assets and liabilities are about equal.

Elisha Hannawalt, aged nineteen, of Dumont, Io., who was visiting near Lyons, after returning from a hunting trip attempted to take a gun out of a wagon muzzle first. The gun was discharged and Hannawalt killed.

Pliny Harlan, a popular young clerk in the postoffice at Marion, was arrested by a United States marshal on the charge of selling cancelled stamps, and stealing articles from the mail, and presenting them to young women acquaintances.

A colored man, J. H. Miller, of Des Moines, called on Ada Lewis, a woman who had jilted him, and at the end of a short interview shot her and then himself. The man can live but a few hours, and the woman's wounds will also prove fatal.

The Saturday Night Club of Dubuque, made a tender of a reception to Sir Edwin Arnold on the occasion of his visit to that city. A note was recieved from Mr. Arnold declining the invitation and regretting his inability to attend.

A New York capitalist was in Dubuque with a view to purchasing the bonds of the city, which amount to about $800,000. These bonds now bear 6 or 7 per cent interest. He offers to take the refunded debt at 4 per cent for 20 years, but none of these bonds are due before four years.

At a special election of the city of Estherville, held recently, the question of giving a 20 year's franchise to an electric light company to put in a plant at Estherville was carried by a large majority. There have been several propositions already made by responsible parties and the city will no doubt accept one of them at an early date.

The chinaware firm of James H. Peterson & Co., of Burlington, have assigned. The liabilities are nearly $25,000. The assets are not yet known. There are preferred creditors under a chattel mortgage upon the stock for $14,750 to E. S. Huston, trustee for the National State Bank, and others, and also under a lien held by Thomas H. Taylor for $1,350. The remainder of the liabilities are to firms in the East and Liverpool England.

200 Mystic Shriners, including many notable Masons of the state, were at Ottumwa initiating 60 Knights Templars in the mysteries of Kaaba Temple. At the close of the ceremonies the Shriners were banqueted at the Ballingall. Illustrious Potentate Clark L. Richard and the other officers of the Temple came in a special train from Davenport, and other delegations had similar trains from Mason City, Marshalltown, Oskaloosa and the west.

HIS SIDE OF THE CASE

The Mexican Revolutionist Accords an Interesting Talk to a Correspondent.

He Is Anxious That Himself and His Cause Be Placed Right Before the Americans.

Laredo, Tex., Special Telegram, Jan. 4.—An interview was secured to-day with Catarino Garza, the leader of the revolution on the Mexican border. He consented to talk on the condition that the exact place where the interview was held should not be made public. It can only be stated that the meeting between the correspondent and the revolutionist took place about a day's horseback ride from his home, which is a few miles northwest of Las Cueras, in Starr county, six or eight miles from the Rio Grande river.

Garza looks more like an American than a Mexican, but his complexion is very dark and his hair and mustache are black. He speaks very good English, having attended school at Brownsville, Tex.

"I have been a newspaper man nearly all my life," Capt. Garza said. "I know the place newspapers hold in public affairs, and in seeing you I simply gratify the desire to have myself placed right before the people of the United States. The impression prevails that I and my followers are simply an organized band of border ruffians, seeking only to gratify personal ends. As nothing can be further from truth, I rely on you to do me justice, and for this I came here to see and talk to you.

"Let me speak briefly of the condition of affairs in the Mexican states along the Rio Grande and the southern line of the United States. In Nuevo Leon, Tamaulipas, Coahuila and Chihuahua particularly there has been a growing discontent at the misrule of Mexico. President Diaz is Mexico. He is the government sole and entire. The slightest opposition to his will on the part of any minister or other official is followed by instant dismissal and disgrace. He does not seem to care for the good of the people or the country so long as he may gratify his own interests and vanity. During the time he has occupied the chair of president he has grown immensely wealthy. He owns thousands of acres of land, millions of dollars laid by, not only in Mexico but in the vaults of Europe, and there is hardly a big corporation or monopoly in Mexico that he does not own stock in. In fact, the price of a monopoly in Mexico is a block of stock in the enterprise, made out either in Diaz's name or that of a trusted lieutenant.

"There is a system of religious persecution in Mexico which has gained him the cordial hatred of every good churchman and priest.

"The revolution which now is in progress is of greater moment than it is given credit for. Am I the leader of the movement? Well, all I can say is that I am in perfect sympathy with those who do head the movement, whoever they may be. We are strong in followers and money, and we will accomplish our ends. No, I cannot say what is my following, how many men I have, or where they are stationed. This much I can say. The Mexican government knows our following is strong, and the braggadocio utterances of the Mexican generals is only intended to keep up the flagging courage of the half-starved soldiery, and when the crisis comes, as it will before long, Diaz will find all his forces are short by a few companies, while we, in turn, will be richer by as many men."

"Capt. Garza, it is claimed that the clerical party is behind your movement, and that your funds come from the church. Is that true?"

"For the present this is a Catarino Garza movement, or revolution, as you please," said the pleasant looking bandit with a smile. "For the present I can say no more, but when the time does come that I can give you fuller details I will be glad to do so. For the present this is only a popular movement, with no further ends than I have given you, at least not for publication.

"This, however, I would like you to say: I have lived too long in the United States, and have too wholesome a fear and regard for the government at Washington, to do anything which might bear the semblance of treason. The movement which is characterized as the Garza revolution is aimed at the head of Diaz, and unless my knowledge of Mexico and Mexicans is faulty it will eventually result in the downfall of the tyrant who is the head of government now.

"My plan of campaign? It is success. Just the means I propose to accomplish the desired result I cannot describe to you. In the first place, I don't know myself, and if I did I would be a poor general to make them known entire. We mean to succeed. That much you may say for me. Adios."

And Capt. Garza mounted his mustang and disappeared behind the clump of bushes.

A Silver Item.

Berlin, Jan. 4.—Arrangements have been completed with Austria-Hungary to demonetize the silver coin known as vereins thalers, a vestige of the old German-Austrian monetary union. The total amount in circulation in Germany is estimated at $18,750,000. The operation will extend over three years, and the bars will go to the silver market in London. The agreement is certain to revive the silver discussion in the reichstag when the silver bill is presented by the government.

Fifteen Men Drowned.

London, Jan. 5.—A steamer believed to be the Red Star Liner Noordland, which sailed from Antwerp yesterday for New York, ran down the British bark Childwell off the Wielingen lightship and cut her to pieces. The bark sank and fifteen of her crew were drowned. The steamer continued on her voyage without offering assistance. The Great Eastern company's steamer Ipswich rescued the captain and the remainder of the crew who were found clinging to the only remaining mast.

Somebody Must Suffer.

Washington, Jan. 4.—While no official information can be secured in regard to the report that the United States supreme court had, by a vote of 6 to 3, decided the contest between Boyd and Thayer for the governorship of Nebraska in favor of the former, it can be positively stated that the court will render such a decision. It can also be stated, in consequence, that there is serious trouble ahead of the person or persons who gave out the information before the decision was formally rendered by the court. Chief Justice Fuller yesterday instituted an investigation which is still in progress, with a view to ferreting out the guilty parties. The chief justice intends to make the culprit suffer for his misdemeanor.

The English Law of Divorce.

London, Special—The Osborne case has occasioned extensive discussion on the law of divorce. Prof. Francis Newman argues that Capt. Osborne ought to be legally empowered to divorce his wife. Mr. Robert pleads that only one hand can help an errant wife—her husband's. Seeing that Capt. Osborne has not turned upon her, nobody has a right to speak for him.

Crushed His Skull.

St. Louis Special—John Studler celebrated the first day of 1892 by a murder. He and Anthony Gleitz had a quarrel this morning in South St. Louis and Studler picked up a stone and beat Gleitz on the head with it, fracturing his skull. Gleitz died a few minutes later. The murderer is in jail.

A FEARFUL DEED.

Seven Thugs Ravish a Young Wife in Her Husband's Presence.

New York, Jan. 4.—Seldom within the annals of a New York police court has there been such a revolting case heard as in the Yorkville court to-day.

William Varrell, twenty-two years old, who lives with his newly weded wife, Mary, aged nineteen at 608 West Fifty-Fourth street, told the court that they were awakened at 2 o'clock this morning, by some one breaking into their apartments. On the instant seven young toughs rushed into their bedroom, pulled him out of bed and threatened him with death if he made any outcry. He broke away from them, however, and ran out into the street in his night-dress shouting for help.

Hearing screams from his wife's room he rushed back to her assistance, only to find her struggling in the embrace of one of the thugs. Before he could reach her side, however, he was seized by several of the others, who held him and compelled him to witness a sight that can not be described in words, as one after another of the young scoundrels ravished his wife. The poor woman fought desperately, but her assailants beat her into insensibility and accomplished their purpose. Policeman Grinnon now entered the house, when the ruffians fled, all escaping but one, whom the officer succeeded in capturing. He proved to be Richard Kane, twenty years old. The woman was very badly injured, besides suffering greatly from nervous prostration. She has been in an exceedingly critical condition all day.

Justice Ryan committed Kane for examination on Wednesday. His six accomplices are not yet known, but the police believe that all of them will be under arrest before the day set for Kane's examination.

KNIVES AND FIREARMS.

Three Lives Taken in a Street Fight in Florida.

Penny, Fla., Jan. 4.—A bloody street fight occurred at this place Thursday in which Robert Parker and John J. Garnto, ex-county judge of Taylor county, were killed, and Thomas Walters so badly injured that he will probably die.

Walters and William Parker got into a dispute in front of J. M. Garnto's store and Parker finally cut Walters across the abdomen with a long-bladed pocket knife. Walters then fired his pistol at Parker without effect. Parker got his shot gun from his wagon near by, and the firing became general, by the intervention of Robert Parker, a brother of William, Marion Murphy (both armed), and of Judge Garnto, who tried to stop the fight.

Walters put three pistol shots into the body of Bob Parker in rapid succession and Bob fell dead in the road. William Parker then let go both barrels of his gun at Walters, but both charges hit Judge Caruto full in the stomach and he died to-day. Walters snapped his pistol at Parker twice while the latter was shooting at him with his gun. Then he ran into a store near by, grabbed some catridges from a shelf and was on his way back to the scene of trouble. When he became too weak from the loss of blood to travel he was picked up by friends. The coroner's jury in the matter of the killing of Bob Parker found that Walters killed him in self defense.

JAY GOULD THREATENED.

He Will Be Blown Up if He Doesn't Hand Over Ten Thousand.

New York, Jan. 4.—For some time past threatening letters have been received by the Gould family which were apparently written by a well educated German. The writer was evidently well acquainted with Jay Gould's career. The letters dated as far back as 1870 and related incidents connected with the partnership between Mr. Gould and Jim Fisk and their government of the Erie railroad. They went on to speak of an accident on that road in which the writer's father and mother were injured, for which he demanded $10,000. The writer stated that if the $10,000 was not given up forthwith, Mr. Gould was liable to be blown up in his office, or while walking in the street or riding in his carriage. The request was made that the money be forwarded to a certain address in Canada, a hotel being mentioned there.

Inspector Byrnes was notified and he dispatched two detectives to Canada. They visited the hotel in question and learned from its proprietor that he had instructions to forward such letters to a certain town in New Jersey. Instructions had been subsequently left not to open the letters, but to have them readdressed to some place in this city, but just where the police refuse to make known. The authorities are still at work on the case.

A Strange Case.

Rockland, Me., Jan. 4.—A sensational shooting affray occurred here Thursday night. Ex-Senator Stephen J. Gushee, a politician widely known in the state, was shot and badly wounded by a young man named Weed. Weed says he started on a hunting expedition on Thursday, and announcing that he would be gone several days. On that night, however, a severe storm arose, and Weed decided to returned home, which he reached about midnight. Upon entering his room he was stunned to find therein a man nearly nude. The interloper made a dash for the window, and Weed says he then raised his gun and fired at the retreating figure. By the flash of the gun he recognized the man as ex-Senator Gushee. The affair has caused a sensation.

A Lithographic Combine.

Philadelphia, Jan. 4.—Yesterday representatives from most of the leading lithograph firms in the country met in New York and formed a corporation with a capital stock of $12,000,000. The principal business of the firms represented is the engraving of cigar box labels and theatrical posters, and it is for the purpose of controlling the business in these two branches that the corporation is to be formed. It was decided that each firm was to take a proportionate allotment of stock in the company and that its name would be the American Lithograph company. Among the firms represented at the meeting were George S. Harris & Sons of this city and the following New York firms: Shoemaker & Ellinger, the Knapp company, F. Heppenheimer Sons, George H. Buck and the Giles company.

Filched From a Priest.

Eau Claire, Wis., Special Telegram, Jan. 4.—The residence of Father Boehrn, pastor of the German Catholic church, was entered by three thieves to-day while he was at church. They broke open a safe, secured $30 and got away. It is thought that they took a west-bound train on the Omaha.

Looks Crankish.

Berlin, Jan. 4.—The buzz of comment which follows manifestations of eccentricity by the kaiser is now heard as the outcome of an incident which occurred on Christmas day. After the religious service at Potsdam the emperor summoned the commanders of the various regiments of the garrison to meet him in the church, and addressing them collectively said: "Pray to all officers who cannot dance not to attend the court dances." The selection of such a place and time for the making of such a request has caused astonishment, aside from the rather peculiar nature of the order itself.

Will He Get the Reward?

Denver, Special—A man named Demarcript surrendered himself to the police today saying that two years ago he killed a Mr. and Mrs. Greenwood at Colfax, Cal., for the purpose of robbery. He claims that there is $500 reward for his arrest, and requested that the police give his son William half that amount, as he was in great want. After his surrender the man went violently insane. A telegram to the chief of police at San Francisco elicited the reply that the man's story is correct and that he is wanted in California.

DEATH TO OPTIONS.

Senator Washburn Again Expresses Himself Anent Grain Gambling.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—Senator W. D. Washburn, of Minnesota, author and introducer of the option bill presented to the United States Senate last month, was in the city to-day en route to Washington. To an Inter Ocean reporter he said:

"I have just finished reading an interview in your paper with Mr. Councilman, in which that gentleman severely criticised the bill introduced by me to prevent grain gambling. I am not surprised at his hostility nor disturbed by the sarcastic references to my philanthrophy in the premises, for any effort directed toward the curtailment of the great evil known as 'short selling' is expected to call down the wrath of all dealers in illegitimate or fiat grain.

"What I want to do is to stop the pernicious, demoralizing practice known as 'short selling,' where a man can go on the board without a kernel of grain real or prospective, and sell a million bushels, depressing the market the same as if so much wheat had been dumped on it. Mr. Pillsbury, the largest buyer of real wheat in the world, tells me that there are men in Minneapolis, with their offices in their hats, who sell more wheat in a year than he buys."

Referring to the meeting of the Minneapolis chamber of commerce called Saturday for a conference with him, the Senator said: "Of course the board of trade folks up there occupy the same position as the Chicago board, save that they believe the bill means the utter revolution of all trading in futures, but they will find their mistake when the bill becomes a law and goes into effect. A very interesting table I came across the other day selects ten days from April to October in 1890, and shows that in those days while the actual sales of wheat amounted to 337,800 bushels, optional or fictitious wheat sales were 125,720,000 bushels. On April 14th, 1890, the New York speculators sold 44,000,000 bushels of spring wheat, probably more than twice as much as reached that city during the year, and actual sales that day were but 6.000 bushels. Were it not for the board of trade I think every bushel of wheat would be worth 20 cents more to-day. In fact, all Europe is astonished that it is getting wheat to-day for such ridiculous low prices considering all the circumstances. They expected to pay more, and it is an outrage upon the producer that he should be sacrificed to a relentless greed and the disreputable deals of 'short sellers' on our boards of trade. In my opinion, some kind of relief will be granted the producer in a restrictive law that will preserve all the good features in future dealing and eliminate the bad."

Popular Talks On Law.

BY WM. C. SPRAGUE, ESQ.

Copyright Law.

It was formerly held that, by Common Law, an author had a perpetual right in the products of his intellect. This is now denied, and the whole matter has become the subject of Statute, so that now, unless the provision of the law designed to secure to the author the exclusive ownership of the results of his labor are strictly complied with, the product is public property. We shall now see what may be copyrighted, and the method thereof.

First, books, meaning not only such in their ordinary sense, but such as are printed only on one sheet, as the words of a song, or the music accompanying it. It may be a diagram with directions on one sheet of paper, private letters, abstracts of title, an illustrated newspaper. If the book is in manuscript, it may yet be copyrighted. Foreign books may not be, translations otherwise. A new edition of a copyrighted book is protected by the original copyright, but not to the extent of protecting new matter in it.

Compilations may be copyrighted. Under this head also fall dictionaries, Books of chronology, gazetteers, guide books, directories, calendars, catalogues, tables, collections of statistics, recipes, designs.

Abridgements and law reports, where there is original matter, may be copyrighted.

Advertisements, as such, may not be copyrighted. Maps, charts, newspapers, magazines, musical or dramatic compositions, engraving, cut, print or photograph may be copyrighted.

The law gives the right to the author, inventor, designer or proprietor, or the assigns thereof, who are citizens or residents in this country, to obtain a copyright. How to obtain a copyright:

1. Deliver to the Librarian of Congress, by mail or otherwise, a printed copy of the title of the book or other article, or a description of the painting, drawing, or whatever it may be.

2. Within ten days from the publication, deliver to the Librarian of Congress two copies of such book or article, or in case of a painting or other work of such sort, a photograph of the same.

3. Give notice of the copyright by inserting in several copies of every edition published, on the title page or the page following, or if a picture or any other such production, on the face or front thereof, the following words: "Entered according to Act of Congress, in the year— by A. B., in the office of the Librarian of Congress, at Washington," or the words, for instance, "Copyright, 4891, by George Brown."

A copyright is assigned by an instrument in writing, which instrument must be recorded in the office of the librarian within sixty days after its execution, otherwise it is void as against a subsequent purchaser or mortgagee for a valuable consideration without notice

HOLIDAY GOODS

AT

GERVAIS' "THE HUSTLERS."

JUST RECEIVED,

A VERY HANDSOME LINE OF

NOVELTIES

Cloaks and Jackets

MUST BE CLOSED OUT BY

NEW YEARS

Regardless of Cost.

GERVAIS,' "The Hustlers."

—FOR—

Christmas

—AND—

New Years

PRESENTS!

OUR HOLIDAY STOCK

—IS—

ON DISPLAY

THE FAIR

DEPARTMENT STORE.

Cor. Main and Robert Sts., Crookston.

The Review of Reviews for January contains the portraits of some fifty or sixty of the notabilities of the day. General Johnston and Governor Nicholls of Louisiana, Secretary Foster, Assistant Secretary Wharton, the late Dom Pedro, Fonseca of Brazil, Mr. Jackson the new Irish Secretary, Mr. Redmond the Parnellite leader, Mr. Flavin of Cork, Archbishop Walsh of Dublin, Prince George of Wales, five governors of Australian states, the late Lord Lytton, the late Rev. Oscar McCulloch, the late William B. Florence, Governor Alvin P. Hovey, Senator Plumb, Hon. S. B. Elkins, Mr. Gillam of Judge, the Czar and Czarina of Russia, with various other Russian portraits; Mr. Elbridge Gerry of New York, Mr. Benjamin Waugh of London, Mark Twain, Frederic Harrison, Thomas Nelson Page, the late Mr. Velhagen the distinguished German editor, and Lord Roseberry, the rising liberal statesman of England, are among the people whose faces are presented in this number.

The Grand Forks Fence Co. have purchased the right for Polk County for the Jones National Fence and will be ready in the spring to supply all who need good fences, cheap. This fence is made of plain wire but can be used in combination with barbed wire, or the crimp and lock system can be applied to barbed wire fences already built with advantage to stock as it renders a barbed wire fence absolutely harmless to stock. It is the only crimp and lock system in use; the only line tension and diagonal brace in existence. This system inquires less posts as by the crimp and lock system the posts may be set 50 feet apart if you desire. The company will be prepared to furnish a fence for the farm, the railroad, the cemetery, the garden or the lawn, at prices ranging from 20 cents a rod to $1.00 per foot. Will build you a fence or sell you a farm right. Look out for their announcement later.

NOTICE.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Scandia-American Bank, of Crookston, Minn., for the election of directors and the transaction of such other business as may properly come before it, will be held at its Banking house Tuesday, January 12th, 1892, at 10 o'clock a. m.

L. ELLINGTON, Cashier.

The May Louise Aigen Co. presented "Aurora Floyd" at the Grand Opera House on Saturday evening. This is one of the best plays of their excellent repertoire and was exceedingly well played, Miss Aigen appearing in the title roll and it is needless to say that the character was excellently well sustained. "Mrs. Powell" was excellently taken by Dot Bartlett who appeared to better advantage in this roll than ever if we except her character in the Clemenceau case. Bert S. Frank was in it as Talbot Balstrode, the friend of Squire Mellish—and Bert makes an excellent friend either on or off the stage F. C. Huebner sustained the character of the Squire to a dot, leaving nothing to be desired, while Owen Bartlett, as "Steve Hargrave, the Softy," was simply immense. Bartlett is a thoroughbred. The Aigen company is composed of ladies and gentlemen, all artists, and should they ever return to our city they will, we think, draw good houses.

For Sale Cheap.

Buffalo robes and cutters. Mrs. Mary Schreader, Crookston, Minn. [35-tf]

NEW BARBER SHOP.

On Main St. C. E. MISNER, Prop.

Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.

RAZORS HONED. If you desire your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 30 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it.

Yours Respectfully,

C. E. MISNER.

MINNESOTA HOUSE,

ONE-HALF BLOCK FROM DEPOT.

WM. HEIDRICH, - - Proprietor.

Having rented this Popular House and thoroughly re-fitted and re-furnished it throughout, I am now prepared to meet the wants of all who want good and cheap accommodations.

☞ Farmers custom specially invited.

Terms $1.00 per Day.

THE OLD RELIABLE

CROOKSTON

LOAN AGENCY

STILL ON DECK.

MONNY

On Real Estaet

MONEY

On Approved Chattels,

Always on hand at the Lowest Rates. Consult your best interests by giving me a call when you Want Money.

A. D. STEPHENS,

Second Street, Crookston, Minn.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

BETWEEN

Winnipeg, Gilby, Drayton, Grafton Grand Forks, Crookston,

AND ALL POINTS

EAST AND WEST.

There is nothing better than the service on

THE DINING CAR LINE

Through Pullman Sleeping Cars Daily between points

IN THE RED RIVER VALLEY

—AND—

ST. PAUL AND MINNEAPOLIS.

PACIFIC COAST TRAINS

PASSING THROUGH

Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana Idaho, Oregon and Washington

CARRY COMPLETE EQUIPMENT OF

Pullman Palace Sleeping Cars,
First and Second Class Coaches,
Pullman Tourist and
Free Colonist Sleepers

AND ELEGANT DINING CARS

THROUGH TICKETS are sold at all coupon offices of the Northern Pacific Railroad to points North, East, South and west, in the United States and Canada.

TIME SCHEDULE.

East bound.

Passenger 7:10 p. m. | Freight 9:20 p. m.

West bound.

Passenger 8:20 a. m. | Freight 8:00 p. m.

For rates, maps, time tables or special information, apply to C. A. Sharkey, Agent Northern Pacific R. R. at Crookston, Minn., or

CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent,
St. Paul, Minn.

CROOKSTON

STEAM LAUNDRY

O. D. ROOD, Prop.,

SECOND STREET, NEAR ASH,

(Opposite Commercial Hotel.)

I have just added New Machinery and Facilities for doing

Washing and Ironing

Upon the Shortest Notice in the Best Manner and upon the Most Reasonable Terms.

All Those Wanting

FAMILY WASHING

Done will find it to their interest to call at the Laundry. Goods called for and delivered.

OUR GREAT PREMIUMS

SIX GREAT BOOKS

FOR RURAL HOMES!

THE STANDARD AMERICAN POULTRY BOOK,
THE AMERICAN LIVE STOCK MANUAL,
EVERYBODY'S LAW BOOK,
CONDENSED CYCLOPAEDIA OF USEFUL KNOWLEDGE,
MODERN COOK BOOK AND MEDICAL GUIDE, ARTISTIC EMBROIDERY.

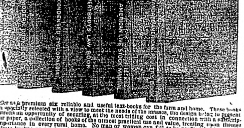
BOOKS OF THE UTMOST PRACTICAL USE AND VALUE TO EVERY FARMER AND HOUSEKEEPER!

They Contain 768 Pages and Hundreds of Illustrations, and are Six of the Greatest Books Ever Published for the Farm and Home!



THE MODERN COOK BOOK
THE CONDENSED CYCLOPAEDIA
EVERYBODY'S LAW BOOK
THE AMERICAN LIVE STOCK MANUAL
THE STANDARD AMERICAN POULTRY BOOK

We offer as a premium six reliable and useful text-books for the farm and home. These books have been specially selected with a view to meet the needs of the masses, the design being to present to our patrons an opportunity of securing, at the most trifling cost in connection with a subscription to our paper, a collection of books of the utmost practical use and value, treating upon themes of vital importance in every rural home. No man or woman can fail to be profited by the possession of these books; as works of reference they are invaluable, and really no home should be without them. Brief descriptions are appended.

THE STANDARD AMERICAN POULTRY BOOK. An entirely new book, involving all the latest ideas in poultry keeping. It is a work intended to teach the masses of farmers the secret of success in the poultry yard, and its teachings, if followed, will add enormously to the earnings of every flock of fowls. The following are only a small portion of the topics treated in this work: How to Start and Stock a Hennery; Poultry Houses, Cheap and Expensive Yards, Coops and Enclosures; Poultry Keeping for Profit, Poultry on a Large Scale; Poultry Raising as a Business; Feeding and Laying; Winter Egg-Production; The Hatching Period, Preparing Nests for Sitters; Spring Breeding of Poultry; Hens for Farmers; How to Produce Layers; Good and Cheap Incubators; How to Raise Artificially Hatched Chickens; Caponizing, Packing Eggs for Market; Packing Poultry for Market; Feeding Hoppers; Drinking Fountains and Grain Chests; Eggs and Pullets; Preserving Eggs; Diseases of Poultry—Chicken Cholera, Pip, Gapes, Roup, Scaly Legs, Lice, Egg Eating, Crop Bound Fowls, etc.; the Plymouth Rocks; the Wyandottes; the Brown Leghorns; the Golden Spangled Crested Polish; the White Crested Black Polish, the Langshans; the Silver Spangled Hamburghs; the Houdans, the Buff Cochins; the White Cochins; the White Leghorns; the Golden Pencilled Hamburghs; White Shanghais; the La Fleche; the Gray Dorkings; the Brahmas; Game Fowls, Bantams, etc.; How to Fatten, Management of Chickens; Killing Poultry; Precautions against Vermin; Feeding; Management of Ducks; Raising Geese, Fattening Geese; etc., etc. It is a large book of [illegible] pages, with handsome cover. It is profusely illustrated and handsomely gotten up in every respect. No man or woman who owns a [illegible] of fowls can afford to be without it.

EVERYBODY'S LAW BOOK. A complete compendium of business and domestic Law, by a prominent member of the [illegible] Bar, containing concise explanations of the general laws, and the laws of the several States, regarding Administrators and Executors, Affidavits, Agency, Agreements, Apprentices, Arbitration and Award, Assault and Battery, Assignments, Attachments, Banks, Bills of Exchange, Checks and Promissory Notes, Bills of Sale, Chattel Mortgages, Citizens and Aliens, Common Carriers, Contracts, Corporations, Deeds and Mortgages of Real Estate, Descent and Distribution, Dower, Easements, Exemptions, Farmers' Law, Fences, Fixtures, Garnishment, Gifts, Guaranty, Guardian and Ward, Heirs and next of Kin, Homestead Exemption, Husband and Wife, Infants, Interest and Usury, Landlord and Tenant, Libel and Slander, Liens, Limitation of Actions, Marriage and Divorce, Rights of Married Women, Master and Servant, Parent and Child, Partnership, Payment and Tender, Personal Property, Power of Attorney, Principal and Agent, Privileged Communications, Railroads, Railroad Real Estate, Receipts and Releases, Replevin, Right of Way, Seduction, Trustee Process, Warranty, Water Rights, Wills and Codicils. Together with complete forms of Acknowledgments, Agreements, Articles of Copartnership, Assignments, Award of Arbitrators, Bills of Sales, Bonds, Chattel Mortgages, Contracts, Deeds, Executors' and Administrators' Accounts, Interest Table, Liens, Mortgages of Real Estate, Powers of Attorney, Releases, Satisfaction Pieces, Wills and Codicils, etc., etc., specially adapted for the daily use of those who are not lawyers, with directions for their preparation. A large volume of [illegible] pages, 12mo, with handsome cover.

THE MODERN COOK BOOK AND MEDICAL GUIDE. These are practically two books in one—a perfect cook-book and a perfect medical book—and there is so much in it, and so much care and pains have been taken in its compilation, that we feel perfectly safe in asserting that the Cooking department is fully the equal, in quantity and quality of contents, of any low-priced cook-book ever published, and the same as to the Medical department herein as compared with any low-priced medical book in the market. The cooking recipes number [illegible], and include Breakfast Dishes, Soups, Meats and Poultry, Fish, Vegetables, Salads and Relishes, Bread and Rolls, Jellies and Preserves, [illegible] and Pies, Fancy Dishes, Cakes, Confectionery, Ice Cream and Summer Drinks. The compilation of this department was superintended by a practical housekeeper, every recipe will be found reliable, and it has been pronounced one of the best, most complete, and practical cook-books ever published. The Medical Department will be found fully the equal of any doctor book published at one dollar or less. It tells you how to cure by simple means, available in every home, every disease and ailment that is curable. It will save you many dollars annually in doctors' bills and patent medicines. The Modern Cook Book and Medical Guide is a large book of [illegible] pages, 12mo, with handsome cover.

THE AMERICAN LIVE STOCK MANUAL. A complete text book containing the fullest information regarding the care and management, feeding and rearing, of live stock, likewise the cure of all diseases peculiar to these animals, and of all unruly and vicious habits, for the construction of necessary buildings and conveniences, etc., etc. The following are only a portion of the topics treated in this book: How to Judge a Horse; Feeding Horses; Halting a Colt; To Bit a Colt; To Break Horses from Pulling at the Halter; Warts on Horses; Stumbling Horses; Care for Balky Horses; Kicking Horses; Training Vicious Horses; Galls and Sores on Horses; Reining Horses; Colic, Bots, Founder; Heaves; Epizootic; Shying; Scratches; Ringbone, Spavin; Cribbing; Windgalls; Brittle Feet; Worms; Over-Reaching; Sprains and Bruises; Hide Bound Horses; Avoiding Indigestion; How to Save Oats in Feeding; Watering Horses; Care of Horse's Legs; How to Tell a Horse's Age; Neck Yokes; Good Grooming; Slewing; Stables and Stabling; Breeding Horses upon Farms; Horse Education; Ringing a Bull; Relieving Choked Cattle; Bone Disease in Milch Cows; Marks of a Good Cow; Cattle Racks and Feed Boxes; Feeding Cattle; To Prevent Hooking Fences; Black Tongue; Lice; To Prevent [illegible]; Contagious Cattle Diseases; Fattening Stock; Milking; [illegible] Feed for Live Stock; The Soiling System; Raising Calves; To Break a Heifer or a Vicious Cow to Milk; Wintering Live Stock; How to Take Off a Hide; Assistance at Birth; Hollow Horn; Obstructed Teats; Black Leg; Caked Udder; Jumping Cattle; Garget; Care and Management of Hogs; Hog Pens; Troughs; Pig Raising; Overfeeding; Sanitary Management of Swine; Hog Cholera; Paralysis; Scurvy Pigs; Preparing Food for Swine; Butchering; Fattening Hogs; Driving Hogs; Raising Sheep; Washing Sheep; Sheep Racks; Herding Sheep; To Tell the Age of Sheep; Sheep Ticks; For Lambs; How to Make Sheep Pay; Treatment of Lambs; Increasing the Growth of Wool. It is a large book of [illegible] pages, 12mo, with handsome cover, and is profusely illustrated.

THE CONDENSED CYCLOPAEDIA OF USEFUL KNOWLEDGE. This book contains, probably, more useful and valuable information than was ever before published in any low priced work. Among its contents are: Population of American Cities, Area and Population of the Continents, of the States and Territories, of the Principal Countries, of the World, Length of the Principal Rivers, Presidential Vote for Sixty Years, Presidential Statistics, Area and Depth of Inland Seas, Area of Oceans, Height of Mountains, Locomotion of Animals and Velocity of Bodies, Height of Monuments, Towers, etc., Distances from New York to Important Cities, Chronological History of Discovery and Progress, Popular Sobriquets of States, Cities, etc., Incorrect Language, Rules for Spelling, Use of Capitals, Pronunciation, Wall Street Phrases, Commerce of the World, Curious Facts in Natural History, Duration of Life of Various Animals, Origin of the Names of States, also of Countries, of Popular Fables, of Familiar Quotations, and of [illegible], Fate of the Apostles, Statistics of the Globe, Leading Governments of the World, How Money Accumulates, How to Calculate Interest, Statistics of Longevity, Dying Words of Famous Persons, etc., etc. This book is a great storehouse of instruction, and a copy of it should be in every home. It is a large book of [illegible] pages, 12mo, with handsome cover.

ARTISTIC EMBROIDERY. By Ella Rodman Church. This book is a complete text-book—a thorough instructor in every branch of Artistic Embroidery. With it as a guide all may become proficient in this beautiful and fascinating art. The following is a partial summary of the contents: Worsted Embroidery—Crewel Work; Simple Ideas of Color; Silk Embroidery—the [illegible] Group of Flowers; French or Flat Embroidery; the French Knot, Stalk Stitch; Point Russe; Herring Bone or Feather Stitch; [illegible] Stitch; Ladder Stitch; Chinese Embroidery; [illegible] Transferring Designs; [illegible]; Screen of Peacock Feathers; Banner Screen; Embroidered Table Top; Window-Curtain Border; Embroidered [illegible]; Small Curtains or Hangings; an Embroidered Frame; a [illegible] Cover; a Chair Cover; Fire Screens; [illegible] Work; Silk Embroidery [illegible] and Other Articles; [illegible] Lambrequin in Appliqué; [illegible] Crape Pictures in Appliqué; [illegible] Chenille; Silk Embroidery on [illegible] Work; [illegible] Point Tire; Imitation of Antique Lace, [illegible] large 12mo. book of [illegible] pages, [illegible].

Read Our Great Offer! We will send the SIX GREAT BOOKS FOR RURAL HOMES as above described, by mail, postage prepaid by ourself, also THE POLK COUNTY JOURNAL for one year, upon receipt of only $1.75, which is an advance of but 25 cents over our regular price when paid in advance, so that you practically get all these valuable books for only 25 cents. Those whose subscriptions have not yet expired who renew now will receive these six great farm books at once, and their subscriptions will be extended one year from date of expiration. Or, for $1.75 we will send THE JOURNAL one year and a volume of

THE LEATHER STOCKING TALES,

by James Fennimore Cooper, containing "THE DEERSLAYERS," "THE PATHFINDER," "THE PRAIRIE," "THE LAST OF THE MOHICANS" and "THE PIONEERS." Or for TWO DOLLARS we will send THE JOURNAL and

TEN OF THE GREATEST NOVELS EVER WRITTEN, by ten of the greatest authors who ever lived, viz: "EAST LYNNE," by Mrs Henry Wood; "JANE EYRE," by Charlotte Bronte; "JOHN HALIFAX GENTLEMAN," by Miss Mulock; "ADAM BEDE," by George Elliott; "THE WOMAN IN WHITE," by Wilkie Collins; "LADY AUDLEY'S SECRET," by Miss M. E. Braddon; "VANITY FAIR," by W. M. Thackery; "THE LAST DAYS OF POMPEII," by Sir E. Bulwer Lytton; "THE THREE GUARDSMEN," by Alexander Dumas; and "PUT YOURSELF IN HIS PLACE," by Charles Reade.

These great works need no introduction, and you can secure the whole ten for 50 cents by subscribing for THE JOURNAL, or if you are a subscriber in arrears paying one year in advance of the date on which your subscription is received at this office. Either of the other sets for only 25 cents in addition to the price for THE JOURNAL in advance.

Parties who avail themselves of this offer can also get our reduced rates on other papers and magazines except such as we have heretofore offiered as a premium. Address all orders to

H. E. COOKE, JOURNAL Office,
Crookston, Polk County, Minn.

M. LeGUEE.

Veterinary Surgeon.

Residence and office on Jerome's Addition.

CROOKSTON, - - - MINN

FRANK IVES, Notary Public and U. S. Com'r

D. E. HATLESTAD, District Court Commissioner

IVES & HATLESTAD,

Attorneys and Counselors at Law,

CROOKSTON, - - - - MINN

Will practice in all the courts and before the U. S. Land Office at Crookston and Washington. Pensions and Soldiers' Claims and Patents carefully and promptly adjusted.

We loan money on improved farms and city property and have facilities for placing large loans at low rate of interest. We give special attention to collection and all commercial business pertaining to our profession.

JOHN CROMB,

Attorney-at-Law.

SECOND STREET, CROOKSTON

MARTIN O'BRIEN,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

I. O. O. F. BUILDING, Crookston, Minn

A. A. JUST, M. D.,

Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon

OFFICE IN

McKinnon Block, Crookston

STUDY LAW

AT HOME.

Take a Course in the Sprague Correspondence School of Law. Send ten cents (stamps) for particulars to

J. COTNER, Jr., Sec.,
No. 80 Whitney Block,
DETROIT, MICH.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, }
County of Polk. } ss.
City of Crookston, }

Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on January 1st, 1892, and terminating December 31st, 1892, by the following person and at the following place as stated in said application, to-wit: Fred Sargent, in a room on first floor of the Reckett Block on Second street, city of Crookston.

Said application will be heard and determined by said City Council of the city of Crookston, at the City Hall in the said city of Crookston, in Polk County, Minnesota, on Monday, the 4th day of January, 1892, at 7:30 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 6th day of December, A. D. 1891.

(SEAL.) E. C. CARRUTH,
City Clerk.

[35-36]

NEW CIGAR STORE

SIGN OF THE BIG INDIAN.

H. F. BROWN, Proprietor.

Second Street,

CROOKSTON, MINN

Cigars of every known brand, from a cheroot to a 25 center. Cigarettes, Chewing and Smoking Tobaccos of all kinds, Snuff, Pipes to suit the fancy of all, from a corn-cob pipe to a meerchaum.

CALL IN.

MEMBERS OF THE

Home Supply Association,

OF CHICAGO.

ATTENTION

Supply Association Prices on

HARNESS, ETC.,

Knocked sky-high by

G. W. PEAKE,

MAIN ST. HARNESS SHOP, CROOKSTON

QUOTATIONS.

	Associa'n prices.	My price
Single Buggy Harness.
No. 2	$7.50	$6.50
No. 3	8 75	8.00
Double Buggy Harness.
No. 102—no collars, Home Supply price,		$15.00
" " " G. W. Peake's "		14 50
Double Farm Harness.
No. B.x.C.—Home Supply price		$23.85
" " G. W. Peake's "		22 50
No C 38—Home Supply "		25.00
" " G. W. Peake's "		23.50
No. D 40—Home Supply "		28.00
" " G. W. Peake's "		27.00
No. E 40—Home Supply "		28.00
" " G. W. Peake's "		26.00
Buggy Whip—drop top		15c to 25c
" " straight Java		20c to 50c
" " rawhide center		90c to $1.00
Lace Team Collars		$2.00 to $4 50
Overtop Sweats—3 hooks		50c per pair
Webb Halters		25c, 35c and 40c
Ladies' Side Saddle		$5.90
Riding Bridle—plain		90c to $1.00
Men's Riding Saddles		$2.00, $2.50 $3.00, up

G. W. PEAKE,

Main Street between Robert and Second Streets

Valley Roller Mills

MANUFACTURERS OF

FINE FLOUR

From Selected Red River Wheat.

Lee & Herrick's Best,	$2 65
North Star, - - -	2.50
Fife, - -	2.15
Skip Jack. - -	1.15

☞ We exchange flour for wheat on equitable terms.

LFE & HERRICK.

First National Bank

OF CROOKSTON

PAID IN CAPITAL, - $100,000
SURPLUS, - - - $12,700

Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittance.

GEO. Q. ERSKINE, President.
WM. ANGLIM, Vice President.
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashier

DIRECTORS:

Wm. Anglim, K. D. Chase, F. D. Childs
Geo. Q. Erskine, B. B. Northrop, A. A. Miller
E. M. Walsh, John Moore, W. H. Crosby
Chas. E. Sawyer.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Jan. 7th, 1892.]
[Last publication Feb. 18th, 1892.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain indenture of mortgage, executed and delivered by Ida D. Van Tuyl and John E. Van Tuyl, her husband, mortgagors, to the "Union Central Life Insurance Company," mortgagee, bearing date the 22d day of November, 1889, with a power of sale therein contained, which mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 27th day of December, A. D. 1889, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, in book 51 of mortgages, on page 205, and whereas said mortgage was given to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars and interest thereon from its said date at the rate of eight per cent. per annum, due and payable on the first day of January in each year. And whereas default has been made in the payment of the sum of forty-eight dollars interest due and payable January 1st, 1891, and default having also been made in the payment of the sum of forty-eight dollars interest due and payable on January 1st, 1892, and both of said defaults still continue, and no part of said principal has ever been paid. And whereas the conditions of said mortgage are such that if default be made in the payment of the principal sum secured by said mortgage or interest thereon when the same becomes due, then the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage shall thereupon become due and payable at once.

And whereas both by the terms of said mortgage and the election of said mortgagee hereby made the whole amount secured by said mortgage both principal and interest accrued to this date is now due and payable.

And the amount now claimed to be due and which is due at the date of this notice upon said mortgage, including interest in accordance with the terms of said mortgage is the sum of six hundred and ninety-nine and 95-100 dollars. And no action or proceeding at law having been instituted to recover said debt or any part thereof secured by said mortgage.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained which by reason of the defaults aforesaid has become operative, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to-wit: The west half of the southeast quarter and the east half of the southwest quarter, both of the above described tracts being in Section ten (10), Township one hundred and forty nine (149), Range forty-three (43), in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and containing 160 acres of land, together with all the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging or in any wise appertaining. Said sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on Tuesday, the 23d day of February, 1892, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to satisfy and pay the amount which will then be due upon said mortgage according to the terms thereof, and interest and fifty dollars attorney's fees as provided by said mortgage in case of foreclosure and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated January 4th, 1892.

Union Central Life Insurance Company,
Mortgagee.

Chas. P. Barker,
Attorney for said Mortgagee,
618 Guaranty Loan Building,
Minneapolis Minn.

[38-44]

[First publication Jan. 7, 1892.]

STATE OF MINNESOTA; }
County of Polk, } ss.

The State of Minnesota, to George W. Roberts and Georganne Roberts defendants:

You are hereby summoned to be and appear before the undersigned, one of the Justices of the Peace in and for said county, on the 30th day of January, 1892, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at my office in the city of Crookston in said county, to answer to Christen Anderson in a civil action. Should you fail to appear at the time and place aforesaid, judgment will be rendered against you upon the evidence adduced by said Christen Anderson for such sum as he shall show himself entitled to.

Given under my hand this 31st day of December, 1891.

C. O. CHRISTIANSON,
Justice of the Peace.

STEENERSON & STANTON,
Attorneys for Plaintiff.

[39-40]

THE PIONEER

HARNESS SHOP,

M. RAUENBUEHLER, Proprietor.

A full supply of everything kept by the trade.

Cor of Broadway and Third Sts,

CROOKSTON, MINN

Polk County Journal.
OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.
Crookston, January 7, 1892.

FOR PRINCIPAL POINTS IN
MINNESOTA,
NORTH DAKOTA,
SOUTH DAKOTA,
MANITOBA,
MONTANA, AND
PACIFIC COAST.

GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY LINE

TIME CARD.

MONTANA EXPRESS DAILY.

7:40 p. m. de..........St. Paul..........ar. 6:55 a. m.
7:00 a. m. de........CROOKSTON........de. 7:25 p. m.
8:15 a. m. de........Grand Forks........de. 6:20 p. m.
2:30 p. m. ar............Helena............de. 11:00 a. m.

ST. VINCENT BRANCH.
Daily, except Sunday.
Depart 7:30 a. m.......................Arrive 6:45 p. m.

FOSSTON BRANCH.
DAILY, EXCEPT SUNDAY.
Depart 7:30 a. m.......................Arrive 5:00 p. m.

ST. HILAIRE BRANCH.
Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Depart 10:45 a. m.......................Arrive 4:00 p. m.

W. W. FEGAN,
Agent, Crookston.

Northern Pacific Railroad.

TIME SCHEDULE.

	Leave Crookston Daily.	Arrive Crookston Daily.
For Duluth, Ashland, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago, and all points East and South............	10:08 p. m.	8:25 a. m.
For Grand Forks, Grafton, Pembina, Winnipeg and points in N. Dakota and Winnipeg........	8:25 a. m.	10:08 p. m.

IF YOU ARE GOING EAST OR SOUTH ASK YOUR NEAREST AGENT FOR TICKETS VIA THE BURLINGTON AND TAKE NO OTHER LINE.

Goverment Control of Whiskey.

At the meeting of the County Alliance on Tuesday, December 29th, the following circular letter was read and discussed and final action upon it deferred until the next meeting of the alliance. Meanwhile a full and free discussion is desired.

OFFICE OF G. F. WASHBURN,
Eastern Member National Executive Committee.
BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 10, 1881.

DEAR SIR AND BRO:—All true reformers, especially members of the People's party, are looking forward with unusual concern to our next national convention. In order that we may achieve success in 1892 and victoriously become the great National party of the people, we must not only unite the great reform and industrial forces of the country, but we must also have harmony in our ranks and present a solid, unbroken front to our common enemy, plutocracy. If we can unite all reform elements our our success is assured, as the total actual membership would alone be sufficient to elect the next President of the United States. The greatest danger to harmony lies in the fact that a division of sentiment exists in our ranks on the liquor problem. Shall we put a straight prohibition plank in our national platform? The liquor problem is one that cannot be evaded. It must be met, and should receive heroic treatment, especially by a reform party offering remedies for existing evils, for surely this is the greatest social evil that ever cursed suffering humanity. Therefore, believing that it is better to discuss it now, and find a solution for it, than be obliged to hastily decide upon so important a measure when unprepared in convention assembled, I take the liberty to invite your attention to what I propose as a solution of this problem. It is asserted by many, that inasmuch as there exists a National Prohibition Party, and as a large element in our own party are believers in so called "personal liberty," that if a prohibition plank should be placed in our national platform, it would create such a split in our party as to seriously affect its chances for success in our national campaign. There is also a much larger element which believes that the saloon should be abolished, and that as our party is the great party of reform, we should not hesitate to take a pronounced stand on this question and present a measure that will be practical in its operations in accomplishing the above results. This is the difficulty that confronts us: We must satisfy both elements. Permit me to suggest one way out. I shall shall submit to our national convention for adoption a plank which will read something like the following:—

NATIONAL PLANK.

We believe the principal solution of the liquor problem lies in abolishing the element of profit, which is a source of constant temptation, evil and corruption. We therefore demand that the exclusive importation, manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors, shall be conducted by the government or state, at cost, under conditions and restrictions which may be adopted by the various states. In adopting this as a national plank, we give no offence to either the "personal liberty man" or to the prohibitionist. We merely declare for the principle, and leave the restrictions for adoption, to the various states, according to the temperance sentiment in each state.

STATE PLANKS.

In all the states where temperance sentiment is strong enough to permit, I heartily advocate the adoption of restrictions, reading something like the following: 1st. We believe the principal solution of the liquor problem lies in the abolishing of the element of profit, which is a source of constant temptation, evil and corruption. We therefore demand that the exclusive importation, manufacture and sale of all intoxicating liquors shall be conducted by the government or state at cost, for medical, mechanical and scientific purposes only, through county commissioners who shall appoint salaried officials in such towns or cities as shall apply for such agencies. 2d. In states not quite so far advanced in temperance sentiment, the state could sell intoxicating liquors at cost, not to be drank on the premises. 3rd. In states like Ohio, Massachusetts and New York, which advocate high license, the restriction might read that "The exclusive importation, manufacture and sales of intoxicating liquors shall be conducted by the government or state at cost, through county commissioners who shall appoint a salaried official, in such towns and cities as shall apply for such agencies. Thus we not only leave the restrictions to the states but local option to each town and city. The third plank leaves out the limitations mentioned in the first two. Ohio and Massachusetts have both declared for the nationalization of the liquor traffic, by adopting planks in their state platforms, reading substantially like the latter plank. The plan is heartily endorsed by many of our most prominent leaders, including chairman Taubeneck, of the National Executive Committee, Congressman Otis of Kansas, M. W. Wilkins, editor of the Nonconformist, S. H. Snider, national organizer of the Citizens' Alliance, Edward Bellamy and others. The prohibitionists in Massachusetts, in their state convention last September, partially endorsed the plan by placing a plank in their platform reading as follows: "Inasmuch as the desire for gain is the motive power of the drink traffic, we favor such arrangements for the supply of alcoholic liquors for medical, mechanical and scientific uses as shall divest the dealer of any pecuniary interest in the sale."

G. F. WASHBURN,
Eastern Member National Executive Committee, People's Party, U. S.

Reclining Chair Cars.

If you intend going East or South via St. Paul and Chicago, why not take "The Burlington" day train from St. Paul and Minneapolis, and enjoy the beautiful scenery of the Upper Mississippi? This train has one feature not afforded by any other line between the Twin Cities and Chicago; it carries elegant reclining chair cars, which make the journey delightful, easy and comfortable, and no extra charge is made to those occupying seats in them. Insist on the agent giving you tickets via 'The Burlington"—C., B. & N. R. R.—and take no others.

Good Market For Oats

Having had a fine oat crop swept away by hail in few minutes time we are obliged to buy oats to supply our farm teams, and we will be glad to pay the highest market price to any who are owing us several years subscription. We shall need about 1000 bushels and will take them as fast as offered. Bring on your oats and get your receipts.

[33-tf]

THE OLD RELIABLE
CROOKSTON
LOAN AGENCY
STILL ON DECK.

MONNY
On Real Estaee

MONEY
On Approved Chattels,

Always on hand at the Lowest Rates.
Consult your best interests by giving me a call when you Want Money.
A. D. STEPHENS,
Second Street. Crookston. Minn.

THE NEW
NORTHWEST

Home seekers will find the last of the public domain of agricultural and grazing value along the Great Northern Ry. in North Dakota and Montana	FARM LANDS
N W TOWNS	100 or more, along the Great Forthern Railway Line. Business chances. Write F. I. WHITNEY, St. Paul, Minn., for Books, Maps, &c. Write now.
Settlers on free Government lands alond the Great Northern Ry. Line in North Dakota and Montana get low rates and fine markets for products.	LOW RATS
Montana produces the finest Horses and Cattle. Free ranges yet in Mouse, Milk and Sun River Valleys and Sweet Grass Hills.	Horses, Cattle.
Health, Wealth.	In the Northwest. Free Lands. New Towns, New Railways, New Mines, Low Rates. Largest area of good vacant land.
Sweetest Grass Hills. Milk and Sun River Valleys, Montana, reached only by the Great Northern Railway Line. The stock rai2ers' paradise.	Sheep, Hogs.
Herds, Mines.	These have made Montana the richest State per capita in the Union. Plenty of room for more miners and stock raisers. Now is the time.

P. J. RUSSELL,
Attorney-at-Law
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Next to Merchants' Bank.

IF YOU WANT TO
SELL YOUR FARM
OR CITY PROPERTY
List it with E. M. Walsh,
THE REAL ESTATE BROKER.

He has parties who are looking for Investments in Real Estate in Polk County. Call on him, or write, giving a description of property and price.

Office in Odd Fellows Block. } CROOKSTON.

Crookston Business College.

FACULTY:

R. S. KNUDSON,	L. E. GOSSMAN,	C. M. WASSON.
BOOKKEEPING.	Faculty composed of specialtists.	GRAMMAR.
SHORTHAND.	Most advanced methods of instruction.	ARITHMETIC.
TYPEWRITING.	Students may take full course or special braches.	SPELLING.
PENMANSHIP.	Special English department.	READING.
COMMERCIAL LAW.	Day and evening sessions.	HISTORY.
CIVIL GOVERNMENT	Tuition Fees Low.	GEOGRAPHY.
CORRESPONDENCE.	Students may enter at any time.	COMPOSITION.

For catalogues and circulars address
R. S. KNUDSON, Principal,
Crookston, Minn.

A Complete Reference Library
AT ABOUT 2 CTS. A DAY.
REVISED ENCYCLOPÆDIA BRITANNICA
20 Large Octavo Volumes, 7,000 Pages, 8,000,000 Words, and 97 Maps Printed in Colors, Bound in Jute Manilla.
AND THE WEEKLY PIONEER PRESS ONE YEAR
ALL FOR $7.50!

This is the GREATEST OFFER ever made by any Newspaper. The Revised Encyclopædia Britannica is a Dictionary of Art, Science and Literature to which is added descriptions of American Cities with a History of their Origin and Growth, together with Accurate Information of their Situation, Population, Resources, etc., etc.

The Best, Cheapest, Completest and Latest Revised Encyclopædia and the Greatest Newspaper,
THE WEEKLY PIONEER PRESS, FOR ONE YEAR FOR $7.50!
AND WE PAY THE FREIGHT.
Address WEEKLY PIONEER PRESS, St. Paul, Minn.

A POPULAR FAMILY.

JENNIE: "How is it, Kate, that you always seem to 'catch on' to the last new thing? Do what I may, you always seem to get ahead of me."

KATE: "I don't know: I certainly do not make any exertion in that direction."

JENNIE: "Well, during the last few months, for example, you have taken up painting, without any teacher; you came to the rescue when Miss Lafargo deserted her Delsarte class so suddenly, and certainly we are all improving in grace under your instruction; I heard you telling Tommy Eames last evening how his club made mistakes in playing baseball; you seem to be up on all the latest 'fads,' and know just what to do under all circumstances; you entertain beautifully; and in the last month you have improved so in health, owing, you tell me, to your physical culture exercises. Where do you get all of your information from in this little out-of-the way place?—for you never go to the city."

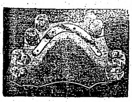
KATE: "Why, Jennie, you will make me vain. I have only one source of information, but it is surprising how it meets all wants. I very seldom hear of anything new but what the next few days bring me full information on the subject. Magic? No! Magazine! And a great treasure it is to us all, for it really furnishes the reading for the whole household; father has given up his magazine that he has taken for years, as he says this one gives more and better information on the subjects of the day; and mother says that it is that that makes her such a famous housekeeper. In fact, we all agree that it is the only really FAMILY magazine published, as we have sent for samples of all of them, and find that one is all for men, another all for women, and another for children only, while this one suits every one of us; so we only need to take one instead of several, and that is where the economy comes in, for it is only $2.00 a year. Perhaps you think I am too lavish in my praise; but I will let you see ours, or, better still, send 10 cents to the publisher, W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th Street, New York, for a sample copy, and I shall always consider that I have done you a great favor; and may be you will be cutting us out, as you say we have the reputation of being the best informed family in town. If that be so, it is Demorest's Family Magazine that does it."

SPCEIAL
OFFER!

$3.00 for BOTH.
Polk County Journal
—AND—
Demorest's Magazine
For Only $3.00.

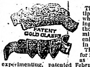
H. STEENERSON
ATTORNEY AT LAW
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA

DENTISTRY



Artificial Teeth and Roofless Plates.
BY NEW PATENT,

Don't Have Teeth Extracted if Two Teeth or Roots Remain in Proper Position in Either Jaw. An Entire Set of Teeth can be Attached to them.



The teeth never tip or drop down while eating, talking or laughing, the gold clasps admitting of tightening or loosening in all cases.

This new method for inserting where as discovered by experimenting, patented February 11th, 1890 and I am now able to make perfect fits for all.

This process is absolutely without pain and at a price within the reach of all.

Call on me before you have your teeth extracted as I make a specialty of Removable Bridge, and Roofless Plates. A perfect fit guaranteed in every case. Gold fillings inserted. Vitalized air and electricity for painless operations.

DR. J. H. THOMAS,
Owns Polk County, Minn., for this patent.

G. G. HENAULT
Practical Dentist
SECOND STREET,
CROOKSTON, - MINN
OFFICE IN DOBSON'S BLOCK,

☞ All work in my line skilfully and promptly performed. Give me a call.
G. G. HENAULT.

O. SLATER.
H. ROTHERT.
R. N. HILL.
J. A. GORGE.

Chase & Slater Law and Claims Co.,
1331 F Street, Northwest,
WASHINGTON, D. C.

Practice in the Supreme Court of the United States, the Court of Claims, all the executive departments and before Congress. Claims for Indian Depredations collected. Pension cases prosecuted. Patents promptly secured. Careful attention given to all classes of land cases.

Liberal arrangements made with Local Attorneys or for transfer of cases.

MILLER & FOOTE,
ATTY'S-AT-LAW,
McKinnon Block, - Crookston, Minn.

ALDERMAN & SYLVESTER,
DEALERS IN
Shelf and Heavy
HARDWARE,
Sash, Doors and Mouldings

Mixed Paints, Linseed and Machine Oils, Flying Dutchman Gang Plows, J. Thompson & Sons Walking Plows. Sole agents for the Domestic Sewing Machine.

A FULL AND COMPLETE STOCK OF
STOVES AND RANGES
Corner Main and Fletcher Sts. - - - Crookston.

McKINNON BROS.,
DEALERS IN
ALL OF THE LEADING
Agricultural Implements
MAIN STREET. McKINNON BLOK.
☞ Before Purchasing, Give Us a Call. ☜

NEW STORE! NEW GOODS!
LOW PRICES.

Call and see me at my elegant new quarters in the new Opera Block, next door south of McKinnon Bros. Machinery Depot. I will make it an object for you to call on me when you want anything in the line of

GENERAL MERCHANDISE.
A. STURE,
Opera Block - - Crookston.

SCANDIA-AMERICAN BANK,
OF CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.
Organized Under the State Laws.

Authorized capital $200,000. Paid up capital, $50,000. Undivided profits $10,500

Buys Bonds, School and Town Orders. Special attention to collections
Interest on time deposits.

OFFICERS.

C. HENDRICKSON, President.
O. H. LUCKEN, 2d Vice-President.
A. G. GALLASCH, Vice-President
L. ELLINGTON, Cashier.
A. P. HANSON, Assistant Cashier.

DIRECTORS.

C. O. Christianson. E. P. Pierce O. H. Lucken. A. D. Stephens. A. G. Gallasch.
H. Steenerson. J. H. Locken, C. Hendrickson.
Max Ericsson. L. K. Aaker. A. E. Johnson, St. Pau

Sylvester & Finseth,
—Wholesale and Retail Dealers in—
Heavy and Shelf Hardware

Stoves, Tinware, Paints and Oils, Doors, Sash, Barbed Wire, Lime, Buckeye Binders and Mowers, Hollingsworth Rakes, Favorite Wagons and Buggies, National Cordage Co's Binding Twine, Rock Island Plows, Buford Gang and Sulky Plows, Fairbanks Scales, Hose for Lawn Sprinkling, Screen Doors, Ice Cream Freezers, Gasoline Stoves, Varnish and Paper, Lawn Mowers, North Star Refrigerators and Garden Sprinklers.

☞ Agents for Standard Rotary Shuttle Sewing Machines. ☜

Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

S. L. COLLINS,
PROPRIETOR OF
MAIN STREET
Livery, Feed and Sale Stables
CORNER MAIN AND FOURTH STS, WEST SIDE,
Crookston, - - - - Minnesota.
Horses bought and sold on commission.
Everything neat and nobby.
Feeding a specialty.
FINE HEARSE
In connection which I will attend to in person

W. A. ROBERTSON
D. D. S.
Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland.
OPERATIVE AND MECHANICAL
DENTIST.
N. B. Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.
OFFICE IN McKINNON BLOCK.

DR. LEDUC'S Periodical Pills—The French remedy, Paris. A reliable female regulator. Acts directly on the generative organs. Cures all ailments peculiar to women $2, 3 for $5. Sold by A. G. Anderson, Crookston, Minn.

DR. M. WATTS.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
Office over Merchants' Bank,
☞ Professional calls by day or night

The Great Family Newspaper.
Only $1 a Year. Two Cents a Week.

The National Tribune,
WASHINGTON, D. C.

The National Tribune aims to be the greatest family paper in the United States. It has the Finest Array of Contributors in the country, and gives More Original Reading Matter, of the best quality, than any other great weekly. Among its present special features are:

NANQUISHING VICKSBURG. By Prof. A. Hobbs, of the Delevan (Wis.) College. Prof. Hoobs was First Sergeant of Co. B. 93th Ill., and fought the entire campaign which he so graphically describes. He commences with the camp at Milliken's Bend, and carries the reader through all the campaign, giving a boy soldier's views of the marching, camping, fighting, scenery, Generals etc. It will be read with great interest by all.

INDIAN STORIES. A series of Exciting Narratives of Life, Loving, Hunting and Fighting on the Western Frontier. By Col. Henry Inman, the popular author.

LARZ BEVERLY. An Interesting Romance. By Mrs Olive Logan Sikes, the noted writer.

ON THE MEXICAN BORDER. By Col. A. G. Brackett, U. S. A.

A FOBLE ATONEMENT. An Interesting Story. By Mme. Sophie Redfield de Meissner, of the Russian Legation.

SOUTH AFRICA. A Series of Letters from the Diamond fields. By H. H. B. Marrison, of Johannisberg, South Africa.

AMONG THE MOONSHINERS OF NORTH CAROLINA. Ay Gen. Marcus J. Wright.

SOUTH AMERICAN SKETCHES. By Capt. Almont Barnes,

Frank G. Carpenter will continue his interesting letters. Prof. Felix S. Oswald will continue his attractive asticles. This is only a partial list. Other attractive features will be announced from time to time.

"WAR HISTORY," by men who actually saw and did what they write about. It makes a specialty of this, and the contributions to its columns by the men who did the marching in every rank and degree carried forward the digging and shooting and phaser to [illegible] the war through all its various genuine [illegible] glorious success, make the only [illegible] history of the war.

[illegible] makes a specialty of G. A. R. News. W. R. C. News, Sons of Veteran News, Washington Gossip. It makes a special feature of matters of interest at the National Capitol, and gives a weekly budget of entertaining gossip about men and things at the seat of Government. Besides this it presents every week a splendid array of Editorials on Current Topics—Stories by the Best Authors Wit, Humor, and Information—Agricultural Notes of the Greatest Value—Household Hints and Suggestions—Synopsis of the News of the Week—Answers to Correspondents—Bright Miscellany, etc., which will interest, amuse and instruct every member of the family.

The National Tribune will constantly be made better and more interesting.

ONLY TWO CENTS A WEEK.

or $1 a year. Send for Sample Copies. Sample Copies sent free. Address

THE NATIONAL TRIBUNE,
Washington, D. C.

Northern Pacific
BETWEEN
Winnipeg, Gilby, Drayton, Grafton
Grand Forks, Crookston,
AND ALL POINTS
EAST AND WEST.

There is nothing better than the service on
THE DINING CAR LINE
Through Pullman Sleeping Cars Daily between points
IN THE RED RIVER VALLEY
—AND—
ST. PAUL AND MINNEAPOLIS.
PACIFIC COAST TRAINS
PASSING THROUGH
Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana
Idaho, Oregon and Washington
CARRY COMPLETE EQUIPMENT OF
Pullman Palace Sleeping Cars,
First and Second Class Coaches,
Pullman Tourist and
Free Colonist Sleepers
AND ELEGANT DINING CARS

THROUGH TICKETS are sold at all coupon offices of the Northern Pacific Railroad to points North, East, South and west, in the United States and Canada.

TIME SCHEDULE.
East bound.
Passenger 7:10 p. m. | Freight 9:20 p. m.
West bound.
Passenger 8:20 a. m. | Freight 8:00 p. m.

For rates, maps, time tables or special information, apply to C. A. Sharkey, Agent Northern Pacific R. R. at Crookston, Minn., or

CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent,
St. Paul, Minn.

CROOKSTON
STEAM LAUNDRY
O. D. ROOD, Prop.,
SECOND STREET, NEAR ASH,
Opposite Commercial Hotel.)

I have just added New Machinery and Facilities for doing

Washing and Ironing

Upon the Shortest Notice in the Best Manner and upon the Most Reasonable Terms.

All Those Wanting
FAMILY WASHING
Done will find it to their interest to call at the Laundry. Goods called for and delivered.

KOPS BRO'S
105 Third Street,
GRAND FORKS, N. DAKOTA

PIANOS,

HENRY F. EVANS

ORGANS

WEBER, HAINES BROS., KURTZMANN, MATHUSHEK, McCAMMON PIANOS, Estey and Chicago Cottage Organs. New Upright Pianos from $250 to $1,000, on terms of $10 to $25 per month. New Organs from $60 to $250 on terms of $5 to $10 per month.

Satisfaction guanteed. Write for catalogue and prices. KOPS BROS.
Grand Forks, N. D.

Historical Society

The Polk County Journal.

E. OOKE, Editor and Proprietor. DEVOTED TO THE WELFARE OF POLK COUNTY. TERMS---$1.50 Per Annum

VOL. XV. CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA, JANUARY 14, 1892. NO. 39.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

olk County Journal.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance, any address inside of Polk County. tout-le of Polk County 15 cents must be added for stage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum any address.

ADVERTISING RATES.

ACE.	1 w.	2 w.	3 w.	1 m.	3 m	6 m.	1 year
nch....	$.50	$1 00	$1 25	$1 50	$3 00	4 50	$ 6 00
ch......	75	1 25	1 75	2 00	4 50	6 00	10 00
ches....	1 50	2 25	3 00	3 50	6 50	9 50	15 00
ches....	1 75	2 75	3 75	4 50	9 50	13 50	20 00
chea....	2 50	3 50	4 50	5 50	10 00	18 00	25 00
ches....	3 00	4 00	5 00	6 00	12 50	20 00	30 00
olumn	3 50	4 50	5 50	6 50	15 00	25 00	35 00
olumn	6 00	7 50	10 00	12 00	25 00	35 00	50 00
lumn..	9 50	12 00	15 00	18 00	35 00	60 00	100 00

NEWSPAPER LAW.

Any person who takes a paper regularly n the post office, whether he has subscribed not, is responsible for the payment.

If any person orders his paper discontinued must pay all arrears, or the publisher may tinue to send it until payment is made and n collect the whole amount, whether the per is taken from the office or not.

In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be ttitued where the paper is published.

The Courts have decided that refusing to e newspapers or periodicals from the post ce, or removing and leaving them uncalled , while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence intention to defraud.

ntered at the Post-Office in Crookston as Second Class matter.

IS TIME FOR ACTION.

w York Press.

Nearly three months have passed nce, to quote the language of President Harrison in his message to Coness, "an event occurred in Valparaiso, serious and tragic in its circumances and results as to excite very stly the indignation of our people, and call for prompt and decided action n the part of this government. A conderable number of the sailors of the nited States steamship Baltimore, en in the harbor of Valparaiso, being pon shore leave and unarmed, were ssaulted by armed men nearly simulaneously in different localities in the ity. One petty officer was killed outight and seven or eight seamen were eriously wounded, one of whom has ince died. So savage and brutal was ne assault that several of our sailors eceived more than two, and one as any as eighteen stab wounds. An nvestigation of the affair was promptly nade by a board of officers of the Baltimore, and their report shows that these ssaults were unprovoked, that our nen were conducting themselves in a eaceable and orderly manner, and hat some of the police of the city took art in the assault and used their veapons with fatal effect, while a few others, with some well disposed citizens, endeavored to protect our men. Thirty-ix of our sailors were arrested, and ome of them, while being taken to prison, were cruelly beaten and maltreated. The fact that they were all discharged, no criminal charge being lodged against any of them, shows very clearly that they were innocent of any breach of the peace."

The evidence that the murderous attack upon men who wore the American uniform was not a sailors' brawl is overwhelming. Everything that has been ascertained in connection with the tragedy goes to confirm what President Harrison has declared, that there is "no other explanation of this bloody work than that it had its origin in hostility to these men as sailors of the United States, wearing the uniform of their government, and not in any individual act of personal animosity." Unfortunately for proof of this animosity we have not to look alone to the slaughter of the Baltimore sailors. Among other instances of Chilian maltreatment of Americans because they are Americans is the more recent case of Patrick Shields, a seaman on the steamer Keweenaw. Shields, who was arrested on some petty charge by the Valparaiso police, says that "he was not treated with special brutality until he stated he was an American, whereupon he was knocked down and beaten." He managed to escape from the police, but was recaptured by mounted officers and was this time beaten into insensibility, in which condition he was finally, without trial, sent on board the police boat. He was manacled and placed in the chain-gang to work on the public streets, jeered at and insulted, alike by police and the populace, because he was an American. An English or other foreign sailor, under the same circumstances, would have undoubtedly have been sent aboard his vessel after at the most a few hours' detention.

Nor have we to depend upon American evidence of Chilian hatred and abuse of Americans. An Englishman named Edmundson, who recently arrived in San Francisco from Valparaiso, and to whom no reason can be imputed for an exaggeration of facts, said in an interview ten days ago that "the treatment which American citizens receive at the hands of the Chilians is outrageous and wholly unwarranted. England would not stand it a week. I know what I am talking about, and what I say to you is authentic. I have been going to and from Chili for years, and for the last year and a half I have resided in Valparaiso. You will be astounded when I tell you that the Chilians will actually spit in the faces of Americans on the streets. Resent it and you will be beaten by a mob. You surely can have no conception of the sneers, jeers and insults heaped upon your citizens there. German, French, English and other foreign nations represented there have commented upon the state of affairs, and I know that, had it been any of these nations, Chili would have paid dearly for it long ago." This is the testimony of a respectable Englishman, not likely to be prejudiced against Chili or in favor of the United states. Agreeing, as his statement does in substance with the evidence of our naval officers and seamen and the carefully worded accounts that reach us from diplomatic sources, no just ground is apparent for questioning its truth. The facts stated are, too, in complete accord with the treatment by the Chilians of Minister Egan, who has comported himself in a manner to justify the confidence of our government, and against whom no charge whatever has been officially presented.

The strongest proof of Chilian hostility is in the course of the Chilian government. In all the correspondence that has been published, whether between Chilian officials themselves or in diplomatic communications emanating from the Chilian government, there is nowhere to be found a word of regret for the tragedy or condemnation of the outrage, except in one place. The police commander at Valparaiso speaks of it in his report as "a disagreeable occurrence." Search the correspondence through and these words are all that can be found showing that the massacre of our sailors, because they serve under a flag the Chilians hated, was an event even in the slightest degree regretted by any Chilian authority. This is all the more significant when it is recollected that the upper class of Chilians are eminently polite, and that with them expressions of comity and courtesy do not mean as much as with us of North America. The Spanish-American is polite, even to an enemy—unless he despises the enemy. Do the Chilians despise the American people? There is, unhappily, plenty of cause to believe that they do. They have been taught by foreigners, jealous of the American Republic and fearful of American rivalry in the field of Chilian trade, that the American can be safely maltreated and defied. "Prominent officials of Chili," said Mr. Edmundson, from whom we have quoted before, "have no hesitancy in saying they are perfectly willing the United States should declare war against them. They are free in expressing the sentiment that Americans cannot fight; that they don't know anything but buying and selling, and that your navy is a very shoddy affair and was built by swindling contractors. They say they can destroy or blockade every port of the United States on the Pacific coast and cut off all army and navy supplies, so that you would be glad to give up the fight." This means, in brief, that the Chilians, ignorant of American history, and of the strength and resources of the American people, believe that they can massacre our sailors, defy us with impunity, and whip us if we dare a forcible remonstrance. That is, they both hate and despise us.

For nearly three months this government has waited in vain for a suggestion of apology or an intimation of redress. The Chilian Minister has given a dinner to Secretary Blaine, but not even a grudging word of friendliness has come officially from Chili to make the dinner palatable. Champagne at Washington cannot wash away the blood of our sailors slaughtered at Valparaiso. If we are to stand before the world as a nation ready and able to maintain the national honor abroad and to punish outrage aimed at the American name, then the time has come for action. Delay means dishonor; hesitation is interpreted as cowardice. To say that because Chili is weak by comparison we should patiently endure Chilian arrogance and require no amends for Chilian barbarity is to say that lesser states shall have a license that would not be allowed for a moment to nations nearer our own in greatness and in prowess. For weakness, self-confessed and penitent in wrong, there may well be exceptional consideration. But weakness is rather a provocation than a plea when accompanied by pride and defiance. It is not to be omitted that the Chilians make no plea of weakness for themselves; they ask for no consideration; they offer no apology. They themselves waive, by their attitude, any claim for leniency on the ground of inferiority, and it is puerile for any one here to suggest a defense or palliation which evidently has no place in Chilian minds.

To come to the final point, the United States has strained forbearance to the limit where it may be mistaken for pusillanimity. The Chilian outrage will invite other outrages unless ample atonement is exacted. The honor of the nation is in the issue, and it is for the President and Congress to see that it shall not be imperiled. The people, through the press, demand that the special message which the President promised shall be sent at once, and and that the dignity of the United States, wounded by repeated insults added to the original outrage, shall be asserted and vindicated before the nations of the earth.

Our Washington Latter.

From our Special Correspondent.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10, 1892.

The Hon. Bishop W. Perkins has been appointed Senator to succeed Mr. Plumb, of Kansas. Mr. Perkins has been a member of Congress for many years and has shown himself to be a man of decidedly over the average ability and, while it is not to be expected that he will at once take so high a standing in the Senate as that held by Mr. Plumb, he will impress himself upon the legislation of the country there as he did in the House.

The New York newspapers of the 1st all give comprehensive reviews of the past year and it must be said, to their credit, that the Democratic newspapers gave the Republican party fair praise for what it has done in the past. Of course the free trade papers did not admit that the McKinley Bill had been the cause of the renewed prosperity of the country when, if they had been entirely honest, this admission would have been made. Speaking of President Harrison, the World says: "Mr. Harrison has certainly gained much in the public estimate of his ability. The series of speeches he made during his tour through the country revealed him to the people not only as a readier and abler speaker than had been suspected, but as a man with a stronger intellectual grasp and larger gifts. The recent message also added to the President's reputation as a public officer. It was an able document, carefully designed to meet an exigent political situation. In its treatment of our foreign relations it was dignified and judicious where causes of irritation existed, and where there were causes of congratulation, as in the matter of the reciprocity treaties it was adroitly framed to secure for the President the credit which men were very generally disposed to give to Mr. Blaine." This is very high praise from a Democratic standpoint and such praise from such a source is so unusual that it is worthy of notice.

The Democrats did, while the law was being enacted, assert that the McKinley Bill was all wrong and the reciprocity idea a humbug. They opposed and have continued to oppose the making of reciprocity arrangements, but the facts are so strong that they will have to admit that reciprocity was neither a free trade idea nor a humbug. On the closing day of the last year reciprocity treaties had been concluded with Brazil, British Guiana, British West Indies, Costa Rica, Germany, Guatemala, Salvador, San Domingo and Spain, and negotiations were pending which promised an early and successful conclusion with France and Mexico. Under these treaties we admit one article which is entirely noncompetitive, that is coffee, sugar which is nearly so, and hides. By doing this we have secured either free import or low duties on nearly all the products of the farm and the factory of the United States into those countries.

To show what has been done in some instances, the duty on flour imported from the United States into Cuba was $5.03 a barrel on the 31st day of December, and on the 1st of January it was one dollar a barrel. The duty on wheat which was 99 cents, on the 1st of January was eight cents per bushel. To Porto Rico the duty on flour was $2 46 a barrel, on the 1st it was $1.00; the rate on wheat which was 24 15 cents a bushel was reduced to eight cents and this ratio is continued in a great many other things. During the last fiscal year we imported from the countries with which we have concluded treaties, and from one with which we are about to conclude one, Germany, $142,985,593 worth of coffees, hides and sugar and we exported to these altogether $131,165,597, that is, eleven million dollars less than their imports in these three articles. Under the new arrangements we will undoubtedly export to these countries fifty per cent. more than the value of the sugar they send us, probably double that amount. We will certainly do so in the instance of Cuba, Porto Rico, San Domingo, Salvador and Guatemala.

FROM OCCASIONAL CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, D. C. January 5, 1892.

The United States Navy Revival attracts no little attention in Europe and especially in England. The St. James's Gazette of London says "the Americans are making a steady and surprising progress toward becoming a great naval power." English experts are comparing the New York with the Blenheim and the Blake and some of them admit that the former can steam faster and throw more metal than any British vessel of the same class. This however is not the only time our naval achievements have surprised our English cousins.

The Miantonomah this week is at Gardiners Bay trying her four ten inch breech-loading guns that throw a 500 pound shell by the explosion of 250 pounds of powder. These guns were made at the Washington Navy Yard. She also carries lighter rapid-firing guns. She is not a new vessel. In 1866 she steamed into British waters and stirred naval and official circles there something as an over-head hawk flutters a flock of barn-yard fowls. The British had, prior to that date, made light of the vessels of the Monitor class, never having properly appreciated the famous pioneer that fought the Merrimac in Hampton Roads, and subsequently foundered off Cape Hatteras. But the Miantonomah with her hull below water and her low turrets and deadly guns, silently moving among British war vessels in a British harbor was an alarming object lesson. Under this stimulus England built an iron clad designed by an inventor named Cowles which craft subsequently upset off the coast of Spain, and carried down to the bottom, five hundred men, including the rash inventor who claimed the honor due to Ericsson. The Miantonomah having crossed the ocean safely could probably double Cape Horn, though she is not likely to make the attempt.

Iron Clads and heavy guns are expensive luxuries and notwithstanding our pride in a young and growing navy we ought in some way make our vessels commercially useful in times of peace. No large standing army is wanted nor a vast, expensive and unproductive war navy. Let ship building for the carrying trade and for peaceful pursuit be revived by legislation that will put the stars and stripes at the mast head in every port of the world.

New Years Day in this city was so sunny and mild that overcoats were discarded by callers and inveterate croquet players knocked the balls about from morning until night. Official receptions were crowded, but not private ones. Fashon is frowning upon the time honored custom and fewer than ever opened their doors this year to miscellaneous callers. Heretofore it has been the practice of young men and those not so young to hire a carriage and rush about town all day and far into night or until overcome with wine. And silly young follows who carry their canes by the middle and stick out their elbows have done the same on foot. Fewer people however now offer wine, and the number that hang baskets at the door yearly increases. The custom of new years calling stripped of excesses and absurdities is a good one.

Social drinking and drunkenness is decreasing. Drinking to excess among public men is much rarer than formerly. There are no notorious drunkards in congress as in old times Open liquor selling is excluded from the capitol. One reform however remains to be accomplished by congress and that is the cutting off of the wine and liquor bills of funeral parties. Here is a very proper field for retrenchment.

Prohibition. Congress not only prohibits liquor selling in the capitol but has prohibited the sale of intoxicants within a mile of the Soldiers Home, the boundary line running through the most densely peopled portion of the city. The district commissioners also in the exercise of their discretion have practically prohibited the sale of liquor in a section of the city called "Hells bottom." This we have prohibition in spots.

Hells bottom was a product of war times and has been a disgrace to the city. Three murders by half drunken men were committed in this place in rapid succession not many months since. The section is however greatly improved in decency particularly since the recent routing out of the occupants of certain infamous dens and the substitution of a Young Men Cristian Association. The spot is closely hemmed in by four large colored churches which have done good work in purifying the pit. But curiously enough the pastor of one of them says that the low saloons and dives are a curse yet insists that the commissioners discriminate against his people by closing them.

Queer Legislation. Congress passed a law that only ex-soldiers should be appointed as policemen in this district. It is now impossible to find soldiers of the late war young and vigorous enough for the duties. A recent immigrant after a few days service of some sort in the army resigned and received an appointment on the police force and thereupon proceeded to get drunk and flourish his revolver. In his tipsy rampage he shot down a sober and quiet one armed soldier. And see how curiously the law works. The old soldier could not serve as a policeman because of his age. His son is excluded by the law for he was never in the army, but this drunken importation found no difficulty in gitting an appointment. Judge Miller at the preliminary hearing held the officer for trial and remarked that every policeman whose breath smelt of liquor ought to be discharged.

Chief Justice Fuller is said to be very indignant as to the premature announcement that the Supreme Court has decided the Nebraska contest in favor of Boyd and intimates that the enterprising news given will be suitably punished.

THE TARIFF IN CONGRESS.

New York Press.

The criticism that has been made on the avowed programme of Speaker Crisp to "tinker" with the tariff bill, rather than adopt in the House any general tariff bill which will distinctly foreshadow the Democratic policy, has had such an effect in Washington on the minds of leading Democrats that it is said a halt has been called while the question of policy is being settled. The knowledge that no tariff bill can pass both houses of Congress, whether it be a complete measure covering the entire tariff field or only a measure of amendment, or if carried through both houses would be subjected to a veto, leaves to the Democratic majority in the House as its only task the making of an exhibition of legislation which shall give the country positive information as to what the party would do if intrusted with both legislative and executive branches of the government. President Harrison will stand by the McKinley bill in every schedule. The Republicans in the Senate will stand together against any attempt to break down that bill, either by detail or in bulk.

It is wholly immaterial to Republicans which course the Democrats pursue in this matter. They have already shown that they are aware that the tariff question is their white elephant, by first deciding not to present any general bill, and then by temporizing and now by halting while they consider what is really best to be done. If they enter upon the scheme of trying to drive a breach in the McKinley bill by passing separate measures to put coal on the free list, wool on the free list, iron on the free list, and so on down a list of articles such as was named the other day by Mr. Springer of Illinois, the Democrats will array against themselves great elements of voting population, comprising Democrats or Republicans, and reaching through every grade of the community, from tillers of the soil to capitalists, whose opposition will be sufficient to determine the election of 1892 in favor of the Republican party. Republicans can well afford to have this course pursued, because it will enable the campaign of 1892 to be based on the impugnment of the Democratic party for insincerity in its opposition to protection and for inability to frame a general "tariff reform," about which they have been harping so loudly until within a month as the great need in national legislation.

On the other hand, if Mr. Crisp shall now form his ways and means committee so as to give the country a general tariff bill the situation of 1838 will be repeated and the country will without doubt decide that it is unwise to change the present law or policy until it has been thoroughly tested, and that whatever trifling changes may be necessary in it should be committed to the hands of the friends instead of the enemies of the pretection principle.

The Democratic House must make a record on the tariff on which the Democratic party can go to the country next year, and it already looks as if they would have such difficulty in uniting on any policy that the contest of next year will be a walkover for Republicanism and protection.

$75 MONTH $300

Do You Want Employment?

Cy which you can make from $75.00 to $250.00 per month—the amount depending on whether you work part or all your time, and on the amount of VIM and VIGOR and PLUCK and PUSH you put into the work. If so, it might pay you to write to us. WE'VE GOT SOMETHING THAT GOES, and there's room for a few more to come in. It won't cost you much to investigate—only a two-cent stamp. WE WANT A LIVE, WIDE-AWAKE REPRESENTATIVE IN OUR COMMUNITY, EITHER MAN OR WOMAN. If you are interested we'd like to hear from you. We'll show you where there's some money. All information by return mail. Then if you are not convinced, all right; there'll be no harm done—only YOU'LL MISS A GOOD THING. Aetter write at once. Address

The Brodix Publishing Co.
WASHINGTON, D. C.

NEW FEED MILL

CHRIS. ANDERSON, Prop.

I desire to annouce to the farmers of Polk County that I have rented the

LAURENCE BUILDING, ON MAIN STEERT,

Next to Brown's New Livery Stable, and am now prepared to grind feed of all kinds promptly. You can get your feed in two hours after you bring me your grain. Prices Reasonable

Try My New Mill!

A. J. & A. McKINNON,

CROOKSTON

CARRIAGE WORKS.

Manufactures everything that runs on wheels. Repairing done on short notice and in workmanlike manner.

GIVE US A CALL

A. J. & A. McKINNON, - - - Main Street, Crookston.

Schmidt, the Painter,

CARRIES A FULL AND COMPLETE STOCK OF

PAINTS,
OILS AND
VARNISHES.

ALSO A FULL AND COMPLETE LINE OF

WALL PAPER.

Painting in all its branches, and Paper Hanging artistically done.

Call at the Shop on Broadway.

BOSTON

ONE PRICE ONE PRICE ONE PRICE

CLOTHING HOUSE.

Our sturdy, steady, satisfactory business has been obtained by the honest industry and proper respect of the people's common sense. This season we speak to thousands of new friends who expect from us the lowest price for Reliable Merchandise that any house will name. We ask you in your own interest

To see our Overcoats,
To see our Suits,
To see our Trousers, } Before going elsewhere.

Business Suits, strong and stylish. Dress Suits in soft, silken, clinging clay worsted, that will never gloss or fade. Fur Coats, Fur Caps, Plush Caps. Furnishings and Underwear. Everything desirable, Everything good. Latest Novelties in Neckwear.

Mossefin & indell, Props.

HOW TO SAVE MONEY

BUY OF SLOCUM,

The Leading Grocer. The Best Goods for the Least Money.

SPECIALTIES | I MAKE A SPECIALTY OF | SPECIALTIES

TEAS, COFFEES, CANNED SALMON and CHOICE BUTTER.

HAVE YOU TRIED MY Wheat Germ Meal?

Everything in my line, fresh from the wholesaler at the VERY LOWEST LIVING RATES. Give me a Trial.

W. E. SLOCUM, - - BROADWAY.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Polk County Journal.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.

Crookston, January 14, 1892.

'Round Home.

Wheat—1 Hard 70.
1 Northern 67.
2 Northern 64.
3 Northern 61.

Levi Myers was up from the west-side on Tuesday.

Jim Kelley returned last week from a visit to Wisconsin.

T. G. Thompson has gone to St. Paul to serve as a U. S. juror.

Great Remnant Sale is now going on at Gervais, "The Hustlers."

Rudy Burkhardt took a trip north this week canvassing for petit ledgers.

Services are being held every evening this week at the Congregational church.

Hon. E. E. Lommen was in St. Paul last week to attend the alliance convention.

The Enterprise, of Hallock, says that C. C. Shapleigh is the happy father of a little girl.

S. K. Torgisson was up from Lake Park last week interviewing old friends in the city.

Finlayson & Vannett have reopened the Gymnasium and are now ready to supply tickets.

Great drives on Blankets, Flannels, Underwear and Hosiery at Gervais, "The Hustlers."

It is reported that ex-register H. H. Dickmann is the fond father of a new boy, on the 6th inst.

On Saturday last Judge Christianson united for life Hans Christofferson and Annie Christianson.

Wheat opened out on Monday morning at 71 cents and on Tuesday morning dropped one cent.

A. R. Holston went to St. Paul last week. The Globe warmed over one of Holston's old chestnuts.

Fur Capes, Muffs, Boas, Hoods, Fascinators at half price to close out at Gervais, "The Hustlers."

The week of prayer was observed by union meetings of the Congregational and Presbyterian congregations.

Mrs. A. J. Streeter has been appointed matron of the new county hospital. A worthy appointment.

We heard some of our neighbors say something about cold weather on Sunday and Monday last. Did you observe it?

The Andrews Company will probably put on "The Pretty Persian." This opera is said to be one of the best going.

THE JOURNAL is pleased to note that Miss Eunice Copeland, who has been very ill with tonsilitis and erysipelas is convalescent.

Those who cannot call can drop us a card saying how much they will put up for the hail sufferers and their names will be added to the list.

Walter Lee has purchased Mrs. Bucknam's property on Houston Ave. and it is said that he will build an elegant house thereon next spring.

Casper Sands is used to breaking bronchos to ride or drive but we reckon he will find that goat the most ornery critter he ever tried to straddle!

The Crookston Musical Society meets Friday evenings at the reading room for practice. This society is becoming one of the prominent institutions of the city.

Gervais, "The Hustlers" are offering tremendous bargains in Remnants, odds and ends and broken lines of all kinds. Call in and get some of the plums as they roll.

Mrs. Van Arnam left last week for Iowa, summoned by the news that her sister, who is afflicted by cancer, was not expected to survive long. She may be gone all winter.

Engineer Fred Chapin came over from Devil's Lake this week with his wife and child for a two weeks' visit with her folks. Her mother, Mrs. T. Hunt, returned with them.

The trend of events political seem to indicate that in the near future we shall be confronted with the question: "Shall America elect a king?" Already the wires are being skilfully laid to install a dictator.

Alderman Walker has a letter from Mayor McKinnon, in which the Mayor seems quite sanguine of enlisting capital to build a large hotel in Crookston next summer. Mac seems to be doing some tall rustling down there.

J. W. Wheeler has resigned his position as paying teller at the 1st National bank, but will engage in some kind of business in Crookston. He has had several offers but has not accepted any as yet, we are told. Mr. W. has been a faithful official in that bank for some time.

Jimmy Fulton, who has been manager of the St. Hilaire creamery during the past season went through on Monday evening en route for his home in Hawley. Jim was once a typo on THE JOURNAL staff and they say that he is a No. 1 butter maker also.

G. H. Palmer: "Come and see us when we get in our new quarters in the new Reckett Block. The Land Office will soon move in there also, so as to be handy to us. We will be as slick as a whistle made of a pig's tail when we all get in there."

O. H. Lucken will succeed Hugh Robertson as clerk in the Land Office.

Cloaks and Shawls at almost your own price at Gervais, "The Hustlers."

Sauk Rapids Sentinel:—Mr. Jas. Greenhalgh, of Crookston, father of W. C. and J. H., visited with the Skeate family last week, returning home Saturday.

Uncle John Ross, who has been janitor at the court house for so long, has been supplanted by a younger man. Uncle John has been a faithful servant and his many friends will regret to see him step down and out.

Mr. S. L. Dobson is not getting as many oats to grind as he would like. He would like enough to keep the mill running night and day. This would require 600 bushels for every 24 hours, or 180,000 bushels for the year. That's a good market for oats.

The Crookston Musical Society will hold a meeting at the reading room Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock and a full attendance is desired. Any one wishing to unite with the society are invited to attend at that time and give in their names. A general invitation is extended to all to do so.

P. S. WARE, Sec'y.

Presto Change:—Saturday night a burglar entered the residence of J. H. Greenhalgh by breaking into the wood shed and climbing through a window. He ransacked bureaus and trunks, taking about $15 in cash. Nothing else was missing. Mr. G. is a fireman and was on duty at the time, and Mrs. G. was alone in the house, but was not awakened. No clue to the robber.

"I like that idea of yours about contributing to the needs of hail sufferers and will go ten bushels of barley on it, anyhow," said O. H. Richardson to THE JOURNAL man on Thursday of last week. "and if need be I will chip in more. I will hold the grain subject to the order of your townsman, Mr. Ellington, and deliver it to whomsoever he says. I hope to see a generous response to this call."

B. C. Jorgenson dropped into our den on Thursday and after putting up the needful on subscription, said: "I like THE JOURNAL'S idea on the question of home relief for the hail sufferers and I have $10 for that object. I hope every reader of THE JOURNAL will chip in to the extent of his ability and it will be no trouble to provide a sufficient fund to supply all who need wheat and feed for their teams."

Mr. W. McPherson, who was one of the old-time dwellers in this vicinity, having a claim up north of Harry Wyand's, was down from his present home in the Thirteen Towns last week. We are glad to note that Mac is doing well up there he having raised several good crops and a rousing good one last season. Mac has many friends in this neck of the woods who will be glad to hear of his good fortune.

If you wish to contribute wheat, oats or barley to the hail sufferers send us an order on yourself for the number of bushels you will contribute and the order will be placed in the Scandia-American Bank, with Mr. Ellington, and your name will go on the list. We have heard many farmers say they would contribute to this cause if they had an opportunity and here is your opportunity. Send in your orders.

Hugh R. Robertson has accepted the position of paying teller in the First National bank, in place of J. W. Wheeler, resigned. Mr. Robertson has been for a long time clerk in the U. S. Land Office, which position he has filled creditably and he will prove just as capable and efficient in his new field. While in the Land Office he has made hosts of friends who will unite with us in best wishes for his future success.

Nekkolai Gjestrum, a young man living in Vineland, died at the residence of John Thompson in that town on Monday, the 11th, of consumption. Had he lived until Tuesday, the 12th, he would have been just 28 years old. He was a young man highly respected by all who knew him and leaves many friends in that neighborhood where he had lived 7 or 8 years. He had taken one term at the Crookston Business College. The funeral is to be held at Neby next Saturday at one o'clock.

A writer on the subject of the humane treatment of animals calls attention to the injurious effect of cold-iron bits on horses. He points out that the horse is an animal of nervous organization. Its mouth is formed of delicate glands and tissues, the temperature of its blood is the same as in the human being, and as also in man the mouth is the warmest part of the body. If any one would realize the effect of a cold bit in the mouth of a horse on a frosty morning let him try the contact of a piece of iron at a temperature below freezing point on his own tongue. The effect on the horse is not simply momentary. Food eaten subsequently is masticated with difficulty, and the repetition of the irritation day after day causes a loss of appetite and strength. Many a horse has become worthless from no other cause but this. India-rubber bits are now so common that there is no excuse for their not being used, but should any difficulty occur in procuring such a merciful provision for the comfort of the horse a bit covered with leather will do good service in the meantime.

For Sale Cheap.

Buffalo robes and cutters. Mrs. Mary Schreader, Crookston, Minn. [35-tf]

BUY A FARM

I have some of the best land

IN

Polk County

In my hands for sale

CHEAP!

And you can make prices and terms to suit you. Write me for lists.

L. F. Menage,

14-39] Minneapolis, Minn.

On The Death of Mr. W. W. Attix.

BY MRS. W. MORRIS.

Wherefore, Oh, ye friends of Jesus,
Throb your hearts with anguish wild;
Wherefore mourn for one departed
From the raging tempest wild?

Though you miss him from your circle,
Though you see his face no more,
Yet remember you shall meet him
On the shining glory shore.

Jesus says "I will not leave you;
I will be the widow's guide;
I will be the orphan's Father
Till they too shall cross the tide.

Though you lose a father's blessing,
Though you miss a husband's care;
He has done his share of suffering,
He a crown of life shall wear.

Every home has lost a darling,
Some dear loved one gone before;
Oh, how lovingly they'll greet us
Over on the other shore.

One by one the roses perish,
Drop by drop the stream runs dry;
But the roses bloom in heaven,
We shall see them by and bye.

When we cross the crystal river;
When we climb the golden stair;
When we walk through shining portals
We shall know each other there.

When the silver cord is broken;
When this earthly house shall fall;
When the last farewell is spoken,
Save us Jesus, one and all.
"Asleep in Jesus."

Mentor, Minn., Jan. 9th, 1891.

Iver H. Mjoen, one of the leading farmers of Vineland, was in the city on Tuesday and gave THE JOURNAL a pleasant call, renewing for one year. Mr. M. came from Norway in 1872 and in November took a government claim in Vineland, as he supposed, but afterwards learned that the railroad company laid claim to it. Their claim was sustained by the government and Mr M. says that although able lawyers have tried to get a hearing for him he has been denied even that privilege. Some two years since, fearing lest he should lose his farm altogether, he contracted for it with the company for $8.50 per acre. Thus, after having by hard work given the farm what value it has, he was obliged to pay for his own labor. When he came from Norway he had only sufficient means to bring himself and family over, but now he is regarded by his neighbors as a man in independent circumstances—all accomplished here in Polk County and remote from a railroad market town, at that. His nearest point is Buxton, N. D., which is 12 miles, but not accessible in the fall until the river freezes over. The next nearest is Fisher, 16 miles, and there he has hauled most of his wheat. He says if they had a railroad down there it would be worth thousands annually to that country. He raised this year nearly 3,000 bushels of wheat and could do better than that every year if he had a convenient market. He lives in hopes of seeing a railroad in his neighborhood and a good wheat market opened up.

Making a Big Hit.

Duluth Papers Accord the Andrews Opera Company High Praise.

Grand Forks Plaindealer:—An engagement of unusual importance and interest is that of the Andrews Opera Company which commences on Friday next at the Metropolitan. Three performances will be given, the repertoire being Friday "The Pretty Persian," Saturday matinee "The Bohemian Girl," Saturday evening "Iolanthe."

The Andrews Opera Company is playing a week's engagement in Duluth where they are winning golden opinions both from press and public. The Duluth Daily News of Tuesday in its criticism said "The Andrews Opera Company made an excellent start in its week's engagement at the Temple last night. There was a big audience and thoroughly satisfied." The same paper of Wednesday, commenting on their performance of "The Pretty Persian," said; "The costuming was excellent and there was fun without end. C. A. Parker was lively as a cricket and resembles Eddie Foy in his work. Ed. Andrews also furnished lots of enjoyment." The Tribune of yesterday said: "It is a pleasure to see the Andrews Opera company in any of their presentations, for the reason that whatever they produce receives conscientious and artistic treatment. Their principals are artists, their chorus evenly balanced and well trained."

The Andrews Opera company carries its own orchestra, which will add greatly to the enjoyment of their performances.

Ship your wheat to O. Tharaldson general agent of the Northwestern Farmers' Protective Association, at Duluth, and make from 4 to 7 cents a bushel. For further particulars as to membership, &c., inquire of L. K. Hassel, Grand Forks, N. D. [25-tf]

THE COUNTY DADDIES.

M. E. Kirsch Re-elected Chairman and the Crookston Times Made the Official Organ.

Fisher Bulletin.

The Board of County Commissioners convened Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. The first business was the election of a chairman, and M. E. Kirsch will again sit enthroned.

At 3:30 p. m., the bids for the county printing were opened. Only two offers to officially record the proceedings, etc., were tendered—and, under the present state of affairs, there was one bid too many. The following was the first bid opened:

To the Hon. Brd. of Co. Com'rs of Polk County, Minn:

GENTLEMEN:—We, the undersigned, publishers of the Fisher Bulletin, published at Fisher, Minn.; the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, published at Crookston, Minn., and the McIntosh Times, published at McIntosh, Minn., respectfully submit the following proposition to do the county printing for the County of Polk, State of Minnesota, for the year 1892, to-wit: We agree to publish in each of said papers, the delinquent tax list, at the rate of two (2) cents per description, to be paid each of the said three papers publishing the same; the proceedings of the board FREE; financial statement and all other notices required to be published by the County Commissioners or any of the officers of said county, at fifty (50) cents per folio, for the first insertion, and twenty-five (25) cents per insertion for each subsequent insertion; also to furnish all stationery and do the job printing required by said county or county officials at our regular rates. Said financial statement and above mentioned notices are to be printed in each of the above mentioned papers, the payment for same to be divided equally between each of the said named papers; and said stationery and job printing is to be divided equally between the papers named.

A. G. RUTLEDGE,
Pub. of Bulletin.
H. E. COOKE,
Pub. POLK COUNTY JOURNAL.
C. G. LANMAN,
Pub. McIntosh Times.

At this stage of the proceedings, C. P. Demers, of the Red Lake Falls district, took a document from his pocket, which afterwards proved to be the Times resolution, which we give below.

The following bid was then opened:

CROOKSTON, January 4, 1892.

To the Honorable Board of County Commissioners of Polk County, Minnesota:

GENTLEMEN:—The undersigned, publisher of the Daily and Weekly Times, published at Crookston, Minn., begs leave to submit the following proposition to do the county printing for the County of Polk for the year 1892, as follows, to-wit: I agree to publish the delinquent tax list, financial statement, proceedings of the board of county commissioners, and all official notices ordered published by said county board, in both the Times and Red River Dalen at the following rates, viz: Financial statement at 72 cents per folio for first insertion and 32 cents for each subsequent insertion. Proceedings and all other official notices ordered by the board, 72 cents per folio for the first insertion and 32 cents per folio for each subsequent insertion. Delinquent tax list six cents a description for both, or three cents a description for each of the two papers. Job work as follows: Letter heads, linen, per M, $6 00; do common, per M, $5 50; note or mem. heads, linen, per M, $4 50; do common per M, $4.25; envelopes, 5 inch, per M, $4; do 6½ inch, per M, $4 50; do 10 inch, per M, $5 50; do 11 inch, per M, $5.75; do 12 inch, per M, $6; blanks, ¼ sheet, one side, $4.50 per M; do ½ sheet, one side, $6 50 per M; do ¼ sheet two sides, $6.50; do ½ sheet, two sides, $8 50. All other job work and stationery at usual rates.

Respectfully submitted,
W. E. McKENZIE,
Pub. Times.

Moved by A. C. Reinhart and seconded by J. P. Johnson that the bid tendered by the Fisher Bulletin, POLK COUNTY JOURNAL and McIntosh Times, being the lowest, that the said papers be declared the official papers of the county for the ensuing year.

Demers here introduced his resolution, which had been prepared for him, and which was as follows:

Whereas, The board of county commissioners did advertise for bids for printing for the ensuing year; and whereas the law requires that the contract for said work BE LET TO THE LOWEST BIDDER; the commissioners, however, take into consideration the circulation and standing of the newspapers filing such bids: and, whereas, it appears from the bids tendered and on file, that the bid of W. E. McKenzie, publisher of the Crookston Times, wherein he agrees to publish according to law the delinquent tax list and all other official county notices and commissioners proceedings in the Crookston Times and Red River Dalen; and after taking into consideration the circulation and standing of the two papers, we find this bid the lowest before us; therefore be it

Resolved, That the bid of W. E. McKenzie be accepted and the Crookston Times, a weekly newspaper printed and published in the city of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, be and the same is hereby designated as the official newspaper in which shall be published according to law the delinquent tax list for the year 1890, and all other official county notices and commissioners proceedings.

How Mr. Demers could, PREVIOUS TO THE OPENING OF THE BIDS, consider the "circulation and standing" of the papers is a piece of thought that does that gentleman great credit.

Mr. Reinhart's motion was then considered, the vote being Reinhart and Johnson, yes; Stortroen, Demers and Kirsch no.

Demers' resolution was then seconded by Stortroen, and resulted: Stortroen, DeMers and Kirsch yes; Reinhart and Johnson no. The two latter gentlemen wished to be placed on record as indignantly voting in the negative.

We submit the bids as tendered, and as any intelligent person can see the contract was not awarded to the lowest bidder.

Of course there could have been no put up job in that business, because Demers and Stortroen voted for it and were they not selected by the farmers as fit men to represent their constituents on the board to prevent all kinds of jobbery and to see that due economy was exercised in the spending of the people's money? Did they not pledge their sacred honor to their constituents to discharge their duties honestly and faithfully, nay more, did they not solemnly swear so to do when they entered upon the discharge of their duties? Of course Messrs. DeMers and Stortroen honestly believed that 72 cents per folio for financial statement, notices, &c., was less than 50 cents per folio! Of course they must have supposed that 72 cents per folio for publishing the proceedings of the board was less than to have said proceedings published free. We say "of course" they must have "supposed" so, for if they did not suppose so their vote was a direct violation of their pledged word to their constituents, a violation of their sacred honor and a violation of their oath, was it not? And could it be possible that these reformers could have put up a job upon the down-trodden tax-payers whom, at the last election, they sacrificed their personal feelings and comforts to protect? Oh, no, they must have honestly thought that 72 cents per folio was less than nothing per folio! But isn't it mysterious that at the last meeting of the board in '91, when that body should call for bids for county printing that they "forgot" to say or do anything about that important matter and that later on a few lines were inserted once in an obscure corner of the paper that was afterward (was it "afterwards" or was the arrangement already made) designated as the official paper? Of course Demers and Stortroen, those two brilliant statesmen, put there specially in the interest of reform, had nothing to do with the omission of this important matter by the board, not even by calling attention to the omission, so it strikes us that the Bulletin's comments are rather severe, for how can they be blamed if they don't know that 72 cents per folio is just 22 cents more for each and every folio, and that 72 cents per folio for proceedings as against nothing per folio is just 72 cents more for each and every folio than the tax-payers need to have paid? The only ugly look about it that we can see is in the fact that even before the bids were opened they concluded that an apology for their vote was necessary, and so had one all ready to spring, just as they would have done if they had got together beforehand and agreed to vote for the Times, anyhow! Of course they could not have done that, for that would have been one of those "ugly jobs" they used be so angry against, and swore to spill their last drop of blood to "drown out." The county printing is likely to cost the tax payers this year far more than ever before, and certainly double what it need to had the lowest bid been accepted, and if the thing had not been done through these latter day reformers we should have been of the opinion that the whole busines was clearly a put up job from beginning to end.

"The Journal" Hail Fund.

The following named persons have contributed the amounts set opposite their names to the fund for the relief of those who lost their crops by hail. Everybody should have a hand in this good work. Send in your names and the amount you are willing to contribute (in money or grain) to THE JOURNAL or Lewis Ellington, Scandia-Americ n Bank, Crookston, Minn:

THE JOURNAL	$ 5.00
B. C. Jorgenson	10 00
O. H. Richardson	10 bushels barley.
Frank Blvins	10 bushels seed wheat.
W. G. Lytle	10 bushels seed wheat.

Ante-Inventory Sale

—OF—

COUNTER CRUMBS,

That's a good name for them, or we might call them

Clearance Crumbs.

They are the crumbs of our season's stock. You know how it is. Every season sees some broken lines left on our counters; remnants, odd pieces and patterns. These we call "crumbs." They go at "crumb" prices, too, as we want to reduce our stock to the lowest limit before invoicing.

NOTE THIS!

Most merchants make a sale after invoicing to work off old calamity catch-pennies. We make our sale before invoicing, and offer

The Pick of Our Entire Fall Stock.

Fontaine & Anglim.

HOLIDAY GOODS.

Before deciding what Xmas gifts you will purchase, please call and inspect my line of Pictures and Picture Framing Material, such as Oleographs, Chromos, Artotype and Steel Engravings, Monochromes, Water Color, Pastel and Oil Paintings.

Reproductions in Paintings and Etchings, Photogravures, Artographs, Typogravures, Mezzotypes and fac-simile Pastels, Genuine Etchings, Pastels and Steel Engravings, Etchings Remarque - Proof. Picture Mats, ouldings, Frames, Hooks, Nails, Cords, Wire and Room Mouldings

I'm making a Special Sale of these goods for the Holiday trade. Call and examine.

Yours respectfully,
THE UNDERTAKER,
105½ Broadway,
Crookston, Minn. [35-tf]

Were You Hit By Hail.

Call at THE JOURNAL office and let us know how much grain you will need for feed and seed, so that we may know how much must be provided for. Do you know of any neighbor too modest to make known his own wants? Let us have his name and probable needs. Don't be backward about coming forward and let the good work go on until all those who need are supplied.

ESTRAY.

Came on my premises on Thursday evening, Dec. 24th, 1891, one bay mare, about five years old, with white star in forehead, one white hind foot and two small white spots on shoulder, weighs about 900; also one light bay gelding about 5 years old, weight about 1,000 pounds, small white spot in forehead also one on shoulder.

GUNDER SCHEFSTAD,
[37 39] Ash St., Crookston, Minn.

ESTRAY.

A sorrel horse, with three white feet and white in face, came on my place Sec 15 Town of Kertsonville, about the 20th of last month. Owner is requested to claim property, pay charges and take him away. FRANK LASARGE.

For Sale Cheap.

Buffalo robes and cutters. Mrs. Mary Schreader, Crookston, Minn. [35-tf]

CROOKSTON
STEAM LAUNDRY
O. D. ROOD, Prop.,
SECOND STREET, NEAR ASH,
Opposite Commercial Hotel.)

I have just added New Machinery and Facilities for doing

Washing and Ironing

Upon the Shortest Notice in the Best Manner and upon the Most Reasonable Terms.

All Those Wanting
FAMILY WASHING
Done will find it to their interest to call at the Laundry. Goods called for and delivered.

At the adjourned meeting of Col. Cobham Post held at the Post H'dq'rs in I. O. O. F. Block, on Friday evening, Jan. 8th, the following officers were installed by Past Commander T. A. Harris:

I. U. JENNINGS	Commander.
J. O. SERGEANT	Sen. Vice "
H. E. COOKE	Jun. Vice "
B. F. ZAHRACHER	Officer of the Day.
J. E GREENHALGH	" " Guard.
C. H. MIX	Chaplain.
S. L. STOWE	Surgeon.
O. H. LUCKEN	Quartermaster.
COMRADE SCHMIDT	Q. M. Sergeant.
V. D. CARRUTH	Adjutant.
WM. KISTENMACHER	Sergeant Major.

Upon giving up the chair to the commander elect the retiring commander, Louis Fontaine, made a few remarks in which he complimented the boys for faithful attendance during the past year, thanked them for their universal courtesy and good behaviour and urged them to be as loyal to his successor, told them that without the active, hearty co-operation of the members of the Post the commander could do nothing, but if each member does his part the result will be an active Post. After three hearty cheers for Past Commander Fontaine, the new Commander, I. U. Jennings, made a few well-chosen remarks in which he pledged himself to earnest endeavor in behalf of the Post and urged the comrades to aid him in every way. He read "The Old Canteen," and closed the business session, opening up on the social degree.

RAILS FOR THE CAMP FIRE.

The comrades, upon assembling in the evening were greeted with a box of Brown's best bearing the legend: "Comrade Geo. Truax." The comrades at once remembered the recent marriage of Comrade Truax and immediately commenced to discuss the cigars and o wish Comrade Truax abundant happiness, trusting that he may never have occasion to be sorry he enlisted. THE JOURNAL was appointed a committee of one to pass the cigars to an absent comrade in the far west.

Comrade Coe, from Wm. Ketcham Post, Ada, was admitted to membership in Col. Cobham Post and the adjutant instructed to so notify him.

The comrades were pleased to greet comrade A. M. Childs and trust that he will come often.

Comrade Jennings reported the organization of a Woman's Relief Corps of 60 members, which, he said, was the largest organization ever mustered in in the State, larger than many organizations reach in several years. This announcement was greeted with ringing cheers.

The regular meeting occurs to-morrow evening, the 15th, and all comrades are urged to be in attendance to discuss business of importance. After the regular routine is disposed of there will be a social session devoted to army songs, army experiences and topics that always enlist the old soldiers' earnest attention.

Reclining Chair Cars.

If you intend going East of South via St. Paul and Chicago, why not take "The Burlington" day train from St. Paul and Minneapolis, and enjoy the beautiful scenery of the Upper Mississippi? This train has one feature not afforded by any other line between the Twin Cities and Chicago; it carries elegant reclining chair cars, which make the journey delightful, easy and comfortable, and no extra charge is made to those occupying seats in them. Insist on the agent giving you tickets via 'The Burlington'—C., B. & N. R. R.—and take no others.

Good Market For Oats.

Having had a fine oat crop swept away by hail in a few minutes time we are obliged to buy oats to supply our farm teams, and we will be glad to pay the highest market price to any who are owing us several years subscription. We shall need about 1000 bushels and will take them as fast as offered. Bring on your oats and get your receipts. [33-tf]

NEW BARBER SHOP.

On Main St. C. E. MISNER, Prop.
Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.

RAZORS HONED. If you desire your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it for us 30 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it.

Yours Respectfully,
C. E. MISNER.

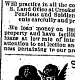
M. LeGUEE.
Veterinary Surgeon.
Residence and office on Jerome's Addition.
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN

FRANK IVES, Notary Public and U S. Comm'r.
D. E. HATLESTAD, District Court Commissioner.

IVES & HATLESTAD,
Attorneys and Counselors at Law,
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.

Will practice in all the courts and before the U. S. Land Office at Crookston and Washington. Pensions and Soldiers' Claims and Patents carefully and promptly adjusted.

We loan money on improved farms and city property and have facilities for placing large loans at low rate of interest. We give special attention to collection and all commercial business pertaining to our profession.



STUDY LAW AT HOME.
Take a Course in the Sprague Correspondence School of Law. Send 10 cents (stamps) for particulars to
J. COTNER, Jr., Sec.,
No. 80 Whitney Block,
DETROIT, MICH.

ANDREA FERARA SWORDS.

Very Few of the Genuine Articles Are Now in Existence.

If one were to judge by the number of these blades still extant in a limited area, the great Venetian swordsmith must have done a very large export business. This thought occurred to me during the Glasgow exhibition in 1888, where there were at least 40 swords exhibited, all marked with the name of "Andrea Ferara." The odd thing about them was that by far the greater number had belonged to moorland covenanters of Ayr or Lanarkshire, and had figured at the "battle" of Drumclog or Bothwel Bridge. Now, a fine sword-blade was not a thing to be knocked off like the assay piece of a hammerman, but was a work of high art and slow manufacture, tempering the steel being a very delicate process.

The price of such an article must also have been high and far beyond the means of a moorland peasant, as most of the owners were said to have been. That such high-class weapons got into these out-of-the-way places was difficult to believe. Only the other day I came on an explanation of the problem in a paper, read before the Royal Archæological Institute on Feb. 5, by the Baron de Cossan, F. S. A. This gentleman has a fine collection of ancient armor and weapons, and probably knows more about those things than any other person in this country. Here are his remarks on Ferara blades:

"It is also certain that, common as blades bearing the signature Andrea Ferara are in this country, scarcely any of them are the work of Maestro Andrea de l Ferara, who gained such renown for the superb temper of the blades which he produced in his workshop at Belluni, in Venetia, in the second half of the 16th century, where he worked with his brother, Giomo Donato de l Ferara, some of whose blades signed Zandona, still exist. Nearly all the blades commonly attributed to Andrea Ferara, are manifestly of 17th century make, and Boheim states that Andrea was born in 1530, and died about 1583.

"It is possible that a few of the finest blades existing in Scotland and England bearing the name of Andrea Ferara may be his work; but as yet I know very few which I can possibl attribute to the master or even to the epoch when he lived, and it is curious that the Italian collections possess very few even bearing his name. What is certain is that for nearly 50 years after his death Solingen turned out hundreds of blades bearing his name for exportation to those countries where a true Ferara was held in high repute, just as it supplied false Toledo blades to those where a rapier was preferred to a broadsword."—Notes and Queries.

A GOOD BARGAIN.

A Novel Scheme to Give Five Stamps for Nine Cents.

A neat advertising scheme, emanating from New York, has just made its appearance in this city, and is "catching on" rapidly. The projectors of the scheme at a first glance might be taken for full-blown lunatics, but there is a great deal of method in their madness when fully examined.

Heaped up in the windows of several of the large stores in the central portion of the city are several hundred memorandum books of convenient size and handsome appearance. Each contains about sixty pages and is bound in a well gotten-up, pliable muslin cover. In the middle of the little book is a calender and an amount of useful information or postal matter, and five 2-cent stamps. The entire book, including the stamps, is sold for 9 cents, a 10 percent reduction from Uncle Sam's rate for the "adhesibles" alone. The little memorandum book itself—well-made bound as it is—would cost at least from 3 to 5 cents to manufacture, and to sell it with five 2-cent stamps sewn within the covers for 9 cents shows enterprise in giving bargains.

Examine the little book, however, and the mystery is solved. Every alternate page contains an advertisement from some prominent business house in divers lines, and at the head of the remaining pages is a half-inch advertisement of a New York paper, which journal, it is stated, is responsible for this novel method of reaching that large section of the "dear public" who are always eager for a big "pen'north."

At a moderate computation the advertisements in the little work will more than cover the total outlay, including the loss on the stamps and the commission paid for distributing.

It Appears Serious.

WINNIPEG, Man., Special—In connection with the Langier difficulty, which threatens a serious rupture between France and England, and which yesterday convulsed the financial world, it is learned to-day, on reliable authority, that late yesterday, the French consul general at Quebec telegraphed to all the vice consuls under his jurisdiction to notify all Frenchmen of the active service or reserve that they must hold themselves in readiness to join their corps at a moment's notice. Throughout this province and the Northwest Territory there are a large number of French officers.

A STOCK company has been organized with a capital of $10,000,000 to establish a Monte Carlo gaming resort on a small island off the Californian coast, about 30 miles from Santa Barbara. Most of the stock has been taken by New York capitalists.

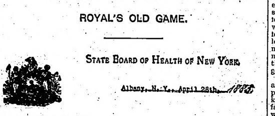
Conferred With Salisbury.

LONDON, Special—Mr. Lincoln had a rather long interview this afternoon with Lord Salisbury. The subject is known to have been the Behring sea question.

New York Board of Health

SITS DOWN ON A BAKING POWDER CO.

ROYAL'S OLD GAME.



STATE BOARD OF HEALTH OF NEW YORK.

Albany, N. Y., April 28th, 1885

To John Anderson, Esq

Chicago, Ill.

Dear Sir:-

In response to yours of April 20th, in regard to the advertising of the Royal Baking Powder Company I have the honor to send you the following resolution adopted by the Board at its quarterly meeting held in Albany Feb. 11th, 1885.

Resolved, That the advertisement of the Royal Baking Powder Company, quoting the State Board of Health of New York as recommending, through one of its analysts, its purity, etc., is a misrepresentation. In no case does the State Board of Health or its representatives, cause such examination to be made with a view of recommending any particular products.

Very truly yours,

Wm. Carmant

Asst. Secy

The misrepresentation which called forth the resolution of the State Board of Health of New York, printed above, is in keeping with the old tactics of the Royal Baking Powder Company.

First it manufactured a Government Chemist out of whole cloth, and the garment was cut and made to fit Dr. Henry A. Mott, and later poor Dr. Love.

Brought to a turn in this, the same company sought to use the New York Board of Health.

It did not hesitate to send broadcast, the statement that the New York Board of Health had endorsed and recommended the Royal (Ammonia) Baking Powder.

It did not take the New York Board of Health very long to assert itself on this misrepresentation as will be seen from the foregoing letter.

These questionable methods of advertising have never been resorted to by the Price Baking Powder Co. The old-fashioned honest way of making a pure Cream Tartar Baking Powder is much to be preferred. No ammonia to conceal, nothing to bolster up.

The success of Dr. Price proves honesty is the best business policy in food products, as in everything else.

THE FARMER'S COLUMN.

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO THE AGRICULTURAL WORLD.

Farming Yesterday and To-Day—Winter Feeding of Sheep—Value of Experiments—How He Called the Cow—Eggs in Canada.

Farming Yesterday and To-Day.

Farmers whose memories date back forty, fifty or sixty years can recall how much harder the labors of the agriculturalist were then than now! The vast improvements in farm machinery and implements of all kinds have greatly lessened his toil, and correspondingly increased his power. What an enormous difference there is, for instance, between the mowing and reaping implements of former times and now. Mowing with a scythe was good, stalwart, manly exercise, but it was slow and laborious business compared with the ingenious mowing machine of to-day. And cradling grain—what tedious, toilsome work it was! So, too, was the threshing with the hand-flail on the barn floor. Fine athletics it was when two sturdy young fellows beat the grain with alternate strokes, and filled the air with the rhythm of their fast-falling blows. But it was tiresome labor, and how inefficent compared with the machine that now so quickly accomplishes the task! It is calculated that the power of the individual has been about doubled by the change from manual to machine labor.

We are so accustomed to these and similar wonderful mechanical contrivances that we do not realize how great a change the invention of them has wrought in the methods and requirements of human labor. There are men still living to whom, in their boyhood, the mode of traveling was essentially the same as when the Founder of Christianity walked about the hills and valleys of Judea, or rode upon an ass's colt in his triumphal entry into Jerusalem. But now the humblest laborer may be whirled along in royal state at the marvelous pace of fifty miles an hour. And equally great has been the revolution in the arts of husbandry. The New England farmer of half a century ago reaped and threshed his grain with implements hardly less rude than were wielded by the reapers whom Ruth the Moabitess followed in the field of Boaz. But the use of machinery has emancipated him from the heaviest drudgery of the farm. The wonder is how any man found opportunity, in those "good old times," to eat or sleep or think. "Good old times," forsooth! The good times are now, to-day, and will be to-morrow in even greater degree, as further labor-saving appliances lessen the demand for manual toil.

These changes have been so gradual that we do not fully realize their broad import. But they mean much. They mean increased opportunity for mental enlargement, for growth in refinement, for increased comfort in the home, for the betterment of every man and woman and child associated with farm life. To be sure, the farmer is still obliged to work, and work hard, to obtain the things deemed essential to comfortable and substantial living. But his work counts for more than in former days; and while, perhaps, he works as hard as formerly, he does not have to work so long, and the labor is in consequence not so wearing to mind and body. He now has time, if he will, for rest and thoughts and the enjoyment of the good his labor has secured.

There is, in fact, no life more enviable than that of an intelligent, prosperous farmer, who owns his land and knows how to make the most of his farm and of himself. He is working with and in the presence of nature, and if, in such kindly companionships, he is not happy, why, he ought to be heartily ashamed of himself.

Value of Experiments.

The average farmer should do more experimenting, as the knowledge thus gained is not easily forgotten. I don't mean that he should experiment with lightning-rod peddlers, Bohemian oats agents, worthless patent rights, or in Wall street or Chicago stock speculation, "grave-yard" insurance, whiskey-drinking or even with the various new-fangled machinery, etc., with which the country is flooded. This kind of experimenting has morally and financially ruined thousands of homes, and farmers should give all such things a wide berth. But they should experiment in the use of commercial fertilizers, early and late seeding, deep and shallow seeding, etc. W. read of the result of such experiments at our experiment stations, but soon forget all about them, whereas were they made by ourselves and on our own farms they would produce a lasting impression and be of real practical value to us.

If we farm intelligently we must do some experimenting. It will not do to leave this for our neighbors or the experiment stations to do for us. When it comes to experimenting with commercial fertilizers farmers are entirely too careless. Experiments to determine the merits of a fertilizer may be easily made and unless they are made the farmer goes groping along in the dark not knowing to what extent, if any, his crops are benefited thereby. In drilling a field, strips a rod or more in width should always be left unfertilized. Two or three or more of such strips should be left in every field, according to its size and variety of soil. Don't be satisfied with one or two strips the width of the drill, but leave strips a rod or more wide. Don't think because it benefits the crop on one field that it will necessarily do good anywhere on your farm. Don't think because it gives satisfactory results one year that it will another. The season may be against it. Don't think because a certain brand does good one season that it will do to tie to that brand. Your soil may soon need something else, or the manufacturer may adulterate that brand after securing a good trade, or even before, and unless you test your fertilizer each year and ascertain its merits, or demerits, you may "get left." Now brother farmers, when it comes to using this costly article don't go groping along in the dark, but test it and "let there be light."—Frank Leslie in Ohio Farmer.

Eggs in Canada.

As to the Canadian egg trade, there can be no doubt that it has expanded this season to a greater extent than even the most sanguine expected. Inquiries made this week show, however, that the quality of consignments has not been so well maintained during the past few weeks. There have, of course, been notable exceptions, but the general tendency has been downwards rather than upwards in the quality of the egg in the packing. The general opinion of those in the trad who have been consulted is that there is a large and permanent market for Canadian eggs if only due care is taken by the shippers. The market is, however, only a poor one for eggs of the half-stale character which have been coming forward recently. Cardboard boxes, moreover, will not do for the packing; they not only increase the breakages but give a musty smell to the eggs and lessen their market value. If the eggs are taken when in a perfectly fresh condition and packed according to the methods suggested by the Dominion authorities, and sorted into their different sizes, there can be no doubt that a fairly remunerative market will be always found for them. But it is imperative that the quality of the eggs should be maintained if Canada is to secure a good reputation on the London market. In Liverpool, Glasgow, and other points, an even larger demand exists, and there, as in London, everything depends upon the quality of the eggs and the methods of shipment.—Canadian Gazette.

Winter Feeding of Sheep.

Sheep do not need to be closely stabled in winter. They do not thrive in confinement, and as they do not mind the cold, it is safe to keep them in the open air. But they do suffer from cold winds and rain, so that suitable shelter should be provided for them against winter storms and blasts. A yard inclosed with a tight board fence, with a shed on the north side, open to the south and tightly closed on the other three sides, is recommended as the best winter quarters.

The feed should consist of grain, bright straw, clover hay and corn fodder. Clover is ranked first as a feed for sheep. A half pint of grain once or twice a day, with good straw, is regarded by some flock masters as a sufficient ration. Barley straw is considered the best, with oats, wheat and rye in the order named.

There should always be a supply of water within reach. It is not good policy to depend on snow in place of water, for, although the sheep will slake their thirst with snow, it is better to give them water directly. Salt should also be constantly on hand, where they can get it when they want it. The American rock salt is by far the best, and lumps may be placed in the yard for their use. This is preferable to giving fine salt occasionally, as, if there is a supply constantly at hand, they will take it only as they need it.

How He Called the Cow.

He lives just outside the corporation limits, where there are large commons on which the cows pasture. Having a large lawn, he mows the grass with an attachment to his lawn-mower which catches the grass cut. This he feeds to his cow at night, and her toothsome lunch of fresh-mown grass has come to be a looked-for evening occurence. The other evening a friend went out to spend the night. After tea the gentleman's wife remarked to him: "The cow has not come home yet; hadn't you better start her?" "Yes," was the answer, and then while his city friend watched to see him perform the office of cowboy he deliberately got out his lawn mower and began marching back and forth across the shaven sod, as though there was no matter of cream for the coffee next morning at stake. "Did you forget what your wife said about the cow?" the friend asked presently. "Forget? No; isn't she there?" He looked in the direction indicated, and there sure enough, was Sukey with her nose over the fence. "Sent a boy after her?" "No. I called her." But I didn't hear you." "Yes you did; you've been standing right here." "But you haven't said a word." "But I called the cow just the same, and she heard the call—the noise of the lawn-mower." And sure enough, every night when the cow hears that, she comes trotting home.—Maryland Farmer.

Accumulator in the Dairy.

The introduction of the accumulator into the dairy, in view of late experiments, is apt to drive one knotty point out of the business and that is the churnability of milk. That is pretty much a hobgoblin at best, but actual experiment at the stations has proven that while the milk of the different breeds did vary some in the amount of fat left in the skim-milk and buttermilk when the milk was set by the deep cold system, or the shallow warm system, yet when the machine made the butter directly from the milk there was no unchurnability about it, there being no fat left in the skimmilk. This is as it should be, and we can all join in in welcoming the centrifugal buttermaker that eliminates all of the troublesome doubts, delays and vexations of the churn with its more than dangerous funkiness, especially if it is one of the closed kind.

Practical Hints.

The way to have healthy cows is to feed and care for them right from calfhood up to maturity.

Have healthy cows on healthy feed and you will have little cause for complaint as regards sickness.

Remember that in working brine-salted butter the object sought is to get rid of the extra moisture and to make the butter compact.

The practice of burning the trimmings from berries and grapes is a good one. It destroys in the embryo thousands of enemies to these plants.

Coarse, light hay thrown over spinach will usually carry it through the winter in open ground, provided water does not stand on the land.

It is said that at Rambouillet, near Versailles, Merino sheep have been bred for ninety years, and the flock is known all over the world.

There are too many farmers still remaining who boast of being practical men at their work, and manifest a holy horror of what they call book farming.

To bring success in the sheep business, it is as necessary here to have some practical knowledge of the sheep, its peculiarities and necessities, as in any other vocation.

RODE A HORSE UPSTAIRS.

A "Bad Man" in Memphis Shows His Nerve in a Remarkable Way.

The story of a remarkable feat of horsemanship performed in Mempis recently has just come out. The rider was Henry Douglass, a farmer living near Lake View, Miss., and he rode his horse up a steep flight of stairs to the second story of M. C. Pearce & Co's cotton office on Front street.

The first the clerks in the cotton-room knew of the circus act was when Douglass cantered into the apartment, very drunk, and gave them the time of day. They did not respond, but got out as quickly as possible, as Douglass had a pistol and they knew him to be bad even when not under the influence of liquor. Then Mr. Pearce and City Commissioner Martin Kelly went up and interviewed Douglass, who was riding around in the cotton-room and trying to make his steed mount the sample tables.

They persuaded him to dismount for the purpose of descending with them and taking a drink, and Mr. Pearce called his negro and told him to lead the horse downstairs.

"D—n you," said the owner of the horse to the negro, "if you touch my horse I'll kill you. I have already killed four men and you're a fine subject for the fifth."

The porter declined to undertake the contract and finally Mr. Pearce himself led the animal down without mishap, Commissioner Kelly hanging on to the tail to steady the procession. As soon as Douglass reached the street he was arrested by a policeman and later was lodged in the jail for carrying a pistol, says the St. Louis Republic.

To make the fact more astonishing, the horse he rode is rather wild than otherwsie. Douglass is as handy with his gun as he claims to be. Several years since he killed Oscar Wooldridge the man who killed Frank Waite, a prominent coal dealer and Republican, in this city fifteen years ago.

LIVED ON HIS OWN FLESH.

A Fever-Stricken Maori Goes Through a Shocking Experience.

A correspondent in the native district of Walapu draws a frightful picture of the condition of the Maories. Fever is prevalen and it is very saddening to see how the Maories neglect to use the most ordinary precautions for isolation. They will persist in sitting in a stifling atmosphere in the presence of both dead and dying.

In many settlements the population seems to have become fatalists, and are resorting to old superstitions and using incantations and a ridiculous travesty of spirit-rapping. These influences are most depressing, and no comfort or consolation is offered the sick people, who are sadly neglected, preparations for the death feast often taking place before the eyes of the dying persons, says the New Zealand Evening Post.

Harewera, an old man ill with a fever, was allowed to wander and fell into a swamp. He lay there for some time, and ate earth worms to satisfy his hunger. He also actually bit a piece out of his own arm and sucked his blood. He then crawled into his own place, fell into the fire, and soon died.

Nuta, a schoolboy, recovering from the fever, was allowed to wander into the swamp, and died in two days from relapse, and was buried without a medical certificate.

CURE FOR SLEEPLESSNESS.

Victims of Insomnia Can Hypnotize Themselves Into Slumber.

I have a way of putting myself to sleep that has never failed. But, of course, you wont pay any attention to it because it's so simple. However, here it is:

I close my eyes lightly, and then gently and gradually direct them upward, as if I wanted to look into the the interior of my own skull. The movement must be gentle and gradual or the sudden strain on the nerves will give you a headache, and sometimes there may be some slight discomfort on the first two or three trials, but it wears off rapidly.

After you have retained your eyes in that position for a few moments you feel yourself losing consciousness of time and place and slowly slipping, with delightful smoothness and a kind of dreamy softness, out of the present. I invariably have the one sensation, that of floating in a boat on gently rocking billows that are moving easily away, says a writer in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The process is really a kind of self-hypnotism, and while you are performing it your mind is unable to take up any thread of thought or memory or present to itself any picture other than the one the process itself supplies. It is a very singular thing, and I find that nearly all my acquaintances can repeat after me the self-hypnotic movement.

What a Singer Can Eat.

As to diet, the girl who wants to be a singer should avoid sweets of all kinds. There is nothing better than food of the plainest kind, writes Marie Roze in an article on "How to Preserve the Voice," in the December 'Ladies' Home Journal.' Pastry, nuts, almonds, raisins, pickles, rich sauces are simply poison to a singer, above all people, should partake of only that class of food which digests easily. Never eat closer than two hours before you sing. I go further: if I sing at eight o'clock, I eat at four in the afternoon.

As regards fluids, all are harmful if taken in immoderate quantities. Milk is good, but it is best mixed with soda-water or seltzer. Wines of any kind are injurious, and I cannot be too emphatic in warning all girls who aspire to be singers to abstain from them. I have known some of the most promising voices to be utterly ruined by wine. Fresh and ripe fruit always makes a good diet for a singer, specially grapes.

The voice is regulated by the health of its possessor, and just as she takes care of that or otherwise, so will she make a success or failure. A good voice cannot come from an unhealthy constitution. Never two things were inseparable, they are good health and a good voice. With the former, the latter is possible; without it, vocal excellence is impossible.

You can kill a stream by damming it, but you can't kill a cat that way.

Don't!—If a dealer offers you a bottle of Salvation Oil without wrapper or labels, or in a mutilated condition, don't touch it—don't buy it at any price, there is something wrong—it may be a dangerous or a worthless counterfeit. Insist upon getting a perfect, unbroken, genuine package.

Stonewall Jackson's Religious Views.

So strict was Stonewall Jackson in his religious observances that he never traveled on Sunday, and never posted a letter or took one from mail on that day. He believed, indeed, that it was wrong for the government to carry mails on the Lord's Day. A sketch of the confederate leader in his widow's new memorial of his life shows him to have been a tall, erect and muscular man, with large blue-gray eyes, a Roman nose and ruddy sunburnt cheeks. In refuting the charge that her husband was an awkward horseman, Mrs. Jackson says that it is sufficient to record the fact that he was never thrown from his mount, while his judgement of horses was excellent. In battle he rode with uncovered head along his column, acknowledging the shouts of his devoted men.

Deadly Coal Gas.

NEW ROCKFORD, N. D., Special—George Leitner, twenty years old, living nine miles from this city, was found dead yesterday. He is supposed to have died from asphyxiation by coal gas. He was to have wed next week.

It is strange, but true, that when a man is short of brains he is generally long on collars.

The literature on dress during the last 10 years, would form an imposing collection. Equally curious and imposing also would be the collection of all the empty bottles used in the last ten years for Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

The colonel considers it an equivocal compliment to be told that he fought like a major.

The Only One Ever Printed.

CAN YOU FIND THE WORD? There is a 3 inch display advertisement in this paper, this week, which has no two words alike except one word. The same is true of each new one appearing each week, from The Dr. Harter Medicine Co. This house places a "Crescent" on everything they make and publish. Look for it, send them the name of the word and they will return you BOOK, BEAUTIFUL LITHOGRAPHS OR SAMPLES FREE.

HENRY GIBBONS, aged 70 years, an old resident of Mill Creek, a small mining village four miles from Wilkesbarre, Pa., was gored to death by an infuriated bull.

A Shabby Little Game.

Generally foiled by legal measures ere it has attained any degree of success, and that is the palming off of firey local bitters and trashy tonics as akin to or identical with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The genuine bears a vignette of St. George and the dragon with a minute note of hand, with directions for use on a bronze label. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters eradicate dyspepsia, liver complaint, kidney and rheumatic troubles, malaria and la grippe.

Brand new fashion item—Brown lynx is the favorite fur for sausages this year.

For Coughs and Throat Disorders use Brown's Bronchial Troches. "Have never changed my mind respecting them, except I think better of that which I began by thinking well of."—Rev. Henry Ward Beecher. Sold only in boxes.

A cereal story—a farmer's lie about a big grain crop.

Out of Sorts

Describes a feeling peculiar to persons of dyspeptic tendency, or caused by change of climate, season or life. The stomach is out of order, the head aches or does not feel right,

The Nerves

seem strained to their utmost, the mind is confused and irritable. This condition finds an excellent corrective in Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by its regulating and toning powers, soon cures restores harmony to the system, gives strength of mind, nerves, and body, while it also purifies the blood and removes all trace of Scrofula, Salt Rheum, etc.

Indigestion,

Sick Headache

"Hood's Sarsaparilla has given me good satisfaction. I have been troubled at times with indigestion accompanied by sick headache. It always affords immediate relief.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

certainly does all that is claimed for it," W. D. BUCK, Ticket Broker, Middle St., Portland, Me.

Common Soap

Rots Clothes and Chaps Hands.

IVORY SOAP

DOES NOT.

CONSUMPTION.

I have a positive remedy for the above disease; by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed so strong is my faith in its efficacy, that I will send TWO BOTTLES FREE, with a VALUABLE TREATISE on this disease to any sufferer who will send me their Express and P. O. address. T. A. Slocum, M. C., 183 Pearl St., N. Y.

THE SICK TREATED FREE.

We have discovered a positive and permanent cure for CATARRH, DEAFNESS, CONSUMPTION (first stages) BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, and all diseases of the throat and lungs; to introduce it at once, we will send medicines for THREE MONTHS FREE. We send medicines not prescriptions, and all we ask is that you recommend our treatment after you are cured. The first applicant will obtain the free supply. Address Drs. Moore & Co., 259 W. 7th St, Cincinnati, O.

Print Your own Cards. For 25 Cents we will mail this Rubber Type Printer for cards and Linen Marker, consisting of box of Rubber Type, Indelible Ink, Pad and Holder. Five outfits for $1.00 MINNEAPOLIS STAMP CO., Minneapolis.

BORE WELLS with our famous Well Machinery. The only perfect self-cleaning and fast-dropping tools in use. LOOMIS & NYMAN, TIFFIN, OHIO.

THE "OHIO" WELL DRILL

Catalogue FREE.

ALLEN'S IRON TONIC BITTERS

The most Elegant Blood Purifier, Liver Invigorator, Tonic and Appetizer known. The first Bitters containing Iron ever advertised in America. J. P. ALLEN, Druggist & Chemist, St. Paul, Minn.

N. W. N. U. No. 3.—1892.

"PROMPT AND PERMANENT!"

THE PECULIAR EFFECTS OF

ST. JACOBS OIL

Are Its Prompt and Permanent Cures.

RHEUMATISM.—Jan. 17, 1883, GEORGE C. OSGOOD & CO., Druggists, Lowell, Mass., wrote: "MR. LEWIS DENNIS, 136 Moody St., desires to say that ORRIN ROBINSON, a boy of Graniteville, Mass., came to his house in 1881, walking on crutches; his leg was bent at the knee for two months. Mr. Dennis gave him St. Jacobs Oil to rub it. In six days he had no use for his crutches and went home cured without them."

Lowell, Mass., July 9, '87: "The cripple boy ORRIN ROBINSON, cured by St. Jacobs Oil in 1881, has remained cured. The young man has been and is now at work every day at manual labor." DR. GEORGE C. OSGOOD.

LAMEBACK.—Aberdeen, S. Dak., Sept. 26, 1888: "Suffered several years with chronic stitch in the back: was given up by doctors. Two bottles of St. Jacobs Oil cured me."

HERMAN SCHWAYGEL.

WILSON'S 1892 PLANT, TREE AND SEED CATALOGUE, LIVE STOCK ANNUAL.

112 Pages, 200 Fine Engravings, Handsome Colored Plates. Full of useful and instructive information. Unquestionably one of the most reliable catalogues published. All kinds of guaranteed Garden, Flower, and Field Seeds, Fruit and Ornamental Trees, Small Fruits, Choice Roses, Flowering Plants and Bulbs. Thoroughbred Land and Water Fowls, Registered Pigs, German Hares, &c., &c. Sent free, on application. Address, mentioning this paper,

SAMUEL WILSON, SEED GROWER, MECHANICSVILLE, PA.

Obsequies of the Khedive.

CAIRO, Special—The funeral of the khediv took place this afternoon. The services throughout were of a simple character, but though they were devoid of all ostentation, they were very imposing.

It will require more than nine tailors to make a man of the average dude.

Birds of a feather flock together; women with high hats sit all over the house.

The use of Ely's Cream Balm, a sure cure for Catarrh and Cold in head, is attended with no pain, inconvenience or dread, which can be said of no other remedy.

I feel it my duty to say a few words in regard to Ely's Cream Balm, and I do so entirely without solicitation. I have used it half a year, and found it to be most admirable. I have suffered from catarrh of the worst kind ever since I was a little boy and I never hoped for cure, but Cream Balm seems to do even that. Many of my acquaintances have used it with excellent results.—Oscar Ostrum, 45 Warren Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Apply Balm into each nostril. It is Quickly Absorbed. Gives Relief at once. Price 50 cents at Druggists or by mail. ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren St., New York.

The confidence man refers to himself as a faith curer.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,

When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,

When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,

When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

As a rule the observation of a hotel waiter-girl is soup-or-fishal.

Rev. J. F. Robinson, of Fremont, Neb., who has been running a merchandise business under the name of J. F. Robinson & Co., is charged by his partner with having embezzled $4,500 of their joint funds.

The president has commuted to imprisonment for life at hard labor the sentence of death imposed in the case of Samuel Moore, the colored man convicted of killing Jennie Bowie, the colored girl, in the District of Columbia. He was sentenced to be hanged Jan. 15.

I CURE FITS!

When I say cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office. H. G. ROOT, M. C., 183 Pearl St., N. Y.

PILES, INSTANT RELIEF. Cure in 15 days. Never returns. No purge, no salve no suppository. Remedy Mailed FREE Address J. H. REEVES, Box 3290, N. York City.

FAT FOLKS REDUCED

Mrs. Alice Maple, Oregon, Mo., writes "My weight was 320 pounds, now it is 195, a reduction of 125 lbs." For circulars address, with 6c., Dr. O. W. F. SNYDER, McVicker's Theatre, Chicago, Ill.

ASTHMA CURED TO STAY CURED. We Want Name and Address of Every ASTHMATIC P. Harold Hayes, M.D. BUFFALO, N.Y.

HOW TO MAKE MONEY QUICKLY AND EASILY!

Send 50 cents to pay postage on our Daily Market Report and Special Letter of Advice, for one month. We can make you lots of Money. Agents wanted. Address, S. H. WOOD & CO., Investment Brokers, 212, 213, 214 and 215 Wright Block, Minneapolis, Minn.

DR. HARTER'S
TRADE MARK
WILD CHERRY BITTERS
RELIEVES all Stomach Distress.

REMOVES Nausea, Sense of Fullness, CONGESTION, PAIN.

REVIVES FAILING ENERGY.

RESTORES Normal Circulation, and WARMS TO TOP TOE.

DR. HARTER MEDICINE CO., St. Louis, Mo.

LOVE FOR A DAY.

CHAPTER VII—Continued.

He laid his hand lightly on her beautiful head.

"It is never too late to mend," he said. "I have often wished that you could give a little of your time and attention to charity."

"Why did you not tell me so?" she asked eagerly.

"My dear Louise, there comes a time when every one wakes to the realities of life. Your time had not come.

"I shall never be so careless again. I feel as though all these years I had truly been asleep," said Lady Yorke.

Then they discussed what was best to be done. Lord Yorke suggested that one of the pretty cottages built on modern principles which stood outside Woodheaton should be given to the poor woman rent free until she was better. Lady Yorke was to allow her so much each week until she could earn money herself.

"You must remember one thing, Louise," said his lordship, "that you will meet with many cases quite as pitiful as this, and that it will not do to give all to one."

The next time he met me he took my hand and held it for a moment in his. He looked at my black dress.

"From your own sorrows," he said, "you have learned to feel for others. Heaven bless you!"

Then I knew that he was well pleased I had tried to draw his beautiful young wife from her self-worship and interest her in others.

The next evening, at dessert, she looked critically at some fine grapes that were on her plate. Two days earlier she would have sent them away; now her eyes sought mine, and I knew she was thinking, "What would little sick Annie give for them?"

It was a small beginning, but it led to greater things. Gradually Lady Yorke woke from her long lethargy. She began to interest herself in her own servants, to understand that they had pleasures and sorrows. She lost much of her indolence. She was no longer content to spend the greater part of the day on a couch. She thought more of the widow and orphan in their desolation, of the sick and ailing who wanted help, of the hungry who wanted food.

So life passed on at Westwood, and no great change came until spring. To me every birthday, every Christmas Day, were as milestones on the way to heaven. As I passed each, I was nearer to Mark.

Again the lilacs were in bloom. They were not so plentiful or so beautiful as at Gracedieu, but the sight and the fragrance of them brought back forcibly the remembrance of my lover to me. No words can tell the sharp pain that pierced my heart when I saw the nodding plumes. Lady Yorke was fond of lilacs. While they lasted she would have them in the rooms. I never told her what the sight of them cost me.

The keeper of the west lodge having found a better situation, Mrs. Clinton, with her little daughter, through Lord Yorke's kindness, went to live there. By Lady Yorke's wish I visited them almost every day, the lilacs grew all round the west lodge—tall fine trees, with a wealth of fragrant blossoms. Mrs. Clinton, who could never do enough for me, had gathered some of the finest sprays; and one morning, when I went to see her, she held the bunches of lilac bloom close to my face.

"See, miss," she said, "how fresh they are!"

If I had seen one risen from the dead, I could not have grown more sick at heart. I went home sad and weary. Here was the world waking up again to the beauty and glory of spring, and my heart was sinking, my hope was dead. My lover, to whom my love, my troth, my faith was plighted, was dead. What could spring, sunshine, or bloom of flowers say to me? As I walked home and saw the yellow primroses shining like stars in the grass, and the buds bursting into leaf, I sobbed aloud. I felt so tired of waiting. If some angel-hand would but draw me up to heaven and place me by Mark's side. Oh, my love, how I loved you! All the beauty of earth, the fairness of spring, the brightness of life, were as naught to me, because you were no longer with me!

There were times like these when my courage failed me, when my heart ached, and I could only weep and call on one who would hear me nevermore. It was the sweet odor o the fresh lilacs that had brought Mark so vividly back to me. I could see his face, I could hear his voice, his warm strong hand seemed to clasp mine—and he was dead!

As I entered the house I met Lady Yorke in the hall.

"Will you come to the library, Miss Chester?" she said. "I have some letters I must answer, and some for you to write."

When we were seated there, and she had made those inquiries about the sick child which she never omitted, she showed me a bundle of letters.

"We will have a large party here soon," she said. "This morning I had a letter from Lord Severne. We met him and his wife last year in Italy, and I made him promise that ours should be the first house in England that they would visit. Lord Severne is a great favorite of mine. You have heard of the Severnes of Mount Severne?"

"No," I replied. The man was quite strange to me.

It was a very old title, Lady Yorke told me, but the present successor had come quite unexpectedly into it.

"I must say," continued her ladyship, "that I have been a most indifferent member of society. No one has ever seemed to interest me; but I certainly did like Lord Severene. He is very handsome, but terribly melancholy. He never smiles like any one else."

Finding that it pleased Lady Yorke to speak of her friends, I listened with interest. I banished the lilacs and Mark from my mind: they were of time past.

"We met the Severnes in Florence," Lady Yorke went on, "and both my husband and myself liked Lord Severne very much; but we were not so agreeably impressed by his wife. We were very intimate with them, and went out with them almost every day. Lady Severene is quite unlike her husband. He is earnest, grave, with a strange veil of melancholy always over him; she is the most animated, the gayest and most brilliant woman I have ever met. She tired me in an hour, and I am sure she tired her husband too. He liked to talk quietly with me. He is the only man," she continued, "who has ever really roused my curiosity."

"Why?" I asked.

"Because he appears too good a man to have done any great wrong, and yet he looks like a man with some heavy trouble on his mind. I am sure you will like him, Miss Chester, but I am not sure whether you will like his wife. She has such a strange name too."

"What is it?' I asked. I had never heard Lady Yorke say so much about any living creature. "Luline," she replied. "Now can you fancy any sensible woman with a name like that?"

"Her name is her misfortune, not her fault," I said. "I like it, Lady Yorke. It is fanciful and uncommon."

"It is like herself," declared her ladyship. "Well, Miss Chester, we must have a party to meet them. Lord Severne himself does not care about society, but Lady Severne lives for it only. We must have plenty o visitors, and plenty of gayety to amuse her."

"She is a troublesome visitor," I said, with a laugh.

"Yes; but she is a power in herself. She is one of those women who sweep all before them. Lord Yorke could only compare her to a whirlwind. Yet I cannot imagine how she has persuaded her husband to return to England. When we were in Florence, she said nothing would induce her to live in this climate. We will ask Lady Mary Avon and her brother Sir Charles to meet them. Lady Severne is more than a match in conversation for any six gentlemen at once."

"Is she a flirt?" I asked.

"To tell you the truth, Miss Chester, I could never make out exactly what she was. I only know that we liked her husband, and for his sake we endured her, as we shall endure her again. They will be here next Tuesday, so we must hasten to send out the invitations."

And as I wrote them I wondered much what Lady Severne could be like.

CHAPTER VIII.

I had found the generality of guests at Westwood at such a dead level, that I thought very little of the coming visitors. It was evident that Lady Yorke was deeply interested in them, but then she had said candidly that it was Lord Severne rather than his wife who had pleased her. We had many discussions about them, and it seemed to me that Lady Severne did not stand very high in estimation either of husband or wife. Lord Yorke, who was kindness and charity itself, mentioned her always in a tone of toleration, yet at the same time leaving an impression that she was what Lady Yorke called a "power."

"Is Lady Severne very beautiful?" I asked Lady Yorke on the morning when her guests were expected to arrive.

"Very; she has one of those faces with a roseate bloom, and her complexion is simply incomparable. But, beautiful as she is, I do not like her. You are a good judge of character; you will be able to judge for yourself when they come."

Lord and Lady Severne were to reach Westwood on Tuesday, the twentieth of May. Lady Yorke had ordered a lavish supply of magnificent flowers to be placed in Lady Severne's room.

"That is one point in her character which I like," said Lady Yorke; "she is very fond of flowers. It pleases me always to see a woman fond of flowers." Then she continued, with something of a conscious blush on her face, "Miss Chester, I know I shall be very much engaged while the Severnes are here, but I must not neglect my poor. I hope I shall never fall again into that terrible apathetic way of thinking of no one but myself. If it be really impossible for me to leave home, you will undertake any little commission for me, will you not?"

I would have gone anywhere for her; I was so rejoiced to see the earnest, kindly expression on the face that had once revealed nothing but self-love and discontent.

Every preparation had been made for our visitors. Lady Mary Avon and her brother Sir Charles were two handsome, fashionable persons, rich and popular. Lady Mary had many admirers, but could not tolerate the word "marriage;" Sir Charles was looking out for a wife. Captain Forrester was heir-presumptive to an earldom, and was consequently much sought after. Sir Harry de Burgh was a young Irish baronet, one of the most popular men in England, and Lady Grey was a young widow with a large fortune.

"A well-assorted party of guest," said Lady Yorke, complacently; "and the great beauty of the arrangement is that they will amuse each other. Lord Servene will generally fall to my lot, if the same thing happens here that took place invariably in Italy. He liked to saunter by my side in his grave melancholy fashion, while Lady Severne generally attracted all the men to herself. She will do the same here. I am so glad," continued Lady Yorke, "that you sing so beautifully, Miss Chester. Lord Severne likes music. His wife sings, but he does not care for her style, and always discourages her."

Tuesday came, a bright morning, but with the warning of a coming rain-storm on its face. There was a low wail in the wind, a darkening at times of the sky, a strange stillness in the air such as always precedes a storm.

It was midday when a message came from Woodheaton; asking help for a poor family, one of whom—the father—was dangerously ill, the wife had met with a severe accident, and the children were destitute. The poor were beginning to know to whom they should send; they were beginning to love Lady Yorke, for they knew that no one ever asked her help in vain. She came to me and asked me to act for her.

"I must be here to receive our visitors," she said. "I give you carte blanche, Miss Chester."

"So it was as Lady Yorke's almoner that I went out on that day. Lord Yorke bade me beware of the threatening storm, but I told him I did not think it would break until the morrow. But, when I was on the point of returning from Woodheaton, the rain descended in torrents. For an ordinary shower I should not have cared in the least, but this storm was terrible. It seemed as though the heavens were opened, such a tempest raged on that fair, tranquil country-side. The sky was like lead, the wind blew fiercely; and then lightning flashed and thunder came. The storm lasted some hours; and when the sky cleared and the rain ceased it was night. Lady Yorke, who was always thoughtful, sent a closed carriage after me.

As we drove up the avenue, the carriage stopped suddenly, and the coachman sprung down from the box and came to me.

"Do you see what has happened, Miss Chester," he asked.

Looking out, I saw by the pale watery gleam of the moon that a great beech-tree, said to be the largest and finest of its kind in England, and called "The Pride of Westwood," had been blown down.

"Why, his lordship will be more grieved over this tree than if half the house had been blown down!" said the coachman, in a grave voice. I am very sorry, miss, but you see the branches reach all across the drive. I cannot take the carriage any further; I must go back to the court-yard."

I saw that the honest simple man, a faithful retainer of the House of Yorke, was deeply distressed. He shook his head as he led the frightened horse away.

"I never like such great trees to fall, Miss Chester," he said. "They are the glory of a house. I always think bad luck follows."

I cannot tell why, but, as I went to my room a sense of oppression and coming sorrow seized me. I could not believe in the superstition that the falling of a great tree must mean evil. That was nonsense. But my heart was heavy, my brain oppressed.

Fortunately for me. I was a great favorite with Mrs. Masham, the housekeeper, and when she heard that I had returned, she hastened to my room. Any idea I might have had of going to the drawing-room was speedily abandoned. She stood before me, stern as a judge.

"You look ill, Miss Chester. You have taken cold. You must go to bed, and I will send you something warm to drink."

I murmured a few words about the visitors and music, but she was peremptory.

"No, miss not to-night. You must take care of yourself; you have been out in the wet all day amongst those poor people. I know what it is; you must rest now. Her ladyship would desire it I am sure."

There was nothing for it but to obey. Yet I could not sleep. The wind murmured sullenly through the wood, and the great branches rustled. My thoughts were full of the misery that I had witnessed that day, of the terrible storm, of the fallen tree, of the guests now under the some roof. Whenever the door opened, I heard the sound of music and laughter; the house seemed all brilliancy and merriment. Mrs. Masham told me that the visitors had come. All words had failed her in trying to describe Lady Severne; she raised in speechless wonder her hands and eyes.

"Beauty does not come near it, Miss Chester," she said, after a time. "Our Lady Yorke is a beautiful woman, but Lady Severne's face dazzles one. The husband, Lord Severne, seems quiet; he is a handsome man, but very melancholy.

She contrived to give a fair description to all of our visitors, and, very much to my surprise, finished by saying—

"Ah, Miss Chester, you would have been queen of them all if you did not look so sad and would not always wear mourning!"

That night terrible dreams came to me of Mark. Mark was out in the storm, and I could not find him. Mark was struck by lightning, and lay before me, dead. Mark was under the fallen tree, mangled and crushed. My dreams were always of Mark in peril, in danger, and dead.

CHAPTER IX.

Wednesday morning—a day never to be forgotten; the twenty-first of May—a date ever to be remembered! I rose with the sun. The morning was so beautiful that one could hardly believe in the clouds and storm of the day before. The air was sweet and fresh after the rain; the grass was of a brighter green, the leaves had a deeper hue, and the flowers held up their heads with renewed life.

When I opened my window, the odor of the lilacs came to me. I could see far away the laburnum and the tall chestnut trees. The fragrance from the lilacs sent my mind and heart back to Mark. I remembered how he had always loved the early morning, the fresh sweet air, the glint of the sun on the leaves. But he had loved to go over the green fields and woodland ways that he had loved so well; the music of wind and leaf had reached him no longer. A longing impatience seized me for the time when I, in Heaven's mercy, should stand by his side.

I forgot the terrors of the previous day; I forgot all about the visitors in the house. My heart was on fire with the anguish of my bitter desolation. Never since Mark had left me on that bright July morning had I longed so eagerly for his presence. I went out, for the house seemed all too small to hold me and my great sorrow—out where I could see the blue heavens. Ah, me, how fair was the morning, and how sweet were the lilacs! It could not hurt me to dream for a few minutes, to loosen the bands that sorrow had fastened round me, to weep as I had wept when Mark went from me.

I went to the lilac-trees, fresher and sweeter than ever after the rain, and sat down. The warm May sunshine fell around me, the birds were calling to each other, the dew lay upon the grass. I tried to forget the present and live for a short time in the past. I pictured the May morning at Gracedieu, on my seventeenth birthday, the pretty old home buried in the trees, the distant gleam of the river, the shade of the deep green woods, and the lovely group of lilac-trees the topmost bough of which I could not reach. I saw the dark, handsome face of my lover, so frank, so brave, so true; his dark eyes smiled into mine; his voice, than which to me, earth had held no sweeter music, was in my ears.

"Oh, Mark," I cried aloud, "why could I not have died with you?"

Merciful Heaven, what was that? I rose to my feet with a cry. What was it? A figure coming slowly toward me, tall and stately, but with a drooping head, walking with slow uncertain step. Oh, Heaven, who was it—what was it? I stood paralyzed. My heart beat so violently that I could almost hear it; my hands shook; all the warmth and color left my face. White, breathless, trembling at the same moment with terror and joy, bewildered and amazed. I stood as though my feet were rooted to the ground. What was it?

Coming slowly toward me, yet not seeing me, buried in thought, the sunshine falling on his bowed head was Mark. Surely, if Mark had ever lived, this was he? If the sun shone in heaven, if I was sane, that was Mark—Mark, for whom I hed wept as dead—my handsome, true, dear lover come back to me! I tried to utter his name, but the sound died on my lips. I tried to move toward him; I could not stir. He was coming nearer. Ah, yes, it was Mark! Oh, my heart! I could have cried out in gratitude to Heaven, and have died. I saw the strong dear hands that had held my own; I saw the dark face, older and sadder than when we had parted, I saw the loving eyes, full now of wistful sadness.

He was not dead then, but living and well! He had been to Gracedieu in search of me, and the rector, with whom I had left my address, had sent him hither. He had been to the house to ask for me, and the servants had told him that I was out in the park.

He would explain his long cruel absence. He had come back to me; he was true, and loyal; he had come to make me his wife; and I—oh, Heaven, I should be happy at last!

He was nearer to me now. I grasped the low branch of a tree to keep myself from falling. I called to Heaven to give me strength. My heart beat madly, my brain burned, my senses seemed almost to have left me. I saw only him, and as he came to the trees where I was standing I cried—

"Mark, Mark!"

I was mad—Heaven forgive me!—quite mad. My mother had warned me not to make an idol of any creature; and here I was on my knees before this idol that I had made for myself. I kissed his hands, sobbing the while as though my heart would break, tears raining from my eyes. I could only cry—

"Mark, Heaven has sent you back to me! Oh, my love, how I love you!"

He raised me in his arms. Once again the strong clasp held me; once again the arms of my true love were around me. Would to Heaven the angel of death had smitten me as I lay there!

I heard him cry, "Nell! Is it you, Nellie?" and the sound of the dearly-loved voice drove me mad again. I clung to him and kissed him with an anguish of passion known only to those who love as I loved.

TO BE CONTINUED.

KISSING IS NOT WICKED

That Is, If You Are Really and Truly in Love With the Girl.

"Is kissing permissible before marriage?"

Yes, replies the Boston Globe, if the kiss is given with the intention of one day making her your wife. But to kiss and persuade the young lady to believe she is the "only girl you ever loved," when in reality she only gratifies the conceit that is common to the young men of to-day, is a deception consequently, a sin.

It certainly is not manly to put forth every effort to win a girl's love when you yourself are not capable of loving as you should before you ask for a kiss.

As regards the games spoken of, are the kisses given there in the glare of the gaslight, before all your acquaintances, the kind you would give to the one you love? Love, you know, especially with the young people of to-day, is too shy to admit with such a bold declaration.

Sometimes you kiss the girl that you like, but do not love, when the one you really love is sitting contentedly in a corner, knowing that her turn will come "at the gate" with "no one but the stars to see" (unless, perhaps the mother). Of course this is true, if you are like other young men.

But if you are true to her and to the love you bear toward her, in jest or in earnest, you will not give to others that which is hers by right of love.

My dear friend, kissing is not a sin; if it were a sin, why should it be admitted into the most sacred, most beautiful ceremony within the realms of Christianity—that of marriage?

Do not kiss a girl because she is pretty, or because you like to kiss girls in general, but argue in you, heart whether she is the one of all others to whom you would give your kisses.

It Ate Oil Cans.

Messrs. Tilley, Tooley and Manker, said to be three of Clay City Ill.'s most reputable citizens, engaged in lumbering on Coon Creek, in the western part of that county, had quite a thrilling experience a short time ago with a monster reptile, the genus and species of which are not down in the nomenclature of natural history. On Tuesday afternoon, while squirrel hunting, the piteous howls of Tootsey, the favorite canine, reached their ears. Upon rushing to the spot from whence proceeded the howling they discovered poor Tootsey in the coils of a huge snake that was rapidly proceeding to swallow his dogship.

In his excitement Tooley rushed in to rescue his pet, when the snake released the dog and attacked Tooley, around whose lower extremities it began to coil itself. A simultaneous discharge from the firearms of Tilly and Manker blew off the reptile's head and he was rescued. The snake was of an unknown species, and upon measurement proved to be 9 feet, 2 inches in length. It was of a greenish color with red spots. The stuffed skin of the snake is now in possession of Mr Manker. The snake was cut open by Mr. Tilley, who found therein two young goslings, two ducks, a young pig, and an oil can which had been missed from the saw mill a few days before.—Clay City, Ill., Advocate.

WOMAN'S OWN SPHERE.

MATTERS OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO THE LADIES.

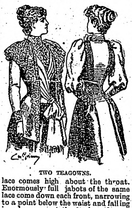
Some Interesting Gossip About Fashions—Women With Noble Titles—When Asked to Receive—A Japanese Work Bag.

For Fashions Votaries.

In evening gowns, some very unique and pretty designs are seen, among them might be mentioned a fresh importation from Paris, it is magnificently simple in shot moire of the palest green and pink brocaded all over with tints of fine gold. The skirt is perfectly plain, with an exquisite cut gored train. The short sleeves right beneath stand high and puffy on top of the shoulder. A corselet of rich passementerie covers the low waist from waist to hip, outlined either side with jewelled galon in pale green, pale pink and gold. Another is a princess gown, very close and clinging, of daffodil yellow satin, drapped diagonally from shoulder to waist, both back and front with a wide brocaded sash in Louis XVI colors upon a delicate grey, blue ground, one end comes to the foot in lace comes high about the throat. Enormously full jabots of the same lace come down each front, narrowing to a point below the waist and falling in a deep cape at the back and over the shoulders. The other gown shown in the illustration is of gray cloth and velvet and is a miracle of style. The back is cut princess and is seamless till it reaches the velvet side-forms that are prolonged into deep skirts. Gray silk cord outlines all the seams. The lapping front has one deep revere outlined with a line of sable, the narrowest possible edge. A wonderful cravat of jonquil yellow crepe comes close under the chin, and takes away all the hardness from the scheme of color. Without it the brown fur and gray color might have lacked harmony. Cloth and fur must either match or harmonize.

EVENING DRESS.

A pretty tea gown is the front view shown in the illustration and is made of dull blue silk plush lined throughout with the softest rich cream surah, the loose vest of light, pale blue China crepe, inside of which creamy antique front, the other falls over the long gored train, each of the seams of which are outlined with an edge of brown fur, and finished at the hem with a big cabbage bow of brown satin to which the sash ends have a fringe of all the brocade colors.



TWO TEAGOWNS.

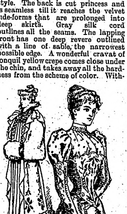
The costume shown in the third illustration is a marvel of the dressmaker's art, it is of biscuit cloth very elaborately applique with dashy brown velvet, all up the skirt at whose foot there is a border of moufflon upon ten inches deep. The sleeves and waist are of spangled crimson velvet. For the nonce this is hidden under a deep cape of moufflon with yoke and collar of applique matching the skirt—and in front long pleats of the cloth fall quite to the foot.



WITH AND WITHOUT CAPE.

Women With Noble Titles.

Amelie, wife of Dom Carlos, King of Portugal and daughter of the Comte de Paris, was born in 1865. Her eldest son, the heir apparent, is named Luiz Filippe, and is known as Prince Royal and Duke of Braganza. He was born in 1887, so that he already has reached that ripe age when he is able to leave the nursery with firm step, and can stand without trembling on the verge of promotion from long clothes to knickerbockers. Queen Amelie is a good representative of the best qualities of the Bourbon-Orleans family. As her father is the most gifted and variously accomplished of all the French princes and pretenders, so the favorite daughter is admirably fitted by nature and training to perform with grace and distinction all the duties of the leader of a court. In appearance she is tall and stately, apparently born to command. She is something of a musician and paints well in water colors. Until a year before her marriage she was under the tuition of some of the best teachers France and England could afford, and she has profited by the instruction to the extent that she can enter heartily into all the philanthropic schemes of Lisbon, and into all the plans of her husband and his Ministers for the benefit of the people.

When Asked to Receive.

If one of your women-friends asks you to "receive" with her at any function she has a definite reason for so doing. She doesn't expect you to stand with her all the afternoon and do nothing but greet and dismiss guests—that is her special privilege as hostess. The unwritten law for those who are asked to receive with the hostess is otherwise. It is their part to do what the hostess, who is busy with incoming guests, cannot do. These assistants may at the first stand in line with the hostess until the rooms begin to be filled; then they should gradually withdraw, leaving one of the number to act as special assistant to the hostess, and it should be their mission to break up the stiff little pauses following introductions, to see that isolated and timid people are brought among those who have the most savoir faire, to invite guests out to the dining room, and see that they are properly served, to make the stranger feel specially welcome, to break up little groups of intimates, in short, to diffuse a sweet and gracious courtesy everywhere, to make every guest feel that he or she is an object of special consideration, to do what no hostess, no matter how fine her tact, can accomplish, because she cannot make a dozen people of herself all at once.

A Japanese Work Bag.

It may be called that because it is made out of a Japanese fan with the brass pin removed from the sticks so that the entire fan lies flat and smooth. Then the two outer edges are gummed firmly together and a ribbon threaded in the hole through which the brass pin passed and then drawn closely, giving the fan a conical form. Ribbons are then passed in and out between the sticks and tied in bows at the terminus. Long loops of ribbon suspend the fan bag at the top, and inside of it is set a pasteboard box lined with silver paper, and a large slip about halfway down the receptacle. Before the box is slipped in, the bag may or may not have a lining of this china silk drawn to a point inside. This little bag is used for spools and light needlework.

The Shoulder Watch.

Where do you think the swagger young woman is wearing her watch just now? On her shoulder, not on the top of it, to be sure, but just in front of the arm. The chatelaine attachment which used to fasten it to the belt is gone, and the watch is held in place by a brooch made for that purpose in the form of a true lovers' knot or the fleur de lis; and pinned up conspicuously on her shoulder. Inside her wraps on her gown? Not a bit of it, outside where any passer by can see the time o'day, and where it must be excellent prey for the skillful fingers of thieves.

Five O'Clock Tea.

It looks as if the "postage stamp" bonnets were coming into fashion again.

Everything for milady's dressing table these days must be silver.

The souvenir spoon enthusiasm is declining with significant rapidity.

Bow-knot pins have come to stay long enough for every maiden to have one.

Pearl necklaces on boney and red necks suggest a very homely proverb.

A physician says fashionable houses are too well stuffed with luxury to be healthy.

Just at present the floral shaded lamps are in highest favor for the dinner table.

Some of the newest Mackintoshes are a splendid imitation of Scotch shawls.

Hall clocks of "white and gold" are enough to make the departed Dutch turn over.

Garnets are unusually fashionable, not only as jewelry, but for trimming costumes.

Men who have polished collars and cuffs should be told they are in "bad form."

Coaching cloth overgaiters are the most in favor now among men and women.

Bird-of-Paradise fans are the latest; they recall to mind "Mrs. Leo Hunter."

After this winter leading modistes say, the puffed sleeve will go out of style.

Wide gold band bracelets, such as were fashionable years ago, are revived.

One of the best things for the ruination of kid gloves is the silver vinaigrette.

Velvet and sable is one of the very latest combinations in outdoor wraps.

PULLED HER WIDE OPEN.

How John Burns Saved a Hundred Lives—One of Those Stories That Make the Cold Shivers Roll Up Your Back.

"Let me tell you an instance of heroism of a railroad engineer," said C. K. Wilbur, western passenger agent of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railroad.

"I forget the précise date, but it was somewhere about the beginning of the year when John Burns showed what he was made of. He was then in charge of engine No. 34, weighing about a hundred tons, and drawing eight passenger coaches, a baggage and an express car. The train was No. 5, the fast New York and Chicago express, westward bound. It was miserable railroading weather that day, almost a continous light snow fall or frosty drizzle, a state of things much dreaded by engineers, as it almost obscures their veiw ahead. Mainly on account of the wretched weather No. 5 was behind time.

"Between Buffalo and Irving station, there is a long down-grade stretch, and here the engineer attempted to 'catch up to schedule' by running at the rate of about 55 miles an hour.

"On the other track was a fast and heavy laden cattle train out of Chicago for New York. About a mile east of Irving the cattle train was badly wrecked. A number of the cars splintered up into kindling, most of the cattle were killed, and worst of all, two of the least injured cars were thrown across the track of No. 5, then rapidly approaching at tremendous speed. The engineer and brakeman of the cattle train were either killed or too severely injured to signal the express. Things looked pretty black for No. 5, and the occupants of its eight crowded passenger coaches.

"John Burns and engine No. 34 were within a hundred feet of the wreck before it was possible to see that anything was wrong. Then he took in the situation in one swift glance. As he told me afterwards, just two courses were open. He could reverse put on the brakes and jump off just before his engine crashed into the cattle cars and thus in all likelihood save his own life. But the train could by no possibility be stopped in time to prevent a terrible wreck of the passenger coaches. There must inevitably be a frightful collision and a great loss of life. The other course was to throw open the valve and try to drive the 100-ton engine at lightning speed clean through the wreck. There was about one chance in ten that ponderous No. 34 could tear the cattle cars in halves and bring the passenger coaches through with nothing worse than a terrible shaking up. But where would John Burns be even if the maneuvre succeeded? Probably scalded to death or ground to atoms by the collision.

"Possibly it did not take John a thousandth part as long to size up the situation as it has taken me to tell it. In a thrilling fraction of a second he weighed the lives of all those passengers against his own and, shouting to his fireman, 'tare her wide open' he sent No. 34 with all her thunderous force square into the cattle cars. The locomotive went right through like a knife and carried the train with her. No sooner was the wreck cleared than Burns reversed and stopped the train.

"Happily, in the car behind the engine there was a baggageman (I cannot recall his name) who possessed that rare but valuable quality—presence of mind. He took in the situation at a glance and ran into the rear cars, shouting loudly to the passengers to rush to the outer side, the one opposite the great mass of the wreck. He was able to run swiftly through two coaches before the crash came. The sides of these two coaches next the wreck were almost entirely torn out, but none of the passengers were killed, although a number of them were more or less injured. Thus through the daring heroism of an engineer and the presence of mind of a baggageman not a life was lost, when several hundreds of them were in deadly peril.

"The engine tender, and baggage-car were entirely demolished. I am happy to say, however, that brave John Burns was not killed, though one of his arms was terribly scalded, and he was bruised and cut. After a short time on the sick-list he went back to his cab, and is on his regular run now. Despite the asserted ingratitude of corporations, you may be sure that as long as the Lake Shore turns a wheel John Burns will be taken care of."

FORCEPS FOR EAST INDIA.

The Belief That Evil Spirits Cause the Toothache Has Died Out.

East India has a dearth of dentists. She no longer believes that the toothache is an evil spirit, so she has sent some of her sons to this country to learn dentistry. One of them arrived at the barge office recently, says the New York Advertiser. He is Martin Zoebel, and is tall and swarthy, although a delicate-looking young man. He is detained pending a medical examination.

Martin came over in the steerage to save money and study human nature He found plenty of subjects for study. Martin is bright and intelligent, and is the son of a wealthy East Indian planter. His ill health is due to fifty days of travel under trying circumstances. He expects to study at the Philadelphia Dental College. "Our people," he said, are fast becoming enlightened. The 'good' and 'evil' spirits so much believed in years ago are losing their hold. A toothache years ago would be accepted with resignation by the average East Indian, but the contact with travelers has been the means of completely reversing this belief, and we now look for toothache drops and hot applications as a relief for toothache as eagerly as the more enlightened.

"This diversion from time-honored custom is naturally followed by other diversions, and now the dentist, with his forceps and rubber dams and gold fillings, has become a much desired adjunct to the East Indian's life. There is a demand for dentists in my country, and that's why I am going to Philadelphia to study."

Prohibition Not In It.

Salesman—Now, here is a great thing, this pneumatic tire bicycle. You see the tires are hollow, and—

Mr. Wheeler, from Portland, Me.—How much do you suppose they'd hold?—Boston Herald.

COPYRIGHT 1891

Every one suffers from Catarrh in the Head. Those who don't have it suffer from those who do. It's a disease you can't keep to yourself.

Here are some of the symptoms: Headache, obstruction of nose, discharges falling into throat, sometimes profuse, watery, and acrid, at others, thick, tenacious, mucous, purulent, bloody, putrid, and offensive; eyes weak, ringing in ears, deafness; offensive breath; smell and taste impaired, and general debility. But only a few of these likely to be present at once.

The cure for it—for Catarrh itself, and all the troubles that come from it—a perfect and permanent cure, is Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. The worst cases yield to its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties. A record of 25 years has proved that to its proprietors—and they're willing to prove it to you.

They do it in this way: If they can't cure your Catarrh, no matter how bad your case, or of how long standing, they'll pay you $500 in cash. Can you have better proof of the healing power of a medicine?

A REMINISCENCE.

How a Prohibited Article of Diet Was Admitted to the Table.

An Atlantic Monthly of twenty years ago gives an experience belonging to a time when enthusiastic dreamers made wild experiments of "living near nature," and tried to gain sweetness and serenity through earning their own bread by manual labor.

In one such community, each person did a certain amount of house or farm work, and all confined themselves rigidly to vegetable food.

One of the number, however, a somewhat irreverent and skeptical lad, not approving of the prohibition of salt, kept a small box of it on his knee during meal times and slyly dipped his vegetables therein.

His next neighbor discovered the secret and quietly shared the concealed treasure until a certain day, when by some luckless chance the box fell to the floor.

"We hoped," he says, "that the incident might pass unnoticed, but Abel, the most rampant of our philosophers, stretched his long neck across the corner of the table and caught a glimpse of what was going on.

"What's that?" he asked.

"'Oh, it's only—only chloride of sodium,' gasped I, recklessly, giving the chemical name of common salt.

"Chloride of sodium? What do you do with it?"

"'Eat it with onions,' I answered boldly. 'It's a chemical substance, but I believe it's found in some plants.'

"Here one member of the party, who knew some thing about chemistry, grew red with suppressed laughter, but the others were as ignorant as Abel himself.

"'Let me taste it,' said he.

"I handed him the box-lid, which still contained a portion of the contents. He dipped an onion in it, bit off a piece, and chewed it gravely.

"'Why,' said he, turning to me, "it's very much like salt!'

"Perkins, the boy, burst into a spluttering yell, and the others, catching the joke, hilariously joined him.

"But while we were laughing Abel finished his onion, and the result was that salt was added to the 'True Food,' and thereafter appeared regularly on the table."

SYRUP of FIGS

ONE ENJOYS

Both the method and results when Syrup of Figs is taken; it is pleasant and refreshing to the taste, and acts gently yet promptly on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels, cleanses the system effectually, dispels colds, headaches and fevers and cures habitual constipation. Syrup of Figs is the only remedy of its kind ever produced, pleasing to the taste and acceptable to the stomach, prompt in its action and truly beneficial in its effects, prepared only from the most healthy and agreeable substances, its many excellent qualities commend it to all and have made it the most popular remedy known.

Syrup of Figs is for sale in 50c and $1 bottles by all leading druggists. Any reliable druggist who may not have it on hand will procure it promptly for any one who wishes to try it. Do not accept any substitute.

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
LOUISVILLE, KY. NEW YORK, N.Y.

PISO'S CURE FOR

Consumptives and people who have weak lungs or Asthma, should use Piso's Cure for Consumption. It has cured thousands. It has not injured one. It is not bad to take. It is the best cough syrup. Sold everywhere. 25c.

CONSUMPTION.

FARMERS' ALLIANCE

The State Convention of the Farmers' Alliance Meets in Minneapolis.

Ignatius Donnelly Re-elected President Without Much Opposition.

MINNEAPOLIS MINN., Special—The Annual convention of the Minnesota Farmers' Alliance convened in Minneapolis with about 600 delegates present.

They were welcomed on behalf of the city by Mayor Winston, in a very appropriate speech.

O. F. Erickson welcomed the delegates in the name of the Minneapolis wage worker.

A committee on credentials was appointed, of which Andrew Steenerson of Polk was made chairman. Johnson of Pipestone was made reading clerk, Kinner of Jackson document clerk, and Greenman of Dodge assistant secretary.

President Donnelly then delivered his annual address. He opened up with some alliance statistics, then with an explanation of the failure to get out the 57,000 pamphlets containing Alliance literature. He expressed dissatisfaction with the work of the lecture bureau during the past year and said in regard to the election of a new lecturer:

We do not want to elect any man simply as an honor to him, and then have him stay at home and do nothing. You must have the strongest assurances that he will work—work—work to the utmost of his ability; for the lecture bureau is the very heart, kernel and marrow of the whole Alliance organization. This it is that has created nearly all our Alliances, and this it is that must keep them alive after they are organized.

Mr. Donnelly here opened up on the newspapers in a severe denouncement. He said:

Our plunderers know that the people have votes enough to vote them down and correct all abuses. They cannot keep us from the ballot box with guns and cannon. Their only resource is to deceive us through the agency of newspapers, which enter into every house and penetrate into every mind. The editors of these sheets are valued for their powers of sophistry and misrepresentation. They seldom attack the Alliance openly. They seek to undermine it by denouncing its honest leaders and praising its traitorous leaders. Wherever there is any difference in our ranks they seek to pry it open with crowbars of falsehood and defamation. The lying capacity of the newspapers of America is the most colossal exhibition of mendacity known in the world since the Almighty tumbled Lucifer over the embattlements of heaven. It is stupendous—it is illimitable—it takes away the breath of simple virtue and bewilders honest truth into paralysis. It threatens all our conceptions of primal right and forbodes the destruction of civilization. It is a new and terrible force in society, of which antiquity knew nothing.

In speaking of the money power in politics the sage scored the Wall street men severely.

In conclusion he gave the Minneapolis millers a roast, saying:

It would be interesting to see the elevator men and speculators of Minneapolis saying to the Russian farmers: "Here is a shipload of flour; we stole a thousand times as much from the farmers of the Northwest, but they are not starving, although badly mortgaged, and we thought we could give you this much, because we know we can steal another ship load any day in the year from the farmers of Minnesota. As trustee, therefore, for the Farmer's Alliance of Minnesota, we hand over to you miserable devils this noble contribution. Bow down and worship us as generous hearted men."

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The principal business of the afternoon session was the election of a president.

P. H. Rahilly, of Wabasha placed in nomination, Ignatius Donnelly.

Frank Hoskins, of Henning nominated Mr. Brandenburg, which caused considerable excitement, and some hot words passed back and forth before order was obtained.

Several other nominations were made. A ballot was then taken which resulted as follows:

Donnelly, 472; Brandenburg, 144; Owen, 4; Meigher, 1; Champlin, 4; Bjorge, 20.

Mr. Donnelly's election was made unanimous, and being called upon for a speech, he responded in a short speech of acceptance in which he scored the other political parties and gave words of advice to the Alliance adjuring the members to do all in their power to make the coming year a successful one for the movement.

Mrs. McDonald-Valesh, the state lecturer, made her annual report, which contained some very valuable information.

Then came a flood of resolutions of every color and kind. Inasmuch as the convention was not a formerly organized one, they were merely read and referred to the committee on resolutions. Many of the resolutions were pertinent and full of justice and wisdom, while others were nothing more or less than ludicrous. When the committee on credentials made its report the delegates found an opportunity to indulge in a little laughing. To facilitate matters it was moved to read the names of the counties and the number of votes each was entitled to, instead of the name of each delegate, which would take considerable time. Many of the delegates, however, were anxious to hear their names trumpeted through "the curtained halls," and so precipitated a lengthy argument by objecting vigorously. Happily, however, their ambitious desires were not gratified.

The reports were all accepted and before the convention adjourned to convene again in the evening, President Donnelly announced the following two committees:

Resolutions—Dr. E. W. Fish, chairman, Ramsey; James Hanna, Renville; A. D. Ferris, Pipestone; F. Elwell, Goodhue; H. L. Burgess, Otter Tail; P. H. Rahilly, Wabasha; Gilbert Fish, Rice; B. F. Warren, Murray; D. W. Hixon, Grant; T. L. Gilbert, Redwood; W. Perkins, McLeod; George Mennie, Lincoln; Lysander Cook, Blue Earth; W. A. Hotchkiss, Filmore; J. M. Betts, Lincoln.

Constitution—A. D. Stewart, chairman, Redwood; J. J. Monney, Yellow Medicine; J. H. Baker, Blue Earth, J. Q. Cronkhite, Marshall; J. I. Vermilya, Olmsted; C. F. Bohall, Todd; P. Kershaw, Stevens; F. T. Taylor, Dakota; F. R. Davis, Lacqui Parle; Hon. F. Borchart, Renville; W. Murphy, Stearns; A. Kruger, Wabasha; J. Hynes, Nobles; W. Nash, Big Stone; F. M. Currier, Blue Earth.

SECOND DAY.

The first business was the election of a secretary. The following nominations were made: O. N. Kingsbury, of Fillmore; Louis Hanson, of Clay; A. L. Stromberg, of Forest Lake.

The vote was announced as follows: Kingsbury, 2; Stromberg, 284; Louis Hanson, 259.

Mr. Stromberg was declared elected.

For state lecturer, Dr. Fish, Gen. J. H. Baker and Daniel Duncan were nominated. The ballot resulted as follows: Fish, 300; Baker, 228; Duncan, 22. On motion Dr. Fish's election was made unanimous.

H. P. Bjorge, of Otter Tail was elected treasurer.

Resolved, That we demand that the governor of Minnesota, William R. Merriam, demand the resignation of our present railroad and warehouse commission and appoint a new board of commissioners that will enforce the law, or tender his resignation as governor of Minnesota.

On motion a committee of nine was appointed to investigate the grain dealers of the state as was also a similar committee to investigate lumber trusts.

Before the meeting adjourned the following resolution was adopted:

A recess was then taken to allow the delegates to caucus by districts for vice presidents. Their deliberations resulted in the following selection:

First district, T. J. Meighen, Fillmore; Second, C. H. Johnson, Pipe Stone; Third, H. V. Poore, Renville; Fourth, Andrew Richmond, Washington; Fifth, Jonas Howe, Hennepin; Sixth, Charles F. Bohall, Todd; Seventh, B. M. Chesley, Norman.

The finance committee of the Alliance was then named, as follows:

First district Charles Johnson; Second, Pat Gildea Murray; Third, D. F. Aitkin, Dakota; Fourth, S. W. Powell, Washington; Fifth, A. S. Neal, Hennepin; Sixth, O. G. Lyman, Stearns; Seventh, Swan Nelson, Kandiyohi.

Then came the question of the selection of ten delegates to the St. Louis convention—one from each district and three at large. The districts made the selections, which were as follows:

At large, Ignatius Donnelly, chairman; First, T. J. Vermilya, Olmstead; Second, A. D. Steward, Redwood; Third, Ferdinand Bachen, Renville; Gilbert Fish, Rice, alternate; Fourth, E. W. Fish, Ramsey; Fifth, L. H. Schofield; Sixth, O. F. Bolwell, Todd; M. Hamilton, alternate; Seventh, Andrew Steenerson.

THIRD DAY.

The entire day was taken up with the report of the committee on resolutions.

After considerable discussion pro and con it was decided, in executive session, to join issues with the Industrial Union.

THE PLATFORM.

The following is a text of the platform adopted:

Resolved, That we heartily endorse the demands of the platforms as adopted at St. Louis, Mo., in 1889; Ocala, Fla., in 1890, and Omaha, Neb., in 1891, and industrial organizations there represented, summarized as follows:

1—The right to make and issue money is a sovereign power to be maintained by the people for the common benefit, hence we demand the abolition of national banks of issue, and as a substitute for national bank notes we demand that legal tender treasury notes be issued in sufficient volume to transact the business of the country on a cash basis, without damage or especial advantage to any class or calling, such notes to be legal tender in payment of all debts, public and private, and such notes when demanded by the people shall be loaned to them at not more than 2 per cent per annum upon imperishable products as indicated in the sub-treasury plan, and also upon real estate, with proper limitation upon the quantity of land and amount of money.

2—We demand the free and unlimited coinage of silver.

3—We demand the passage of laws prohibiting alien ownership of land, and that congress take prompt action to devise some plan to obtain all lands now owned by alien and foreign syndicates, and that all land held by railroads and other corporations in excess of such as is actually used and needed by them be reclaimed by the government and held for actual settlers only.

4—Believing the doctrine of equal rights to all and special privileges to none, we demand that taxation—national, state or municipal—shall not be used to build up one interest or class at the expense of another, and that this has special reference to the tariff issue.

5—We demand that all revenues—national, state or county—shall be limited to the necessary expenses of the government economically and honestly administered.

6—We demand a just and equitable system of graduated tax on income.

7—We demand the government ownership of all means of communication and transportation.

8—We demand the election of president, vice president and United States senators by a direct vote of the people.

9—That we urge united action of all progressive organizations in attending the conference called for Feb. 22, 1892, by six of the leading reform organizations.

10—Resolved, That the question of universal suffrage be recommended to the favorable consideration of the various states and territories.

11—Resolved, That while the party in power in 1889 pledged the faith of the nation to pay a debt in coin that had been contracted on a depreciated currency basis and payable in currency, thus adding nearly $1,000,000,000 to the burdens of the people, which meant gold for the bondholders and depreciated currency for the soldier, and holding that the men who imperiled their lives to save the life of a nation should have been paid in money as good as that paid to the bondholder, we demand the issue of legal tender treasury notes in sufficient amount to make the pay of the soldiers equal to par with coin, or such other legislation as shall do equal and exact justice to the Union soldiers of this country.

12—Resolved, That as eight hours constitute a legal day's work for government employes in mechanical departments, we believe this principle should be farther extended so as to apply to all corporations employing labor in the different states of the Union.

13—Resolved, That this conference condemns in unmeasured terms the action of the directors of the World's Columbian exposition on May 19, 1891, in which they refused the minimum rate of wages asked for by the labor organizations of Chicago.

14—Resolved, That the Minnesota State Farmers' Alliance is heartily in favor of joining with all reform organizations in the formation of the People's party, and also that we instruct our delegates to the conference, to be held on Feb. 22, 1892, to do all in their power to that end.

15—Resolved, That we extend aid to the poor of our land, including the thousands of starving miners of Indiana, and then extend aid to the suffering Russians, who are certainly deserving of assistance.

16—Resolved, That we ask that congress pass a law to compel the issuance of patents on land held by railroad corporations where they are justly entitled to them or else forfeit the same and open it to entry, to actual settlers only.

17—Resolved, That we demand that each local Alliance in the state take steps at once to organize and collect funds for the employment of counsel, and to pay the expenses of witnesses, and go before the grand jury and secure the indictment and conviction of all parties who are engaged in combinations to deprive the producers of a free market by preventing competition and lowering the prices of our productions; and that said money should be paid into the State Alliance treasury as a distinct fund, and that said fund be subject to the order of the executive committee to be used under their direction.

18—Resolved, That this Alliance takes recognition of the boycott declared by the Knights of Labor and the National Farmers' Alliance and Industrial union against the Rochester (N. Y.) Clothing Exchange, and requests the sub-Alliances to take the matter up.

19—We demand that the state shall erect at Duluth, adjacent to deep water navigation, a public warehouse where grain may be stored without mixing the grain of different grades while awaiting a purchaser, at actual cost of such storage.

20—Resolved, That the Alliance of Minnesota denounces the PIONEER PRESS as an ally of the plutocracy of this age, and as a persecutor and defamer of our best men; that we rejoice in the victory won by Ignatius Donnelly in the courts over that vile enemy of the human race, trusting that the time will come when such baleful lights shall become utterly extinguished.

21—Resolved, That we disapprove of the scheme to set aside a large portion of the northeastern part of our state for a national park as a scheme for the pine land and railroad rings to secure the land for future corporation benefits; and that we believe it is a plan of English syndicates to cut us off from the Lake Superior route to the ocean.

22—Resolved, That we fully believe that $50,000 is as much money as is required to properly represent Minnesota in the world's fair, provided it is properly expended; and we oppose the levying of further tribute upon the counties with the hope of future reimbursement from the state treasury.

23—Resolved, That we thoroughly believe in independent political action to secure the people in their rights.

24—Resolved, That C. K. Davis did not fairly represent the people of Minnesota in furthering the interests of the Pacific railways in the great Pacific bond robbery, under which these roads were built.

And we demand the the immediate foreclosure by the United States of the mortgage on the Pacific railroads as a preparatory measure looking toward the nationalization of all the railroads of the country.

25—Resolved, That the constitution of the state should be so amended that every acre of land should bear a proper share of taxation, including the 7,000,000 acres of railway lands.

26—Resolved, That we demand the immediate purchase of the additional twine plants by the prison board, and its operation by the convicts; and we demand the removal of every member of the present board and the appointment of new men, a majority of whom shall be practical farmers.

27—Resolved, While we entertain no hostility to the state university we favor the separation of the state agricultural college therefrom and demand that the control of our agricultural institutions be placed in the hands of those friendly to the farmers.

28—Resolved, That we condemn option gambling in all its forms.

29—Resolved, That we ask for a thorough official investigation of the wheat combine in the Northwest. Until we secure national ownership of railways we demand legislation, state and national, making it obligatory upon all railways to furnish side track facilities at all stations sufficient to accommodate all parties or partnerships desiring to erect and maintain elevators or warehouses of a capacity of not less than 5,000 bushels each.

30—Resolve, dThat we sympathize with the citizens of North Dakota and Minnesota who have been ordered from their homes by the Great Northern Railroad company, and demand that the national government shall protect settlers who have received patents to their lands, as we believe that a government which does not stand by its own patents is unworthy the name of a free government.

31—Resolved, That we demand of the congress of the United States to take steps immediately to forfeit every foot of unearned railroad land.

32—Resolved, That we favor such changes in the laws of the state as will relegate all questions of local concern and the raising of revenue for local needs to the people of each county, and thus relieve the state legislature from the vast mass of local legislation that now hampers its action and prevents due consideration of matters of general interest.

33—Resolved, That we oppose the erection of a $3,000,000 capitol building at the present time, and that when such a building becomes necessary that it be removed from the metropolitan cities, and that the matter of occupying the Kandiyohi capitol lands be seriously considered by the people of this state.

34—Resolved, That in view of the fact that the actual attitude of our legislative representatives is unknown to the people; and inasmuch as the daily press distorts the proceedings of the legislature purposely, we demand hereafter the employment of a stenographer and the publication of complete reports, after the manner of the United States congress.

35—Resolved, That the board of management of the agricultural fair should all be operative farmers, and said board should abolish all gambling and saloon interests therefrom; and, that we demand a change in the laws to secure that end.

36—Resolved, That we demand the repeal of the law relating to incorporated villages, which gives them the control of all moneys derived from the sale of liquor licenses, as all such moneys should go into the county revenue and general funds, to help to prosecute the crime accruing from the sale of the same.

37—Resolved, That we favor the submission of the question of prohibition to a vote of the people.

38—Resolved, That we demand the abolition of railroad passes in all forms.

39—Whereas, the treasury notes issued under the authority of an act of the late Republican congress, July 14, 1890, are not a legal tender for all debts, public and private, when otherwise stipulated in the contract; therefore, be it

Resolved, First, that any legislation that authorizes the issuance of any money for the people that is not a legal tender for all debts, public and private, but demonetized in effect as were the greenbacks in the exception clause thereon, and the silver coin under the acts of 1873 and 1880 and the treasury notes now being issued under the act of 1891, are gross and unpardonable crimes of federal legislation.

Resolved, second, That we demand of the congress of the United States that they immediately repeal all acts of legislation that tends in any way to disturb any of the full attributes of money, and that a copy of the above resolution be sent to each of the senators and representatives in congress from the State of Minnesota.

40—Resolved, That we favor an amendment to the federal constitution empowering the people to annul all special franchises.

41—Resolved, That the liquor traffic of the country be nationalized according to the idea of Mr. Washburn of Massachusetts.

TURNING TO BONE.

An Idaho Woman Who Is Afflicted With a Peculiar Disease.

Mrs. Mollie Hughes, a highly-respected widow lady, living near Camernville, Idaho, is afflicted with a unique and most distressing disease, says the St. Louis Republic. Little by little the flesh of her entire body is turning to solid bone, or, in other words, she is becoming ossified. The disease was first noticed in 1886, when Mrs. Hughes was Miss Duychink, of Canon Rapids.

At that time only a single finger was affected. Within a month after the time when Miss Duychink first noticed the numbness and stiffness of the finger it had been accidently broken off while she was asleep. The incident gave the girl no pain there being neither blood, nerves nor flesh left in the diseased member, but it excited the alarm of the family, who called in a physician.

The broken stump of the finger was amputated back to where the living flesh set on and everything was thought to be all right. Soon the flesh, muscles, arteries, veins and nerves on her hands, fingers and arms became as hard and feelingless as the finger had been before it was broken off. Next the awful malady extended to the elbows, the forearms becoming as white and as clear as alabaster.

Within the year the toes and the end of the nose and ear tips showed a like color and rigidness. The process of ossification has now been going on for five years, and the attending physicians say that it is only a matter of time when the entire body of the poor victim will be a solid bone. It is a rare disease and the pathology of it is little understood.

THE RAILWAY OFFICIAL.

It Made a Big Difference Who Went Into the Ditch.

The car rocked from side to side, and seemed as though all the wheels on one side were off the track at once. The conductor staggered along, catching hold of seats now and then to steady himself, and the pallid railway official stopped him.

"Conductor," he said, "this is an awful rough stretch of road."

"No rougher than it has always been," replied the conductor. "There's something like forty miles of it just the same right ahead of us."

"But aren't you running frightfully fast?" asked the pallid official, catching hold of the window-sill to keep from being thrown into the aisle.

"We're doing pretty well," returned the conductor, as he grabbed hold of a seat to keep from diving into the official's lap. "We're making up time. The stations are some distance apart along here, and it gives us a chance. We've got to get in on time."

"Get in where—heaven?" asked the official, as he braced his knees against the back of the seat ahead of him and took an extra strong hold on the window sill. "You signal the engineer to slow up."

"But, sir, this is the stretch you've always ordered us to make up time on, because there are so few stations."

"I have?" said the railway official, interrogatively.

"Yes, sir. Whenever we're late you wire to make it up right along here."

"I wire you?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, that's when I'm sitting in the arm-chair in my office. I don't mind if you're two hours late to-day."—Chicago Tribune.

IN THE QUEEN'S BEDROOM.

Mistake Made in Windsor Castle by M. Guizot.

When, in 1850, M. Guizot was the French embassador to England he was upon terms of friendly intimacy with the young queen, who was much entertained and instructed by the learned diplomat's varied and brilliant conversation. Upon numerous occasions M. Guizot visited her majesty at Windsor, and there has just been published in London a letter written by the embassador to his daughter during one of their visits. "The queen retired at 11:30," writes M. Guizot. "We stayed chatting till midnight, when, seeking my apartment, I lost my way in the innumerable corridors and rooms, and half opening a door I thought was mine, I saw a lady, half undressed, attended by her waiting woman. I closed it quickly and went on, meeting some one, who conducted me to my room. The next day, at dinner, the queen said to me, laughingly: 'Do you know that you came to my room at midnight?' 'How, madam,' I exclaimed, 'was it your majesty's door that I half opened?' 'Certainly,' and she recommenced laughing, and so did I. I then told her of my mistake, which she had guessed, and I ended by asking permission, if ever I wrote my memoirs, to put in them how I had, at midnight, in Windsor castle, opened the door of the chamber of the Queen of England, who was going to bed. She gave me permission, laughingly, with all her heart."—Chicago News.

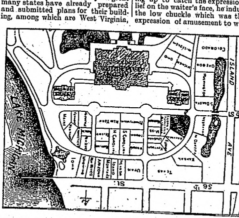
MINNESOTA'S SITE.

The State Granted a Very Desirable Site on the World's Fair Grounds.

4,000 Square Feet in Horticultural Hall Also Reserved for Minnesota.

The world's fair managers in Chicago have taken in good faith the efforts of the State of Minnesota to raise the additional amount of $100,000 for its exhibit in Chicago, and have awarded it the site which the Minnesota commissioners selected last fall, but for which there has been considerable contention on the part of other states. The award has been made without any promise from Minnesota's representatives that the grounds will be used for a state building, but it was well known that steps were being taken to increase this state's appropriation, and the Chicago managers have confidence in the ability of the Northwestern men to accomplish what they have set out to do. This site is one of the best in Jackson park, and many other states have been coveting its possession. Minnesota's credit is now at stake, but she will prove herself worthy of the confidence placed in her by the managers of the world's fair.

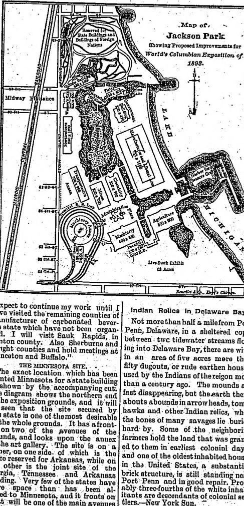
Manager L. P. Hunt, says a great many states have already prepared and submitted plans for their building, among which are West Virginia,



Colorado and Wahington.

Another valuable award for Minnesota was reported by Manager Hunt. The superintendent of horticulture has set aside 4,000 square feet in the horticultural hall for this state's exhibit. The Minnesota display will be one of the finest from the Northwestern states. Mr. Hunt has received his first application for space from a Minnesota man. It came from Jacob Ries of Shakopee, a ages, who received a first premium at the state fair of 1883.

"I was very much pleased to learn that Ramsey county has gone to work to secure her quota of the $100,000," said Mr. Hunt in an interview. "I understand that Hennepin county has pledged its amount, and this information will help me wonderfully with many of the other counties. They have been waiting to see what action the two cities will take. I have lately received four letters in which the writers stated they were willing to begin the work in their counties as soon as Ramsey and Hennepin counties had pledged their amounts.



Map of
Jackson Park
Showing Proposed Improvements for World's Columbian Exposition of 1893.
N.
Reserved for State Buildings and Buildings of Foreign Nations
Midway Plaisance
ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILROAD
STONY ISLAND AVENUE
Government Building
Manufactures and Liberal Arts
Transportation
Annex
Mines
Electricity
Administration Plaza
Agriculture 500 x 800
Machinery 500 x 850
Machinery Annex
Harbor for Pleasure Craft
Live Stock Exhibit 63 Acres
LAKE
MICHIGAN

I expect to continue my work until I have visited the remaining counties of manufacturer of carbonated beverthe state which have not been organized. I will visit Sauk Rapids, in Benton county. Also Sherburne and Wright counties and hold meetings at Princeton and Buffalo."

THE MINNESOTA SITE.

The exact location which has been granted Minnesota for a state building is shown by the accompanying cut. The diagram shows the northern end of the exposition grounds, and it will be seen that the site secured by this state is one of the most desirable on the whole grounds. It has a frontage on two of the avenues of the grounds, and looks upon the annex to the art gallery. The site is on a corner, on one side of which is the space reserved for Arkansas, while on the other is the joint site of the Georgia, Tennessee and Arkansas building. Very few of the states have more space than has been allotted to Minnesota, and it fronts on what will be one of the main avenues of the grounds, Fifty-seventh street, while most of the states have a frontage only on a side avenue, or look upon Fifty-sixth street, which is outside of the exposition grounds.

The second cut of which the one given above is a part, which shows the entire exposition grounds, and from this the location of the Minnesota grounds may be very easily seen.

Why He Couldn't.

A certain literary German whose manner of speaking was extremely deliberate, and who disapproved of impetuosity of any sort under any circumstances, had an amusing experience in a restaurant one day.

He was a well-known figure among the patrons of this particular restaurant, as he seldom dined anywhere else, and he generally was served by a waiter who had become used to his way of speaking, but one day a new waiter took his order and brought his soup.

"I cannot eat this soup," said the gentleman, slowly, not looking up from his plate, after he had summoned the waiter for the second time. The man seized the offending dish before the customer could finish the sentence, and vanished with it. He reappeared in a moment with another supply of the same soup, which he placed before the gentleman, and then stood regarding him with an anxious face, wondering what could be the reason the soup remained untasted.

"I cannot eat this soup," again slowly remarked the literary man.

"Why not sir? What is the matter?" stammered the unhappy waiter, who had been told he was serving an important person.

"I cannot eat this soup," said the literary genius calmly for the third time, "because I have not as yet been provided with a spoon." And looking up to catch the expression of relief on the waiter's face, he indulged in the low chuckle which was the only expression of amusement to which he ever gave way.

How a Rooster Flaps His Wings.

Wm. Hamilton Gibson, who is a trained observer of plants and animals, satisfied himself some time ago that a rooster makes the flapping noise that accompanies his crowing by striking his wings together over his back. The popular notion is that the bird produces the noise by striking his wings against his hard, fat thighs. Mr. Gibson discussed the subject with a farmer once, and the latter laughed at the artist's idea, and said: "I've been brought up among chickens, and I guess I know how a rooster flaps his wings." "Very good," said Mr. Gibson, "but just watch your own fowls for a week, and tell me what you think then." The scornful farmer promised, and returned at the end of the week with the humble confession that Mr Gibson was right.

Indian Relics in Delaware Bay.

Not more than half a mile from Port Penn, Delaware, in a sheltered copse between two tidewater streams flowing into Delaware Bay, there are within an area of five acres more than fifty dugouts, or rude earthen houses, used by the Indians of the reigon more than a century ago. The mounds are fast disappearing, but the earth thereabouts abounds in arrow heads, tomahawks and other Indian relics, while the bones of many savages lie buried hard by. Some of the neighboring farmers hold the land that was granted to them in earliest colonial days, and one of the oldest inhabited houses in the United States, a substantial brick structure, is still standing near Port Penn and in good repair. Probably three-fourths of the white inhabitants are descendants of colonial settlers.—New York Sun.

A wool grower says that tobacco water used as a sheep dip does not give so good a luster to the growing fleece as some of the dips that are to be bought already prepared.

SCIENCE AND PROGRESS.

USEFUL INFORMATION FOR ENQUIRING MINDS.

The Tunnel at Niagara—Nature's Telephone—Just Like a Bird—A Warlike Clock.

The Tunnel at Niagara.

To cut through seven thousand feet of solid rock which has held back the torrents of the Niagara river is the task that the Cataract Construction Company has undertaken. Last week a total advance of 262 feet was made, bringing the total excavation up to 4,733 feet in 13 months. This leaves only 1,967 feet to complete the work as originally intended, but in all probability 300 feet more will be excavated, bringing the total length of the tunnel up to an even 7,000 feet. This is not the first attempt to utilize the power of Niagara Falls. The early French settlers built a mill beside the rapids just above the falls. In colonial times the British put up a saw mill there and used it to cut timbers for their fortifications. Later the Stedman and Potter mills were built, and still later two raceways were built, supplying power to numerous factories.

About 40 years ago the Hydraulic Canal Company cut a channel through the rock about three-quarters of a mile long from the river bank above the falls to a point on the deep gorge below. Standing on the suspension bridge just below the falls the visitor sees on the American side a score or more of miniature cataracts, the water in some cases dashing over the brink of the cliff, and in others pouring with terrific force from holes cut in the bank. They are fed by the hydraulic canal, and before the water dashes over the precipice it does its work in the mills that line the bank.

The hydraulic canal was a white elephant. It was expensive work, and it was finally sold to satisfy a mortgage some three years ago. It is 100 feet wide, nearly a mile long, and its estimated force is 170,000 horse power.

All that, however, is only a drop in the bucket to what the immense water power hurled over the cataract daily is capable of, and capitalists have studied ways and means to avail themselves of its possibilities. Finally the present gigantic work was conceived. It was determined to run a tunnel from the surface of the water tunnel below the falls to a point on the river bank above. This tunnel is really only a waste weir for the water which will be drawn from the river from short surface canals, wheel pits and cross tunnels, after performing its service for man will pour out through the tunnel into the river again, having merely been diverted from its course temporarily. The tunnel has three sections. Shaft 1 was sunk directly opposite the New York Central depot, and after getting down 200 feet the men began forcing their way eastward and westward through the solid rock with drills, dynamite, and picks. Shaft 2 was sunk about half a mile to the eastward, and there the tunneling was pushed both ways. Simultaneously a great rent was made in the face of the cliffs in the deep gorge just below the new suspension bridge. On an average 1,400 pounds of dynamite are used every day, or a car load every 16 days.—New York Sun.

Nature's Telephone.

A marvelous story comes from Dakota of a discovery which has been accidentally made in the mountains northwest of Rapid City. It is stated that there is a natural telephone line between two mountains in the Black Hills range.

On each side of a valley, 12 miles in width, stand two high peaks, several thousand feet high, which tower above the other mountains and have long been known as landmarks. They have only on rare occasions been scaled, so very little is known of their topography.

Some little time ago two parties started out, one for each peak, taking with them heliographs for the purpose of signaling to each other across the valley. The ascent was made, and when the top was reached one of the party on the north mountain was surprised to hear voices which apparently came out of the air.

By changing his position he discovered that at a certain spot on the mountain he could hear the voices, but that in other positions he could not hear them. He called the attention of his party to the phenomenon, and when the attention of the other party had been attracted it was found that an ordinary conversation was plainly heard from one mountain top to the other.

This may be considered a rather tall story to foist upon the intelligent reader of the day, but Electricity offers the following as an explanation: The form of the mountain might be considered as serving the purposes of elliptical reflectors of sound, the speakers placing themselves in the foci at each end of the eclipse. The low density of the atmosphere at the altitude at which the observers were would also tend towards intensifying the sound.

The various whispering galleries in England and the continent can be quoted as showing how sound is magnified under certain conditions; another instance may be found in the Mormon Temple in Salt Lake city. This the last is of enormous dimensions, is built in the form of a true eclipse, and a person standing in the focus at one end can carry on a conversation in a whisper with another person who places himself in the focus at the other end.

An Electric Freight Locomotive.

The Thomson-Houston Company exhibited at their works in Lynn, Mass., the first freight locomotive of good size that has been constructed. The new locomotive is designed to pull and shift freight cars for the Whitin Machine Company at Whitinsville, Mass. It is proposed to carry by this means merchandise back and forth from the railway station, a distance of a mile and a half. The total weight of the locomotive is 43,000 pounds, and the speed, when delivering thirty-horse power at the draw bar, is five miles an hour. This will pull on a level from six to eight heavily loaded freight cars, weighing from 200 to 300 tons.

The exhibition was a complete success in every way. The piece of track used was a curve and an up grade, so that drawing a given load over it was equivalent to drawing three times that load on a straight and level track. Two freight cars weighing fifty-four and one-half tons were first attached to the locomotive. They were drawn easily around the curve and up the grade, started, stopped and backed without difficulty. This experiment was in itself practically a complete demonstration of the success of the new machine. But severer tests were applied. Two more cars, bringing the weight up to ninety-seven tons, and finally two more still, making a weight of 163 tons, were added to the train. Again the locomotive drew them back and forth without any apparently added difficulty whatever.

Some data of the locomotive are given below: Voltage of locomotive, 500 volts; horse power at draw bar, 100; speed on level track when developing above power, five miles per hour; wheel base, 6 feet 4 inches; diameter of wheels, 42 inches; speed reduction between armature and axle, 1 to 25; gauge, 4 feet 8½ inches standard; wheel base, 6 feet 4 inches; greatest length of locomotive, at cowcatcher, 15 feet 7½ inches greatest length of platform, 7 feet ¼ inch; weight of locomotive, less trolley pole, 42,525 pounds; approximate weight of motor, 5,400 pounds; double-acting sand boxes, spring draw head, standard link coupling, band brake on brake drum on intermediate shaft.

Rainfall and Population.

The distribution of population relative to mean annual rain fall indicates not only the tendency of people to seek arable lands, but their condition as to general healthfulness. The average annual rainfall in this country is 29·6 inches, but the variations range from zero to perhaps one hundred and twenty-five inches. Gauging the distribution of the population in accordance with the annual average rainfall in different localities, some interesting points are observable, not only as to the number of inhabitants in the areas calculated, but as to the density of population. The greater proportion of the people of the United States are living in regions in which annual rainfall is between thirty and fifty inches. Mr. Gannett calculates that about three fourths of the inhabitants of the country are found under these conditions; and, further, that as the rainfall increases or diminishes, the population diminishes rapidly. The density of population in regions where the average rainfall is between thirty and forty inches is 43.1 per square mile; in regions where it is from forty to fifty inches annually, the density is 25.1, and in the arid regions of the West, where the rainfall is less than twenty inches, being two-fifths of the entire area of the country, less than three per cent of the population finds its home. The population has increased rapidly in the regions having from thirty to forty inches average annual rainfall.—The Popular Science Monthly.

Just Like a Bird.

The new flying machine, or "aviateur," recently brought before the Academie des Sciences, Paris, by M. Gustave Trouve, is highly ingenious, and a new departure in aeronautics, but is only in its experimental stage.

M. Trouve believes that none of our existing motors—whether of steam, electricity, or compressed air—are capable of propelling a vehicle through the air, without the support of balloons or aeroplanes such as Mr. Maxim is now working at. In order to devise such a motor, he took up the principle of the Bourdon tube, which is employed as a manometer or pressure gauge. This tube is of a horseshoe form, and when filled with the gas whose pressure is to be measured, the points of the tube approach to or recede from each other according as the pressure of the gas falls or rises.

M. Trouve saw that he could transform the tube into a motor, by filling it with an inflammable mixture of hydrogen gas and common air, and exploding the mixture with proper cartridges fixed on a revolving barrel. At each explosion the pressure of the gas in the tube would fall, and the points in the tube approach, while on refilling the tube with gas between the explosions the points would recede. In this way a reciprocating motion of the points would be obtainable as long as the supply of hydrogen and the exploding cartridges lasted.

To utilize this motion, he fastens an expanded artificial wing to each point of the tube: and these wings rise and fall as the points approach or recede, thus beating the air like a bird's wings.

A Warlike Clock.

A novel clock is now being exhibited by the Watchmakers' Union in London. It is of wood, beautifully carved, and stands six feet in height. The case is a perfect fort in miniature and, instead of a bell and striking hammer, the hours are announced by a bugler, who emerges from a door at one side of the fort and blows the call to assemble and march.

Almost instantly the doors open on all sides; a regiment of automatic soldiers, six abreast, march out, wheel to the left, stop a few seconds to "mark time," and then march through another part of the fortress to the barracks. These marches and counter-marches occur each hour, says the Chicago Press.

If they come out to announce the hour of 1 o'clock, one soldier fires his tiny gun; at 2 o'clock two soldiers fire their pieces, increasing with the hour until the twelve leaders fire their guns, the rear ranks bowing their heads and pointing with their bayonets toward the dial of the clock.

Ice Made By Natural Gas.

An inventor in Buffalo, N. Y., has devised a process for making ice by utilizing the intense cold created by the explosion of natural gas when liberated from the high pressure at which it issues from the wells. In the experimental plant the gas is used at its initial pressure of from 150 to 200 pounds to drive a small engine. After use in the engine the gas exhausts into a closed box, and the expansion generates sufficiently cold to form slabs of ice three inches thick to the amount of three-quarters of a ton in a day. It is claimed that the principle can be applied economically on a large scale.—Philadelphia Record.

Polk County Journal

CROOKSTON, . . . MINN

GENERAL SCHOFIELD has ordered that all recruits entering the army shall be vaccinated. He means that men who want to be soldiers shall first learn how to bare arms.

IT is said Russia does not want the island of Corea, to the east of China, but she does not propose to let any other nation have it. As we have no use for it and do not want it, we can watch the fight with complacency.

"OLIVER OPTIC" is still writing books for boys. The famous Boston school teacher and author is now 70 years old, but he has recently contracted to write a new series of his charhcteristic stories.

IT is noted in Washington that while the Congressmen from the North and East wear silk hats or black or brown derbys, the members from the South and far West prefer soft felt hats.

THE Harvard students, who have adopted the cap and gown, are now negotiating for a supply from the London firm that furnishes them for the Oxford students. It is estimated that a plain mohair gown with broadcloth cap, will cost about $12.

SOME one with an inquiring turn of mind has discovered that there are but nine words in the English language which ends in "dous." They are tremendous, amphibodous, hazardous, apodous, pteropodous, cephaledous, gasteropodous, stupendous and gastropodous.

DR. LYMAN ABBOTT suggests that a man "may keep every one of the Ten Commandments and yet not be admitted to any decent society in New York." If the reference was to the 400, there need be no surprise. Some parts of the Decalogue are not adapted to modern society.

ONE of the men who helped save the life of the czarevitch of Russia last year has become so demoralized by good fortune that he has been summoned several times into court. The brave but weak Japanese receives an annual pension of $1,000 from the Russian Government and a small sum yearly from the Mikado.

NOT much is said of Russia's navy, but it is a large one. She has thirty-six first-rate vessels, forty-eight second-class, eighty-eight third-class, and twenty of the fourth-class. Her vessels are manned by 30,500 men. Quite enough to cause a merry time should they suddenly break loose on the high seas.

THE emperor of China is said to rest in serene security, confident that his enemies can never prevail over him by force of arms. He has hired an able magician who promises to put a mystic "kibosh" on the firearms of the imperial adversaries so that they cannot be used. European powers having any idea of coercing the emperor from and after this date would better consider this matter before beginning hostilities.

THE death of Mrs. A. L. Kane, of Milwaukee, is announced. Mrs. Kane was the wife of Alonzo L. Kane, the surviving pioneer hotel man of Milwaukee. He was proprietor of the American House, which occupied the site of the present Plankinton House. The deceased was a woman of great amiability and many virtues. Mr. Kane is in active business life, a large owner of real estate. They resided at one time in Chicago, and have many friends here.

A RECENT court ruling in an election matter in New York brings out a practice of the postal department in regard to letters that has not been well understood. The person who mails a letter can reclain it any time before it is delivered to the party addressed. Recently a party in the East stopped by telegraph a letter sent to St. Paul after it had reached this city. A sworn description is necessary, of course.

THE Comte de Paris is very certain that republican government is fatal in its effects upon religion and morals. The morals of some of the young chaps who stand pretty close to the thrones, are of a kind which the count will hardly cite as proofs of the correctness of his position. The Orleans princes, of which he is one, never had a reputation for chastity and correct living that any demi-mondaine would have reason to sigh for.

THE Czar of Russia has lost one of his most intimate and beloved companions and friends in the death of Prince Obolenski, one of the court marshals and a general in the suite of the army. He served like the majority of the cadets of the great Russian houses, as a court page until 1869, when he became an officer of the Chevalier Guards in St. Petersburg, and as such, came in close contact with the present Emperor, at that time Crown Prince.

AROUND THE GLOBE.

A Record of the Week's Happenings That are Now Part of the World's History.

The More Important Foreign and Domestic Events Arranged for Rapid Reading.

WASHINGTON.

SECRETARY FOSTER is going South soon for the benefit of his health.

SECRETARY BLAINE is taken with an attack of acute indigestion, but his condition is not serious.

AN effort will probably be made during the present session of congress to admit the territory of Oklahoma to statehood.

SENATOR STEWART of Nevada claims that free silver coinage is authorized by a law of 1837 which has never been repealed.

THE comptroller of the currency has appointed Lewis L. Lostetter, of Iroquois, receiver of the Huron National Bank, Huron, S. D.

PRINCIPAL MUSICIAN FREDERICK VALLACHER, 3d infantry, Ft. Snelling, Minn., is upon his own application placed on the retired list.

REPRESENTATIVE MILLS has so far recovered his health as to be able to undertake a trip to his home in Texas, whither he started recently. He will be absent ten days or two weeks.

THE president sends a message to congress asking that the secretary of the navy be authorized to charter a vessel for the transportation of relief contributions to Russia. The senate passes a resolution for this purpose introduced by Mr. Washburn.

PRESIDENT HARRISON nominates James W. McDill of Iowa and William M. Lindsey of Kentucky as interstate commerce commissioners and renominates Commissioner Morrison. He also names Daniel T. Hindman as agent at the Sisseton Indian agency, South Dakota.

PERSONAL MENTION.

M. DE MAUPASSANT, the noted French author, will be placed in an insane asylum.

MGR. GOTTSCHALK, Roman Catholic bishop of Hertogenbosch, Holland, died from influenza.

THE venerable Dr. Noah Porter, ex-president of Yale, is confined to his bed with an attack of grip. Owing to his advanced age the worst results are feared.

THE attack of influenza from which M. Victorien Sardou, the celebrated dramatist, is suffering, is so violent that he is completely prostrated.

J. F. CLARKE, president of the Boston & Montana and of the Tamarack Mining Companies, is dead at Boston, Mass., in a $250,000 residence just completed.

CHIEF JOSHUA SITWELL, the last of the Puyallup chiefs, died in Tacoma, Wash., aged 80. He was always friendly to the whites and rendered early settlers much assistance in Indian wars.

REV. THOMAS D. SKINNER, D. D., professor of divinity at the McCormick Theological seminary, is dead in Chicago. Dr. Skinner has been in failing health for several years, and recently was stricken with pneumonia. He was seventy years old.

UNFORTUNATE EVENTS.

THE fire at Nashville is now estimated to have amounted to $475,000, with insurance of $307,200.

AN unknown vessel was wrecked in Papa sound, Shetland islands. It is feared that everybody on board was lost.

EDWIN BALL, four years old, died of hydrophobia at Newark, N. J. The little fellow was badly bitten by a mastiff on Dec. 11.

AT Omaha the breaking of a ladder at a fire, Fire Chief Galligan and Pipemen Noonan and Carter fell a distance of 30 feet, all receiving painful injuries. The chief's left leg was broken.

AT Beaver Falls, Pa., a Pittsburg & Lake Erie freight train crashed into a work train, badly wrecking it and seriously injuring four Hungarians and James Hamilton, the brakeman. Stephen Lafferty, one of the young Hungarians, will die.

AT Chicago, an Alton freight train struck a Halsted street horse car, injuring eight passengers, but none fatally. The victims were: Thomas Gregory and wife, Lizzie Calaghan and sister, Therse Brazaman, J. G. Lazarus and Mrs. Vick and baby.

DIPTHERIA is epidemic at Stoneboro, Pa. Twenty-three families are afflicted, and the disease is spreading so rapidly that the physicians are hardly able to cope with it. The form of the disease is most virulent and a number of deaths have occurred.

SINS AND SINNERS.

C. H. PAUL, of Hastings, Neb., county treasurer, is short in his accounts over $22,000.

CHARLES LLOYD, colored, who was sentenced to be hanged at Little Rock Ark., has been granted a respite for 60 days.

THE Jackson Brewery, San Francisco, was seized by the collector of customs for violating the revenue laws.

AN unsuccessful attempt was made to rob the Buffalo express near Bethlehem, Pa., on the North Pennsylvania road.

EDWARD W. MAGILL, assignee of John Bardsley, entered suit against the suspended Keystone National Bank to recover $100,000.

SEVEN women in different sections of the country claim to be the wives of John Anderson of St. Louis, arrested in Cleveland on the charge of stealing $1,200 from his latest victim.

GOV. NICHOLLS, of Louisianna, has signed the death warrant of Philip Baker, who murdered Mrs. Neil Nelson in Carrollton, a year ago. The date for execution has been fixed for Jan. 22, instant.

THE Jackson brewery of San Francisco has been seized by the government on the charge of brewing 21,000 barrels of beer more than the internal revenue books show. If proven true the plant, valued at $500,000, will be confiscated.

MICHAEL SCHALL and James Danner, of the insolvent banking firm of Schall & Danner, York, Pa., against whom indictments were quashed by the court recently were rearrested on the charges of embezzlement and larceny as bailee. They gave bail in the aggregate sum of $50,000 for a hearing.

NEWS was received at Natchez, Miss, that a mob forcibly entered the jail at Rayville, La., and took therefrom L. N. Disharnon and Cal Foster and lynched them. They were charged with the murder of a Jewish peddler, Mike Bimkins, near Delhi.

AT Springfield, Ill., an affray occurred between two brothers named Loomis, when William, aged twenty-seven, leveled a double-barreled shotgun at Charles, aged fourteen, and fired both barrels at him, killing him instantly. William was badly cut in the neck, and claims it was done by his brother.

FOREIGN NUGGETS.

THE khedive of Egypt dies of the grip.

GUY DE MAUPASSANT, the French novelist, attempts suicide with revolver and razor.

THE international trouble on the Mexican border, it is thought, will soon be ended. Garza is in a bad way.

IT is reported that the doctors who are in attendance on the queen of Roumania despair of saving her life.

A PHYSICIAN of St. Paul is buried alive and dies of suffocation before he can be rescued.

YELLOW fever has broken out at Kingston, Jamaica, and troops have been removed from Port Royal to Newcastle.

JOSEPH JAMES CHEESEMAN was inaugurated president of Liberia Jan. 1. He is a Baptist minister and also a merchant of Liberia.

THE suffering among the people of the State of Chihuyua on account of the drought has greatly increased, and the situation is alarming.

THE influenza has claimed another distinguished victim in Emile Louis Victor de Lavellaye, the noted Belgian writer on political economy, whose death at Liege was announced.

MOUNET SULLY, in Paris, denies that he is coming to America. He says that perhaps he will come in a year or two for a two month's tour, playing Hamlet and other leading parts.

As an outcome of certain events at the recent court ball in Berlin, Emperor William has suggested to the officers of the Potsdam garrison that those unable to dance shall not attend court balls in future.

PLENIPOTENTIARIES of the powers have had a meeting in Brussels, and have signed a protocol of the anti-slavery act, which goes into operation sixty days hence. The United States is not represented.

GEORGE C. HITT, American deputy consul general in London, has resigned his position, and will shortly resume the business management of the Indianapolis Journal. He and his family will sail for New York.

IN several provinces of Russia the zemstevost, or district assemblies, have decided to issue money without interest. The measure is designed to aid the famine-stricken people, to prevent them from selling or pawning their tools or farming implements.

LEON C. LABELLE, son of the late Capt. Labelle, ex-member of parliament, of Montreal has been arrested in Ottawa, Ont., on the charge of murdering his wife, who was found dead on the floor of her house Dec. 28, from the effects of carbolic acid. The pair lived unhappily together.

IT is rumored that the relations between the vatican and the Brazilian government are so strained that a rupture is imminent. The pope, it is said, has intimated that he will excommunicate President Piexotto, his cabinet, and the members of the Brazilian congress, unless measures are taken to renew the former relations between church and state in Brazil.

RAILROAD RUMBLINGS.

RAILROAD cases in Minnesota, North Dakota and Washington State are decided by the United States supreme court.

JOHN B CARSON, ex-president of the Chicago & Western Indiana Belt line and ex-president of the Louisville, New Albany & Chicago, died in Chicago of blood trouble and hemorrhage following a very severe attack of the grippe. Mr. Carson was fifty-seven years of age.

CHARGES that the appointment of A. Hegewisch as receiver of the United States Rolling Stock company were collusive and fradulent are made in the intervening petitions of the company which were filed in Judge Blodgett's court in Chicago. The court is asked to remove Hegewisch. The receiver is also charged with favoring the stockholders and of acting against the interests of the unsecured creditors. Judge Blodgett gave the receiver twenty days in which to answer the petition.

SPORTING TRIFLES.

JAKE SCHAEFFER has gone East and will play practice games with John Moulds previous to his great match with Slosson in New York, Jan. 22.

JIM FARRELL of Plymouth, Pa., and Larry Thomas of Warrior Run, Pa., fought in a twenty-four-foot ring at Wilkesbarre, Pa., to a finish, Marquis of Queensbury rules. Two-ounce gloves were used. Farrell knocked Thomas out in the sixth round. The latter was badly punished.

LABOR CIRCLE.

THE miners of the Holzappel district, near Welsbaden, Germany, have struck. Troops, who have been ordered to the scene, are keeping order.

EUGENE STORCK, of Essen, Germany, is in America soliciting aid for the 18,000 striking printers in Berlin. He expects to raise $100,000 in this country.

THE threatened strike by the 3,000 employes in the Elgin Watch factory at Elgin, Ill., did not occur. Forty finishers asked more wages, which was refused. They are yet working.

AT Pittsburg the first annual convention of the National Barbers' Association, opened with 150 delegates from all parts of the country. The day was spent in considering plans for recognizing the beneficial and insurance features of the association.

OTHERWISE.

P. HUDSON, dry goods, Montreal, has failed; debts, $100,000.

Senator Sherman receives the Republican caucus nomination for senator from Ohio, defeating ex-Gov. Foraker 53 to 39.

A BILL declaring the lottery business a felony is introduced in the Kentucky senate.

ENGLISH capitalists are said to have bought all the type foundries in the United States.

LITHOGRAPHERS form a trust in New York to control the engraving of cigar box labels and theatrical posters.

RUMOR has it that Cleveland will not allow the use of his name in the Democratic convention as a candidate.

A LARGE number of Illinois, Indiana and Ohio farmers will remove to the Red river valley.

THE Connecticut supreme court decides the gubernatorial contest in favor of Bulkly, Republican.

THE whisky trust is being investigated on charges of violating the interstate commerce law.

Representatives of the national organization of broom manufacturers announce an advance of 25 cents a dozen, to take effect immediately.

No. 2 anthracite blast furnace of the Books Iron Company at Birdboro, Pa., resumed operations after a year's idleness. This is one of the largest furnaces in Schuylkill Valley.

THE Pennsylvania supreme court decided that a saloon keeper is liable for damages in the case of injuries received resulting from the sale of liquor to intoxicated persons.

JUDGE BLODGETT in the United States district court in Chicago has decided the long pending suit of Royal E. Robbins against the Illinois Watch company for infringement of a patent for a stem-winding watch. The court found for the complainant.

AT Philadelphia a bill in equity was filed in the circuit court on behalf of the government to restrain certain firms engaged in the manufacturing of olemargarine or butterine, from creating and maintaining a monopoly of the trade.

A STOCK company has been organized with a capital of $10,000,000 to establish a Monte Carlo gaming resort on a small island off the Californian coast, about 30 miles from Santa Barbara. Most of the stock has been taken by New York capitalists.

THE Pennsylvania supreme court in the case of Tobias vs. the Western Union Telegraph Company, appeal from the common pleas court of Allegheny county, enunciated an old decision that the condition exempting the company from liability for error in repeated messages has no application to the recipient of the message, and that when he suffers loss from such error the company is liable.

A STATEMENT of the receipts and expenditures of the Pennsylvania state government for the year ended November, 1891, show receipts for the year of $13,007,161.74, as against $8,625,919.10 in 1890. The payments for the year were $10,453,963.04, as against $8,168,881.18 in 1890. The balances in the treasury Nov. 30 last was $2,070,854.55, over $2,250,000 more than the balances at the close of the last fiscal year.

THE NORTHWEST.

A Summary of the Important Events of the Week in the Northwestern States.

Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, North and South Dakota News in a Nutshell.

MINNESOTA.

Four young men are arrested in St. Paul on charge of highway robbery.

A prominent attorney of Duluth dies from an overdose of "consumption cure."

It is proposed to establish a branch of the Irish National federation in St. Paul.

Basil W. Armstrong, a well known citizen of St. Paul, is dead.

Commissioners met and voted Morrison county's proportion, $160, to the fair fund.

A good site in the world's fair grounds is awarded to Minnesota.

Gov. Merriam makes numerous appointments.

J. L. Starkey is elected building inspector of St. Paul.

The St. Paul curlers win two medals at the Milwaukee bonspiel.

The Norman County Herald, hitherto a prohibition organ, has been sold to J. C. Norby and will run as an Alliance organ.

St. Paul school inspectors decide to put a limited kindergarten department into the Sibly school.

Levi Halgreen, aged 30 years, of Watertown, Minn, was killed by a falling tree at Miller Bros.' camp. The remains were taken to Watertown.

A great many people in Lake City are afflicted with something very like la grippe, but as yet there are no serious cases.

Ole O. Grondrud, an old settler of Fergus Falls wandered out of the house while delirious from the grip and his feet and hands were frozen solid when found.

The commissioners of Benton county appropriated $240 in favor of the state's World's Fair commission, this county's proportion of the funds being raised in addition to the legislative appropriation.

Judge F. M. Crosby filed an order in the case of Herman Polham, convicted of manslaughter in the first degree at Centre City, for the killing of Fred Tang of Taylor's Falls, denying a new trial.

Ole Jacobson, working at one of O'Neil Bro.'s camps at Hinckley, was killed by the fall of a tree. His body was brought down to town and then taken on the St. Paul & Duluth night express to his home in Wisconsin.

Thomas Richard, of Ashland, Wis., has been jailed at Grand Rapids for shooting, with intent to kill, John Groseman. It is believed, however, that Groseman will not appear to prosecute, and that Richards will go free.

Secretary Noble has appointed Thomas Nary of Gull River, and Charles Hayden of Chaplin, examiners and appraisers of Chippewa Indian lands in Minnesota, under the act of Jan. 14, 1889, with a view to their further sale.

Mrs. Ellen T. Windom, who is the administratrix of the estate of her dead husband, has made an application at Winona for the final settlement of the estate and the division of the property among the heirs. There is about $170,000 in the estate.

Peter Kron, of Evansville, committed suicide by shooting himself through the head. He has frequently been despondent since the death of his wife. The deceased was the father of the Messrs. Kron, so well known in this country.

Mrs. Morrison, a woman living at Redwood Falls, was found dead. Her husband had deserted her, and she died of malignant diphtheria. She had not been sick long enough to attract the attention of neighbors.

La grippe is raging at Austin. There is far more sickness than during the siege of this disease two years ago. All the doctors are busy day and night, and it is estimated that nearly one-fifth of the population is afflicted.

S. Hughes and R. W. Sumner, of Cannon Falls have been arrested, the former for selling a steer and the latter for butchering and disposing of the meat where the animal was known to be diseased. They will have a hearing Jan. 11.

Mrs. Davis, the highly respected wife of Hon. C. H. Davis, president of the First National bank of Glencoe, and daughter of Col. M. Donohue, of Bird Island, died after an illness of two weeks. The deceased was was about thirty years of age.

A Pelican Rapids special says: H. Pierce, a well-known school teacher attemptd suicide ot Cormorant, by shooting himself with a revolver. The ball intended for his heart struck a bone and lodged in the body. He is in a critical condition, but may recover. No cause assigned.

The grippe has the grip on several prominent officials of Mankato. Chief of Police Charles Yates is sick, and recently City Recorder W. Bienapfl succumbed and took to his bed. There are cases being reported from all the surrounding country, but the majority are of a mild type.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Mr. and Mrs. John Brunelle, of Wild Rice, were found dead. Asphyxiation caused death. Nine children are left,

Robert Lowe was found dead on the farm of William Graham, near Forest River, and is supposed to have been suffocated by gas.

The Grand Forks City council adopted a memorial to congress asking the passage of Senator Casey's bill for an appropriation of $150,000 for constructing dams and locks in the interests of navigation.

The state university opened with 175 students, as also did the Scandinavian Lutheran college, making Grand Forks the educational center for Scandinavians in the Northwest.

The 3-weeks' old babe of George Pepping, of Minot, was found dead in bed. The parents suppose it was caused by cramps, as on arising it was lying on the mother's arm apparently asleep.

At the meeting of the county commissioners at Grand Forks, James Murphy, of Ardock was elected chairman; Dr. Logan, of Grand Forks, county physician, and the Northwest News the official paper.

The second term of the Valley City normal opens auspiciously with increased attendance. Twenty thousand dollars will be expended for a building early next spring. Professors Sifton, Moses, Boles, Hand and Herrine are the faculty,

There is great consternation among those who have been breaking the prohibition law in Minot. Witnesses were examined by District Attorney Gregory, and it is understood that arrests will be made. There are nine of them in the same boat.

O. M. Towner and S. R. Briggs, of Chicago, secretary of the National Farm Association were at Grand Forks in the interest of their colonization scheme. Towner says 500 have already joined and he expects 2,000. They are mostly Germans from Indiana.

Gen. Comer, a farmer, came into Michigan City from the north and reported that he had seen seventy-five antelope about three miles from town. It nearly set every gun in the neighborhood aflame, and the farmers went out and succeeded in killing ten and capturing four alive. Expect to get most of the flock soon, as they are nearly tired out.

The jury in the case of the State vs. Ladd at Minto returned a verdict of assault with intent to do bodily harm. The assault grew out of a settlement for harvest wages due Ladd by one Gallagher, a farmer near Minto. Gallagher was stabbed in the right side and struck in the forehead by a bullet fired from a revolver in the hands of Henry Ladd. Judge Templeton will pass sentence. Henry Ladd is a stranger with no friends. He has been in jail at Grafton since September.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

The liquor trial of Fred Widman and wife at Mitchell resulted in a verdict of acquittal after an intensely exciting trial. The jury were out only a short time.

By vote of the business men of Madison and Lake county it was unanimously voted to raise the quota assigned to Lake county for the World's Fair at Chicago.

Bishop Hare, Episcopal bishop of the South Dakota diocese, and that of Japan, left Deadwood direct for Japan to be gone six months in connection with his church work in that country.

W. C. Wright's flour mill at Aberdeen, S. D., was damaged by fire to the extent of $600. The electric light company's engine and boiler were damaged, leaving the city in darkness for some time.

A great sensation was caused at Sioux Falls by the arrest of Harry Lacey, a prominent real estate dealer, for assault and battery on his wife, who preferred the charge. Lacey was also arrested on the charge of threatening to kill his wife. Mrs. Lacey has begun an action for divorce.

The Dakota house, Vermillion, belonging to Frank Stater, burned. The fire caught from the kitchen, and was beyond control when discovered. The building was a very old one, being the old Adelphi in the early days of Dakota. Loss $4,000, insurance $1,900.

Capt. McGowan, of Fort Sully, has returned from Lower Brule and Crow Creek agencies, where he witnessed the regular issue of annual goods to the Indians. This issue consisted of clothing, blankets, etc. The winter's supply of beef was killed at these agencies and frozen for delivery to the Indians at regular periods.

The United States marshal and his deputies went to the Chinese lottery house in Deadwood and arrested the proprietors and assistants, nine in number, upon the charge of maintaining lotteries and using the United States mail contrary to law. More arrests will follow, as the officer is determined to suppress the entire system in that section.

The Deadwood & Delaware smelter, located at Deadwood and owned by the Swift Bros., of Wilmington, Del., was blown in upon Black Hills and Colorado ores. The works were shut down last fall for the purpose of increasing their capacity to the extent of 200 tons per day. This enlargement has been completed and the smelting of ores is resumed to be continued. So says the superintendent.

WISCONSIN.

Charles Purdy, who mysteriously disappeared from Superior a few years ago, died at South Bend, Wash., recently.

A convocation of the Madison District of the Wisconsin Episcopal Diocese was held at Mineral Point January 5 and 6.

It is reported that the Wilson-Kilmer Manufacturing Company, of Portage, will remove its candy works to Superior.

The Hope Congregational Church at Superior was dedicated January 3. The building cost $4,500.

The farmers of Sevastopol, Door County, intend to start a starch factory in that town.

Edward L. James, a former resident of Racine, committed suicide at Chicago by drowning. The remains were taken to Racine for interment.

A number of Madison business men, headed by W. H. Lansing, will erect a packing house near that city. It is believed to be a branch to a Chicago house.

Leo Frankel, formerly of Shullsburg, who of late has been conducting a furnishing goods store in Chicago, has failed. Liabilities exceed assets about $3,000.

Mrs. Mary Cole, of Appleton, has been granted a pension of $12 a month on account of her son who died in a rebel prison. The lady is now 94 years of age.

Henry Van Ell and Mr. Patek, both of Port Washington, intend to invest $15,000 in the erection of new buildings and a new fishing tug at that place.

Levi Iverson, a woodsman, while felling timber at Hazelhurst, was instantly killed by a falling tree. His remains were shipped to his home at Merrill.

Two colored children, about 8 years of age, named Sylvester Ford and Lottie Wood, broke into a store at Fort Howard and secured $12 in cash.

Gracie Marvin, a 16-year-old girl, has disappeared from her home at West Superior. The police have been unable to find any trace of her.

Three men named Murphy, Daily and Smith pleaded guilty of stealing goods from a freight car while riding from Lake Shore Junction to Port Washington. They were sentenced to one year each at Waupun.

William Knowlton, of Janesville, disappeared from his home on New Year's Day and has not been seen since. His friends are anxious as to his safety, as he was very despondent at the time he disappeared.

Andrew Thompson was found dead in bed at West Superior. He had drawn $400 from the bank and had been on a debauch for some time. It is thought he committed suicide. He was from Montreal, Can.

The Hammond Packing Company, of Hammond, Ind., which built and operated fifteen ice-houses at Sturgeon Bay, has gone out of the ice business. The buildings and improvements cost $12,000.

IOWA.

Mr. J. C. Hooper, of St. Joseph, Mo., and Miss Anna Blonquist were married at the bride's home in Burlington.

Samuel Ledermen, proprietor of the "Fair," at Burlington, assigned to Joseph Simons recently, his liabilities amounting to $4,800.38. His principal creditors are in Kansas City and St. Joseph, Mo.

A mad dog played sad havoc among dogs and stock in Plymouth recently, also snapping at and tearing the flesh of several persons. Dozens of dogs have been killed since and there is much apprehension.

Every indication is favorable for a big ice harvest at Mason City this winter. There is no ice of consequence South and as the season is pretty well advanced Southern consumers are now arranging for their supply here. The ice is of good thickness and a good quality.

The town of Centerville is the scene of great excitement, caused by the defalcation of County Treasurer Lane. The day to turn over the office to the incoming treasurer, Lane boarded a train going south. It leaked out that experts who had been at work on his books found a shortage of $30,000. Lane has been county treasurer for eight years. During the past year he has been drinking heavily.

A freight train on the Milwaukee was wrecked about two miles out of Sheldon. Two men were badly injured. A broken rail was the cause. L. P. Salon, one of the two men injured, is in a critical condition. His scalp was laid open from the forehead the full length of his head; and he was otherwise cut and bruised all over his body. He lives near Rock Valley. James Brown, the other man, lives at Oliver, S. D., and was shipping stock to Chicago.

SIOUX CITY STUNNED

The Wife of a Seattle Man Makes a Sensational Deathbed Confession.

It Results in the Arrest of a Sioux City Man on the Charges of Adultery and Burglary.

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, Special Telegram, Jan. 6.—Arthur Rhys, a young Englishman, was arrested yesterday, having been indicted for adultery with Mrs. J. D. Chiene. The case is a complicated and mysterious one.

The complaining witness is Mr. Chiene, now living at Seattle. Four years ago he lived here and, Rhys was in his employ. Later, Rhys left him and was employed by a wealthy English farmer, named Barlow, now living in England. While Rhys lived at Barlow's a burglary was committed and some of Barlow's stock killed. Rhys was charged with the crime, arrested, tried and acquitted. He then secured judgment for several hundred dollars against Barlow for false imprisonment. He has since married. Mrs. Chiene died over a year ago at Seattle.

In a deathbed confession she charges Rhys with adultery with her. She also admits that she was an accomplice of his in the Barlow burglary, which she declares he was guilty of. Chiene came here under an assumed name a few weeks ago and has worked up the case. Since Rhys' arrest his friends have claimed the action is instigated by Walter Strange, a leading citizen here, against whom Rhys has a suit pending for $25,000, part of the consideration in a real estate deal. Rhys' attorney says the suit is a blackmailing scheme. The parties are all prominent, and sensational developments are looked for.

CAPTURED AT DUBUQUE.

Mrs. Johnson Released Her Child and Starts for Indianapolis.

DUBUQUE, Iowa, Special Telegram, Jan. 6.—The divorced wife of John M. Johnson, traveler for Miner & Elberg, physicians' chairs, Indianapolis, is the heroine of a sensational kidnaping case. She is the daughter of Sylvester Wiley, superintendent of the Prudential Life Insurance Company of Indianapolis. Last October she was divorced. She then went to Hot Springs, Ark., for her health, and on her return found her children, boys seven and nine years old, who had been left with Johnson's sister, had disappeared.

She located Johnson at La Crosse, Wis., where he had married a grass widow, Mrs. Cora Cooper. Proceeding to La Crosse, and, taking the advice of an attorney, she appeared at a school house Thursday afternoon with a hack, called her younger boy into it and drove with him to the Minnesota side, where she took the south-bound train for Indiapolis. She was apprehended at Dubuque, and Chief Byrne of La Crosse to-night persuaded her to yield the child to him while she returns to Indianapolis to have the court record corrected. The record gives her husband the custody of the children, though she says the intention of the court was to give them to her.

SEVERELY CRITICISED.

The Methods of Impaneling the Graves Jury Questioned.

DENVER, Jan. 9.—"If I were to put you on this jury would you be willing to render a veraict of guilty?"

Such is the question which ex-Ald. John B. Goodman was asked by Deputy Sheriff Charles A. Coryell during the time the jury was being empaneled for the trial of Dr. Graves. Mr. Goodman replied: "My God, that would never do." Although his name appears among others drawn by the county commissioners for this trial, Mr. Goodman was never summoned by the deputy sheriffs, and it was not called before the court for examination.

There have been many reports as to the manner in which jurors were handled in the Barnaby case, and one of these rumors was traced down with the above result. Mr. H. Rae, another venireman, who expressed himself as favorable to the defense, says his name was not called.

Slye Wants His Liberty.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 6.—Adelbert D. Slye, the alleged Glendale express robber, will make an attempt to-morrow through his attorneys, to get out on a writ of habeas corpus. The state will be asked to show cause why they should have imprisoned Slye and kept him confined. Two reasons will be advanced to show how Slye is being illegally restrained of his liberty. The first is that the St. Louis city criminal court has no jurisdiction in the case, the robbery having been committed in St. Louis county, and the second that the prisoner was brought here from California in an illegal way.

Prayed Before He Was Sentenced.

GRAFTON, N. D., Jan. 9.—Henry Ladd was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary to-day for assault with intent to kill his employer, named Gallagher. A novel scene was enacted in the court room when Judge Templeton asked Ladd if he had anything to offer in defense. He arose and began the lecture on "Man." After a half hour talk with no bearing on the case, he was called down by the judge. To the wonderment of all, he knelt down and offered up his devotions, praying for the judge, the jurymen and a number of others.

A Criminal Escapes.

PIERRE, S. D., Special Telegram, Jan. 9.—Arthur D. Sloan, who committed murder in Washington county, Neb., and escaped from jail at Blair, Neb., was captured yesterday near near Fort Sully, but while being conducted to this city made a break for liberty by running into the brush near the river. He has not yet been recaptured although several parties are on his trail. A reward of $600 is offered for his capture. Sloan tried to enlist as a soldier at the fort.

A Fatal Boiler Explosion.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 9.—The boiler of a large saw mill at Bollins, Ala., the property of Caldwell, Miller & Flowers of this city, exploded yesterday, instantly killing Engineer Cooper and four other employes of the company. The mill is a total wreck. Beside the killed four other employes were injured, two of them fatally. A defective boiler caused the explosion.

A New Court House Destroyed.

MARSHALL, Minn., Special Telegram, Jan. 9.—Lyon county's new court house was burned here to-day. It was built last summer at a cost of about $40,000, and was nearly completed but not accepted yet. Contractor Smith has, however, drawn all of the contract price but $1,600. The insurance of $18,000 runs to the county. This will probably rebuild it, as the walls are not much injured. The Pond Steam Heating company had just put in an outfit and are losers. The cause of the fire is unknown. It was first discovered in the attic. The fire company could not find water near enough to reach it with their 1,000 feet of hose and were helpless. A grand opening was to have been held next Friday.

A Fatal Boiler Explosion.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Special—The boiler of a large saw mill at Bollins, Ala., the property of Caldwell, Miller & Flowers of this city, exploded yesterday, instantly killing Engineer Cooper and four other employes of the company. The mill is a total wreck. Beside the killed four other employes were injured, two of them fatally. A defective boiler caused the explosion.

Relinquished His Pension.

WASHINGTON, Special—Secretary Noble has received a letter from an ex-soldier of Boston in which he encloses a pension certificate, which he says he voluntarily relinquishes as he does not wish further assistance from the government.

GENUINE PLUCK.

How Symanthia Foiled the Wolves and Got the Deer.

Some of the wildest and most romantic adventures of life do not find their way into print and are unheard of, except by a few scattered friends of those concerned in them. The following story was related to the writer, while seated by the camp-fire of an old hunter, among the pines of the upper peninsula in Michigan. "You mind that boat we saw in the water at the landin' just before we started down th' stream to day don't you? Well there was a woman lived 'bout two miles below here on the river with her man. They had no neighbors, there wa'nt a house in seven miles of them. It was just 'bout this time o'year, the ground was covered with six inches of snow but the river was open, it never freezes so early, fed by springs, you know.

The man was a Swede and the woman I don't know what she was, but she had a power of grit.

You see, John, got desperate sick, he was the man, and it came all of a sudden one night and kept growing on him until morning. Well as no one was there but Symanthia she had to go for medicine and care.

She got into that boat and started up against the swift current to the station. Think mister, of one o' your city gals being placed in her fix in woods like these, with a pair of oars and having to row seven miles against a heavy current, lots of men would drop that job.

Well Symanthia rowed hard and pushed the boat up rapids, and tugged along till she had got 'bout to a mile and a half of the station in some shallow water, where the creek was narrow above the main fork of the river, and being sort of exhausted she sat still to rest a minute but there wa'nt no rest, she heard a duced big noise at her back and looking 'round she saw a deer just in the act of jumping into the boat. He was a noble buck of the forest and was being chased by three ghostly large timber wolves which were at his heels. Before she had time to say skat he was all in a heap in the boat.

In a fit of desperation, without knowin' it Symanthia struck the deer in the throat with her knife, and as luck would have it, he died.

Then the plucky woman hollered and screamed till the wolves which stood growling on the bank, slunk off into the forest, she went on to the station and told her story but before they saw the deer they wouldn't believe her.

The section boss and his wife came down with her and brought some medicine for the sick man. I tell you mister she had pluck. Some folks would not believe this yarn but it is so."—Jonathan Quilldriver.

A TERRIBLE SITUATION.

The Man and the Woman Were Alone and the Bats Flew.

"At last we are alone!"

It was the man who spoke.

The woman trembled and held up her eyes to his face.

They were beautiful eyes, but they were tremulous eyes which look out from a heart which is irresolute, fearful.

He stamped with his heavy foot upon the floor of the room.

The echoes brought back in their invisible arms the sound, and let it ripple out again until it struck the walls once more, and fell into a vast void of silence.

A bat, disturbed by the unusual activity, darted from a corner and blindly dashed in eccentric convolutions about the dusty building.

From the ceiling great ropes of cobwebs hung down across the corner of the room, dead flies swung lightly in the hammocks the spiders had fastened there.

The dust rose in listless clouds from the shock of the heavy footfall and sank again overcome by its own merits.

Even the air was resting.

The spirit of desolation seemed to pervade the place.

The woman looked furtively around upon her dim surroundings and shivered.

The man laughed harshly.

"Alone, I said," he growled.

"Yes," she murmured.

A faint light struggled through the great windows in front, thick with dust.

"Where are we?" she whispered, and shivered, as the bat dashed into her hair.

"Listen," he replied, hoarsely; "we are in a store which does not advertise."—Detroit Free Press.

HE WAS VERY POLITE.

Ned Phillpot Gets the Best of a Hard-Hearted Judge.

"Is this Ned Phillpot?" the justice asked, addressing a little happy-headed negro.

"Yes, sah, thankee, ef you please."

"Been drunk again?"

"Yes, sah, thankee."

"Been here some 10 times within the last year, haven't you?"

"Yes, sah, thankee, bleeged ter you?"

"When are you going to quit?"

"Doan' know, thankee, sah."

"I believe I'll send you to the workhouse for 25 days."

"Thankee, sah."

"Look here, what makes you so polite?"

"Kain't help it, thankee, sah; born in me, I reckens."

"Well, I think I'll let you off this time. Politeness ought to be rewarded."

"Bleeged ter yer, sah; thankee."

When the little old negro was gone the justice said: "There can't help but be some little good in so polite a man. He may be a drunkard, but—but—"

"What are you looking for, judge?" someone asked.

"Why, that red silk handkerchief. It was lying on this desk a moment ago."

The little old negro walked along the street. "Dis yere hankerchuck is good fer two drinks," said he.—Arkansas Traveller.

The Southern brigadier in Congress says Uncle Sam has done too much for the boys in blue already and they say they don't propose to stand any "more nonsense."

It has been intimated frequently that Doc. Fish is a whale. Recent events would seem to indicate the truth of the statement and, moreover, Donnelly seems to have been playing the Jonah act to Doc's whale.

Time was when "Me & Mike" was a flourishing St. Paul concern that gained some notoriety throughout the State From the appearances of things it looks very like a "Me & Mike" society has been started in Crookston, since the new daily blossomed.

The Southern brigadier being in control in the lower house of Congress, the northern states get but little recognition on important committees. That is no more than might be expected, but it is amusing to see the democratic papers squirm. They have always howled about "oppressing our poor Southern brother," and now they have a dose they don't relish.

The southern brigadier is in the saddle again. In the democratic House it was decided that Uncle Sam is not rich enough to send the food contributions to the starving poor in Russia—you see Russia sided with the north against the south in the late unpleasantness and that makes a difference to the southern element in Congress—which is at present in control of the lower house of that body.

HUBBARD ITEMS.

HUBBARD, Jan. 12th, 1892.

K. S. Aker returned a few days ago from Park River, N. D., where he attended his mother's funeral. He has the sympathy of us all.

Geo. Tollefson, who has a fine timber claim in the wilds of Polk County, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ole Tollefson.

Halvor Thompson entertained his friends on his birthday at the residence of Elling Ellington. All seemed to enjoy themselves.

Miss Matilda Johnson, who visited her relatives in Fisher during vacation, has come back to finish her term of school. We hear that there are two districts that desire her services for the spring term.

The hour for the Union Sunday school services has been changed from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. All interested in God's dealings with man are requested to meet at the school house in district 17, at that hour.

John Keland, one of our bright young men, has just entered the Lutheran college at Grand Forks.

Parties who have land to sell in this town at a reasonable price can find purchasers by addressing Hayes Bros., Edna, Minn.

Jas. Hayes leaves this evening for a visit to his old home in Hartleton, Pa.

New Impetus Given to the Duluth & Winnipeg Road By the New Officers.

Funds Secured for Completing the Road Into the Red River Valley.

St. Paul Dispatch.

DULUTH, Minn., Jan. 11.—At the annual meeting of the Duluth & Winnipeg road officials a complete change in the management was made, of the utmost importance to Duluth and the North west. B. N. Baker, of Baltimore, is succeeded as president by A. W. Wright, of Saginaw, and the executive committee became Messrs. Wright and R. S. Munger, of Duluth. The road by these changes becomes thoroughly a Duluth affair, which it has not been during Baker's presidency. Additional money has been raised and a line is to be built at once directly west from Grand Rapids to and beyond Red River into the wheat country.

THE OLD RELIABLE

CROOKSTON

LOAN AGENCY

STILL ON DECK.

MONNY

On Real Estaee

MONEY

On Approved Chattels,

Always on hand at the Lowest Rates Consult your best interests by giving me a call when you Want Money.

A. D STEPHENS,

Second Street, [illegible] Minn.

THE PIONEER

HARNESS SHOP,

M. RAUENBUEHLR, Proprietor.

A full supply of everything kept by the trade.

Cor of Broadway and Third Sts,

CROOKSTON, MINN

REMNANT SALE.

Remnant Sale.

GERVAIS'------The Hustlers,

GREAT SALE OF

REMNANTS,
ODDS AND ENDS
AND BROKEN LINES
OF ALL KINDS.

BIG BARGAINS OFFERED.

Cloaks and Shawls

—AT—

Tremendous Reductions.

Gervais' - The Hustlers.

REMNANT SALE.

OUR HOLIDAY STOCK

IS

ON DISPLAY

THE FAIR

DEPARTMENT STORE,

Cor. Main and Robert Sts., Crookston.

NEW CIGAR STORE

SIGN OF THE BIG INDIAN.

H. F. BROWN, Proprietor.

Second Street,

CROOKSTON, MINN

Cigars of every known brand, from a cheroot to a 25 center. Cigarettes, Chewing and Smoking Tobaccos of all kinds, Snuff. Pipes to suit the fancy of all, from a corn-cob pipe to a meerchaum.

CALL IN.

Northern Pacific

BETWEEN

Winnipeg, Gilby, Drayton, Grafton
Grand Forks, Crookston,
AND ALL POINTS

EAST AND WEST.

There is nothing better than the service on

THE DINING CAR LINE

Through Pullman Sleeping Cars Daily between points

IN THE RED RIVER VALLEY

—AND—

ST. PAUL AND MINNEAPOLIS.

PACIFIC COAST TRAINS
PASSING THROUGH
Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana Idaho, Oregon and Washington

CARRY COMPLETE EQUIPMENT OF
Pullman Palace Sleeping Cars,
First and Second Class Coaches,
Pullman Tourist and
Free Colonist Sleeper
AND ELEGANT DINING CARS

THROUGH TICKETS are sold at all coupon offices of the Northern Pacific Railroad to points North, East, South and west, in the United States and Canada.

TIME SCHEDULE.

East bound.

Passenger 7:10 p. m. | Freight 9:20 p. m.

West bound.

Passenger 8:20 a. m. | Freight 8:00 p. m.

For rates, maps, time tables or special information, apply to C. A. Sharkey, Agent Northern Pacific R. R. at Crookston, Minn., or

CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent,
St. Paul, Minn.

P. J. RUSSELL,

Attorney-at-Law

CROOKSTON, MINN.

Next to Merchants' Bank.

Farmers' Egg Cases.

Call and Get a Ticket

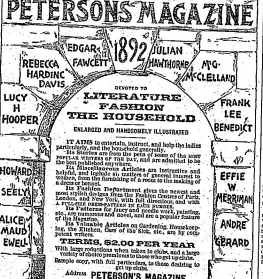
And when you purchase anything at our store have the amount punched. The case is made of tin, handsomely Japanned and ornamented. The Fillers are made of cloth paper and very durable. Saves both packing and counting, obviates loss from breakage and miscounts and is an ornament to any home. This case will be given you when your cash purchases amount to $25.00.

When empty these cases can be used to carry groceries in, and are very handy for that. Remember the place,

A. Sture's New Store,

CROOKSTON, MINN.

Opera House Block,



PETERSONS MAGAZINE

1892

EDGAR FAWCETT · JULIAN HAWTHORNE · REBECCA HARDING DAVIS · M. G. McCLELLAND · LUCY H HOOPER · FRANK LEE BENEDICT · HOWARD SEELY · EFFIE W MERRIMAN · ALICE MAUD EWELL · ANDRE GERARD

DEVOTED TO LITERATURE
FASHION
THE HOUSEHOLD

ENLARGED AND HANDSOMELY ILLUSTRATED

IT AIMS to entertain, instruct, and help the ladies particularly, and the household generally.

Its Stories are from the pens of some of the MOST POPULAR WRITERS OF THE DAY, and are admitted to be the best published anywhere.

Its Miscellaneous Articles are instructive and helpful, and include all matters of general interest to women, from the furnishing of a room to the making of a dress or bonnet.

Its Fashion Department gives the newest and most stylish designs from the Fashion Centres of Paris, London, and New York, with full directions, and with A FULL-SIZE DRESS-PATTERN IN EACH NUMBER.

Its Patterns for fancy and needle work, painting, etc., are numerous and novel, and are a popular feature of the Magazine.

Its Valuable Articles on Gardening, Housekeeping, the Kitchen, Care of the Sick, etc., are by competent writers.

TERMS, $2.00 PER YEAR

With large reductions when taken in clubs, and a large variety of choice premiums to those who get up clubs.

Sample copy, with full particulars, to those desiring to get up clubs.

Address PETERSON'S MAGAZINE,
306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

G. SLATER.
H. ROTHERT.
E. N. HILL.
J. A. GOBOE.

Chase & Slater Law and Claims Co.,

1331 F Street, Northwest,
WASHINGTON, D. C.

Practice in the Supreme Court of the United States, the Court of Claims, all the executive departments and before Congress. Claims for Indian Depredations collected. Pension cases prosecuted. Patents promptly secured. Careful attention given to all classes of land cases. Liberal arrangements made with Local Attorneys for transfer of cases.

W A. ROBERTSON

D. D. S.

Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland.

OPERATIVE AND MECHANICAL

DENTIST.

N. B. Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.

OFFICE IN McKINNON BLOCK.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Thursday, Jan. 14th 1892.]
[Last publication Thursday, Feb. 25th 1892.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred and fifty and seventy one hundredths Dollars interest now due upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Thomas Plante and Mary Plante his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of June, 1889, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 1st day of July, 1889, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 45 of mortgages on page 470.

And whereas, the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of the said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of nine hundred and fifty-six and fourteen hundredths dollars ($956.14), with interest on nine hundred and forty (940) dollars, thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum, from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north half of the south-east quarter (n½ se¼) and the north half of the south-west quarter (n½sw¼) of section thirty four (34) of town one hundred and fifty (150) of range forty-one (41) in Polk county and State of Minnesota with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of nine hundred and fifty-six and fourteen hundredths dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [39-45]

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.]
[Last publication Feb 25th, 1892]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of Seventy-one and seventy eight one hundredths dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Luc Jenot and Elenore Jenot, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of December, 1888, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the seventh day of December, 1888, at 11 o'clock a. m., in book 41 of mortgages, on page 57.

And whereas the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of Ten Hundred and seventy-eight and fifty-eight dollars, ($1078.58), with interest on Ten Hundred and Seventy ($1070) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The south-east (se) quarter of section nineteen (19) of town one hundred and fifty (150) of range forty-one (41) in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Ten Hundred and Seventy eight and fifty eight one hundredths dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty ($50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [39-45]

Mortgage Foreclosuse Sale.

(First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.)
(Last publication Jan. 25th, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of eighty-eight and eighty-five one hundredths dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Martin Thompson and Ann G. Thompson, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the second day of December 1889, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 10th day of January, 1890, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 48 of mortgages, on page 242.

And whereas the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of six hundred and ninety-two and eighty-one one hundredths dollars. ($692 81), with interest on six hundred and eighty-four (684) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum, from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north-west quarter (nw¼) of section twenty (0) of Town one hundred and forty-nine (149) of Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of six hundred and ninety-two and 81-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee
Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [39-45]

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

(First publication Jan. 11th, 1892.)
(Last publication Feb. 25th, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of eighty-eight and 85-100 dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Peder H. Mesedalen and Kari Mesedalen, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company, of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the second day of December, 1889, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the tenth day of January, 1890, at 9 o'clock a. m, in book 48 of mortgages, on page 246.

And whereas, the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of six hundred ninety-two and 81-100 dollars, ($692 81) with interest on six hundred and eighty-four (684) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The northwest quarter (nw¼) of Section seventeen (17), Town one hundred and forty-nine (149), Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of six hundred and ninety-two and 81-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises and fifty (50) dollars Attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [39-45]

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

(First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.)
(Last publication Feb. 25th, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of thirty-two and 19-100 dollars interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Eugene Boulie and Melvina Boulie, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company, of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of August, 1890, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the twentieth day of August, 1890, at 3 o'clock p. m., in book 52 of mortgages, on page 393.

And whereas, the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of four hundred and ninety-six and 4-100 dollars, (494.04), with interest on four hundred and eighty-one (481) dollars thereof, at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The south half of the northwest quarter (s½ nw¼) and lots three (3) and four (4), all in Section two (2), of Town one hundred and forty-nine (149), of Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of four hundred ninety-six and 4-100 dollars ($496.04) and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five (25) dollars Attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [39-45]

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

(First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.)
(Last publication Feb. 25th, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of forty-three and 25-100 dollars interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Napoleon Gonyea, an unmarried man, mortgagor, to The Loan and Guarantee Company, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of November, 1890, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the third day of November, 1890, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 54 of mortgages, on page 345.

And whereas the said, The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of six hundred and fifty and 83-100 dollars ($650.83) with interest on six hundred and forty-two (642) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The west half of the northeast quarter (w½ ne¼) and the west half of the southeast quarter (w½ se¼) of Section thirty (30), of Town one hundred and fifty (150) of Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of six hundred and fifty and 83-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars Attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D, 1892,

The Loan and Guarantee Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [39-45]

JOHN CROMB,

Attorney-at-Law,

SECOND STREET, CROOKSTON

MARTIN O'BRIEN,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

I. O. O. F. BUILDING, Crookston, Minn

CHRISTIANSON BROTHERS

(Correspondents Fargo Loan Agency.)

REAL ESTATE

Farm Mortgage Loans and Insurance.

☞ Special Bargains in Choice Farm Lands, improved and unimproved. Low prices and easy terms.

—OFFICE ON ROBERT STREET,—

CROOKSTON, - - - MINN

MEMBERS OF THE

Home Supply Association,

OF CHICAGO.

ATTENTION

Supply Association Prices on

HARNESS, ETC.,

Knocked sky-high by

G. W. PEAKE,

MAIN ST. HARNESS SHOP, CROOKSTON

QUOTATIONS.

Single Buggy Harness.	Associa'n prices.	My price
No. 2	$7.50	$6 50
No. 3	8 75	8.00

Double Buggy Harness
No. 102—no collars, Home Supply price,	$15.00
" " G. W. Peake's "	14 50
Double Farm Harness.
No. B.xC.—Home Supply price	$24.25
" " G. W. Peake's "	22 50
No. C 38—Home Supply "	25.00
" " G. W. Peake's "	23.50
No. D 40—Home Supply "	28.00
" " G. W. Peake's "	27.00
No. E 40—Home Supply "	28.00
" " G. W. Peake's "	26.00
Buggy Whip—drop top	15c to 25c
" " straight Java	20c to 60c
" " rawhide center	90c to $1.00
Lace Team Collars	$2.00 to $4 50
Overtop Sweats—3 hooks	50c per pair
Webb Halters	25c, 35c and 40c
Ladies' Side Saddle	$5.00
Riding Bridle—plain	90c to $1.00
Men's Riding Saddles	$2.00, $2.50 $3.00, up

G. W. PEAKE,

Main Street, between Robert and Second Streets

Valley Roller Mills

MANUFACTURERS OF

FINE FLOUR

From Selected Red River Wheat.

Lee & Herrick's Best,	$2 65
North Star, - -	2.50
Fife, - - -	2.15
Skip Jack. - -	1.15

☞ We exchange flour for wheat on equitable terms.

LEE & HERRICK.

First National Bank

OF CROOKSTON

PAID IN CAPITAL, - $100,000

SURPLUS, - - - $12,700

Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittance.

GEO. Q. ERSKINE, President.
WM. ANGLIM, Vice President.
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashier.

DIRECTORS:

Wm. Anglim, K. D. Chase, F. D. Childs
Geo. Q. Erskine, B. B. Northrop, A. A. Miller
F. M. Walsh, John Moore, W. H. Crosby
Chas. E. Sawyer.

$60 REWARD.

FREE FOR TWO MONTHS.

THE HOME MAGAZINE

Every lady sending us the names of 20 housekeepers will receive a copy of The Home Magazine FREE for two months.

To those who may be desirous of sending us more than 20 names, we offer the following cash prizes for the largest lists received, viz:

For the largest list	$20 00
" " next largest list	10.00
" " third " "	5.00
" " fourth " "	3.00
" " fifth " "	2.00
" " 20 largest lists, 50c each.	10.00
" " next 20 largest lists, 50c "	10.00

Rules Governing this Competition.

1. All names must reach us not later than December 1st and all prizes will be mailed not later than December 10th.

2. Put the names of those living in different towns on separate sheets of paper, giving the name of the state and county in the top right hand corner, and the number of names contained on the sheet in the top left hand corner. Thus:

4 Kansas, Olathe.
Mrs. Henry Brown,
" Amelia Duggan,
" Chas Semple, box 310.
" Amelia Walker.

Give the total number of names contained in your list in the letter accompanying the same.

4 Be careful to write as distinctly as possible and on one side of the paper only.

☞ Names of the prize winners will be announced in the January, 1892, number of the Home Magazine.

THE BRODIX PUBLISHING CO.,
WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Great Family Newspaper,

Only $1 a Year. Two Cents a Week.

The National Tribune,

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The National Tribune aims to be the greatest family paper in the United States It has the Finest Array of Contributors in the country, and gives More Original Reading Matter, of the best quality, than any other great weekly. Among its present special features are:

NANQUISHING VICKSBURG. By Prof. A. Hobbs, of the Delevan (Wis.) College. Prof. Hobbs was First Sergeant of Co. B. 99th Ill., and fought the entire campaign which he so graphically describes. He commences with the camp at Milliken's Bend, and carries the reader through all the campaign, giving a boy soldier's views of the marching, camping, fighting, scenery, Generals etc. It will be read with great interest by all.

INDIAN STORIES. A series of Exciting Narratives of Life, Loving Hunting and Fighting on the Western Frontier. By Col. Henry Inman, the popular author.

LARZ BEVERLY. An Interesting Romance. By Mrs Olive Logan Sikes, the noted writer.

ON THE MEXICAN BORDER. By Col. A. G. Brackett, U. S. A.

A FOBLE ATONEMENT. An Interesting Story. B Mme. Sophie Redfield de Meissner, of the Russian Legation.

SOUTH AFRICA. A Series of Letters from the Diamond fields. By H. H. B. Marrison, of Johannisberg, South Africa.

AMONG THE MOONSHINERS OF NORTH CAROLINA. Ay Gen. Marcus J. Wright.

SOUTH AMERICAN SKETCHES. By Capt. Almont Barnes.

Frank G. Carpenter will continue his interesting letters. Prof. Felix S. Oswald will continue his attractive articles. This is only a partial list. Other attractive features will be announced from time to time.

"WAR HISTORY," by men who actually saw and did what they write about. It makes a specialty of this and the contributions to its columns by the men in every rank and degree who did the marching, digging and shooting and carried forward the war through all its various phases to a glorious success, make the only genuine history of the war.

It makes a specialty of G. A. R. News, W. R. C. News, Sons of Veteran News, Washington Gossip. It makes a special feature of matters of interest at the National Capitol, and gives a weekly budget of entertaining gossip about men and things at the seat of Government. Besides this it presents every week a splendid array of Editorials on Current Topics—Stories by the Best Authors—Wit, Humor, and Information—Agricultural Notes of the Greatest Value—Household Hints and Suggestions—Synopsis of the News of the Week—Answers to Correspondents—Bright Miscellany, etc., which will interest, amuse and instruct every member of the family.

The National Tribune will constantly be [illegible]

ONLY TWO CENTS A WEEK,

or $1 a year. Send for Sample Copies. Sample Copies sent free. Address

THE NATIONAL TRIBUNE,
Washington, D. C.

Polk County Journal.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.

Crookston, January 14, 1892.

FOR PRINCIPAL POINTS IN

GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY LINE

MINNESOTA,
NORTH DAKOTA,
SOUTH DAKOTA,
MANITOBA,
MONTANA, AND
PACIFIC COAST.

TIME CARD.

MONTANA EXPRESS DAILY.

7:40 p. m. de.........St. Paul..........ar. 6:55 a. m.
7:00 a. m. de......CROOKSTON......de. 7:25 p. m.
8:15 a. m. de......Grand Forks......de. 6:20 p. m.
2:30 p. m. ar..........Helena..........dc. 11:00 a. m

ST. VINCENT BRANCH.
Daily, except Sunday.
Depart 7:30 a. m.....................Arrive 6:45 p. m.

FOSSTON BRANCH.
DAILY, EXCEPT SUNDAY.
Depart 7:30 a. m.....................Arrive 5:00 p. m.

ST. HILAIRE BRANCH.
Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Depart 10:45 a. m.....................Arrive 4:00 p. m.

W. W. FEGAN,
Agent, Crookston.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

	Leave Crookston Daily.	Arrive Crookston Daily.
For Duluth, Ashland, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago, and all points East and South..............	10:08 p. m.	8:25 a. m.
For Grand Forks, Grafton, Pembina, Winnipeg and points in N. Dakota and Winnipeg.........	8:25 a. m.	10:08 p. m.

IF YOU ARE GOING EAST OR SOUTH ASK YOUR NEAREST AGENT FOR TICKETS VIA THE BURLINGTON AND TAKE NO OTHER LINE.

Our Duluth Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

DULUTH, Jan. 5.—The new year is all a time for reckoning accounts and making out statements. In all Western cities it is customary to review the progress of the year just closed and give columns of figures that show the growth of the twelve months. Duluth newspapers have been either not as enterprising or not as ambitious this winter as usual, for up to date no annuals have been published and little attempt has been made to collect the statistics of the year. The figures in a few of the principal lines of business, however, are at hand. Bank clearings for the year were $106,824,193.99 against $104,572,349 31 in 1890, an increase of $$2,251,845 68. Not a large increase, but very satisfactory, considering the fact that the business of one of the largest banks of the city, which failed in December, 1890, was absorbed by other banks, making a large loss business passing through the clearing house. In the amount of capital and surplus, deposits and loans, the banking business of the city showed a large increase, about 30 per cent. over that of the previous year. The records of the board of trade show that flour receipts for the year were 2,783,494 bbls, wheat receipts 40,501,106 bu., corn 299,291 bu., oats 570,442 bu., rye 15,652 bu., barley 160,492 bu., flax 490,690 bu. The receipts of flour and wheat, reducing the former to bushels, were 54,524,851 bu. As compared with 1890 flour receipts are 415,217 bbs. larger, and wheat receipts increased 25,159,644 bu. The increase of receipts at Minneapolis was only half that amount.

The shipments of flour were 3,452,494 bbls, and wheat 34,659,368 bu., or a total flour in bushels, of 50,195,391 bu. Of these shipments 3,220,273 bbls flour and 33,817,568 bu. wheat went by lake. Chicago lake shipments of flour were 1,684,011 bbls, and wheat 29,642,142 bu. In 1890 Duluth's flour shipments were 2,599,384 bbls, and wheat shipments 15,090,826 bu.

The year's flour production was 684,000 bbls, against 430,978 bbls in 1890, and 84,446 bbls in 1889. After January 16th the capacity of the mills will be more than doubled, running up to 6,500 a day. Next fall mills at the head of the lake will have a daily capacity of 11,000 bbls.

The report of Collector Johnson for the year makes the number of arrivals and clearances 2,895, an increase of 361 over 1890. The tonnage of the port was 3,268,031, an average tonnage to vessels of 1,125. In 1885 vessels arriving here averaged only 761 tons. Among the items of receipts were 778,962 tons coal, 206,971 bbls lime and cement, 33,313 tons building stone and lime, 137,621 bbls salt, and 270,174 tons merchandise. About 18 per cent of the real tonnage of Duluth is lost to the custom house records by the reporting at other ports and that percentage ought to be added to the figures given. Duluth and Superior together report the number of arrivals and clearances at 4,505 and the tonnage at 5,832,494 tons. There is a population at the head of the lake now of about 70,000. At the port of Chicago, with its population of 1,200,000, the arrivals and clearances were 20,237 and the tonnage 10,150,052, the latter being less than twice as large as the tonnage at the head of Lake Superior.

Building permits issued by the city inspector were for 489 structures valued at $1,125,278. In addition to this valuation the expenditures on such buildings as the Lyceum, the Union Depot and the new High School, which took out permits last year and the extra expenditure on other structures, has been about $800,000. The new buildings in Lakeside, West Duluth and New Duluth outside the inspection limits number about 400, and are valued at about $1,200,000, making the total expenditures for the year about $3,125,000, and the total number 839. Last year 780 buildings were erected.

About 5 miles of streets were paved, and 12 miles graded, 65 miles of sanitary and 4 miles storm sewers, and 7½ miles sidewalk built. The total cost of this work was about $900,000 or $350,000 more than the amount expended the previous year. In street railway building, harbor improvements and railroad improvements within the city limits the expenditures were larger than for years, if not greater than ever before.

HAYS.

Minneapolis Tribune, Dec. 19th, 1891:—"Next week the Andrews Opera Company will present the two most popular comic operas of the day, "Mascotte" and "The Mikado," the former the first half of the week. During the past three weeks the audiences at the Lyceum have been large, which is an indication that the people have realized that the Andrews Opera Company is giving worthy and creditable performances. The Lyceum ought to be well filled next week. An excellent performance of the "Mascotte" can confidently be expected, for the company has already presented this opera here one night. As for "The Mikado," there can be no doubt but that it will be well done, for the characters are well suited to the principals of this company." Will be at the Grand Opera House, Crookston, one night only, Monday, Jan. 25th, 1892. Prices, $1.50, $1.00, 75c. and 50c. Seats on sale at Tom Morris'. Monday, Jan. 18th. Come early and avoid the rush.

Good Market For Oats

Having had a fine oat crop swept away by hail in few minutes time we are obliged to buy oats to supply our farm teams, and we will be glad to pay the highest market price to any who are owing us several years subscription. We shall need about 1000 bushels and will take them as fast as offered. Bring on your oats and get your receipts.

[33-tf]

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Jan. 7th, 1892]
[Last publication Feb. 18th, 1892.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain indenture of mortgage, executed and delivered by Ida D. Van Tuyl and John E. Van Tuyl, her husband, mortgagors, to the "Union Central Life Insurance Company," mortgagee, bearing date the 22d day of November, 1889, with a power of sale therein contained, which mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 27th day of December, A. D. 1889, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, in book 51, of mortgages, on page 255, and whereas said mortgage was given to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars and interest thereon from its said date at the rate of eight per cent. per annum, due and payable on the first day of January in each year. And whereas default has been made in the payment of the sum of forty-eight dollars interest due and payable January 1st, 1891, and default having also been made in the payment of the sum of forty-eight dollars interest due and payable on January 1st, 1892, and both of said defaults still continue, and no part of said principal has ever been paid. And whereas the conditions of said mortgage are such that if default be made in the payment of the principal sum secured by said mortgage or interest thereon when the same becomes due, then the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage shall thereupon become due and payable at once.

And whereas both by the terms of said mortgage and the election of said mortgagee hereby made the whole amount secured by said mortgage both principal and interest accrued to this date is now due and payable.

And the amount now claimed to be due and which is due at the date of this notice upon said mortgage, including interest in accordance with the terms of said mortgage is the sum of six hundred and ninety-nine and 95-100 dollars And no action or proceeding at law having been instituted to recover said debt or any part thereof secured by said mortgage.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained which by reason of the defaults aforesaid has become operative, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to-wit: The west half of the southeast quarter and the east half of the southwest quarter, both of the above described tracts being in Section ten (10), Township one hundred and forty nine (149), Range forty-three (43), in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and containing 160 acres of land, together with all the hereditaments and appurtenances there unto belonging or in any wise appertaining Said sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on Tuesday, the 23d day of February 1892, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to satisfy and pay the amount which will then be due upon said mortgage according to the terms thereof, and interest and fifty dollars attorney's fees as provided by said mortgage in case of foreclosure and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated January 4th, 1892.

Union Central Life Insurance Company,
Mortgagee.

Chas. P. Barker,
Attorney for said Mortgagee,
618 Guaranty Loan Building,
[38-44] Minneapolis Minn.

[First publication Jan. 7, 1892.]

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, } ss.

The State of Minnesota, to George W. Roberts and Georganne Roberts defendants:

You are hereby summoned to be and appear before the undersigned, one of the Justices of the Peace in and for said county, on the 30th day of January, 1892, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at my office in the city of Crookston in said county, to answer to Christen Anderson in a civil action. Should you fail to appear at the time and place aforesaid, judgment will be rendered against you upon the evidence adduced by said Christen Anderson for such sum as he shall show himself entitled to.

Given under my hand this 31st day of December, 1891.

C. O. CHRISTIANSON,
Justice of the Peace.

STEENERSON & STANTON,
Attorneys for Plaintiff. [38-40]

P. J. RUSSELL,
Attorney-at-Law
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Next to Merchants' Bank.

L. E. GOSSMAN,
Attorney-at-Law,
No. 2 Fournet Block } CROOKSTON, MINN.

IF YOU WANT TO
SELL YOUR FARM
OR CITY PROPERTY

List it with E. M. Walsh,
THE REAL ESTATE BROKER.

He has parties who are looking for Investments in Real Estate in Polk County. Call on him, or write, giving a description of property and price.

Office in Odd Fellows Block. } CROOKSTON.

Crookston Business College.

FACULTY:

R. S. KNUDSON,	L. E. GOSSMAN,	C. M. WASSON.
BOOKKEEPING.	Faculty composed of specialtists.	GRAMMAR.
SHORTHAND.	Most advanced methods of instruction.	ARITHMETIC.
TYPEWRITING.	Students may take full course or special braches.	SPELLING.
PENMANSHIP.	Special English department.	READING.
COMMERCIAL LAW.	Day and evening sessions.	HISTORY.
CIVIL GOVERNMENT	Tuition Fees Low.	GEOGRAPHY.
CORRESPONDENCE.	Students may enterat any time.	COMPOSITION.

For catalogues and circulars address
R. S. KNUDSON, Principal,
Crookston, Minn.

A Complete Reference Library
AT ABOUT 2 CTS. A DAY.

REVISED ENCYCLOPÆDIA BRITANNICA

20 Large Octavo Volumes, 7,000 Pages, 3,000,000 Words, and 97 Maps Printed in Colors, Bound in Jute Manilla.

AND THE WEEKLY PIONEER PRESS FOR ONE YEAR

ALL FOR $7.50!

This is the GREATEST OFFER ever made by any Newspaper. The Revised Encyclopædia Britannica is a Dictionary of Art, Science and Literature to which is added descriptions of American Cities, with a History of their Origin and Growth, together with Accurate Information of their Situation, Population, Resources, etc., etc.

The Best, Cheapest, Completest and Latest Revised Encyclopædia and the Greatest Newspaper,
THE WEEKLY PIONEER PRESS FOR ONE YEAR FOR $7.50!
AND WE PAY THE FREIGHT.
Address WEEKLY PIONEER PRESS, St. Paul, Minn.

A POPULAR FAMILY.

JENNIE: "How is it, Kate, that you always seem to 'catch on' to the last new thing? Do what I may, you always seem to get ahead of me."

KATE: "I don't know: I certainly do not make any exertion in that direction."

JENNIE: "Well, during the last few months, for example, you have taken up painting, without any teacher; you came to the rescue when Miss Lafarge deserted her Delsarte class so suddenly, and certainly we are all improving in grace under your instruction; I heard you telling Tommy Eames last evening how his club made mistakes in playing baseball; you seem to be up on all the latest 'fads,' and know just what to do under all circumstances; you entertain beautifully; and in the last month you have improved so in health, owing, you tell me, to your physical culture exercises. Where do you get all of your information from in this little out-of-the way place?—for you never go to the city."

KATE: "Why, Jennie, you will make me vain. I have only one source of information, but it is surprising how it meets all wants. I very seldom hear of anything new but what the next few days bring me full information on the subject. Magic? No! Magazine! And a great treasure it is to us all, for it really furnishes the reading for the whole household: father has given up his magazine that he has taken for years, as he says this one gives more and better information on the subjects of the day; and mother says that it is that that makes her such a famous housekeeper. In fact, we all agree that it is the only really FAMILY magazine published, as we have sent for samples of all of them, and find that one is all for men, another all for women, and another for children only, while this one suits every one of us; so we only need to take one instead of several, and that is where the economy comes in, for it is only $2.00 a year. Perhaps you think I am too lavish in my praise; but I will let you see ours, or, better still, send 10 cents to the publisher, W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th Street, New York, for a sample copy, and I shall always consider that I have done you a great favor; and may be you will be cutting us out, as you say we have the reputation of being the best informed family in town. If that be so, it is Demorest's Family Magazine that does it."

SPCEIAL
OFFER!

$3.00 for BOTH.
Polk County Journal
—AND—
Demorest's Magazine
For Only $3.00.

H. STEENERSON
ATTORNEY AT LAW
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA

DENTISTRY

Artificial Teeth and Roofless Plates.
BY NEW PATENT.

Don't Have Teeth Extracted If Two Teeth or Roots Remain in Proper Position in Either Jaw. An Entire Set of Teeth can be Attached to them.

PATENT GOLD CLASPS

The teeth never tip or drop down while eating, talking or laughing, the gold clasps admitting of tightening or loosening in all cases.

This new method for inserting where as discovered by experimenting, patented February 11th, 1890 and I am now able to make perfect fits for all. This process is absolutely without pain, and at a price within the reach of all.

Call on [illegible] you have your teeth extracted as I make a specialty of Removable Bridge, and Roofless Plates. A perfect fit guaranteed in every case. Gold fillings inserted. Vitalized air and electricity for painless operations.

DR. J. H. THOMAS,
Owns Polk County, Minn., for this patent.

G. G. HENAULT
Practical Dentist
SECOND STREET,
CROOKSTON, - - MINN
OFFICE IN DOBSON'S BLOCK,
☞ All work in my line skilfully and promptly performed. Give me a call.
G. G. HENAULT.

G. SLATER. E. N. HILL.
H. ROTHERT. J. A. GORGE.
Chase & Slater Law and Claims Co.,
1331 F Street, Northwest,
WASHINGTON, D. C.

Practice in the Supreme Court of the United States, the Court of Claims, all the executive departments and before Congress. Claims for Indian Depredations collected. Pension cases prosecuted. Patents promptly secured. Careful attention given to all classes of land cases. Liberal arrangements made with Local Attorneys or for transfer of cases.

MILLER & FOOTE,
ATTY'S-AT-LAW,
McKinnon Block, - Crookston, Minn.

ALDERMAN & SYLVESTER,
—DEALERS IN—
Shelf and Heavy
HARDWARE,
Sash, Doors and Mouldings

Mixed Paints, Linseed and Machine Oils, Flying Dutchman Gang Plows, J. Thompson & Sons Walking Plows. Sole agents for the Domestic Sewing Machine.

A FULL AND COMPLETE STOCK OF
STOVES AND RANGES
Corner Main and Fletcher Sts., - - - Crookston.

McKINNON BROS.,
—DEALERS IN—
ALL OF THE LEADING
Agricultural Implements
MAIN STREET. McKINNON BLOK.
☞ Before Purchasing, Give Us a all. ☜

NEW STORE! NEW GOODS!
LOW PRICES.

Cll and see me at my elegant new quarters in the new Opera Block, next door south of McKinnon Bros. Machinery Depot. I will make it an object for you to call on me when you want anything in the line of

GENERAL MERCHANDISE.
A. STURE,
Opera Block - - Crookston.

SCANDIA-AMERICAN BANK,
OF CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.
Organized Under the State Laws.

Authorized capital $200,000. Paid up capital, $50,000. Undivided profits $10,500

Buys Bonds, School and Town Orders. Special attention to collections
Interest on time deposits.

OFFICERS.
C. HENDRICKSON, President
O. H. LUCKEN, 2d Vice-President.
A. G. GALLASCH, Vice-President
L. ELLINGTON, Cashier.
A. P. HANSON, Assistant Cashier.

DIRECTORS.
C. O. Christianson, E. P. Pierce, O. H. Lucken, A. D. Stephens, A. G. Gallasch, H. Steenerson, J. H. Lucken, C. Hendrickson, Max Ericsson, L. K. Aaker, A. E. Johnson, St. Paul

Sylvester & Finseth,
—Wholesale and Retail Dealers in—
Heavy and Shelf Hardware

Stoves, Tinware, Paints and Oils, Doors, Sash, Barbed Wire, Lime, Buckeye Binders and Mowers, Hollingsworth Rakes, Favorite Wagons and Buggies, National Cordage Co's Binding Twine, Rock Island Plows, Buford Gang and Sulky Plows, Fairbanks Scales, Hose for Lawn Sprinkling, Screen Doors, Ice Cream Freezers, Gasoline Stoves, Varnish and Paper, Lawn Mowers, North Star Refrigerators and Garden Sprinklers.

☞ Agents for Standard Rotary Shuttle Sewing Machines. ☜

Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

S. L. COLLINS,
—PROPRIETOR OF—
MAIN STREET
Livery, Feed and Sale Stables
CORNER MAIN AND FOURTH STS, WEST SIDE,
Crookston, - - - - Minnesota.
Horses bought and sold on commission.
Everything neat and nobby.
Feeding a specialty.
FINE HEARSE
In connection which I will attend to in person

W. A. ROBERTSON
D. D. S.
Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland.
OPERATIVE AND MECHANICAL
DENTIST.
N. B. Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.
OFFICE IN McKINNON BLOCK.

DR. LEDUC'S Periodical Pills—The French remedy, Paris. A reliable female regulator. Acts directly on the generative organs. Cures all ailments peculiar to women $2, 3 for $5. Sold by A. G. Anderson, Crookston, Minn.

DR. M. WATTS.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
Office over Merchants' Bank,
☞ Professional calls by or day night

The Great Family Newspaper.
Only $1 a Year. Two Cents a Week.

The National Tribune,
WASHINGTON, D. C.

The National Tribune aims to be the greatest family paper in the United States. It has the Finest Array of Contributors in the country, and gives More Original Reading Matter, of the best quality, than any other great weekly. Among its present special features are:

VANQUISHING VICKSBURG. By Prof. A. Hobbs, of the Delevan (Wis.) College. Prof. Hoobs was First Sergeant of Co. B. 99th Ill., and fought the entire campaign which he so graphically describes. He commences with the camp at Milliken's Bend, and carries the reader through all the campaign, giving a boy soldier's views of the marching, camping, fighting, scenery, Generals etc. It will be read with great interest by all.

INDIAN STORIES. A series of Exciting Narratives of Life, Loving, Hunting and Fighting on the Western Frontier. By Col. Henry Inman, the popular author.

LAUZ BEVERLY. An Interesting Romance. By Mrs Olive Logan Sikes, the noted writer.

ON THE MEXICAN BORDER. By Col. A. G. Brackett, U. S. A.

A FOBLE ATONEMENT. An Interesting Story. By Mme. Sophie Redfield de Meissner, of the Russian Legation.

SOUTH AFRICA. A Series of Letters from the Diamond Fields. By H. H. B. Marrison, of Johannisberg, South Africa.

AMONG THE MOONSHINERS OF NORTH CAROLINA. By Gen. Marcus J. Wright.

SOUTH AMERICAN SKETCHES. By Capt. Almont Barnes.

Frank G. Carpenter will continue his interesting letters. Prof. Felix S. Oswald will continue his attractive articles. This is only a partial list. Other attractive features will be announced from time to time.

"WAR HISTORY," by men who actually saw and did what they write about. It makes a specialty of this and the contributions to its columns by the men in every rank and degree who did the marching, digging and shooting and carried forward the war through all its various phases to a glorious success, make the only genuine history of the war.

It makes a specialty of G. A. R News, W. R. C. News, Sons of Veteran News, Washington Gossip. It makes a special feature of matters of interest at the National Capitol, and gives a weekly budget of entertaining gossip about men and things at the seat of Government. Besides this it presents every week a splendid array of Editorials on Current Topics—Stories by the Best Authors Wit, Humor, and Information—Agricultural Notes of the Greatest Value—Household Hints and Suggestions—Synopsis of the News of the Week—Answers to Correspondents—Bright Miscellany, etc., which will interest, amuse and instruct every member of the family.

The National Tribune will constantly be made better and more interesting.

ONLY TWO CENTS A WEEK.
or $1 a year. Send for Sample Copies. Sample Copies sent free. Address
THE NATIONAL TRIBUNE,
Washington, D. C.

Northern Pacific
BETWEEN
Winnipeg, Gilby, Drayton, Grafton
Grand Forks, Crookston,
AND ALL POINTS
EAST AND WEST.
There is nothing better than the service on
THE DINING CAR LINE
Through Pullman Sleeping Cars Daily between points
IN THE RED RIVER VALLEY
—AND—
ST. PAUL AND MINNEAPOLIS.
PACIFIC COAST TRAINS
PASSING THROUGH
Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana Idaho, Oregon and Washington
CARRY COMPLETE EQUIPMENT OF
Pullman Palace Sleeping Cars,
First and Second Class Coaches,
Pullman Tourist and
Free Colonist Sleeper
AND ELEGANT DINING CARS

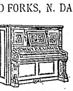
THROUGH TICKETS are sold at all coupon offices of the Northern Pacific Railroad to points North, East, South and west, in the United States and Canada.

TIME SCHEDULE.
East bound.
Passenger 7:10 p. m. | Freight 9:20 p. m.
West bound.
Passenger 8:20 a. m. | Freight 8:00 p. m.

For rates, maps, time tables or special information, apply to C. A. Sharkey, Agent Northern Pacific R. R. at Crookston, Minn, or

CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent,
St. Paul, Minn.

KOPS BRO'S
105 Third Street,
GRAND FORKS, N. DAKOTA
PIANOS, ORGANS



WEBER, HAINES BROS., KURTZMANN, MATHUSHEK, McCAMMON PIANOS, Estey and Chicago Cottage Organs. New Upright Pianos from $250 to $1,000, on terms of $10 to $25 per month. New Organs from $60 to $250 on terms of $5 to $10 per month.

Satisfaction guanteed. Write for catalogue and prices. KOPS BROS.
Grand Forks, N. D.

THE NEW
NORTHWEST

Home seekers will find the last of the public domain of agricultural and grazing value along the Great Northern Ry. In North Dakota and Montana	FARM LANDS
N W TOWNS	100 or more, along the Great Northern Railway Line. Business chances. Write F. I. Whitney, St. Paul, Minn., for Books, Maps, &c. Write now.
Settlers on free Government lands along the Great Northern Ry. Line in North Dakota and Montana get low rates and fine markets for products.	LOW RATS
Montana produces the finest Horses and Cattle. Free ranges yet in Mouse, Milk and Sun River Valleys and Sweet Grass Hills.	Horses, Cattle.
Health, Wealth.	In the Northwest. Free Lands. New Towns. New Railways. New Mines. Low Rates. Largest area of good vacant land.
Sweetest Grass Hills. Milk and Sun River Valleys. Montana, reached only by the Great Northern Railway Line. The stock raisers' paradise.	Sheep, Hogs.
Herds, Mines.	These have made Montana the richest state per capita in the Union. Plenty of room for more miners and stock raisers. Now is the time.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

Historical Society

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

The Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Editor and Proprietor. DEVOTED TO THE WELFARE OF POLK COUNTY. TERMS---$1.60 Per Annum

VOL. XV. CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA, JANUARY 21, 1892. NO. 40.

Polk County Journal.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. I outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

ADVERTISING RATES.

SPACE.	1 w.	2 w.	3 w.	1 m.	3 m	6 m.	1 year
½ inch....	$.50	$1 00	$1 25	$1 50	$3 00	4 50	$ 6 00
1 inch......	75	1 25	1 75	2 00	4 50	6 00	10 00
2 inches....	1 50	2 25	3 00	3 50	6 50	9 50	15 00
3 inches....	1 75	2 75	3 75	4 50	9 50	13 50	20 00
4 inches....	2 50	3 50	4 50	5 50	10 00	18 00	25 00
5 inches....	3 00	4 00	5 00	6 00	12 50	20 00	40 00
¼ column	3 50	4 50	5 50	6 50	15 00	25 00	35 00
½ column	6 00	7 50	10 00	12 00	25 00	35 00	50 00
1 column..	9 50	12 00	15 00	18 00	35 00	60 00	100 00

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.
2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.
3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.
4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class matter.

Our Duluth Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

DULUTH, Jan. 11.—Judge Start has just decided a case of great local interest, and one which covers a new point—the right of a street railway company to condemn a right of way. The Motor Line Improvement Company a year or more ago built a line to Woodland Park, out Woodland avenue, a new street partly opened through two or three additions, in which W. E. Richardson and his partners were the owners. It was found that the grade through these additions was too steep for economical operation, and the company surveyed and built a new farther east. This new line passed through property owned by Mr. Richardson, who got out a restraining order. This was dissolved and the company went ahead with the work The decision was appealed to the Supreme Court, and Judge Mills, of the District Court, holding that the appeal left the restraining order in force until a decision was given by the higher court, fined the company for contempt. The company appealed from this fine, and the appeals are still pending. In the meantime the company has completed and is operating the line. It also began condemnation proceedings, and Judge Start has just decided that a street railway company can condemn for its necessary purposes under the right of eminent domain, in this respect placing it upon the same footing as the ordinary railway company as a common carrier.

The banking business in Duluth the past year was a most prosperous one, and the condition of all banks at the close of the year shows a most satisfactory growth in every direction. There was an immense amount of business added through the great wheat trade of the year. Only two of Duluth's banks are large enough to handle this great business. There is room here for more banking capital, especially in large banks. All banks in the city paid good dividends and all have added a large amount to their surplus. Two institutions increased their capital during the year and one new bank, in the West End, was started. The condition of the nine banks and the Loan and Trust company, which does a banking business, on the first day of January, as compared with a year ago, is shown by the following figures: Capital, $2875,000, increase for the year $400,000; surplus and undivided profits, $704,500, increase $218,000; deposits, $3,914,325, increase about $400,000; loans $5,987,361, increase about $800,000.

The Benton Transportation company of Bismarck, is considering the wisdom of building a large elevator here. If it should conclude to do so, it will make this city its headquarters. HAYS.

St. Hilaire Spectator:—S. M. Dainard returned last Saturday from Crookston with a new team of horses which he had bought while away. A look into Sam's stables these days would lead one to believe that he was trying to work a corner on the stock market.

St. Hilaire Spectator:—Emil Holmes returned last Monday from Goodhue county where he had been spending the holidays with his relatives and his best girl. While at Crookston he left his grip, to go and see a man, and a tramp walked off with it. He takes the loss of the grip very hard as it was full of Christmas presents that his girl had made him. The Crookston police were notified but could not find the thief.

Council Proceedings.

Proceedings of a regular meeting of the City Council of the City of Crookston held in the city hall on Tuesday evening January 12th, 1892.

Meeting called to order by President Cromb.

ROLL CALL.

Aldermen present—Buhn, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, McGlogan, Marlette, Schmidt, Walker, Cromb.

Alderman absent—Marshall, Steenerson.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

The committee to whom was referred the matter of Mrs. Blanchard for damages done by water overflow on her property, reported that the City is not responsible and therefore recommended that no action be taken.

On motion the report was accepted and the committee discharged.

Report of Justice Spendley was read.

Report of the chief of police on the number of hours the electric lights were out during the past two months was presented.

Moved by Alderman Childs, seconded by Alderman McGlogan, that the chief of police be instructed to make his report relating to the electric lights immediately after the date on which the Crookston Water Works Power & Light Co. present the semi-annual bill, and to present it to the comptroller so that he may have both bills before him for auditing. Carried.

A communication was read from the Crookston Water Works Power & Light Co. relating to electric light.

On motion the report of the chief of police on the electric lights for the three months ending Dec. 31st was referred to the finance committee with instructions to deduct the amount necessary from bill for the nights that the lights were not burning.

On motion the resignation of H. Larson as constable was accepted.

Alderman Jennings excused.

Two applications were presented to fill the vacancy of constable and were from T. B. McManus and O. Ducharme.

On motion the constable was elected by ballot.

5 ballots were taken before there was any choice. On the fifth ballot O. Ducharme was declared elected as constable.

The finance committee reported favorable upon the following bills:

Geo. O. Buhn, repairing..........	$ 8 95
" "	1 00
N. S. Gervais, pillows..............	4 00
McKinnon Bros., coal	72 24
Sargent Bros. drayage	14 50
A. O. Ralstad, meals to prisoners..............................	9 50
Edmond & Vian, repairing........	12 75
Geo. H. Holt, special police......	8 00
H. E. Cooke, printing.............	27 60
H. M. Sorlie, ice................	5 30
E. D. Childs, stove...............	15 00
F. Jerome, rent of hall	7 00
C. S. Spendley, justice fees........	3 80
Ed Ruckhabn, labor	7 50
C. E. Dampier, medical attendance	14 00
C. E. Dampier, medical attendance..............................	20 00
C. E. Dampier, medical attendance..............................	3 00
C. S. Spendley, justice fees	5 00
D. F. McDonald, labor in 1st ward	17 00
D. F. McDonald, labor in 3rd ward	7 00
D. F. McDonald, labor in 4th ward..............................	12 00
D. F. McDonald, general labor	2 00
" " "	7 00

The fence committee held bills No. 803, 815, 818 and 819 in abeyance.

On motion the report was accepted and adopted.

Moved by Alderman Childs, seconded by Alderman Jerome, that the President of the council, chairman of the finance committee and the city treasurer be instructed to wait upon the county treasurer and request him to turn over all moneys in his hands belonging to the city to the city treasurer. carried.

The city engineer presented a bill of $137 for assistance and surveying in making the maps of the city.

On motion the bill was referred to the finance committee and the comptroller with instructions to report at the next regular meeting.

The question of granting Fred Sargent a license to sell liquor for a term of one year from the date of his application was then brought up.

Remarks were heard from Attorney Stanton in favor of granting the license.

The city attorney gave his opinion that the council had no right to grant it for a year from the date of his application.

Moved by Alderman Childs, seconded by Alderman Marlette, that the city attorney be requested to submit the question of (has the council power to grant a license for one year running from any date within the fiscal year) to the Attorney General for his decision and that the license in question be held in abeyance until the report is obtained.

Upon the call of ays, and nays the vote stood as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative—Childs, Marlette.

Aldermen voting in the negative—Bunn, Jerome, McGlogan, Schmidt, Walker, Cromb.

Motion declared lost.

Moved by Alderman Walker, seconded by Alderman Schmidt, that Mr. F. Sargent be granted a license to sell liquors for the term of one year from the date of his application, upon the payment of the sum of $500 to the city treasurer. Carried.

Moved by Alderman Childs, seconded by Alderman Walker that the city attorney be instructed to ascertain the Attorney General's opinion as to whether the council has the power to grant a license for the term of one year running from a date within the fiscal year. Carried.

Alderman Jerome excused.

Alderman Childs offered the following ordinances relating to houses of ill-fame:

At a regular meeting of the City Council of the City of Crookston held the 12th day of January, 1892, Alderman Childs offered the following ordinance:

AN ORDINANCE

Relating to disorderly houses within the corporate limits of the city of Crookston:

The city council of the city of Crookston do ordain:

Sec. 1. Any person or persons who shall within the corporate limits of the city of Crookston, keep a disorderly house for the practice of fornication, or for the resort of persons of evil name or fame, or who shall commit or suffer to be committed therein any immoral, immodest or other improper conduct or behavior, or any tippling, reveling, rioting or disturbance, calculated to disturb the neighbors or annoy travelers or the general public, and all persons who resort to such disorderly house shall, on conviction thereof before any justice of the peace of said city, be punished by a fine of not less than fifty nor more than one hundred dollars and costs of prosecution or by imprisonment not to exceed ninety days at the discretion of said justice of the peace.

Sec. 2. No person or persons within the limits of the city of Crookston, shall commit or suffer to be committed in any house or other building or premises by him, her or them occupied, any rioting, quarreling, fighting, reveling, drunkenness, or and other disorderly conduct, calculated to disturb the neighborhood or annoy travelers, or the general public; and any person or persons violating any of the provisions of this section of this ordinance, shall on conviction thereof before any justice of the peace of said city be punished by a fine not less than fifty nor more than one hundred dollars and costs of prosecution or by imprisonment not to exceed ninety days as to the discretion of said justice may seem just.

Sec. 3. All ordinances and parts of ordinances in so much as they may be inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

Sec. 4. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage, approval, publication and recording.

At a regular meeting of the City Council of the city of Crookston, held the 12th day of January, 1892, Alderman Childs offered the following ordinance:

AN ORDINANCE

Relating to houses of ill-fame within the corporate limits of the city of Crookston:

The city council of the city of Crookston do ordain:

Sec. 1. Any person or persons who shall within the corporate limits of the city of Crookston, keep a house of ill-fame, or house resorted to for the purpose of prostitution and lewdness; and all persons, male or female, who resort to such house of ill-fame, shall on conviction thereof before a justice of the peace of said city, be punished by a fine of not less than fifty nor more than one hundred dollars, or imprisonment not to exceed ninety days, at the discretion of said justice of the peace.

Sec. 2. It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to demise, let or hire, any house or other building, buildings or premises within the limits of the city of Crookston, to any person or persons for any of the purposes mentioned in the first section of this ordinance, and if any person shall knowingly offend against this section of this ordinance, he, she or they, upon conviction thereof, before a justice of the peace of said city, shall be fined in a sum not exceeding one hundred dollars and costs of prosecution for every such offence.

Sec. 3. Any person, male or female, who shall, within the corporate limits of the city of Crookston, resort to any house of ill-fame for the purposes of prostitution or to associate with a prostitute or prostitutes, or who shall procure another to resort to any house of ill-fame for the purpose of prostitution or to associate with prostitutes shall, for each such offence, on conviction thereof before a justice of the peace of said city, be punished, by a fine of not less than fifty nor more than one hundred dollars and costs of prosecution or by imprisonment in the city jail not more than thirty days in the discretion of said justice.

Sec. 4. All ordinances, and parts of ordinances in so much as they may be inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

Sec. 5. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage, approval, publication and recording.

Alderman McGlogan moved to amend them, that $25 be substituted where the $50 appeared.

On motion the report of Justice Spendley was referred to the finance committee.

Alderman Schmidt offered an ordinance relating to the fire department of the city of Crookston, which was passed.

On motion Council adjourned.

E. C. CARRUTH,
City Clerk.

Our Washington Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17, 1892.

Two matters have been of interest in Congress for a week. One was Governor and Senator Hill, who seemed to absorb the Democratic minority in the Senate as thoroughly as he had absorbed the Executive, Legislative and Judicial Departments of New York, and the other was the Russian relief fund resolution in the House.

Governor Hill promptly took his place as a leader. There is no further question as to his standing in the Democratic party of the country. In New York he has been a dictator of Democracy for years. His national ascendancy begins with the Congress. It is assured. If there is any Democratic nomination he wants this year, he can have it. If he wishes to have the party nomination for President go west this year—to Palmer, of Illinois, for instance—it will go west. The Democratic party is this man's slave, to-day, as much as it was slavery's slave a generation ago. He has shown that he can win, in one field and that is enough. What the Democracy wants is to win. Theirs is the man's advice to his son—"Get money; honestly if you can; but get money."

The other subject of interest—the Russian relief resolution—is one that appeals to every patriot in the country. It was simply for the Government to charter a vessel to carry Northwestern contributions to starving Russians. There was no "job" in it. The Russians were starving, the millers had given the flour, and the United States was asked to furnish the transportation. The Senate passed the resolution, but the House rejected it. This is a revival of the "war spirit" with a vengeance. Russia is the one historical friend of the United States—aided the Colonies in 1776, and had a fleet in American from 1862 to 1865 to assist the nation if England or France or any other European Government should recognize the Confederacy. The Confederacy, represented in the House by the Democracy, is even with Russia now. But what sort of Americanism is this sort of Democracy? The United States carried food to suffering people in Ireland and used a Government vessel to carry Lafayette to France in 1824. But for feeling in the Southern Democracy to-day, growing out of Russia's attitude during the civil war, the same graceful and patriotic action would have been taken as to the Russian relief fund.

It is impossible to say what Governor Hill would have had the House do with the Russian relief resolution if he had taken charge of the Democracy at Washington a few days sooner. He was not in time. As it is, the two events of the week were Democratic, un-American and unpatriotic. The man who filched a State Government took his seat on the Democratic side of the Senate, and the historical and traditional friend of the United States among the nations was deliberately slighted in the Democratic House.

Questions are raised as to the honesty of the Administration of only two bureaus of the Government during President Harrison's three years of service. The Pension office is attacked, but chiefly if not entirely because of the present Commissioner's unpopularity. There is no charge against the office that involves improper use of government money. There will probably be an investigation, and if the Commissioner is shown to be unworthy he will go, as any unworthy person should go from public position. In the other case the Census Bureau is assailed. Extravagance is charged, and there are allegations that the New York City Democracy did not have a "fair count." This latter charge is serious only because of the reputation as counters that the New York men have who make the charge. But the Census Office will be investigated, as the Pension Office will, by the Democratic House.

Hill's Program.

Cleveland Leader.

Ex-Governor Hill, in his recent bid for the democratic nomination for President, expressed the opinion that the wisest course for the democrats to pursue was only to pass such bills in the democratic house this winter as "will cost the republican party final overthrow in the next congressional and presidential elections." In other words, the popular branch of Congress is to be managed as a political machine entirely, for the benefit of a political party. Nothing is to be done this winter unless it will injure the republican party. Every measure that comes up for consideration is to be scrutinized with regard to its political effect. Financial matters, the tariff, legislation affecting the courts, the army and navy, and our intercourse with other nations, must all be considered from a narrow, partisan standpoint. If a proposed act will injure the republican party, it will be passed and the administration will be blamed for it; or, if it is thought that its defeat will make democratic capital, it will be passed in the house and sent to the senate to make the republican party responsible for defeating it. Traps and mines are to be set and sprung, the time of men, supposed to be statesmen, will be devoted to a series of plots and counter plots; a chaos of complications, a warfare of cabals, is to be inaugurated. Principles are to be thrown to the winds and the government left to take care of itself to allow free scope to the democratic lust for office. As in the heat of a fiercely fought battle, when law and all questions of right are suspended and every energy is bent upon taking life, so in this fight for power every democratic congressman is to sink his convictions of duty to his constituents, to disregard all claims of statesmanship, to scheme and plot solely to gain some advantage over his political opponents. This is modern democracy. This is the doctrine upon which the south has been made solid, northern states made democratic by gerrymanders, and the senate of New York stolen.

$75 MONTH $300
Do You Want
Employment?

Cy which you can make from $75.00 to $250.00 per month—the amount depending on whether you work part or all your time, and on the amount of VIM and VIGOR and PLUCK and PUSH you put into the work. If so, it might pay you to write to us. WE'VE GOT SOMETHING THAT GOES, and there's room for a few more to come in. It won't cost you much to investigate—only a two-cent stamp. WE WANT A LIVE, WIDE-AWAKE REPRESENTATIVE IN OUR COMMUNITY, EITHER MAN OR WOMAN. If you are interested we'd like to hear from you. We'll show you where there's some money. All information by return mail. Then if you are not convinced, all right; there'll be no harm done—only YOU'LL MISS A GOOD THING. Better write at once. Address

The Brodix Publishing Co.
WASHINGTON, D. C.

DENTISTRY

Artificial Teeth and Roofless Plates.

BY NEW PATENT,

Don't Have Teeth Extracted if Two Teeth or Roots Remain in Proper Position in Either Jaw. An Entire Set of Teeth can be Attached to them.

PATENT
GOLD CLASPS

The teeth never tip or drop down while eating, talking or laughing, the gold clasps admitting of tightening or loosening in all cases. This new method for inserting where [illegible] as discovered by experimenting, patented February 11th, 1890 and I am now able to make perfect fits for all; This process is absolutely without pain and at a price within the reach of all. Call on [illegible] you have your teeth extracted as I make a specialty of Removable Bridge and Roofless Plates. A perfect fit guaranteed in every case. Gold fillings inserted. Vitalized air and electricity for painless operations.

DR. J. H. THOMAS,
Owns Polk County, Minn., for this patent.

DR. M. WATTS.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
Office over Merchants' Bank.
☞ Professional calls by or day night!

NEW FEED MILL
CHRIS. ANDERSON, Prop.

I desire to annouce to the farmers of Polk County that I have rented the

LAURENCE BUILDING, ON MAIN STEERT,

Next to Brown's New Livery Stable, and am now prepared to grind feed of all kinds promptly. You can get your feed in two hours after you bring me your grain. Prices Reasonable

Try My New Mill!

A. J. & A. McKINNON,
CROOKSTON
CARRIAGE WORKS.

Manufactures everything that runs on wheels. Repairing done on short notice and in workmanlike manner.

GIVE US A CALL

A. J. & A. McKINNON, - - - Main Street, Crookston.

Schmidt, the Painter,
CARRIES A FULL AND COMPLETE STOCK OF PAINTS,
OILS AND
VARNISHES.
—ALSO A FULL AND COMPLETE LINE OF—
☞ WALL PAPER. ☜
Painting in all its branches, and Paper Hanging artistically done.
Call at the Shop on Broadway.

BOSTON
ONE PRICE ONE PRICE ONE PRICE
CLOTHING HOUSE.

Our sturdy, steady, satisfactory business has been obtained by the honest industry and proper respect of the people's common sense. This season we speak to thousands of new friends who expect from us the lowest price for Reliable Merchandise that any house will name. We ask you in your own interest

To see our Overcoats,
To see our Suits,
To see our Trousers,
} Before going elsewhere.

Business Suits, strong and stylish. Dress Suits in soft, silken, clinging clay worsted, that will never gloss or fade. Fur Coats, Fur Caps, Plush Caps. Furnishings and Underwear. Everything desirable, Everything good. Latest Novelties in Neckwear.

Mossefin & Lindell, Props

HOW TO SAVE MONEY

BUY OF SLOCUM,

The Leading Grocer. The Best Goods for the Least Money.

SPECIALTIES | I MAKE A SPECIALTY OF | SPECIALTIES
TEAS, COFFEES, CANNED SALMON and CHOICE BUTTER.

—HAVE YOU TRIED MY— Wheat Germ Meal?

Everything in my line fresh from the wholesaler at the VERY LOWEST LIVING RATES. ☞ Give me a Trial.

W. E. SLOCUM. - - BROADWAY.

Polk County Journal.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.

Crookston, January 21, 1892.

'Round Home.

Wheat—1 Hard 70.
1 Northern 67.
2 Northern 64.
3 Northern 61.

S. M. McKee has returned from Michigan.

The little two-year-old boy of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hooper died on Monday.

J. P. Marcum has gone to Iona to attend the funeral of his father.

Frank Brown has accepted a position in the office of Lee & Herrick's mill.

During the cold snap the water-pipes at Fontaine & Anglim's bursted causing some damage to goods.

Geo. Vine gets another carload of hogs from below this week. For choice meats of all kinds go to Vine's Robert street meat market.

Frank Barnum is walking on stilts this week. When asked the cause he remarked: "That wife of mine' will be here on Sunday morning next."

A wreck occurred in the Carman yard last week by which two cars, loaded with wheat, were smashed and a delay of several hours occasioned to the down passenger train.

The Crookston Musical Society will meet at the residence of Mr. Thomas Adams, on Oak street, Friday evening next. The society desires to add to its number about twenty-five more voices before proceeding with the drill, and it is hoped that all who can sing will be present at the above time.

Fred Durand, Marsh Barber, Sam. Rosenthal and O. J. Barnes went out to one of Walker's logging camps last week to breathe in a little of the ozone that doth much abound in those parts. They returned on Saturday evening without much game to show for the trip—but then it ain't that time of year.

An accident occurred on the Northern Pacific Railroad near Brainerd last week, by which a sleeper containing the Andrews opera company was wrecked, killing Mrs. Ed. Andrews and her maid and wounding several of the troupe seriously. The car was thrown from the track by a broken rail, went over an embankment, took fire and the bodies were nearly consumed before they could be taken out. Owing to this accident the company can not appear here as previously advertised.

Regular services at the Congregational church next Sunday. Rev. R. H. Battey will preach morning and evening. Morning subject—"How to Increase Spiritual Power in Our Churches." Evening subject—"The Golden Scepter." A very cordial welcome is extended to all. All are requested to be prompt. There will be a decided gain both in the pleasure and profit of both morning and evening service if the people will plan to come into the church at least five minutes before the hours of service, 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

McKenzie of the Times was making a great kick last week over the expense of his new daily. We sympathize with Mac. deeply, and to help him bear the expense of publishing his daily we will turn over to him our circular relating to "green goods" thus affording him an opportunity to rake in $20,000 on an expenditure of only $1,000. That $19,000 would run your daily a long time—Eh, "thanks," did you say? Oh, don't mention it! This, with the extra amount the board assessed the taxpayers ought to float your daily awhile yet.

We are informed that Rev. R. H. Battey has bought "The Message" of Rev. F. C. Whitney, and will enlarge the field and sphere of usefulness of this paper. Mr. Battey has had experience in editorial work, and readers of The Message, we predict, may look out for quite a stirring up to good words and works. One decided improvement will be made at the very beginning of Mr. Battey's handling of The Message, and that is it will be run in the interest of all the churches and their good work, instead of as the organ of Baptist churches, as heretofore. Mr. Battey will bring out his first issue about February 1st.

The fire bell called the department out at 7 o'clock on Monday morning to attend to an incipient blaze in the old Markham building, now occupied by Mr. Tibesar as a meat market. The rooms above were occupied as a residence by Mrs. Newland and Mrs. E. E. Bangs lives there. The family were about getting up when the fire broke out, and escaped—some of them en dishabille with the thermometer ranging down among the forties. The building was saved with slight damage, though considerable damage was done to the household effects by water. It was fortunately discovered in time to prevent the loss of life, though had no one been up it is hard to say what might not have happened as the fire caught right beneath the only means of egress for those living above. The fire evidently caught in a chimney.

The comrades of Col. Cobham Post discussed some of H. F. Brown's excellent cigars, at the Post meeting last Friday evening with the Junior Vice Commander. The boys always like to smoke Brown's cigars knowing them to be reliable in every instance.

Left-Over-Remnant-Sale

—AT—

FONTAINE & ANGLIM'S.

DRESS GOODS.

Cheviots, Homespuns, Ladies Cloths, Dress Flannels, ...1¼ to 6 yards long.
Black Goods, Wide Wale Diagonals, ...40 in. to 45 in. wide.

SILKS.

CHINA, SURAH'S, PRINTED, PLAIN BLACKS, RIBBONS, TRIMMINGS, VELVETS, ... The CHEAPNESS will ASTONISH You.

DOMESTICS.

PRINTS, MUSLINS, GINGHAMS, WHITE GOODS ...... May Be Just What You Want.

REMNANTS OF LACES AND EMBROIDERIES IN ABUNDANCE.

The subscriptions to our relief fund do not roll in very fast but we have verbal promises for some more. As near as we can learn at present writing 1000 bushels of wheat, about 500 bushels of barley and from 1500 to 2000 bushels of oats will be required to relieve the most urgent cases. To us this looks like an extremely small amount to raise and yet we have less than 50 bushels of wheat pledged toward it. If the alliance should take hold of this matter in earnest the whole amount needed could be raised in very short order. In conversation with one of the victims on Monday he said to the writer: "If I had seed wheat for 150 acres, oats and barley for 50 and feed for my horses I believe I could pull through all right; but if I have to give seed grain notes for my seed it will be no use to try again as then I will have nothing to put up for provisions for my family." This man is one who has lost three crops in succession by blight and his last crop was completely swept away by hail leaving him nothing but a disposition to try again if he can get the seed and feed. We believe such men should be encouraged by all means. All who feel disposed to help can advise us of the fact and add their names to the list. Let us hear from you, friends.

The daily Times, in its issue of Saturday, comes valiantly to the rescue of DeMers and Stortroen from what it calls the attack of THE JOURNAL upon those two worthies, and charges us with using "mud batteries and abuse." If the simple statement that it was the votes of these two commissioners that obliges the taxpayers to pay two or three times as much for the printing as they need to have done is a "mud battery and abuse" THE JOURNAL pleads guilty, but we supposed the board of county commissioners were public servants, elected to transact business in the interest of people, and we had an idea that they were under oath to do it. If this is the case it is the right of every citizen to criticise the actions of their servants and it is the duty of every newspaper that, like THE JOURNAL desires to see the interests of the taxpayers protected, to protest against such jobs as this appears to be, and we propose to stand by the people against all the jobs of all the rings in Polk County. The people in some way got the idea that a great deal of public money was being used to bolster up political jobs and they elected Messrs. Stortroen and DeMers as much for the special purpose of guarding against such jobs as for any other purpose and how have they discharged that trust? Without knowing what the bids were to be they get up a resolution declaring the Times bid the lowest, declaring that THE JOURNAL and the Bulletin and the McIntosh Times incapable of doing the work which is not in accordance with the facts as far as two of the papers are concerned as both of them have done the work in the past and either one alone could do it now if called upon. Moreover, they had given good and sufficient bonds to the county to do the work at less than half the Times bid and this fact makes them just as responsible bidders as the other parties. THE JOURNAL is not worrying over the loss of that work at those figures but the Times, with its daily issue must levy contribution everywhere in order to live. Now it is all right to publish a daily, if you publish a good one, and if it is a good one it is a benefit to the locality in which it is published and deserves support but those who support it ought to do it from choice and not be obliged to do it by an action of the county board. No doubt the commissioners thought the daily a good thing to have and deserving of patronage—and we do not say that a good daily is not all of that, for its locality, but the fact remains that a good responsible bid offered to do the printing for at least one half what the commissioners obliged the taxpayers to pay for it and we do not see how these two commissioners elected specially to protect the taxpayers against such jobs can give a satisfactory explanation of their action to their constituents.

Some more zero weather during the past week.

Ed, Walsh reports a good business in real estate.

Sture wants to buy your butter and eggs. Let him make you an offer.

If you have oats or barley to sell take them to Sture and see what he can do for you.

J. O. Sundet has purchased the marble works and will run the concern hereafter.

I will pay the highest market price for butter and eggs. A. STURE, opera house block, Crookton.

Several of the comrades went to Fosston on Saturday to attend a meeting of Zebulon Johnson Post of that place.

If the Minneapolis prophet is any good we may expect a mild February to be followed by on early spring. Let us hope he is correct.

Charlie Misner is getting to be noted as a weather prophet, He predicted the blizzard of Tuesday—an hour or so after it commenced.

I want to buy 2000 bushels of oats and barley, for which I will pay the highest market price. A. STURE, opera house block, Crookston.

Comrade W. L. Davies, of Angus, favored the Post with a pleasant visit on Friday evening of last week. Comrade Davies has been up to McIntosh after a car load of wood.

Monday was one of those clear-cut cold days what you read about -and seldom see in this country. Said to be the coldest of the winter—anywhere from 30 to 40 below.

Quite a number joined the Women's Relief Corps at the meeting om Monday evening. Mrs. I. U. Jennings and Mrs. J. V. Wyatt were elected delegates to the Encampment at Minneapolis in February.

J. W. Wheeler returned last Saturday from a visit to Chicago and at once took his new position as cashier in the Scandia American Bank. Mr. W. has been with the 1st National bank for seven years is thoroughly posted in the duties of his position and the Scandia is to be congratulated upon securing his services.

Hallock Enterprise:—Attorney Wilkinson, of Crookston, was up on Thursday in the interests of Richard Russell, who has been buying out the interest of Fred Hughs. The mill now is owned wholly by Mr. Russell, and Thos. Kane will remain as manager. A miller is expected from Minneapolis on Monday and the manager says that when they start up again it means business. That is just what the people of this county will be pleased to see.

Postmaster W. B. Dawley furnishes THE JOURNAL the following report of the money order business done at Crookston post office for the year 1891. There were 1724 domestic money orders issued, amounting to $16,750.93, the fees on which were $248.43; 139 international money orders issued, amounting to $1,612.59, fees, $22.50; 1227 domestic money orders paid, amounting to $14,339.19; 93 international money orders paid, amounting to $3,431.56; 1594 postal notes issued, amounting to $1,576.84, fees $39.88; 745 postal notes paid amounting to $1,576.74; 12 money orders prepaid, making 5534 orders handled, amounting to $39,947.88, on wheoh the fees were $310.81. Our post-office seems to be in excellent hands and doing a land-office business.

LIST OF LETTERS remaining unclaimed at the Crookston, Minn., Post Office, for the week ending Jan. 18, 1892:

Hur, Ben	Johnson, B John
Shannon, Mr. William	Sanders, Mr. A
Sparoul, Miss Mary	Steffenson, Mr.

Persons calling for the above please say advertised. WM. B. DAWLEY, Postmaster.

ESTRAY.

A sorrel horse, with three white feet and white in face, came on my place Sec. 15 Town of Kertsonville, about the 20th of last month. Owner is requested to claim property, pay charges and take him away. FRANK LARABEE.

Caught By Cupid.

On the evening of January 18th, at the residence of Hon. Halvor Steenerson in this city Levi S. Myers was united for life to Miss Sigri Ostby, of Vineland, the Rev. Mr. Hillman officiating. Levi is one of the leading grangers of Polk County and is also extensively engaged in the lumber business with headquarters for that business at Fosston. THE JOURNAL extends congratulations.

A company was organized in this city last week called "The Maple Lake and Land Improvement Co., for the purpose of developing the resources of Maple Lake as a pleasure resort. The following officers were elected:

Capt. Griggs, of Grand Forks, President.
Max Ericsson, of Crookston, Vice "
W. G. Smith, of Grand Forks, Secretary.
W. C. Lee, of Crookston, Treasurer.

These officers, together with W. B. Dawley, of Crookston, and W. W. Attix, Jr., of Mentor, form the first board of directors. The company intends to build a hotel on the shore of the lake and keep a supply of boats and fishing tackle for the use of their guests. They are prepared also to sell lots to any who will build a cottage upon the lot. Connection by rail will be made with the Fosston line at or near Mentor. Prospects good for lots of fun at the lake next summer and hereafter.

At a meeting of Mentor Alliance, No. 594, Jan. 16th, 1892, the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas it has pleased our all-wise Creator to remove from life one of our members, W. W. Attix,

Therefore be it resolved, that this Alliance has lost one of its most worthy members, and this community one of its best citizens.

Resolved, that this Alliance most sincerely feels his loss, and extends to his family our heartfelt sympathy.

Resolved that these resolutions be recorded in the minutes of this meeting.

G. H. TRIPP, Sec'y.

For Sale Cheap.

Buffalo robes and cutters. Mrs. Mary Schreader, Crookston, Minn. [35-tf]

For Sale Cheap.

Buffalo robes and cutters. Mrs. Mary Schreader, Crookston, Minn. [35 tf]

The Great Family Newspaper

Only $1 a Year. Two Cents a Week.

The National Tribune,

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The National Tribune aims to be the greatest family paper in the United States. It has the Finest Array of Contributors in the country, and gives More Original Reading Matter, of the best quality, than any other great weekly. Among its present special features are:

NANQUISHING VICKSBURG. By Prof. A. Hobbs, of the Delevan (Wis.) College. Prof. Hoobs was First Sergeant of Co. B. 99th Ill., and fought the entire campaign which he so graphically describes. He commences with the camp at Milliken's Bend, and carries the reader through all the campaign, giving a boy soldier's views of the marching, camping, fighting, scenery, Generals etc. It will be read with great interest by all.

INDIAN STORIES. A series of Exciting Narratives of Life, Loving, Hunting and Fighting on the Western Frontier. By Col. Henry Inman, the popular author.

LANE BEVERLY. An interesting Romance. By Mrs. Olive Logan Sikes, the noted writer.

ON THE MEXICAN BORDER. By Col. A. G. Brackett, U. S. A.

A FOBLE ATONEMENT. An Interesting Story. B Mme. Sophie Redfield de Meissner, of th Russian Legation.

SOUTH AFRICA. A Series of Letters from the Diamond fields. By H. H. B. Marrison, of Johannisberg, South Africa.

AMONG THE MOONSHINERS OF NORTH CAROLINA. Ay Gen. Marcus J. Wright.

SOUTH AMERICAN SKETCHES. By Capt. Almont Barnes.

Frank G. Carpenter will continue his interesting letters. Prof. Felix S. Oswald will continue his attractive asticles. This is only a partial list. Other attractive features will be announced from time to time.

"WAR HISTORY," by men who actually saw and did what they write about. It makes a specialty of this, and the contributions to its columns by the men in every rank and degree who did the marching, digging and shooting and carried forpard the war through all its various phaser to a glorious success, make the only genuine his-ory of the war.

It makes a specialty of G. A. R. News. W. R. C. News, Sons of Veteran News, Washington Gossip. It makes a special feature of matters of interest at the National Capitol, and gives a weekly budget of entertaining gossip about men and things at the seat of Government. Besides this it presents every week a splendid array of Editorials on Current Topics—Stories by the Best Authors—Wit, Humor, and Information—Agricultural Notes of the Greatest Vulue—Household Hints and Suggestions—Synopsis of the News of the Week—Answers to Correspondents—Bright Miscellany, etc., which will interest, amuse and instruct every member of the family.

The National Tribune will constantly be made better and more interesting.

ONLY TWO CENTS A WEEK.

or $1 a year. Send for Sample Copies. Sample Codies sent free. Address

THE NATIONAL TRIBUNE,
Washington, D. C.

$60 REWARD.

FREE FOR TWO MONTHS.

THE HOME MAGAZINE

Every lady sending us the names of 20 housekeepers will receive a copy of The Home Magazine FREE for two months.

To those who may be desirous of sending us more than 20 names, we offer the following cash prizes for the largest lists received, viz:

For the largest list	$20.00
" " next largest list	10.00
" " third " "	5.00
" " fourth " "	3.00
" " fifth " "	2.00
" " 20 largest lists, 50c each.	10.00
" " next 20 largest lists, 50c "	10.00

Rules Governing this Competition.

1. All names must reach us not later than December 1st, and all prizes will be mailed not later than December 10th.

2. Put the names of those living in different towns on separate sheets of paper, giving the name of the state and county in the top right hand corner, and the number of names contained on the sheet in the top left hand corner. Thus:

Kansas,
4 Mrs. Henry Brown, Olathe.
" Amelia Duggan,
" Chas. Semple, box 210.
" Amelia Walker.

3. Give the total number of names contained in your list in the letter accompanying the same.

4. Be careful to write as distinctly as possible and on one side of the paper only.

Names of the prize winners will be announced in the January, 1892, number of the Home Magazine.

THE BRODIX PUBLISHING CO.
WASHINGTON, D. C.

Don't Be Backward

ABOUT

COMING FORWARD.

AND SECURING SOME OF THE

BARGAINS

OFFERED HERE BY

E. M. Walsh,

Real Estate Broker,

I. O. O. F. Block, Crookston, Minn.

160 ACRES good Farm Land in Grove Park, 60 acres cultivated, two miles from R. R. station, one-half mile from school. A Bargain at $800.

ANOTHER Quarter Section in Grove Park, good farm buildings, good water, 80 acres cultivated, 40 acres pasture, one-half mile from R. R. station, school and church. Cheap at $8.00 per acre.

SIX first-class farms in Town of Lambert, one of the best Townships in Polk County, from $600 to $1,200 each, well adapted for mixed farming. Look this up. Sure to find something to suit.

SECTION 21, Andover Township, every foot of which can be cultivated, only 5 miles from Crookston. Cheap at $12.50 per acre.

200 ACRE FARM in Fairfax, four miles from Crookston, 180 acres cultivated. Cheap buildings, easy terms. A bargain at $2,400.

TWO first-class farms in Lowell, two miles from city of Crookston, good farm buildings, artesian well, high state of cultivation. One at $28 and the other at $20 per acre.

THREE fine farms in town of Sanders. All near R. R. station, good soil. Most of them partly improved and are to be had at $6.00 per acre. Easy terms.

GOOD STOCK FARM, with good house and barn, 160 acres, two miles from Thief River Falls. Only $1.000, one-third cash, balance long time.

HALF Section Land, Town of Reis, two miles from R. R. station, 180 acres under cultivation, 76 acres ready for seeding in spring. Good house and barn, artesian water. Cheap at $2.500, one-quarter cash, balance 5 years time.

160 ACRES in Town of Godfrey. Good land, near railroad. Only $5.00 per acre.

160 ACRES Town of Gervais. This land is on the Red Lake River. Some good timber and partly improved and is cheap at $9 per acre.

ANOTHER piece in Town of Gervais, four miles from Red Lake Falls. $950.

320 ACRE FARM in Parnell, six miles from Crookston, well improved, good buildings. Can be had for $3,000.

TWO good farms in town of Fanny, two miles from railroad station. Partly improved. Only $6.00 per acre.

320 ACRE FARM only one-half mile from St. Hilaire and is offered at $8.00 per acre, easy terms.

160 ACRES in Town of Crookston, four miles from city, and only $1,000.

ANOTHER piece in same town, well improved and can be had for $1,350 on easy terms.

320 ACRE FARM in Town of Kertsonville, two miles from railroad station partly improved. Cheap—no mistake. Only $1,200 and on easy terms.

TWO good farms in Town of Liberty, 160 acres each. $750 buys either.

320 ACRE FARM in Town of Roome. Fine state of cultivation. Good farm buildings. 170 acres ready for seeding in spring. Dirt cheap at $4,000, one-half cash, balance to suit. Stock and farm machinery can also be bought cheap.

TWO good farms in Town of Lowell can be had for $959 each. Easy terms long time.

This is the Cap-sheaf of All!

520 ACRES land, 8 miles from Fisher, all under cultivation, 420 acres ready for seeding. Good farm buildings. Good water. $25 per acre takes this, and will throw in 20 head horses and harnesses, 7 wagons, 4 binders, 2 mowers, 2 rakes, 4 gang plows, 2 harrows, new press drill, 2 sleds, 2 cows, full sett Blacksmith tools and small farm implements. $3,000 cash and balance long time at 7 per cent.

Proceedings of the County Board at the January Meeting.

M. E. Kirsch was made chairman for ensuing term, and appointed the following committees:

ROADS AND BRIDGES.
Stortroen, Rhinehart and DeMers.

BONDS.
Johnson, Rhinehart and DeMers.

TAXES.
Rhinehart, Stortroen and Johnson.

CLAIMS.
DeMers, Stortroen and Johnson.

BILLS.
Stortroen, Johnson and Rhinehart.

FINANCE.
Rhinehart, DeMers and Johnson.

PURCHASES.
M. E. Kirsch, C. U. Webster and Nels Muus.

HOSPITAL.
Kirsch, Stortroen and DeMers.

The school petition of Jas. McDonald was granted.

Decided to build a county jail at a cost not to exceed $25,000 nor less than $18,000, on a site presented the county by the city of Crookston.

The matter of repairing the bridge at Red Lake Falls was laid over till next meeting. It appearing from a letter from the village authorities that they were unable at present to repair the abutments to said bridge, com. DeMers was instructed to close up said bridge until they can make the necessary repairs, when the county will then repair the structure.

The clerk of court was allowed a sum not to exceed $80 per month for extra clerk hire, and the treasurer $400 per annum.

Bids for building a bridge at Thief River Falls were opened and that of the Wraught Iron Co., of Canton, Ohio, being the lowest, was referred to the road and bridge committee with power to act.

Dr. M. Watts was authorized to act as physician at the county hospital.

ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION

—OF THE—

Crookston Mercantile Company.

For the purpose of organizing a corporation under title 2, Chapter 34. General Statutes, 1878 and acts amendatory thereto, the undersigned hereby associate ourselves together and adopt the following Articles of Incorporation.

ARTICLE I.

The name of this corporation shall be the CROOKSTON MERCANTILE COMPANY, and the general nature of its business shall be, the carrying on of a general wholesale and retail grocery, fruits, confectionery, cigars and tobacco business and such other general mercantile business as may be determined by the Board of Directors.

ARTICLE II.

The principal place of business of said corporation shall be in the City of Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota.

ARTICLE III.

The time of the commencement of said corporation shall be the first day of February A. D. 1892, and the period of its duration shall be thirty years.

ARTICLE IV.

The amount of the capital stock of this corporation shall be fifty thousand ($50,000) dollars, divided into five hundred shares of one hundred ($100) dollars each, and the same shall be paid in at such times and in such manner as shall be required or determined by the Board of Directors, and at least twenty thousand ($20,000) dollars of the said capital stock shall be sold or subscribed for and forty per cent of that amount shall be actually paid in before said corporation shall commence business.

ARTICLE V.

The highest amount of indebtedness of said corporation shall at no time exceed the sum of fifty thousand ($50,000) dollars.

ARTICLE VI.

The names and places of residence of the persons forming this corporation are as follows:

Peter M. Ringdal, Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota.
Fred Anderson, Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota.
Lewis Ellington, Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota.
John R. McKinnon, Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota.
Elias Steenerson, Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota.
H. Steenerson, Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota.
H. A. Mason, Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota.

ARTICLE VII.

The names of the first Board of Directors are as follows, to wit:

Fred Anderson, Peter M. Ringdal,
Elias Steenerson, H. A. Mason,
John R. McKinnon.

ARTICLE VIII.

The government of said corporation and the management of its affairs shall be vested in a Board of Directors of not less than five directors to be elected annually by and from the stockholders as hereinafter provided.

ARTICLE IX.

The annual meeting for said elections shall be held in the City of Crookston on the first Tuesday of February of each year, and until their successors are elected and qualified such directors shall continue to be such directors, and the directors at their annual meeting to be held immediately after the annual meeting of the stockholders shall elect a President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer, two of whom may be the same person, and until the next annual meeting of the stockholders aforesaid Fred Anderson shall be President, H. A. Mason shall be Vice President, P. M. Ringdal shall be Secretary and P. M. Ringdal shall be Treasurer, and in case of a resignation of any of such officers or directors or their inability to act, their office shall be filled by the remainder of the Board of Directors at a meeting called and held for that purpose, and if for any reason the annual meeting for the election of officers shall not be held at the time specified, it may be held thereafter at such time as the directors may appoint for that purpose.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the said incorporators have hereunto set their hands and seals this 9th day of January A.D. 1892.

FRED ANDERSON, (seal)
P. M. RINGDAL, (seal)
LEWIS ELLINGTON, (seal)
H. A. MASON, (seal)
ELIAS STEENERSON, (seal)
HALVOR STEENERSON, (seal)
JOHN R. McKINNON. (seal)

Signed and Sealed in presence of
E. M. STANTON,
P. E. MISSEN.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF POLK.

On this ninth day of January A.D. 1892, personally came before me a Notary public in and for said County, Peter M. Ringdal, Fred Anderson, Lewis Ellington, John R. McKinnon, Elias Steenerson, Halvor Steenerson and H. A. Mason to me known to be the identical persons who executed the foregoing instrument, and each of said persons acknowledged the same to be his free act and deed for the uses and purposes therein expressed.

E. M. STANTON,
Notary Public, Polk County, Minnesota.

(seal)

OFFICE OF REGISTER OF DEEDS,
County of Polk, Minnesota.

I hereby certify that the within instrument was filed in this office for record on the 11th day of January A.D. 1892, at 11 o'clock a. m., and was duly recorded in book E of Misc. on pages 104-5.

JOHN LOCKEN,
Register of Deeds.

STATE OF MINNESOTA,
Department of State.

I hereby certify that the within instrument was filed for record in this office on the 12th day of January A. D. 1892 at 11 o'clock a. m., and was duly recorded in book D 2 of Incorporations, on page 149.

F. P. BROWN,
Secretary of State.

THE CAT O' NINE TAILS.

The old cat o' nine tails is comin' round ag'n
And the way he worries children sometimes is a sin;
He grabs 'em by the collar an' he yanks 'em by the clothes,
And reaches fer a tender place. Why what do you suppose
Will happen if you're impident an' set around an' grin?
Well, I'll have to call the old cat o' nine tails in—
Have to call him in; yes, have to call him in;
in.
tails
cat o' nine
old
I'll have to call the old cat o' nine tails in.
old
cat o' nine tails
in.

Are you sassy to yer father, are you fibbin' to yer mother,
Are you quarrelin' with yer sister an' a-pinchin' of yer brother,
Do you "ring around the rosy" till you have a dizzy feelin',
And you think yer goin' round an' round an' walkin' on the ceilin'?
Well, you better stop yer screechin' an' a-makin' such a din,
Er I'll have to call the old cat o' nine tails in—
Have to call him in, yes, have to call him in;
in.
tails
cat o' nine
old
I'll have to call the old cat o' nine tails in.
old
cat o' nine tails
in.

Do you allers mind yer manners when company is come,
Or do you git up-stairs 'nd yell, 'nd stomp around, 'nd drum?
Do you show off at the table, too, 'nd try to act up smart,
'Nd p'int yer finger at the things 'nd say: "Gimme a tart?"
If some one doesn't dress you down I think it is a sin;
So I'll have to call the old cat o' nine tails in—
Have to call 'im in; yes, have to call 'im in;
in.
tails
cat o' nine
old
I'll have to call the old cat o' nine tails in.
old
cat o' nine tails
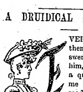
in.

—Ben King.

A DRUIDICAL SACRIFICE.



EVERY now and then, as some answer interested him, he would take a quick glance at me as though to read in my face whether it were the truth or not, and, stopping by his little table, he would jot down a passage on the wax, scan it over, and inquire of something else. Our life and living, wars, religions, friendships, all seemed interesting to this acute gentleman so plainly clad, and it was only when we had been an hour together, and after he had clearly got from me all he wished, that he called the guard and dismissed me, bidding Sempronius in Latin, which the General thought I knew not, to give me food and drink, but keep me fast for the present.

Sempronius showed the utmost deference to the little man in the toga and leather jerkin, listened with bent head and backing from his presence; while I but roughly gave him thanks for my freed hands, and stalked out after my jailer with small ceremony.

Once in the starlight and out of earshot the Centurion said to me with a frown:

"Briton, I feel somewhat responsible for you, and I beg the next time you leave that presence not to carry your head so high or turn that wolf-skinned back of yours on him so readily, or I am confident I shall have orders to teach you manners. Did you cast yourself down when you entered?"

"Not I."

"Jove! And did not kneel while you spoke to him?"

"Not once," I said.

"Now, by the Sacred Flame! do you mean to say you stood the whole time as I found you, towering in your ragged skins, your bare braceleted arms upon your chest, and giving Cæsar back stare for stare in his very tent?"

"Who?"

"Cæsar himself. Why, who else? Cæsar, whose word is life and death from here to the Apennines, who is going to lick up this country of yours as a hungry beggar licks out a porringer. Surely you knew that he to whom you spoke so freely was our master the great Prætor himself!"

Here was an oversight! I might have guessed so much; but, full of other things, I had never supposed the little man was anything but a Roman General, sent out to harry and pursue us. Strange ideas rose at once, and, while the Tyrian in me was awe struck by the closeness of my approach to a famous and dreaded person, the Briton moaned at a golden opportunity lost to unravel, by one bold stroke—a stroke of poignard, of burning brand from the fire, of anything—the net that was closing over this unfortunate island.

So strong rose these latter regrets at having had Cæsar, the unwelcome, the relentless, within arm's length, and having let him go forth with his indomitable blood still flowing in his lordly veins, that I stopped short, clapped my hand upon my swordless scabbard, and made a hasty step back toward the tent.

At once the ready Sempronius was on me like a wild cat, and with two strong legionaries bore me down to the ground and tied me hand and foot. They carried me down to the camp, and there pitched me under a rock to reflect, until dawn, on the things of a disastrous day.

But by earliest twilight their bird had flown. At midnight when the tired soldiers slept, I chafed my hempen bonds against a rugged angle of earth-embedded stone, and in four hours was free, rising silently among the snoring warriors, and passing into the forest as noiselessly as one of those wierd black shadows that the last flashes of their expiring campfires made at play on the background of the woods. I stole past their outmost pickets while the first flush of day was in the east, and then, in the open, turned me to my own people. But it would have been far better had I braved Cæsar's anger or trusted to that martial boy, Sempronius Faunus.

The British churls, angry and sullen at their defeat of yesterday, were looking for a victim to bear the burden of their wrongs. Now the priest Dhuwallon, who had turned livid with fear and anger when I had come back unharmed from the hands of the enemy, with a ready wit, saw he might propitiate the Britons and gratify his own ends by one more coward trick to be played at my expense. I do not deny his readiness or grudge him aught, yet I hate him even now from the bottom of my heart with all that fierce old anger which then would have filled me with delight and pride if I could have had his anointed blood smoking in the runnels of my swords.

Well. It was his turn again. He procured false witnesses—not a difficult thing for a high priest in that discontented camp—and by mid-day I was bound once more, and before the priests and chiefs as a traitor and a Roman spy.

What good was it for me to stand up and tell the truth to that gloomy circle while the angry crowd outside hungered for a propitiatory sacrifice? In vain I lied with all the resources I could muster, and in vain, when this was fruitless, denounced that pale villian, my accuser. When I came to tell of his treachery in killing my horse the day before, and leaving me to be slain by the enemy, I saw I was but adding slander in the judges' eyes to my other crimes. When I declared I was no Roman, but a Briton—an aged fool, his long white locks filleted with oak-leaves, rose silently and held a polished brass mirror before me, and by every deity in the Northern skies I must own my black hair and dusky face was far more Roman than native.

So they found me guilty, and sentenced me to be offered up to Baal next morning before the army as a detected spy.

When that silvery dawn came, it brought no relief or respite, for the laws of the Druids, which enjoined slow and deliberate judgments, forbade the altering of a sentence once pronounced.

They forced me and two other miserable wretches to the altar, and then, while our guards stood by us and the mounted men clustered among the monoliths behind, a deadly silence fell upon the assembly. It was so still we could hear the beat of our own hearts, and so intolerable that one of the others fell forward in a swoon before it had lasted many minutes. The din of battle was like the murmur of a pleasant brook beside that expectant hush; and when the white procession of executioners came chanting up the farther avenue of stones into the arena, I breathed again as though it was a nuptial procession and they were bringing me a bride less grim than the golden adze which shone at their head.

They sang around the altar their mystic song, and then halted before the rude stone altar. Mixing up religion and justice as was their wont, the chief Druid recited the crimes of the two culprits beside me, with their punishment, and immediately the first one, tightly bound, was pitched upon the stone altar; and while Druids chanted their hymns to Baal the assembled multitude joined in, and, clanking their shields in an infernal tumult which effectively drowned his yells for mercy, the sacred adze fell, and first his head and then his body fell into the hollow, while twenty little streams of crimson blood trickled down the sides of the altar stone. The next one was treated in the same way, and tumbled off into the hollow below, and I was hoisted up to that reeking slab.

While they arranged me, that black priest stole up and hissed in my ear, "Is it of Blodwen you think when you shut your eyes? Take this, then, for your final comfort'" he said, with a malicious leer—"I, even I, the despised and thwarted, will see to Blodwen and answer for her happiness. Ah!—you writhe—I thought that would interest you. Let your last thought, accursed stranger, be I and she; let your last conception be my near revenge! Villain! I spit upon and deride you!" And he was as good as his word, glowering down upon me helpless, with in satiate rage and hatred, signed to the executioner.

I heard the wild hymn to their savage gods go ringing up again through the green leaves of the oaks; I heard the clatter of the weapons upon the round brass-bound targets, the voices of the priests and the cry of a startled kite circling in the pleasant autumn mist overhead. I saw the great cresent of the sacred golden adze swing into the sky, and then, while it was just checking to the fall which should extinguish me, there came a hush upon the people, followed by a wild shout of fear and anger, and I turned my head half over as I lay bound upon the stone.

I saw the British multitude seethe in confusion and then burst and fly like the foam strands before the wind, as, out of the thickets, at the run, their cold, brave faces all emotionless over their long brass shields, came rank upon rank of Roman legionaries. I saw Sempronius on his white charger at their head glittering in brass and scarlet, and finding my tongue in my extremity, 'Sempronius!' I yelled, 'Sempronius to the rescue!' But too late.

With a wavering, aimless fall the adze descended between my neck and my shoulder the black curtain of dissolution fell over the painted picture of the world, there was a noise of a thousand rivers tumbling into a bottomless cavern, and I expired.—From "Phia the Phœnician," by Edwin Lester Arnold, Son of Sir Edwin.

Al Fresco Dining in Paris

An American finds it hard to understand the Parisian love of eating in the open air. In front of all the cafes are little tables and chairs, sometimes two or three rows deep. On a bright summer day it may be pleasant enough to sit at one of these tables, sipping one's wine or some light refreshment. But in the autumn it is hard to understand just where the bliss may be in taking a hearty meal in the open air in the very eyes of everybody. The fastidious, too, might find other objections to this strange Parisian custom. For example, I have noticed bread and butter even exposed in open dishes on the tables, and one shudders to think of the amount of dust which the diner must consume with his food. In front of the more fashionable cafes the loungers smoke and gossip; in front of those of the poorer class the workman in his blue blouse, sits at his mid-day meal: Women, also sit at the little tables and drink their bear undisturbed by the glances of the passers-by.—Denver Sun.

SOME FARM MISCELLANY.

INTERESTING MATTERS FOR RURAL READERS.

Science Versus Experience—Ensilage Not Safe for Horses—When Is the Milk Fit for Use—A Rat-Proof Corn-Crib.

Science Versus Experience.

Was it Esculapius who said, when facts and his theories did not harmonize, "So much the worse for the facts?" Whoever he was, he voiced what is sometimes—though much less now than formerly—the attitude of men of science in our days. They are not willing to admit the soundness of observations which are at odds with the theories they have adopted, as the result of a priori reasoning or of limited experiments.

An example of this is furnished by that really able agricultural chemist, M. Ville, who has written much, and to a large extent wisely, on the subject of chemistry and its relation to the farming industry. But, as "Homer sometimes nods," so M. Ville occasionally allows his hobby to run away with him, and puts forth theories which can only be fitly characterized as nonsense.

In a recent series of lectures, three in number, which have been translated and published in England under the title "The Perplexed Farmer," he makes some statements well calculated to increase the perplexity of the farmer, but hardly to aid him in solving the difficult problems to which these statements relate. He expresses for example, the deepest contempt for farmyard manure as food for crops. If he had said some farmyard manure, and taken pains to describe that kind from which all or nearly all value had been extracted by the action of the elements, every one would readily agree with him, for the stuff which some farmers draw out upon their fields is the mere ghost of the manure pile. But his sweeping assertion is contradicted by the experience of every farmer. Well made manure, the product of well fed cattle, unquestionably combines the elements of a permanent fertilizer in a high degree, and in a form happily adapted to the production of good crops and the betterment of the soil. The application of commercial fertilizers, whether in connection with barnyard manure or not, is often of the greatest benefit in the production of a single crop; and sometimes, as in the application of the crude South Carolina rock, the benefit may be felt for a series of years. But it is absurd, because this is true, to set aside as baseless the time-honored and well-attested prejudice in favor of good barnyard manure as the farmer's main reliance for making crops.

Nevertheless, making all allowance for such errors as this, M. Ville has much to say of value with regard to the use of various chemical agents in agriculture. It was he who first pointed out the important fact, now generally admitted, that certain plants have the power to absorb nitrogen from the atmosphere. And in the lectures referred to above he gives much valuable information with regard to the elements of fertility, and points out which of them are to be found in sufficient abundance in all soils worthy of cultivation and which need to be supplied in order to secure profitable crops.

Hiring Help

As with much other work on the farm it will, in a majority of cases, be found the best plan to hire whatever help is needed in good season. Good help is invariably the cheapest and this cannot always be picked up readily when wanted. By hiring in good season in many cases a better opportunity is afforded of securing reliable help than to wait until the season for work is fairly opened and then be obliged to take any that comes along.

In hiring help it is best to make an agreement, whether it is for a week, a month, six months, or a year. A verbal agreement will stand provided it can be proved, but in many cases considerable trouble would be saved if the agreement was reduced to writing and signed by both parties. An agreement to work six months for $100 is not by any means an agreement to pay or receive sixteen and two-thirds dollars per month, and if the employe is of age and makes this kind of a contract, if he quits work without a reasonable cause, the employer could not be compelled to pay until the time is completed. When the agreement is made with a minor, however, he can secure what the jury would consider a reasonable compensation for the time worked.

Disobeying orders, immoral conduct, wanton destruction of property, neglect of work, incompetency, using insulting language, are all sufficient cause for an employer discharging an employe even when the agreement is made to work for a certain length of time. If, on the other hand, the help is compelled to work at unreasonable hours, or is abused in any way, he is warranted in leaving and can collect his wages up to the time he quits work.

Having good cause to discharge a hand, or to quit work on the part of the employe and not taking advantage of it at the time, is condoning it and cannot be made the case subsequently.

By having a clear understanding at the start as to what is to be done on both sides, much trouble in the future can be avoided. A good hand is entitled to fair pay and good treatment, and a poor hand is undesirable to say the least. In nearly all cases the good hand is more profitable at good wages than the poor hand at very low wages.—N. J. S., in Prairie Farmer.

Ensilage Not Safe for Horses.

In reply to a question forwarded to me by you, regarding grounds for my conclusions that ensilage is not safe feed for horses and mules:

In February, 1881, I had a quantity of cured cornstalks from which horses and mules in a yard had been fed for two months. The fodder was well cured and the animals were thrifty. But in feeding large stalks whole there was necessarily waste. In my absence my foreman undertook to save hay by feeding the corn fodder to six mules and a horse in the stables—some of it was cut in the ensilage cutter, set to cut ½ inch, and was substituted for hay in the mangers. After a day or two the animals were ailing, the symptoms being inability to swallow, and great thirst. In about a week from the first feeding the seven were dead. Thinking it might be some epidemic, he notified the State Commissioners of Diseases of Domestic Animals. They came with their veterinarian, and held a post mortem. They found some inflammation in stomach and intestines, but could find no evidence of epidemic or poison; thought the food might be the cause, but reached no positive conclusion. In the fall of that year, having good ensilage, upon which the cattle were thriving, I fed some to a brood mare and weanling colt, giving them all they would eat. A few days afterward both died, exhibiting precisely the same symptoms as had the mules and horse; other horses and mules, at the same stable, fed on ensilage, remaining perfectly healthy. Putting together these two sequences I judged them to be consequences; hence concluded that cut cornstalks were not a safe fodder for horses and mules.—A. J. Coe in Country Gentleman.

A Rat-Proof Corn-Crib.

It is usually considered a saving to crib corn in the shuck, as the shuck is considered a preventive of the raids of weevil and rats; besides the shuck keeps the grain cleaner and nicer. The corn can then be shucked on rainy days or when the farmer can do nothing else.

Every farmer should have a rat-proof crib, one removed from other buildings, trees, etc., and set on pillars 8 feet high, with inverted tin or sheet iron pans on their tops as a cap. If a ladder is used in place of steps, and always taken down when not in use, and if nothing is leaned up against the crib, not a rat or even a mouse will get into such a crib unless carried in in old sacks or baskets. It is such an easy matter to have such a crib we are surprised that one is not to be found on every farm in the country.

For the protection of the corn against weevil and other insects it is a good plan to put some bisulphide of carbon, one ounce, here and there in the crib of corn as it is put in. A layer of bisulphide should be put in for every layer of corn three feet deep. In using the bisulphide be sure to have no fire about the crib—not even a pipe. In ten days the bisulphide will all have escaped and there will be no increased danger from fire. The very unpleasant odor will soon be gone and not the slightest injury will have been done the corn. Nothing more destructive to insects can be used than the bisulphide, and its use should be extended.—Farmers' Home Journal.

When Is the Milk Fit for Use.

A variety of opinions and notions are entertained, regarding the use of the milk for culinary purposes, or for drinking that from the newly-calved cows, says the Indiana Farmer. No established rule seems to be in force, and the interval between calving and using, the milk varies from three milkings to nine days, each dairyman having a theory of his own to determine the time required before the milk is "good." On account of these ideas, and in absence of positive proof, and the knowledge of how to do it, a great deal of profitable milk is sacrificed or thrown away under the supposition that it is not healthy and is unfitted for human food. A simple way to settle the question and dispel all doubts is to place a small quantity of milk in a vessel upon the stove, allow it to come to a boil, and if no appearance of curdling is present, the milk is all right. Heat at boiling point produces the change that makes visible to the eye the condition when it is proper to use the milk, and in no other way—except by the more difficult process of analysis, or by guess—can this be ascertained. It will be found generally, if no other conditions are normal, and the milk is from a cow in perfect health—that curdling, under the treatment described, will disappear after the third or fourth milking from the time the calf was dropped, and when this occurs the milk may, with entire confidence, be utilized in any way desired.—Farmers' Review.

Hog Feeding.

An experiment, the details of which are set forth in bulletin 14, of the Iowa experiment station, was undertaken to determine the ration which will most cheaply produce pork. A registered Poland-China sow two years old, having four pigs three days old, was selected, weighed and the increase of weight of dam and pigs recorded from time to time. The food consisted for the most part of shelled and ear corn soaked, supplemented by a mixture of ground barley, oil meal, corn and cob meal, and bran soaked for 36 hours before feeding. The amount of food consumed in the 152 days of the experiment was 35.7 bushels—reducing the supplementary foods to corn on a money basis—and this amount of food produced 626½ pounds live weight, or 17.3 pounds of growth for each bushel of corn and equivalent. From this it appears, that we can approximate $1 per bushel for corn when pork is 5½ cents per pound; that the dam can be made to increase in flesh during the suckling period; and that the proper balancing of the ration is necessary to secure these results.

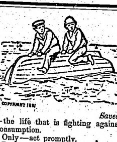
Some Useful Facts.

The merciful man, yes, and the business like man, keeps his wagon axles so well oiled that the strength of his horses are not wasted.

According to the American Bee Journal there are 300,000 bee keepers in America, and in ordinary years the honey produced amounts to 100,000,000 pounds, worth at least $1,000,000.

Any man who holds the hog in such poor esteem that he thinks any filthy place good enough for him will never make money raising swine. The hog should have just as good treatment as any of the farm stock. Clean, dry quarters, good food, pure water. Then he will keep well and pay his way.

Pure water is an important element in the growing of live stock. Impure water will bring disease even more rapidly than bad food and foul quarters. If your farm is not well supplied in these particulars, you cannot invest money to better advantage than in at once remedying this defect.



Saved
—the life that is fighting against Consumption.

Only—act promptly.

Put it off, and nothing can save you. But, if taken in time, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will certainly cure.

It must be done through the blood—and the "Discovery" is the most potent blood-cleanser, strength-restorer, and flesh-builder that's known to medical science. The scrofulous affection of the lungs that's called Consumption, and every form of Scrofula and blood-taints, all yield to it. For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Bronchitis, Asthma, and all severe, lingering Coughs, it's an unequaled remedy. It's the only one that's guaranteed. If it doesn't benefit or cure, in every case, you have your money back.

"We promise to cure your Catarrh, perfectly and permanently, no matter how bad your case or of how long standing—or we'll pay you $500." That's what the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy say to every sufferer from Catarrh. And they mean it.

Many a life has been lost because of the taste of cod-liver oil.

If Scott's Emulsion did nothing more than take that taste away, it would save the lives of some at least of those that put off too long the means of recovery.

It does more. It is half-digested already. It slips through the stomach as if by stealth. It goes to make strength when cod-liver oil would be a burden.

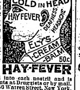
SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, 132 South 5th Avenue, New York.

Your druggist keeps Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil—all druggists everywhere do. $1.

24

ELY'S CREAM BALM

when applied into the nostrils, will be absorbed effectually cleansing the head of catarrhal virus, causing healthy secretions. It allays inflammation, protects the membrane from additional colds, completely heals the sores and restores sense of taste and smell. Try the Cure



A particle is applied into each nostril and is agreeable. Price 50 cents at Druggists or by mail. ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren Street, New York.

A Dog's Endurance.

A remarkable instance of endurance in the case of a dog is recorded in an American scientific journal: On the night of September 27 last the janitor of Parker Hall, Manasquan, New Jersey, unlocked his ticket office to put away some old tickets, and found a dog crawling about his feet in a condition of extreme emaciation. The office had not been opened since September 1 so that the dog had subsided for twenty-seven days without food or water. Some old tickets and a cigar box had been chewed to bits by the famishing animal. A loaf of bread and water to drink was given him and eagerly devoured. He soon recovered.

People who live in a cyclone country have not much to blow about.

Shunning evil appearances—steering clear of a policeman.

Clothing will make the man if he only sells enough of it at a good profit.

"When the robins nest again," she said, "I suppose my cold will get well." So he felt very sad, but suddenly bethought him of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. The cough was cured and those two were happy.

The population of Chicago is increasing at the rate of 21,000 hogs a day.

People call it backache and do nothing for it until the doctor is called and he pronounces it rheumatism. If they had used Salvation Oil in time the doctor's bill could have been saved.

A corset is nothing more than a waste basket without any poetry in it.

The Most Pleasant Way

Of preventing the grippe, colds, headaches, and fevers is to use the liquid laxative remedy Syrup of Figs, whenever the system needs a gentle, yet effective cleansing. To be benefited one must get the true remedy manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only. For sale by all druggists in 50c. and $1 bottles.

The dried codfish is the only fish that wears its shirt open on the back.

CONSUMPTION.

I have a positive remedy for the above disease; by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed so strong is my faith in its efficacy, that I will send TWO BOTTLES FREE, with a VALUABLE TREATISE on this disease to any sufferer who will send me their Express and P. O. address. T. A. Slocum, M. C., 183 Pearl St., N. Y.

FROM THE "PACIFIC JOURNAL."
"A great invention has been made by Dr. Tutt. That eminent chemist has produced which imitates nature to perfection; it acts instantaneously and is perfectly harmless." Price, $1. Office, 39 & 41 Park Place, N. Y.
Tutt's Hair Dye

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.
CATARRH
Sold by druggists or sent by mail. 50c. E. T. Hazeltine, Warren, Pa.

HIS MEANS OF SUPPORT.

They Were Present in Court, but the Judge Heeded Them Not.

"This makes the third time that you have appeared before me charged with begging on the streets of Atlanta," said the judge, "and, although you are a woman, I will have to send you up for thirty days."

"Please don't do it, judge," sobbed the woman. "I have a large family to support, and what would my husband and my children do if you were to send me up?"

"Your husband? Have you, indeed, a husband?"

"Yes, your honor," said a man, stepping forward from the crowd, "I'm her husband, and I want to ask you to be lenient with her. She makes out she's too sick to work, but if you let her off this time I'll see to it that she works in the future and supports her family."

"I don't think you will," said the judge. "In fact, I am going to let the woman go and send you up for six months as a vagrant. You have no visible means of support."

And the man muttered as he was marched out: "No visible means of support? Good Lord! Ain't my wife in court?"—Atlanta Constitution.

The sweetest watermelons grow in another fellow's patch.

A Big Regular Army.

The mightiest host of this sort is the army of invalids whose bowels, livers and stomachs have been regulated by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. A regular habit of body is brought about through using the Bitters, not by violently agitating and griping the intestines, but by reinforcing their energy and causing a flow of the bile into its proper channel. Malaria, la grippe, dyspepsia, and a tendency to inactivity of the kidneys, are conquered by the Bitters.

The champion light-weight—a short ton of coal.

For mental depression take Allen's Iron Tonic Bitters. All genuine bear the signature of J. P. Allen, Druggist, St. Paul, Minn.

The position of a judge is an exceedingly trying one.

For Throat Disease and Coughs use Brown's Bronchial Troches. Like all really good things, they are imitated. The genuine are sold only in boxes.

The Only One Ever Printed.

CAN YOU FIND THE WORD? There is a 3 inch display advertisement in this paper, this week, which has no two words alike except one word. The same is true of each new one appearing each week, from The Dr. Harter Medicine Co. This house places a "Crescent" on everything they make and publish. Look for it, send them the name of the word and they will return you BOOK, BEAUTIFUL LITHOGRAPHS OR SAMPLES FREE.

Hops go into beer, at breweries, and beer goes into men at hops.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Among drinking men in prohibition localities clubs are trunips.

"August Flower"

The Hon. J. W. Fennimore is the Sheriff of Kent Co., Del., and lives at Dover, the County Seat and Capital of the State. The sheriff is a gentleman fifty-nine years of age, and this is what he says: "I have "used your August Flower for several years in my family and for my "own use, and found it does me "more good than any other remedy. "I have been troubled with what I "call Sick Headache. A pain comes "in the back part of my head first, "and then soon a general headache "until I become sick and vomit. "At times, too, I have a fullness "after eating, a pressure after eating "at the pit of the stomach, and "sourness, when food seemed to rise "up in my throat and mouth. When "I feel this coming on if I take a "little August Flower it relieves "me, and is the best remedy I have "ever taken for it. For this reason "I take it and recommend it to "others as a great remedy for Dyspepsia, &c." ③

G. G. GREEN, Sole Manufacturer,
Woodbury, New Jersey, U. S. A.

"MOTHERS' FRIEND"

To Young Mothers

Makes Child Birth Easy.
Shortens Labor,
Lessens Pain,
Endorsed by the Leading Physicians.
Book to "Mothers" mailed FREE.
BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO.
ATLANTA, GA.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Like Magic

Is the relief given in many severe cases of dyspeptic troubles by Hood's Sarsaparilla. Possessing the best known stomach tonics as well as the best alterative remedies, this excellent medicine gives the stomach the strength required to retain and digest nourishing food, creates and gently but effectually assists to natural motion the whole machinery of the body. Most gratifying reports come from people who have taken

A Good Appetite

Hood's Sarsaparilla

for dyspepsia, indigestion and similar troubles. "I for a long time suffered severely with

Dyspepsia

and could find no relief until I was persuaded to use Hood's Sarsaparilla, which has completely cured me. When I first began to use

Hood's Sarsaparilla

I weighed 126 lbs. I now weigh 155. My appetite is good and my general health excellent." FANNIE S. DAVIS, Staunton, Va.

IVORY SOAP
$99\frac{44}{100}$ Pure.
THE BEST FOR EVERY PURPOSE.

I CURE FITS!

When I say cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office. H. G. ROOT, M. C., 183 Pearl St., N. Y.

PENSION JOHN W. MORRIS, Washington, D.C. Successfully Prosecutes Claims. Late Principal Examiner U. S. Pension Bureau. 3 yrs in last war, 15 adjudicating claims, atty since.

PILES Remedy Free. INSTANT RELIEF. Final cure in 10 days. Never returns; no purge; no salve; no suppository. A victim tried in vain every remedy has discovered a simple cure, which he will mail free to his fellow sufferers. Address J. H. REEVES, Box 3290, N. Y. City, N. Y.

FAT FOLKS REDUCED

Mrs. Alice Maple, Oregon, Mo., writes: "My weight was 320 pounds, now it is 195, a reduction of 125 lbs." For circulars address, with 6c. Dr. O. W. F. SNYDER, McVicker's Theatre, Chicago, Ill.

ASTHMA CURED TO STAY CURED. We Want Name and Address of Every ASTHMATIC P. Harold Hayes, M.D. BUFFALO, N.Y.

PRINT YOUR OWN CARDS. FOR 25 CTS. we will mail you a Complete Outfit for Cards, Linen Marking, etc., consisting of Box Rubber Type, Indelible Ink, Pads and Holder. Five Outfits for $1.00. MINNEAPOLIS STAMP CO. Minneapolis.

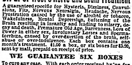
YATES CARRIAGE CO.
MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Fine Cutters, $20.
Leather qr. Top Buggies, $50,
Open Buggies, $35.
CIRCULARS FREE.

We send you the marvelous French Remedy CALTHOS free, and a legal guarantee that CALTHOS will STOP Discharges and Emissions, CURE Varicocele, Spermatorrhea and RESTORE Lost Vigor. Use it and pay if satisfied. Address VON MOHL CO., Sole American Agents, Cincinnati, Ohio. Please mention this paper when writing.

HOW TO MAKE MONEY QUICKLY AND EASILY! Send 50 cents to pay postage on our Daily Market Report and Special Letter of Advice, for one month. We can make you lots of Money. Agents wanted. Address, S. H. WOOD & CO., Investment Brokers, 212, 213, 214 and 215 Wright Block, Minneapolis, Minn.

Health Restored!



Dr. E. C. West's Nerve and Brain Treatment

A guaranteed specific for Hysteria, Dizziness, Convulsions, Fits, Nervous Neuralgia, Headache, Nervous Prostration caused by the use of alcohol or tobacco, Wakefulness, Mental Depression, Softening of the Brain resulting in insanity and leading to misery, decay and death, Premature Old Age, Barrenness, Loss of Power in either sex, Involuntary Losses and Spermatorrhœa, caused by over-exertion of the brain, self-abuse or over-indulgence. Each box contains one month's treatment. $1.00 a box, or six boxes for $5.00, sent by mail, prepaid on receipt of price.

WE GUARANTEE SIX BOXES

To cure any case. With each order received by us for six boxes, accompanied with $5.00, we will send the purchaser our written guarantee to refund the money if the treatment does not effect a cure. Guarantees issued only by JOSEPH R. HOFFLIN, Druggist, Minneapolis, Minn. THE GENUINE IN YELLOW WRAPPERS ONLY.

DR. HARTER'S TRADE MARK THE ONLY TRUE IRON TONIC

Will purify BLOOD, regulate KIDNEYS, remove LIVER disorder, build strength, renew appetite, restore health and vigor of youth. Dyspepsia, Indigestion, that tired feeling absolutely eradicated. Mind brightened, brain power increased, bones, nerves, muscles, receive new force.

LADIES suffering from complaints peculiar to their sex, using it, find a safe, speedy cure. Returns rose bloom on cheeks, beautifies Complexion. Sold everywhere. All genuine goods bear "Crescent." Send us 2 cent stamp for 32-page pamphlet.

DR. HARTER MEDICINE CO., St. Louis, Mo.

N. W. N. U. No 4.—1892.

WILSON'S 1892 PLANT, TREE AND SEED CATALOGUE, LIVE STOCK ANNUAL.

112 Pages, 200 Fine Engravings, Handsome Colored Plates. Full of useful and instructive information. Unquestionably one of the most reliable catalogues published. All kinds of guaranteed Garden, Flower, and Field Seeds, Fruit and Ornamental Trees, Small Fruits, Choice Roses, Flowering Plants and Bulbs. Thoroughbred Land and Water Fowls, Registered Pigs, German Hares, &c., &c. Sent free, on application. Address, mentioning this paper, SAMUEL WILSON, SEED GROWER, MECHANICSVILLE, PA.

CHICHESTER'S ENGLISH, RED CROSS DIAMOND BRAND PENNYROYAL PILLS

THE ORIGINAL AND GENUINE. The only Safe, Sure, and reliable Pill for sale. Ladies, ask Druggist for Chichester's English Diamond Brand in Red and Gold metallic boxes sealed with blue ribbon. Take no other kind. Refuse Substitutions and Imitations. All pills in pasteboard boxes, pink wrappers, are dangerous counterfeits. At Druggists, or send us 4c. in stamps for particulars, testimonials, and "Relief for Ladies," in letter, by return Mail. 10,000 Testimonials. Name Paper. CHICHESTER CHEMICAL CO., Madison Square, PHILADELPHIA, PA. Sold by all Local Druggists.

SEEDS NORTHERN GROWN, BEST FOR ALL SOILS & CLIMES. 60,000 BUS. POTATOES CHEAP. SEND 8c FOR 10 FARM SEED SAMPLES OR 5c FOR FINE CATALOGUE OR 13c FOR BOTH. JOHN A. SALZER LA CROSSE, WIS.

MY STAR.

When the shades of evening gather
And the sun sinks out of sight,
A brilliant star arising,
Illumines all the night.

I never miss the sunshine,
Because I have my star;
Tho' I never hope to reach it,
I worship from afar.

Sweet! do you see my meaning?
The sun may sink from sight,
But I can turn and worship,
Thy radiant, holy light.

'Tis you I mean fair Lyra,
You that I mean, no other,
All light grows dim, and faint, and pale,
Beside my star—my mother.

POLLY STOCKWELL.

THE GHOST OF ELM CREEK.

BY MARIGOLD.

WHAT do you think?" ejaculated Rich Robertson, in a tone indicative of the most profound dismay, as he glanced up from the letter he was perusing.

"It makes my head ache to think," said his dark-eyed little wife, who was hushing her baby to sleep.

"Aunt Trib is coming!" in sepulchral tones. "Look out Della—don't let the boy fall! Yes, she will be here tomorrow. Listen my child, and don't let your wits go wool gathering."

He read aloud as follows:

Dear Nephew: I shall be in Lyons on the 10th at 1 o'clock, and look for you to meet me with the carriage. Now that there is a baby in the house, my presence will be indispensable to Della, who is only a child herself, so I shall stay with you all winter. ("Ye Gods, forefend!" exclaimed Charley, piously.) I hear Della leaves everything to the care of the girl, so the place must be at sixes and sevens. (Here Mary gave a disdainful sniff.) I will soon set things to rights. ("Indeed, you will do no such thing!" observed Della indignantly.) I shall bring the baby some boneset—it is the best thing for children—

"Dick, don't read another line!" broke in the baby's mother. "Boneset, indeed! The idea! What does that old woman think she knows about babies? She never had one herself."

"Heaven forbid!" said Rich. "But, Della, what are we to do? She is coming with the full intention of remaining and taking root."

"Scare her away," said Della, promptly.

"It can't be done," groaned Charley.

"Tell her there is small-pox or diphtheria in the vicinity. Tell her every one gets la grippe who stays here through the winter. Tell her anything, Dick, only induce her to take herself and her boneset and her false teeth back to Omaha."

"Della, look at your brother!" cried Rich suddenly. "What have you done to him? Speak, Charley! Where are you in pain?" But Charley only grimaced and flung his arms wildly above his head, while he writhed as if in the last agonies.

"Ah!" said Rich sadly, "He is smitten speechless. What a direful misfortune has befallen us! Shall we never hear those dear, if slightly idiotic, utterances again? Try to speak, Charley, I beseech you. They say unlimited pinching is good for this sort of an attack," rising.

Charley waved him back.

"Her teeth," he gasped faintly.

Rich and Della broke into a fit of immoderate laughter, in the midst of which the baby awoke and yelled like a small savage thereby causing a diversion.

The next day arrived; also Aunt Trib, satchel, band-box, bag, bundle, parasol, lap-dog, and parrot. Della held up both hands in horror as the last two met her veiw.

"Tribulations never come single," she remarked, sotto voce, to Charley, and hurried to welcome her guest, leaving that graceless young man in convulsions.

Miss Tribulation Warren was a tall and angular maiden on the shady side of 50, she owned to 35, with a hatchet face and corkscrew ringlets. She wore glasses and was literarily inclined, having a faculty, like Mr. Wegg, of "dropping into poetry" upon all occasions. Moreover she was fearfully and wonderfully superstitious, as this story will reveal.

In less than an hour after her advent into the Robertson household pandemonium reigned. She frightened the baby into fits by chucking him under the chin and calling him "an epitome of his father." Baby, who was used to being dubbed "a chip of the old block," wailed long and loud, and refused to be comforted. Leaving Della to quiet him as best she might, Aunt Trib sailed into the kitchen to superintend Mary in her preparation for tea.

"Never stir biscuit, Mary," she admonished. "It makes them heavy. You should beat them well. Not too much salt, and baking powder with sweet milk—no soda. Even full, Mary, even full. I'm afraid that is too generous measure."

Mary who made beautiful bread and biscuit when left to herself, became exceedingly nervous and muddled with so many directions, and heaved a sigh of relief when the biscuit was at last in the oven.

In about ten minutes a strange odor began to pervade the kitchen, and Aunt Trib, white as a sheet, burst into the sitting-room.

"Della," she cried, wringing her hands in an agony of fear. "Della, child, your house is haunted!"

"What!" exclaimed Della, in utter amazement.

"Haunted!" reiterated Aunt Trib, sinking into a chair. "The kitchen is fairly blue with sulphur! I tell you, a secret crime has been committed in this house."

"Nonesense!" said Della, rising and going out to investigate.

An unmistakable odor of brimstone greeted her nostrils as she opened the kitchen door. She sneezed, strangled and exclaimed in a half-suffocated voice:

"Mary, what have you been fumigating the house for?"

Mary turned upon her mistress in wrathful disgust.

"What did you let her come poking her nose out here for?" she stormed, "and upsetting me so that I mistook a can of sulphur for baking powder, and put two spoonsfuls in in the biscuit?"

Della gave one glance at the dingy, heavy mass in the big tin on the table, and sank into a chair helpless with laughter.

"Phew-w!" exclaimed Rich and Charley in a breath, as they paused at the open door. "What infernal compound are you girls brewing in there?"

Della, with gasps for breath between the peals of mirth, managed to enlighten them, and drawing a vivid picture of Aunt Trib cowering in mortal terror in one corner of the parlor, soon rendered the young men as helpless as herself.

"What a jolly lark!" gasped Charley, as soon as he could speak, "I say, Della, don't let on to her that it was only a mistake of Mary's and I'll wager a box of French candy against ditto of cigars that your greatest tribulation will leave you before three days."

"Done!" said Della promptly. "Here, Dick, go and give these biscuit to the pigs—quick! I hear her coming."

"All right," and Rich seized the tin.

He vanished, and Mary closed the oven door on a fresh tin of biscuit just as Aunt Trib's tremulous hand lifted the latch, and her frightened face looked in.

"Come in, Miss Warren," said Charley, reassuringly. "It is nothing—nothing. You know Elm Creek boasts of a ghost, and this is only a precursor of his usual visit. You will perceive the odor is dying away. Don't be alarmed. You will get used to it if you remain here long."

"Wh—what do you mean?" asked Aunt Trib, faintly, as she took his proffered chair. 'Are you—are you actually—haunted?"

"Did you never hear the story?" exclaimed Charley, in apparent surprise. "That is strange!" with a glance full of reproach at Della. "You know Rich bought this place of a physician—Doctor Delorme. Well, in the first palmy days of his practice Doctor Delmore attended a poor Irishman through a long illness, supplying him with every luxury. He died in the end poor fellow, and left his bones to the doctor as the only testimonial of gratitude he was able to render. So Delorme brought the skeleton home. One night thieves broke into the house—or, at least, some of the outraged neighbors, who objected to any man in the community keeping a skeleton in his closet. They broke the skeleton up and scattered the bones over the place, leaving the skull nailed to the gatepost. The doctor tried to gather up the bones, and buried all he could find, many were missing. The people hereabouts say the place is haunted, the poor Irishman being unable to rest in his grave with part of his bones missing. I have never seen his ghostship myself, but the smell of sulphur is certainly mysterious."

"O, Charley!" broke in Della, pitying Aunt Trib's white face. "You know this is an idle tale. The spirit of the dead never come back. He is trying to frighten you, Aun't Trib; don't mind him."

"Della," said the old lady, huskily, "is this story true?—about Dr. Delorme, I mean, and the neighbors breaking up the skeleton?"

"Yes," Della admitted, reluctantly; "but about the place being haunted—that is but a superstition in the neighborhood."

"Della," said Aunt Trib, "if any of the bones of the dead are missing, they do come back to the place where they were lost. I firmly believe this is a haunted house. The fumes of sulphur still linger. If you have any regard for the baby, you and Richard will move at once."

A warning glance from Charley reminded Della, just in time, of her promise. She closed her lips firmly, and, giving Mary orders to serve supper, left the room.

At the table Aunt Trib, fairly in her element, beguiled the hour with the most blood-chilling tales of haunted homes and ghosts who walked their halls clanking a chain behind them; of corpse lights in the church-yard, and groans of souls that could not rest in their graves.

Vainly Della expostulated. Rich and Charley showed such flattering and credulous interest in her words that the ancient maiden continued to air her beliefs in the supernatural. One thing alone troubled the boys. She advised her nephew to sell Elm Creek Farm, but gave no intimation of her own departure, and Charley began to fear he had lost the cigars.

Immediately after supper he gathered up all the empty spools he could find, and taking a ball of binding twine repaired to the granary and was seen no more that evening.

* * *

The moonlight, fair as a dream of paradise, slept on the dancing ripples of Elm Creek and touched the quaint gables of the old farm-house with a magician's wand, beautifying every rough outline.

"Twelve!" chimed the clock in the parlor, and "Twelve!" echoed the old-fashioned kitchen clock in a sonorous peal.

As the mingled chimes died away Aunt Trib, waking from a dream of ghosts, heard the rattle of a chain outside her bed-room door, followed by a long, deep groan.

There was brave blood in Aunt Trib's veins, but it ran cold at this moment. Her hands shook so that she could hardly fasten her dressing-gown and draw on her slippers.

The clanking of the chain was growing more faint at every moment, and as she opened the door the odor of sulphur almost strangled her; but through parlor and kitchen she followed the distant clink! clank! of the chain, until she stood on the wide south porch, peering into the vista of moonlight beyond the great elms.

Something stood there—something tall and ghostly, clad in a winding sheet, surmounted by a grinning skull, whose empty sockets glowed as if with fire. It waved its sheeted arms wildly, clanking the invisible chain; and through its misty figure the silver moon shone on bare ribs and vertebra.

And what was that dark thing crouching between the gnarled and twisted roots of the giant elms and that shimmering line reaching the ghost's left arm, on which the moonlight rested?

One fell, unexpected swoop, and Aunt Trib had pounced like a bird of prey on the lurking object. Something snapped—the "ghost" lay prone upon the earth, and a triumphant voice broke the silence of the autumn night.

"There, Charley Cook, you're fairly caught! Shame upon you, you impious young man, for trifling with the mysteries of death! You would be rightly punished if the real ghost of that poor Irishman should arise to haunt you. Did you think to affright me with an old gourd shell and that string of spools? Go to bed, sir, go to bed!"

And with this contemptuous injunction she stalked majestically back into the house, while Rich and Della, awakened by the chain and the groans, had witnessed the whole scene from their bed-room window, smothered their laughter as best they might.

Charlie appeared at the breakfast table as if nothing had happened. The ghostly remains had disappeared, and when Aunt Trib broached the subject the scapegrace did not hesitate to affirm most unblushingly that she must have had the nightmare. He played his part so well that Aunt Trib is not sure to this day whether or not it was all a dream. She remained all winter (though firmly believing the house to be haunted), and Della won a box of delicious bonbons. The gourd shell is hidden in the millet stack—all that now remains of the ghost of Elm Creek.—Waverly Magazine.

HOW HE SETTLED HIS CAT.

This Time the Old Application Did Not Exactly Fit.

They had been telling stories of ineffectual attempts to drown cats, pussy in every case turning up on the kitchen hearth, purring serenely as though nothing had happened. Finally a quiet-looking man, a stranger, who had been silent up to—the moment, suddenly broke out with—

"That reminds me, gentlemen, of the time I had with my cat."

Instantly every face was turned toward the quiet-looking man. He went on:

"That cat was the biggest nuisance I ever saw. And steal! Great Cæsar! He was the worst thief that ever walked on four feet. I had tried a dozen times to drown him. But it was no use. Bag and ballast and all that sort of thing were only fun for him. He always got home before I did. At last I tried a new dodge. I put Tom in a bag and tied him tight, and started for the wharf. On my way I rested Tom on the railroad track and let a locomotive and twenty cars run over him. Then I went on my way with him. When I got to the water I tied a ten-pound junk of iron to the bag and threw it in. I waited until the last bubble had come up and then returned home."

"And when you got there," cried half a dozen excited listeners, "you found the cat"—

The quiet looking man seemed surprised at this. "Oh, no, gentlemen," he said, you forget the freight train, and the big junk of iron and the bubbles. No. I never saw that cat again." The quiet-looking man had not been loud or boastful in telling his story, but when he had finished every man present looked as though he had received a personal injury, and there was no more conversation.—Boston Transcript.

"JUST LIKE A MAN."

Masculine Ignorance in Purchasing a Fan.

Now that Christmas stories are the proper thing The Man proposes to tell one on himself which is too good to be lost. The Man has a young lady friend who is a fan collector. She had rather have a new fan than a block of gas steal stock. As The Man was passing a famousy jewelr house a few days before Christmas, he spied a particularly lovely fan in the window, and, thinking to gladden the heart of his friend, he entered the place and told a polite clerk to wrap up the fan. Instantly the clerk was dissolved in smiles, and two ladies, who stood near, looked approvingly at The Man, as if to say: "What a nice young man! So thoughtful of his friends and so liberal!" But a climax was rapidly approaching. In his masculine ignorance of such matters The Man had thought the price of the fan might possibly be $10—certainly it would be no more. And so, as the smiling clerk handed him the parcel, he inserted his hand deep into his trousers' pocket and, with all the assurance in life, said:

"How much?"

"Sixty dollars!"

"Er—I beg pardon"—gasped the Man, while the cold dew of horror came out on his forehead.

"Sixty dollars?"

The Man made a desperate grasp for his presence of mind and got it.

"Please put it right back and do be careful not to break it. Thank you."

The two ladies looked indignant, and as The Man fled into the street he heard one of them say to her companion:

"Just like a man!"—St. Louis Republic.

THOUGHT HIM A SPY.

A Man With a Badge Creates Excitement in a Drug Store.

"My wife had the toothache Saturday night," said an Orange street man to-day to a Lewiston Journal man, "and I came down town after something to cur it.

"Just before I came away from the house my boy came along and pinned his Young Men's Christian Association badge on my vest. I never had occasion to go to a drug store in Lewiston before, and I did not think it made any difference where I went.

"At 7:45 I went into a well-illuminated store with my coat unbuttoned. The clerk saw me coming and jumped over the counter, putting his hand immediately behind a clock on the shelf. An alarm bell rang in a rear-room and a heavy door swung to with a bang. Then there was a sound of breaking bottles, and in another minute the place was filled with ammonia gas.

"Then the clerk put his hat on, and as he hurried from the room I asked if he had anything for toothache.

"'We don't keep a drop and you can't find any, either,' he answered, as he scudded out of the door. I followed him from the door, and a crowd on the sidewalk began asking me if I had made a haul. I got half way up the street before I discovered that it was the badge that did it."

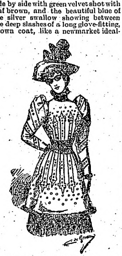
WOMAN AND HER WORLD.

MATTERS OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO THE WOMEN FOLKS.

Some Gossip About the January Fashions—A Novel Powder-Puff —The Real Uses of Linen— What Women Are Wearing in New York.

January Fashions.

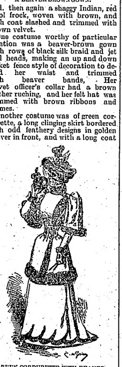
Although the grip is epidemic, New York's streets are brilliant in the sun of the opening year, and the women still take heed to their gowns. It seems as if there is a rage for reddish brown as most of the dresses seen, are of that color or some other shade of brown with rich brown furs. The color combinations are beautiful, the all-prevailing brown setting off as nothing else could, the more brilliant and varied tones. Tan is seen set side by side with green velvet shot with leaf brown, and the beautiful blue of the silver swallow showing between the deep slashes of a long glove-fitting, brown coat, like a newmarket idealized, then again a shaggy Indian, red wool frock, woven with brown, and with coat slashed and trimmed with brown velvet.



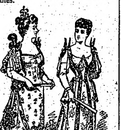
A BEAVER BROWN GOWN.

One costume worthy of particular mention was a beaver-brown gown with rows of black silk braid and jet nail heads, making an up and down picket fence style of decoration to defend her waist and trimmed with beaver bands. Her velvet officer's collar had a brown feather ruching, and her felt hat was trimmed with brown ribbons and plumes.

Another costume was of green cordurette, a long clinging skirt bordered with odd feathery designs in golden beaver in front, and with a long coat decorated with broader and heavier borders and shirred to the waist with a fanciful leather girdle ending in three great brownish and yellow topaz ornaments drawing the sunshine and holding it in warm, quivering flecks of light on either side. The coat was double-breasted and the golden beaver followed it up and down the side and about the throat and the full deep sleeve reaching to the elbows and the narrow coat sleeves below them and about the scant skirts falling half-way from the hips to the ground. A golden beaver muff with a knot of shot brown ostrich tips covered dainty brown gloves, and a quaint, picturesque hat of green felt was faced with golden-brown velvet and trimmed with golden-brown ribbons and standing green plumes.



GREEN CORDURETTE WITH BEAVER.



TWO BALL DRESSES.

Two pretty ball dresses were seen at a recent ball and are here illustrated. One was of ecru and green brocade, heavy falls of lace made the deep flounces at the bottom, and the hip draperies, like modified paniers on the sides, and the short sleeves open in front to the shoulders and the bertha filling in the front, and the mount of the pearl-sticked fan. Purple velvet barred the brocade in front, giving it richness and color, and purple velvet made the back and the pointed train. Purple velvet made the bows that caught the sleeves on the shoulders, the bows, or ends of the velvet pointed up sharp and straight lik, wings, two contrary to all anatomical principles, finding place on either side.

The other was a rose colored gown strewn with pale blue flowers. It had a princess cut, with plaitings of deep Soudan lace introduced into the two wide panels in front; in the middle was an enormous bow of rose velvet surmounting the lace plaitings and surmounted in turn by three rose-colored prince of Wales feathers. Three lengths of rose-colored ribbon velvet were looped from this bow and caught at different heights on the right side with other bows and plumes; on the left side a length of soft silk was caught beneath the middle bow and carried around to the back, where it was held with the biggest bow of all and the most imposing bunch of feathers. The short sleeves were of embroidered chiffon held by bows and feathers on the shoulders, both bows and feathers standings erect. The fuzzy, mucucurled hair of the wearer was twisted into a Greek "knot"—or, more accurately, a bunch—with feathers planted in its heart and rearing themselves skyward over all.

A Novel Powder-Puff.

A powder-puff is something of a nuisance, because it necessitates a box, and the lid will come off that, and an after-dusting with the handkerchief has to follow the puff, and so the performance of taking the grime or the shine off one's face comes to take on the seriousness of an operation.

A certain young woman has an ingenious pocket-piece which makes this performance the deftest, simplest thing in the world.

It can be carried on right under the eyes of mankind without his being a bit the wiser, unless he is shrewder than he has any business to be. It is a pocket-bag made of thin chamois, 8 inches long and 3½ broad. The first thing she did after she cut it out was to fold it to the length into four equal parts.

Then she took a tiny bodkin and pierced the lowest fourth part full of little holes. On the second fourth she laid a thin bit of cotton wool, and dusted face powder thickly all over it; then another layer of wool just as thin as she could handle it, and more powder dusted over that.

Then she folded up the pierced fourth over the wool and powder, making a small pocket, and sewed it tightly everywhere.

Then she bound the whole piece with narrow blue ribbon, and folded the upper half quite around the lower, and sewed blue ribbon ties to hold it together.

There was the whole toilet appliance —small enough when unrolled to go into the palm of the hand, a compact puff and powder box all in one, no fear of spilling powder, no after-dusting to get the surface layer off, no bother of any kind. And she rose up and called herself blessed.

The Real Uses of Linen.

The world, or this part of it at least, is full of housekeepers who think that there is no material for sheets and pillow cases comparable to linen. They don't always have it, to be sure, because it is expensive, but they always covet it, and finger the shining breadths lovingly and wonder if the time will ever come when all these things shall be added unto them. But the truth about linen is that it isn't the ideal dressing for beds at all. It is cold and slippery, and insures a sensitive person the dream of sleeping on an iceberg which does well enough for an occasional experience, like sea-sickness, but which palls on too frequent repetition. Besides that, it wrinkles and tumbles in spite of its heavier body, much more than cotten does, giving a bed after one night's use a most slovenly and uninviting appearance.

Nobody recommends linen for body wear. Its firm texture and hard surface make it wholly non-absorbent, it allows the body to become chilled by refusing the prespiration, and so has been known to bring on serious illness. For outside wear in summer, linen may be tolerated as clothing, but nowhere else.

Where, however, it is at its usefullest and best is in household uses. For table service, for the toilet and for minor ornamental details, it is simply invaluable—its smoothness of texture, its brilliancy, which laundering even increases, its exquisite freshness makes it the one fabric bit to drape the dining table, and to use in the toilet, while its suitability for needle work decoration makes it admirable for all kinds of fancy work. And here it is rightfully used, but to wear next the skin and sleep in—no.

Opals May Now Be Fashionable.

Queen Victoria, at her last drawing-room, wore a necklace and some brooches of large opals surrounded by brilliants. Now all London is after them and the world of fashion everywhere. The unhappy significance is forgotton, for the time, and all the sad associations clinging to the fatal jewel. Poor Eugenie, the beautiful, ill-starred Empress of the French, reluctantly consented to wear a set of opals at the last grand fete given at St. Cloud in 1870. Two days later the Franco-Prussian war was declared and the empire dethroned. The Austrian Empress took from their case a set of opals, which for years had been lying by, and wore them on the occasion of her last public appearance just before the death of her son Rudolph. But now opal is the jewel, and come weal, come woe, the fitful gem will flash upon us everywhere.

What Women Are Wearing in Nwe York.

Sashes on evening frocks, with long ends, but no loops, falling either from the waist or from between the shoulders.

Lizard green velvet hats, with black Prince of Wales feathers.

Fur cravats, with the head and tail and sometimes the feet of the animal preserved.

White kid gloves with black stitching to shop in.

Seal-skin heavily trimmed with Persian lamb.

Long ends of velvet ribbon floating from the back of their hats and no ties.

Dress skirts longer than ever.

Much fine white point de gene on black hats.

Heavily braided jackets in half and three-quarter lengths.

Marie Antoinette fichus of chiffon hemmed plain, ruffled or embroidered, folded corner wise and knotted in front.

WITH DYNAMITE.

The Millionaire and the Young Man Who Was Hard Up.

Jafney, the millionaire owner of the famous rolling mills, looked up from his desk to find a man standing near him, says the Arkansaw Traveler. He was not prepossessing of appearance, this visitor, and the millionaire saw at a glance that he carried in one hand something that looked like a large, glass ball.

"Pardon me," said Mr. Jafney, nervously, "but will you please state your business; and I would be obliged, too, if you tell me how you got in here."

"I have been standing out there for some time waiting to see you," the man answered, "but found that I might wait all day without attracting any attention, so just now I noticed how your secretary got in and came in that way myself. I wish you would read this, sir."

He then handed the great man a piece of paper on which was written the following: "I am powerful hard up and need money."

The millionaire looked at the glass ball and turned pale. It was evident that he had to deal with a desperate man, and he knew that a misstep might cost him his life; yet he did not feel disposed to give up his entire fortune. Probably he could buy the fellow cheap for cash. He would make the attempt.

"My good man," said the millionaire, "I am a little pushed for ready money just at present. Would a hundred dollars do you?"

"I should say so."

"Well," the great man added, opening his pocket book, "here are five twenty-dollar bills."

The fellow eagerly took the money and hastened away, and, after allowing him time to get out of the building, Jafney rushed into his secretary's office and exclaimed:

"I have been robbed!"

"What!" eclaimed the secretary, springing to his feet. "How did it happen?"

"A dynamiter slipped in on me just now with a bomb as big as your head and demanded money. He has just gone. Rush out and have him arrested. Tall fellow, sandy whiskers, shabbily dressed."

The secretary ran down and happened to see the fellow going up the street with the bomb still in his hand. He called a policeman and explained the case. The policeman ran after the fellow and seized him, taking care, too, that he did not drop the dynamite.

The desperate fellow was taken to the Central police-station and the millionaire was sent for.

"I don't know what you have arrested me for," the prisoner said. "If I have done anything out of the common, I would like to know it."

"What you would have done may not be so much out of the common these days," said the chief of detectives.

"But I would like to know who has brought out a complaint against me. Here comes Mr. Jafney he can tell you I'm all right."

"Is this the man? Mr. Jafney."

"He's the fellow. He came in my office just now with a dynamite bomb and demanded money, and knowing that my life was in peril, I gave him a hundred dollars.

The fellow laughed. "Why, I didn't do anything of the sort. You ought to know me. I worked for you ten years and was laid off about two months ago when the force was cut down. I went in to ask you for a little help and was astonished when you gave me a hundred dollars."

"Ah, but what about that dynamite?"

"I will bring it," said the chief.

"Wait till I get out," said the millionaire.

"Won't hurt you," said the felloy. "It's only a glass jar of peaches that the woman's relief association gave me."

And so it was; but Mr. Jafney, with the true spirit of the millionaire, demanded his hundred dollars and then triumphantly walked back to his office.

His Mind Is Gone.

"Old man Clamwhooper has married again."

"You don't tell me so."

"Yes, and he has married a right young girl, forty years younger than he is."

"Well, I declare. His other wife only died six months ago, and he went on so at the grave that I expected that he would lose his mind."

"Well you see your prediction has come to pass."—Texas Siftings.

Quoted to Edification.

Abe Lincum—"Pop, kyan't yo' spahr me dat fishin' rod to-day?"

Pop Lincum—"W'y, yo', Abum Lincum, doan't yo' know dis am de Lawd's day?"

Abe Lincum—"Yahs; but de Lawd doan't say nuffin' agin fishin'."

Pop Lincum—"Doan't, hey? Doan't he say 'Spahr de rod an' spile de chile?"—New York Herald.

A Georgia man has put up a ham-string factory, and is making ham strings of snake hides.

TRAINING WILD BIRDS.

In Holland Bird-Catching is a Regular Business Every Autumn.

In Holland bird-catching in autumn is a regular business, and huts are built among the sandhills or in the meadows joining them, in which the men can sit in comfort, says the St. Louis Mechanic. A small window on one side looks on to the "vinkie baan," the level space between low banks under which the nets lie, where linnets and siskins are tethered to long twigs. The ground is strewn with grain, and at a little distance the best call-birds are placed in their cages. Goldfinches are most prized, for they constantly utter their rippling song, but a redpole or well-trained chaffinch is almost equally good.

Holland lies on two of the main routes by which birds travel from the north, for those that come down the Baltic cross the land at Denmark, while along the German ocean travel thousands from Norway and Sweden. The mainstay of the bird-catchers are the hen chaffinches, which leave their mates in Scandinavia and come in thousands to Southern Europe. Two hundred in a day is not at all an unusual number to be taken at one "vinkie baan." These are all killed for the table, and rows of them, with their heads fastened in a split hazel stick, like partridges in a game carrier, are seen in every poulterer's shop. The rarer birds, bramblings, cross-bills and redpoles—are saved and sold for cage-birds, for the Dutch are particularly fond of aviaries, and clever at taming all kinds of creatures.

The writer has often spent an afternoon in the hut watching for the passing of flocks of chaffinches. The tame birds begin to call when they see the wild ones passing, the men whistle and pull the strings to which the birds are attached, and as they flutter from the ground the flock wheel, settle in the trees close by, and then fly down to the grain. Hardly have they pitched before the nets close over them, and the man runs out to disentangle his captives. The tame birds are so used to the nets that they do not flutter or ruffle a feather, but jump back to their twigs, eat some more hempseed and sing afresh, without regarding the death of their wild relatives.

Redpoles, linnets and siskins are easily tamed, especially the first. In a few days they become perfectly contented with a cage life. In fact, I knew of one which voluntarily surrendered its liberty. The winter was a severe one, and the little fellow came in through the open window of a house at The Hague to share their food with the birds in a large aviary. The mistress fed him regularly, and, though he had often an opportunity of escaping, he never availed himself of it, but lived for years the merriest occupant of the cage.

These birds can be taught to sit motionless on the back of a chair, to "lie dead" in a basin of water, to draw up their food in an ivory bucket in a few days; but the trainer must be prepared to give them long lessons. Birds' minds differ entirely from those of animals; they do not learn gradually, and if they are to be trained they must be so most thoroughly. An hour a day for a week will not have one-quarter the effect that four hours of continuous care will achieve. It is this fact that causes so many disappointments in training hawks, for men certainly become tired and impatient at the moment when their labor has begun to produce some effect. The hawk is put back on his block, and in a day has forgotten the half-learned lesson. In Holland hawks are still caught when on their autumn migration, for the line of flight passes, as it has done from time immemorial, over the great heath of Valkenswaard, in North Brabant.

Waiting for Dinner.

A Methodist minister, who is now stationed here, while relating some reminiscences of his early days in the ministry, said:

"One day while traveling between stations I so timed myself as to arrive at a good brother's in the country about dinner-time. I hitched my horse and went in. Brother H. was absent from home, but the wife and daughters appeared glad to see me. We chatted pleasantly for a half-hour or more.

"I was very hungry and was sure dinner was being prepared, as the girls had dropped out of the room one by one, so I tarried, but was very uneasy and thought the lady of the house was becoming so.

"Finally she excused herself and went out of the room for a moment. A small boy, who had been running in and out of the room since my arrival, entered, and I said:

"'Come here, my little man,' and as he came towards me I asked:

"'How soon will you have dinner here?'

"'Just as soon as you go,' was the ready answer.

"I went."—Washington Star.

A Minneapolis lawyer entered a demurrer to an indictment against a prisoner, charged with having shot several fine hogs belonging to a neighbor, on the ground that the shooting of the animals increased their value, as it saved the owner the expense of killing them.

Hot Griddle Cakes.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder possesses a peculiar merit not approached by that of any other baking powder. It produces the hot buckwheat, Indian or wheat cakes, hot biscuit, doughnuts, waffles or muffins. Any of these tasteful things may be eaten when hot with impunity by persons of the most delicate digestive organs. Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder leavens without firmentation or decomposition. In its preparation none but the purest of cream of tartar, soda, etc. is used, and in such exact equivalents as to always guarantee a perfectly neutral result, thereby giving the natural and sweet flavor peculiar to buckwheat and other flour that may be used, the natural flavor so much desired and appreciated by all. The oldest patrons of Dr. Prices powder tell the story, that they can never get the same results from any other leavening agent, that their griddle cakes, biscuits, etc. are never so light and never taste so sweet or so good as when raised with Dr. Prices Cream Baking Powder.

LOVE FOR A DAY.

CHAPTER IX—CONTINUED.

"You have come back to me from the dead!" I cried. "Oh, my love, welcome! I have never doubted you, Mark, through the weeks and months and years. I have loved you just the same. I said always that if you were living you would come; if dead, I would take my love and faith untarnished to you. Speak to me, Mark. I have hungered for the sound of your voice and for the sight of your face. Speak to me."

I heard him whisper words that seemed to me like a prayer.

"My true, loyal Nell!" he said.

"I knew you would come to me if living, Mark. Of late as you did not come, I felt sure that you were dead. I have never doubted you for one moment, Mark."

In a passion of joy and gratitude I put my arms around his neck, telling him, with kisses and tears, how glad and happy I was, how I thanked Heaven, how my happiness was all the greater because my anguish had been so keen. He was strangely silent. But I heeded not; when my rapturous words were over, he would talk to me in the old, sweet, grave fashion.

"You may kiss my lips, Mark," I said, "for I have kept my promise. The kiss you left on them is there still; no one has touched them. I have never swerved, even in my thoughts, for one moment from you. If you had never returned, and I had lived fifty years longer, I should have been just as true. All other men are but shadows. Oh, Mark, teach me—you are wiser and better than I—teach me how to thank heaven that you have come back to me!"

Strangely silent was he; but, as I remembered, great emotion often causes silence. I could not see him, for he had drawn me to him. I could only stand still, folded in his close embrace, and murmur to him all the loving words that came from my heart—how I had yearned for him—how long the days, the weeks, the months and years had been—how I had thought of him unceasingly—how, feeling sure that he was in heaven, I had made heaven the home of my heart—how I had been in many places and seen many men, but there was none like him, none to be compared with him. All the loving thoughts that had ever passed through my mind were poured out like water beneath his feet. The wind faintly stirred the green boughs above our heads, the birds were singing blithely, and I could hear my own voice rippling on, but not his—not his!

A gust of wind blew a lilac-spray right into my face. I seized it and kissed it passionately.

"How strange, Mark, that you should come back to me in the time of the lilacs. They seem almost like living friends. But, Mark, speak to me. I say all; you say nothing. Speak to me."

Still I could not see his face.

"Great sorrow made me dumb, Mark," I said; "great joy gives me words. Tell me that you are pleased to see me, to find me."

"Nellie, my true, loving Nellie!" he said.

And I was content. Oh, wondrous love! I was content and happy. I too stood for some minutes in silence, the dark, handsome beloved face bending over mine.

"I believe those happy birds know all about it, Mark," I said. "Hark how they are singing! If I had known what today would bring, how I should have longed for it to come. Oh, Mark, what a debt you have to pay me! What hours I have spent in praying for you! What tears I have shed! You must repay me all those prayers and tears. Mark, raise your head and let me look at you. Do you know that I have hardly seen your face yet?"

But for all answer he drew me nearer to him and whispered—

"My dear, loving Nell!"

I was quite content, safe in the shelter of his arms, my happy face resting on his breast.

"Do you know Mark," I said, "I was so sure you would come back to me in July, when the four years were ended, that I spent the greater part of every day, while the month lasted, under the tree? Since the world began no woman has ever loved more truly than I love you. I am proud of my faith, Mark—proud of my unswerving truth—proud that I knew and understood you so well—proud that no shadow of doubt has ever dimmed the sun of my great love."

Still he was strangely silent, and the fiery passion of my words was wearing away. I wanted to look into the beloved face; I wanted the dear lips to lavish love on me, as had mine on him.

"Mark, look at me!" I cried, in a rapture of loving impatience. "It seemed to me, as you came along, that you were sad and melancholy. Look at me. See the love that beams in my face and in my eyes for you."

But his head drooped lower, and he drew me nearer to him.

A thought came to me that possibly he had been ill, and I knew how illness changes people. Yes, he had been ill, and seeing me had been too much for him. Perhaps if he could have expressed his emotion in a torrent of words as I had done, he would have been better.

"Mark," I said, "look at me; let me see your face. I am beginning to fear that you are ill."

He raised his head, and once more the dark eyes looked into my own. Ah me, the face was changed! The youth, the hope, the brightness had gone; it was pale, careworn, wistful. But the eyes had their old power over me.

"Have you been ill, Mark?" I asked anxiously.

"No," he replied, "not in body; I have been in mind."

"I will cheer you and make you better. Why, when you went away, your face was bright and brave! What has changed it?"

Was I mistaken, or could it have been a moan that had fallen from his lips?

"Mark," I cried, "you have been in sore trouble, I am afraid; but it is all over now. We shall never be parted again. Why—why do you not speak to me as I speak to you?"—and again my trembling burning hands clung to him, again the tears rained from my eyes, and the passionate love of my heart found expression in whispered words.

Ah me, he was strangely silent! And it seemed to me, now that the first shock of surprise was over, that the figure to which I clung was growing rigid.

"Oh, my love," I cried, "speak to me—to me, Nellie Chester, your wife who is to be, the one woman in the world who loves you with a great love. Why do you not speak to me, Mark?"

"I have not recovered from my surprise, Nellie," he said.

"Surprise?" I repeated. "Why Mark, you knew I was here, did you not?"

"No, Nellie; I had not the faintest idea of it," he replied.

"You did not know that I was here? You did not come purposely to find me?" I cried.

"No," he answered sadly, turning his face from me.

"Then," I asked in wonder, "why did you come. What brought you here?"

He looked at me, and I saw how full of agitation and distress his face was.

"Nellie," he said gently, will you tell me what brings you here?"

"Do you not know?" I asked.

"I do not. I cannot even imagine," he replied.

"I am living here, as companion to Lady Yorke," I said. "I waited in the old home at Gracedieu until the four years were over. I lived alone, longing, hoping against hope for news of you every day, afraid to go away lest you should come in my absence."

He laid his hand caressingly on my head, and the horrible chill that had begun to creep through my veins ceased.

"My sweet, loyal Nellie!" he said; but in some vague way the words seemed forced from him.

"Then you see, Mark," I went on, happy from the caress of his dear hand, "my money was gone, and I was obliged to seek a home. I have been as happy here as I could be anywhere in the world without you."

"You are Lady Yorke's companion?" he said, as though he could not recover from his surprise.

"Have you been to Gracedieu?" I asked.

"No," he answered in a low tone.

Ah, well, he was here! Why he had come mattered little. He would tell me all when he recovered from his surprise. There would be no secrets, no mysteries between us. I unclasped his hands and held them in mine.

"You are tired, Mark, and not well, I am sure," I said; "let us sit down and talk quietly."

"Oh, Nellie, Nellie, you are killing me with every word!" he cried.

"Killing you, Mark? Why, I would die a hundred times over for you! I have done so. Every day of your long absence has been like a day of death to me."

"Hush, my darling!" he cried. "For Heaven's sake, hush!"

"But why, Mark? Why must I not speak to you? Why are you so strange? Why are you so distant and silent?"

But for all answer he held up his hand and repeated, "Hush, my darling!"

Why should that deadly chill come over me? Why should my limbs tremble? There could be nothing to fear. Mark was living, and he was with me. I beat down the horrible rising doubt. What could there be between Mark and me? I sat down upon the grass and said—

"Sit here with me, Mark, and we can talk at our ease."

But he did not sit down, and the terrible fear grew. I could feel the warm color leave my face, and the blood in my veins grow chill. I could have cried aloud in my agony. But I must know what it all meant. The change in my face startled him.

"Nellie," he cried, "for Heaven's sake do not look like that; I cannot bear it! Do not let the joy and love die from your face yet, my darling—not just yet!"

"Why must they die at all? Now that you have come back, why can we not be as happy as we were? There is no reason, Mark, is there?"

Paler, graver, sadder than ever, he took my hand in his.

"I have not the courage to speak!" he cried. "Heaven forgive me, I cannot speak!"

"Is it that you have no money, Mark?" I asked, with a sudden sense of relief. "Oh, my darling, I do not care in the least about that! Money is nothing when we have love. Ah, I see now, Mark! You failed in that Indian undertaking, and you do not like to tell me so. Why, my love, I would sooner have one lock of your hair than all the wealth of the world. If any one had left me the largest fortune you could imagine, what would it avail me without you? Ah, Mark, you should know me better!"

"I wish to Heaven it was so! I wish I stood before you a penniless beggar. It is not that. I am a rich man, now, Nellie, and my riches are as ashes to me."

"Why, Mark?" I asked.

Oh, why did he not love me with the frank, caressing love of old? My heart hungered and thirsted for it.

"I am a coward," he said, "Oh, Nellie, loyal, sweet, true Nellie, can you not guess?"

"I can guess nothing," I replied piteously. "Tell me what is wrong, Mark?"

I began to see that something was terribly amiss, but my faith in him was still unshaken.

"Tell me, Mark. No matter what it may be, you can trust me. You know there is no end to my love. If you are in any trouble or distress, I shall only love you the more. You have come back to me, darling, and your sorrows, as are your pleasures, are mine. Perhaps I can help you—the mouse helped the lion once. I have a little money; my money, my love, my life are all yours."

The dark handsome face grew paler, the firm lips trembled; I saw great drops on the broad forehead, I saw mortal agony in the dark eyes.

"Mark," I cried piteously, "there is something wrong!"

"Yes," he replied lowly; "there is, as you say, something wrong."

"You will tell me what it is? I asked."

"I must; but when I do so you will hate me. You will hate me, and send me from your presence, never to see you again."

All the love, the generosity, the passion of my heart was roused. I hate him! Rather could the sun bring darkness!

"I could never hate you, Mark, my dear love, never even dislike you. You do not know me; you have forgotten in all these years how I love you. I gave you my love forever and forever; I cannot take it away. Mine was never 'love for a day,' Mark; it was 'forever.' I love you so well and so truly that nothing can part us. If these hands I kiss now had committed the most grievous crimes, I would kiss them still. You could never kill my love, Mark. I would go with you into exile; I would stand by your side on the scaffold and suffer for you."

"Hush Nellie!" he said laying his hand on my lips. "Every word you say is as a sword in my heart."

"But it is true, Mark—it is all true. I could not love you more if I tried."

"I believe it," he said. "My beautiful Nellie! My true Nellie! Oh, how can I ask pardon of Heaven?" He knelt by my side and drew my head upon his breast, and smoothed the ripples of my hair with the old familiar gesture I had loved so well. "Poor Nellie! True, loving Nellie! How can Heaven pardon me?"

I had ceased to weep, ceased to wonder. Mark had come back to me, but there was something wrong. I felt that he was hushing me to rest in his arms for a few minutes before he told me, and I was content. What Mark did was best always.

"Nellie," he said at last—and his voice trembled with emotion—"seeing how well you love me, I could almost wish that you were dying now. If the light of the sun could but strike us both dead! You tremble, Nellie. Love, be still; rest for one moment; I will tell you all then."

And I clung the more closely to him. Should ruin, sorrow, death come, what mattered it while those arms sheltered me? A mother soothing her child in the delirium of fever could not have been more tender than Mark was in that hour to me.

"You will hate me, Nellie, when you hear all; you will send me from you, and I shall never see you again."

"Does it look like it, love?" I whispered. "There is little fear of that."

Still he rocked me in his arms, calling—"Nellie, Nellie, each moment makes it worse, makes it harder! Ah, Nellie, why have you been so true to me?"

"Why?" I replied, with a glad little laugh. "I could not help it; I was true to you naturally. I turned to you, Mark, as the sun-flower turns to the sun."

"Oh, my darling, my beautiful love," he said; "you are so much better than I am! You are noble and loyal; I am—oh, Heaven, that I should have to say the words of myself—I am a coward and a renegade."

"You shall not say such things of yourself!" I cried. "You are Mark Upton; and that, in my eyes, means all that is most noble."

"Hush, Nellie!" There was pain in his face, anguish in his eyes. "Nellie, I must tell you. Oh, my dear, do not look at me with those loving eyes. Would that I had died before this! My arms must not hold you more, Nellie. My dear, lost love, I am married! Heaven help me! I was married more than a year ago!"

CHAPTER X.

Mark's words had cleft the sweet spring air like a sharp arrow with a poisoned barb; they had pierced the heart that loved him, and I fell upon the grass like one dead. My heart was pierced, my whole soul crushed. There I lay in the first smart of my anguish.

For a few minutes all was darkness and oblivion; and then Mark tried to raise me.

"I have killed you, Nellie," he said—"I have killed you!"

"No," I answered, raising my white miserable face to his; "it is worse than that. Do not touch me. Leave me."

"I knew—I knew!" he said. "Oh, Nellie, I would have died to save you this!"

A sudden overwhelming sense of scorn for him, of loathing for myself, a hot, fierce passion of defiance and rebellion, seized me. I rose to my feet; new life and new strength came to me, my whole frame vibrated with passion.

"You are what?" I cried. "Say it to me again—let me be sure that I have heard aright. You are what?"

"I am married, Nellie."

"Married! And you have been wicked enough, coward enough, to let me say all that I have said! You have been mean enough to let me pour out my heart, to let me lavish my love on you! How could you? Why did you not tell me the truth the first moment you saw me? How dare you take me in your arms and kiss me when you knew all the time that you belonged to some one else?"

"Forgive me, Nellie. I can never forgive myself. I had no time to think," he said humbly.

"I shall never respect myself again!" I cried. "And I thought that Heaven had sent you in answer to my longing and my prayers. Give me back my words of welcome; give me back my kisses. They were for a true lover, not for you. Give me back my love. Believe me, before Heaven, had I known, had I guessed or thought that you were married, not one such word should have crossed my lips!"

"I know," he said humbly.

"You are married. Oh, I cannot believe it! You are trying me. You want to see if my love be true; you are testing my faith. You cannot be married; you could not marry any one but me!"

"Alas, Nellie, it is true!" he cried.

"True!" I flung up my arms in despair. Mark had deceived me; Mark was untrue to me; Mark my lover, my hero, was false.

Could any shame, any degradation equal mine? I had flung my arms round his neck, I had kissed him, I had called him by every loving name that one could give to another, and he was married! His love, his caresses, belonged to some other woman, not to me. The beauty of his dark face, the memory of his love, seemed to creep into my heart again and set it on fire. Mad, passionate jealousy seized me.

"Whom have you married?" I cried. "I shall kill her if I see her! She shall not live who has stolen my love from me!"

"She did not know, Nellie," he said, speaking always in the same low voice. "She knew nothing of you. It was all my fault, dear."

Quickly as it had come, the flame of jealousy died away. The light had gone from the skies, the beauty from the glad green earth; I was alone with my desolation and my sorrow. The greatness of my loss came home to me. Mark was living and well; he was here in my sight; but we were parted forever. No grave dug by human hands could be so deep as the one that lay between us. He was there, but no longer mine. I must love him and caress him no more. I had mourned for him as absent, I had wept for him as dead; but I never thought of him as caring for any one else in the wide world—he had been so entirely my own.

"Nellie," he said in a low voice, "do you know that I feel like a murderer? I have blighted the sweetest life; I have killed the truest love; I have betrayed the most loyal faith ever placed in man. Oh, love, your eyes look like those of a wounded dove, and I may not comfort you any more!"

"No, never again in this world, Mark. No comfort no consolation can come from you to me; and I—oh, I loved you so dearly! Since that May morning when we met beside the lilac trees, my heart has been full of you. It has held nothing else. When I thought you dead, I consecrated my life in loving memory of you. I could have taken my love into the spirit-world pure, unchanged, and untouched; while you—you are married. It is enough to make the angels weep! And now I have kissed you and poured out my love to you who are no longer free!"

The next thing I heard was the terrible sound of my own hysterical laughter breaking amid the trees. Such wild horrible laughter it was. I could not help it; I tried in vain to stop it.

"A married man!" I cried, over and over again. "A married man!" And I believed him to be my true lover Mark.

He came to me. He would not heed my passionate cries that he should leave me alone that he should not touch me. He raised me from the ground; he removed the leaves and grass from my hair; he took my hands and held them in his.

"Nellie," he said, "try to listen to me my dear. You will kill yourself if you give way like this."

Was it any use to say that I hoped I should, of any use to struggle to free my hands from his clasp? Oh, my bruised, beating, wounded heart, it was not!

"Try, my darling, try, Nellie, for the sake of old times, to listen to me," he pleaded.

"You must not call me 'darling,'" I cried, bitter jealousy flaming in my heart again; "you have another darling now. You have some one else to love and caress and call your own."

And in some vague way I knew by the groan that came from his lips that I was still his darling, and that he did not love this other, let her be who she might. The knowledge seemed to afford me some little consolation. But it was only for one minute. Then common sense said, What was the love of a married man to me?

TO BE CONTINUED.

IT SETTLED HIM.

For Without a High Hat of What Use Is a Walking Delegate.

A Dervish journeyed forth to teach mankind the usefulness of riches, says Truth. He was scantily clothed in the filthiest of rags; his head was bare and on his feet were fragments of sandals. About his neck hung a leathern scrip with a handful of dates.

On the edge of the desert he met a Walking Delegate who was on his way to Mecca to order a strike among the pilgrims—a non-union hadji having been permitted to kiss the holy Kaaba.

"Hello, old fellow!" said the Delegate. "Where do you buy your garments? You look like a locked out tramp."

"I am dressed," answered the Dervish, "as befit my vocation, and am in all respects equipped for any emergency. No blight of fortune can cast me down or impede my mission."

"So?" replied the Delegate. "Suppose I were to confiscate that bag of food?"

"I have been inured to hunger from my youth up and seldom is the thought of food uppermost in my mind. Besides it is the Fast of Ramadan and it is not lawful to eat."

"The stones of the desert are sharp; what if we take away your sandals?"

"Behold!" and the Dervish uncovered a foot and exhibited a sole as tough and leathery as that of a camel.

"But suppose I were to strip those rags from your back?"

"Sun and simoon have scorched my back for seventy years and it matters little whether it be covered or not. And now," continued the Dervish, "shut your bread-winner and let me talk. You think your equipment perfect, but you are not rigged for a long-distance race. A little accident by the way will rattle you. See me prove it!"

And, grasping his staff, he executed a flourish and with one swift, clean, horizontal stroke, he hit the Delegate's plug hat in the middle and knocked it a shapeless thing upon the sand. With a look of anguish the Delegate picked up the wreck. The top was gone, the sides were caved in and the brim was cut across and hung dangling from the crown.

"There!" said the Dervish, "your power is gone from you, for what is a Walking Delegate without a plug hat? Oh, Bismillah! Oh, Marshallah: Oh, Rata! Yah!" and, brandishing his staff, he drove the Delegate forth! and as the burning Syrian sun rose higher in the sky, their vanishing forms passed over the line of the horizon, the Delegate ahead, with the Dervish a good second about two jumps behind.

Too Venomous.

A man very much excited burst in M. Gibier's laboratory, over in New Jersey, the other day.

"Oh, doctor," he cried, "I have been bitten!"

"By a dog?" asked Gibier.

"No; worse than that."

"By a cat?"

"A kind of cat. But oh, doctor, can you cure me?"

"It was a wolf, then?"

"Not a wolf, but much worse. It was my mother-in-law!"

"In that case," said Gibier, turning to his work, "nothing can be done."

YOUNG FOLKS' CORNER.

INTERESTING READING FOR THE YOUNG.

Hunting the Kangaroo—How Robbie Rode After His Father—Some Amusing Experiments—What He Would Say—Little Harold.

Hunting the Kangaroo.

The term "kangaroo" which is used generally in most of the world to describe any animal that has a pouch for carrying its young, and a long tail, and that proceeds by jumping on its hind legs, is of limited application in Australia.

The kangaroo is differentiated by many exact particulars from his cousins, the "wallaroo," the "wallaby," and the "paddymelon," all of which strangely named animals appear to the uninitiated only as smaller individuals of the kangaroo's immediate family.

Kangaroos are found in all sorts of country—in the open wood, on the plains, in the dense "scrub," and in rocky ravines. They are variously hunted—on horseback, with or without dogs, and by stalking, either with rifle or shotgun.

A kangaroo hunt on horseback is an exciting and often dangerous pastime. In timber, where it usually takes place, it is particularly hazardous, owing to fallen logs and low-set branches, which often sweep the incautious hunter over his horse's tail and drop him in an undignified position on the ground behind.

Firearms are not employed in this pursuit, and when the game is cornerd it is killed by a blow from the butt end of a heavy riding whip or from a stirrup, which is unshipped from the saddle for the purpose. The dogs used in the chase are a rough breed of large greyhounds, which have not only the strength necessary to pursue a flying kangaroo for miles, but also to attack him when brought to bay.

In addition to being timid and inoffensive by nature, the kangaroo is poorly provided with offensive weapons. His powers of biting are not formidable, and his forepaws are so weak as to seem almost rudimentary members of little use. His hind legs are muscular and strong, but are apparently of use only to assist flight from his enemies.

In these hind legs is found, however, a most formidable weapon in the shape of a long claw, as hard as steel and sharp as a chisel—as terrible to dogs as the scythe chariots of the ancients were to their enemies.

He fights pluckily when cornered, and if he can find a stream or water hole in which to await his foes, will station himself waist-deep in it, and, pushing the dogs under one by one as they swim out to attack him, either drown them outright or compel them to retire for want of breath.

Against human enemies, armed only with clubs or stirrup irons, the kangaroo often shows himself a clever boxer, warding off blows very dexterously with his fore paws, and now and then making forward bounds, with rapid play of his dangerous hind feet, which are difficult to avoid.

The common opinion that kangaroos use their strong, muscular tails as a means of propulsion in their flying leaps, which often cover from 20ft. to 30ft. each, is at once seen to be fallacious by any one who joins in a kangaroo hunt.

When sitting erect in attitude of observation, the tail is used as an important factor in the support of the body, and when the animal is feeding (at which times it moves about in a lazy, crawling gait upon all four of its feet), it drags limply over the earth.

In running, however, it is curved gracefully upward to clear the ground, and never once touches it during the kangaroo's flight, being seen to fulfil the office of a balancing pole, and preserving the animal's equilibrium by shifting positions according to the nature of the ground.

So important is the kangaroo's tail in his rapid progress that experienced hunters with guns are accustomed to fire at the point where this appendage joins the body—when, the tail being disabled for its office of balancing, the animal is as effectually stopped as if hamstrung. Hit elsewhere, except with a rifle bullet, or at point-blank range, the kangaroo is pretty likely to get off.

When the early settlers entered Australia they found the country swarming with the marsupial tribes, and as there was not enough pasturage for sheep and kangaroos, a war of extermination was waged against the latter. They were slaughtered by millions, until, at the present day, a kangaroo is, in most districts, as scarce as the buffalo in America.

Now that kangaroo leather is a valuable commodity, the settlers are mourning their recklessness, and taking means to preserve the animal from extinction.

How Robbie Rode After His Father.

Robbie's father was going to the city, and going on horseback, too. Robbie wanted to go very much, but it was a long way. Robbie was very little, so he must stay at home with mother. He watched his father ride away, and he did not cry, as everybody expected he would. O, no, for a fine plan had crept into his small head.

After his father was out of sight, Robbie looked around until he found his stick horse. He didn't look for his hat, for he didn't like to wear it. He only kept it on because mother said, if he did not, he must wear a bonnet.

So, in his red dress, Robbie went trotting off through the front gate. Nobody was on watch just then, and Master Rob got well out of sight before any one missed him.

He had made up his mind that he would go with father, and expected every moment to catch up with him.

The stick-horse trotted bravely along the muddy road. Father's horse had gone through the mud. Robbie could see the tracks of the hoofs, so he would not turn aside either, but splashed along through every mud-hole.

At last the stick-horse did not trot so merrily. He fell into a walk, for Robbie's shoes were so heavy with mud he could scarcely drag them out of each miry place. His hands were very red and cold, too. Surely he would soon find father, so he trudged along the muddy road. At last he did see a man and on horseback, too. But he was coming toward Robie. When at last he came up to the stick-horse and its tired rider he stopped.

"Where are you going?" he asked of Robbie.

"I'm going after father, and he's gone to Richmond," said Robbie.

"Well, I wouldn't go any farther today," said the man. "You get up here in front of me and we'll have a fine ride home."

At first Robbie did not want to turn back, but the kind neighbor persuaded him, and took him, muddy shoes, stick-horse, and all safely home.

Whether mother had missed Robbie before he got back, I don't know. But I do know she was glad the stick-horse had not carried its little rider on any longer journeys.

Robbie was washed and kissed and petted, but he never rode after father again.—Our Little Ones.

Some Amusing Experiments.

TO SWEEP A CENT OUT OF THE HAND.

This seems a very easy trick, but if done fairly, it is really difficult.

Open the hand naturally and place the cent on the palm of the hand, then ask some one to brush it out with a whisk-broom.

After repeated efforts, it will probably be suspected that the cent is fastened in your hand in some way. In order to prove that it is not, let the sweeper place it on his own palm, and he will find that it remains as immovable there as when he tried to sweep it from the hand of the other person.

A few persons have fat palms. The cent may easily be swept off from such palms, but they are not common.

TO PICK UP AN APPLE WITH A SPOON.

It requires not a little patience to accomplish this trick. Place a large, round apple, stem up, on a smooth floor; then try to take it up with a spoon. The very effort of trying to get the spoon under the apple starts it rolling, to the amusement of the onlookers. If done quickly enough, the apple can be taken up while in motion; but the proper way is to wait until it ceases to roll, and then carefully push the spoon far enough under the apple to get the center of gravity over the spoon, when there is no difficulty in picking it up.

TO CUT AN APPLE WITHOUT BREAKING THE SKIN.

Thread a needle with strong thread. Insert the needle just under the skin of the apple, take a stitch, and carefully draw the needle and thread through to within six or seven inches of the end. Then insert the needle again, this time in the exact hole it was withdrawn from.

Continue the stitches in this manner around the apple, withdrawing the needle the last time through the first hole made. The thread is entirely around the apple now, concealed by its skin. Take a firm hold of each end of the thread and, holding both of the ends well together, to prevent tearing the skin, pull gently.

The thread cuts its way slowly through the apple until it is in two pieces, when the thread is withdrawn through the tiny hole made by the needle.

If this trick is done carefully enough, the breaks in the skin will not be discernible on the closest inspection. Indeed, the only convincing proof that the apple has been cut in half, will be to pare a narrow strip of skin where the needle and thread have traveled, when the apple will fall apart.

Papa Ate It All.

Coming home to dinner and learning that his wife was out making calls, the head of the house notified the servant he would have his dinner at once and alone, presuming that his small boy, aged 4, would dine with his mother. The small boy had a different plan, and, acting on it, climbed up into his high chair and waited to be served. The father supposing that the young man was simply keeping him company, gave him nothing to eat. With a puzzled expression on his face the boy saw the meal disappear—soup, meat, and vegetables—his own plate all the while empty. As the servant brought in the desert the boy's anxiety greatly increased, although he said nothing. But when the last morsel of cherry tart had gone out of sight the little chap broke down completely. Throwing himself back in his chair, he cried to the servant. "Oh, Mary, Mary, papa has eaten the whole business!"—New York Times.

Little Harold.

Harold had a bad habit of crying at bedtime, and saying he didn't want to go to bed.

One afternoon, about four weeks before Christmas, his Aunt Lizzie came into the room where Harold was playing, and told him she had just been hearing a letter from Santa Claus read, and in the letter Santa Claus said that every night about six o'clock he heard some little boy crying and making a great disturbance because he didn't want to go to bed, and he was going to try and find out who the little boy was, because he shouldn't bring any presents to such a child as that.

Harold hung down his head a minute and then said, "Aunt Lizzie, you can tell Santa Claus I was that boy, but tell him I am not going to cry any more."

He kept his word, and I know that on Christmas morning he found a stockingful of presents by his crib.—Youth's Companion.

What He Would Say.

Dick is a sunshiny boy; always good-natured and full of fun, and nearly always ready to do his share of helping; but he doesn't like his nightly task of getting kindling for the day's fires, and is pretty sure to shirk it when he can. One day, before Christmas, Aunt Nell was lecturing him a little.

"St. Nicholas doesn't like lazy boys," said she. "What would you say if he should put a stick in your stocking?"

Dick's brown eyes twinkled. "I'd say, 'Hello! here's a piece of kindling-wood for Aunt Nell!'" he laughed.

Aunt Nell laughed, too; how could she help it? And Dick didn't get a stick in his stocking; but he found a bright, new hatchet, sharp enough to cut kindlings with, hanging up beside it.—Youth's Companion.

SCIENCE AND PROGRESS.

MATTERS OF INTEREST AND INSTRUCTION TO ALL.

Dynamite Plowing—Curious Inventions—Interplanetary Signaling New Era in Gun Balls—The Inventor.

DYNAMITE PLOWING.

Tearing Up the Subsoil With High Grade Explosives.

Subsoiling with dynamite is the latest advance in scientific agriculture. D. U. Sloan of Atlanta has invented a method by which the hard ground may be broken up to a depth of two or three feet at a cost of $25 an acre. This work, he claims, is equal to the process of "trenching" used by market gardeners to loosen the earth to a depth of two or three feet. Ground prepared in this way will absorb a great deal of water and sustain vegetation luxuriantly through a protracted drought. It will also receive and assimilate several times the quantities of fertilizers taken by the soil plowed to the usual depth, and, enriched to its full capacity will sustain much heavier crops. It is possible in this way to make five bales of cotton or 250 bushels of corn to the acre. This has been demonstrated by the actual achievement of these results.

The great trouble heretofore has been the enormous expense of trenching ground. As done by market gardeners, the work costs about $1,600 an acre; consequently but small patches are so treated. Mr. Sloan proposes to do the same work for $25 an acre, and so make intensive farming so economical that it will become the fashion, and the old surface scratching will be discarded.

His plan, in brief, is to drill holes two to three feet deep and five feet apart making 1,600 to the acre. In each he puts an explosive, and, after tamping, sets off the charge. When properly arranged, the explosive will disturb the surface of the ground very little, but will crack and pulverize it in every direction to a distance of two or three feet, according to the depth and quantity of the explosive used.

On a recent afternoon Charles L. Patterson and J. C. Thurman, representing the Refauno Chemical Company, arranged explosives in twenty-eight holes dug in Mr. Sloan's garden, in the rear of his residence, at No. 15 East Mitchell street. The plat was 25x40 feet, and the holes were two feet deep. In each was one-fourth of a small-sized dynamite cartridge with about an ounce of Judson powder. Attached to an electric fuse, these cartridges, planted two feet deep, were exploded by means of a wire communicating with a battery. There was a dull, rumbling, smothered roar, and the whole surface of the ground, appeared to be lifted two or three feet, while a few small clouds sailed above the housetops.

When the smoke cleared away it was found that the ground was broken to the depth of thirty inches at the points of explosion, and broken sideways for a part of the distance between the holes. The plat was estimated one-fortieth of an acre, and the cost of the explosions in twenty-eight holes was 75 cents, including two hours labor in drilling the holes.

Mr. Patterson said it was only a question of experiment to see just how much powder to use, and at what depth, two feet or more, to place it to make it pulverize all the ground between the holes. He offers to take contracts and to break and pulverize the ground two feet deep for $25 an acre. Mr. Sloan has filed a caveat for a patent, and Mr. Pat Calhoun, who is now in Washington, will look after the patenting of the invention.

New Era in Gun Balls.

Experiments are in progress at the United States Arsenal in Frankford which have for their ultimate object the decision of the important question of how to arm the troops of the United States army so as to bring them fully up to the latest requirements of modern warfare. This subject is now under inquiry by a Board of Officers of the army, of which Col. Robert Hall is President, and Major George W. McKee, commanding officer at the Frankford arsenal, is a member.

The board is investigating the serviceability, reliability of action and general worth of all the various firearms recently invented in England, France and Germany, as well as in this country, and proposes to make an exhaustive study of all the various phrases of the subject, including explosives and projectiles, before making a report to the War Department.

In the meantime, officers of the United States army contend that this nation is not behind any other civilized government in this respect, as all nations have reached no further than an experimental stage. The United States is fully abreast, if not in the lead, of the others in the matter of arming men for service in the field.

BALLS OF GERMAN SILVER.

It is fully recognized by army experts that the ordinary black gunpowder made solely from charcoal, sulphur and saltpetre will eventually give way to some of the newly invented smokeless powders, and that the leaden bullet will be replaced by some harder and more penetrating metal. Experiments are now being made in the manufacture of cartridges, and it appears to be pretty well settled that German silver will be the metal adopted for the small arm projectile of the future. It is the purest of all substances yet proposed for this purpose, is less effected by the heat of the arm in reloading, and does not deteriorate to any great extent by contact with the atmosphere.

Among the principal questions to determine is whether or not the bullet of the cartridges hall be lubricated. So far the experiments at the arsenal have been in favor of lubrication. The method of lubrication now being experimented with is as follows:

JAPAN WAX AS A LUBRICATOR.

A series of four shallow countersunken rings, or channels, about one-quarter of an inch apart and one-eighth of an inch wide each, are turned in the bullets near its base. These channels are filled with Japan wax, which the heat from the powder, when fired, causes to melt sufficiently to lubricate the rifled grooves of the piece. This is called the "cannelure" process.

Of the smokeless powders so far used the best results have been obtained from the Wetteren, and recently a thirty-calibre bullet, fired at 500 yards, pierced its way through nineteen one-inch pine boards placed one inch apart.

Curious Inventions.

The history of growth and inventions are subjects in which we are all interested.

The stylographic pen brought in £40,000 a year; the Indian rubber tips to pencils £20,000; metal plates for protecting the soles and heels of boots and shoes brought in £250,000 in all; the roller skates £200,000.

A clergyman realized £400 a week by the invention of a toy; another toy, the return ball, brought in an income of £10,000; the "Dancing Jim Crow," £15,000 a year. The inventor of a copper cap for children's boots was able to leave his heirs £400,000, while Singer, of sewing-machine fame, left at his death nearly £3,000,000.

There are other and wonderful things which people have thought it worth while to patent, strong in hope of making a big fortune in the near future, only to find in so many cases that their inventions were impracticable and very often perfectly ridiculous.

Among such may be mentioned a child's bib with a trough attached, the whole formed of some waterproof material; a pocket which cannot be picked; a muff and boa filled with air, to save you from a watery grave; cuffs and collars made of steel, painted or enamelled white; trousers with double legs—on the outer legs getting soiled or bespattered you tuck them up, and behold! a clean pair. This arrangement would be suitable, I should say, only when worn with an overcoat.

Under the head of umbrellas and walking sticks we find some marvelous inventions. One is an umbrella which, in some wonderful way, is converted into a walking-stick, and so formed that a spear can be attached, when it is used as a weapon of offense and defence. I recommend it to elderly ladies in the dog days, as a protection against the sun and mad dogs. The next invention is a rain-absorber, to prevent rain from running down from hats and umbrellas.

The absorber is formed of either uncovered sponges or of sponges covered by a fabric. We are told that the absorber can be readily removed from the article, squeezed and replaced. We come next to an article which the inventor has named—take a long breath and shut your eyes—the "Rhabdoskidophorus." This is an umbrella which can be taken apart; the silk and ribs being hidden within the stick; it is thus transformed into a stout walking-stick.—Strand Magazine.

Interplanetary Signaling.

At its most favorable oppositions, Mars is still 42,000,000 miles from us, or a hundred and sixty times farther than the moon; while the diameter of its disk is only 25". According to Schiaparelli, the smallest objects visible on its surface under the most favorable circumstances—such as a bright spot on the dark ground, or a dark spot on a bright ground—must have a diameter equal to a fiftieth part of that of the planet, or about eighty-five miles. This minimum can, it is true, be reduced by using large objectives permitting stronger magnifying; but even then it is certain that luminous signals, for example, visible from the earth on Mars, must have enormous dimensions.

The inhabitants of Mars, if more advanced in astronomical knowledge than we, as one of our imaginative astronomers supposes they are, would have, in case they should desire to start an exchange of telegraphic communications with their earthly neighbors to give their signals diameters of miles in every direction. But would they think of it? The reciprocal question to this is the one that puzzles me. The earth, during all the oppositions of Mars, is in conjunction to it. It is lost in the rays of the sun, and invisible from Mars, unless it is in transit over the sun's disk. Then it is a little black, round spot, on which we have every reason to suppose the Martian astronomers will be able to distinguish nothing. The earth will be better situated at the quadratures, but also at a much greater distance.—The Popular Science Monthly.

The Inventor.

The true inventor needs more than the generality of readers will imagine to produce in this rapid age anything of value to his fellow men. He must possess genius—not the genius of an artisan, but of the artist—the power to create, not to elaborate. He must be patient, considering every detail relating to his discovery, not rushing into print and patent office with half-digested ideas that require subsequent supervision of trained experts to reduce to practical shape. He must have sufficient means to support himself and family—if he possess one—and to produce practical evidence of his discoveries in order to illustrate to the capitalist or promoter their advantages. He must be forbearing under rebuff, indifference or ignorance on the part of those whom he seeks to enlist in his support.—Electricity.

Scientific Dots

Pittsburg now talks to Philadelphia by telephone.

Forty-eight different languages are said to be spoken in Mexico.

The newest remedy for sickness is the homœpathic one of drinking sea water.

A lamp which combines the principles of the incandescent and the arc has been invented.

Caves have been discovered in Tasmania which are perfectly lighted by myriads of glow-worms. One of the caves is about four miles long.

A scientific journal states that a little sugar put on the hands with soap will greatly increase its lather and cleansing power, and will remove dirt, chemical stains, etc.

The largest known animal to exist in the world at the present time is the rorqual, which averages 100 feet in length; the smallest is the monad, which is only 1-12,000 of an inch in length.

Consul Heath says that many of the houses in Cantania are built of the lava which poured forth from Mount Etna is great streams on the neighboring clay beds. This mixture of clay and lava is now mixed and used to great advantage in building.

Polk County Journal.

CROOKSTON, MINN

NEW HALPSHIRE'S war Governer, Nathaniel S. Berry, of Bristol, is now 96 years old, but he walks about the villige every day when the wheather is fine, and has the unimpaired use of all his faculties.

SINCE Boulanger's death in exile his bronze busts have been banished from the mantlepieces of his quondam admirers, and no less than one hundred and thirty of these images have been disposed of at pawnshops.

MR. PETER JACKSON, of Australia, knocked out two ambitious pugilists at Chicago the other night in the presence of 4,000 representative citizens of that metropolis. Mr. Jackson is the only living slugger of any prominence who does not rely solely upon his jaw for fistic fame.

IT will astonish a good many people to be told that the proper way to pronounce the title of the khedive of Egypt is khed-ee-vee, with the accent on the first syllable. It has never made much difference what you called them, they've been duffers of the first water ever since they started into ruling business.

COLONEL E. D. BAKER, who fell early in the struggle for the Union while leading a desperate charge at Ball's Bluff, sleeps in a neglected and almost unmarked grave in Lone Mountain Cemetary, San Francisco. It is now proposed to remove the remains to Golden Gate Park and erect a suitable monument.

DON EMILIO CASTELAR, ex-President of the Spanish Cortes, is now engaged in Paris on important books. The first is a monograph on Columbus, to be issued on the occasion of the impending celebration of the discovery of America; the second will be a work on the principal orators of Spain, to be published in New York; the third a description of the most beautiful cathedrals in the world.

THE Countess of Clancarty, formerly known as Belle Bilton, the concert hall singer, has given birth to boy-twins. It is cabled that the friends of the Countess believe the advent of the twins will bring about the social recognition of the mother which she so longs for. Napoleon, and not English society, formulated the maxim, "The greatest woman is the one who has the most children." Still, the British Matron may now be more cordial to her.

SOME time ago O. A. Grimm of Moscow, the distinguished ichtoyologist, suggested as an article of food for the famishing peasants the Hamaza, a nutritious sort of anchovy, which abounds in the Black Sea. One firm of Niflis now is the only one to utilize Hamaza, and send it to Constantinople at great profit. A Commission has been appointed by the Society of the Red Cross to inquire into the methods of catching and drying the Hamaza, and if it is considered available as an article of food steps will promptly taken to adopt the suggestions of M. Grimm.

THE "theatrephone" is the latest improvement in the line of telephonic inventions. It has been tested recently in London, and is said to have worked satisfactorily. It is able to supply at private houses the music of the opera or the active dialogue of any farce or comedy on the London stage. All the large hotels propose to place several of these wonderful phones in the public rooms, where by dropping a shilling in the slot one may enjoy ten minutes of the opera or theatre. In Paris this instrument has already about one thousand subcribers.

CAROLINE VON BEETHOVEN, the last bearer of the composer's name, died a few days ago in Vienna. She was 84 years old and was the widow of Ludwig's nephew Charles, who caused the great Beethoven much trouble during his lifetime. After his wife had borne him three daughters he deserted her and came to this country, where all trace of him was soon lost. Caroline Von Beethoven lived in straightened circumstances in Vienna, supported by her daughters, who are now married, and the contributions of two musicians, who paid her money yearly upon the anniversary of the great composer's death.

A PARAGRAPH is in circulation to the effect that in Norway a girl must be able to make bread before she may aspire to marriage. If this item is the forerunner of legislation on this subject in America, some remarks on the subject are loudly called for right now. Those who eat to live as well as those who live to eat are aware that there are two kinds of bread—good and bad. Let the statute clearly provide which of the two is to be required, and let the husband fit his nutrition. Criminals might be sentenced to marry the bad breadmakers as a refined substitute for the death penalty.

THE NORTHWEST.

A Summary of the Important Events of the Week in the Northwestern States.

Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, North and South Dakota News in a Nutshell.

MINNESOTA.

Scarlet fever has broken out at the Houston county poorhouse, three miles west of Hokah. The place is quarantined.

The Granite Falls council fixed the license at $500 and $750. Three saloons must pay a higher rate.

The Pelican Rapids train was thrown from the track at Fergus Falls by a broken rail. The damage was not as great as the recent one when four cars were damaged.

The man Simple, who so mysteriously disappeared from Dundas, some time ago, returned as mysteriously as he went. Nothing can be obtained from him.

Gluck & Co., liquor dealers of Minneapolis, have levied on the saloon and fixtures of John Carlson, of St. Cloud. Carlson's brother disputes their right to levy as he has a chattel mortgage on the same.

Mrs. M. E. Sibley, wife of the Mankato postmaster during Lincoln's administration, died the other day. Death resulted from a surgical operation performed several months ago.

Fire broke out in the residence of J. H. Rhodes in Little Falls and was extinguished with difficulty. The household goods were badly damaged by would-be rescuers. The damage was several hundred dollars.

Herman Pohlman, indicted for manslaughter in the first degree for the killing of Fred Tang of Taylor's Falls, was sentenced at Center City by Judge F. M. Crosby to five years in state prison.

Michael Glynn, C. Steensburg and Thos. Kearns are still being examined by Justice Utley at Montevideo, on the charge of rape. It is believed the evidence is insufficient to hold the prisoners.

At a meeting of the directors of the German National Bank, held at Little Falls, John Wetzel, an old time citizen and druggist of that place, was elected cashier. The new banking firm starts out with flattering prospects.

Livengood & Swearinge's big steam grist mill was burned at Fairmont, together with $2,000 worth of flour. Loss, $15,000; insurance, $2,000. The cause of the fire is unknown. The mill will be immediately rebuilt on a larger scale.

The jury in the case of Herrick vs. the city of Moorhead for $15,000 damages, claimed to result from a defective street, brought in a verdict for the plaintive of $800. The city attorney has taken a stay of sixty days.

Joe Smith of Lake City, and Patsy Harrington of St. Paul will fight to a finish with the lightest gloves allowed by law, at Plum City, Wis., on Feb. 6 for a purse of $500. Smith is being trained by Tim McCarthy of St. Paul, with quarters at Hotel Lyon.

The St. Louis depot at Mankato, with all the contents, including books, etc., went up in smoke the other morning. Two loaded cars standing on the sidetrack, were also burned. The fire was not discovered until too late to save anything. The cause is unknown.

The first annual meeting of the Minnesota Valley Mutual Live Stock Insurance company was held at the home office of the company in Le Sueur. There was a large attendance. A full board of directors were elected. All the old officers will be retained.

La grippe is still raging in and around Northfield, and the first death has occurred. The Cannon City correspondent reports nearly everybody in that vicinity as down with the disease, and says that Mr. A. Kolly has died of it. At Medford and Nerstrand a number of people are also seriously ill.

Mr. L. P. Hunt, editor and manager of the Free Press and superintendent of the world's fair commission of Minnesota, is making another tour of the state in his effort to raise the $100,000 fund, and writes that he is highly encouraged with what he sees and hears, and has not the least doubt but that the amount will be forthcoming in due season.

C. D. Wright of Fergus Falls who was appointed to receive aid for the Russian sufferers, has received nearly $700 and it has all come in sums of $5 or less, the larger portion in sums of less than $1. Many townships have not been heard from, but it is thought that the contribution of Otter Tail county will reach $1,000. The Scandinavians have contributed nearly all of it, outside of the city.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Agnes Baldwin, who butchered Jack Kinney July 10, 1890, at Devils Lake, was arraigned for her second trial. She pleaded guilty to manslaugter, and will receive a sentence of seven years. She has been in jail over a year and a half.

The new Great Northern passenger station was formerly opened at Grand Forks. The building is 56 by 146 feet, built of stone, two stories, surmounted by a high tower with a clock. The station is the finest on the line of the Great Northern.

The new Lutheran college, opened at Grand Forks, is proving a success far beyond the anticipations of the projectors. One hundred new students were enrolled, and many more made application. The large new buildings erected prove far too small.

Seven cases of diphtheria, some of them fatal, exist at Inkster in one house. Much other disease also prevails. Influenza is the chief trouble, caused by the severe cold weather. Doctors Logan and Wheelock of Grand Forks and Dr. Lundy of Inkster are all kept busy.

The report that Rev. R. J. Crum of Larimore is to be tried for having illegal relations with the other sex is incorrect. The fact is that Crum divorced his wife and married another woman, both acts being contrary to church law. It is on this charge that he will be tried.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

The state board of agriculture met recently for the election of officers and the location of the state fair for 1892. The present officers were re-elected. Sioux Falls was selected as the place for the fair.

The prominent lumbermen of the Black Hills met in secret session there and organized a trust, fixing and controlling the price of lumber throughout the Hills for the year.

Walt Hoffman, Alex Reneck and Smythe were sentenced at Elk Point to pay a fine of $150. They have appealed the case. They are now in jail. They were convicted of criminal assault on a lady.

A little girl while skating on the Missouri river, near Pierre, fell into an air hole and immediately went under the ice. The current of the river carried her down for 112 feet, when she came to the surface at another air hole and was miraculously rescued by a fellow with a grapling hook.

The South Dakota Real Estate Association held a session at Yankton for the purpose of adopting a plan for inducing immigration to this state. Every real estate dealer of any prominence in the state was in attendance and much good is expected to come out of their labors. A known edition of 1,000 pamphlets was ordered printed.

Another heir to a fortune in England has turned up in this vicinity. George Dixon, living on a farm near Pierre, is one of a family of eight who have fallen heir to an estate in England, said to be worth $15,000,000. Dixon is a quiet sort of a fellow, and don't have much to say about his good luck. He expects to leave for England shortly to take possession.

The jury which was impanneled at Deadwood to try the condemned murderer, Lehman as to his sanity, returned a verdict, finding him sane, which means that his execution, which had been deferred from the 8th in order to determine whether he was really insane or not, will take place later on. The date has not been definitely set yet.

WISCONSIN.

Aaron Kellogg, of Albany, passed away at the age of 88 years.

Miss Lizzie M. Weatherby, of Shullsburg, while attempting to get off a moving train, fell and broke her leg above the knee.

Bernard Malloy, of Fond du Lac, who was recently injured in a wreck in Chicago, died from the effects of his injuries.

Frank Clements was bound over to the circuit court at Shell Lake, charged with alleged assault upon 12-year-old Cora Gay.

The Garrity-Officer trial at Oshkosh for "ringing" horses, has again been postponed, this time until May 31.

The church people and Citizens' Association at Racine have commenced another war against the saloons.

The Leadmine Mining Company, near Shullsburg, has sold $120,000 worth of ore during the past four years.

County Treasurer Burdick at Janesville had to borrow $3,000 to meet the bills against the county. The county will be asked to appropriate an additional $5,000.

John Darby, charged with shooting Bernard Fish at East Superior, and who was arrested in Indiana and taken to Superior, has been released on $1,000 bail.

Hal Lummis, a graduate of Lawrence University at Appleton, has been made principal of an educational institution near Atlanta, Ga.

Four Indians at Green Bay smashed the glass door and windows of the saloon owned by F. P. Gross, because they were refused liquor.

A divorce was granted by the circuit court at Oshkosh to Mary Messersmith from her husband. The parties live in Menasha.

A hunting party killed a large grey wolf near Ripon. It had been playing havoc with the sheep in that vicinity.

Charles Peters, of Abrams, Oconto County was struck by a falling tree at Corliss, breaking his arm and right leg, and crushing him badly. His recovery is doubtful.

IOWA.

Dr. J. S. Roonn, of Calmar, is suffering intensely from blood poisoning in his hands, the result of attending an erysipelas patient.

A disastrous explosion occurred at Phillips's coal mine at Diamond. The boiler burst, fatally injuring the pit boss, John Ryan, and Fireman Harris.

Wm. McCarty, a brakeman, has sued the Burlington and Quincy road at Burlington for $30,000 damages for injuries received on that road.

Matthew Barr, a farmer aged 77, walked off a Burlington train near Independence while at full speed, lying 1½ hours in the storm before found. He died from his injuries.

Two tramps, just out of jail, knocked down and robbed a pensioner named McGingan on the public streets at Creston. They were immediately arrested and will be prosecuted when their victim gets sober.

M. V. Robinson, for the past 15 years one of the leading dry goods dealers of Mason City, assigned to C. H. McNider. The liabilities will reach $18,000; assets, $13,000. An effort will be made to adjust the matter and have the business continued.

The Retail Clerks' Union inaugurated a war on all shops open for business at Sioux City. A committee visited the barber, butcher and cigar shops and clothing houses. Jacob Feldenheimer, a leading clothier, refused to close, and was immediately arrested for violating Sunday laws. The union has resolved to close all shops.

Mrs. Louisa Grimsby, one of the few lady lawyers in the world who have succeeded in attaining wealth in the practice of their chosen profession, has been missing for several days from Keokuk. Everything possible has been done to locate the lady by her friends, assisted by the chief of police, which so far have proved fruitless.

Volcanoes and Petroleum.

It is frequently observed that some of the most destructive and fearful agencies of nature are at the same time lavish in their gifts for the benefit of man. A volcano seems to be the very personification of the power of devastation, and yet according to recent investigations it seems probable that we may owe our possession of the gem that has in every age dazzled the imagination more than any other, the diamond, to the productive energy of volcanoes.

But another and far more useful gift has of late been ascribed to the agency of volcanic action, and that is petroleum.

The origin of the vast supplies of mineral oil that exist in various parts of the world has always been more or less of a mystery to geologists, but Mr. O. C. D. Ross thinks he has demonstrated that this oil has been produced by the action of volcanic gases on limestone.

This process he believes, is still going on wherever solfataras and fumaroles, or mud and steam vents, exist, so that the supply of petroleum, although it may become exhausted in some places, is being kept up by fresh formation elsewhere.

Quick-Witted Engineer.

Among Mr. Grundy's "Pictures of the Past" is one of a small, irascible captain of the royal navy, who for some inexplicable reason had been made the manager of the Manchester and Leeds Railway, then newly opened for a few miles from Manchester.

This violent little naval officer issued a pamphlet of instructions to the men, a portion of which was devoted to engine-drivers. Thrilling stories of the result of want of caution abounded.

In those early days, wherever the character of the country favored it, the rails were laid, not upon wooden sleepers, as was soon found more desireable, but upon square, bedded blocks of stone.

The captain's story went that some careless workmen had left one of these blocks of stone in dangerous proximity to the line of rails. Now mark the advantage of the cautious engineer.

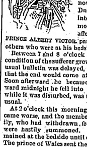
He saw the great block, and knew the danger, so "he put his engine as much as possible on the other rail, and just missed the stone, otherwise he must have hit it."

DEATH OF A PRINCE

Duke of Clarence, Heir Presumptive to England's Throne, Succumbs to an Attack of Pneumonia.

Great Sorrowing Throughout England Caused by the Sudden Death of One of the Royal Scions.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The duke of Clarence and Avondale, eldest son of the Prince of Wales and heir presumptive to the throne of England, died this morning.



PRINCE ALBERT VICTOR.

The most distressing scenes had occurred at, the bedside of the dying prince yesterday and last night. Since midnight on Tuesday Prince Albert Victor was either delirious or wholly unconscious save for a few minutes now and then. During his lucid intervals he was most tender and affectionate to his parents and the others who were at his bedside.

Between 7 and 8 o'clock last night the condition of the sufferer grew so bad that the usual bulletin was delayed, as it was feared that the end would come at any moment. Soon afterward he became better, and toward midnight he fell into a sleep, which, while it was disturbed, was more quiet than usual.

At 2 o'clock this morning he again became worse, and the members of the family, who had withdrawn from the room, were hastily summoned. They all remained at the bedside until death occurred. The prince of Wales sent the following telegram to the lord mayor of London:

> Our beloved son passed away at 9 o'clock to-day.
> ALBERT EDWARD.

The news of the death of the duke of Clarence has caused widespread grief, and already demonstrations of the public feeling are everywhere apparent. On all public buildings flags are displayed at half-mast, and throughout the whole of London the sad intelligence has been received with expressions of the deepest sorrow.

When the solemn tolling of the great bells in St. Paul's cathedral were heard this morning they conveyed to every one within hearing of their deep-mouthed booming the fact that the duke of Clarence and Avondale had passed away. The bells in St. Paul's are never tolled save on the occasion of the death of an heir to the throne, and therefore no other information was necessary for the people of London to make them aware that, after a gallant struggle, the duke had finally succumbed.

WORN OUT BY WATCHING.

Both the prince and the princess of Wales look haggard and worn out by their continued watching by the bedside of their son. It will be remembered that they both had not yet entirely covered from the labor entailed upon them through the recent sickness of Prince George. The princess of Wales, it will be recalled, cut short her visit to the czar and czarina, in order to return to London to minister to Prince George, and it was only a few days ago that Prince George, being convalescent, the entire family of the prince of Wales left the Marlborough house and went to Sandringham. The prince and princess of Wales are in the deepest distress and nothing can afford them consolation for the loss they have sustained.

The condition of Princess May is pitiable. She wanders from room to room, weeping bitterly. She cannot be made to stay in one place for two minutes together, and she appears to be dazed at the sudden taking off of her betrothed husband. She refuses altogether to touch food, and her terrible distress and wordless sorrow is causing much apprehension regarding her.

The prince of Wales would allow no one to write the telegrams announcing the death of his son to the queen, the lord mayor and the various other sovereigns. He reserved to himself this task, and all these messages he wrote with his own hand.

The telegraph wires leading from Sandringham were kept busy all the morning in transmitting the messages from the family of the prince. This afternoon messages of condolence began pouring in, and already such messages have been received from the most of the rulers of the world. Many messages have also been received at Osborne house. The government is also receiving official messages from the prime ministers of many countries.

QUEEN VICTORIA SHOCKED.

The queen remained up quite late last night waiting for news from Sandringham. The last dispatch she received before retiring was from the prince of Wales. It said: "Eddie is still in a critical condition, but his strength is well maintained."

This was somewhat encouraging, and her majesty thereupon retired. She was very anxious, however, and early this morning she arose and asked for the messages that had been received while she slept. The messages that had been sent to Osborne house early in the morning were unfavorable, and in a measure prepared her majesty for the blow in store for her. Though she was hoping against hope the announcement of the duke's death, which came in a message signed simply "Bertie," was a great shock to her majesty. Prince Albert Victor was, and always had been, her favorite grandson, and his untimely death was a most severe blow to her. She immediately telegraphed a long message of sympathy to the prince and princess of Wales. She did not forget in her own sorrow the sorrow that has come to Princess May, whose love dream has been rudely shattered by the hand of death. To her her majesty sent a message condoling with her in her sorrow and distress, and in loving words expressed her sympathy.

She at once ordered the duke of Connaught to proceed at once to Sandringham to represent her there. She also ordered that the court go into full mourning for three months and canceled all the "drawing rooms" and state levees.

Her majesty announced that the funeral of the duke would be a state function, and that it would be held in St. George's chapel, Windsor palace. It was in this chapel that the marriage of the duke to Princess Victoria Maria was to have taken place Feb. 27 next.

The Employes Satisfied.

MANKATO, Minn., Special, Jan. 15.—The Standard fiber ware works last year promised to give their employes 3 per cent of their year's earnings, and yesterday presented each hand a personal check for the amount. In a conversation with the manager, M. G. Willard, he said: "We want to show our appreciation of the excellency of the work of our people, and desiring to be in touch with each one, we have made this plan, fully believing it will work to the interest of employers and employes."

The fifty or more hands employed have written an open letter showing the feeling existing, and on the whole it is a very satisfactory one.

A Judgment Entered.

MANKATO, Minn., Special, — The end of the Marsh failure, which occurred in November, is not yet. A judgment has been entered against Charles M. and John Q. A. Marsh, in the sum of $4,670, in favor of the Citizens' National bank of this city. Mr. Charles Marsh is supposed to be in Kentucky, not having been seen here since his father's failure, while J. Q. A. Marsh is quite ill.

Buried With Honors.

MANKATO, Minn., Special, — William Matthews, one of the old Minnesota Mounted Rangers, who did valiant service for his country in time of war, was buried to-day with honors befitting the character of the man.

CONDENSED TELEGRAMS.

The Firemen's Insurance Company of Dayton, Ohio, has decided to retire from business.

Secretary Foster, who is at Fortress Monroe, is improving. He was out for a walk yesterday.

Sir Henry Drummond Wolff, formerly British minister to Persia, has been appointed ambassador to Madrid.

The exact amount of the defalcation of M. J. O'Brien, supreme treasurer of the Catholic Knights of America, is $75,823.23.

Servia is ravaged by diphtheria. Two children of one of the ministers died in one night. All the schools of Belgrade are closed.

Madame Outrey, whose husband was formerly the French minister at Washington, is dead in Paris. She was a daughter of William Russell of New York.

The Bulgarian government has accepted, with slight modifications, the note which the porte proposes to address to France, ending the Franco-Bulgarian dispute.

Grover Cleveland passed through Atlanta yesterday on his way to the plantation of Joseph Jefferson in Louisiana, where he will spend a week in gunning and fishing.

Over 1,600 men are now employed in the Norfolk navy yard, and good progress is being made with the work on the Texas, the Raleigh and the double turreted monitor Amphitrite.

After official notice of the accession of Abbas Pacha has been given to the powers, the new khedive will make a tour abroad, visiting Constantinople, Odessa, St. Petersburg, Vienna and Paris.

The Swiss government has assented to temporary arrangements with France by which Switzerland concedes the lowest tariff on French imports in return for the French minimum tariff on Swiss imports.

The czarewitz's famine commission, in order to enable Russian farmers to continue their work, has decided to purchase 10,000 horses in Siberia, to replase the farmers' horses actually killed on account of the famine.

A serious fire occurred yesterday in a house in the Piazza Spagna, Rome, occupied by Countess Paduska, the celebrated painter Corrodi and others. Some valuable pictures, curios and jewelry were destroyed. The inmates narrowly escaped with their lives.

The Falls City Fire Insurance Company of Louisville has reinsured its $18,500,000 risks, and will go into liquidation. The Union Insurance company of Louisville has also reinsured and will go out of business.

DRINK AND DEATH.

Two Men, One a Government Official, Killed in a Quarrel.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 18.—About ten days ago a telegram from Tegucigalpa, Honduras, announced briefly that Bertie Cecil, government director of the postoffice and telegraph department of Spanish Honduras had died at that place. A letter just received here gives details of his death. He was celebrating his birthday anniversary with boon companions at Packer's, a hotel and popular hostelry of Tegucigalpa, and drinking hard. After consuming a lot of wine he called for more. Packer, thinking that the drain on his cellar had been over large, declined the request. This angered Cecil and a quarrel ensued, in which Cecil drew his revolver, and before Packer could draw his weapon was shot three times, one of the shots being fatal. Before he fell, however, Packer rushed upon Cecil and while clutching him by the throat with one hand emptied his revolver into Cecil's body with the other.

Both men lived but a short time after the encounter. Packer was a great favorite among the Americans in Tegucigalpa. Cecil was the tool of President Bogeran and was an autocrat in his censorship of the telegraph, allowing nothing to go over the wires that would in any way reflect on Bogeran's alleged dictatorship during the revolutions a year ago. He, with other Americans, took up arms in defense of Bogeran's faction. Cecil leaves a widow, now a resident of Arkansas. Packer was an American, but his antecedents are unknown here.

Labor's Tribute.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—Not less than 50,000 persons visited to-day the body of Cardinal Manning, lying in state in the Chappelle Araente on the cardinal's house at Westminster. Most of the visitors were workingmen and many of them testified by tears to their affection for the departed prelate—an affection apparently which had nothing to do with religion, as it was evident that the large majority had come irrespective of religious faith. Among the visitors were leaders of nearly every trade organization in London, and outside they could be heard expression in earnest tones their appreciation of the dead cardinal's service to the cause of labor. Chief Rabbi Nathan M. Adler alluded in his services on Saturday to the breadth and humanity of Cardinal Manning's mind, and especially to his cordial support of the effort to obtain amelioration of the condition of the persecuted Hebrews of Russia. In most of the churches and chapels there was some mention of the cardinal as well as of the duke.

France and the Fair.

PARIS, Jan. 18.—Letters from Mrs. Potter Palmer, addressed to Foreign Minister Ribot and Madame Carnot, which were forwarded by the state department at Washington to Mr. Reid, the United States minister, have been presented by Mr. Reid in person to M. Ribot. These letters solicit the appointment by Madame Carnot of a committee of French women to supervise French exhibits of women's work for the Chicago fair. In presenting the letters Mr. Reid explained to M. Ribot the deep interest taken by the state department in the application, and Mr. Blaine's strong desire for a favorable response. M. Roche will shortly ask the chamber of deputies to vote 20,000,000 francs to be devoted to expenses of exhibition at the fair. A group of leading Parisian merchants will call a meeting to excite interest regarding the sending of exhibits to Chicago.

Extolls Cardinal Manning.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—Archdeacon Farrar, in his sermon at Westminster Abbey to-day, after a feeling allusion to the death of the duke of Clarence, spoke of the late Cardinal Manning as "that beloved cardinal who did such noble service to the country and to the church; who deserved so greatly the gratitude and respect of all Englishmen; and who took part in so great and generous schemes for the benefit of laborers and the poor."

France and Ourselves.

PARIS, Jan. 18.—Unavoidable delay has arisen in the conclusion of the treaty of commerce between France and the United States. It is now expected that a satisfactory settlement will be reached within ten days. It is believed that when Foreign Minister Ribot lays the matter before the chamber of deputies, the ultra-protectionists will attack the government with vehemence. The agreement, although hardly favorable to France, will gain a sure majority.

The Contest Was Unequal.

BERLIN, Jan. 18.—Several anarchist agitators were arrested at Wiesenthal yesterday for inducing colliers who had been on strike and had resumed work to again leave the mines. The supporters of the agitators attempted to prevent the arrests and surrounded the accused, defying the gendarmes. Their numbers were formidable and for some time they succeeded in keeping the representatives of the law at bay, but the latter being finally reinforced, the riotous miners were forced to abandon the unequal contest and disperse.

Cardinal Manning's Successor.

LONDON, Special—A fierce contest will be waged with the Vatican on the appointment of a successor to Cardinal Manning. English Catholics desire the appointment of Bishop Vaughan, who is a Unionist, but the Irish party opposes him, preferring the bishop of Portsmouth.

Will Be Buried at Red Wing.

RED WING, Minn., Special, — The remains of Gen. Brisbin are expected to arrive here from Philadelphia Saturday or Sunday. The time of the funeral has not yet been fixed. His wife and son are buried here, and not at Minneapolis, as has been stated.

DEATH OF MANNING

The Venerable Prelate of the Catholic Church In England Lays Down the Burden of Life.

Cardinal Gibbons and Archbishop Ireland Deeply Affected by the News of the Cardinal's Demise.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—Cardinal Manning died at 8:20 o'clock this morning.

The cardinal continued to grow weaker and weaker during the night until finally his prostration became complete. He was able, however, to join in the prayers which were being offered at his bedside. His eminence continued these supplications for Divine mercy until 7:30 o'clock, when he became unconscious. His death was calm, and he passed away evidently without pain. Telegrams of regret from all parts of the world are being received.

While he himself was prostrated yesterday on what proved his deathbed this morning Cardinal Manning was told of the serious illness of the Duke of Clarence. He expressed great sorrow and sympathy for the Prince and Princess of Wales. When the dying cardinal was told last night there was a slight improvement in the condition of the duke his face brightened and he ejaculated with all the fervor and strength of which he was capable, "Thank God."

The pope is sorely afflicted by the death of Cardinal Manning, whom he was wont to term "the father of the modern church."

WORDS OF PRAISE.

Cardinal Gibbons Speaks Feelingly of Cardinal Manning's Death.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 15.—Cardinal Gibbons dictated to-day to the agent of the associated press the following worthy tribute to Cardinal Manning:

The death of Cardinal Manning is a great loss, not only to the Catholic church in England, but to the whole English-speaking Catholic world. Cardinal Manning was a seer, and scanned with almost prophetic eye the religious, social and political horizon. Had he remained in the established church he would most probably have been elevated to the see of Canterbury. Had his lines been cast in other places he would have been a chancellor of the exchequer as distinguished as Gladstone, as great a philanthropist as Wilberforce, an apostle of temperance as successful as Father Matthew; and had he been sent a missionary to foreign parts he would have displayed a zeal reminding us of St. Francis Xavier. As a minister of state he would have been a worthy rival of Cardinal Ximines.

Cardinal Manning was in sympathy with all the wants and legitimate aspirations of humanity. He felt that the Catholic church was the great force to realize these aspirations. He has left the stamp of his character on his age. No man, inside or outside the church, has grasped the social questions as he did, or knew better how to harmonize the relations of church and state. He was the acknowledged champion of the laboring classes in England, whose cause he espoused at the risk of health

AND EVEN OF LIFE.

I heard him speak in the Vatican council and in Roman and London churches. He disdained to appeal to the feelings and imagination, but spoke directly to the consciences and intellects of his hearers. In conversation he was most instructive and entertaining, drawing treasures of knowledge from his well stored mind. Each sentence was expressed with the force of an aphorism. He spoke with so much precision that all his utterances might have been printed without correction or revision. He was an indefatigable worker even when an octogenarian, and allowed very few idle moments to the clergy of his household, as they very often playfully complained. I am in no wise detracting from the conspicuous merits of the English hierarchy in saying that it will be no easy task to fill his place.

Cardinal Gibbons was profoundly affected when informed by the Associated Press agent, soon after 9 o'clock this morning, of the death of Cardinal Manning. "May God have mercy on his soul" was the simple and earnest prayer of his eminence upon reading the dispatch conveying the intelligence of the demise of his distinguished co-laborer in the English-speaking world. Cardinal Gibbons at once gave the sad but not unexpected news to the priests of his household, and said that he would prefer not to be disturbed for a short time.

But before he could reach his room an Associated Press dispatch was handed him. It read: "Cardinal Simeoni died this morning of influenza." This announcement, following so closely upon the cablegram giving the intelligence of the passing away of Cardinal Manning, almost completely prostrated Cardinal Gibbons, and he immediately retired to his room. Cardinal Gibbons had long known each of his dead associates of the church.

A LOSS TO THE WORLD.

So Says Archbishop Ireland in Speaking of Cardinal Manning's Death.

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—"By the death of Cardinal Manning the Catholic church loses one of its most eminent prelates and humanity is deprived of the services of one of its warmest friends," said Archbishop Ireland, who passed through this city to-day en route to Europe. He continued:

My chief idea in making this trip to Europe was to meet Cardinal Manning and enjoy a few days' visit at his home. Now that he is dead I feel that the principal pleasure of my trip has been lost. He was indeed a truly great man; one who had few, if any, equals in the present age. His ability and character were of such a high order that one can scarcely appreciate their loftiness. His whole life has been one incessant struggle for the betterment of mankind. His sphere of usefulness was not circumscribed by the boundaries of the nation which claimed him nor by the membership of the church in whose councils he was a recognized leader. It was limitless, and millions of people have been beneficiaries of his works.

Sherman Will Retire.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 15.—Hon. John Sherman of Ohio passed through this city to-night, and stated in an interview that he would withdraw from politics after this term. He says he has now served more than any other man in the history of the country and will never enter another political fight. He says Foraker cannot control the Ohio delegation.

George S. Knight Dead.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 15.—Mr. George S. Knight, the actor, died to-day at the home of his mother, Mrs. Rebeca Sloane, in this city. Mr. Knight was stricken with paralysis four years ago in California, and has not been on the stage since that time. George S. Knight was, in his time, a well known comedian.

Ocean Travel.

New York—Arrived: Teutonic, Liverpool; Assyria, Mediterranean ports.

The Lizard—Passed: Europe, New York for London.

The Transcontinental.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—A general meeting of the Transcontinental association is in progress at the Windsor hotel, this city. E. H. Vining, the president, called the meeting to order. The following roads were not represented: The Rock Island, the Denver & Rio Grande, the Great Northern, the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company, the Oregon & California and the Rio Grande Western. The subject under discussion was that of rates between points west of the Missouri river. The association unanimously decided not to recognize the existing Canadian Pacific differentials. The subject of Pacific mails was discussed, but action was deferred until to-morrow.

Anarchists Arraigned.

LONDON, — The anarchists who were arrested at Walsall on the charge of having in their possession explosives for an unlawful purpose were to-day again arraigned before the police magistrate at that place. The chief constable testified as to the particulars of the arrests, and intimated that the prisoners were implicated in a plot which concerned many countries besides England. The chief constable asked the magistrate to further remand the prisoners to allow of the police securing further evidence as to the ramifications of the plot in which it is alleged they were concerned. The prisoners were remanded until Thursday next. Bail was refused.

FOUGHT ON A TRAIN.

Three Roughs in a Bloody Melee Attempt to Kill a Detective.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Jan. 18.—There was a desperate fight on a New York Central & Hudson River railroad train tonight, the whole train being in a state of panic. It left Albany at 5 p. m. Just as it was leaving three intoxicated men named W. Reardon, Albert Burnseen and John Van Nouis, who are employed by P. C. Ardle of Albany in breaking up old engines, boilers, etc., rushed on board, throwing their chisels, crow bars and sledges on the platform of the passengers cars. They were very rude and boisterous and immediately took charge of the car.

Chief Detective Humphrey was on the train and said to them, "Why don't you behave yourselves?" Burnseen grabbed Humphrey and endeavored to push him off the car. Humphrey said, "Look out, I'm an officer." At this Reardon advanced on Humphrey and Humphrey pulled his revolver to use it as a club. Van Nouis reached for one of his big chisels, but Humphrey succeeded in getting Reardon in the car, threw him down and held him on a seat while some of the passengers and brakemen held the others back and Reardon got quiet. Mr. Humphrey had his wife and child on the train in a rear car and went back to see them.

While he was talking with his wife Conductor McCarrik, of the train entered the car and said to the chief: "They are fighting with knives in the buffet car." This was true. Chief Humphrey went to the car and found two of the roughs on the floor. Reardon was on top of Burnseen and both lunging at each other with knives. The passengers shouted at Humphrey, saying: "They want to kill you, look out!" When Reardon saw Humphrey he started for him with uplifted knife, exclaiming: "I will kill you!" Humphrey clinched with him and threw him on his back and dragged him through the buffet car into the baggage car and, with assistance, managed to tie the desperado with a bell cord.

By this time the whole train was in an uproar. Women turned pale with excitement and men rushed forward from every car. Chief Humphrey had just seated himself beside his wife for the second time when the conductor and several passengers again came into the car in a hurry, exclaiming "Reardon has a knife and is coming to kill you," having cut himself loose and driven eight or ten men out of the baggage car. Chief Humphrey hurried to the front of the coach and saw Reardon coming, running through the car next forward with coat and vest off, with blood streaming from his face and a large, uplifted knife in his hand. The conductor shut the car door and held it. Mr. Humphrey pulled out his revolver, opened the car door, seized Reardon and took his knife away from him, the conductor assisting. Humphrey dragged his man through the buffet car again into the baggage car and tied him with the bell cord and remained with him until the train reached Poughkeepsie, when Chief Humphrey had all three of the men locked up.

DEATH TO A HALF-BREED.

A Young Man Shoots Louis De Gree—Self-Defense Claimed.

BRECKENRIDGE, Minn., Special Telegram, Jan. 18.—Frank Kempfer, a son of Barney Kempfer of Andrea, this county, shot and instantly killed Louis De Gree, a Sisseton half-breed, at Kempfer's house last night. De Gree had been working for Kempfer and young Kempfer claims to have acted in self-defense. He was arrested and brought to Breckenridge this morning, and on the way his face was badly frozen.

Northfield's Loss.

NORTHFIELD, Minn., Special, Jan. 18.—Northfield mourns the loss of one of her best known citizens in the death of Rev. J. S. Rounds. Mr. Rounds has been ill for some time past. Having passed seventy-six he had not the strength to battle the disease. He was one of the best known men of the city some years ago, having been the first congregational pastor that Northfield ever had. He came to this place in 1856, and had lived here continuously ever since. For some years past he had done no active work, and for over a year past had been an invalid. He leaves a wife and eight children, one of whom lives at this place, the wife of D. F. Kelly. The interment took place to-day in the Protestant cemetery after a memorial address by Rev. George Huntington of the Congregational church.

Is Gleason Implicated?

CHAMPION, Mich., Jan. 18.—John Henry, the keeper of dance house dives at Trout Lake and Champion, was arrested here today for a Chicago robbery. Two officers appeared at the front door of Henry's ranch and were met by a woman armed with a shot gun and were made to stand back. One of them, however, went to the rear of the building and caught Henry as he was trying to escape through a window. A local paper accuses Henry of being implicated in the murder of John Gleason, the mining paymaster, who was mysteriously slain the night of Jan. 5.

Mortgage Swindling.

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—Anton H. Hobart, Charles Albrecht, W. W. Henderson, John T. Hanna, Paul McWhorter, H. P. Ansen and Joseph L. Beach, the alleged mortgage swindlers, were indicted by the grand jury yesterday and were lodged in jail. In addition to the men already arrested, the grand jury returned an indictment of the following as having been implicated in the conspiracy: Henry C. Evans, Harry H. Osborne, F. Arthur Langlos and Thodore Witmot. Each is held in bonds of $3,000 under the charge of conspiracy to defraud. Albrecht was the only one to secure bail.

Picturesque and Strange.

DUNDAS, Minn., Special, Jan. 18.—One of the most beautiful phenomena was witnessed yesterday, lasting about two hours. A large circle, with all the rainbow colors encircled the sun, with one on each side, with a concave shape, while on the top and bottom were two half circles of the convex shape, extending half way across the cosmos. Then again around the heavens half way from the horizon, was a white circle, reaching clear around, north, south, east and west.

Mails Askew.

NORTHFIELD, Minn., Special Telegram, Jan. 18.—About 10,000 people in Rice county went without their mail to-night. Only one mail train from the north runs through here Sundays, and by an accident the mail that should have gone to Faribault was put off at this place and the Northfield mail carried to Faribault.

Will Have His Head Tested.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Jacob Landaurer, the curbstone broker in Wall street who was arrested last night for lounging suspiciously around the Gould mansion, and who, it is said, is madly in love with Miss Helen Gould, was to-day committed for examination as to his sanity.

Resisted the Police.

WARSAW, Jan. 18.—The police of this city surprised a meeting of anarchists or nihilists. The conspirators refused to surrender and boldly resisted the police. The latter, being well armed, killed two of the conspirators and carried off fifteen others as prisoners.

Plot Against the Sultan.

PARIS, Jan. 18.—According to the Eclair a plot against the sultan of Turkey has been discovered in Stamboul and three hundred persons have been arrested.

Not an Elopement.

NORTHFIELD, Minn., Special, — Word has been received here of the marriage at Hudson, Wis., of Miss Clara Woods of this place and C. H. Bernes of Chicago, where they will take up their residence. This marriage was reported to a Chicago paper as an elopement, but while it is true that the parents of the girl had no knowledge of her act, still Miss Woods was of age and has been accustomed for over a year past to control her own actions.

Tired of Life.

DURAND, Wis., Special Telegram. —Mr. Charles Helke, aged seventy-nine, of the town of Canton, Buffalo county, committed suicide by shooting himself. The reason unknown. He died within twenty-four hours after he was shot.

HERE YOU HAVE IT!

"GREEN GOODS!"

A CHANCE TO MAKE A FORTUNE!

(IN A HORN!)

This Moth-eaten, Wormy Old Chestnut Again at the Front.

On Monday morning of this week the following "confidential" letter was received by The Journal man, but as he is already making too much money raising wheat and publishing a country newspaper, he has not time to make money so fast, so he generously offers the reading public the benefit of the "method," only adding that it is a swindle of the first water and yet there are many who would bite at it if not warned.

The clipping referred to is a statement that plates have been stolen that print money so accurately that no one can tell it from genuine, and this swindler means to insinuate that he is in possession of said plates:

CONFIDENTIAL.

Dear Sir: I am desirous of obtaining a shrewd agent in your locality to handle my "goods." I enclose herewith a newspaper clipping, which gives all the information that could be desired and explains itself. Thinking you are in a position to handle my goods safely I have concluded to write you, and if you don't care to invest in this enterprise I hope you will excuse the liberty I have taken in making the proposition. I have a very superior article of the kind, in fact the best ever issued or put on the market; the sizes run from one to twenty. I warrant each and every note to be perfect as to paper, coloring, vignette, printing, engraving and signatures, and when made to appear as having been used or handled much, I defy the best bank clerk or expert to tell them from the genuine. It has cost me a great deal of time and money to perfect these goods and I have at last succeeded where many others failed, in producing the genuine fibre paper. My stock is now as neat and perfect as human skill can make it and absolutely no risk in using it. Remember, this is an article which will go anywhere and everywhere, leaving you a net profit of from ten to twelve hundred per cent, according to the amount you buy. These goods cannot be detected in the ordinary course of trade, and only in the Treasury at Washington through the duplication of the numbers, and not then if the genuine bill of the same number is still is circulation so that they are really as good as gold. Now, my friend, (as I will take the liberty of calling you) we are strangers to one another, but if you are desirous of handling these goods, and will come here to see me, you will find me a square white man in all my dealings, as my manner of doing business will show. It is as follows: When you come here I will show you my entire stock, compare them with the genuine and in fact submit them to any test you see fit, before you pay me a single dollar, then after you are thoroughly satisfied on every point, you can select whatever sizes you want and pay cash for your purchase, and carry the goods home with you. Now, my friend, to do this business safely, it must be done "face to face;" experience has taught me that this is the only absolutely safe way to transact this business, and most satisfactory for us both. When you come here you can see me and what you are buying, and I can see and judge the man I am to place confidence in for future business, besides it is absolutely necessary that I should see you on our first deal, as there are some few secrets pertaining to the business and necessary to success which I don't care to put in writing, and is only imparted to a customer "by word of mouth" at a personal interview, as a customer only has the same interest I have in keeping these private matters to himself. Remember, I do not ask or expect to be paid one cent till you have the goods in your possession. Do not ask me to send goods by mail or express as it is not a safe way for either of us; it is better to be sure and safe than to transact business of this nature in a careless manner. Now, my friend, if you wish to make a deal with me, do not hesitate too long over the matter, it is always best to be among the first than one of the last to take hold of a thing of this kind. If you will come on at once I can guarantee you a clear field to work in, and if I am satisfied at a personal interview that you would make me a good agent, I may offer you more liberal inducements to take the State agency and make you a special rate for any deal over $20,000. If you have not the money to buy my goods, I would consent to your taking in some confidential friend in with you who has, provided, however, he is trustworthy and could keep the secret, you could then both come on together and and make the deal, however you would be very foolish to take any one in with you if you could raise enough money yourself. You can make money faster and easier by dealing in my goods than you ever dreamed of before in your life. You are bound to be successful—there can be no such thing as fail. An opportunity like this to make an independent fortune in a short time, and at a comparatively small investment is well worth a favorable consideration and should not be rejected hastily from conscientious scruples or otherwise. It was never intended that one man should have millions and another nothing. The wealth and good things of this world are too unevenly distributed; others have grown rich around you, but they were not slow to grasp opportunities, and unless you have money enough to live comfortably on for the rest of your days, this is just the business you want to take hold of, as the goods can be handled with perfect safety and immense profit to yourself, and enable you to provide a competency for your old age and pass your remaining years in ease and comfort. No wrong in it—Uncle Sam has millions of our money locked up in the Treasury, uselessly and unjustly so. I know that you have some distance to come, but considering the tremendous profits and no risks whatever, it is well worth the slight inconvenience of a journey here, and as far as expenses are concerned I will make a liberal allowance to cover them, and I promise if you do not find the goods just as represented, or should you upon any reasonable pretext whatsoever decline to consummate a trade, I guarantee to refund you your entire expenses, from the time you leave home till you return, and make a liberal allowance for loss of time, inconvenience to business, etc. Now, sir, your own good sense should tell you I can have no object in misrepresenting my goods and bringing you here on a fool's errand, and do not, because I am in this line of business, doubt my word or consider me otherwise than meaning you well, as you are not asked to invest a single dollar till you have seen, examined and are thoroughly satisfied in every respect, and have the goods in your own possession. My terms are: Three hundred dollars buys three thousand in my goods. Four hundred dollars buys five thousand; five hundred dollars buys seven thousand; six hundred and fifty dollars buys ten thousand, and one thousand dollars buys twenty thousand.

Three thousand for three hundred dollars is the very smallest amount I will sell under any circumstances. I will give you the "State right," that is, the sole privilege of handling the goods throughout your State, if you invest from six hundred and fifty dollars and upwards. Remember, I sell my goods so cheaply on the first deal in order to give my customers a fair start and build up a trade, and on all after deals, which surely follow, I charge 25 cents on the dollar. I will not do a retail trade, as thereby it would let too many into the business and its secrets. Now, sir, when you have fully made up your mind and prepared to come on obey the following instructions, and do only just as I tell you; be guided by my experience and advice and you will do just right.

1. Do not as long as you live ever write me a letter; if you do I shall refuse to receive it, and furthermore all business relations between us will cease. Don't forget this, and remember I mean exactly what I say.

2. When ready to come and see me, send me a telegraph despatch and say in it:

("Everything satisfactory on Hat." 515.)

Do not sign your name to despatch, as I will know it is from you, if you send the despatch exactly as it is worded above. Simply sign John, Jack, William or any other name.

On receipt of your telegram, I will immediately send you simple and plain instructions how to see and know me, and I will appoint a place of meeting at some hotel, in some town within 50 miles of this city. If I am alive I will surely meet you. Don't attempt to come on to find me without first telegraphing to me for instructions. Send telegrams, which will be promtly received, to the enclosed address.

I hope you will take no offense at the above, if you do not like the business, and I will trust in your honor not to do me any harm. Please destroy this letter. Yours respectfully and in strict confidence.

W. H. West, Confectioner,
292 West 116th Street,
New York City.

Parlez-Vous Francais?

If you don't, there certainly have been times when you wished that you could; and if you are anxious to learn to read and speak French, you should have the splendid article "French Without a Master," by Prof. A. de Rougemont of Chautauqua University, published in Demorest's Family Magazine for February. With the definite and practical instructions given in it, one cannot fail to acquire an accurate knowledge of French in an astonishingly short time. But this is not the only attraction of this superb number of this typical Family Magazine. The numerous illustrations, including a lovely phototint of "Cupid and Psyche," are simply splendid; the stories are of excellent merit. "At the Home of a Florida 'Cracker,'" handsomely illustrated, will interest everybody; "The Home of a Specialist," with numerous illustrations, furnishes practical and artistic ideas for building and furnishing a home; and "A Small Garden, and What It Produced," gives just the information needed by those who have little ground and yet like fresh vegetables. As usual, there is something in this number for everybody, and everything is of the best; and this number is only a sample of what is furnished twelve times a year, for $2. Published by W. Jennings Demorest, 15 E. 14th St., New York City.

VICK'S FLORAL GUIDE, 1892.

True and tried friends are always welcome, consequently "Vick's Floral Guide" is sure of a warm reception, especially when dressed as daintily as this year. The "Nellie Lewis" Carnation on the front of cover, and "Brilliant Poppies" on the back, are unusually attractive, and the numerous colored plates of flowers and vegetables are certainly works of art and merit. The first twenty-four pages, printed in violet ink, describe Novelties and Specialties. Send ten cents to James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y., and procure a copy of this attractive and useful catalogue. It costs nothing as the ten cents can be deducted from the first order.

The February Peterson is one of the handsomest and best of the month's magazines. It opens with a showy fashion plate and fine full page engravings, one of which, "The Belated Valentine," illustrates a very beautiful poem by Minna Irving. "Up and Down East Anglia," by Roslyn K. Brooke, is an interesting account of English Norfolk and Suffolk with a series of excellent illustrations. "An Involuntary Elopement," by Carrie B. Morgan, is a dramatic story of western life effectively illustrated. Another capitally illustrated paper is "The Children's Fancy Dress Party," which gives clear directions for making the costumes at a small cost. "His Mistake," by Kate Wallace Clements, is a charming story. "The Confusion of Philosophy" will add to Alice Maud Ewell's rapidly growing reputation. "Folk Lore of Colored People," by Mrs. E. A. Matthews, is a very charming paper. The remainder of the contents are in keeping with the articles we have mentioned, and the whole get up of the number would do credit to a periodical double the price. Terms, two dollars a year. Address, Peterson's Magazine, 306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Good Market For Oats

Having had a fine oat crop swept away by hail in few minutes time we are obliged to buy oats to supply our farm teams, and we will be glad to pay the highest market price to any who are owing us several years subscription. We shall need about 1000 bushels and will take them as fast as offered. Bring on your oats and get your receipts.

[33-tf]

Ship your wheat to O. Tharaldson general agent of the Northwestern Farmers' Protective Association, at Duluth, and make from 4 to 7 cents a bushel. For further particulars as to membership, &c., inquire of L. K. Hassel, Grand Forks, N. D. [25-tf]

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication, January 21st, 1892.]
[Last publication, March 3rd, 1892.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred and thirty and 16-100 dollars, interest which is due at the date of this notice, upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Alphonse Paridis and Elmira Paridis, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the 1st day of October, 1889, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 9th day of November, 1889, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 48 of mortgages, on page 52.

And whereas the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of nine hundred and forty-six and 82-100 Dollars, with interest on nine hundred and twelve ($912) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the 18th day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north-east quarter (ne¼) of Section thirty-four (34) Town one hundred and fifty (150) of Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston in said County and State, on

SATURDAY, THE FIFTH DAY OF MARCH, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of nine hundred and forty-six and 82-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated January 18th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee
Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [40-46]

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minnesota, Jan. 18, 1892.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register or Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on February 29th, 1892, viz: Tosten L. Oleson, Hd. No. 12,259, for the S W¼ Sec. 14 Twp. 147, Range 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: Knut S. Akre, John Ellingson, Halvor Ellingson, Edward Ramsey, all of Neilsville, Minn.

[40-45] Hugh Thompson, Register.

H. STEENERSON

ATTORNEY AT LAW

CROOKSTON, - MINNESOTA

CHRISTIANSON BROTHERS

(Correspondents Fargo Loan Agency.)

REAL ESTATE

Farm Mortgage Loans and Insurance.

☞ Special Bargains in Choice Farm Lands, improved and unimproved. Low prices and easy terms.

—OFFICE ON ROBERT STREET.—

CROOKSTON, MINN

REMNANT SALE.

Remnant Sale.

GERVAIS'------The Hustlers,

GREAT SALE OF

REMNANTS,
ODDS AND ENDS
AND BROKEN LINES
OF ALL KINDS.

BIG BARGAINS OFFERED.

Cloaks and Shawls

—AT—

Tremendous Reductions.

Gervais' - The Hustlers.

REMNANT SALE.

OUR HOLIDAY STOCK

—IS—

ON DISPLAY

THE FAIR

DEPARTMENT STORE,

Cor. Main and Robert Sts., Crookston.

NEW CIGAR STORE

SIGN OF THE BIG INDIAN.

H. F. BROWN, Proprietor,

Second Street,

CROOKSTON, MINN

Cigars of every known brand, from a cheroot to a 25 center. Cigarettes, Chewing and Smoking Tobaccos of all kinds, Snuff, Pipes to suit the fancy of all, from a corn-cob pipe to a meerschaum.

CALL IN.

Northern Pacific

BETWEEN

Winnipeg, Gilby, Drayton, Grafton
Grand Forks, Crookston,
AND ALL POINTS

EAST AND WEST.

There is nothing better than the service on

THE DINING CAR LINE

Through Pullman Sleeping Cars Daily between points

IN THE RED RIVER VALLEY

—AND—

ST. PAUL AND MINNEAPOLIS.

PACIFIC COAST TRAINS
PASSING THROUGH

Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana
Idaho, Oregon and Washington

CARRY COMPLETE EQUIPMENT OF

Pullman Palace Sleeping Cars,
First and Second Class Coaches,
Pullman Tourist and
Free Colonist Sleeper
AND ELEGANT DINING CARS

THROUGH TICKETS are sold at all coupon offices of the Northern Pacific Railroad to points North, East, South and west, in the United States and Canada.

TIME SCHEDULE.

East bound.

Passenger 7:10 p. m. | Freight 9:20 p. m.

West bound.

Passenger 8:20 a. m. | Freight 8:00 p. m.

For rates, maps, time tables or special information, apply to C. A. Sharkey, Agent Northern Pacific R. R. at Crookston, Minn., or

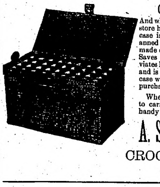
CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent,
St. Paul, Minn.

STUDY LAW

AT HOME.

Take a Course in the Sprague Correspondence School of Law. Send ten cents (stamps) for particulars to J. COTNER, Jr., Sec., No. 80 Whitney Block, DETROIT, MICH.

Farmers' Egg Cases.



Call and Get a Ticket

And when you purchase anything at our store have the amount punched. The case is made of tin, handsomely Japanned and ornamented. The Fillers are made of cloth paper and very durable. Saves both packing and counting, obviates loss from breakage and miscounts and is an ornament to any home. This case will be given you when your cash purchases amount to $25.00.

When empty these cases can be used to carry groceries in, and are very handy for that. Remember the place,

A. Sture's New Store,

CROOKSTON, MINN.

Opera House Block,

HOLIDAY GOODS.

Before deciding what Xmas gifts you will purchase, please call and inspect my line of Pictures and Picture Framing Material, such as Oleographs, Chromos, Artotype and Steel Engravings, Monochromes, Water Color, Pastel and Oil Paintings.

Reproductions in Paintings, and Etchings, Photogravures, Artographs, Typogravures, Mezzotypes and fac-simile Pastels, Genuine Etchings, Pastels and Steel Engravings. Etchings Remarque - Proof. Picture Mats, Mouldings, Frames, Hooks, Nails, Cords, Wire and Room Mouldings. I'm making a Special Sale of these goods for the Holiday trade. Call and examine.

Yours respectfully,

THE UNDERTAKER,
105½ Broadway,

Crookston, Minn. [85-tf]

MARTIN O'BRIEN,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

I. O. O. F. BUILDING. Crookston, Minn

FRANK IVES, Notary Public and U. S. Comm'r
D. E. HATLESTAD, District Court Commissioner

IVES & HATLESTAD,

Attorneys and Counselors at Law,

CROOKSTON, - - - - MINN

Will practice in all the courts and before the U. S. Land Office at Crookston and Washington. Pensions and Soldiers' Claims and Patents carefully and promptly adjusted.

We loan money on improved farms and city property and have facilities for placing large loans at low rate of interest. We give special attention to collection and all commercial business pertaining to our profession.

W. A. ROBERTSON

D. D. S.

Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland.

OPERATIVE AND MECHANICAL

DENTIST.

N. B. Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.

OFFICE IN McKINNON BLOCK.

G. SLATER.
H. ROTHERT,
E. N. HILL.
J. A. GORGE.

Chase & Slater Law and Claims Co.,

1331 F Street, Northwest,

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Practice in the Supreme Court of the United States, the Court of Claims, all the executive departments and before Congress. Claims for Indian Depredations collected. Pension cases prosecuted. Patents promptly secured. Careful attention given to all classes of land cases.

Liberal arrangements made with Local Attorneys or for transfer of cases.

THE PIONEER

HARNESS SHOP,

M. RAUENBUEHLR, Proprietor.

A full supply of everything kept by the trade.

Cor of Broadway and Third Sts,

CROOKSTON, MINN

MEMBERS OF THE
Home Supply Association,
OF CHICAGO.

ATTENTION

Supply Association Prices on

HARNESS, ETC.,

Knocked sky-high by

G. W. PEAKE,

MAIN ST. HARNESS SHOP, CROOKSTON

QUOTATIONS.

Single Buggy Harness.	Associa'n prices.	My price
No. 2	$7.50	$6.50
No. 3	8.75	8.00
Double Buggy Harness.
No. 102—no collars, Home Supply price,		$15.00
" " " G. W. Peake's "		14.50
Double Farm Harness.
No. B.x.C.—Home Supply price		$23.95
" " G. W. Peake's "		22.50
No C 38—Home Supply "		25.00
" " G. W. Peake's "		23.50
No. D 40—Home Supply "		28.00
" " G. W. Peake's "		27.00
No. E 40—Home Supply "		28.00
" " G. W. Peake's "		26.00
Buggy Whip—drop top		15c to 25c
" " straight Java		20c to 50c
" " rawhide center		90c to $1.00
Lace Team Collars		$2.00 to $4.50
Overtop Sweats—3 hooks		50c per pair
Webb Halters		25c, 35c and 40c
Ladies' Side Saddle		$5.00
Riding Bridle—plain		90c to $1.00
Men's Riding Saddles		$2.00, $2.50 $3.00, up

G. W. PEAKE,

Main Street, between Robert and Second Streets

KOPS BRO'S

105 Third Street,

GRAND FORKS, N. DAKOTA

PIANOS, ORGANS

WEBER, HAINES BROS., KURTZMANN, MATHUSHEK, McCAMMON PIANOS, Estey and Chicago Cottage Organs. New Upright Pianos from $250 to $1,000, on terms of $10 to $25 per month. New Organs from $60 to $250, on terms of $5 to $10 per month.

Satisfaction guanteed. Write for catalogue and prices. KOPS BROS.
Grand Forks, N. D.

THE NEW

NORTHWEST

Home seekers will find the last of the public domain of agricultural and grazing value along the Great Northern Ry. in North Dakota and Montana — FARM LANDS

N W TOWNS — 100 or more, along the Great Northern Railway Line. Business chances. Write F. I. WHITNEY, St. Paul, Minn., for Books, Maps, &c. Write now.

Settlers on free Government lands along the Great Northern Ry Line in North Dakota and Montana get low rates and fine markets for products. — LOW RATS

Montana produces the finest Horses and Cattle. Free ranges yet in Mouse, Milk and Sun River Valleys and Sweet Grass Hills. — Horses, Cattle.

Health, Wealth. — In the Northwest. Free Lands. New Towns. New Railways. New Mines. Low Rates. Largest area of good vacant land.

Sweetest Grass Hills, Milk and Sun River Valleys, Montana, reached only by the Great Northern Railway Line. The stock raisers' paradise. — Sheep, Hogs.

Herds, Mines. — These have made Montana the richest State per capita in the Union. Plenty of room for more miners and stock raisers. Now is the time.

Valley Roller Mills

MANUFACTURERS OF

FINE FLOUR

From Selected Red River Wheat.

Lee & Herrick's Best, $2 65
North Star, - - 2.50
Fife. - - 2.15
Skip Jack. - - 1.15

☞ We exchange flour for wheat on equitable terms.

LEE & HERRICK.

First National Bank

OF CROOKSTON

PAID IN CAPITAL, - $100,000
SURPLUS. - - $12,700

Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittance.

GEO. Q. ERSKINE, President.
WM. ANGLIM, Vice President.
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashier.

DIRECTORS:

Wm. Anglim, K. D. Chase, R. D. Childs
Geo. Q. Erskine, B. B. Northrop, A. A. Miller
E. M. Walsh, John Moore, W. H. Crosby
Chas. E. Sawyer.

THE OLD RELIABLE

CROOKSTON

LOAN AGENCY

STILL ON DECK.

MONNY

On Real Estate

MONEY

On Approved Chattels,

Always on hand at the Lowest Rates. Consult your best interests by giving me a call when you Want Money.

A. D. STEPHENS,
Second Street, Crookston Minn,

JOHN CROMB,

Attorney-at-Law,

SECOND STREET. CROOKSTON

A. A. JUST, M. D.,

Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon

OFFICE IN

McKinnon Block, Crookston

FOR PRINCIPAL POINTS IN

GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY LINE

MINNESOTA,
NORTH DAKOTA,
SOUTH DAKOTA,
MANITOBA,
MONTANA, AND
PACIFIC COAST.

TIME CARD.

MONTANA EXPRESS DAILY.

7:40 p. m. de.........St. Paul..........ar. 6:55 a. m.
7:00 a. m. de.......CROOKSTON.......de. 7:25 p. m.
8:15 a. m. de.........Grand Forks.........de. 6:20 p. m.
2:30 p. m. ar.........Helena..........de. 11:00 a. m.

ST. VINCENT BRANCH.
Daily, except Sunday.
Depart 7:30 a. m.........................Arrive 6:45 p. m.

FOSSTON BRANCH.
DAILY, EXCEPT SUNDAY.
Depart 7:30 a. m.........................Arrive 5:00 p. m.

ST. HILAIRE BRANCH.
Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Depart 10:45 a. m.........................Arrive 4:00 p. m.

W. W. FEGAN,
Agent, Crookston.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

	Leave Crookston Daily.	Arrive Crookston Daily.
For Duluth, Ashland, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago, and all points East and South............	10:08 p. m.	8:25 a. m.
For Grand Forks, Grafton, Pembina, Winnipeg and points in N. Dakota and Winnipeg........	8:25 a. m.	10:08 p. m.

IF YOU ARE GOING EAST OR SOUTH ASK YOUR NEAREST AGENT FOR TICKETS VIA THE BURLINGTON AND TAKE NO OTHER LINE.

Polk County Journal.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.

Crookston, January 21, 1892.

AN ORDINANCE

Relating to the Fire Department of the City of Crookston:

The City Council of the City of Crookston do ordain:

SECTION 1. That the organization in the city of Crookston known and designated as "Crookston Volunteer Fire Department," be and the same hereby is declared to be the duly authorized and legally constituted Fire Department of the city of Crookston:

SEC. 2. That said Fire Department shall be composed of all members of said organization in good standing according to the by-laws thereof, at the date of the passage of this ordinance, and such other persons as may from time to time comply with initiatory by-laws of said organization and become members thereof in accordance with the same.

SEC. 3. That said organization shall have the power to pass such by-laws, rules and regulations for the good order and efficient maintenance of the same as to the members thereof may seem necessary, and in such manner as they may deem advisable, and all by-laws, rules and regulations heretofore passed and now in force in such organization, in so much as they are not inconsistent with this or any ordinance of the city of Crookston heretofore passed or to be passed, or the laws of the State of Minnesota, shall have full power and effect in so much and to such extent as they apply to the individual concerns and efficiency of said Fire Department.

SEC. 4. It is hereby made the duty of said Fire Department to file with the city clerk of said city, within ten days after the passage of this ordinance, a list of all members thereof in good standing at the date of the passage of this ordinance, which list shall be certified to by the Secretary of said Department and countersigned by its Chief.

SEC. 5. It is hereby made the duty of said department, whenever a member thereof shall cease, either because of death, resignation, dismissal or otherwise, to belong thereto, to at once by its proper officer notify the city clerk of said city; and upon such notification the said clerk shall strike from the list of members of such organization the name of such member so retiring.

SEC. 6. It is further made the duty of said department by its proper officers to, within a reasonable time thereafter, present to the clerk the name or names of any and all persons who may comply with the regulations of said department, and join the same after the passage of this ordinance, and thereupon the said clerk shall annex such name or names to the list of the members of said department.

SEC. 7. That the officers of said department shall consist of a chief, to be appointed by the city council, and such other officers as to the members of such department may seem necessary.

SEC. 8. The chief of said department shall have general supervision of the same, and of all apparatus and other material used by or in connection with said department; provided, the said department may require such other and further duties of the said chief as to the members thereof may seem meet.

SEC. 9. That all fire apparatus and parapanelia used and required for the purpose of quelling any conflagration, shall, and the same is hereby ordered to be kept in that portion of the first floor of the city hall of said city of Crookston, fronting on Broadway, in said city; and it is hereby made a misdemeanor for any person than the janitor of said building or the duly authorized members of said fire department, to remove, meddle or in any wise interfere with said fire apparatus, and any person found guilty of a violation of this section of this ordinance, before any Justice of the Peace of said city, shall be fined not less than one or more than one hundred dollars, and may be imprisoned until such fine and costs are paid.

SEC. 10. It is hereby ordained that the bell known as the fire alarm bell, and hanging in the bell tower upon the city hall of the city of Crookston, be and the same hereby is constituted the lawful fire alarm of the city of Crookston.

SEC. 11. It is hereby made the duty of all members of said fire department, to respond without delay to the fire alarm of said city whenever the same may be sounded in giving alarm of fire; provided, however, that upon reasonable excuse shown any member may be excused from responding to said alarm.

SEC. 12. As remuneration for services as aforesaid as firemen, each of the members of said fire department shall receive for any response to said fire alarm by him actually made, the sum of two dolars for every such response; provided further, that before any bill for response to said alarm shall be paid to said department, the same shall be duly certified by the Chief thereof, which verification shall include the names of each member present, and presented in the same manner as ordinary bills are presented to the city council of said city.

SEC. 13. If any person shall, at any fire, refuse to obey the orders of the chief of said fire department or other officers vested with authority at such fire, such person may be arrested by the direction of the officer whose orders are so disobeyed, and upon complaint made before the City Justice of said city, shall be punished by a fine not to exceed fifty dollars and costs of prosecution and may be imprisoned until such fine and costs are paid.

SEC. 14. It is further provided that any person or persons furnishing a team of horses in response to any alarm of fire, for the purpose of aiding in the removal of fire apparatus from its repository to the location of any fire, and who does actually so aid in said removal, shall be remunerated as follows, viz: For the first team so aiding the sum of four dollars for each response; for the second team two dollars and for the third team one dollar; provided, however, none of the persons supplying aforesaid teams shall be entitled to any remuneration for aforesaid services unless said teams shall also assist in reconveying said apparatus to its place of keeping; and all bills for services in this section specified shall be presented in the same manner as is provided for the presentation of bills in Section 12 of this ordinance.

SEC. 15. All ordinances and parts of ordinances in so much as they may be inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

SEC. 16. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage, approval, publication and recording.

Upon the call of ayes and nays the vote stood as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative—Buhn, Childs, McGlogan, Marlette, Schmidt, Walker, Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative—none.

Upon this vote the resolution was declared carried by the President of the Council.

Passed this 12th day of Jan., 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
President of the Council.

Approved this 12th day of Jan., 1892.

Attest: ALEX. MCKINNON, Mayor.
E. C. CARRUTH, Clek.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Mrs. Loren Fletcher Suddenly Taken This Morning.

St. Paul Daily News,

At 5 o'clock this morning Mrs. Loren Fletcher died, at the family residence in Minneapolis, after a short illness of capillary bronchitis. She had been in very poor health for several months, but the malady which brought death did not appear until very recently.

Mrs. Fletcher, as Miss Ameret J. Thomas, was married to Loren Fletcher in 1856 in Bangor, Me., and in 1857 they came to Minneapolis, which has been their home since. For thirty years the lady has been an earnest communicant of Gethsemane Episcopal Church, and while arrangements have not yet been made finally, the funeral will probably be from the church, with interment in Lakewood, beside the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher, which died 17 years ago, at the age of seven years.

Mrs. Estes, Mrs. Fletcher's mother, now almost 84 years old, is quite ill at her dead daughter's house, and her recovery is hardly probable.

(First publication Jan. 7, 1892.)

STATE OF MINNESOTA, }
County of Polk, } ss.

The State of Minnesota, to George W. Roberts and Georganne Roberts defendants:

You are hereby summoned to be and appear before the undersigned, one of the Justices of the Peace in and for said county, on the 30th day of January, 1892, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at my office in the city of Crookston in said county, to answer to Christen Anderson in a civil action. Should you fail to appear at the time and place aforesaid, judgment will be rendered against you upon the evidence adduced by said Christen Anderson for such sum as he shall show himself entitled to.

Given under my hand this 31st day of December, 1891.

C. O. CHRISTIANSON,
Justice of the Peace.

STEENERSON & STANTON,
Attorneys for Plaintiff. [37-40]

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

(First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.)
(Last publication Feb. 25th, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of thirty-two and 49-100 dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Eugene Boulie and Melvina Boulie, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company, of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of August, 1890, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the twentieth day of August, 1890, at 3 o'clock p. m., in book 52 of mortgages, on page 393.

And whereas, the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of four hundred and ninety-six and 4-100 dollars, (496.04), with interest on four hundred and eighty-one (481) dollars thereof, at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The south half of the northwest quarter (s½ nw¼) and lots three (3) and four (4), all in Section two (2), of Town one hundred and forty-nine (149), of Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of four hundred ninety-six and 4-100 dollars ($496.04) and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five (25) dollars Attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [39-45]

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

(First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.)
(Last publication Feb. 25th, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of forty-three and 25-100 dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Napoleon Gonyea, an unmarried man, mortgagor, to The Loan and Guarantee Company, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of November, 1890, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the third day of November, 1890, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 54 of mortgages, on page 315.

And whereas the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of six hundred and fifty and 83-100 dollars ($650.83) with interest on six hundred and forty-two (642) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The west half of the northeast quarter (w½ ne¼) and the west half of the southeast quarter (w½ se¼) of Section thirty (30), of Town one hundred and fifty (150) of Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of six hundred and fifty and 83-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars Attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [39-45]

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Jan. 7th, 1892.]
[Last publication Feb. 18th, 1892.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain indenture of mortgage, executed and delivered by Ida D. Van Tuyl and John E. Van Tuyl, her husband, mortgagors, to the "Union Central Life Insurance Company," mortgagee, bearing date the 22d day of November, 1889, with a power of sale therein contained, which mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota on the 27th day of December, A. D. 1889, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, in book 51 of mortgages, on page 265, and whereas said mortgage was given to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars and interest thereon from its said date at the rate of eight per cent. per annum, due and payable on the first day of January in each year. And whereas default has been made in the payment of the sum of forty-eight dollars interest due and payable January 1st, 1891, and default having also been made in the payment of the sum of forty-eight dollars interest due and payable on January 1st, 1892, and both of said defaults still continue, and no part of said principal has ever been paid. And whereas the conditions of said mortgage are such that if default be made in the payment of the principal sum secured by said mortgage or interest thereon when the same becomes due, then the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage shall thereupon become due and payable at once.

And whereas both by the terms of said mortgage and the election of said mortgagee hereby made the whole amount secured by said mortgage both principal and interest accrued to this date is now due and payable.

And the amount now claimed to be due and which is due at the date of this notice upon said mortgage, including interest in accordance with the terms of said mortgage is the sum of six hundred and ninety-nine and 05-100 dollars. And no action or proceeding at law having been instituted to recover said debt or any part thereof secured by said mortgage.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained which by reason of the defaults aforesaid has become operative, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to-wit: The west half of the south-east quarter and the east half of the southwest quarter, both of the above described tracts being in Section ten (10), Township one hundred and forty nine (149), Range forty-three (43), in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and containing 160 acres of land, together with all the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging or in any wise appertaining. Said sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on Tuesday, the 23d day of February, 1892, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to satisfy and pay the amount which will then be due upon said mortgage, according to the terms thereof, and interest and fifty dollars attorney's fees as provided by said mortgage in case of foreclosure and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated January 4th, 1892.

Union Central Life Insurance Company,
Mortgagee.

Chas. P. Barker,
Attorney for said Mortgagee,
618 Guaranty Loan Building,
[38-44] Minneapolis Minn.

DR. LEDUC'S Periodical Pills—The French remedy, Paris. A reliable female regulator. Acts directly on the generative organs. Cures all ailments peculiar to women. $2, 3 for $5. Sold by A. G. Anderson, Crookston, Minn.

MILLER & FOOTE,
ATTY'S-AT-LAW,
McKinnon Block, - Crookston, Minn.

IF YOU WANT TO
SELL YOUR FARM
OR CITY PROPERTY
List it with E. M. Walsh,
THE REAL ESTATE BROKER.

He has parties who are looking for Investments in Real Estate in Polk County. Call on him, or write, giving a description of property and price.

Office in Odd Fellows Block. } CROOKSTON.

Crookston Business College.

FACULTY:

R. S. KNUDSON, L. E. GOSSMAN, C. M. WASSON.

BOOKKEEPING.	Faculty composed of specialtists.	GRAMMAR.
SHORTHAND.	Most advanced methods of instruction.	ARITHMETIC.
TYPEWRITING.	Students may take full course or special braches.	SPELLING.
PENMANSHIP.	Special English department.	READING.
COMMERCIAL LAW.	Day and evening sessions.	HISTORY.
CIVIL GOVERNMENT	Tuition Fees Low.	GEOGRAPHY.
CORRESPONDENCE.	Students may enterat any time.	COMPOSITION.

For catalogues and circulars address

R. S. KNUDSON, Principal,
Crookston, Minn.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Thursday, Jan. 14th 1892.]
[Last publication Thursday, Feb. 25th 1892.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred and fifty and seventy one hundredths Dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Thomas Plante and Mary Plante his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of June, 1889, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 1st day of July, 1889, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 45 of mortgages on page 470.

And whereas the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of the said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of nine hundred and fifty-six and fourteen hundredths dollars ($956.14), with interest on nine hundred and forty (940) dollars, thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum, from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north half of the south-east quarter (n½ se¼) and the north half of the south-west quarter (n½sw¼) of section thirty four (34) of town one hundred and fifty (150) of range forty-one (41) in Polk county and State of Minnesota with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of nine hundred and fifty-six and fourteen hundredths dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [39-45]

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.]
[Last publication Feb. 25th, 1892.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of Seventy-one and seventy eight one hundredths dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Luc Jenot and Elenore Jenot, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of December, 1888, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the seventh day of December, 1888, at 11 o'clock a. m., in book 41 of mortgages, on page 57.

And whereas the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of this notice, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of Ten Hundred and seventy- [illegible] -eight and fifty-eight dollars, ($1078.58) with interest on Ten Hundred and Seventy ($1070) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The south-east (se) quarter of section nineteen (19) of town one hundred and fifty (150) of range forty-one (41) in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Ten Hundred and Seventy-eight and fifty eight one hundredths dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty ($50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage, in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [39-45]

P. J. RUSSELL,
Attorney-at-Law
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Next to Merchants' Bank.

Mortgage Foreclosuse Sale.

(First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.)
[Last publication Jan. 25th, 1892.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of eighty-eight and eighty-five one hundredths dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Martin Thompson and Ann G. Thompson, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the second day of December 1889, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 10th day of January, 1890, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 48 of mortgages, on page 242.

And whereas the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of six hundred and ninety-two and eighty-one one hundredths dollars, ($692.81), with interest on six hundred and eighty-four (681) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum, from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north-west quarter (nw¼) of section twenty (20) of Town one hundred and forty-nine (149) of Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of six hundred and ninety-two and 81-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [39-45]

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

(First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.)
(Last publication Feb. 25th, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of eighty-eight and 85-100 dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Peder H. Mesedalen and Karl Mesedalen, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company, of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the second day of December, 1889, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the tenth day of January, 1890, at 9 o'clock a. m. in book 48 of mortgages, on page 248.

And whereas the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of six hundred ninety-two and 81-100 dollars, ($692.81) with interest on six hundred and eighty-four (684) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The northwest quarter (nw¼) of Section seventeen (17), Town one hundred and forty-nine (149), Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of six hundred and ninety-two and 81-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars Attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [39-45]

M. LeGUEE.
Veterinary Surgeon.
Residence and office on Jerome's Addition.
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN

ALDERMAN & SYLVESTER,
—DEALERS IN—
Shelf and Heavy
HARDWARE,
Sash, Doors and Mouldings

Mixed Paints, Linseed and Machine Oils, Flying Dutchman Gang Plows, J. Thompson & Sons Walking Plows. Sole agents for the Domestic Sewing Machine.

A FULL AND COMPLETE STOCK OF
STOVES AND RANGES
Corner Main and Fletcher Sts. - - - Crookston.

McKINNON BROS.,
—DEALERS IN—
ALL OF THE LEADING
Agricultural Implements
MAIN STREET. McKINNON BLOK.
Before Purchasing, Give Us a all.

SCANDIA-AMERICAN BANK,
OF CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.
Organized Under the State Laws.

Authorized capital $200,000. Paid up capital, $50,000. Undivided profits $10,500

Buys Bonds, School and Town Orders. Special attention to collections
Interest on time deposits.

OFFICERS.

C. HENDRICKSON, President.
O. H. LUCKEN, 2d Vice-President.
A. G. GALLASCH, Vice-President.
L. ELLINGTON, Cashier.
A. P. HANSON, Assistant Cashier.

DIRECTORS.

C. O. Christianson, E. P. Pierce, O. H. Lucken, A. D. Stephens, A. G. Gallasch, H. Steenerson, J. H. Locken, C. Hendrickson, Max Ericsson, L. K. Aaker, A. E. Johnson, St. Pau

Sylvester & Finseth,
—Wholesale and Retail Dealers in—
Heavy and Shelf Hardware

Stoves, Tinware, Paints and Oils, Doors, Sash, Barbed Wire, Lime, Buckeye Binders and Mowers, Hollingsworth Rakes, Favorite Wagons and Buggies, National Cordage Co's Binding Twine, Rock Island Plows, Buford Gang and Sulky Plows, Fairbanks Scales, Hose for Lawn Sprinkling, Screen Doors, Ice Cream Freezers, Gasoline Stoves, Varnish and Paper, Lawn Mowers, North Star Refrigerators and Garden Sprinklers.
Agents for Standard Rotary Shuttle Sewing Machines.

Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

S. L. COLLINS,
—PROPRIETOR OF—
MAIN STREET
Livery, Feed and Sale Stables
CORNER MAIN AND FOURTH STS, WEST SIDE,
Crookston, - - - - Minnesota.
Horses bought and sold on commission.
Everything neat and nobby.
Feeding a specialty.
FINE HEARSE
In connection which I will attend to in person

MINNESOTA HOUSE,
ONE-HALF BLOCK FROM DEPOT.
WM. HEIDRICH, - - Proprietor.

Having rented this Popular House and thoroughly re-fitted and re-furnished it throughout, I am now prepared to meet the wants of all who want good and cheap accommodations.
Farmers custom speciallyinvited,

Terms $1.00 per Day.

L E. GOSSMAN,
Attorney-at-Law,
No. 2 Fournet Block } CROOKSTON, MINN.

G. G. HENAULT
Practical Dentist
SECOND STREET,
CROOKSTON, - - MINN
OFFICE IN DOBSON'S BLOCK,
All work in my line skilfully and promptly performed. Give me a call.
G. G. HENAULT.

CROOKSTON
STEAM LAUNDRY
O. D. ROOD, Prop.,
SECOND STREET, NEAR ASH,
Opposite Commercial Hotel.)
I have just added New Machinery and Facilities for doing
Washing and Ironing
Upon the Shortest Notice in the Best Manner and upon the Most Reasonable Terms.

All Those Wanting
FAMILY WASHING
Done will find it to their interest to call at the Laundry. Goods called for and delivered.

NEW BARBER SHOP.
On Main St. C. E. MISNER, Prop.
Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.
RAZORS HONED. If you desire your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 30 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it.
Yours Respectfully,
C. E. MISNER.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Historical Society

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Editor and Proprietor. DEVOTED TO THE WELFARE OF POLK COUNTY. TERMS---$1.50 Per Annum

VOL. XV. CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA, JANUARY 28, 1892. NO. 41

Polk County Journal.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

ADVERTISING RATES.

SPACE.	1 w.	2 w.	3 w.	1 m.	3 m	6 m.	1 year
½ inch	$.50	$1 00	$1 25	$1 50	$3 00	4 50	$ 6 00
1 inch	75	1 25	1 75	2 00	4 50	6 00	10 00
2 inches	1 50	2 25	3 00	3 50	6 50	9 50	15 00
3 inches	1 75	2 75	3 75	4 50	9 50	13 50	20 00
4 inches	2 50	3 50	4 50	5 50	10 00	18 00	25 00
5 inches	3 00	4 00	5 00	6 00	12 50	20 00	30 00
¼ column	3 50	4 50	5 50	6 50	15 00	25 00	35 00
½ column	6 00	7 50	10 00	12 00	25 00	35 00	50 00
1 column	9 50	12 00	15 00	18 00	35 00	60 00	100 00

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.
2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.
3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.
4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class matter.

Marshall County Banner: Blaine can get the nomination for President if he desires it. As an American citizen he has no equal. He has just arranged matters between Italy, also Chili and the United States, so there will be no war, and in both cases the United States has got the best of it. He is growing old, has served his country nearly all his life and the feeling seems to be universal that he should be honored by an election to the presidency as a fitting crown to his brilliant career.

Another Keeley Institute.

Duluth Evening Herald:—Messrs. Fred Reynolds, J. M. Smith and Pearsons, who have the state rights for New York for the Keeley cure for drunkenness, have just opened a new bichloride of gold institute at Westfield. This is the fourth of the institutes to be established in the state. Mr. Reynolds, it is said will make his home at Westfield.

Council Proceedings.

Proceedings of a special meeting of the City Council of the City of Crookston held in the city hall on Wednesday evening January 20th, 1892.

Meeting called to order by President Cromb.

ROLL CALL.

Aldermen present—Buhn, Marshall McGlogan, Schmidt, Walker, Steenerson, Cromb.

Aldermen absent—Childs, Jennings, Jerome, Marlette.

The call of the acting Mayor was as follows:

CROOKSTON, Minn., Jan. 19, 1892.

There will be a special meeting of the City Council at the city hall, on Wednesday, January 20th, 1892, at 7:30 p. m., to receive the report of the committee on the jail site, and to complete the purchase of the ground for same.

JOHN CROMB,
President of the Council,
Acting Mayor.

The committee on jail site reported as follows:

Crookston, Minn., Jan. 20, 1892.

To the President and Members of the City Council of the City of Crookston.

GENTLEMEN—Your committee on jail site, to whom was referred the purchasing of same, beg leave to report as follows: Your committee find it impossible to complete negotiations in the matter of payment for same.

Respectfully submitted,
A. C. SCHMIDT,
W. E. WALKER,
H. STEENERSON.

Moved by Alderman Marshall, seconded by Alderman McGlogan, that the report be accepted and adopted. Carried.

On motion council adjourned.

E. C. CARRUTH,
City Clerk.

Moorhead Weekly News:—J. P. Ray, of St. Paul, who travels for a wholesale cigar house, was at the Grand Pacific hotel yesterday. He told to friends there his experience in taking the Keeley remedy for cure of drunkenness at the St. Paul institute. Ray had been a confirmed drunkard, so far gone that he was on the verge of having the delerium tremens. He was so completely under the dominion of King Alcohol that he would put the glass to his lips when he was so drunk as to be obliged to steady himself against the bar. He is a man of good ability and a successful salesman, but on account of his use of ardent spirits and frequent and prolonged sprees, lost his place time and again. The Keeley treatment has destroyed his taste and desire for intoxicating drinks, and he avoids everything like Roman and cardinal punches, or ices flavored with wine, mince pie flavored with spirits, &c., that would have a tendency to create the appetite for strong drinks anew. He told a most interesting tale of his experience and expressed himself as having received so much benefit that it would be impossible to express its value in dollars and cents. In fact he said there was not wealth enough in America to tempt him to take a drink again.

Inquiries About Silver.

New York Press.

To the Editor of The Press:

SIR—Kindly state the difference between free coinage of silver and contrariwise; also, please, the advantages as claimed by the Democracy and the disadvantages as claimed by the Republicans. L. D. M.

New York, Jan. 12.

The above is one of a number of similar questions received by The Press, and we hope that all the other inquirers will note our answer to this question. Free coinage of silver, as it is demanded by that controlling element of the Democracy which elected Speaker Crisp, means that if L. D. M. or any other man is able to go West and buy a silver mine he can bring the product of that mine to the United States mints and have it coined free of charge, so that he will make the profit on the coinage instead of the government's making it, as the government does now. Bar silver is now selling at 93¾ cents per ounce of 480 grains. That means that the 371.25 grains of pure silver which (with the 41.25 grains of alloy) are used in making a standard silver dollar, whose weight is 412.5 grains, are actually worth about 73 cents, and that under free coinage the silver owner could get a dollar for 73 cents' worth of his product.

A very good thing for the silver owner, for awhile, perhaps; but how would the rest of us fare, and how would even the silver owner fare under such "inflation"? The merchant wouldn't tell us that he would not take a legal tender dollar for more than 73 cents, but he could and would mark up his 73 cent goods to a dollar, and others in proportion, just as soon as the rush of silver to be coined free of charge had resulted in a circulation of a greatly increased number of silver dollars, and the advance of the gold dollar to a corresponding premium. The Democracy claims that that sort of inflation of the currency would bring business "expansion" and activity. But it would be the activity of fever and delirium. It would be as reasonable for a man with a flying machine to fly higher and higher notwithstanding the certainty that his machine would sooner or later collapse. The higher such a man flew, the worse he would get hurt when the drop came. The experience of business panics shows that the greater the "activity" and "expansion" of this speculative character, the more cruel the financial disaster that comes with the collapse.

Against that sort of silver financiering the Republicans urge that no silver be coined free until we have agreed with other nations as to a uniform ratio with the civilized world, in order to avoid the differences of valuation which would cause other nations to draw our gold away from us and speculate at our expense. The present American silver dollar is coined at a ratio of 1 to 16, or in other words we put sixteen times as much silver in a silver dollar as we put gold in a gold dollar. Other silver coining nations in Europe put fifteen and one-half times as much, and they are not willing to come to an agreement with us until we provide for the recoinage here at home of the $400,000,000 silver already coined. Such an agreement as we ought to seek would be best for 60,000,000 of ordinary citizens, because it would mean a steady and sound currency, and a dollar that was worth just as much when the workingman bought groceries with it on Monday as it was when he received it in his pay envelope on Saturday. But you can see that there would be no extra profit to the silver producer if what the government coined free of charge into a silver dollar were a full dollar's worth of silver. That is why he opposes the people who want to remove the danger of speculative panics.

Good Market For Oats

Having had a fine oat crop swept away by hail in few minutes time, we are obliged to buy oats to supply our farm teams, and we will be glad to pay the highest market price to any who are owing us several years subscription. We shall need about 1000 bushels and will take them as fast as offered. Bring on your oats and get your receipts.

AN ORDIANCE

Relating to the Fire Department of the City af Crookston.

The City Council of the City of Crookston do ordain:

SECTION 1. That the organization in the city of Crookston known and designated as "Crookston Volunteer Fire Department," be and the same hereby is declared to be the duly authorized and legally constituted Fire Department of the city of Crookston.

SEC. 2. That said Fire Department shall be composed of all members of said organization in good standing according to the by-laws thereof, at the date of the passage of this ordinance, and such other persons as may from time to time comply with initiatory by-laws of said organization and become members thereof in accordance with the same.

SEC. 3. That said organization shall have the power to pass such by-laws, rules and regulations for the good order and efficient maintenance of the same as to the members thereof may seem necessary, and in such manner as they may deem advisable, and all by-laws, rules and regulations heretofore passed and now in force in such organization, in so much as they are not inconsistent with this or any ordinance of the city of Crookston heretofore passed or to be passed, or the laws of the State of Minnesota, shall have full power and effect in so much and to such extent as they apply to the individual concerns and efficiency of said Fire Department.

SEC. 4. It is hereby made the duty of said Fire Department to file with the city clerk of said city, within ten days after the passage of this ordinance, a list of all members thereof in good standing at the date of the passage of this ordinance, which list shall be certified to by the Secretary of said Department and countersigned by its Chief.

SEC. 5. It is hereby made the duty of said department, whenever a member thereof shall cease, either because of death, resignation, dismissal or otherwise, to belong thereto, to at once by its proper officer notify the city clerk of said city; and upon such notification the said clerk shall strike from the list of members of such organization the name of such member so retiring.

SEC. 6. It is further made the duty of said department by its proper officers to, within a reasonable time thereafter, present to the clerk the name or names of any and all persons who may comply with the regulations of said department, and join the same after the passage of this ordinance, and thereupon the said clerk shall annex such name or names to the list of the members of said department.

SEC. 7. That the officers of said department shall consist of a chief, to be appointed by the city council, and such other officers as to the members of such department may seem necessary.

SEC. 8. The chief of said department shall have general supervision of the same, and of all apparatus and other material used by or in connection with said department; provided, the said department may require such other and further duties of the said chief as to the members thereof may seem meet.

SEC. 9. That all fire apparatus and paraphernalia used and required for the purpose of quelling any conflagration, shall, and the same is hereby ordered to be kept in that portion of the first floor of the city hall of said city of Crookston, fronting on Broadway, in said city; and it is hereby made a misdemeanor for any person but the janitor of said building or the duly authorized members of said fire department, to remove, meddle or in any wise interfere with said fire apparatus, and any person found guilty of a violation of this section of this ordinance, before any Justice of the Peace of said city, shall be fined not less than one or more than one hundred dollars, and may be imprisoned until such fine and costs are paid.

SEC. 10. It is hereby ordained that the bell known as the fire alarm bell, and hanging in the bell tower upon the city hall of the city of Crookston, be and the same hereby is constituted the lawful fire alarm of the city of Crookston.

SEC. 11. It is hereby made the duty of all members of said fire department, to respond without delay to the fire alarm of said city whenever the same may be sounded in giving alarm of fire; provided, however, that upon reasonable excuse shown any member may be excused from responding to said alarm.

SEC. 12. As remuneration for services as aforesaid as firemen, each of the members of said fire department shall receive for any response to said fire alarm by him actually made, the sum of two dollars for every such response; provided further, that before any bill for response to said alarm shall be paid to said department, the same shall be duly certified by the Chief thereof, which verification shall include the names of each member present, and presented in the same manner as ordinary bills are presented to the city council of said city.

SEC. 13. If any person shall, at any fire, refuse to obey the orders of the chief of said fire department or other officers vested with authority at such fire, such person may be arrested by the direction of the officer whose orders are so disobeyed, and upon complaint made before the Chief Justice of said city, shall be punished by a fine not to exceed fifty dollars and costs of prosecution, and may be imprisoned until such fine and costs are paid.

SEC. 14. It is further provided that any person or persons furnishing a team of horses in response to any alarm of fire, for the purpose of aiding in the removal of fire apparatus from its repository to the location of any fire, and who does actually so aid in said removal, shall be remunerated as follows, viz: For the first team so aiding the sum of four dollars for each response; for the second team two dollars and for the third team one dollar; provided, however, none of the persons supplying aforesaid teams shall be entitled to any remuneration for aforesaid services unless said teams shall also assist in reconveying said apparatus to its place of keeping; and all bills for services in this section specified shall be presented in the same manner as is provided for the presentation of bills in Section 12 of this ordinance.

SEC. 15. All ordinances and parts of ordinances in so much as they may be inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

SEC. 16. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage, approval, publication and recording.

Upon the call of ayes and nays the vote stood as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative—Buhn, Childs, McGlogan, Marlette, Schmidt, Walker, Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative—none.

Upon this vote the resolution was declared carried by the President of the Council.

Passed this 12th day of Jan., 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
President of the Council.

Approved this 12th day of Jan., 1892.

Attest: JOHN CROMB, Acting Mayor.
E. C. CARRUTH, Clek.

Norway's Plan of Restricting the Liquor Traffic.

Toledo Blade.

In the December number of the Nineteenth Century, a monthly Review published in London, the Earl of Meath has an article on "The Diminution of Drunkenness in Norway," which contains facts of the highest importance to all interested in the solution of the drink problem. The Earl states the fact briefly when he says that only a few years ago drunkenness prevailed to a large extent in both Sweden and Norway; but that now both these countries, especially Norway, have, in a large measure, freed themselves from the clutches of the drink demon, with the happiest results.

The effort to emancipate the people from the curse started in the town of Gothenburg, in Sweden. There the municipal council is made the licensing authority, and fixes the number of licenses which it deems proper. But instead of issuing them to individuals, it grants a monopoly to an association of shareholders formed for the purpose, and which undertakes to conduct the trade in the interests of the public.

This monopoly is given for a number of years, and the municipal council retains full control over the operations of the society, fixes the number and location of the saloons, and all employes of the society are subject to its approval. The stockholders are precluded from making more than 5 per cent on the capital invested each year. All profits in excess of this are paid over to the municipal council, and used as part of the revenue raised by taxation.

The advantage of the Gothenburg plan is that neither company nor its hired saloonkeepers are interested in increasing the amount of drinking, at least beyond the amount of sales required to secure them the maximum rate of profit allowed—5 per cent. The salary of the saloonkeepers themselves is fixed by the municipal council, thus making them so far independent of the company. The disadvantage of the plan is that it makes it to the interest of selfish taxpayers to have the traffic increased in order that the profits shall be as much as possible above the 5 per cent, so as to decrease the tax burden as much as can be done.

The success of the Gothenburg experiment led to the adoption of a system on the same general lines for Norway, the strong lines of the Gothenburg plan being retained and the weak ones eliminated. In Norway the municipal council fix the number of saloons which shall be licensed, and grant a monopoly of the traffic for a term, usually five years, to a company organized for the purpose. The council retains full control of the company's operations, as in the Gothenburg plan, and they must also have the royal sanction. The details of management of saloons are put in charge of a committee composed of a certain number of the shareholders of the company, selected by their fellows, and a number of representatives of the municipal council. As in Gothenburg the company is not allowed more than 5 per cent on the capital invested.

The great improvement over the Gothenburg plan is that the profits accruing above the 5 per cent allowed the company is not, in Norway, allowed to go into the general revenue fund raised by taxation. No matter how great it may be, nor how heavy the taxes, not one penny of it can be used to reduce taxation. It is applied each year to helping deserving charities, benevolent associations, philanthropic institutions, etc., which are entirely dependent on the voluntary support of the public. Any institution or object which derives any money, no matter how little, from the funds raised by taxation, is excluded from all benefit. Hence the municipal councils can have no possible object in favoring the slightest extension of the traffic.

Local option exists in Norway, and when there is a majority opposed to licensing, prohibition is the rule. In 1890, there were but 59 towns and cities in the whole country which gave a majority for license; and where the traffic is allowed, it is under the restrictions of the plan outlined above. The regulations concerning saloons are extremely strict, and are enforced to the letter. The men employed in the saloons are uniformed and each has his number on his collar. Persons under sixteen years of age are not allowed to be served with liquor under any pretext.

The amount of capital invested can not be increased by lavish expenditure in fitting up saloons. The bar fittings are all of the simplest and plainest. The rooms are kept absolutely clean. They are not allowed to have seats of any kind, no private rooms, nor is there any convenience permitted to favor loitering, or using the saloons as places of social resort. It is plain that here is dealt one of the severest blows possible to the increase of drinking. The power of the saloon in this country lies largely in its being used as a place of common resort to pass away the time, and where men can meet and converse, or play cards or other games. All saloons are closed—and this provision is strictly carried out—at 5 o'clock on Saturday evenings, and on the evening before any church or other festival, and remain closed until 8 o'clock on Monday, or the day following the festival. The only hours they are allowed to be open are from 8 a. m. until 10 p. m.

The Earl of Meath, in his article, says that the workings of the law since its passage, which was on May 3d, 1871, show conclusively "that the vice of drunkenness in Norway has received a staggering blow, and that the consumption of ardent spirits is immensely reduced; while great financial results have been attained, to the benefit of deserving institutions, charities, and objects of public utility which, but for the life thus given them, could not exist."

If the traffic in intoxicants is to be permitted, the Norwegian plan is thus shown, by its workings for twenty years to be the best plan so far devised, and to have reduced the amount of drunkenness and the quantity of liquors consumed very materially. Of course, the objections remain that men who have the craving for rum, and those whose will-power has been destroyed by the drink habit, have no possible relief; and that, even though much restricted, by having the social element of the saloon largely eliminated, the opportunity still exists for the formation of the drink habit by young men. Prohibition is the only thing which can fully protect these and pulverize the rum power

$75 MONTH $300

Do You Want

Employment ?

Cy which you can make from $75.00 to $250.00 per month—the amount depending on whether you work part or all your time, and on the amount of VIM and VIGOR and PLUCK and PUSH you put into the work. If so, it might pay you to write to us. WE'VE GOT SOMETHING THAT GOES, and there's room for a few more to come in. It won't cost you much to investigate—only a two-cent stamp. WE WANT A LIVE, WIDE-AWAKE REPRESENTATIVE IN YOUR COMMUNITY, EITHER MAN OR WOMAN. If you are interested we'd like to hear from you. We'll show you where there's some money. All information by return mail. Then if you are not convinced, all right; there'll be no harm done—only YOU'LL MISS A GOOD THING. Aetter write at once. Address

The Brodix Publishing Co.
WASHINGTON, D. C.

NEW FEED MILL

CHRIS. ANDERSON, Prop.

I desire to annouce to the farmers of Polk County that I have rented the

LAURENCE BUILDING, ON MAIN STEERT,

Next to Brown's New Livery Stable, and am now prepared to grind feed of all kinds promptly. You can get your feed in two hours after you bring me your grain. Prices Reasonable

Try My New Mill!

A. J. & A. McKINNON,

CROOKSTON

CARRIAGE WORKS.

Manufactures everything that runs on wheels. Repairing done on short notice and in workmanlike manner.

GIVE US A CALL

A. J. & A. McKINNON, - - Main Street, Crookston.

Schmidt, the Painter,

CARRIES A FULL AND COMPLETE STOCK OF

PAINTS,

OILS AND

VARNISHES.

ALSO A FULL AND COMPLETE LINE OF

WALL PAPER.

Painting in all its branches, and Paper Hanging artistically done.

Call at the Shop on Broadway.

BOSTON

ONE PRICE ONE PRICE ONE PRICE

CLOTHING HOUSE.

Our sturdy, steady, satisfactory business has been obtained by the honest industry and proper respect of the people's common sense. This season we speak to thousands of new friends who expect from us the lowest price for Reliable Merchandise that any house will name. We ask you in your own interest

To see our Overcoats,
To see our Suits,
To see our Trousers,
} Before going elsewhere.

Business Suits, strong and stylish. Dress Suits in soft, silken, clinging clay worsted, that will never gloss or fade. Fur Coats, Fur Caps, Plush Caps. Furnishings and Underwear. Everything desirable, Everything good. Latest Novelties in Neckwear.

Mossefin & Lindell, Props

HOW TO SAVE MONEY

BUY OF SLOCUM,

The Leading Grocer. The Best Goods for the Least Money.

SPECIALTIES | I MAKE A SPECIALTY OF | SPECIALTIES

TEAS, COFFEES, CANNED SALMON and CHOICE BUTTER.

HAVE YOU TRIED MY Wheat Germ Meal?

Everything in my line fresh from the wholesaler at the VERY LOWEST LIVING RATES. ☞ Give me a Trial.

W. E. SLOCUM, - - BROADWAY.

Polk County Journal.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.

Crookston, January 28, 1892.

'Round Home.

Wheat—
1 Hard	72.
1 Northern	65.
2 Northern	62.
3 Northern	59.

Milder weather has prevailed during the past week.

The policemen's ball occurs this evening. A big time is expected.

Andreas Warren, of Maple Lake, died recently of typhoid fever, we are told.

Mr. G. Peterson, of Garden, gave us a pleasant call on Friday of last week.

A. G. Gallosch came up last week to look after his business interests in the city.

R. E. White, one of the leading Marais farmers, was in the city last Thursday.

M. R. Brown expects a carload or two of choice work horses and mares some time next week.

Geo. A. Ralph starts for the Reservation this week to complete another surveying contract.

We want a few oats right away quick and will pay thirty cents per bushel for them on subscription.

Comrade S. Snedeker was down from Mentor last week chatting with old friends and comrades.

Doc Rutledge, of the Bulletin, was in the city on Thursday last and gave THE JOURNAL a pleasant call.

Wheat opened out at 72 cents on Monday morning. The market indicates considerable strength.

Sunday last was one of the warmest and pleasantest days in January, and every rig in town was busy.

Dr. A. Nelson was up from Fertile on Monday on legal business. Reports a profitable year's business.

L. C. Couverette has bought the Moore place, a farm of 480 acres, five or six miles north-east of the city.

Charles Henderson and Wm. O'Reilley, prominent citizens of Fisher, visited the county seat on Thursday last.

Joseph Robar has been spending a few weeks in St. Paul, visiting his brother Frank, the deputy Probate Judge.

A. C. Schmidt started for a visit to the old home in Wisconsin last week and incidentally talk up the advantages of this country.

Mr. Webster, of Webster & Brandtjen, type founders, of Minneapolis, was in the city on Tuesday and gave THE JOURNAL a pleasant call.

Miss McAnulty and brother, of Maple Bay, and Miss Berg, of Mentor, came down last week to attend the high school for the balance of the term.

W. J. Murphy was up last week looking after his interests here. He says the company contemplate great improvements next season.

Crookston Alliance will meet on Saturday, Feb. 6th, at the city hall at 2 p.m. A large attendance is requested as business of importance is to be transacted.

Rudy Burkhardt has a new baker who arrived from Wabasha last week. He is one of the best in the business and Rudy invites his friends to sample his wares.

August Stromberg, of McIntosh called to fix up that little subscription on Tuesday. Says the threshing was pretty nearly completed last fall in his neighborhood.

Holmboe & Locken's delivery horse took a bit of a go-as-you-please exercise on Monday, collided with Herb's awning and succeeded in making a total wreck of it and also of the delivery sleigh.

We are paying 30 cents per bushel for oats and 40 cents per bushel for barley on subscription, and are ready to accept either until we get enough. First come first served. Bring on your oats and barley.

P. O. Estenson was up from the west side on Monday and dropped in to encourage us with another paid up subscription. He agrees with all other farmers down there that the need of a railroad is urgent.

M. W. Jenson was down from McIntosh last Thursday. Says that the mill has all the business it can attend to this season. We are told by parties who ought to know that Jenson's flour is among the best in the market.

Another break in some of the internal arrangements in connection with the water-works caused some bother last week. The company promises that all these little annoyances shall cease as soon as they get their improvements completed.

Eustache Payment, of Red Lake Falls, was in on Tuesday and dropped in to see THE JOURNAL man on subscription. These little visits are highly appreciated by us at this time. We hope they will continue until our list is fully squared up.

M. E. Bartlett, Esq., has received the sad news of the death of his only brother, Clarence, which event occurred on the 12th inst., at his home in Texas. Clarence Bartlett was about 42 years old, a single man and leaves an aged father and a brother to mourn his loss.

Dr. Barnes, one of the old-timers, is in the city this week.

Charles Hardrath returned from a trip to Wisconsin on Thursday last. Says that many of his old neighbors and friends are making preparations to come to this country next spring. Everybody is interested in hearing about this country.

Samuel Hayes, one of the partners of the Hayes Bros. big farm on the west-side, dropped in on Wednesday to set that subscription ahead a peg and report progress. Says about 20 per cent. of the threshing in his neighborhood remains to be done and a larger per cent. of the plowing. Hays Bros. got their work well along.

Mr. A. Daniels has bought the old Honeywell place, up the river a few miles, and will take possession as soon as Mr. Roberts' lease expires. He has secured a choice farm, as that is the farm that used to raise 100 bushels of oats per acre for Sam whenever Fred Fox dared to report 85 per acre. There were no flies on Sam's figures.

The new Reckett block is approaching completion. Very soon the lower rooms will be ready for occupancy and most of them, we are told, are already engaged. The land office officials expect to take possession of their rooms up stairs early next week also. This block will be one of the most handsome business structures in the city.

Comrade H. C. Burdick was up on Monday and such a sight as he was! He got into a bit of unpleasantness with Dr. W. A. Robertson, and though the doctor is a slimly-built, innocent-looking individual, when comrade Burdick left his room he had not one tooth left in his head. The doctor promises to make it right with Burdick by supplying a new set of teeth.

Aleck McDonald returned to civilization last week. Has sold his farm near Grand Forks, gets half cash and the balance on interest which will enable him to live like a king hereafter. All Aleck needs now to make him perfectly happy is a good wife and as it is Leap Year there are hopes for him—we do not suppose he would ever find time to pop the question himself.

Do not forget the 60 Days marked down RED FIGURE SALE of Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods at the Boston One Price Clothing House. It will interest you if you wish to save money.

MOSSEFIN & LINDELL,
Proprietors.

M. E. Kirsch and C. P. DeMers have gone to look over various and sundry jails in the State, probably to see which one they would prefer to live in—we can see no other good they can do the county by the trip. But then, you know, this is an era of "reform" and the boys seem bound to have a good time while they are reforming—and the tax-payers will pay the fiddler.

The old M. E. church building, on the corner of Main and Fifth streets, is being utilized for school purposes. By another summer it will be necessary to build a new school house and it has been suggested that Jerome's Addition would be the proper place to put it. Many residences will be added to those already there next season and it would seem as though that was the proper thing to do.

O. H. Lucken:—"Now that Chili backs water and the whole business is to be settled without a scrimmage, it looks like us old roosters wouldn't get any fun out of it. Well, I never did believe the little bantam had any sand in its craw, anyhow, and the position she now takes settles that load of poles. Guess we'll have to depend upon the re-union in Minneapolis next month for our fun."

Oscar, the bright little boy of Eli and Mrs. Austin died on Sunday evening after a week's illness of brain fever. At the time the boy was taken ill his father was in hospital in St. Paul and the boy's symptoms becoming alarming, Mr. Austin was summoned home, arriving in time to be with the boy a few days. Oscar was a bright, intelligent lad, six years and two months old and his loss will be a severe blow to the fond parents. The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon.

A cordial welcome to all to attend services at the Congregational church next Sunday. Mr. Battey's sermon will be on "Sharpening God's Sickles," at 11 a. m., and "La Grippe in Religious Life," at 7:30 p. m. Then the Sunday school at 12:15 p. m., Junior Society at 3:30 and Young People's prayer meeting at 6:30. Let all our workers do their best to have a full house morning and evening, next Sabbath. Hotel guests and all strangers cordially invited and the whole family ought to turn out in the evening.

There was a social at the residence of Mr. N. P. Stone Tuesday evening. It was gotten up by the Y. P. S. C. E. of the Congregational church and was a very enjoyable and successful affair. The party numbered about 80 and the lunch and games were alike inviting and worthy of special notice. We are pleased to record the occurrence of such happy gatherings. They are good for old and young, alike in cultivating mutual friendships in social life among our citizens and in taking the place of other questionable amusements of the people.

BUY A FARM

I have some of the best land

IN

Polk County

In my hands for sale

CHEAP!

And you can make prices and terms to suit you. Write me for lists.

L. F. Menage,

14-39] Minneapolis, Minn.

Were You Hit By Hail.

Call at THE JOURNAL office and let us know how much grain you will need for feed and seed, so that we may know how much must be provided for. Do you know of any neighbor too modest to make known his own wants? Let us have his name and probable needs. Don't be backward about coming forward and let the good work go on until all those who need are supplied.

LOST.

Near Beltrami, Polk Co., Minn., one note for Six Hundred Dollars, ($600.), give by A. Boddy to H. B. Budd, with interest at 10 per cent per annum, drawn on Jan. 3rd 1892, due in 90 days. all parties are hereby cautioned against buying said note as payment has been forbidden. H. B. BUDD.

[41-43]

Left-Over-Remnant-Sale

—AT—

FONTAINE & ANGLIM'S.

DRESS GOODS.

Cheviots,
Homespuns,
Ladies Cloths,
Dress Flannels,
Black Goods,
Wide Wale Diagonals,
.........1¼ to 6 yards long.
.........40 in. to 45 in. wide.

SILKS.

CHINA,
SURAH'S,
PRINTED,
PLAIN BLACKS,
RIBBONS,
TRIMMINGS,
VELVETS,
The CHEAPNESS will ASTONISH You.

DOMESTICS.

PRINTS.........
MUSLINS.........
GINGHAMS.........
WHITE GOODS.........
May Be Just What You Want.

REMNANTS OF LACES AND EMBROIDERIES IN ABUNDANCE.

Next Monday is the 1st day of February, until which date our offer to accept payment at the rate of $1.50 per annum runs, and we find upon looking over our list that there are still some who have paid no attention to our statement sent them nor to our notices in the paper. We have reason to believe that each and every one of these persons is financially good for the amounts due us, and yet we do not like to sue not even one, and we have done all in our power to avoid such a course under the impression that every man intends to settle. Many have written us, promising as soon as possible to settle. We have been contemplating improvements in our office which will involve a considerable outlay of cash and we rely upon our delinquent friends to do their part in the matter, and while we do not like to put any one to extra expense in this matter, and, after those who have so far paid no attention to our statements sent out by letter, or our notices in the paper, have had a reasonable time to save themselves cost, we intend that some of them shall come to the city and see us, whether they like it or not. We hope that we shall be spared this unpleasant duty, but if we are forced to it no one but the delinquent himself will be to blame, for we have given all plenty of opportunities to avoid any unpleasantness. Remember, all have until Feb. 1st. to settle at the rate of $1.50 per annum, and all who have asked for further time have had it granted; and remember that this request is made for the purpose of giving all who honestly intend to settle with us some time or other one more opportunity to save costs and unpleasantness, and we expect replies. We would gladly avoid making you trouble and costs but we must have something, even though that something be no more than several judgments—in some cases we think we should prefer that to a larger sized silence.

WE MEAN BUSINESS,

E. E. Abbott, of Grove Park, dropped in to see us on Tuesday evening and to have a social chat with THE JOURNAL man. In relation to the yarn in the Times to the effect that the authorities of Grove Park allowed a pauper to lie around in a hovel until too badly frozen for any use, Mr. A. says that the man, Kramer, who is referred to, has a claim of 160 acres of land and from choice lives alone upon it for the most part of the time, but the town has contributed to his support, purchasing him food and clothes at times. The man at times appears to be demented and will sleep in straw stacks with a big club handy to "defend himself against his enemies," he says. At one time during the winter he got slightly frost-bitten and clothing was procured for him; he was also sent to the Judge of Probate for examination but declared to be sane and sent back to Grove Park. While he is not by any means violently insane there is no question but that he is off his mental equilibrium and that the town authorities have done their full duty by him is very evident. Having a claim, he can hardly be classed as a pauper, and if he is a sane man he is able to support himself at least by manual labor, yet it seems he will not work. We cannot see how the town authorities can be held responsible for the care of such a man. If the man was insane or unable to work the case might be different, even though he has a farm, but medical experts have pronounced him sane and it is true that he is able to work if he was a mind to.

Albert Simpson has interested himself in behalf of the hail-sufferers and is canvassing among his neighbors in their behalf. While much has been done for a few of them, much remains to be done if all are supplied with seed and feed.

A. M. Hanson was down from Wylia on Tuesday and paid THE JOURNAL a pleasant visit. Says there isn't much threshing going on just now but lots of it to do later. Thinks the grain was all so well stacked that none of it will be likely to spoil in stack.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found the advertisement of the Moorhead Institute for the cure of drunkenness and the opium habit. This institution has recently been started and with marked success—a number of its patients already rejoicing in their newly acquired liberty. Absolute cure guaranteed or no pay. Dr. Darrow, an old and successful practitioner of Moorhead, is the physician in charge, and H. D. Scott is manager. For full particulars, address Moorhead Institute, Moorhead, Clay Co., Minn.

A Singular Accident.

Geo. Vine, the Robert street butcher, met with a serious accident on Tuesday evening in his market. In attempting to take a piece of meat from the hook, while holding the knife in his right, another piece fell from a hook higher up, struck the knife, knocking it upon George's left hand cutting a severe gash. George at once sought Dr. Dunlop who sewed up the gash and then he took a lay off for a few hours. He was walking around a little on Wednesday morning.

"The Journal" Hail Fund.

The following named persons have contributed the amounts set opposite their names to the fund for the relief of those who lost their crops by hail. Everybody should have a hand in this good work. Send in your names and the amount you are willing to contribute (in money or grain) to THE JOURNAL or Lewis Ellington, Scandia-American Bank, Crookston, Minn:

THE JOURNAL	$5.00
B. C. Jorgenson	10 00
O. H. Richardson	10 bushels barley.
Frank Bivins	10 bushels seed wheat.
W. G. Lytle	10 bushels seed wheat.
Lewis Ellington	$5.00.
E. Lanctot	10 bu. oats, 10 bu. barley.

Don't Be Backward

ABOUT

COMING FORWARD.

AND SECURING SOME OF THE

BARGAINS

OFFERED HERE BY

E. M. Walsh,

Real Estate Broker,

I. O. O. F. Block, Crookston, Minn.

160 ACRES good Farm Land in Grove Park, 60 acres cultivated, two miles from R. R. station, one-half mile from school
A Bargain at $800.

ANOTHER Quarter Section in Grove Park, good farm buildings, good water, 30 acres cultivated, 40 acres pasture, one-half mile from R. R. station, school and church.
Cheap at $8.00 per acre.

SIX first-class farms in Town of Lambert, one of the best Townships in Polk County, from $600 to $1,200 each, well adapted for mixed farming. Look this up. Sure to find something to suit.

SECTION 21, Andover Township, every foot of which can be cultivated, only 5 miles from Crookston.
Cheap at $12.50 per acre.

200 ACRE FARM in Fairfax, four miles from Crookston, 180 acres cultivated. Cheap buildings, easy terms.
A bargain at $2,400.

TWO first-class farms in Lowell, two miles from city of Crookston, good farm buildings, artesian well, high state of cultivation. One at $28 and the other at $20 per acre.

THREE fine farms in town of Sanders. All near R. R. station, good soil. Most of them partly improved and are to be had at $6.00 per acre. Easy terms.

GOOD STOCK FARM, with good house and barn, 160 acres, two miles from Thief River Falls. Only $1.000, one-third cash, balance long time.

HALF Section Land, Town of Reis, two miles from R. R. station, 130 acres under cultivation, 76 acres ready for seeding in spring. Good house and barn, artesian water. Cheap at $2.500, one-quarter cash, balance 5 years time.

160 ACRES in Town of Godfrey. Good land, near railroad. Only $5.00 per acre.

160 ACRES Town of Gervais. This land is on the Red Lake River. Some good timber and partly improved and is cheap at $9 per acre.

ANOTHER piece in Town of Gervais, four miles from Red Lake Falls. $950.

320 ACRE FARM in Parnell, six miles from Crookston, well improved, good buildings. Can be had for $3,000.

TWO good farms in town of Fanny, two miles from railroad station. Partly improved. Only $6.00 per acre.

320 ACRE FARM only one-half mile from St. Hilaire and is offered at $8.00 per acre, easy terms.

160 ACRES in Town of Crookston, four miles from city, and only $1,000.

ANOTHER piece in same town, well improved and can be had for $1,350 on easy terms.

320 ACRE FARM in Town of Kertsonville, two miles from railroad station, partly improved. Cheap—no mistake. Only $1,200 and on easy terms.

TWO good farms in Town of Liberty, 160 acres each. $750 buys either.

320 ACRE FARM in Town of Roome. Fine state of cultivation. Good farm buildings, 170 acres ready for seeding in spring. Dirt cheap at $4,000, one-half cash, balance to suit. Stock and farm machinery can also be bought cheap.

TWO good farms in Town of Lowell can be had for $959 each. Easy terms, long time.

This is the Cap-sheaf of All!

520 ACRES land, 3 miles from Fisher, all under cultivation, 420 acres ready for seeding. Good farm buildings. Good water. $25 per acre takes this, and will throw in 20 head horses and harnesses, 7 wagons, 4 binders, 2 mowers, 2 rakes, 4 gang plows, 2 harrows, new press drill, 2 sleds, 2 cows, full sett Blacksmith tools and small farm implements, $9,000 cash and balance long time at 7 per cent.

BELTRAMI ITEMS.

BELTRAMI, Jan. 25th, 1892.

We are all glad to see Mrs. D. T. Herriott again. She is visiting her daughter, Mrs. H. B. Budd.

A few of C. E. Ford, Jr's., friends surprised him on Thursday evening. Charley was equal to the occasion and had plenty of refreshments for all, liquid as well as solid.

A very select sociable was held at the residence of I. U. Webb the other evening. The elite of Reis and Liberty were present.

Lewis Seeger, the contractor and builder, is very busy these days. Don't even have time to go and see his best girl.

Our teacher, Joe Ball, and John Mjelde went to Maple Lake Sunday to fish.

Wm. Price, who has had the "grip," is improving.

John Towers is selling more lumber than any one who was ever in that business here. EDNA.

Geo. Vine gets another carload of hogs from below this week. For choice meats of all kinds go to Vine's Robert street meat market.

EDNA, Minn., Jan. 23th, 1892.

EDITOR POLK CO. JOURNAL:—

Dear Sir:—I have been thinking you and I like to do good; I think every one's motto should be "Do all the good you can to all the people you can and not injure yourself or family." I want you to tell the farmers' wives how to make cough Syrup as this is the time for La Grippe. It is my own; no one told me how to make it, but I would not take two hundred dollars and promise not to make or use any more. It is harmless; my children used to get it and drink it. It will cure la grippe, lung fever, bronchitis, whooping cough, prevent croup if taken in time, prevents diphtheria, good for catarrh, sore mouth and scrofulous eruptions, it cleanses the blood; consumptives will find much relief from its use. Do not think I do not know what I am talking about. I have raised four children (all I ever had), my youngest nearly eighteen, and I have not employed a doctor for twenty years. MIRANDA P. HALLOCK.

COUGH SYRUP.

Put ten cents worth of hoarhound in a tin pail, pour in one qaart boiling water, set on back of stove to steep one hour, strain into a pitcher, put in one pint more water on the leaves, steep half an hour, break up three sticks best licorice, put in a pitcher to soak; when leaves are steeped enough, strain in with the other, throw leaves away wash out the pail and pour in the contents of the pitcher, put back on the stove to boil and stir well to dissolve licorice; put in five coffee cups of white sugar and one pound honey, boil to dissolve sugar, then take it off the stove, put in half an ounce essence of peppermint, one large tablespoonful of oil of tar, stir well, put in bottles and set in a cool place.

For Sale Cheap.

Buffalo robes and cutters. Mrs. Mary Schreader, Crookston, Minn. [35-tf]

Part of a Great Movement.

The idea of educating people in their homes, instead of confining the process within the walls of a college, is just beginning to make itself known and felt. The great movement termed "University extension" is simply a movement to bring some of the advantages of the higher schools into the homes of the people; that advantage may be taken of the very expensive machinery of higher education by those who are unable to leave home or to raise the money required. The university extension course is largely the outgrowth of Chautauqua influences and the influence of the correspondence schools of language, etc., which have been established for some years. An incorporated law school has been established at Detroit, Mich., under the name of the Sprague Correspondence School of Law—so named from its originator. The school has been in operation fifteen months and is doing great service to the many men and women throughout the country who are desirous of obtaining a liberal education in the law, but who are not able to attend the law colleges.

Ship your wheat to O. Tharaldson general agent of the Northwestern Farmers' Protective Association, at Duluth, and make from 4 to 7 cents a bushel. For further particulars as to membership, &c., inquire of L. K. Hassel, Grand Forks, N. D. [25-tf]

WANTED!

Two or three men to work for me in Polk County. $4 to $12 per day, sure. If you are idle or working for small money now is the time. Any one can do the work and make big wages. Particulars free. Address,

W. ALBERT LANCTOT,
[41-48] Crookston, Minn.

LIST OF LETTERS remaining unclaimed at the Crookston, Minn., Post Office, for the week ending Jan. 23, 1892:

Chase, Mr C W
Gabrio, Jo e
Pettersor, Mr O P—3
Samuelson, Miss Anna.
Fjeld, Timand H
Jansen, Miss Caruo
Syverson, Miss Ella

Persons calling for the above please say advertised. WM. B. DAWLEY, Postmaster.

NEW BARBER SHOP.

On Main St. C. E. MISNER. Prop.

Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.

RAZORS HONED.

If you desire your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 30 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it.

Yours Respectfully,
C. E. MISNER.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Polk County Journal.

CROOKSTON, • • MINN

THE prospect that Great Britain will run out of the regulation material for kings and queens may be alarming, but it does not quite seem that way on this side of the water. Luxuries of that sort are too expensive.

THE striking printers in Berlin and Leipsic are, according to last reports, holding out against their employers and are receiving substantial aid from members of their own craft in England, and from workers in other trades.

IT is the general observation that while the grip circulates about the country about as freely as before, it does less fatal work. The mortality in the cities is not unusual. The germ is perhaps losing its force, and will drop out of the business at an early time.

IN the young Duke of Orleans the prodigal levity of the older branch of the Bourbons seems to have overcome the parsimonious traits of the Orleanist family. Will this make the heir to hopeless claims less popular among the Monarchists after all?

IT would seem to an unprejudiced mind that Belva Lockwood was old enough to have become reconciled to one of the old parties. But, as Old Scroggs says, with all the contrariness of a woman's nature, Belva insists that she will oppose both for the Presidency and run alone.

GARZA is reported to be despondent and discouraged at the bad outlook [illegible]. The natural reaction following the fun and excitement of the last few weeks may be expected to soon wear off, however, and he will resume his game of hide and seek with pristine vigor and rollicking mirth.

PROBATE JUDGE WALES of Burlington, Vt., was called upon recently by a dubious looking man, who solemnly addressed him with the assurance: "I am the devil." The court promptly exorcised him. There were no horns visible, but, probably, too many of them is what accounted for his appearance.

AT Kingston, N. Y., the people proposed to have a public hospital, and in aid thereof the ladies made arrangements to give a kermess. But when this became known the pulpits began to rumble and thunder against it as an immoral show. The pastors in their innocence appear to have confused the kermess and the can-can.

THE Socialists have had disheartening experiences of late both in England and Germany. At Chelsea they have attempted for three successive Sundays to hold public meetings, and have each time been dispersed by the police. At Tugeln, near Hanover, some of the socialistic preachers were chased away with pitchforks and flails by indignant countrymen.

THE Cleveland Rolling Mill Company has issued an order forbidding its employees to drink liquor or enter a saloon during working hours, it being considered positively essential that every iron worker should have a clear head and a steady hand. Several workmen who objected to such an order as dictatorial have been discharged.

BELGIUM has passed a law providing fines and imprisonment for any person not a physician who practices hypnotism, and a particularly heavy punishment for any one who causes a person under hypnotic influence to sign any document for the purpose of fraud. It is the first enactment by any nation for the protection of the public against this form of outrage.

IF some ingenious Yankee will profit by a hint that is dropped by Bishop Turner in his report on missionary work in Africa there may be a fortune awaiting him. The Bishop says that there is a great demand for brown dolls at Sierra Leone. All the African women who come into the city from the bush have to buy white doll babies for their children, and this they do not like. What they want are black, brown or yellow ones, and the Bishop asserts that there is a market for millions of colored dolls. A word to the wise is sufficient.

A NEW YORK man of bibulous propensities, and who has separated from his wife, a most worthy woman, is a practical joker withal. On Thanksgiving Day he went to every butcher in the neighborhood and ordered a big turkey to be sent up to his wife. Boys with turkeys began to arrive at 8 o'clock in the morning and kept coming all day. It finally rained turkeys. Some were big, twenty-pound fellows and some were little fellows that wouldn't make a meal for four people. Some of the turkeys were dressed and some had feathers. Most of them came C. O. D., and some were paid for with worthless checks.

THE NEWS SUMMARY

The Latest News of the World Condensed and Arranged in Convenient Form.

Washington, Personal, Foreign, Criminal, Casualty and Other Important News.

THE CAPITAL.

SENATOR TELLER introduces a bill to make Utah a state.

OVER 1,600 men are now employed in the Norfolk Navy yard, and good progress is being made on the Texas, the Raleigh, and the double turretted monitor Amphitrite.

THE interior department sent out the bonds under the permanent appointment of James Compton, surveyor general; Hugh Thompson, register at Crookston, and Monroe Nichols, register at Duluth.

THE secretary of the treasury submitted estimates of $175,000 for the construction and equipment of a revenue steamer for service at San Francisco and in Alaskan waters, $175,000 for a revenue steamer for Lakes Michigan and Superior, $150,000 for one for Puget Sound, $100,000 for another for Lake Ontario and St. Lawrence river, N. Y., $50,000 for a steamer for boarding service at San Francisco, and $12,000 additional to $28,000 heretofore appropriated for a steam vessel for service at Chicago.

PERSONAL.

REV. FATHER ANDERLY, the Jesuit general, is dead in Rome.

DR. W. H. RUSSELL, the famous war correspondent is in poor health and will recuperate in Cairo this winter.

JUDGE ABRAHAM-JEFFERSON SEAY, the new governor of Oklahoma, was not a precocious youth, it is interesting to learn. In fact, when he was 21 he could hardly read and write.

A. C. MILLER, associate professor of political economy and finances at Cornell University, has accepted a similar position in the new University of Chicago. He will remain at Cornell during the present year.

J. GRANVILLE, a traveling man for a Philadelphia merchant tailoring establishment, died at the Curtis House, at Mt. Vernon, Ohio, a few minutes after reaching the city. He was about 50 years old. Neuralgia of the heart was the cause.

RUDYARD KIPLING, the well known story writer, was married in London a short time ago to Miss Balestier, the sister of the young American novelist, Wolcott Balestier, who died recently at Dresden from typhoid fever.

JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY is called the most popular of the American poets by the leading magazines. All of his work has a refreshing and strengthening tone that makes it most pleasant reading, and tributes are are being paid to it in many quarters.

CASUALTIES.

A RAILROAD accident occurs in St. Paul.

THREE children, locked up in a house in Wisconsin are burned to death.

A FAMILY of four near Spring Valley, Minn., lose their lives by a most peculiar chain of fatalities.

A PASSENGER train on the Omaha road is wrecked near Hamilton, Minn. Only one person is hurt. The escape from death is marvelous.

AT Toledo, Ohio, fire destroyed the Robinson Electric Street railway barn, a huge brick structure, with thirty-five electric motor cars. Loss, $150,000.

THE fast mail train on the Santa Fe was wrecked at Newton, Kas. W. J. Jones, formerly private secretary to ex-Senator Ingalls, was the mail agent and received painful but not fatal injuries.

THE assignment of the Harvest Stove Company, a stock company with the main stockholders in Nashville, the plant and officers in South Pittsburg, Tenn., is announced. The liabilities are scheduled at $122,000.

By the explosion of a powder mill at Central City, W. Va., Archie Livingston, Ed. Winton, John Benton, John Schlosser and Charles Scott were blown to fragments and a number of other people were seriously injured.

Two lives were lost in a wreck on the Illinois Central near Guthrie, Ill. A freight train dashed into the rear of a mixed train, which the engineer had been unable to see on account of fog. Mrs. Bacon Smith, passenger and Engineer Wm. Argo were instantly killed.

THE WICKED WORLD.

A BLOODY fight occurs on a passenger train on the New York Central.

AT Peoria, Ill., Harry Johnson shot and mortally wounded his young wife and then committed suicide.

JAMES BREWELL, one of the gang of train robbers that robbed the express car on the Central Pacific at Leonora some two months ago, made his escape from jail.

IN Philadelphia Mrs. Sarah Hobbs, an aged woman, who, Jan. 14, was brutally kicked by Thomas Ferguson, a prize fighter, is dead. Ferguson lived with his victim's daughter, and it was his daily habit to beat both women. He is in prison.

Robert Carter, a negro, was hanged in the jail at Camden, Wilcox county, Ala., for the murder of his wife last June. Carter confessed his crime on the gallows. The murder was a most brutal one. Carter followed his wife into the woods from a field where both were working, beat her to death, crushing almost every bone in her body.

THE discovery was made at Williamsport that unknown persons had blown away with dynamite about 40 feet of the pipe line of the Standard Oil Company, near Woolrich, Clinton county. The company's telegraph wires were also cut. Over a thousand barrels of oil were lost before the break could be repaired.

FOREIGN FLASHES.

THE funeral services of the late duke of Clarence and Avondale occur at Windsor.

ARCHDUKE FRANCIS FERDINAND, the heir to the Austrian throne is ill.

THE czarina has entirely recovered from attack of influenza from which she has been suffering.

A DUEL between two deputies is the outcome of the scene in the French chamber of deputies.

THE French government has accepted Bulgaria's note of apology for the expulsion of M. Chadbourne.

SIR CHARLES TUPPER, the Canadian high commissioner, is ill in London of influenza.

THE Bulgarian government has accepted, with slight modifications, the note which the porte proposes to address, to France, ending the Franco-Bulgarian dispute.

THE German expedition under the command of Herr Oscar Borchert is about to start for the Victoria Nyanza, taking with it the sections of the steamer Herr Von Wissman.

THE tribal revolt in the vicinity of Tangier is subsiding, owing to the receipt of news by the rebels that the objectional government has been removed by the sultan.

THE report that the pope was suffering from an attack of influenza is pronounced at the Vatican to be unfounded. The officials at the Vatican say that instead of being ill, the pope is enjoying good health.

THE Swiss government has assented to temporary arrangements with France by which Switzerland concedes the lowest tariff on French imports in return for the French minimum tariff on Swiss imports.

GEORGE T. HUBBELL, teller of the Bank of Ottawa, has been placed under arrest in his own house, where he is lying ill with the grip, on a charge of having defrauded the bank to the extent of $7,000.

THE czarewitz's famine commission, in order to enable Russian farmers to continue their work has decided to purchase 10,000 horses in Siberia, to replace the farmer's horses actually killed on account of the famine.

A POLITICAL meeting was held in a small town in the southeastern part of Hungary Sunday afternoon which in a short time degenerated into a free fight in which all kinds of weapons were wielded with ferocity. The fight resulted in the death of two of the participants.

THE RAILROADS.

THE interstate commission decides a case against the Chicago & Northwestern.

PETER SIMONS has been appointed Western passenger agent of the Hamburg-American Steamship line.

The newly organized Chicago & Great Western Railroad company is to absorb the Kansas City line.

IT is given out by reliable authority that the Texas & Pacific will be extended into Mexico from El Paso, Tex., with terminus at Guaymas, on the Pacific coast.

THE general committee of Northern Pacific conductors continue its session at the Merchants. Nothing was given out for publication, as the transactions consisted only of routine business.

SPORTING MATTERS.

THE Western league of base ball clubs is organized, with St. Paul and Minneapolis as members.

TOMMY WARREN and George Siddons, feather weights, fight in New Orleans, with disastrous results for Warren.

THE bantamweights Daly and McCarthy met in finish fight at Bath Beach for a $100 purse. McCarthy won in the third round, knocking Daly out by a swinging blow on the neck.

ALEX GREGGAINS of San Francisco has received a message from Arthur Lumley of New York asking him if he would meet Jack Dempsey for a $6,000 purse at the Olympic club, New Orleans. Greggains has replied, stating that he is ready to fight Dempsey or any middle-weight in the business.

THE TOILERS.

THE St. Paul labor organization will demand an eight-hour day after May 1.

THE situation among the miners of East Tennessee remains quiet. Many of the old miners have left the section in search of work in Arkansas. No trouble is expected for the present at least.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A Wilkesbarre (Pa.) man has slept thirteen months.

JULIAN DUBUQUE's heirs revive their claim to the site of Dubuque.

SENATOR QUAY's suit against the Pittsburg Post is now open.

THE price of whiskey is to be reduced from $1,18 to $1,16 per gallon.

PITTSBURG has withdrawn from the National Association of Builders.

CIRCUIT JUDGE NEWMAN of Wisconsin decides that the ex-treasurers of the state must refund interest on state money.

CHICAGO gets the Democratic national convention on the fifteeth ballot. The convention will be held on June 21.

LUKE TIERNON, of No. 210, North Seventh street, St. Louis, claims one-fifth of a billion dollars worth of real estate in the heart of Chicago.

THE executive committee of the National Editorial association has selected San Francisco, May 17, for the next meeting of the association.

THE election of Cliff (Republican) as secretary of the Iowa senate is declared illegal by the Democrats. Cliff had to be carried out bodily. The Democrats are now in full control.

TENNESSEE state officials are preparing to return the convicts to Oliver Springs. A telegram from Coal Creek states that there has been no trouble and that everything is quiet.

CATALINA island, which lies off the coast of Southern California, has been sold by George R. Shallo to Banning Brothers. The new owners will convert it into a grand summer resort.

REV. GEORGE T. PURVES, D. D., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Pittsburg, has refused a call to the late Dr. Crosby's church, Twenty-second street, New York city at a salary of $10,000.

THE R. S. Dikie Manufacturing company of Chicago has made an assignment. The business of the company was the manufacture of labels. The assets are placed at $100,000; liabilities, $60,000.

NOWELL & PRESBY, extensive importers and dealers in woolens at 20 White street, New York, have made an assignment to John H. Bird. The concern was rated at Bradstreets as worth $100,000, and had good credit.

THE organization of the western Window Glass association, composed of manufacturers of window glass, was completed at Cleveland with the election of an executive committee to have charge of the business of the organization. It was decided to advance prices at the meeting in February.

S. D. ROGERS, of Boston, is said to have been notified that he with his two brothers and two sisters, are the direct heirs to the $3,000,000 estate of the late John Rogers, their uncle, of Glasgow, Scotland. The sisters are in Maine, one brother in California and another in Texas.

THE national association of jobbers in American watches held their annual election at New York, which resulted as follows: President, H. F. Hahn, of Chicago; vice-president, M. J. Lassauer, and secretary and treasurer, J. W. Noyes, of New York. Executive committee—E. S. Keller, E. Kahn and J. Butler, of New York; L. Fleischen, of Chicago; August Kurtsaborn, of St. Louis, and Andrew Paul, of Boston.

THE famous Russian woman bandit who has the past ten years been the terror of Servia, has been captured in a cave on the Roumanian frontier, where she was nursing her sick lover. Young, handsome, and a perfect markswoman, she went about in man's dress, with her belt full of weapons and her rifle slung on her saddle, at the head of a band of devoted Haiducks, with whom she committed her robberies. Her people warned her that she was in danger of capture, but she refused to abandon her lover, and only surrendered after she had killed two gendarmes.

THE NORTHWEST.

A Summary of the Important Events of the Week in the Northwestern States.

Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, North and South Dakota News in a Nutshell.

MINNESOTA.

Improvements in the city of Owatonna for the year 1891 amounted to over $200,000.

Hastings & Diment's new mill at Owatonna is being hurried to completion, and will soon be in operation.

Frank Kempfer, who killed a man at Andrea, Wilkin county, is the son of B. O. Kempfer, who killed P. N. Smith at Elizabeth.

Joseph D. Young was convicted at Waseca of selling liquor without a license before the municipal court. He was fined $100 and costs by Judge Child.

Miss Emmy Davis, aged 18 years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Davis, of Faribault, died at her home of heart failure, after a brief illness of but two or three days.

Charles Gaylord, a young man living three miles from Plainview was found dead in his father's barn. The cause of death is unknown.

The passenger train going on the Red Wing road recently ran into a freight train making a siding at Trout Brook. A freight car was demolished, but no one was injured.

William Koebnick, who shot and instantly killed Fred Webber in Janesville township recently, had an examination before Judge Childs at Waseca, and was bound over to appear before the grand jury. He was released on $500 bonds.

Word reached Carlton that the Eastbound passenger train on the Northern Pacific was wrecked west of Aitkin. The rear coach and sleepers were thrown from the track. No one was injured. A broken rail was the cause.

M. G. McGinnis, a laborer, in McLeod & Dickinson's lumber camp, 18 miles west of Little Falls, fell from a load of logs recently and broke his thigh. He was brought to town. He lives in Minneapolis.

The body of an unknown man was found in the woods near Carlton by George H. Merwin, a trapper and hunter, two miles south of Cromwell. The body has doubtless been there since last fall, as fire has burned it beyond recognition.

Thomas Trussel, a graduate of the state university, who has been teaching the district school at Champlin, has been forced to resign by the board of education because he whipped the children too promiscuously. He is succeeded by a Mr. Lynch.

While driving at Little Falls William Davidson who is a director of the First National bank was thrown out of his vehicle heavily to the ground. When picked up he was found to be unconscious. He had no bones broken, but was hurt internally. He will recover.

Sheriff George R. Maynard, of Long Prairie, arrested a man named John Simons at the Grand Union hotel, in St. Cloud. Simons forged the names of prominent Long Prairie men as sureties to notes upon which he obtained money. The sheriff had been following him for a week.

The poultry house of the Crescent Creamery company in East Rochester was burned, undoubtedly set afire by some incendiary, involving a loss of about 3,000 pounds of poultry. The loss on buildings, owned by W. J. Eaton, was about $1,000, and on poultry $250, and other material about $150. No insurance.

An agent has been placed in charge of the station at Perley on the Moorhead northern branch of the Great Northern railway, twenty-five miles north of Moorhead. Perley is a prosperous town, and in the fall does a large amount of grain shipping. Kurtz on the Moorhead & Southwestern has been made a postoffice station, and the name changed to Elmer.

The municipal court room was crowded to its utmost capacity the other day by those who are interested in the examination of W. F. Stephens of Amboy, who was charged with committing an assault on L. Miller of the same village. Judge Porter, after listening to the evidence, bound the prisoner over to the next term of the district court. He gave bonds to the amount of $1,000 for his appearance.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Miss Phœbe Becker and Orderly Sergeant Anthony Way, of Fort Berthold, were married at the Catholic church at Devil's Lake.

The proprietors of the National Bank of Wahpeton have applied for charters to organize state banks at Hankinson and Abercrombie in that county. Each bank will have a capital stock of $10,000.

Charles Piper, a farmer residing several miles northeast of Ellendale, was found dead in his bed the other morning, and it is reported he was frozen to death.

Inquiries fail to corroborate the special from Ardock that two persons were lost in the storm while driving from Minto to Ardock. All livery teams sent out have returned. No loss or damage is reported near Minto.

Dr. Benjamin F. Slaughter was examined by the insanity commissioners at Bismarck and ordered sent to the asylum at Jamestown. He was in early days government surgeon at Fort Lincoln and Camp Hancock, and was well educated, but of late years he has succumbed to the use of stimulants.

A Northern Pacific railroad agent is in Jamestown to pay the personal property taxes of the company, which payment will at once be made wherever its property exists. The land tax will also be promptly paid in May. In all, 75,000 acres of newly patented lands will be received this year. The amount of tax in the state will aggregate a large sum.

A serious hitch has occurred in the sale of school lands at Grand Forks which is advertised for March 15. The county board of appraisers claim that the state board of school lands is ignoring the law by usurping the authority of county boards. County Superintendent Callahan of Cass county notified Supt. Ogden that no lands in Cass county will be sold unless advertised according to law.

Henry Hoy, indicted by the United States grand jury at Fargo, for using the mails for lottery purposes, was tried and acquitted. The defendant is an express agent and was told by a friend that the lottery could send lists of drawing to express agents if requested. Hoy wrote a postal card requesting that circulars be sent him. The post office officials at Fargo read the postal card and the matter has cost Hoy about $200 in attorneys' fees, etc. Hoy never bought a lottery ticket in his life.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Dan Sullivan, a miner in the Highland mine at Deadwood, was killed by a falling rock.

Robt. Sato, station tender at Starholt, had his hip fractured by being caught between a car of ore and the station.

Parties at Pierre from Crow Creek agency report that Authur D. Sloan, the escaped murderer, who has been eluding the officers for a week or more, has been captured.

The evening freight on the Milwaukee road was wrecked near Letcher, 15 miles north of Mitchell. Three loaded freight cars were totally demolished and the track torn up for a considerable length.

Arthur Van Allen of Cedar County, Neb., attempted to kill E. M. Lathrop at Yankton, and succeeded in breaking his leg after firing four shots. He charged Lathrop with breaking up his home. Lathrop's injuries may prove fatal. Public sentiment justifies Van Allen.

A Mitchell special says: The register of deeds of this county furnishes a statement showing that between Oct. 1, 1891, and the 15th inst. over $62,000 in mortgages were released on the county records, and only $25,000 new mortgages filed. The most of this amount was released in case of farm mortgages.

WISCONSIN.

A little daughter of Thomas Graham of Racine, fell off a sleigh, breaking her leg.

Charles Breuer, a resident of Appleton, died in the Northern Insane Asylum. The remains were taken to Appleton for burial.

Ex-Sheriff, O. F. Angle, of Sparta, had a leg and arm broken and one rib fractured by being run over by a load of wood.

Mrs. Alexander McMillan, wife of the mayor of La Crosse, had her arm broken by being thrown out of a cutter.

Joe Loben, a mill hand, had his foot crushed while working in a sawmill at Sanborn.

The Kenosha council rejected an ordinance for the Sunday closing of barber shops.

One of the sheds of J. W. Birkle & Sons' stave mill, at Boyd, was partly destroyed by fire. Loss $3,000. The fire is supposed to have been of incendiary origin.

Herman Morris, who shot his son-in-law, William Hurst, in the town of Belmont, Portage county, was arrested and lodged in jail. Morris is seventy-two years of age.

E. A. Shores, of Ashland, has bought 4,000,000 feet of logs of Dolby & Co., at White River. The logs will be shipped to Ashland by rail, and it will take 1,000 cars to transport them.

Anthony Chesner, a farmer living near Chilton, charges that the sheriff arrested his son and compelled him to sleep all night in a cold cell without covering to keep him warm.

Twenty-three young men met at Janesville and voted to organize a Y. M. C. A. A committee was appointed to canvass for funds to erect a $15,000 association building.

An old soldier named Joe Hilker, of Racine, walks to Milwaukee every three months to get his pension money. He is 60 years of age and thinks nothing of the walk.

While fooling with a revolver in a West End saloon, at Ashland, the weapon was accidentally discharged, the bullet lodging in the abdomen of Frank Stholman and inflicting a fatal wound. Henry Roesning was handling the revolver when discharged.

"Deacon" John Roberts, one of the old settlers of the vicinity of Augusta, died, aged 74 years. He was for many years a prominent farmer and highly respected in the community. His son, Daniel S. Roberts, is a citizen of Minneapolis.

At Vespers, twenty miles north of Babcock, three children of a Swede, name unknown, were locked in the house by their parents. They overturned the lamp and fired the building, and the three, aged six, four and two years, were burned to death.

IOWA.

Miss Sallie Mauro, daughter of Judge W. H. Mauro, of Burlington, died recently, aged 22. She was a popular young lady and her death was a severe shock.

John McCurdy, the missing Rose Hill citizen, who was thought to have been killed along the Mississippi, returned home. He was delayed by the grip at St. Louis.

Joseph A. Benger, an old carpet weaver of Dubuque, was fatally burned in his bed by the bed clothes taking fire from a pipe the old man was smoking.

The Crosby block, one of the finest buildings in Fort Dodge, was gutted by fire, causing a loss of $33,000. One fireman was dangerously injured by a falling ladder and several others badly hurt.

A freight train on the Burlington, Cedar Rapids & Northern was wrecked two miles from Burlington, recently by a broken truck. A dozen cars were demolished and several head of stock killed.

Frank Shields, a mechanic of Oskaloosa, is a raving maniac. He had been working on a mechanical invention and his mind finally gave way under the strain. His mental sufferings are terrible.

Thousands of tons of the finest ice ever taken from the river at Burlington are being stored by local parties or shipped away. An order was sent to John Hall, of Creston, Iowa, for 1,100 cars of ice, most of it to go South.

Thos. Debord, a prominent liquor seller, of Creston, was found guilty of keeping a liquor nuisance by a jury in the district court recently. This unexpected verdict has caused consternation among the liquor men, as the evidence against Debord was not regarded as strong.

THE AMERICAN JOKE.

It Is Better Understood by the Arab Than the Englishman.

"America," said Darweesh to one of the ladies, "must be a very fine place and very like Egypt. You have corn and tobacco, water-melons and a big river there."

"And crocodiles, too," she replied.

"Wallah!" he cried in admiration; then, with a slight touch of jealousy that these blessings should be scattered broadcast, he added: "Do they eat men?"

"No, only dogs," she admitted.

"Ah!" he returned, exalting in the surperior gastronomic taste of the Egyptian saurian, "ours eat men!"

"Of course yours will not eat dogs; they are Moslem crocodiles," she answered referring to the Mohammedans' avoidance of the dog as an unclean animal.

As one of the most loveable characteristics of the Arab in his instant and intense appreciation of the feeblest joke, says a writer in Scribner's Darweesh seemed much amused and repeated with many chuckles, "Ours are Moslem crocodiles," as he went about his daily work.

Ill-Omened Jane.

Jane, as borne by the royal families of Europe, has always been a name of ill-omen. Lady Jane Gray was beheaded for treason; Jane Seymour was one of the victims of King Hal; Jane Beauford, wife of James I of Scotland was savagely murdered; Jeanne d'Albert, mother of Henry IV, was poisoned by Catherine de Medici; Jane of Castile lost her reason through the neglect of her husband, Philip the handsome, archduke of Austria; Jane I of Naples caused her husband to be murdered and married his assassin; and Jane II of Naples was one of the most wanton of woman.—Saturday Evening Post.

A CHILIAN RUMOR.

A Chicago Paper Has It That an Ultimatum Has Been Sent to the Chilian Government.

Another Incident Showing That the Insulting Chilians Are Courting a Sound Whipping by Uncle Sam.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—The Inter Ocean's Washington special to-night says:

The crisis in Chilian affairs is rapidly approaching. Yesterday an ultimatum was sent to the Chilian government through Minister Egan. The dispatch was signed by Secretary Blaine.

It was not communicated to the government of Chili through Senor Mott, the Chilian minister here. The latter has no knowledge of it, except that he may have been advised to-day by cable from his own government.

The dispatch was of a peremptory character. It directed Mr. Egan to demand categorically of Chilian government an immediate answer to the request which had already been made. The purpose of it is to inform the Chilian government that the United States must have an answer at once to its demand for reparation and apology.

The president's message is to be sent to congress on Monday, whatever may be the answer from Minister Egan or whether or not he shall be able to obtain any answer from Chili at all. The dispatch, which was sent by the order of the president, with the approval of the cabinet, leaves no chance for any one to doubt what the policy of the administration will be.

Minister Montt, when he discovers that he has been ignored in the critical negotiations of the last few hours, may deem it expedient to demand his passports. Such a result is not unexpected from him by the cabinet. The passports, if demanded, would be granted. Unless the president and his cabinet are very much mistaken, the events of the next few hours will determine whether or not there is to be peace or war between the United States and Chili.

AFTER EGAN'S SCALP.

Chili Said to Have Demanded Minister Egan's Recall.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—The recall of Minister Egan was formally requested to-day of Secretary Blaine by Minister Montt, at the head of the Chilian legation in this city. It is said that the Chilian government bases its request for the recall of Minister Egan upon allegations that he has been guilty of making reports to Washington that were deliberately false and of engaging in intrigues for the purpose of creating trouble between the United States and Chili.

The publication of the correspondence with Chili will conclusively disprove the assertions of the Chilian government. Mr. Egan has kept this government fully advised of the progress of events in Chili since his arrival there, but he has done so without partisan bias. The members of the United States government who are familiar with his conduct fully approve it, and President Harrison and Secretary Blaine are fully in accord with the estimation in which Mr. Egan is held.

This action upon the part of the Chilian government, which is the first official indication of their dissatisfaction with Minister Egan, will have a tendency to precipitate a crisis in the relations of the two countries. It is taken in official circles that Chili does not intend to make reparation or apology for the Baltimore incident, unless it can attach conditions, which will preserve the pride of the government of that country and enable it to retain the respect and support of the people who would resent an unqualified apology.

Another reason which it was said was alleged for asking for Egan's recall was the note sent to the Chilian government by Egan on Oct. 26, which Senor Matta designated as aggressive in design and violent in language. This was the first official notice taken by Egan of the Baltimore affair, and it was prepared by express instructions of Assistant Attorney Wharton under date of Oct. 23. This letter of instructions was the one generally attributed to President Harrison, and Mr. Egan's note to Senor Matta was an almost exact reproduction of the terms employed in it. This incident, under the conditions prevailing, comes perilously near a suspension of communication between the two countries, and the developments of the next day or two will be awited with much interest.

It is generally understood that the cabinet to-day practically decided to submit the Chilian matter to congress early next week in order that congress, as well as the country at large, might know the exact status of the controversy between this country and Chili. While such a course would not in itself indicate the termination of diplomatic negotiations for the settlement of the matter in dispute, it would give the public, through congress, an opportunity to determine which country is responsible for the present unsettled state of affairs.

The report that the United States government had recalled Minister Egan created considerable excitement. Secretary Tracy was asked at a late hour as to the correctness of the report, and replied that it was entirely untrue.

Uncle Jerry's Horse Book.

WASHINGTON, Special, Jan. 23.—Uncle Jerry Rusk's horse book is one of the most popular volumes that has been prepared by the government in many years. Nearly every congressman received a quota provided for by the last congress, and has exhausted that, and his constituents are clamoring for more. It is now proposed to print 500,000 more, and some talk of printing 1,000,000.

Handicapped by Crankery.

WASHINGTON, Special, Jan. 2.—The uniform grading of grain is one of the schemes agitated before congress, and several bills have been introduced looking towards making a national grading law. Whether anything can be accomplished in the matter is still doubtful. The Farmers' Alliance men who have introduced the bills have coupled the usual fanatical legislation with them and will probably insure their defeat.

A P. O. for Murphy.

WASHINGTON, Special Telegram, Jan. 32.—H. B. Murphy has been appointed postmaster at Jamestown, Grand Forks county, N. D.

Japan's Exhibit.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23.—S. Tegima and Y. Yambo of Tokio, have just arrived from Japan. They are world's fair commissioners appointed by the Japanese government, and will leave for Chicago in a few days to secure space in Jackson Park for the erection of their national building.

"At the last session of our parliament," said the commissioners, "630,000 yen, equal to $500,000, was appropriated for an exhibit at the Columbian exposition. Of this amount $100,000 will be applied to the erection of buildings. The plans are not yet prepared, but the structure will be built in the style of 1,000 years ago. The interior will be devoted to a collection of Japanese fine arts and curiosities, representing three different epochs in our history."

Violating an Agreement.

OMAHA, Special.—There is plenty of evidence that the Union Pacific and Northwestern traffic agreement is not being lived up to and is on the verge of dissolution. The Union Pacific has brought to Omaha a number of consignments from Colorado billed for Chicago, but instead of turning them over to the Northwestern at this point they have been sent over the Missouri Pacific to Kansas City and thence to Chicago, an unnatural and roundabout route. This has been going on for some time and the Northwestern has been retaliating. Railroad men are watching the current of events with interest and predict a break within a short time.

CHICAGO CHOSEN.

The Windy City Captures the Prize on the Fifteenth Ballot.

WASHINGTON, Special Telegram, Jan. 22.—The combine succeeded in locating the Democratic convention at Chicago, and there is a roaring, howling mob disgusted with the leaders who have played for suckers the eight cities who were candidates.

Promptly at 12 o'clock Chairman Calvin S. Brice rapped the national committee to order and at once introduced Hon. John W. Ross, the Democratic member of the board of commissioners of the District of Columbia, who delivered the address of welcome. The call of the roll showed the various states and territories were all represented.

On motion of Senator Vilas the committee went into secret session for the purpose of settling all questions of proxies and contests, it being reported that the right of C. A. Broadwater to represent the State of Montana might be contested. The committee then went into secret session behind closed door, the general public and press being excluded.

In the secret session Secretary Harrity, of the Pennsylvania central committee, presented his credentials as the national committeeman yesterday and was selected by the state central committee of that state to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Hon. W. L. Scott. Chairman Brice, of the national committee, had at the time of Mr. Scott's death appointed ex-Congressman Kerr to fill the vacancy from Pennsylvania, but the state central committee of Pennsylvania yesterday formally declared that Chairman Brice had no right permanently to fill such a vacancy, and thereupon selected Secretary Harrity as Mr. Scott's successor, utterly ignoring Mr. Kerr's claims. It was expected that this controversy might provoke acrimonious discussion in the secret session, but Mr. Kerr announced that he would solve the dispute.

"It is my intention," said he to Mr. Porter as he stepped out of the meeting for a moment, "to relieve the situation of embarrassment by simply resigning. This will leave a vacancy and the committee can settle it without controversy by accepting Mr. Harrity's credentials, or otherwise as it may see fit. There will be no unseemly contest."

The Montana contest was settled by declaring Broadwater the regular committeeman from that state. When Pennsylvania was reached Mr. Kerr formally resigned what claims he may have had to represent that state and Mr. Harrity, the new committeeman, was declared Mr. Scott's successor.

Those two contests being settled the committee proceeded to the selection of the date of the national Democratic convention. At the conclusion of the secret session the committee took a recess, it being decided that the arguments of delegates would begin at 4 p. m.

When the committee reassembled at 9 o'clock the balloting began at once, and the various surprising changes announced from time to time as it proceeded caused intense excitement among the adherents of the cities contending for the prize.

The crowd grew impatient and anxious, and the suspense was only relieved when Senator Barbour of Virginia stepping out of the convention hall, said quietly: "Chicago is the place; she needs but one vote, and she will get it." There was an instant hurrying to the telegraph wires, and, when a moment afterwards the official announcement was made that Chicago was the fortunate city, a cheer was raised by her supporters. But the hour was late, and what earlier in the day would have been greeted with triumphant exultation was received with comparative quiet.

The Pollock Divorce Case.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Jan. 22.—The Pollock divorce case continues to excite attention. There is much feeling against young Pollock. Mrs. Pollock was on the stand seven hours. She told her long, sad story without a break. She testified that on Nov. 26, 1890, her husband came to her and said his father was causing trouble, and that he would have to leave her, and offered her $10,000 if she would consent to his getting a divorce. This she objected to. It will be remembered that the plaintiff testified that he had not lived with Mrs. Pollock since December, 1889. Her second child was born in January, 1891, and the plaintiff disclaims being the parent. The witness swore positively that her husband had lived with her, as her husband, up to the middle of November, 1890. The case was taken under advisement.

Plenty of Fuel.

VERMILLION, S. D., Special, Jan. 22.—The wood famine which threatened Vermillion a short time ago is thoroughly removed. The freezing of the Missouri allows the Nebraska timber to be marketed here, and advantage is taken of the opportunity. Besides this, the supply from cultivated groves, heretofore too small to be noticeable, is having considerable effect on the market. Clay county is spotted with "artificial" timber, some of the groves being over thirty years old, and this is found to be no small factor.

Passed Away.

SPRING VALLEY, Minn., Special, Jan. 22.—Mrs. U. I. Crain, an estimable lady of seventy-eight years, while going to attend Belva Lockwood's lecture last night, was taken with a paralytic stroke before reaching the opera house and died instantly. She leaves three married children, all living here.

GLYNDON, Minn., Special Telegram, Jan. 22.—Alvin M. Burdick, a prominent citizen and farmer, died to-day, aged sixty. He was somewhat active in recent years in farmers' movements and prohibition politics. He was ill a few days only.

Blaine Reported Dead.

DES MOINES, Jan. 22.—A report that James G. Blaine was dead was circulated in this city to-day and caused intense excitement on the streets. It was announced by one of the clerks in the house of representatives and stopped legislation. The flags on the state house were ordered lowered to half-mast. It was afterwards found that the report originated in a Des Moines bucket shop, and was probably done to affect the market.

An Elopement.

PLAINVIEW, Minn., Special Telegram, Jan. 22.—Robert Williams, who has been a boarder at August Johnson's boarding-house, left suddenly, claiming to be headed for Milwaukee, but purchased a ticket for Dundas, Minn. Two days following his departure Lillie, daughter of Mr. Johnson, claimed to have received a letter from a brother to go to the Dakotas, and pretended to start for there, but bought a ticket for Dundas also. Now the Johnson family report that they think it is an elopement.

Ocean Travel.

London—Sighted: Michigan, Boston; Minnesota, Baltimore.

An Authoress Insane.

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 22.—Mrs. Marion T. Dudley, the well known authoress, was adjudged insane to-day, and will be sent to county hospital.

Selected Assistant Pastor.

RED WING, Minn., Special, Jan. 22.—Rev. D. J. Growe of Wilmar has been selected as assistant pastor of the Norwegian Lutheran church here.

To Save Trouble.

WASHINGTON, Special.—Senator Dolph has reported his bill to amend the act establishing a customs collection district on Puget sound. The senator is very anxious to have the north shore of Columbia river included in the Astoria district in order that vessels may enter and clear at Astoria for Southern Washington without the necessity of going to the deputy collector of the Puget sound district.

The Times Changes Its Tune.

LONDON, Special.—The correspondent of the Times at Santiago de Chili telegraphs to-day that the telegrams stating that great animosity is entertained in Chili against the United States are utterly without foundation in truth. The correspondent further says that everything is quiet in Chili.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

SHROUDED IN FIRE

Nineteen Unfortunate Patients, Unable to Escape, Perish in the Institute.

Four Persons From Minnesota Burned to Ashes in This Acknowledged Fire Trap.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 23.—In the surgical institute fire last night seventeen helpless, crippled children, inmates of the institution lost, lost their lives, and twenty other persons were injured, some of them badly; most of them slightly. Two hundred and forty-six patients and thirty nurses, sleeping in the two four-story buildings at the corner of Illinois and Georgia streets, in which the institute is located, were in imminent danger of their lives. Their rescue, the fight with the flames and the final discovery of the charred remains of the poor, dead children, wrapped in each other's withered arms, make a story rarely paralleled in the annals of modern cities.

By the time the department arrived the scene was one to blanch stout hearts. Poor, helpless cripples were hanging on the fire escapes in every window. The heartrending cries of those shut in the burning building, mingled with the shouts of the firemen and police. Heroic deeds of rescue were performed, and for two hours the delusion was entertained that all the inmates had been saved. In the Georgia street annex, third floor, the fire raged furiously all this while, and there was a sickening suspicion on the part of those first at the scene that in that raging furnace were caged some of the patients who were cut off by the flames

BEFORE HELP COULD REACH THEM.

Soon after this suspicion became a certainty, the fire having then been nearly subdued.

The police and firemen made their way into the building. In one room a mass of roasted humanity lay entwined. When their bodies were disengaged it was found that there were seven persons in that mass alone. The list of dead was further swollen by four who died from injuries received in leaping from the windows. Identification becomes a difficult task. Many of the dead were charred beyond recognition.

The books of the institution were in the office temporarily inaccessible. Seventeen dead had been found up to 8 o'clock this morning, and at 9 o'clock a woman and child wrapped in each others arms were discovered in the annex.

What started the fire is not certainly known, but it began in the office of the secretary about midnight. Dr. John Wilson was called by the watchman and saw the blaze, which was a very slight one. After turning in the alarm he was driven back. When the inmates first awakened they saw the dining room on the third floor of the annex ablaze. This must have been very soon after Dr. Wilson made the discovery, but the fire spread with amazing rapidity and soon involved both buildings.

THE DEAD AND INJURED.

The names of the killed are:

Kate L. Strong, Salem, Oregon. Mrs. Lazarus of Chicago jumped from the second story of the rear building. William. Rausick, Milwaukee: Miss Kate Burns, Newport, Minn.; Frank Burns, Newport, Minn.; Maggie Arnold, Lancaster, Mo.; Arma Payne, Dexter, Minn.; Stella Specs, Macomb, Ohio; Minnie McDonald, Negaunee, Ohio; George Ellis, Kentucky; Mrs. Earb and daughter, Shelby, Ohio; Fannie Breeden, Memphis, Tenn.; Mortle Deckle, Fred Dockendorff, Stillwater, Minn.; C. H. Gorman, McDonald, Mich.; Arthur Bayless.

The injured were taken to St. Vincent's hospital, where, with the exception of those who were fatally injured, they are resting fairly well. They were not allowed to talk. The newspapers and particulars of the fire were kept from them. Five bodies were taken out this morning. They the skin having peeled off from the bones. In a few instances their faces were burned off. At Powers & Blackwell's were four unknown bodies. They were taken out of the building in their night clothes and there was absolutely nothing by which they could be identified. One was a woman with black hair and dark complexion. She can easily be identified by friends, as she was suffocated and not burned. Another woman, whose body was burned beyond recognition, was also taken to the morgue. Her feet were deformed, and are shriveled up from the fire. A man with a deformed limb, also there, can be identified.

WERE ROASTED ALIVE,

The heroism of Fireman John Loucks will long be remembered. While the flames were shooting in forked tongues from the windows, facing on Illinois street, he ascended the extension ladder to the upper floor. As he reached the window sill he was met by Fireman Webber Robinson, who had pushed his way through the smothering smoke with a child in his arms. "Take this baby, Loucks, and let me breathe," sa'd Robinson, as he pushed his head into the open air. Loucks grasped the living load and started downward. He had descended but a few feet when the brave fellow missed his footing and fell head foremost, his leg catching in the rungs of the ladder and doubtless saving his life. He clung to the child pluckily, although his injury was a painful one, his limb being broken.

As he hung there the dense mass of people below turned away from the awful scene, thinking that Loucks would perhaps be obliged to loosen his grasp from weakness. Not so, however. He called for assistance, and in a twinkling he was reached by two other firemen, who carried the child safely to the ground and tenderly helped Loucks to an ambulance, which conveyed him to his home.

BRAVE FIREMEN.

Fireman Sam Hoyle, entered the burning building to help rescue the inmates. He found two women who were crying for help. Hoyle seized both and started for a window. When he reached it a ladder was near him but a few feet to one side. The flames and smoke were rapidly enveloping the brave fireman and his burdens. Quickly Hoyle pushed one woman out of the window and held her with his teeth by her night clothes. He held the other woman inside the room, hung himself out and drew the ladder to him with his foot and descended safely with the women.

The exact loss cannot be estimated, but it will aggregate at least $40,000.

An Opera House Damaged.

ALBERT LEA, Minn., Special, Jan. 23.—To-day fire was discovered in the rear of the old opera house, and the blaze was making good progress, but in seven minutes from the time the alarm was sounded a powerful stream of water was being played upon the fire and it was soon put out. The lower story of the building was occupied by T. E. Richards as a billiard hall, cigar store and factory, and by the Knatvold Hardware company, with pianos, organs and buggies. The loss will amount to several hundred dollars, mostly covered by insurance. This is the fourth or fifth time the building has been on fire in the last few years, and it is feared there is a fire bug.

Cattlemen Must Pay.

WASHINGTON, Special Telegram, —Assistant Indian Commissioner Belt has written the agent for the Berthold Indians in North Dakota for a report upon the grazing interests of that reservation. The Indians have much more land than they use for themselves and the cattlemen in the vicinity have been in the habit of pasturing upon their lands and paying the Indians just what they chose, furnishing them with a cow or steer occasionally. It is Mr. Belt's intention to have regulations provided for grazing on these lands the same as are now in vogue in Montana and other grazing reservations, compelling cattlemen to pay the Indians stipulated sums for the use of the lands.

CONGRESS.

Proceedings of the House and Senate.

SATURDAY JAN. 16.

SENATE.

Not in session.

HOUSE.

Not in session.

MONDAY JAN. 18

SENATE.

Senator Davis to-day presented a petition of the State of Minnesota asking for the forfeiture of certain Hastings & Dakota lands in the western part of the state, claiming that the rights of settlers would be greatly enhanced were this action taken by congress.

The senate passed the house bill fixing the times for holding district and circuit courts of the United States in the Northern district of Iowa.

The following bills were introduced:

By Mr. Peffer, proposing an amendment to the constitution so as to elect president and vice president of the United States by direct vote of the people.

By Mr. Wilson, for the classification of clerks and other employes of first and second class postoffices and to fix their salaries.

By Mr. Allen, giving to the State of Washington 5 per cent of the proceeds of public lands in that state.

By Mr. McMillan, for the building of two revenue cutters for service on the great lakes. (Appropriates $257,000.)

HOUSE.

Mr. Reilly of Pennsylvania presented a resolution, which was adopted, requesting the secretary of the treasury to inform the house what amount of money has been appropriated and available under the act of October 25, 1890, relating to the World's Columbian exposition, and about what amount of the money appropriated has already been expended.

The following bills were introduced:

By Mr. Loud of California, to absolutely prohibit the carrying of Chinese into the United States, whether subjects of the Chinese empire or otherwise.

By Mr. Stout of Michigan, reducing the duty on sewing thread.

By Mr. Snow of Illinois, granting lands to honorably discharged soldiers of the War of the Rebellion.

By Mr. Newberry of Illinois, that hereafter no pension shall be paid to any person not a citizen and a bona fide resident of the United States.

TUESDAY, JAN. 19.

Bills appropriating $400,000 and $300,000 for public buildings at Spokane Falls and Tacoma, Wash., respectively, were reported favorably to the senate.

The senate passed the bill to aid the South Dakota school of mines; also that granting a section of land to the Yankton asylum; also that to provide a public building for the postoffice in the National Park.

Pettigrew's bill to compensate the Crow Creek Indians for lands taken was reported favorably today with an amendment striking out the section donating personal property in addition to cash compensations.

HOUSE.

The house passed the bill fixing the time for holding terms of the circuit and district courts for the Western district of Wisconsin.

The bill to regulate the public printing came up as unfinished business in the house yesterday, and, after being attacked by Messrs. O'Neill, Chipman, Bankhead and others, and being defended by Mr. Richardson, it was laid on the table by a vote of 135 to 102, thus disposing of the measure.

WEDNESDAY JAN. 20.

SENATE.

The senate to-day passed bills authorizing public buildings as follows: Grand Haven, Mich., $50,000; Deadwood, S. D., $200,000; Stillwater, Minn., $100,000; Salem, Ore., $100,000; The Dalles, Ore., $100,000.

Senator Davis reported favorably today from the committee on military affairs, Senator Casey's bill restoring Thomas H. Carpenter to his position as captain in the regular army and placing him on the retired list.

HOUSE.

Mr. Springer of Illinois today introduced his free wool bill, and it was referred to the committee on ways and means.

On motion of Mr. Stone, of Kentucky, a resolution was adopted by the house yesterday calling on the secretary of the treasury for a statement of all goods imported into the United States from the Dominican republic and from Porto Rico, dutiable or free. Also a statement of all goods exported to these countries for 10 years prior to the passage of the McKinley act.

Representative John Davis, one of the Kansas Alliance members, introduced a service pension bill yesterday with income legacy and land tax attachments as means of raising the treasury revenue to pay the pensions.

THURSDAY, JAN. 21.

SENATE.

Mr. Peffer spoke to-day in advocacy of the bill introduced by Senator Stanford to provide the government with means sufficient to supply the national want of a circulating medium.

The senate adjourned until Monday.

HOUSE.

On motion of Mr. Outhwaite, of Ohio, a resolution was adopted calling on the secretary of the treasury for a statement of the drawbacks paid to importers of tin plate under the provisions of the McKinley bill.

Mr. Catchings, from the committee on rules, reported the code of the Fifty-second congress adopted by the committee. In explanation he said the rules in the main were those of the Fiftieth congress, the changes being very few. He said that the committee would ask consideration of the report next Monday.

FRIDAY JAN. 22.

SENATE.

Not in session.

HOUSE.

Cheatam, the only black man in the present congress, a representative from North Carolina, has introduced the Blair bill. Cheatam proposes, as did Blair, to distribute the appropriations among the states in proportion to the illiteracy shown by the census reports.

An Eccentric Lady's Wardrobe.

An eccentric lady of property, who resided alone in Dudley, recently died. She had quite a mania for possessing drapery and millinery goods. The sale of her effects included 20 dozen underclothing in silk, satin, wool, and linen; 31 embroidered petticoats, 66 silk, satin, and white skirts; 150 pocket handkerchiefs, 150 pairs of gloves, 40 night-dresses, 60 pairs of sheets, 9 dozen bolsters and pillow linen, 30 eider-down quilts, 4 dozen cooking aprons, 7 dozen pairs of stockings, 14 umbrellas, 36 pairs of boots, 40 dresses, and 33 shawls.

Handicapped by Crankery.

WASHINGTON, Special.—The uniform grading of grain is one of the schemes agitated before congress, and several bills have been introduced looking towards making a national grading law. Whether anything can be accomplished in the matter is still doubtful. The Farmers' Alliance men who have introduced the bills have coupled the usual fanatical legislation with them and will probably insure their defeat.

Boston Hears a Rumor.

BOSTON, Special.—A telegram from Washington says that news reached the president yesterday from Santiago that a cabinet crisis was impending, and that the Montt government was in danger of overthrow.

ABOUT OUR YOUNG FOLKS.

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO BRIGHT YOUNG PEOPLE.

The Lawyer's Ghost—A Revengeful Little Bird—Explanations of Foreign Weights—Hard Things to Say—Polite Boys.

The Lawyer's Ghost.

A lawyer and a bishop, perhaps the bishop should come first, were talking, and this was the manner of their talk:

"I have become thoroughly convinced," said the lawyer, "of the existence of nocturnal apparitions, for I have seen one!"

"Dear me!" exclaimed the bishop. "I am very curious. Relate the story."

"I will, my lord, I will," said the lawyer. "It was between the hours of eleven and twelve, I had gone to bed, and was just falling into my first comfortable sleep, when I was wakened by a strange creaking noise. It sounded as if some one was walking up stairs! The steps sounded nearer and nearer, slower and slower; solemn and measured they were, and presently they halted at my door. I drew the sheet over my head, and lay there trembling, not daring to move.

"Something," continued the lawyer, "entered my room, and threw the sheet over my face. I felt rather than saw a faint yellow glimmering light. I could not move at first, but I presently managed to gain a little courage. I drew the sheet cautiously down from my face, and—looked!"

"Well!" cried the bishop, excitedly.

"In the center of the room," said the lawyer slowly, "stood a tall old man. He seemed gaunt and worn with age or hunger, and his long gray beard hung half way down his breast. He was dressed in a queer loose cloak with a cape, and he wore a broad leather band about his waist. In one hand he held a peculiarly shaped lantern, from which flowed the yellow light, making strange ghostly shadows on the wall behind him. In the other hand he held a staff; the look of which was unpleasant. He stood still in the middle of the floor, looking at me. Presently I said, 'Whence art thou?' What dost thou require?'

"And what did he say?" cried the bishop, fixing his eyes upon the odd expression of the lawyer's face.

"He said"—replied the lawyer, speaking in a hoarse whisper—"he said: 'I beg yer pardon, sur. I'm the watchman of the street, sur; an' I thought 'twould be best for me, sur, to come up an' tell yer that yer front door stood open! If ye do be lavin' it that way, sir, it's bad luck ye'll have before the mornin'!'"

A Revengeful Little Bird.

In spite of the poet, "birds" do not "in their little nests agree," but, like some people, they have a general reputation for amiability, without at all deserving it. But it seems difficult to believe that anything with so small an allowance of brain as a bird has could find room in its cranium for ever so small a bit of memory, and even meditate and carry out a plan of revenge. Yet this is known to be a fact.

Years ago, said an English writer, I found in my garden a nest of the shrike. The young birds, four or five in number, were nearly fledged. Having heard a good deal of the predatory habits of the tribe, I was going to wring their necks. I had put them on a hedge, and they sat quite still, but looked so proud and self-possessed, and the dark, glittering eyes that were bent upon me with an expression of indignant surprise, said so plainly, "Have we not as good a right to live as you?" that my conscience smote me and I could not find it in my heart to kill them.

I walked away to call my daughter and show them to her and when I came back they were gone.

One morning last year I was in the garden looking at my roses, when I felt something hit the back of my head. Turning round not a little startled, I saw a bird flying up to the top of a high tree. When it had got there, it said, "Check!" Very soon afterward it came down again, flapped its wings against my head as it had done before, flew up to an opposite tree, and repeated its "Check!" At the first glance I had seen that it was a shrike.

Since then, and for several days, I could never show myself bareheaded in the garden of a morning without being assaulted or saluted in the same manner, and I soon got quite accustomed to it. When my head happened to be covered I was left alone; and neither my gardener nor any other frequenter of the garden was attacked. It is clear that the bird must have been one of the nestlings of the preceding spring or one of their parents, and that it remembered me probably as the disturber of its peace, not with any feeling of gratitude, however, for having spared a life I might have taken, for it evidently hit me as hard as it could, and there was an unmistakable sound of revenge in its cry.

He Marked Him.

It is only the dishonest trickster who depends upon chicanery and so-called "sharp practices" to achieve success in business. The true business man builds upon honesty and integrity, knowing that with such a foundation the success he attains will not fail at last.

Of Thomas P. Cope, the famous Philadelphia merchant, this characteristic incident is told.

A person highly recommended, approached the Quaker merchant one day, and invited him to embark in a certain joint-stock enterprise. In a careful exposition of the matter he made it appear that the scheme was likely to succeed, and that the stock would instantly run up to a liberal premium, on being put upon the market.

"Well," said Mr. Cope, "I am satisfied upon that point; I believe it would do as thou sayest. But what will be the real value of the stock?"

"Why, as to that," answered the speculator, "I cannot say"—implying by his manner what he thought—"but that is of no account, for all we have to do is to sell out, and make our thirty or forty per cent profit."

"I'll have nothing to do with it! I'll have nothing to do with it!" was the prompt indignant reply.

"And from that day," the upright merchant afterwards declared, in relating the occurrence, "I marked that man, and shunned all transactions with him."

Watching the Trifles.

"Take care of the pennies, and the dollars will take care of themselves," is the burden of the famous old saw, and conveys a truth that, wisely applied, leads to independence and competency. Lord Althorpe, the well-known English statesman, evidently was a firm believer in the trite saying; at any rate, his actions bore the impress of painstaking care and rigid honesty, which is better than all the old sayings in the world.

Althorpe was one of the most honored and loved of the Whig leaders in Parliament. He never introduced a bill into Parliament until he had thoroughly examined its minutest provisions.

On one occasion he was looking over the accounts of an agricultural society before signing his name as president. He detected an error of three pence in the balance-sheet, and refused to sign the statement until the error was corrected. He spent four hours going over the accounts again, to remove the error, saying to a friend:

"One three pence may swell into a hundred pounds next year if we neglect it."

Accuracy and Greatness.

The wonder of Professor Agassiz's knowledge was the completeness of it. That is the secret of the power of all great naturalists. They see what escapes the observation of others, and are able to discover the meaning of slight differences that ordinary men have not noticed at all. A young artist once called upon Audubon, the great student of birds, to show him drawings and paintings. Audubon, after examining the work, said, "I like it very much, but it is deficient. You have painted the legs of this bird nicely, except in one respect. The scales are exact in shape and color, but you have not arranged them correctly as to number." "I never thought of that," said the artist. "Quite likely," said Audubon. "Now upon this upper ridge of the partridge's leg there are just so many scales. You have too many. Examine the legs of a thousand partridges, and you will find the scales the same in number." The lesson shows how Audubon became great—by patient study of small things.—Sel.

Polite Boys.

George and Henry Grafton, to fill their time during vacation, and to make a little money, set up a candy and pop-corn store with their parents permission, in an unoccupied shop on the village street.

"Now," said George, we shall have a good many ladies among our customers, and it won't do to let the men smoke in here."

"Oh no!" said Henry: "we'll put up a big sign, 'No Smoking Allowed.'"

"I guess we'd better be a little more polite in our notice," said George, "so that we shan't offend any of our smoking customers."

The boys put their heads together to invent a polite "no smoking" notice; and at last, with a pleasing sense of having done exactly the right thing, hung up the following neatly lettered inscription:

Customers will pleas take Notise
That if they wish to smoke in Here
They will pleas either Extinguish their Pipes or else Go Out-Doors.

Explanations of Foreign Weights.

The rates of exchange and price of gold here are to be taken into account in forming a comparison between foreign markets and our own:

English.—In round numbers, count for a pound sterling marked thus (£), $4.84; for a shilling, marked thus (s.), 24 cents; for a penny, marked thus (d.), two cents.

Continent of Europe.—A franc, composed of 100 centimes, marked thus (f.), is 19 cents; five centimes are equal to one cent. In France a kilo is about 1 1-5 pounds. In Austria a florin, equal to 60 kreutzers, is worth .48 cents. The German florin is 40 cents. In Prussia a thaler, equal to 30 silver groschen, is worth 71 cents. In Hamburg a marco bank, equal to 16 shillings, is worth 36 cents. In Holland a guilder or florin, equal to 100 Dutch cents, is worth 41 cents. A Holland centner is equal to about 109 pounds, a Prussian centner to 103 pounds.

Hard Things To Say.

Peter Piper picked a peck of pickled peppers; a peck of pickled peppers Peter Piper picked. If Peter Piper picked a peck of pickled pepers, where's the peck of pickled peppers Peter Piper picked?"

"Thou waft'd'st the rickety stiff over the mountain-height cliffs, and clearly saw'st the full-orb'd moon."

"When a twister twisting, would twist him a twist,
For twisting a twist three twists he will twist,
But if one of the twists untwists from the twist,
The twist untwisting untwists the twist."

"Robert Rowley rolled a round roll round; a round roll Robert Rowley rolled round. Where rolled the round roll Robert Rowley rolled round?"

"Bandy-legged Borachio Mustachio Whiskerituscus, the bald but brave Bumbardino of Bagdad, helped Abormilque Blue-Beard, Bashaw of Balmendeb, to beat down an abominable Bumble Foafshaw."

What Chauncy Forgot.

"Mamma!" called Chauncy running up the back steps; "mamma! I forgot somefin!"

Mamma was busy putting the dining-room to rights. What could Chauncy have forgotten? His lunch? No, for the little red lunch-basket was gone off the hook. His mittens? No, they were on his hands. His handkerchief? No, that was in his pocket.

Chauncy had forgotten to kiss mamma good-by!

"It's such a long time 'fore 'leven I fought I couldn't wait," said he, plaintively; "so I tole the teacher I forgot somefin, and she said she'd 'scuse me if I wouldn't be so careless again,—and I tole her I wouldn't."

It was a very happy little boy that tripped lightly back to school.

"Did you find what you forgot?" asked the teacher.

"Yes, free of 'em," said Chauncy.

WHAT IS THEOSOPHY?

The spiritual yearnings of the present day which give rise to this question are, to a certain extent, an answer to it. They represent that element of the human mind which recognizes itself as a part of Eternal Truth, and seeks, by further knowledge, to discover its relation to the whole.

It is this knowledge—yearned for and sought by mankind in all stages of its history—that Theosophy is offering to the world to-day; the knowledge of the soul, its nature, possibilities, and ultimate attainments; of the universe in its manifold parts and differentiations; of That which we can only feel to be beyond knowledge, the Source, Life, and Consummation of all things.

The ground thus covered by Theosophy embraces the whole range of human enquiry. It rewards the most earnest searchings into the great Trinity of Mystery by indicating the true relation of the parts to the Whole, and the lines along which this relation is effected. If Theosophy is world-wide in its application, it is wide also in definition. The answer lies in the inner consciousness of all who seek it, in proportion to each man's spiritual receptivity, will Theosophy be to him in its divinest significance. As a definition of its highest and most abstract side, we may speak of Theosophy as the recognition and conscious growth of soul-life; the wisdom that comes of growth; the gradual unfolding and realization of the possibilities of being.

It is looking into the nature of the Self, and a reading, in that inner light, of the mystery which finds in the Self the secret and spring of the universe.

Hence the man who has realized the germs of a superna! existence has found the answer he seeks to the question, "What is Theosophy?" He has found the beginnings of himself, and Theosophy is the recognition of that Self in all its boundless potentialities.

Such is the soul or ideal of Theosophy, which, to many minds, would be void of meaning. A subject is, to us, what we have the power of making it, and those who limit the Universe to their own narrow vision, and Truth to the extent of their undeveloped intuition, will cling to the body of Theosophy and ignore the existence of its soul. This body, or set of doctrines—Theosophy in its intellectual aspect—has come to be regarded, by many inquirers, as the whole extent of the subject. Aroused by the increasing prominence of certain doctrines relating to the history of the Universe and Man, they have carnalized them into a creed, whose principles are said to undermine all rival religions, thus giving prominence to the form at the expense of the ideal.

For the sectarian element enters, in no way, into the conception of Theosophy.

It claims to be the underlying principle of all religious systems, yet everything that is inculcated in the form of doctrine is subservient to, and useful only as the means of expressing, the fundamental idea.

In attempting a more concrete definition of Theosophy we encounter a philosophy so vast and harmonious as to justify at once the conviction that its foundations are laid on Everlasting Truth.

Among the central ideas, we notice a fundamental law of thought—that of Agreement in Difference, or Unity in Differentiation; coincident with this law—that by which its operation is effected—is the dual principle of involution and evolution. On these two lines the whole philosophy unfolds itself. It postulates the existence of one all-pervading, eternal and only Reality—Spirit—in which lies hidden the Universal Ideal, or Fore-Thought of all things.

From an absolute and unutterable Source, whose profundity is impenetrable even by the highest light of consciousness, the Universal Thought is projected through various planes of subjectivity, becoming, from the unmanifested, or ideal prototypal Cause, the manifested, objective effect on that plane where the ideal is realized in matter. The subjective and objective planes are co-related, since the unity of Spirit must be manifested in all stages of its evolution. As on the highest plane, the nameless Cause and its Effect are blended in one unmanifested ideal, so, on the lowest, when the ideal is brought down into visible form, it becomes its own effect: it realizes itself.

The secret, then, of the universe is the manifestation of the Divine Mind or Universal Self-Consciousness, through various grades of objectivity. Descending ultimately into gross matter, it passes through every stage of material existence to its highest development in man. In him the Kosmos recognizes its crowning effort; the life stream (now conscious mind) has but one stage further to ascend before it realizes the goal towards which it has been working. The full completion of this goal lies in a culmination of consciousness beyond even the highest conception of humanity to-day—a consciousness of which we can only say that its attainment is the whole purpose of the Universe.

Theosophy teaches that all things animate and inanimate have, in varying degrees, the germs of this consciousness, and that what we call growth or evolution is the moving of the World-Soul up through various phases of manifestation; assimilating and expanding every vestige of life-consciousness, until it is garnered into the ultimate storehouse of Divinity.

We, individualized rays of the Divine Mind, must evolve until we have realized and become the ideal with which we started. This ideal involves the persistence of the individual life-stream through repeated earth-lives—each one the strict result of the deeds of the former, and receiving by an impartial and immutable law, the exact conditions of existence for which the soul has fitted itself in the past.

Thus, through many stages, the universe realizes itself—ever one, yet in various grades of manifestation—ever unfolding, yet doomed to battle with the forces, by means of which it grows. Students of Theosophy, more, perhaps, than any others, are brought face to face with the deep mystery of Being. For them Nature has a comprehensiveness which completely outmeasures the wisdom of the wisest human systems, since it includes them all, and yet remains unapproachable.

Though compelled to stand uncovered before the profound unknowableness of Life, Theosophists can yet claim, by the application of their fundamental principles, a clearer insight into the purposes of Nature than has been attained by other schools of thought. They see in the mystery of Being a conception that includes also the idea of non-Being—the condition of absolute and limitless Existence of which Being is but a transitory stage, and towards which it can advance only by effort.

The evils of matter, then, do not, in reality, mar the progress of the Universe; they support its life by giving it the means whereby to win its immortality. Nature can make no mistake. Suffering is good, and failure is good, and the waste places of this stage shall be the paradises of the next, for the Universe is ever unfolding from its divine germ, and all that appears in it, having pre-existed from everlasting in the Ideal Mind, must be a part of the divine process.

In recognizing the vast unfolding of an ideal consciousness, on the same lines as those by which a plant unfolds from its germ, we perceive a fitness and a harmony in all things, which those are apt to miss who view the Universe from one of its transient stages only. The Theosophical keynote of agreement in difference, conjoined with the endless evolution of the One Principle, unlocks many an otherwise fast-closed door. It establishes, moreover, a system of ethics on a thoroughly philosophical basis.

Teaching that, though the potencies of differentiation are varied, Spirit is one in its essence and in every phase of its manifestation, it inculcates the principle of unity and altruism as the essential of a Theosophical life.

No other point is insisted upon, for in the recognitoin of Brotherhood and Love lie all the Law and the Prophets. Theosophy sees in this all-pervading principle, as applied to ethics, the nucleus of force which shall revolutionize the world.

It is the road along which the Universe moves in its slow, grand march towards perfection, and they who realize their oneness with the Whole, in purpose and end, must mold their lives in accordance with its laws.

Selfishness or separateness is the absolute destroyer of the purposes of nature. In the lower kingdoms it is necessary as a means of acquiring unity, knowledge, and a firmer basis of existence; in mankind who has entered upon a larger life, the bestial should be lost in the divine, the sense of separateness in the nearer vision of the Whole.

Such is an imperfect outline of the philosophy of Theosophy—the record of a divine Universe issuing from a divine Source and journeying towards a divine Ultimatum, the Alpa and the Omega of all things.

IN PIERCING WEATHER.

Cold Lodgings for Bill and his Partner that Icy Night.

It was a whistling cold night outside. Every incomer brought with him a rush of chilled air that caused the occupants of the rear seats to shiver and scowl reproachfully, for the atmosphere of the mission room had reached an almost tropical warmth. In the of center the left aisle stood a great, old fashioned stove, and close beside it at the end of one of the long, hard benches, sat two ragged and frowsy men.

Upon the platform a stout and placid-faced woman was reading a selection from some religious book, but the two men stared hard at the clock which ticked upon the wall above her head, and seemed to follow the onward sweep of the slender minute hand with their entire attention.

At last one of them leaned over and spoke to the other in a hoarse whisper:—

"Only t'ree minits more, Bill," he said. The wind charged upon the windows and nearly rattled them out of their sashes. Bill shivered suggestively and gazed regretfully at the glowing stove.

"Wot's it t'nite, Bill?" queried the first, "area or wun uv them crockery barrels down Barclay Street?"

"I uster know a cellar nex' ter a bakery," reflectively answered Bill, "where it wus warm, but sum cuss has spiked der door."

The minute was but a few seconds from 9:30, and the singers were clearing their throats for the final psalm. Bill drew so close to the fire that his tattered sleeve began to smoke.

"Shall we work der station hus?" queried number one.

"Nixey. Dere sendin' der lodgers up."

"Try a truck den."

"'Twon't do needer. Der duck wat sleeps out t'nite gits froze."

"Well, wot's left?"

"Jes! hoof it aroun' an' wait fur mornin!."

The singing was over and the unkempt congregation began to shuffle streetward. Bill and his partner lingered lovingly around the stove and indulged in anticipatory shivers until the attendant began to turn out the lights. Then with a muttered oath or two, they drifted out.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Fifty-Five Pounds for a Love Letter

The letters of John Keats—especially his love letters—always fetch high prices. That from which the following extract is made was sold two years ago for £55. It is a charming letter, and in perfect condition. It is addressed, of course, to Fanny Brawne:—"Sweetest Fanny,—You fear sometimes I do not love you so much as you wish! My dear girl, I love you ever and ever, and without reserve. The more I have known you the more have I lov'd. In every way. Even my jealousies have been agonies of Love, in the hottest fit I ever had I would have died for you. I have vexed you too much. But for Love; Can I help it? You are always new. The last of your kisses was ever the sweetest, the last smile the brightest, the last movement the gracefulest. . . . You uttered a half complaint once that I only loved your Beauty. Have I nothing else then to love in you than that? Do not I see a heart naturally furnished with wings imprison itself with me? . . . . My mind has been the most discontented and restless one that ever was put into a body too small for it. I never felt my mind repose upon anything with complete and undistracted enjoyment—upon no person but you. When you are in the room my thoughts never fly out of the window."

NOT TO HIS LIKING.

How Charley Criticized a Smoking Jacket Intended For Himself.

A tired little woman was shopping one day last week at the counter of one of our large clothing houses, and a cross-looking man with her was trying on a smoking jacket under her directions.

"Do you think Jack would like this one, Charlie?" she asked, then she said in an aside to the salesman, "Jack is my brother."

"He's an ungrateful dog if he doesn't," growled the impatient model, who was her husband, as anybody with half an eye could see.

"It is very cheap," she said, "and not lined with satin all through. Would you wear it?"

"Would I? Just try me. Do you suppose that any man that had appreciation wouldn't be glad to get such a garment?" and he picked up the disputed fabric in his thumb and finger.

"He's just your size, and it fits you splendidly. But I intend to spend more money on a smoking coat; this is so cheap."

"More money? Why you have everything requisite, good cloth, fine fit; what more do you want? That's enough for a smoking coat for any man living."

"Yes, I suppose so. Well dear, I'll take it. And you need not wait any longer," and she smiled sweetly as a great load was lifted off her mind.

Outside her husband meets a chum.

"Great scheme, Fred. I've just been fitted for a smoking jacket that my wife is going to send to her brother. I wouldn't be seen dead in the thing, but it will suit him all right. Got it cheap, too, which is another advantage."

Meanwhile the wife was saying to the salesman in the clothing store:

"If you'll be kind enough to keep it until the day before Christmas I will have it sent up then. My husband will be so surprised when he finds it was for him!"—Detroit Free Press.

$200 A WORD.

John M. Butler Given Probably the Highest Fee Ever Paid.

It is not often a piece of legal advice costs $200 a word, but yet this recently happened in this city. Not long ago Morris Butler, son of John M. Butler, who had just arrived home from an evening party at 2 o'clock in the morning, heard a carriage drive up to the house, and a moment later answered a ring at the door bell. A young man of handsome face and energetic manner blurted out, without ceremony:

"What states can cousins legally marry in?"

"I don't know," said Mr. Butler, as soon as he could recover from the effects of his visitor's bluntness, "but I will ask father."

He went up stairs and, after much knocking, aroused his father.

"Father," said he, "what states can cousins legally marry in?"

"Kansas," was the single word in response, between what sounded suspiciously like snores.

Mr. Butler returned down stairs:

"Well, what does he say?" asked the visitor.

"Kansas," replied young Mr. Butler, laconically.

"Thank you!" The door was closed and the young visitor was gone.

Nothing further was thought of the incident until a recent mail brought Mr. Butler a certified check for $200 for "legal advice" from his hitherto unknown client. This is probably the highest rate per word ever paid for legal advice. It divides into $100 per syllable and $33.33 per letter.—Indianapolis News.

SHADOWS OF VENUS.

A Simple Experiment for Observing the Veins of the Eye.

Purkinja discovered a very simple and highly entertaining experiment by means of which the retina, with all its veins and blood vessels standing out in relief against it, can be thrown into the air before one's eyes. It is called the arborescent figure, from its likeness to a many branched tree, and is produced in the following manner:—

In a dark room at night move a candle backward and forward before the eyes, and these being fixed on the walls beyond. After a few seconds the air will assume a reddish appearance, and running over it in all directions may be seen the veins and blood vessels in bold relief, while toward the center of the figure there rises up a dark trunk, from which the veins branch out on all sides.

The trunk is visible where the optic nerve enters the eye, and this experiment is chiefly interesting to the student as proving that the parts of the retina which actually receive and produce the sensation of light must lie behind the blood vessels, since these cast their shadow onto it, and we are enabled to see them, as we see any other object, externally.—Chambers' Journal.

A Misplaced Coroner.

"Yes," remarked the Coroner, "we are often put to considerable embarrassment by mistakes. We were rung up recently and instructed to 'come at once; the man is dead.' A deputy was hurried to the house. 'Where is the man?' he asked of a weeping lady, who answered his knock at the door. 'Upstairs, in the bedroom,' she sobbed.

"He went to the room and found a man in bed. 'Who are you?' asked the man. 'I'm the Coroner, and I'm looking for the corpse.' 'Good God!' yelled the sick man, 'I'm not dead yet; I want the doctor.'

"It turned out that the messenger rang up the coroner's office instead of the doctor's and that his message should have been, 'come at once, Mr. —— is dying.' The man did not die, but he got a shock which he'll remember for the rest of his life."—Chicago Herald.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

ST. JACOBS OIL
TRADE MARK
THE GREAT REMEDY FOR PAIN
CURES PROMPTLY AND PERMANENTLY
RHEUMATISM,
Lumbago, Headache, Toothache,
NEURALGIA.
Sore Throat, Swellings, Frost-bites,
SCIATICA.
Sprains, Bruises, Burns, Scalds.
THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO., Baltimore, Md.

"CHAMMIE" COULDN'T SEE IT.

One Instance Where the Principle of "Promotion" Failed to Succeed.

Two little bootblacks stood looking wistfully in the show window of a Clark street cigar store one afternoon. They were typical street arabs, with all the tough ways and bad habits of their class. They wanted to smoke, and their eyes were bent upon a box "cabbage-leaf" cheroots which were labled "two cents each."

"Say, Chammie," said the taller arab, "I t'ink I'd injoy a bloody good smoke just now."

"I'm wid yer," replied "Chammie," smacking his lips in anticipation of a cigar.

"But yer see, de on'y trouble wid me is dat I'm plum broke."

"Is dat so? Well I've got two cents."

"Give it ter me, den.

"What fur?"

"Why, ter buy wan ob dem air sheroots, in course."

"But I wanter smoke too."

"N so do I."

"How kin both of us do it?"

"I'll tell yer wat tu do. Yer must give me de two cents an' we'll organize a stock company. Yer see you is de capitalist. I'm de inventor; so yer give de coin to me, den I buys de cigar and yez becomes a stockholder. See?"

"Yas,"

"An' yer smokes it, don't yer?"

"Yas, but don't yer see, I'm de organizer, so in course I smokes de cigar."

"What'll I do?"

"Why, you're de stockholder, yer kin spit. See?"

A ONE-ENDED DIALOGUE.

The Editor Got Himself Into Trouble Through the Telephone.

The crimes editor was at the telephone trying to gather in an item about a sudden death, says the Detroit Tribune.

"Is this Dr. Sawkins?"

"Oh, it's Dr. Ratcinski, is it? Well, doctor, how did the man die?"

"This ain't the doctor at all, and your name is what?"

"You're the man that died? How can that be?"

"Oh, you saw the man before he died. Well, who are you?

"Is your name Kolasinske, or Pomerinske?"

"Breckinride? Is that you or the man that died?

"Beg pardon, but what is the name of the man who died?

"Thompson? A relation of——?

"Oh, he had no relations? Well, was he dead when the doctor found him, or did he die afterwards?

"The doctor didn't leave him till he was dead? Till he was dead, the man or the doctor?

"His funeral is to-morrow. (Aside.) I wish it was your funeral.

"You want the coroner to come there right away? This ain't the coroner."

With a long V-shaped sigh that sounded like the last undulating plunk of a sinking soul, the crimes editor hung up the telephone and crept wearily back to his den, as one who would say: "Oh that I had died while yet a mere child."

A Mother's Terrible Crime.

LONDON, Special.—A dispatch from Nottingham states that a widow named Castings, who had a milliner's shop on the principal street of that place, murdered her two children to-day. After killing her children the woman committed suicide. Mrs. Castings used a coal hammer in carrying out her fiendish plan, and with it she had battered the heads of her victims so that they were hardly recognizable.

SYRUP of FIGS

ONE ENJOYS

Both the method and results when Syrup of Figs is taken; it is pleasant and refreshing to the taste, and acts gently yet promptly on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels, cleanses the system effectually, dispels colds, headaches and fevers and cures habitual constipation. Syrup of Figs is the only remedy of its kind ever produced, pleasing to the taste and acceptable to the stomach, prompt in its action and truly beneficial in its effects, prepared only from the most healthy and agreeable substances, its many excellent qualities commend it to all and have made it the most popular remedy known.

Syrup of Figs is for sale in 50c and $1 bottles by all leading druggists. Any reliable druggist who may not have it on hand will procure it promptly for any one who wishes to try it. Do not accept any substitute.

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
LOUISVILLE, KY. NEW YORK, N.Y.

PISO'S CURE FOR
Consumptives and people who have weak lungs or Asthma, should use Piso's Cure for Consumption. It has cured thousands. It has not injured one. It is not bad to take. It is the best cough syrup. Sold everywhere. 25c.
CONSUMPTION.

A GRAY PARROT.

He sits behind his cloister bars
As grave as Solon;
He looks, like Kepler, at the stars;
He's one of those who never speak
Until they've stopped to think; his beak
A semicolon.

In him all lighter thoughts are sunk;
His cares are higher.
He lives as doth a tonsured monk;
He merely eats to praise the Lord,
Like some Franciscan of the cord,
Or poor Grey Friar.

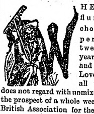
No flaneur he, or vain quidnunc,
Or idle tattler;
Learned and critical as Brunck,
He'll chew a metaphysic stalk
In silence—and he liked to talk
As well as Littler.

His eyes are like the palmers' beads
With which in Latin,
They told their prayers and pious creeds,
Their "Pater" and "Magnificat,"
Their "Aves," "Credos," and all that,
At eve and matin.

He envieth not the bold game-cock
With all his harem;
He shunneth all the sex en bloc
(They turn the mind from prayer). As fits
A holy hermit, so he sits
A censor morum.

—WILLIAM HOLLOWAY.

"QUITS."



WHEN one is fluffy-haired, cherry tempered and twenty-three years of age—and little Lady Loveday was all three—one does not regard with unmixed rapture the prospect of a whole week with the British Association for the advancement of Science. But Sir James had been elected President for the year, and his wife, as in duty-bound, was obliged to accompany him.

The town of Mudchester, with its forest of tall chimneys and its gloomy pall, may possibly represent the sinews and strength of England, but it is not exactly an ideal place in which to spend the early days of September. Elsewhere there are blue skies, heather-clad moors and grouse on the wing, but Mudchester, for some inscrutable reason, preserves the same gray and depressed appearance year in and year out. Sir James Loveday, however, full of the temporary importance which attaches to the eminenent scientist who is President of the year, was delighted with the whole thing, and especially proud of showing off his pretty young wife to his scientific collegues, whose spouses, though uniting in their persons the manifold virtues of the British matron, could hardly lay claim to either epitlet. He had only been married a year. They had met on a homeward bound Cunarder, and though this peculiar ship had beaten the record, there had been time enough for Sir James to become enamored of Miss Lena Gardner, who finding no one younger to her taste on board, had smiled on the elderly scientist until he had offered her his name and fortune. She was a sensible young woman, with a nice appreciation of the good things of this life, and, in six weeks from the time of their landing at Liverpool, they were quietly married in London.

Quite a little murmur of admiration and a notable craning of masculine necks greeted Lady Loveday as she made her appearance in the Town Hall of Mudchester on the night of the opening address. It was her first introduction to the scientific world, and men of science, much like other men, are not apt to appreciate good looks. In her white brocade mantle, a boa of ostrich feathers encircling her pretty throat, and some diamond arrows thrust through her blond hair, she looked a radient vision of youth and beauty in the crowd of ill-dressed gawky women who made up the feminine portion of the audience. Devotion to the toilette forms no part of the programme of the ladies who attend meetings of the British Association, the advancement of science being more important in their eyes than the plaiting of hair and wearing of gold. And so Lena was able to make a little sensation. She entered the large hall alone, for Sir James was already in his place on the platform, and was even giving the preliminary cough which precedes the opening address.

"By Jove!" said a bronzed young man to himself—a young man who had strolled in late, and now found himself at the very back of the vast hall—"if that isn't Lena! Odd that I should see her the first week I arrive in England! What the deuce is she doing here? Wonder if she has forgotten? Well—it's three years ago."

The opening address was an enormous success, as it always is. During the week the popular enthusiasm, cooled by many scientific lectures, may abate; but on the opening night no judge on the Bench is surer of a laugh than the eminent scientist who opens the meeting. The mildest jokelets are received with rapture, the feeblest smiles get a round of applause. Lady Loveday was surrounded by admiring chemists, biologists, and botanists by the time the large audience was filing out.

"You'll come with our expedition on Thursday, Lady Lovejoy, won't you?" urged a thin young professor from a Scotch University, whose appearance suggested the suspicion that he had recently come out of an eye-hospital.

Lady Loveday smiled and made up her mind to the inevitable. After all, he was only a little worse than the rest. All the young men at the meeting wore turn down collars, and coats which had apparently been made for somebody else.

"I shall be delighted," she said in her most cordial tone. "Where are you going, and what are you going to do to improve me?"

"Oh, it's an expedition down a salt mine. We shall have to take you down in a bucket. You won't mind, will you?" urged the weak-eyed young man eagerly.

"Not at all, if you will insure the rope not breaking."

But all the same, when Thursday arrived, and Lena found herself alone at the railway station—for Sir James had a committee meeting that morning, and could only join her later on in the day—she felt somewhat depressed at the prospect before her. There was a large and somewhat weird-looking crowd on the platform. A slight drizzle was falling, and the young ladies of the party had unanimously elected to appear in bag-like waterproof garments, though, to be sure, their male kind ran them hard in the matter of curious raiment. Most of the travellers had invested in paper bags full of Bath buns, for an expedition with the British Association is generally fraught with peril in the matter of supplies. The weak-eyed young man was in a state of excitement bordering on delirium. Lady Loveday sighed as her eye ran over the mass of pushing, perspiring, bemackintoshed human beings on the platform.

"There isn't a soul here that I want to speak to," she thought, settling into the comfortable corner-place which the youthful professor had secured for her; and then, as her eye caught the square-shouldered back of a check-coated man in the distance, she added mentally: "That looks like a nice man. His hair is cut beautifully short, and he's got a brown neck and a properly ironed collar. He reminds me of poor Dick."

But, directly after, the train steamed out of the station and Lady Loveday's reminiscences came to an end. She had to make conversation with her cicerone for the day and a whole carriageful of other people. By the time they had arrived at the pit's mouth and were waiting their turn to go down, Lena was not sure that she wanted to engage in such a perilous experiment.

Only about a quarter of the trainful of people could be accommodated under the shed which covered the shaft, the rest were waiting outside. Finally, however, she was jammed with some seven or eight other people, including her scientific admirer, in the baize-covered bucket, and was emptied out, after an uncanny descent through a black void, into the brown-walled cavern at the bottom. The mine had been decorated with thousands of candles in honor of the event, and each visitor was provided with a tallow dip stuck into a wooden handle. Down in the depths of the mine the Scotch professor waxed confidential, not to say tender.

"This man is getting a bore," thought Lady Loveday; "I must really evade him somehow;" and with another turn of the rock she managed to slip away from him. Candle in hand, she followed a group of people in front of her. Presently one of the party—the young man whose back she had seen on the platform stopped, and, with an action which she recognized at once, struck a match, stooped his head, and lighted a cigarette.

"Why, it is Dick!" she murmured; and just then he turned and saw her. "I thought you were in—Afghanistan," she went on hurriedly, as he stood gazing at her.

"So I have been, for the last two years. That frontier business took longer than I thought. And you?"

Lady Loveday blushed and looked down. Here was an adventure after her own heart. She was a curious mixture of practical worldliness and theoretical sentimentality. She had liked him, handsome, penniless Captain Bramwell, more than any man she had ever known, and he—well, she was quite aware that he had worshipped the very ground she had trod on. But all that was three years ago, and in three years there are many changes.

"I saw you the other night," he continued presently; "you came in an awfully fetching cloak, with a white fluffy thing around your neck. I've been trying to find you out ever since, but nobody that I asked could tell me anything about Miss Gardner."

Lady Loveday smiled. He did not know of her marriage then? The caprice took her not to tell him just yet—she wanted, woman-like, to see if he had remained faithful all these years.

"O, I am such an insignificant person in the midst of all these bigwigs."

Dick smiled back at her—he had a charming smile—and they wandered along together, each with a tallow dip flickering and sputtering, and fitfully lighting their handsome young faces. She had not altered one bit, he said; and she declared he was as brown as a Hindoo, and would have to be scraped white. Time flies when old lovers meet, and nearly an hour had gone before Dick had told her that he had come down to the Association to read a paper in the geographical section. Would she come and hear it? Of course, of course she would! Poor old Dick! Why, he was just as hard hit, she firmly believed, as ever.

When they at length got back to the bottom of the shaft, there was not a soul to be seen. The awful truth began to dawn upon them that they had been left behind. How easily that might be, with the five or six hundred people who had come with the excursion, they both saw at a glance. What was to be done? Nothing—absolutely nothing. Lady Loveday turned greenish white as she leaned against the rock.

"Sir James," she moaned—"Sir James would never let me die like a dog in a hole."

"Sir James?" said Dick, surprised. "You mean the President? Is he a great friend of yours?"

"He is—O my poor Dick!—he is—my husband!" she faltered, not daring to look at him now. Captain Bramwell gave a little whistle and turned away. What a farce, and how like Lena the whole thing was! Lady Loveday did not see him smile.

"Forgive me!" she murmured, stepping nearer to him, and laying a caressing hand on his arm. She was very fond of the drama, and that was always what they said in plays, when the lover came back from India and found the heroine faithless.

"My poor child," he answered gravely, "I'll forgive you anything—as long as we ever get out of this infernal pit."

Lena could hardly conceal her disappointment. Was it possible—actually possible—that he did not care, that he did not remember? It couldn't be, he had loved her too well! He must be pretending, just to look as if he were indifferent.

They waited a long time, and it was 4 o'clock before the whirr of the bucket was heard coming to their relief. An explanation of Captain Bramwell's equanimity with regard to her marriage was afforded Lady Loveday on their arrival at the top of the shaft. Hurrying towards the pit's mouth was seen Sir James, accompanied by a pretty girl in blue, a girl whose naive delight at seeing Captain Bramwell was obvious to all the bystanders.

"And who—who is the exuberant young woman in blue?" queried Lena, with not quite a pretty smile.

"That, dear Lady Loveday," said Dick quietly, as he handed his companion out on to terra firma, "that is my wife!"—The London World.

AROUND ABOUT THE FARM.

AGRICULTURAL READING OF INTEREST AND VALUE.

Artichokes for Swine—A Subsoiling Experiment—Wheat Harvesting in California—Comparative Yield of Corn—Keeping Butter.

Artichokes for Swine.

Farmers who want a cheap, easily raised and yet excellent food for their swine can find it in the red or Brazilian artichoke. Among the advantages enumerated as belonging to this crop not the least is that it can be planted in either fall or spring, as is most convenient, and that when the work is once done it stays planted indefinitely. Then, unlike most other crops of useful plants, artichokes require little or no cultivation except what they get from the industrious rooting of the hogs, who, as one authority says, will cheerfully do both the cultivating and harvesting at the times and in the way that will do the most good. The yield is enormous, and the roots are a wholesome corrective of the system, so that it is said a pig pastured on artichokes with cholera would be an astonishing curiosity.

The planting of an artichoke field, and its subsequent culture until ready for the swine, does not involve very great labor. The best place for it is a piece of low land, with a deep, rich soil, near a brook. It should be deeply plowed when not too wet, and thoroughly harrowed. The seed, about six bushels to the acre, should be planted after the frost is out in the spring and before June, in drills three feet apart, and a foot apart in the rows. The tubers should be cut like potatoes for spring planting, covered with not less than three inches of soil, and afterwards rolled. If not convenient to plant in the spring, it can be done in the fall, from about the middle of October to the middle of November but in fall seeding experience has shown that the best results are obtained by planting the whole tubers.

When the plants are three inches high in the spring, it is advantageous to run the cultivator between the rows in order to check the growth of weeds, although the artichoke is enough of a weed itself to triumph over most opponents in the struggle for existence.

With the weather favorable during the summer—that is, if there has been a good supply of rain—the crop will usually be ready for the swine by the latter part of September; but in a season too dry for vigorous growth it is better to postpone their onslaught for two or three weeks. They may then be allowed to forage until the ground freezes. After the frost is out of the ground in the spring, they may be turned in again to root until the beginning or middle of June.

It is calculated that after a season favorable for growth an acre will supply ample forage for forty head of swine, and still leave enough roots in the ground for re-seeding.

Although artichokes do not form a complete food for swine they will answer very well for a time in the fall and spring without other food.

A Subsoiling Experiment.

As we have often suggested, every farm ought to be to some extent an experiment station. The facts learned in this way are doubly valuable—first, because they stimulate the mind of the experimenter, and, second, because the discoveries made have a direct local bearing. Experiments made at a station may or may not indicate what is needed on a particular farm; but experiments on that farm, if intelligently conducted, show what can be done right there on that identical piece of land.

And one of the experiments that it would be well to make would be that of subsoil plowing. There is a wide difference of opinion among intelligent farmers as to this matter. Some are strongly opposed to it as not only useless but actually injurious, while others with equal insistence maintain that it is essential to the best results in farming.

Both, no doubt, are right, but are reasoning from different points of view. Some soils require subsoiling, others do not, and that is the simple basis of the difference of opinion with regard to it.

But it cannot always be determined, without trial, whether any particular soil will be benefited, by subsoiling or not. And here comes in the local application of the experiment station idea.

A method of doing this, as suggested by the secretary of the Kansas State Board of Agriculture, is as follows:

Plow and subsoil two or three strips about two rods wide, from sixteen to twenty inches deep, across the field selected for the experiment, and let the remainder of the field be plowed to the usual depth and not subsoiled. The surface preparation of both should be the same before planting.

Then plant the entire field at once, or in sections, but so that each planting will cover at the same time the subsoiled and unsubsoiled parts, and give exactly the same cultivation to the entire field while the crop is growing. Keep a careful record of the varying conditions of the weather and note the differences, if any, in the growth of the plants, and, after harvesting, the difference in the yield and quantity of the grain.

By such an experiment as this the utility of subsoiling on his own land may be practically ascertained by every farmer. If the difference in the amount and quality of the crop should not be great enough to pay for the increased cost of subsoiling, all the theorizing in the world will not justify the expense. But the operation has so often proved a source of increased profit that no farmer should be satisfied until he has tested it for himself and definitely ascertained that on his farm, at least, it costs more than it comes to.

Wheat Harvesting in California.

But the last two years have witnessed another development of machinery in California wheat culture. Steam power has been successfully applied, and a very great reduction in cost has been made. In the summer of 1889 a large number of field engines built here, on California designs, were in the fields with astonishing results. The largest of them cut a swath of 40 feet, and harvested the crop at a cost for running expenses of less than 25 cents per acre, as against $1.75 of the old system. The same engine is expected to plow, carrying 12 or 20, or even 40 plows, and, since it is a road engine, it will haul the crop to the nearest station or landing at less expense than if hauled with horses. The price of such an engine, with the harvester and thresher, is from $5,000 to $8,000 at present, but this cost, it is said, will soon be reduced. From the talk among wheat-growers, two or three years will witness the introduction of steam on the large ranches. The engines are "straw-burners;" or, when plowing, wood can be used. Coal is very high on the Pacific coast, and therefore coal-burning engines will never be profitable here. I have asked wheat raisers what they thought would be the cost of plowing, harrowing, seeding, harvesting and delivering at the station, if these steam engines do what is expected. They answer: "About $1 an acre, on the easily farmed lands, and not more than $2 anywhere." This, then, is the way that California can successfully meet the competition of India, Russia, Siberia and the Argentine Republic.—American Agriculturist.

Comparative Yields of Corn.

A correspondent of the National Stockman says that in testing some 20 varieties of corn in which the preparation of soil, planting and cultivating were the same as well as the character of the soil, he found the yield varied from 33 to 83 bushels per acre, Pride of the North, a small early variety with a stalk of 10 feet and ripening July 15, and the Mastodon, a large variety with a stalk of 13 feet and ripening the first week in August, representing the extremes. The Iowa King, from E. S. Teagarden, Boone, Iowa, and a speckled corn from G. T. Petit, Oneida, Kansas, both contributors to your columns, ranked very high as heavy croppers and in the desirable qualities of medium corn. The yield and adaptability of different varities of corn in any section are questions of close attention and experiment. Every farmer should at least set aside an acre of ground that is uniform as to all necessary points in corn culture and then plant the same number of rows to a half dozen varieties of corn, giving them equal and impartial care. A half pound or pound of seed each, will not be very expensive. Part of it may easily be secured by exchanging with farmers in other sections. The experiment will be a grand object lesson and in many ways full of instruction. Look about for seed now and be prepared for it next spring.

Keeping Butter.

The best method for keeping butter for any length of time is to store it in barrels, under brine in the granulated form. New, clean whisky or pork barrels should be used, filled to within 18 inches of the top with brine strong enough to float an egg, and the butter then put in and covered so as to keep it at least four inches beneath the surface of the brine. Butter packed in this way has kept sweet for 18 months or more. Under our present conditions of manufacturing and market it, of course, rarely occurs that there is any need of keeping butter for such a time, but in putting up butter for export, especially for shipment to countries south of us, this or a similar plan might be adopted for keeping it in good condition. We have a good chance just now for building a trade with our southern neighbors, and it would pay to take extra pains to procure it by getting our butter to them in better shape than any other that they receive.

Short Rows.

To winter leeks, dig, remove dead leaves and cut top down one-half and store in trenches like celery.

Resolve and plan and do better farming next year than you did this. Let progress be your watchword.

Mice don't like camphor. Put a little of it with the seeds which you are going to winter.

To be successful in farming as much system and forethought is required as for any other occupation.

Celery should not be handled when frosted. Let it thaw out in the ground and dig it only when dry.

Charcoal where the fattening swine can get it at will is a good thing. It keeps down acidity of the stomach and promotes digestion.

Farm Life, published at Rochester, New York, offers $100 to any farmer or gardener who will produce an odorless onion. The editor says he believe it can be done.

Watch your farm expenses and be sure that your income always exceeds your expenditure. In order to know your standing, you will have to keep an account book, of course.

If your barn has big knot holes or cracks on the north or west sides, stop them, for sufficient air for ventilation can get in from warmer sides. Keep the stock warm and it will save feed.

When the cow gets choked with an apple or turnip push the obstruction down into her stomach. The best thing to do this with is a piece of inch rubber hose, the bore being filled with a three-quarter inch rope. This makes a flexible instrument, yet stiff enough for its purpose.

If men who wish to destroy Bermuda grass will procure the seeds of the broad leaf upland dock (Rumex) next spring, take a pick and dig little holes in the Bermuda grass lawn, say two feet by two feet, plant the dock seed in January or February, the dock will smother and destroy the last vestige of grass during the summer.

Grafting wax can be made by melting and boiling together carefully three pounds of resin, two pounds of beeswax and one pound of rendered beef tallow. When well incorporated by boiling together for a few minutes, pour into cold water and pull and work after the manner of candy making. The proportions of the ingredients vary according to the weather and the degree of pliability desired.

Went by Contraries.

A smart little woman got into the street car the other day with a baby in her arms, says the Arkansaw Traveler. It lay as still as a lamb. Soon however, it changed its course.

It began a loud tune. The mother took the baby and stood it straight up in her lap. It yelled just the same. She hugged it too her bosom. It yelled right along. She stroked it and soothed it. Still louder yells. She boxed its ears. Prolonged and spasmodic yells.

She then changed her plans. She cleared a space all around, set the baby down, loosened the bands about neck, gave it plenty of room and then said, in her most persuasive tone:

"Now, dearie, let it go as loud as you can."

Baby never uttered a sound.

"I thought you wouldn't,' she said. She took it up in her lap, the gentlemen resumed their seats and the car trundled on.

"The tree of deepest root is found, least willing still to leave the ground" and this could once have been most truly said of chronic pain of any sort. But after the lapse of so many ages, a sovereign remedy has been found in Salvation Oil, every provident householder should keep it.

When is a young man making love and not making love? When he is pressing his suit.

It is with infinite satisfaction that I state the fact that Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup has been long used in my family and always with marked success. R. F. Jarvis, Chief Eng. Fire Dep. Petersburg, Va.

A wealthy grandfather always receives the respect and veneration due to old age.

With Ely's Cream Balm a child can be treated without pain and with perfect safety. Try the remedy, it cures Catarrh.

My son has been afflicted with nasal catarrh since quite young. I was induced to try Ely's Cream Balm, and before he had used one bottle that disagreeable catarrhal smell had all left him. He appears as well as any one. It is the best catarrh remedy in the market.—J. C. Olmstead, Arcola, Ill.

One of my children had a very bad discharge from her nose. Two physicians prescribed, without benefit. We tried Ely's Cream Balm, and, much to our surprise, there was a marked improvement. We continued using the Balm and in a short time the discharge was cured.—O. A. Cary, Corning N. Y.

Apply Balm into each nostril. It is Quickly Absorbed, Gives Relief at once. Price 50 cents at Druggists or by mail. ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren St., New York.

A man will put his best foot forward if he has a sore toe on the other foot.

In the bright lexicon of speculation there is nothing so uncertain as a sure thing.

Urban Population is the subject of the fourth of the Lessons from the Census, by Hon. CARROLL D. WRIGHT, in the Popular Science Monthly. It shows just how much ground there is for the current apprehension in regard to the increase of the slum population of cities. The paper will appear in the February number.

J. Gould is proprietor of the largest watering place in the world—his office.

The Only One Ever Printed.

CAN YOU FIND THE WORD? There is a 3 inch display advertisement in this paper, this week, which has no two words alike except one word. The same is true of each new one appearing each week, from The Dr. Harter Medicine Co. This house places a "Crescent" on everything they make and publish. Look for it, send them the name of the word and they will return you BOOK, BEAUTIFUL LITHOGRAPHS OR SAMPLES FREE.

When they brake up a passenger train, what becomes of the pieces?

"Brown's Bronchial Troches' are excellent for the relief of Hoarseness or Sore Throat. They are exceedingly effective." Christian World, London, Eng.

After the railroad tracks follow the missionary tracks.

Mutiny.

Very refractory and mutinous are some stomachs. Discipline and good order may be perfectly restored with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, most reliable and thorough of tonics. Shun local bitters and unmedicated stimulants. A helpful appetizer and fortifier of the nerves is the Bitters, highly efficacious too in malaria, la grippe, constipation, liver and kidney complaints. It counteracts rheumatism. A wineglassful at bedtime promotes sleep.

Some one says the age of a political party may be told by its rings.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

With a politician the check is mightier than his word.

Dyspepsia

Caused me almost untold suffering. I felt miserable and nervous. My stomach would hardly digest bread and milk. But soon after I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I had a better appetite, and could not only eat well but had No Distress Afterward.

I am so glad I am better, for I feared I never should get well. My nursing baby, too, seems to be better than ever, and I tell folks makes him strong, and that he gets more of it than I do. He is 10 months old, plump and fat, and weighs 30 pounds." MRS. F. B. LEONARD, Soughtage Street, Louisville, Ky.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

A Question.

N. B. In view of the great benefit others derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, ought you not to try this excellent medicine?

HOOD'S PILLS—Cure liver ills, constipation, biliousness, jaundice, sick headache, indigestion. Sold by all druggists. Price 25 cents.

Tutt's Tiny Pills

A single dose produces beneficial results, giving cheerfulness of mind and buoyancy of body to which you were before a stranger. They enjoy a popularity unparalleled. Price, 25cts.

I CURE FITS!

When I say cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office.
H. G. ROOT, M. C., 183 Pearl St., N. Y.

COPYRIGHT 1891

The end of woman's peculiar troubles and ailments comes with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It cures them. For all the functional derangements, painful disorders, and chronic weaknesses that afflict womankind, it's a certain remedy. It's an invigorating, restorative tonic, soothing cordial and bracing nervine—purely vegetable, non-alcoholic, and perfectly harmless.

In the cure of periodical pains, prolapsus and other displacements, bearing-down sensations, and all "female complaints" and irregularities, "Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine that's guaranteed. If it doesn't give satisfaction in every case, you have your money back.

You pay only for the good you get. Can you ask more?

The easiest way is the best. Regulate the liver, stomach, and bowels with Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They cleanse and renovate the system—thoroughly and naturally. Sick Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, and Bilious Attacks, are prevented, relieved, and cured.

Common
Soap
Rots Clothes and Chaps Hands.
IVORY
SOAP
DOES NOT.

CONSUMPTION.

I have a positive remedy for the above disease; by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed so strong is my faith in its efficacy, that I will send TWO BOTTLES FREE, with a VALUABLE TREATISE on this disease to any sufferer who will send me their Express and P. O. address.
T. A. Slocum, M. C., 183 Pearl St., N. Y.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

UNITARIAN LITERATURE FREE.
To those wishing to know of the liberal faith apply to M. E. Partridge, St. Anthony Park, Minn., Sec., of P. O. M., of First Unt. Church, Minneapolis, Minn.

PILES Remedy Free. INSTANT RELIEF. Final cure in 10 days. Never returns: no purge; no salve; no suppository. A victim tried in vain every remedy has discovered a simple cure, which he will mail free to his fellow sufferers. Address J. H. REEVES, Box 3290, N. Y. City, N. Y.

FAT FOLKS REDUCED
Mrs. Alice Maple, Oregon, Mo., writes: "My weight was 320 pounds, now it is 195, a reduction of 125 lbs." For circulars address, with 6c, Dr. O. W. F. SNYDER, McVicker's Theatre, Chicago, Ill.

ASTHMA
CURED TO STAY CURED.
We Want Name and Address of Every ASTHMATIC
P. Harold Hayes, M.D.
BUFFALO, N.Y.

ALLEN'S IRON TONIC BITTERS
The most Elegant Blood Purifier, Liver Invigorator, Tonic and Appetizer known. The first Bitters containing Iron ever advertised in America. J. P. ALLEN, Druggist & Chemist, St. Paul, Minn.

HOW TO MAKE MONEY QUICKLY AND EASILY!
Send 50 cents to pay postage on our Daily Market Report and Special Letter of Advice, for one month. We can make you lots of Money. Agents wanted. Address, S. H. WOOD & CO., Investment Brokers, 212, 213, 214 and 215 Wright Block, Minneapolis, Minn.

YATES CARRIAGE CO.
MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.
Fine Cutters, $20.
Leather qr. Top Buggies, $50,
Open Buggies, $35.
CIRCULARS FREE.

THE SICK TREATED FREE.
We have discovered a positive and permanent cure for CATARRH, DEAFNESS, CONSUMPTION (first stages) BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, and all diseases of the throat and lungs; to introduce it at once, we will send medicines for THREE MONTHS FREE. We send medicines not prescriptions, and all we ask is that you recommend our treatment after you are cured. The first applicant will obtain the free supply. Address Drs. Moore & Co., 259 W. 7th St, Cincinnati, O.

BORE WELLS with our famous Well Machinery. The only perfect self-cleaning and fast-dropping tools in use.
LOOMIS & NYMAN, TIFFIN, OHIO.
THE "OHIO" WELL DRILL
Catalogue FREE.

DR. HARTER'S TRADE-MARK LITTLE LIVER PILLS
ACTUAL SIZE.
DO NOT GRIPE NOR SICKEN. Sure cure for SICK HEADACHE, impaired digestion, constipation, torpid glands. They arouse vital organs, remove nausea, dizziness. Act like magic on Kidneys and bladder. Conquer bilious nervous disorders. Establish natural DAILY ACTION.
Beautify complexion by purifying blood. PURELY VEGETABLE.
The dose is nicely adjusted to suit case, as one pill can never be too much. Each vial contains 42, carried in vest pocket, like lead pencil. Business man's great convenience. Taken easier than sugar. Sold everywhere. All genuine goods bear "Crescent."
Send 2-cent stamp. You get 32 page book with sample.
DR. HARTER MEDICINE CO., St. Louis, Mo.

WILSON'S 1892 PLANT, TREE AND SEED CATALOGUE, LIVE STOCK ANNUAL.
112 Pages, 200 Fine Engravings, Handsome Colored Plates. Full of useful and instructive information. Unquestionably one of the most reliable catalogues published. All kinds of guaranteed Garden, Flower, and Field Seeds, Fruit and Ornamental Trees, Small Fruits, Choice Roses, Flowering Plants and Bulbs, Thoroughbred Land and Water Fowls, Registered Pigs, German Hares, &c., &c. Sent free on application. Address, mentioning this paper.
SAMUEL WILSON, SEED GROWER, MECHANICSVILLE, PA.

LOVE FOR A DAY.

CHAPTER X.—CONTINUED.

"Nellie—I will not call you 'darling' since it grieves you—will you try to listen to me? For the sake of old times and the old dear love, let me tell you all that has happened. You will judge me mercifully; you were always kind, and I—oh Nellie, I am not happy! I am the most miserable man in the whole wide world. If I were happy, if I came to you in the insolence of a prosperous love, if my face were bright and my heart light, then, ah, then you would have reason to spurn me, to hate and despise me! But you have a true woman's heart, my lost love; and women are always pitiful, always merciful. Listen, Nellie, before you judge me. Mind, I am not excusing myself—even in my own eyes I am a pitiful fellow. But you will hear and judge."

The wild tumult of passion was dying down; the rapture and ecstasy of happiness, followed by the passion of despair, had exhausted me. I sat down again on the grass; my strength failed me. I leaned my head against the trunk of a tree; the wind brought the odor of the lilacs to me fresh and sweet. I grew calm with the serenity of despair. I would listen to all he had to tell me, and then rise up and go from him.

My thoughts grew confused, everything was dim and indistinct in my sight; and when I came to the real consciousness of what was passing, Mark was kneeling before me, holding my hands tightly clasped in his, and speaking in a clear, low voice.

CHAPTER XI.

"When I went away, Nellie," said Mark, "I did love you with all my heart. Do you remember how my father teased us, and called my love 'lad's love'?"

"And said it would die as soon," I remarked.

"It was a lad's love, Nellie, but it was honest, eager, and true. You filled my heart, and I had no thought save for you. I would have given up going to India, but my father was not willing. Would to heaven that I had! I left England, Nellie, in the hope of returning at the end of four years and making you my wife. My father's death was a blow to me. I should have come back then, but I could not throw up my appointment. I shall tell you the candid truth, Nellie; I will not hide one word, one thought from you. During the first year of my absence, I loved you as truly and dearly as ever. You were never out of my thoughts by day or by night. I lived for you. The second year—ah, Nellie, if I wound you, I wound myself more deeply!—the second year I found myself thinking more of my work. I had been promoted, and the difficulties of my profession engrossed me. I thought less of you but I loved you just the same. I own that some little coldness crept into my letters; that at times I missed a mail; but my heart was true to you. One thing that had an evil influence over me was the constant 'chaffing' of my comrades. It was strange that the cry of 'lad's love' should be used in India as it had been in England. They laughed at the number of letters that came in your dear hand writing, Nellie. They laughed at the number I sent away. They said that it was 'lad's love,' that in a few years time I should laugh at it, that all the boys suffered from it; and, though at times I blushed over it, yet my heart was always true to you, Nellie."

He stopped and looked into my miserable face. I could not keep my lips from quivering, and my eyes were heavy with unshed tears.

"Nellie," he said, "have you heard any news—anything about me?"

"Not one word since you wrote last," I replied.

"Then," he said, with some little hesitation, "you do not know what name I bear now?"

"Your own, I suppose," was my listless reply.

"Yes, my own, but it is a new one. Is it possible, Nellie, that you do not know who I am and why I am here?"

No suspicion of the truth came to me; indeed nothing was further from my thoughts.

"How can I know?" was my impatient answer. "I have never heard any one mention your name.

He was silent for a few minutes, and then continued slowly—

"I know not which part of my story is the hardest to tell. It was in the beginning of the third year of my absence from England that a strange event happened. It was so unexpected, so bewildering, that for some time I seemed to lose my senses; and you know, Nellie, that I was in many respects what my father called me—merely a lad. I was so dazzled and bewildered that I forgot all I ought to have remembered. My first thought was of you, and I ought to have written to you; but I let two or three mails go without writing, and I intended to surprise you. I had to go to England at once, and I knew that I could reach you as soon as my letters could. I did a strangely careless thing: I left no address, forgetting that you would probably go on writing. I thought I should soon see you. Nellie, do you follow me? Do not look at me with such sorrowful eyes. You see that up to this time, the third year of my absence, I had done nothing specially worthy of blame. I had been shy and self-conscious about my love, when I ought to have been bolder and more courageous. I had allowed my time and thoughts to become engrossed in my profession, at the expense of my love; and I set sail from India, still thinking more of your surprise and delight than of anything else. But, Nellie, I have not told you what the strange event was. Can you not help me, Nellie? Can you not guess what called me back to England and to you?"

"How should I? You may tell me safely; nothing can hurt me now Mark. I have realized the fact that you are married; nothing more remains."

"I hate myself for having to tell it," he said, his face flushing; "but, Nellie, I was only a lad, and the news completely bewildered me. Do you remember that once when we were together I asked you about your friends and relatives? You replied that you were almost alone in the world; and I told you that, while I had some very wealthy relatives and some very poor, I knew but little of either. There had never been any correspondence, nor even the slightest acknowledgment of any kind. My father was a most peculiar man; he did not like his poor relations. His dislike was not caused by their poverty, but because they had offended him many years before, and he had never forgiven them. As to the rich members of the family, he was too proud to seek to know them; nor could he allow me to speak of them; they took no notice of us, nor we of them. Lord Severne—Baron Severne is the proper title—of Severne Court and my father were second cousins."

In one moment I saw it all.

"You are Lord Severne, Mark?" I cried.

"Yes, it is so, Nellie; I am Lord Severne," he said gravely.

"And Lurline—your wife is named Lurline," I said.

"Yes, my wife is named Lurline. Now you understand. I did not know that you were here, Nellie. I never dreamed of seeing you when I came out this morning. I am here as Lady Yorke's friend and guest; Lurline is with me."

He stopped, thinking perhaps that I should speak; but what had I to say? Words were useless.

"Now you know what has happened, Nellie," he continued. "In the third year of my absence this news came from England—Lord Severne of Severne Court was dead, the brother who should have succeeded him was drowned in returning from Italy, and the two sons of his brother, the heir, died from fever at school—two generations swept away. My father, had he lived, would have been Lord Severne; he was the next heir, and both title and estates are entailed. As my father was dead, I was the next heir. My father had never given me to understand that there was the most remote possibility of our succession. I do not believe he ever thought of it himself; he was only second cousin, and at that time Lord Severne was a strong healthy man, his brother the same, and the boys at school gave every promise of a long life.

"Now all was changed; they were dead; and, as I was the nearest of kin, I became master of Severne Court and Baron Severne. Nell, as truly as there is a heaven above us, my first thought when I heard this news was of you. 'What will my Nellie say?' I cried aloud; and I felt proud to think that I could make my fair and beautiful love Lady Severne.

"If I had written one line to you, then all would have been different—my life and yours; but I was restless and excited. I had so much to think of, so much to do. I was pleased, proud, agitated, but not untrue to you then, Nellie, I swear it, not untrue.

"The letters sent by Messrs. Norton and Son were most peremptory in their summons. I must return at once. Fortunately there was a young Englishman who could without difficulty take my place, and I was free. My friends and comrades were honestly pleased with my good fortune, and we parted on excellent terms. Nellie, when I started in the 'Queen of the Seas,' bound from Bombay to London, my thoughts were all of you. Oh, my true love, my lost love, how shall I tell you what happened then?

"I deserve to be shot as a traitor, as a coward," he continued, with passionate bitterness. "When I look back I cannot think what folly, what madness possessed me. I am sure that my good fortune had in some measure turned my brain.

"On the second day that I was on board I began to take an interest in my fellow-passengers. My romantic story was known amongst them—how from a simple engineer, glad to earn an income of a few hundreds, I had suddenly and quite unexpectedly come into possession of a title and estates worth sixty thousand per annum. On the second day of the voyage I walked about the deck amusing myself with the novel sights and sounds, when, Nellie, I saw one of the most beautiful women I had ever beheld in my life—beautiful as a dream or a vision, but, ah, Nellie, not half so fair and winsome as you!

"I had seen but little of women. I had never been thrown much into their society. I hardly remembered my own mother; sisters and cousins I had none; you and your mother were the only two with whom I had ever been on friendly or intimate terms. I loved you. I understood your simple noble nature; I knew your true earnest character; but I was perfectly ignorant of the acts of women. I thought they were all like you; their caprices, fascinations, charms, arts, and intrigues were all unknown to me. Never was prey more easily caught. I hate myself when I think of my own folly.

"The beautiful woman was walking up and down the deck; her veil was thrown back, and the sea-breeze had brought a lovely bloom to her face. Her graceful carriage, so free, so stately attracted me first.

"I saw her lay her hand on the rail. She was looking over at the passing waves; the hand was white as a snowdrop; a wedding-ring shone on it, with broad bands of diamonds and sapphires. 'She is married,' I thought. Then little as I understood the mysteries of a lady's attire, I perceived that the coquettish line of white defining the form of her beautiful head was a widow's cap.

"'Who is that lady?' I asked of Captain Luttrell.

"His eyes brightened, as did the eyes of every other man on board, when they rested on her.

"'She is a Mrs. Nugent,' he replied—'a young widow returning to England. Her husband, Captain Vere Nugent, died a few months since. I will introduce you to her;' and the next moment I was bowing before a beautiful young widow, who seemed still a child."

CHAPTER XII.

"Lurline is my wife now, and I will not say one word against her. I will not even say that I could do so. She was certainly the most beautiful, the most fascinating woman I had ever seen. She looked so young that it was almost impossible to believe that she had been a wife and was a widow; but I knew afterward that she was at least ten years older than we thought her. I will not describe her to you; you will see her and judge for yourself.

"Nellie," continued Mark, "there is as great a difference between you and Lurline as between a simple natural lily of the valley and a gaudy artificial camellia. I saw it afterward; but at first she took my senses captive, and held them in thrall. I remember how she puzzled me, how I watched her. One of the first things that struck me was the subtle odor of sweet violets that seemed to envelope her. Everything belonging to her—her sables, shawls, books fans, gloves—everything had the same sweet odor of fresh violets. That charmed me. Oh, Nellie, I was a rash foolish coward, but I never thought of loving her, and I never dreamed of marrying any one but you! Every man on board was in love with her; but she favored me and I was weak enough, young and foolish enough to be flattered by this preference, to feel proud and delighted when the little court of admirers had to make way for me, when she laid that white gemmed hand of hers on my arm, dismissing the rest with a little nod of the head, saying, 'I will accompany you, Lord Severne. I should like a quiet promenade.'

"It pleased me to mark hot angry jealousy in other men's eyes; it pleased me to note how they envied every mark of preference which this beautiful woman showered upon me. Still, Nellie, I never dreamed of being false to you.

"At first I was attracted by her great beauty, her fascination, her low sweet voice her nameless charm of dress and manner, then by her decided, open preference for me shown at all times and in all places.

"I never thought that rank, title, or money had anything to do with it; I believed it was myself alone that she cared for. Ah, Nellie, perhaps even a stronger man than myself might have succumbed! I shall never forget the nights on the ocean, with the stars like golden meteors in the sky, the sea dark, silent, mysterious and solemn. Such nights they were—the sea and sky so calm, and that beautiful face looking into mine! Ah, Nellie, you taught me love, and it will never die; she taught me passion, and it is dead!

"I began to forget you, my darling. I must tell you the whole truth. The memory of the sweet face under the lilacs grew fainter; the passionate beautiful face of the woman who showed this marked preference for me almost maddened me for a time.

"There can be no excuse for me, Nellie. I offer none. But remember that for the first time in my life I was flattered by all the subtle flatteries that a clever and beautiful woman could use. The balance of my reason was gone. She had roused passion that yet was not love in my heart. I was driven on by the anger of those whom she slighted for me; and one night—one fatal night, when the moon was shining brilliantly, and the sea was calm as a lake—we stood together at the end of the vessel. Her fair white hand stole into mine; her beautiful face was raised to mine, pale with emotion, her eyes glistening with tears. I forgot you, Nellie; I forgot honor, truth, and loyalty. I bent down to kiss her, and—Well, I cannot tell you how it happened. I am speaking the truth, Nellie, I would not hide one thought from you. I feel sure that when I bent my head to kiss her I had no thought of asking her to be my wife; but before another half hour had passed I had promised to marry her, and—Nellie, love, listen—from that moment to this I have never had one single happy moment—not one. There could be no drawing back—no hesitation even, for I found the next day that the whole of the passengers knew that Lord Severne and the beautiful Mrs. Nugent were engaged.

"Weak, cowardly, disloyal—ah, yes I know I was all that! But I have suffered horribly. From that hour to this I have been a miserable man, for I found out that it was you I had loved after all, and that the love of the lad was better than the passion of the man. There were times when I resolved on telling her, but it would have been useless. She had decided on marrying me, and I knew that my intentions were quite secondary to hers. When it was too late, my heart went back to its first allegiance. I found my engagement to this woman of the world a very business like matter. There was no nonsense, no delay. We were married three weeks after the 'Queen of the Seas' reached London.

"Ah, Nellie, you have suffered, but my pain has been greater. My conscience gave me no rest. Night and day your image was with me, night and day my folly and cowardice were ever before me. I longed, yet dreaded to see you. If I had known that your mother was dead, and that you were waiting for me in the old home alone, I should have gone to you, no matter what had happened; but your letter did not reach me."

"It was returned to me," I interposed.

"As soon as my affairs were settled," he continued, "I went abroad. Lurline preferred it. She said she never cared to live in England and, in truth I was indifferent on the subject, knowing that no place could ever be the same to me again. At Mentone we met the Yorkes, and I liked them very much. I was a miserable, haunted, gloomy man. My wealth brought me no happiness, because I had lost you. I found rest in talking to Lady Yorke. She seemed to think I had some great sorrow in my life. I do not suppose I should have returned to England, at least for some years, had not imperative business compelled me to go to Severne Court a few weeks ago. Oh, Nellie, there are some disappointments too bitter, too great for words! I shall return to Italy; I cannot live in England."

"Why?" I asked.

His face clouded, an angry gleam came into the eyes which had been full of pain and despair.

"I cannot tell you why, Nellie, but my life is blighted. I cannot stay anywhere for long."

"Shall you ever live at Severne Court?" I asked.

"Never," was the gloomy reply. "The punishment of my folly is that I shall be a wanderer on the face of the earth."

"But why, Mark—why?" I cried, beginning to forget my own trouble in his.

"There are some things that a man cannot speak of," he replied, "cannot even think of, or lay bare to his own heart. This sorrow of mine is one of them."

"Then, Mark," I could not help saying as I looked sadly at him, "you have ruined all the happiness of my life without securing your own."

"That is just what I have done, Nellie. Between the remorse I feel at the loss of you and the sorrow of my secret, I am the most miserable man in the world."

Ah, Mark, my lover, I read in your face that your folly had cost you dear! We sat in silence for some time, the wind stirring the lilac-branches and bearing to us sweet gusts of perfume. We had not been there an hour, and already it seemed to me an eternity. I knew that we must part. Time was passing, and I should be wanted. Then the full force of my misery rushed over me like a lava tide. How could I ever take up the duties of life again? My heart and soul had no strength, no life. Where should I turn for help or comfort? For alas! I had given my whole heart to a man who had married another and had forgotten me!

"Mark, what shall I do with the rest of my life?" I asked wearily. "I cannot die just because I wish to die. I am like a ship without a rudder. Love of you, whether living or dead, has hitherto filled my life. What am I to do?"

"I cannot tell, Nellie," he replied. "Are you happy here with Lady Yorke?"

"Yes—as happy as I could be anywhere without you," I replied.

"Then do not go away. We will do that, not you. We will remain for a few days; then I shall say that I am summoned to the Court on business. Nellie, forgive me for what I am going to say. All I have in the world ought to have been yours—and I have such abundant wealth; let me give you what will keep you in comfort and affluence."

I could not be angry; his eyes were full of tears, and his lips quivered.

"No," I replied, gently, "you must not do that, Mark. I do not care for money. I would rather have had one true word of love from your lips than all the money you possess."

"I should be so much happier, Nellie, if you would let me do this. Let me buy for you a pretty little home. In the midst of my misery, let me have the one gleam of comfort that you have no worldly cares."

"No!" I cried, with quick impatient scorn. "Can you not understand that I would rather—a thousand times rather—die of hunger by the roadside than accept even one crumb of bread from your hands?"

"Will you ever forgive me?" he said. "In the years to come, when you remember that I am—ah, a thousand times!—more unhappy than you, and when you remember that I can find no comfort because it is all my fault, will you not try to forgive me? Think of me as you did; forget this interval of folly and falsehood. Think only of Mark with his honest 'lad's love;' forget Mark, the man who failed you—will you, Nellie?"

TO BE CONTINUED.

FROM THE PHONOGRAPH.

How a Man Felt When He Heard His Words Repeated.

Up town there is a phonograph, and the man who is running it is a hotel owner, says the Lewiston Journal. He had a caller Tuesday whose "dander" was up. The room was quite full of people, and the caller had an insane desire to give his man "a piece of his mind." He did so. He berated him up hill and down. He didn't leave him, as he expressed it, in any kind of shape. All the time the object of the attack had on the counter by his side the phonograph, in action, only the caller didn't know it. When he had finished the Lewiston man said:

"Are you done?"

"Yes, I am done," was the reply.

"Just one moment," was the rejoinder; "I want you to hear what you said," and the merciless phonograph was reversed and the record pronounced through the machine so that he could hear it.

A blush overspread the caller's face. He listened in wonder and surprise. As oaths and epithets flowed out of the machine, the exact reproduction of his own vituperation, he moved away, and when all was done a man more sheepish and ashamed could not be found. Said he, after a moment's thought, turning to the Lewiston man: "I have had a valuable lesson. No man who would talk like that in public has any right to be considered. I want you to pull that record, as you call it, off from that machine and give it to me. I'll pay for it."

It was done, and the caller stood by the counter uttering apologies and whittling into pieces the wax cylinder that contained his remarks.

To Jerusalem by Railroad.

To speak of going to Jerusalem by railroad has a curious sound, but the experience will be common enough before long. There seems to be little doubt that the line from Joppa, now in course of construction by a French company, will be finished in the spring, or that it will prove a good paying investment. The company, at all events, expects to make large profits after paying the shareholders a guaranteed interest of 5 per cent. It appears that more than forty thousand persons land at Joppa every year in order to make a pilgrimage to Jerusalem and other spots celebrated in sacred history. The number of steamers and other vessels putting into the port of Joppa with passengers and merchandise is more than eight hundred a year. An evidence of the recent rapid growth of the traffic may be found in the fact that Joppa has trebled its population within the past thirty years. Tourists will be able to take a return ticket between that port and Jerusalem for 20 francs; and what is more, they will be able to do the journey in a far less time, with infinitely more safety than hitherto. The railroad managers expect a great rush of tourists to the Holy City from all parts of the civilized world.—New York Post.

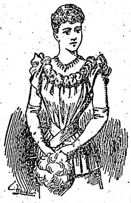
WOMAN AND HER SPHERE.

GOSSIPY MATTERS TO INTEREST THE WOMEN.

Some Interesting Talk About New York and Paris Fashions—Other Matters About the Home and Kitchen.

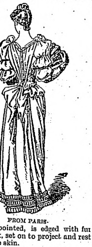
About What to Wear.

For small dances the corsage most generally adopted leaves the shoulders covered, and is cut down in a square or with the rounded "virgin" neck. Short sleeves are reappearing in evening dresses, after having been little more than a name for some years, and are full puffed, and a trifle long. Silk muslin is the favorite thin material, and besides the charming plain tints there are some pretty effects in printed chine and broche patterns; others are striped, and still others are watered. But the prettiest are those with chine designs in delicate elusive effects. Ribbons are in great favor for young ladies' dresses. A charmingly simple gown for a young girl to wear at a dancing reception is of white silk muslin. Three white satin ribbons border the skirt, the lowest serving as a hem, and these are crossed by perpendicular straps of the same ribbon, terminating in flat loops. The full round corsage a la vierge is girdled by three ribbons, the lowest at the waist and two above, and the puffed sleeves are gathered to a ribbon band.



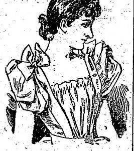
A PRETTY DEBUTANTE.

The trimming preferred by very elegant women for evening gowns is rich fur in very narrow bands. One or three rows border the bottom of the skirt all around, not merely at the front and the corsage, whether fully decollete or only cut down square, round, or pointed, is edged with fur at the neck, set on to project and rest against the skin.



FROM PARIS.

Something about gowns for January debutantes will be of interest. The white bengaline shown in the first sketch was cut after a fashion possible only to a slender figure, and even then, though pretty in its frank simplicity, probably not the most becoming, with a sacque bodice, gathered to the half-low round neck, belted with lapping ribbons at the waist, and falling just below the hips all around. For garniture it had a circle of the new chenille about the top of the bodice, quite as effective and acceptable as feather trimmings and much less costly. The short sleeves are nothing more than fanlike flaring plaits of the bengaline crossing the tops of the arms. White gloves, to come just above the elbow, and a white fan were laid out to go with this gown.



OF WHITE CAMEL'S HAIR.

A little more elaborate but not necessarily much more expensive is the gown of which a back view has been sketched, as affording a little variety from the reign of fronts with insipid faces, to which last season's library of fashion plates invariably treats the world feminine. This dress was brought from abroad to be worn by a pretty blonde who is making her entrance into her own pleasant circle of New York society at a somewhat later age than is chosen commonly for a debut, a silvery cashmere, hesitating between white and gray, and made with a French skirt finished at the bottom with three tiny ruffles of silvery velvet with rows of narrow gold galon run between. The ruffles are not more than two inches each in width, and the effect of the device is quaint and in this instance, at least, most piquant.

The skirt is cut, if any clever girl will venture on a duplication, of six straight widths, each seventeen and three-quarters inches wide. The half low, pointed bodice is finished with a velvet ruffle at the waist gathered to a heading and with a thread of gold galon run below. The skirt is caught up under a rosette on the right side, and in the middle of the back the breadth is lifted and fastened above the narrowing frills whose meeting point is hidden beneath the bouffant puff of the odd drapery. The bodice arrangement is the same back and front, a pointed vest of lace, outlined at the top with galon and with a gold spark flickering out down the middle. The sleeves, which reach the elbows, are three full puffs of lace gathered with galon.

The subject of the third sketch is a home-made dress for the daughter of an artist.

A soft white camel's hair was the fabric decided upon after three mornings spent in consultation, and two more days brought an agreement as to the pattern; the simple waist with the pretty gathered tucker of white silk across the bosom, and the dainty bretelles, shoulder knots and and belt of white ribbon. It showed her arms and her rounded neck and throat, yet was high for prudery, and the skirt was straight and untrimmed and just cleared the floor.

The mother braided the heavy hair in the low knot behind her ears, but it was the artist father who broke two creamy roses from one of the bunches that had been sent her and tucked one above and the other just below the coil.

Young girls do not wear long dresses with propriety; their gowns should barely touch the floor behind. The skirts should be made perfectly plain in front, but full enough behind to hang gracefully. It is most thoroughly in accord with the fashion of the hour to choose fabrics wide enough to be made with only one seam and that behind. Slippers and gloves are chosen carefully to match the color of the dress. The tan tints that ruled so long with toilets of any and every description are now hardly seen; blue gloves, green gloves or even pink gloves are accepted by foolish folk fashionable in preference. With long sleeves two-button gloves are the best form, but with elbow-sleeves the world of frills and furbelows still smiles on mousquetaires.

The Whistling Girl.

The whistling girl does not commonly come to a bad end, Quite as often as any other girl she learns to whistle a cradlesong, low and sweet and charming, to the young voter in the cradle. She is a girl of spirit, of independence of character, of dash and flavor; and as to lips, why, you must have some sort of presentable lips to whistle; thin ones will not. The whistling girl does not come to a bad end at all, if marriage is still considered a good occupation, except a cloud may be thrown upon her exuberant young life by this rascally proverb.

Even if she walks the lonely road of life she has this advantage, that she can whistle to keep her courage up. But in a larger sense, one that this practical age can understand, it is not true that the whistling girl comes to a bad end. Whistling pays. It has brought her money; it has blown her name about the listening world. Scarcely has a non-whistling woman been more famous. She has set aside the adage. She has done so much toward the emancipation of her sex from the prejudice created by an ill-natured proverb which never had root in fact.—Harper's Magazine.

A Really Robust Maiden.

A review reporter was shown a shoe at the store of the Cowles mercantile company recently, made for a member of the fair sex, that for size caps the climax. The shoe is number 23, and measures 16 inches in length. Now, kind reader, don't jump at the conclusion that this is merely a ballroom slipper belonging to some Butler young lady. It isn't. Neither was it manufactured for Sam Oldham's best girl—in fact for none of the fair daughters of our favored city.

The shoe was made for the famed Miss Ella Ewing, of Fairmont, Mo., who is only 18 years old and whose weight is 325 pounds. Her height is 7 feet and 10 inches, and she is said to be a robust sample of our Missouri maidens. Miss Ewing has returned to her home at Fairmont after an absence of several months. We would suggest that Miss Ewing be sent to the world's fair 1893 as an advertisement for our prolific state.—Rich Hill Review.

Ladies and Tobacco.

One reason why there is so much smoking in public places where ladies and children, as well as men, congregate, is because of the moral cowardice of the average American. He will allow the filthy nuisance to be perpetrated almost anywhere and at any time without remonstrance, simply because he is afraid of abuse or of ridicule. In this respect he compares very unfavorably with the Englishman. Another cause is the entire want of will among the ladies. If every woman to whom tobacco is a nuisance—and that means ninety-nine out of every hundred—would make her feelings plainly known when necessary, matters would improve amazingly. They are not backward in expressing themselves forcibly in almost all other matters, but when it comes to tobacco they say often they like it, which is rarely true.

Borax for Colds.

Try snuffing powdered borax up the nostrils for catarrhal cold in the head. Try taking your cod-liver oil in tomato catsup if you want to make it palatable. Try a cloth wrung out from cold water put about the neck at night for sore throat. Try an extra pair of stockings outside of your shoes when traveling in cold weather. Try walking with your hands behind you if you find yourself becoming bent forward. Try a saturated solution of bicarbonate soda, baking soda, in diarrhœal troubles; give freely. Try a newspaper over your chest beneath your coat, as a chest protector in extremely cold weather.

LENGTHENING LIFE.

Moltke's Maxim "Temperance and Work" Furnishes the Means.

Dr. Ebstein, of Goettingen, delivered a long discourse on this subject, from which we take the following: The question as to the natural duration of life is first to be answered. According to the latest discoveries the average length of life, in the natural order of things, is from seventy to seventy-five years. Women live somewhat longer than men. The mortality among children, particularly less than a year old, is very great. From the age of puberty till the fiftieth year, the death rate is small, from that time it becomes greater each year. Too great an old age is a questionable blessing, because a renewal of youth can be reached in no way whatever. It is evident, therefore, that the normal limit of the age of man is that which is attained without bitter breaking down and suffering. The first condition is a good foundation, a descent from parents physically and mentally healthy. Of further importance is suitable maternal care of the child. Then comes the school and military training for the increase of the powers of resistance. In advancing life, a proper activity must not be neglected. "An unused life is an early death." The correct means toward reaching a good old age were given by Moltke when that question was going the rounds. These were "Temperance and work." Not only temperance in eating and drinking, but the same must be practiced in every direction. A great number of deaths in the prime of life occur through accidental wounds. (In business and industrial life, and in war.) Another part on account of so-called constitutional illnesses, which are generally the result of some innate physical defect of the human body. These can always be combatted. A third part result from contagious diseases. The danger of infection can generally be met by capable measures of defense. The art of lengthening human life has made little advance up to the present time. The age of man, in the average, has become no greater. Also the common principles of long life have been substantially the same in all times, only the relationships of culture and differing eras imply different occurrences and details. The speaker also insisted that the use of alcohol is entirely unnecessary, and that the danger of shortening human life is not to be found in the greatness of intellectual work, but in its unsuitable organization.—Cincinnati Volksblatt.

ABOUT BIRDS.

The Barnyard Fowl Unlucky and the Turtle Dove Sacred.

In many parts of Saxony the peasants will not raise chickens, even though they could double their investment many fold. They call the male of the barnyard fowl the "bird of ill omen," from a notion that he "crowed for joy" at the time of the crucifixion.

The majority of sailors on the Atlantic ocean religiously believe that the frigate bird can start at daybreak with the trade winds from the coast of Africa and roost the same night upon the American coast. Ornithologists say that under favorable conditions the frigate bird will make 200 miles an hour.

In Sweden the turtle dove is looked upon as sacred. The Swedes call it "God's bird" and "Noah's bird," from a notion that it is the same species of bird that the commander of the Ark sent out to bring back tidings of a receding flood.

In France the quail is called the Bird of Prophecy; this from an idea that the number of his calls foretells the price of wheat. If he calls twice without resting the farmers expect but 2 francs per bushel for his grain, if the bird calls four times he expects to realize twice the price which two calls insures. In olden time a bird called the "phœnix" was thought to live in the deserts of Arabia. His lease of life was said to be 500 years, at the end of which time he built a nest of spices and fanned it into flame with his wings. The flame reduced the bird to ashes, out of which he sprung to live another 500 years. Richardson says that he had fifty orifices in his beak, through which he sung melodious airs.

The raven was also one of the chosen birds of mediæval superstition. Knapp calls him

The hateful messenger of heavy things,
Of death and dolour telling.

Dayton speaks of

The greedy raven that doth call for death.

—St. Louis Republic.

TO SEE THE WIND.

Anybody Can Do It If They Stand in the Right Place.

"Pigs can see wind," is a country proverb of some age, and is, perhaps, a tribute to the understanding of an animal that, while nominally the stupidest of brutes is really one of the smartest. But anybody can see the wind if he will stand in the right place, asserts the New York Recorder. They say that if you will hold a broad-bladed knife or any other piece of polished metal at a slight slant toward the breeze and look along its windward surface you can see the air flow up and fall off on the leeward side. Perhaps so, but you can see it for a certainty on the Western plains on an average summer day. When the sun is well up, say from noon until 2 o'clock, and the earth is getting pretty warm, the heated air rises from the whole country.

The dryness of the atmosphere seems to make it especially elastic, and as you look off toward the horizen it seems alive with vibrations. These little waves cause a stratum of aberration that amounts to obscuration, so that you do not see things through them but only sky reflections, as on water, and as the bright blue color shows at the foot of the hills and woods it resembles a lake spread there, with the hills and woods jutting into it as capes and dotted over it as islands. This is the famous mirage of the plains and the desert that deceives raw travelers with a promise of water.

If, however, the stratum of rising air has no hills behind it you can see the wind blow through it, because it sets it rippling and flowing and causes apparent distortion in the more distant ground surface. When the day is warm, the heat reflection considerable and the wind moderate you can see the air waves move as easily as you can see wheat bend before the breeze.

The true mirage, which results from magnifying these conditions of rising air and a colder stratum and that brings objects into view that are below the horizon—a phenomenon identical in process with the distortion that makes the submerged part of a stick seem to bend when it is thrust into water—this mirage is less often seen here than on the seaboard. And there has been some tall lying about it there. Next to the moon hoax there never was a bigger fraud than the one perpetrated on innocent believers by a man who has just been up in Alaska, and who swore that back of Muir Glacier was a permanent mirage reflecting the spires and roofs of a city in the sky. Some men said that there must be a city hidden in an unexplored valley to the eastward, and all kinds of fairy stories about lost tribes and civilized Indians and treasure towns were invented to fit the case.

But one day a man who was born in Bristol, England, saw the photograph of the city in the air that the liar was exhibiting, and he recognized it as his native place. The liar had taken a plain, everyday photograph of Bristol and had smeared and softened the edges as they do in vignette portraits. Since his downfall permanent mirages are not slated among the attractions free to buyers of excursion tickets to Alaska.

A Hint for Brides.

A novel wedding fancy was recently inaugurated by a fashionable bride in New York. She carried an unusually large bouquet, and just before leaving for the honeymoon she untied her flowers, which proved to be eight separate posies, fastened with different colored ribbons. Each of these was presented to a bridesmaid, and one of these concealed a wedding-ring which would indicate the next bride. The idea resembles the custom of putting a ring, thimble and money in the Christmas pudding, marking the finder's lot, respectively, as matrimony, spinsterhood, or wealth.

White Poplars and Lightning.

M. Oovaroff, a Moscow scientist, has discovered that when lightning strikes a forest the white poplar (populus alba) is the first to attract it. He came to the conclusion that the tree can be used as a natural lightning-rod and he submitted a memoral to the minister of the interior advocating that the planting of a white poplar before every house in a village be made obligatory upon the peasants to prevent fire by lightning.

The Sham and the Real.

Every good thing has its imitators, every genuine article its counterfeits. The Ammonia and Alum Baking Powders sold over the counters are no more like Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder, than the paste is like the real diamond, or a counterfeit is like one of the old master's genuine paintings.

When greedy and merciless manufacturers claim their adulterated and harmful baking powders are as good as Dr. Price's, they know they are not telling the truth. These people know they are destroying the stomachs and the complexion of the consumers, and there are many grocers recommending such powders over their counters—knowing same to be injurious and worthless—simply to make a large profit.

Dr. Price, a concientious physician, has spent a lifetime in perfecting and popularizing his Cream Baking Powder, the only Pure Cream Tartar Powder now to be obtained.

Multitudes of imitators all over the land have sprung up, not to imitate the purity of Price's Cream Baking Powder, but to see how cheap they could make their counterfeits and hoodwink the public.

Some use Ammonia and others Alum, but all these shams cry in chorus, "Buy this, its just as good as Dr. Price's and much cheaper.

Price's Cream Baking Powder is the standard for purity and perfection the world over, and is beyond comparison.

Dr. Price stands for Pure Food and a foe to all shams.

Popular Talks On Law.

BY WM. C. SPRAGUE, ESQ.

INFRINGEMENT OF COPYRIGHT.

In my last contribution I took up the subject of Copyright, with reference to how, by whom and on what it may be obtained. A few words on the subject of Infringement of Copyright may not be without interest and profit to the general reader.

What is an infringement?

It may be said that if so much of a work be taken that the value of the original is sensibly and materially diminished, or the labors of the original author are substantially, to an injurious extent, appropriated by another, such taking or appropriation is sufficient in point of law to maintain the suit. It is not necessary that the whole or even the larger part be taken, to constitute invasion of a copyright.

Copying is not confined to literal repetition, but includes the various modes in which the matter of any publication is adapted, imitated or transferred, with more or less colorable alterations to disguise the piracy. It may be incorporated into some larger work and and be none the less an infringement, as if an encyclopedia were to contain a copyrighted article, or part of an article of another author. "The true test," says one case, "is to ascertain whether the defendant has in fact used the plan, arrangement, and illustrations of the plaintiff as the model of his own book, with colorable alterations and variations only to disguise the use thereof, or whether his work is the result of his own labor, skill and use of common materials and common sources of knowledge open to all men, and the resemblances are either accidental or arising from the nature of the subject."

It is an infringement, even though an improvement on the original. The test then is whether the copy is substantially the same as the original. Courts have several times defined a copy to be that which comes so near to the original as to give to every person seeing it the idea created by the original.

The same principle holds good in regard to maps, charts, pictures, musical compositions, etc. It is hard to say what is an infringement of a map. Where the subsequent map appears to have been substantially copied from the original, except in scale and color there is an infringement. In the case of music, even though the copy be adapted to a different purpose, if the original may still be recognized by the ear, it is an infringement, and this so even if "variations" be added. Copying a copyrighted engraving by means of photography is an infringement.

If a book infringe to a slight degree, as by embracing a small part of a copyrighted work, together with much original matter, the equitable remedy is a suit for the damage suffered, and not an injunction to restrain the issue of the publication. Although a copyrighted book cannot be copied, still a "fair use" of the book, as by quotations for criticism, review, etc., is not prohibited. Recourse must be had to the decisions of courts as to what is "fair use."

It must be such use as will not cause substantial injury to the proprietor of the first publication.

NATURALIZATION.

One may be a citizen of a State and not a citizen of the United States. Compliance with State laws of naturalization do not make a man a citizen of the United States. This power is vested solely in Congress, and yet, strange to say, one may not be a citizen of the United States and yet vote for a Senator or member of Congress, and should the power to choose a president by any chance be thrown into Congress, as indeed it may under the Constitution, there is given to persons not citizens of the United States, indirect influence in the choice of the President. This comes about by the Constitution declaring that electors of members of the lower house of Congress, have the qualifications requisite for electors of the lower house of the State Legislatures. So that in order for an alien to vote for a Member of Congress, and indirectly for a Senator or President, it is only necessary for him to be able to vote for a member of the more numerous branch of the State Legislature. The State may prescribe what qualifications it may see fit for State citizenship, but Congress alone can make an alien a citizen of the whole country. It is difficult, in view of what has been said, however, to see wherein lies the distinction between the privilege of a citizen of the United States and a citizen of one of the States. One privilege at least the State could not confer, that is, she could not give him as a citizen, a title to those privileges and immunities of citizens of the several States which the federal constitution guarantees and secures.

We will state briefly who may be naturalized under the laws of the United States. Any alien friend who is a free white person or a person of African nativity or descent, who has made the legal preliminary declaration, and who has resided for the five years next preceding his application, in the United States, and for one year next preceding such application, in the State or Territory in which the court sits to whom he makes application, and who, during that time, has been of good moral character, attached to the principles of the Constitution of the United States, and well disposed to the good order of the same, may become a citizen of the United States. This excludes Indians, Mongolians, half Indian blood, and Chinese. A married woman may be naturalized without the concurrence of her husband.

There are five classes of privileged persons.

First, minors. Children of naturalized citizens, under age of twenty-one at the time of the naturalization of their parents, are deemed citizens if dwelling in this country. Minor children of foreign parents, whose mother, after the death of the father, marries a citizen, become citizens. Children of citizens, who are born abroad, are citizens of the United States. In regard to the five years qualification, a portion of this time may be years of the applicant's minority; in such case, the previous declaration of intention is not necessary if he make a declaration at the time of his admission, and proves and declares on oath that for two years it has been his intention to become a citizen.

Second, wives of citizens. An alien woman of the race or class entitled to naturalization, who marries a citizen, becomes by that act a citizen. If makes no difference if she is less than twenty-one years of age. When an alien is naturalized, his wife thereby becomes a citizen, though she may never come to the United States until after his death. This latter statement is, however, questioned in some courts. A discussion of the three remaining classes of privileged persons will be found in our next paper.

Our Duluth Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

DULUTH, Jan 22.—The new iron mines on the Mesabi Range continue to attract the attention of the Duluth people and especially of the iron men. The first wonderful stories of the great richness of these new found deposits are borne out by the later developments. The work of opening new locations is being prosecuted with vigor by a good many companies and generally with good results. A week ago a party of Southern capitalists interested in the Cincinnati mine, with Messrs. John McKinley, A. E. Humphreys and S. T. Hale of this city, were here to investigate that and other properties. I had the good fortune to make the trip to the new range with them. The mines are reached by a twelve mile ride from the Duluth & Iron Range road at Mesabi station, and a twelve mile sleigh ride with the thermometer hovering around 29 below zero was a new experience for most of the men who made the trip. There was enough pleasure on the ride to more than compensate for the discomforts from the cold, and if there had not been, every one would have been amply repaid by the wonderful revelations at the mines.

Four of the mines, the Cincinnati, Canton, Bewabic and Hale were visited and examined. After inspection of any one of them there would be no doubt of the value of the newly opened deposit of ore. Taken altogether they show an amount of ore never before found on any range in this country.

The developments so far have all been by test pitting, and on each property from three to thirteen pits have been put down, with the result every time of finding a good body of ore. The Bewabik on which the most work has been done, has up to date showed up the largest amount. On one of its four "forties" there is known by actual measurement to be about 9,000,000 tons, and on the four there are probably not less than 20,000,000 tons. The Cincinnati, in which the controlling spirits are A. E. Humphreys, John McKinley, Judge J. T. Hale and Geo. E. Milligan, the latter of Parkersburg, W. V., has twice the amount of land the Bewabik owns, and the test pits so far show just as rich a deposit, so it may be said to have even a greater body of ore available. The Hale and the Canton each are showing up fine bodies of ore. All this ore is a red hematite Bessemer running from 60 to 65 per cent metalic iron. The ore formation so far shows that for a long time at least the mining will be very cheap, probably costing less than 50 cents a ton. As the ore lies it is a vast stock pile, needing only to be stripped and lifted out with a steam shovel. It can be delivered to furnaces in Duluth for about $2 a ton, and this means a marvelous development of the iron and steel industry here. The McKinley mine three miles farther west was not visited, but the reliable reports that come from there show that at least in the quality of the ore it is more than the equal of the other mines. One result of the visit of these Southern and Eastern capitalists, some of whom are interested in the Tennessee and Alabama iron fields, was the organization of the Chicago Iron company, a strong concern, which has secured about 800 acres between the Canton and Bewabik and the McKinley and on which preliminary work shows the same ore formation to exist. A large outside interest has been created in these new iron fields and men are coming from every section to investigate them. The two railroads which will reach the range are rushing their surveys and the clearing of the rights of way and by August both will be constructed. The Duluth, Mesabi & Northern has 65 miles to build and the Duluth & Iron Range 13.

HAYS.

For Sale Cheap.

Buffalo robes and cutters, Mrs. Mary Schreader, Crookston, Minn. [35-tf]

World's Fair Notes.

The Lord Mayor of London, it is announced, will form a committee to raise the sum necessary to send to the Exposition a selected number of representative working men from London, with a view of their making reports on the industrial exhibits there. Similar action was taken in case of the last two Paris expositions.

Indiana's building at the Exposition will be French gothic in style, and constructed entirely of Indiana material. It will measure 100x170 feet, and in realty will be a $100,000 structure, though, on account of the donation of a large part of the material entering into its construction, its cash cost will be only about $30,000.

A grand dedication ball, probably in the Auditorium, on the night of Oct. 13, 1892, will conclude the exercises dedicatory to the Exposition buildings. Many representatives of foreign countries are expected to be present, and the event will be, to an extent, international in character. The committee on ceremonies has selected the following patronesses and managers:

Patronesses—Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. George L. Dunlap, Mrs. George M. Pullman, Mrs. Nelson A. Miles, Mrs. W. W. Kimball, Mrs. A. C. McClurg, Mrs. Heaton Owsley, Mrs. Arthur Caton, Mrs. Emmons Blaine, Mrs. Wm. Armour, Mrs. Hobart C. Taylor and Mrs. Robert W. Patterton, Jr.

Managers—Mr. N. K. Fairbank, Mr. Marshall Field, Mr. Norman Williams, Mr. Franklin McVeagh, Mr. Lambert Tree, Mr. Hobart C. Taylor, Mr. T. Harvey Bradley, Mr. F. M. Whitehouse, Mr. Huntington W. Jackson, Mr. A. C. Honore, Mr. Arthur Ryerson and Mr. Mr. George Armour.

The second volume of "Tales From Town Topics" has appeared, with the announcement in the preface that the first volume enjoyed a "phenomenal" sale, and that the publishers expect the new book to prove quite as popular. It is doubtless true that a large body of the public buys with considerable avidity a book that is known to contain stories told with a French degree of freedom, and, so long as literary purity is preserved and a romantic brilliancy exhibited, and lapses into unconventional moral attitudes are smiled away, "Tales From Town Topics, No. 2," contains some rather startling pages judged under austere rules, but the book is seldom stupid, and can be read by broad-minded men and women without seriously influencing the health of their souls. [Town Topics Publishing Co., 21 West 23d street, New York.]

Drunkenness CURED.

THE

Moorhead Institute

Is now ready for the treatment of patients addicted to the

DRINK and OPIUM HABIT.

Send for pamphlet containing testimonials, certificates of cure and terms. Address,

MOORHEAD INSTITUTE,
[41-1] Moorhead, Minn.

TRY PEAKE,
THE MAIN STREET HARNESS MAKER,
FOR BARGAINS.

G. G. HENAULT
Practical Dentist
SECOND STREET,
CROOKSTON, - - MINN
OFFICE IN DOBSON'S BLOCK,

☞ All work in my line skilfully and promptly performed. Give me a call.
G. G. HENAULT.

P. J. RUSSELL,
Attorney-at-Law
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Next to Merchants' Bank.

DR. M. WATTS.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
Office over Merchants' Bank.
☞ Professional calls by or day night

REMNANT SALE.

Remnant Sale.

GERVAIS'------The Hustlers,

GREAT SALE OF

REMNANTS,
ODDS AND ENDS
AND BROKEN LINES
OF ALL KINDS.

BIG BARGAINS OFFERED.

Cloaks and Shawls
—AT—
Tremendous Reductions.

Gervais' - The Hustlers.

REMNANT SALE.

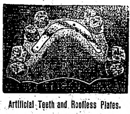
OUR HOLIDAY STOCK
—IS—
ON DISPLAY
—AT—
THE FAIR
DEPARTMENT STORE,
Cor. Main and Robert Sts., Crookston.

NEW CIGAR STORE
SIGN OF THE BIG INDIAN.
H. F. BROWN, Proprietor.
Second Street,
CROOKSTON, - MINN

Cigars of every known brand, from a cheroot to a 25 center. Cigarettes, Chewing and Smoking Tobaccos of all kinds, Snuff, Pipes to suit the fancy of all, from a corn-cob pipe to a meerschaum.

CALL IN.

DENTISTRY



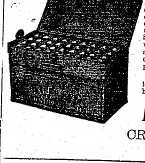
Artificial Teeth and Roofless Plates.
BY NEW PATENT.
Don't Have Teeth Extracted if Two Teeth or Roots Remain in Proper Position in Either Jaw. An Entire Set of Teeth can be Attached to them.

PATENT
GOLD CLASPS

The teeth never tip or drop down while eating, talking or laughing, the gold clasps admitting of tightening or loosening in all cases. This new method for inserting where as discovered by experimenting, patented February 11th, 1890 and I am now able to make perfect fits for all. This process is absolutely without pain and at a price within the reach of all. Call on me before you have your teeth extracted as I make a specialty of Removable Bridge, and Roofless Plates. A perfect fit guaranteed in every case. Gold fillings inserted. Vitalized air and electricity for painless operations.
DR. J. H. THOMAS,
Owns Polk County, Minn., for this patent.

CHRISTIANSON BROTHERS
(Correspondents Fargo Loan Agency.)
REAL ESTATE
Farm Mortgage Loans and Insurance.
☞ Special Bargains in Choice Farm Lands, improved and unimproved. Low prices and easy terms.
—OFFICE ON ROBERT STREET.—
CROOKSTON, - - MINN

Farmers' Egg Cases.



Call and Get a Ticket
And when you purchase anything at our store have the amount punched. The case is made of tin, handsomely Japanned and ornamented. The Fillers are made of cloth paper and very durable. Saves both packing and counting, obviates loss from breakage and miscounts and is an ornament to any home. This case will be given you when your cash purchases amount to $25.00.
When empty these cases can be used to carry groceries in, and are very handy for that. Remember the place,
A. Sture's New Store,
CROOKSTON, MINN
Opera House Block,

HOLIDAY GOODS.
Before deciding what Xmas gifts you will purchase, please call and inspect my line of Pictures and Picture Framing Material, such as Oleographs, Chromos, Artotype and Steel Engravings, Monochromes, Water Color, Pastel and Oil Paintings.
Reproductions in Paintings and Etchings, Photogravures, Artographs, Typogravures, Mezzotypes and fac-simile Pastels, Genuine Etchings, Pastels and Steel Engravings. Etchings Remarque - Proof. Picture ats, Mouldings, Frames, Hooks, Nails, Cords, Wire and Room Mouldings.
I'm making a Special Sale of these goods for the Holiday trade. Call and examine.
Yours respectfully,
THE UNDERTAKER,
105½ Broadway,
Crookston, Minn. [55-tf]

STUDY LAW
AT HOME.
Take a Course in the Sprague Correspondence School of Law Send ten cents (stamps) for particulars to
J. COTNER, Jr., Sec.,
No. 60 Whitney Block
DETROIT, MICH.

FRANK IVES, Notary Public and U S. Com's'r.
D. E. HATLESTAD, District Court Commissioner
IVES & HATLESTAD,
Attorneys and Counselors at Law,
CROOKSTON, - - - - MINN
Will practice in all the courts and before the U. S. Land Office at Crookston and Washington. Pensions and Soldiers' Claims and Patents carefully and promptly adjusted.
We loan money on improved farms and city property and have facilities for placing large loans at low rate of interest. We give special attention to collection and all commercial business pertaining to our profession.

G. SLATER.
H. ROTHERT,
E. N. HILL,
J. A. CO RGE.
Chase & Slater Law and Claims Co.,
1331 F Street, Northwest,
WASHINGTON, D. C.
Practice in the Supreme Court of the United States, the Court of Claims, all the executive departments and before Congress. Claims for Indian Depredations collected. Pension cases prosecuted. Patents promptly secured. Careful attention given to all classes of land cases. Liberal arrangements made with Local Attorneys or for transfer of cases.

THE PIONEER HARNESS SHOP,
M. RAUENBUEHLR, Proprietor.
A full supply of everything kept by the trade.
Cor of Broadway and Third Sts,
CROOKSTON. - - MINN

MINNESOTA HOUSE,
ONE-HALF BLOCK FROM DEPOT.
WM. HEIDRICH, - - Proprietor.
Having rented this Popular House and thoroughly re-fitted and re-furnished it throughout, I am now prepared to meet the wants of all who want good and cheap accommodations.
☞ Farmers custom specially invited.
Terms $1.00 per Day.

CROOKSTON
STEAM LAUNDRY
O. D. ROOD, Prop.,
SECOND STREET, NEAR ASH,
(Opposite Commercial Hotel.)
I have just added New Machinery and Facilities for doing
Washing and Ironing
Upon the Shortest Notice in the Best Manner and upon the Most Reasonable Terms.
All Those Wanting
FAMILY WASHING
Done will find it to their interest to call at the Laundry. Goods called for and delivered.

L. E. GOSSMAN,
Attorney-at-Law,
No. 2 Fournet Block } CROOKSTON, MINN.

KOPS BRO'S
105 Third Street,
GRAND FORKS, N. DAKOTA
PIANOS, ORGANS.

WEBER, HAINES BROS., KURTZMANN, MATHUSHEK, McCAMMON PIANOS, Estey and Chicago Cottage Organs. New Upright Pianos from $250 to $1,000, on terms of $10 to $25 per month. New Organs from $60 to $250 on terms of $5 to $10 per month. Satisfaction guanteed. Write for catalogue and prices. KOPS BROS.
Grand Forks, N. D.

THE NEW
NORTHWEST
Home seekers will find the last of the public domain of agricultural and grazing value along the Great Northern Ry. in North Dakota and Montana | FARM LANDS
N W TOWNS | 100 or more, along the Great Northern Railway Line. Business chances. Write F. I. WHITNEY, St. Paul, Minn., for Books, Maps, &c. Write now.
Settlers on free Government lands along the Great Northern Ry. Line in North Dakota and Montana get low rates and fine markets for products. | LOW RATS
Montana produces the finest Horses and Cattle. Free ranges yet in Mouse, Milk and Sun River Valleys and Sweet Grass Hills. | Horses, Cattle.
Health, Wealth. | In the Northwest. Free Lands. New Towns. New Railways, New Mines, Low Rates. Largest area of good vacant land.
Sweetest Grass Hills. Milk and Sun River Valleys, Montana, reached only by the Great Northern Railway Line. The stock raisers' paradise. | Sheep, Hogs.
Herds, M Ines. | These have made Montana the richest State per capita in the Union. Plenty of room for more miners and stock raisers. Now is the time.

Valley Roller Mills
MANUFACTURERS OF
FINE FLOUR
From Selected Red River Wheat.
Lee & Herrick's Best, $2.65
North Star, - - - 2.50
Fife, - - - 2.15
Skip Jack. - - - 1.15
☞ We exchange flour for wheat on equitable terms.
LEE & HERRICK.

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON
PAID IN CAPITAL, - $100,000
SURPLUS, - - $12,700
Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittance.
GEO. Q. ERSKINE, President.
WM. ANGLIM, Vice President.
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashier
DIRECTORS:
Wm. Anglim, K. D. Chase, R. D. Childs
Geo. Q. Erskine, B. B. Northrop, A. A. Miller
E. M. Walsh, John Moore, W. H. Crosby
Chas. E. Sawyer.

THE OLD RELIABLE
CROOKSTON
LOAN AGENCY
STILL ON DECK.
MONNY
On Real Estaes
MONEY
On Approved Chattels,
Always on hand at the Lowest Rates. Consult your best interests by giving me a call when you Want Money.
A. D. STEPHENS,
Second Street, Crookston, Minn.

JOHN CROMB,
Attorney-at-Law,
SECOND STREET. CROOKSTON

A. A. JUST, M. D.,
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

Polk County Journal.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.

Crookston, January 28, 1892.

FOR PRINCIPAL POINTS IN

GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY LINE

MINNESOTA,
NORTH DAKOTA,
SOUTH DAKOTA,
MANITOBA,
MONTANA, AND
PACIFIC COAST.

TIME CARD.

MONTANA EXPRESS DAILY.

7:40 p. m. de..........St. Paul..........ar. 6:55 a. m.
7:00 a. m. de........CROOKSTON........de. 7:25 p. m.
8:15 a. m. de.........Grand Forks.........de. 6:20 p. m.
2:30 p. m. ar..........Helena..........de. 11:00 a. m.

ST. VINCENT BRANCH.
Daily, except Sunday.
Depart 7:30 a. m.....................Arrive 6:45 p. m.

FOSSTON BRANCH.
DAILY, EXCEPT SUNDAY.
Depart 7:30 a. m.....................Arrive 5:00 p. m.

ST. HILAIRE BRANCH.
Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Depart 10:45 a. m.....................Arrive 4:00 p. m.

W. W. FEGAN,
Agent, Crookston.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

	Leave Crookston Daily.	Arrive Crookston Daily.
For Duluth, Ashland, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago, and all points East and South............	10:08 p. m.	8:25 a. m.
For Grand Forks, Grafton, Pembina, Winnipeg and points in N. Dakota and Winnipeg........	8:25 a. m.	10:08 p. m.

IF YOU ARE GOING EAST OR SOUTH ASK YOUR NEAREST AGENT FOR TICKETS VIA THE AND TAKE NO OTHER LINE. BURLINGTON

Our Washington Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24, 1892.

There have so far been two occasions in the House of Representatives at this session, where a straightforward and patriotic Republican sentiment clashed with what is known as Democracy. In the first, the Democracy triumphed, and prevented the sending to Russia, at government expense the contributions of patriotic Americans to Russian sufferers by famine. The Republicans were as one for this small testimonial to an ever friendly government, and, though the Democracy was divided, enough of their bulky majority voted against the appropriation to defeat it. This slap in the face of the only government on earth that has always been friendly to us was a most ungracious and unpatriotic thing.

The next contest was over the Holman resolution, which virtually limited appropriations this year to the carrying on of department work. Nothing was to be voted for the thousand things, outside of routine, that have been recognized as part of the government's needs from the days of Jefferson to those of Cleveland. In this contest there was a transient Republican triumph, as Mr. Holman's resolution was withdrawn. But it came up again the day after, and was adopted. As passed, it pledges the United States to give or pay nothing to the World's Fair at Chicago, to United States' creditors who have been left in arrears by the inevitable friction that comes with the movements of a great government, and to the increase and improvement of the navy. In various ways, outside of these, the Holman resolution, if carried out in its terms, would cripple the United States in its dealings with their own citizens and in their relations with foreign powers. Of coure the letter of the resolution will have little to do with the actual legislation of the session. Harbors and rivers will be improved, necessary public buildings erected, the naval vessels completed and new ones commenced, and the United States continue to make themselves respectable abroad as well as at home, notwithstanding the Holman resolution. The two hundred and thirty-six Democrats in the house may vote wildly and foolishly on an abstract proposition of economy, but when the local, national and international needs of the nation come before them for consideration and vote, they will act and vote intelligently. Mr. Holman seems to be a man who thinks a people of seventy millions, with railroads, steamboats, electrical appliances, and all other modern improvements will be content with the stage-coach methods of a hundred years ago. He will find his mistake before the session closes—long before it closes.

There is no real and serious complaint about the census of 1890 except that comes from New York City. New York State does not complain. No state complains. No really American community complains of the general accuracy and fairness of the enumeration made. The unavoidable mistakes here and there are criticised, as they should be. But these Democrats of New York who believe that New York State is solidly Democratic now are seriously thinking of proceeding in Congress, in some way unknown to the ordinary mind, against Mr. Porter, the present superintendent of the census. As Governor and Senator Hill has New York City in his vest pocket, New York State in his overcoat pocket, and expects the nation to meet him next summer at Harlem Bridge, it is supposed that he is at the bottom of the new raid on Porter and the census of 1890. The special object he has is not understood. He may believe that he is the only man who can take a census, as he is the only man who ever created a Legislature.

If there are any Union soldiers who have not decided to visit Washington at the September reunion this year, they may get information that will influence them by addressing a note to Harrison Dingman, Washington, D. C. He is secretary of the general committee, and will respond to any call.

A Pioneer In Fact.

Grand Forks Daily Herald:—Jack Bunnell, one of the oldest engineers on the Great Northern, and who pulled the first train across the bridge into Grand Forks is now pulling the passenger between here and Devil's Lake. The old time boys will remember a clock was presented to Jack by his friends here in honor of his piloting the first locomotive into the city, which he probably carries in his cab to this day.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss.
In Probate Court, Special Term, Jan. 21st, 1892.

In the matter of the estate of William G. Cooke, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of H. E. Cooke, administrator of the estate of William G. Cooke, deceased, representing among other things that he has fully administered said estate and praying that a time and place be fixed for examining, settling and allowing the final account of his administration, and for the assignment of the residue of said estate to the parties entitled thereto by law.

It is ordered, that said account be examined, and petition heard, by this Court, on Monday, the 15th day of February, A. D. 1892, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the Probate Office in the city of Crookston, in said county.

And it is further ordered, that notice thereof be given to all persons interested by publishing a copy of this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, in said county.

Dated at Crookston, the 21st day of January, A. D. 1892.

By the Court: C. M. BENSON,
Judge of Probate.
[41-43]

ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION

—OF THE—

Crookston Mercantile Company.

For the purpose of organizing a corporation under Title 2, Chapter 34, General Statutes, 1878 and acts amendatory thereto, the undersigned hereby associate ourselves together and adopt the following Articles of Incorporation.

ARTICLE I.

The name of this corporation shall be the CROOKSTON MERCANTILE COMPANY, and the general nature of its business shall be, the carrying on of a general wholesale and retail grocery, fruits, confectionery, cigars and tobacco business and such other general mercantile business as may be determined by the Board of Directors.

ARTICLE II.

The principal place of business of said corporation shall be in the City of Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota.

ARTICLE III.

The time of the commencement of said corporation shall be the first day of February A. D. 1892, and the period of its duration shall be thirty years.

ARTICLE IV.

The amount of the capital stock of this corporation shall be fifty thousand ($50,000) dollars, divided into five hundred shares of one hundred ($100) dollars each, and the same shall be paid in at such times and in such manner as shall be required or determined by the Board of Directors, and at least twenty thousand ($20,000) dollars of the said capital stock shall be sold or subscribed for and forty per cent. of that amount shall be actually paid in before said corporation shall commence business.

ARTICLE V.

The highest amount of indebtedness of said corporation shall at no time exceed the sum of fifty thousand ($50,000) dollars.

ARTICLE VI.

The names and places of residence of the persons forming this corporation are as follows:

Peter M. Ringdal, Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota.
Fred Anderson, Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota.
Lewis Ellington, Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota.
John R. McKinnon, Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota.
Elias Steenerson, Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota.
H. Steenerson, Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota.
H. A. Mason, Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota.

ARTICLE VII.

The names of the first Board of Directors are as follows, to wit:

Fred Anderson, Peter M. Ringdal,
Elias Steenerson, H. A. Mason,
John R. McKinnon.

ARTICLE VIII.

The government of said corporation and the management of its affairs shall be vested in a Board of Directors of not less than five directors to be elected annually by and from the stockholders as hereinafter provided.

ARTICLE IX.

The annual meeting for such election shall be held in the City of Crookston on the first Tuesday of February of each year, and until their successors are elected and qualified such directors shall continue to be such directors, and the directors shall at their annual meeting to be held immediately after the annual meeting of the stockholders, elect a President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer, but the office of Secretary and Treasurer may be held by the same person, and until the next annual meeting of the stockholders as aforesaid Fred Anderson shall be President; H. A. Mason shall be Vice President; P. M. Ringdal shall be Secretary and P. M. Ringdal shall be Treasurer, and in case of a resignation of any of such officers or directors or their inability to act, their office shall be filled by the remainder of the Board of Directors at a meeting called and held for that purpose, and if for any reason the annual meeting for the election of officers shall not be held at the time specified, it may be held at any time that the directors may appoint for that purpose and at such place as they may designate.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the said incorporators have hereunto set their hands and seals this 9th day of January A.D. 1892.

Signed and Sealed in presence of
E. M. STANTON,
F. E. MISSEN,

FRED ANDERSON, (seal)
P. M. RINGDAL, (seal)
LEWIS ELLINGTON, (seal)
H. A. MASON, (seal)
ELIAS STEENERSON, (seal)
HALVOR STEENERSON, (seal)
JOHN R. MCKINNON, (seal)

STATE OF MINNESOTA, }
COUNTY OF POLK. } ss

On the ninth day of January A.D. 1892, personally came before me a notary public in and for said County, Peter M. Ringdal, Fred Anderson, Lewis Ellington, John R. McKinnon, Elias Sternerson, Halvor Steenerson and H. A. Mason to me known to be the identical persons who executed the foregoing instrument, and each of said persons acknowledged the execution thereof as his free act and deed for the uses and purposes therein expressed.

E. M. STANTON,
Notary Public, Polk County, Minnesota.
(seal)

OFFICE OF REGISTER OF DEEDS,
County of Polk, Minnesota.

I hereby certify that the within instrument was filed in this office for record on the 11th day of January A. D. 1892, at 11 o'clock a. m., and was duly recorded in book E of Misc. on pages 104-6.

JOHN LOCKEN,
Register of Deeds.

STATE OF MINNESOTA,
Department of State.

I hereby certify that the within instrument was filed for record in this office on the 12th day of January A. D. 1892 at 11 o'clock a. m. and was duly recorded in book D 2 of Incorporations, on page 142.

F. P. BROWN,
Secretary of State.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

(First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.)
(Last publication Feb. 25th, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of thirty-two and 49-100 dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Eugene Boulie and Melvina Boulie, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company, of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of August, 1890, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the twentieth day of August 1890, at 3 o'clock p. m., in book 52 of mortgages, on page 393.

And whereas, the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of four hundred and ninety-six and 4-100 dollars (496.04), with interest on four hundred and eighty-one (481) dollars thereof, at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The south half of the northwest quarter (s½ nw¼) and lots three (3) and four (4), all in Section two (2), of Town one hundred and forty-nine (149), of Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of four hundred ninety-six and 4-100 dollars ($496.04) and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five (25) dollars Attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [39-45]

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale

(First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.)
(Last publication Feb. 25th, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of forty-three and 25-100 dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Napoleon Gonyea, an unmarried man, mortgagor, to The Loan and Guarantee Company, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of November, 1890, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the third day of November, 1890, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 54 of mortgages, on page 345.

And whereas the said, The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of six hundred and fifty and 83-100 dollars ($650.83) with interest on six hundred and forty-two (642) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The west half of the northeast quarter (w½ ne¼) and the west half of the southeast quarter (w½ se¼) of section thirty (30), of Town one hundred and fifty (150) of Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of six hundred and fifty and 83-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars Attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [39-45]

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Jan. 7th, 1892.]
[Last publication Feb. 18th, 1892.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain indenture of mortgage, executed and delivered by Ida D. Van Tuyl and John E. Van Tuyl, her husband, mortgagors, to the "Union Central Life Insurance Company," mortgagee, bearing date the 22d day of November, 1889, with a power of sale therein contained, which mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 27th day of December, A. D. 1889, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, in book 51 of mortgages, on page 265, and whereas said mortgage was given to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars and interest thereon from its said date at the rate of eight per cent. per annum, due and payable on the first day of January in each year. And whereas default has been made in the payment of the sum of forty-eight dollars interest due and payable January 1st, 1891, and default having also been made in the payment of the sum of forty-eight dollars interest due and payable on January 1st, 1892, and both of said defaults still continue, and no part of said principal has ever been paid. And whereas the conditions of said mortgage are such that if default be made in the payment of principal sum secured by said mortgage or interest thereon when the same becomes due, then the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage shall thereupon become due and payable at once.

And whereas both by the terms of said mortgage and the election of said mortgagee hereby made the whole amount secured by said mortgage both principal and interest accrued to this date is now due and payable.

And the amount now claimed to be due and which is due at the date of this notice upon said mortgage, including interest in accordance with the terms of said mortgage is the sum of six hundred and ninety-nine and 95-100 dollars. And no action or proceeding at law having been instituted to recover said debt or any part thereof secured by said mortgage.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained which by reason of the defaults aforesaid has become operative, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to-wit: The west half of the southeast quarter and the east half of the southwest quarter, both of the above described tracts being in Section ten (10), Township one hundred and forty-nine (149), Range forty-three (43), in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and containing 160 acres of land, together with all the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging or in any wise appertaining. Said sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on Tuesday, the 23d day of February, 1892, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to satisfy and pay the amount which will then be due upon said mortgage according to the terms thereof, and interest and fifty dollars attorney's fees as provided by said mortgage in case of foreclosure and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated January 4th, 1892.

Union Central Life Insurance Company,
Mortgagee.

Chas. P. Barker,
Attorney for said Mortgagee,
618 Guaranty Loan Building,
Minneapolis Minn.
[38-44]

W. A. ROBERTSON
D. D. S.
Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland.
OPERATIVE AND MECHANICAL
DENTIST.
N. B. Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.
OFFICE IN McKINNON BLOCK.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

(First publication, January 21st, 1892.)
(Last publication, March 3rd, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred and thirty and 16-100 dollars, interest which is due at the date of this notice, upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Alphonse Paridis and Elmira Paridis, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the 1st day of October, 1889, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 9th day of November, 1889, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 48 of mortgages, on page 52.

And whereas the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of nine hundred and forty-six and 82-100 Dollars, with interest on nine hundred and twelve ($912) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the 18th day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north-east quarter (ne¼) of Section thirty-four (34) Town one hundred and fifty (150) of Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston in said County and State, on

SATURDAY, THE FIFTH DAY OF MARCH, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of nine hundred and forty-six and 82-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated January 18th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [40-46]

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Thursday, Jan. 14th 1892.]
[Last publication Thursday, Feb. 25th 1892.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred and fifty and seventy one hundredths Dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Thomas Plante and Mary Plante his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the First day of June, 1889, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 1st day of July, 1889, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 45 of mortgages on page 470.

And whereas the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of nine hundred and fifty-six and fourteen hundredths dollars ($956.14), with interest on nine hundred and forty (940) dollars, thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum, from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north half of the south-east quarter (n½ se¼) and the north half of the south-west quarter (n½ sw¼) of section thirty four (34) of town one hundred and fifty (150) of range forty-one (41) in Polk county and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of nine hundred and fifty-six and fourteen hundredths dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee
Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [39-45]

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.]
[Last publication Feb. 25th, 1892.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of Seventy-one and seventy eight one hundredths dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Luc Jenot and Elenore Jenot, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of December, 1888, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the seventh day of December, 1888, at 11 o'clock a. m., in book 41 of mortgages, on page 57.

And whereas the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of Ten Hundred and seventy-eight and fifty-eight dollars, ($1078.58), with interest on Ten Hundred and Seventy ($1070) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum, from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The south-east (se) quarter of section nineteen (19) of town one hundred and fifty (150) of range forty-one (41) in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Ten Hundred and Seventy-eight and fifty eight one hundredths dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty ($50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee
Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [39-45]

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minnesota, Jan. 18, 1892.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register or Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn. on February 29th, 1892 viz: Tosten L. Oleson, Hd. No. 12,259, for the S W¼ Sec. 14, Twp. 147, Range 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: Knut S. Akre, John Ellingson, Halvor Ellingson, Edward Ramsey, all of Neilsville, Minn.

[40-45] HUGH THOMPSON, Register.

DR. LEDUC'S Periodical Pills—The French remedy, Paris. A reliable female regulator. Acts directly on the generative organs. Cures all ailments peculiar to women. $2, 3 for $5. Sold by A. G. Anderson, Crookston, Minn.

Northern Pacific

BETWEEN

Winnipeg, Gilby, Drayton, Grafton
Grand Forks, Crookston,
AND ALL POINTS

EAST AND WEST.

There is nothing better than the service on
THE DINING CAR LINE
Through Pullman Sleeping Cars Daily between points
IN THE RED RIVER VALLEY
—AND—
ST. PAUL AND MINNEAPOLIS.
PACIFIC COAST TRAINS
PASSING THROUGH
Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana
Idaho, Oregon and Washington
CARRY COMPLETE EQUIPMENT OF
Pullman Palace Sleeping Cars,
First and Second Class Coaches,
Pullman Tourist and
Free Colonist Sleeper
AND ELEGANT DINING CARS

THROUGH TICKETS are sold at all coupon offices of the Northern Pacific Railroad to points North, East, South and west, in the United States and Canada.

TIME SCHEDULE.
East bound.
Passenger 7:10 p. m. | Freight 9:20 p. m.
West bound.
Passenger 8:20 a. m. | Freight 8:00 p. m.

For rates, maps, time tables or special information, apply to C. A. Sharkey, Agent Northern Pacific R. R. at Crookston, Minn., or

CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent,
St. Paul, Minn.

Mortgage Foreclosuse Sale.

(First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.)
(Last publication Jan. 25th, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of eighty-eight and eighty-five one hundredths dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Martin Thompson and Ann G. Thompson, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the second day of December 1889, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 10th day of January, 1890, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 48 of mortgages, on page 242.

And whereas the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of six hundred and ninety-two and eighty-one one hundredths dollars, ($692.81), with interest on six hundred and eighty-four (684) dollars, thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum, from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north-west quarter (nw¼) of Section twenty (20) of Town one hundred and forty-nine (149) of Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of six hundred and ninety-two and 81-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee
Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [39-45]

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

(First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.)
(Last publication Feb. 25th, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of eighty-eight and 85-100 dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Peder H. Mesedalen and Kari Mesedalen, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company, of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the second day of December, 1889, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the tenth day of January, 1890, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 48 of mortgages, on page 246.

And whereas, the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of six hundred ninety-two and 81-100 dollars, ($692.81) with interest on six hundred and eighty-four (684) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The northwest quarter (nw¼) of Section seventeen (17), Town one hundred and forty-nine (149), Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of six hundred and ninety-two and 81-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars Attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [39-45]

M. LeGUEE,
Veterinary Surgeon.
Residence and office on Jerome's Addition.
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN

MILLER & FOOTE,
ATTY'S AT LAW,
McKinnon Block. - Crookston, Minn.

ALDERMAN & SYLVESTER,
——DEALERS IN——
Shelf and Heavy
HARDWARE,
Sash, Doors and Mouldings

Mixed Paints, Linseed and Machine Oils, Flying Dutchman Gang Plows, J. Thompson & Sons Walking Plows. Sole agents for the Domestic Sewing Machine.

A FULL AND COMPLETE STOCK OF
STOVES AND RANGES
Corner Main and Fletcher Sts. - - - Crookston.

McKINNON BROS.,
——DEALERS IN——
ALL OF THE LEADING
Agricultural Implements
MAIN STREET. McKINNON BLOK.
Before Pure hasing, Give Us a all.

SCANDIA-AMERICAN BANK,
OF CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.
Organized Under the State Laws.
Authorized capital $200,000. Paid up capital, $50,000. Undivided profits $10,500
Buys Bonds, School and Town Orders. Special attention to collections
Interest on time deposits.

OFFICERS.
C. HENDRICKSON, President.
O. H. LUCKEN, 2d Vice-President.
A. G. GALLASCH, Vice-President
L. ELLINGTON, Cashier.
A. P. HANSON, Assistant Cashier.

DIRECTORS.
C. O. ristianson. E. P. Pierce O. H Lucken. A. D. Stephens. A. G. Gallasch.
H. Steenerson. J. H. Locken, C. Hendrickson.
Max Ericsson. L. K. Aaker. A. E. Johnson, St. Pau

Sylvester & Finseth,
—Wholesale and Retail Dealers in—
Heavy and Shelf Hardware

Stoves, Tinware, Paints and Oils, Doors, Sash, Barbed Wire, Lime, Buckeye Binders and Mowers, Hollingsworth Rakes, Favorite Wagons and Buggies, National Cordage Co's Binding Twine, Rock Island Plows, Buford Gang and Sulky Plows, Fairbanks Scales, Hose for Lawn Sprinkling, Screen Doors, Ice Cream Freezers, Gasoline Stoves, Varnish and Paper, Lawn Mowers, North Star Refrigerators and Garden Sprinklers.
Agents for Standard Rotary Shuttle Sewing Machines.

Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

S. L. COLLINS,
——PROPRIETOR OF——
MAIN STREET
Livery, Feed and Sale Stables
CORNER MAIN AND FOURTH STS, WEST SIDE,
Crookston, - - - - Minnesota.
Horses bought and sold on commission.
Everything neat and nobby.
Feeding a specialty.
FINE HEARSE
In connection which I will attend to in person

Crookston Business College.

FACULTY:
R. S. KNUDSON, L. E. GOSSMAN, C. M. WASSON.

BOOKKEEPING.
SHORTHAND.
TYPEWRITING.
PENMANSHIP.
COMMERCIAL LAW.
CIVIL GOVERNMENT
CORRESPONDENCE.

Faculty composed of specialists.
Most advanced methods of instruction.
Students may take full course or special braches.
Special English department.
Day and evening sessions.
Tuition Fees Low.
Students may enter at any time.

GRAMMAR.
ARITHMETIC.
SPELLING.
READING.
HISTORY.
GEOGRAPHY.
COMPOSITION.

For catalogues and circulars address
R. S. KNUDSON, Principal,
Crookston, Minn.

H. STEENERSON
ATTORNEY AT LAW
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA

MARTIN O'BRIEN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
I. O. O. F. BUILDING. } Crookston, Minn

Historical Society

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

The Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Editor and Proprietor.

DEVOTED TO THE WELFARE OF POLK COUNTY.

TERMS---$1.50 Per Annum

VOL. XV. CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA. FEBRUARY 4, 1892. NO. 42

Polk County Journal.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. Outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

ADVERTISING RATES.

SPACE.	1 w.	2 w.	3 w.	1 m.	3 m	6 m.	1 year
½ inch	$.50	$1 00	$1 25	$1 50	$3 00	4 50	$6 00
1 inch	75	1 25	1 75	2 00	4 50	6 00	10 00
2 inches	1 50	2 25	3 00	3 50	6 50	9 50	15 00
3 inches	1 75	2 75	3 75	4 50	9 50	13 50	20 00
4 inches	2 50	3 50	4 50	5 50	10 00	18 00	25 00
5 inches	3 00	4 00	5 00	6 00	12 50	20 00	30 00
¼ column	3 50	4 50	5 50	6 50	15 00	25 00	35 00
½ column	6 00	7 50	10 00	12 00	25 00	35 00	50 00
1 column	9 50	12 00	15 00	18 00	35 00	60 00	100 00

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.
2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.
3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.
4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class matter.

The Hail Fund.

It will be observed that the hail list is growing some, but yet not as rapidly as it should if any substantial aid is to be furnished. In order to afford relief in the most urgent cases about 1,000 bushels of wheat, 1,000 of barley and from 1,500 to 2,000 of oats are required. If you wish to contribute to this fund and it is not convenient for you to come and see us you can write upon a postal card the amount you are willing to contribute and your name will be put upon the list.

See the old reliable dealer, M. R. Brown, if you want to buy a team this spring.

The Demand Of Justice.

New York Press.

American patriotism has not degenerated in a long interval of peace. The public sentiment in favor of exacting reparation for the cowardly murder of our seamen at Valparaiso is overwhelming. It is evident that Congress, regardless of party lines, is prepared to support the administration in the most vigorous measures. The President's message is eagerly awaited both in the Senate and the House. The recommendations which it contains will undoubtedly be acted upon at once. The action of the government in ordering the squadrons of Admiral Gherardi and Admiral Walker to concentrate their forces at Valparaiso indicates that the forthcoming ultimatum to Chili will be backed up by the entire available power of the United States navy.

The time for conciliation and forbearance has passed. Chili has had ample time to afford reparation, and she has refused even to consider the question of making amends. Her persistent course of insult and defiance, following the murderous assault of her citizens and officials upon American seamen, has left no alternative but an appeal to force.

Talk of arbitration by any European power is futile and foolish. The report that Great Britain has officiously tendered her services as a mediator in the dispute is without confirmation. While England has a historic reputation for interference in the affairs of inferior countries, it is improbable that she would venture to offer interposition be- the United States and Chili. Such interference could not be tolerated, much less entertained by the American people. Chili must settle her account directly with the United States. We have nothing to do with England in the matter. The United States needs no foreign instructions as to the course to be taken in defending her national honor.

The case is one that does not admit of arbitration. The United States requires an apology from Chili for the unprovoked murder of our unarmed seamen, the punishment of the assassins and the payment of satisfactory indemnity to the families of the murdered men. This is what simple justice demands. We have asked for nothing more. We will accept nothing less. If we are to have peace it must be peace with honor. In its infancy the United States went to war with France and with Great Britain because of their maltreatment of American seamen.

Those who think that at the present day this country will allow its faithful sailors to be barbarously slaughtered without exacting full reparation for the outrage know little of the history and the spirit of the American nation.

World's Fair Notes.

A collective exhibit of sanitary appliances and methods of sanitation, and of all that pertains closely to them, is to be made at the Exposition. The various state and municipal boards of health will work in conjunction to that end, numerous representatives of those organizations having so decided at a recent convention in Chicago.

The Blue Grass League, of Iowa, embracing the southwestern counties of the State, has decided to construct a "Blue Grass Palace" at the Exposition.

The fine geological collection made by the late Prof. Worthen, State Geologist of Illinois, will form part of the Illinois, will form part of the Illinois exhibit at the exposition. The State World's Fair Board has purchased it for $8,000.

The Hon. W. C. P. Breckenridge, of Kentucky, according to present plans, will deliver the oration dedicatory of the Exposition buildings, on Oct. 12th, 1892.

The London Polytechnic Institute expects that its plans for bringing artisans and others of limited means to the exposition will result in enabling 1,500 or 2,000 such persons to visit Chicago at a total expense of something like $125 or $130 each for the round trip.

The United States Potters' Association has applied for 32,000 square feet in the manufactures building, and announces its intention of making an exhibit that will not be surpassed by any showing made by the famed potteries of Europe.

The Columbian Navigation Company has been incorporated with a capital of $500,000 for the purpose of running steamboats to Jackson Park during the exposition for the accommodation of visitors. It is believed that many thousands of visitors will prefer the lake route in reaching the exposition.

The Chemical National Bank, of Chicago, has been granted the privilege of establishing and operating a bank on the exposition grounds. It will afford to exhibitors and visitors all the conveniences and safeguards of a metropolitan bank, including safety deposit vaults.

Secretary Dickinson estimates that $125,000 will be necessary for the expenses of the national Commission for the year ending June 30th, 1893, divided as follows: two meetings of the Commission, $30,000; salaries, $50,000; rent, $5,000; board of control and committees, $1,000; stationery, printing, etc., $10,000; expenses connected with admission of foreign exhibits, $20,000.

It is the intention to have one room in Delaware's exposition building fitted up in colonial style, with hangings, pictures and furniture of that period. Among the exhibits in this room it is proposed to show models of three celebrated colonial churches—the "Old Swedes' Church," in Wilmington, founded in 1699: Barratt's Chapel, near Frederica, which was founded in 1780, and where, in November, 1784, Rev. Dr. Thomas Coke, Francis Asbury, afterwards first Methodist bishop in America, met with several others and planned the organization of the Methodist Church in this country; and Christ Church, Broad Creek.

The colossal statute of the Republic, which will stand on a pedestal rising from the basin in front of the administration building, is being modeled in Paris by Daniel C. French, the New York sculptor. It will be a female figure seventy-five feet high.

Water for the Exposition grounds will be supplied from two pumping stations having a combined capacity of 64,000,000 gallons a day. The largest of the two has a capacity of 40,000,000 and constitutes the exhibit of the Worthington Pump Company, which puts in the entire plant, costing $250,000, free of expense to the exposition.

A project has been inaugurated to have an international rifle shoot at Chicago at some time while the exposition is in progress. It is proposed that picked teams from the U. S. Army and national guard compete with teams from other nations.

A "Columbian Catholic Congress" will be held at Chicago at the time of the exposition, beginning, as now planned, On September 5th, and continuing five days. It is expected that fully 5,000 delegates from dioceses in the United States alone will be present, and that the number from European countries will be very large and will include many noted dignitaries of the church. It is hoped that Pope Leo XIII. himself, will accept an invitation to be present, and to open the Congress. It is believed that the gathering will be the greatest and most representative in the history of the church. The progress and standing of the Catholic church in America and throughout the world, and the social and economic questions embraced in the Pope's recent encyclical will be presented and discussed.

The Thomson-Huston Electric Companies are planning to make a united exhibit at an expense of $500,000. They want to occupy 20,000 square feet of space.

Chew Yu Ling, representing commercial parties in china, has arranged to conduct a tea pavilion on Midway Plaisance, and has applied for 1,000 square feet of space in the manufactures building in which to exhibit Chinese silks, embroideries, etc.

The ceremonies attending the dedication of the exposition buildings, Oct. 11, 12 and 13, 1892, are to be very elaborate and impressive. The committee having the matter in hand will devote $300,000 to that purpose. It is expected that the President of the United States and his Cabinet, many of the Senators and Congressmen and Governors of the States, numerous representatives of foreign governments, and 10,000 militia and several thousand regulars will be present. A dedication ode and marches, written for the occasion, will be rendered with full choral and orchestral accompaniment. Patriotic and other music, a dedicatory oration, a pageant of symbolical floats representing the "Procession of the Centuries," and magnificent displays of fireworks will be among the chief features of the programme.

The National Association of Woolen Manufacturers has decided to make a united exhibit at the fair.

On the three evenings during the exercises dedicatory of the exposition buildings, October 11, 12 and 13, fireworks to the value of $25,000 will be displayed. The contract has already been let.

Nearly $1,100,000 of insurance is now carried on the exposition buildings and electric plant. The amount will be increased from time to time as the construction proceeds.

Japan has appropriated $630,765 for its representation at the exposition. A splendid Japanese exhibit is assured.

Visitors to the exposition can, if they choose, drink Waukesha water on the fair grounds at one cent a glass. A company owning one of the principal springs at Waukesha has been awarded the contract for furnishing the water, which will be piped from that place to Chicago, about 100 miles, and be served at 300 places on the fair grounds. Plenty of Lake Michigan water will be obtainable free, of course.

The Chamber of Commerce at Salt Lake City, Utah, and the national commissioners and lady managers of the territory have circulated a petition asking that the legislature appropriate $100,000 in aid of an exhibit at the world's fair.

The Wisconsin world's fair board has issued a circular to the farmers of Wisconsin asking them to exhibit the very best products of their farms at the county fairs and state fairs of this year, as the exhibit for the world's fair will be selected, to a considerable extent, from the cereals and other farm products which are awarded premiums at those fairs.

The world's fair board of Kansas is promoting a plan whereby it is expected that the expense of erecting the exposition building for that state will be borne by school pupils. The proposition is to have all of the schools in the state observe a "World's Fair Day," by holding an entertainment with music, recitations, tableaux, etc., to which a small entrance fee will be charged. The proceeds are expected to be sufficient to pay for the state building. Over the main entrance of the structure it is proposed to have the words: "Erected by the School Children of Kansas."

Popular Talks On Law.

BY WM. C. SPRAGUE, ESQ.

NATURALIZATION.

In our last we talked on the subject of naturalization, as to where the power is vested and who may be naturalized. We found that there were five privileged classes, and two of these—minors, and wives of citizens—were specially referred to. The three last classes of privileged persons are: 1st, The widow and children of one who has made the preliminary declarations, but who dies before his admission to citizenship; 2d, Aliens in the military service of the United States; and 3d, Seamen. As stated in the preceding talk, the alien must make a preliminary declaration of his intention to become a citizen. Now, when he has made this declaration, but dies before his admission as a citizen, his widow and his children become citizens upon the taking of the oath prescribed by law. As to the second class, the declaration of intention is not required from the alien who is over 21 years old and has honorably discharged from the military service of the United States. All that is required of him is that he prove one year's residence previous to his application. He is required also to show good moral character. It has been held in a federal case that this law does not apply to marines, but the law has been held to include the navy as well as the army in at least one case, arising in New York. We do not know that the matter is entirely settled. Inasmuch as the law does not specify as to what races are included under the term "alien," it is thought that there are no qualifications as to race required, and that the discharged soldier or sailor may be admitted to citizenship without regard to his race. Third, as to seamen: In order for the foreigner who is a seaman to become a citizen, he must declare his intention to become such in a competent court, and must have served three years on board of a merchant vessel of the United States subsequent to the date of the declaration, and must produce a certificate of discharge and good conduct during that time, together with the certificate of his declaration of intention to become a citizen. A seaman who is a foreigner, after making his declaration, and after serving three years, is deemed a citizen for the purpose of manning and serving on board a United States merchant vessel. Such seaman is for purpose of protection as an American citizen, deemed such after the filing of his declaration of intention to become such citizen. It is held that none of the provisions of the law as to seamen as above referred to, apply to sail or steam vessels engaged in the coast trade, except the coast trade between the Atlantic and Pacific; nor in the lake going trade touching at foreign ports or otherwise; nor in the trade between the United States and the British North American possessions; nor in any case where the seamen are by custom or agreement entitled to participate in the profits or result of the cruise or voyage. The law does not apply to naval service.

We shall in our next treat of the proceedure in obtaining naturalization, including preliminary declaration of intention, the application, proof, certificate, record, etc.

Try M. R. Brown for a goood team of working horses or mares.

Our Washington Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30, 1892.

The newspapers of the country of all political shades are still discussing the action of the New York Senate in the passage of the enumeration bill, and it is a question that cannot be too fully discussed or commented upon. The facts are well known to the public, that a bill having been introduced to provide for an enumeration, and still unprinted, a Democratic Senator drew out of his pocket a substitute and a vote was forced upon this without discussion, while three Republican Senators who refused to vote were suspended and are still suspended and their names not called because they refused to vote on a bill they had never heard read. The Democratic papers which have the least pretension to fairness are denouning this action everywhere. Even the New York World, a most partisan newspaper, says of it: "The action of the majority in requiring Senators to vote on an important bill which they had not been permitted to see, and because they declined suspending them from the rights of membership in that body to which they were legally elected, was unprecedented, unwarranted and dangerous." It continues that "if such a policy were persisted in, no new apportionment could secure the Democrats a Legislature next fall." That is true. The people of the State of New York intend to rebuke this conduct by electing a Republican Legislature to replace the men who have so grossly violated all rules of decency.

The Sage of Corsicana, Roger Q. Mills, has so acted for the last few weeks that the title heretofore bestowed upon him ought to be changed and he should be denominated hereafter the Mad Bull of Corsicana, for he acts very much like a bull in a china shop. It was stated in several of the papers that he would, when Mr. Springer's bill came from the committee on Ways and Means, offer as an amendment the Mills' Bill, better known as the dark lantern affair, which was prepared when Mills was chairman of the committee on Ways and Means in the Fifteenth Congress. Mr. Mills was interviewed on this subject and he did not deny but what he should make this move. If he does the probabilities are that this session of Congress will last into October to the great disgust of many new members who would like to be at home trying to secure a re-election.

It is not known to every one that, under Section 1,218 of the revised statutes of the United States, no man who was in the civil or military service of the late Confedaracy or of any of the States belonging to it could, in the event of war, take service in the armies of the United States as a volunteer with any rank higher than that of a private. Even if the distinguished commanders of the Confederate army were alive and war was declared they would have to, if they served at all, serve in the ranks. An effort will be made in this Congress to repeal this statute.

The democratic committee held its meeting in Washington on the 21st and Chicago was selected as the place for holding the next democratic convention and the 21st of June as the time. It is generally understood at Washington that Chicago was selected through a combination made by Hill, Gorman and Brice and there is a very vigorous kick upon the part of some of the delegations that were here trying to secure the location elsewhere.

The democratic mountain, consisting of Messrs. Crisp, McMillan and Catchings, has labored over the rules of the new House for about six weeks and the little mouse has crawled forth. The democrats want to adopt some of the rules of the Fifty-first Congress, but, after having so vigorously denounced them, they could hardly do this but came as near it as they possibly could in one or two things. The very men who clamored so in the Fifty-first Congress for free debate have prepared a rule and offered it to the Fifty-second which, if adopted, will be as effectual in cutting off debate as any of the rules of the Fifty-first Congress. There is no doubt but what the rules will be adopted on Monday, though one distinguished Democrat says he shall move to strike out portions of them and substitute the rules of the Fifty-first Congress, because under the rules offered, not only will debate be strangled, but no business permitted except what the committee on Rules desires.

THE OLD RELIABLE
CROOKSTON
LOAN AGENCY
STILL ON DECK.

MONNY
On Real Estae E
MONEY
On Approved Chattels,

Always on hand at the Lowest Rates. Consult your best interests by giving me a call when you Want Money.
A. D. STEPHENS,
Second Street, Crookston Minn.

KOPS BRO'S
105 Third Street,
GRAND FORKS, N. DAKOTA
PIANOS, ORGANS.

WEBER, HAINES BROS., KURTZMANN, MATHUSHEK, McCAMMON PIANOS, Estey and Chicago Cottage Organs. New Upright Pianos from $250 to $1,000, on terms of $10 to $25 per month. New Organs from $60 to $250 on terms of $5 to $10 per month.
Satisfaction guanteed. Write for catalogue and prices. KOPS BROS.
Grand Forks, N. D.

G. G. HENAULT
Practical Dentist
SECOND STREET,
CROOKSTON, - - MINN
OFFICE IN DOBSON'S BLOCK,
☞ All work in my line skilfully and promptly performed. Give me a call.
G. G. HENAULT.

P. J. RUSSELL,
Attorney-at-Law
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Next to Merchants' Bank.

THE PIONEER
HARNESS SHOP,
M. RAUENBUEHLR, Proprietor.
A full supply of everything kept by the trade.
Cor of Broadway and Third Sts,
CROOKSTON, - MINN

NEW FEED MILL
CHRIS. ANDERSON, Prop.

I desire to annouce to the farmers of Polk County that I have rented the
LAURENCE BUILDING, ON MAIN STEERT,
Next to Brown's New Livery Stable, and am now prepared to grind feed of all kinds promptly. You can get your feed in two hours after you bring me your grain. Prices Reasonable
Try My New Mill!

A. J. & A. McKINNON,
CROOKSTON
CARRIAGE WORKS.
Manufactures everything that runs on wheels. Repairing done on short notice and in workmanlike manner.
GIVE US A CALL
A. J. & A. McKINNON. - - Main Street, Crookston.

Schmidt, the Painter,
CARRIES A FULL AND COMPLETE STOCK OF PAINTS,
OILS AND
VARNISHES.
ALSO A FULL AND COMPLETE LINE OF
☞ WALL PAPER. ☜
Painting in all its branches, and Paper Hanging artistically done.
Call at the Shop on Broadway.

TRY PEAKE,
THE MAIN STREET HARNESS MAKER,
FOR BARGAINS.

Drunkenness
CURED.
THE
Moorhead Institute
Is now ready for the treatment of patients addicted to the
DRINK and OPIUM
HABIT.
Send for pamphlet containing testimonials, certificates of cure and terms. Address,
MOORHEAD INSTITUTE,
[41-1] Moorhead, Minn.

C. SLATER,
H. ROTHERT,
E. N. HILL,
J. A. GEORGE.
Chase & Slater Law and Claims Co.,
1331 F Street, Northwest,
WASHINGTON, D. C.
Practice in the Supreme Court of the United States, the Court of Claims, all the executive departments and before Congress. Claims for Indian Depredations collected. Pension cases prosecuted. Patents promptly secured. Careful attention given to all classes of land cases.
Liberal arrangements made with Local Attorneys or for transfer of cases.

Valley Roller Mills
MANUFACTURERS OF
FINE FLOUR
From Selected Red River Wheat.
Lee & Herrick's Best, $2 65
North Star, - - - 2.50
Fife, - - - 2.15
Skip Jack. - - - 1.15
☞ We exchange flour for wheat on equitable terms.
LEE & HERRICK.

HOW TO SAVE MONEY
BUY OF SLOCUM,
The Leading Grocer. The Best Goods for the Least Money.
SPECIALTIES | I MAKE A SPECIALTY OF | SPECIALTIES
TEAS, COFFEES, CANNED SALMON and CHOICE BUTTER.
HAVE YOU TRIED MY Wheat Germ Meal?
Everything in my line fresh from the wholesaler at the VERY LOWEST LIVING RATES. ☞ Give me a Trial.
W. E. SLOCUM. - - BROADWAY.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Polk County Journal.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.

Crookston, February 4, 1892.

'Round Home.

Wheat—1 Hard 69.
1 Northern 62.
2 Northern 59.
3 Northern 56.

John O. Buhn was in from Mentor on Saturday.

Mrs. E. E. Baggs went over to Grand Forks on Monday.

Fred Sargeant is getting fixed in his new rooms in the Reckett Block.

Levi Myers, the lumber king of Fosston, was in the city on Saturday last.

Al Vine is fixing up a room in the new Reckett Block for a meat market.

Louis Ellington took a run up to McIntosh on Tuesday—ground-hog's day.

Wheat opened out on Monday at 71 for 1 hard. A slight drop since our last report.

Eli Austin has gone to Battle Creek, Mich., for a course of treatment in the sanitarium.

Mrs. Bert Duntley was taken very ill last Saturday but was very much better on Monday.

Tom Morris is getting into his new shop in the Reckett Block this week. It will be a daisy.

Mr. Anderson, of the Tribune, got his right forefinger severely pinched in the engine on Monday.

Ole P. Renne was up from Rindal on Tuesday and called in to make The Journal man happy.

The young folks of the Presbyterian church go out to S. M. McKee's this evening for a social time.

Fred Davis was called home from school on Monday by the serious illness of his parents, who live at Euclid.

The new Commercial Hotel to be built next summer, will be the finest hotel in Northern Minnesota, it is said.

The new Reckett block begins to look like business with the tenants taking possession of their elegant new quarters.

Mr. A. E. Brush came over from Grand Forks on Tuesday and took the train for his home at Angus on Wednesday morning.

Tom Wallace dropped into our den last week to chip in 20 bushels of barley for those who suffered by hail. Tom's heart is in the right place.

Charles Spurgeon, the celebrated English preacher, passed away on Monday at the age of 58 years. Mr. Spurgeon was one of the deepest thinkers of the age.

On Tuesday morning Peter Cornelius came in after Dr. Dunlop to go out to see his little daughter who was very sick. The doctor pronounced it a case of pleurisy.

You bet that ground hog could see his shadow on Tuesday, all right enough, if he was fat enough to cast a shadow, so s'pose we must look out for six weeks good solid winter yet.

Theodore Greenhalgh went out to Maple Lake this week after some fine seed wheat he had secured out there. The idea of changing seed wheat once in a while is a good one.

John L. Hanson died of La Grippe last week and was buried on Saturday. He was for many years a resident of this city. His brother came up from Superior to attend to his affairs.

Theodore Greenhalgh reports the arrival of a fine boy at his house on the 22d ult. The cigars we sampled when he made the report last Saturday were of the best brand obtainable in the city.

There is a rumor to the effect that one of our dentists is soon to take a partner. We are not going to tell which one it is as we promised not to—and it may not be so. How is it Doc, Henaultway?

The Journal regrets to learn that our old friend, H. F. Elfrink, of Argyle, has La Grippe. We know how to sympathize with the victims of that disease having been through that mill ourself. It is no funny business.

Hon. Wm. Carlton passed through the city on Tuesday evening en route for his old home in Wisconsin where he is summoned to testify in a law-suit. Carlton says they are all looking for a big immigration into Polk County next spring.

O. D. Rood, the city laundry man, is putting in a new 16 horse power steam engine in order to keep up with his growing trade. Rood is one of those hard-working men who deserves success—and we are glad to note this evidence that he is attaining it.

Joseph Tagley was down from Woodside last Saturday and was among those who dropped in to encourage us with the remark "keep'er a coming," and dropped his nickel in the slot for that purpose. John reports lots of wood up that way ready for shipment.

Chris Houston desires to call attention to the notice of the meeting of Crookston Alliance, which is to be held on Saturday afternoon next at two o'clock and urge upon all members the great importance of being in attendance as business of importance is to be brought before the meeting.

The Ladies Relief Corps gave a fine banquet in the I. O. O. F. banquet room on Tuesday evening. Receipts about $75.

Geo. Vine gets another carload of hogs from below this week. For choice meats of all kinds go to Vine's Robert street meat market.

A. M. Childs will open an office in this city as soon as he can make arrangements and deal in life insurance for the New York Life folks.

Crookston Alliance will meet on Saturday, Feb. 6th, at the city hall at 2 p.m. A large attendance is requested as business of importance is to be transacted.

At the Congregational church next Sunday the pastor will preach at 11 a. m. on "Christians Riding after the Hon. Mr. Satan's Four-in-Hand." S. S. at 12:5; J. S. C. E. 3:30 p. m.; union services in the evening. Rev. O. H. Elmer will preach at 7:30. All cordially invited to these services.

The Mable Snow Company that give one of their pleasing and entertaining performances at the Grand Opera House in this city on Tuesday, February 9th, is said to be one of the strongest and best attractions of its kind on the road and no doubt the house will be packed, as Crookstonites have not seen anything quite in this line of amusement for some time.

Chas. S. Attix, of Mentor, spent the Sabbath in the city. From Mr. Attix The Journal learns that the Maple Lake Improvement Co. will commence operations at once by putting up and filling an ice house near the site for the new hotel which is to be completed in time for the coming season. The company will put in sufficient money to make the resort a success from the start.

The following clipping, relating to the death of the brother of Mr. M. E. Bartlett, of this city, was taken from the local paper published at Uvalde, Texas, the home of the late C. E. Bartlett:—

"Mr. C. E. Bartlett died at the residence of Mr. Joe Brown last Monday night at 10:45 o'clock. He had been a resident of this country for nearly twenty years and always stood high in the estimation of the people who knew him. He served several years in the ranger force, and has since been engaged in the sheep business. His unexpected death Monday night was a painful shock to his many friends here.'

Jos. Laframboise and J. B. Sauve are doing good business in Ontario, at least we should judge so from the reports we see of them in every paper in the province. These papers are filled with the reports that Laframboise and Sauve give them of the crops of Polk County, and they freely predict that those gentlemen will be accompanied by a large colony when they return home in the spring. Similar reports come from others who are proclaiming the wonders of this country in other places, and it does look like Polk County would see an immigration similar to that of the seventies. Well, let 'em come. We have lots of good land awaiting their arrival.

Edward Lanctot dropped in last week just as The Journal was going to press and added to our hail list 20 bushels of oats and 20 bushels of barley. This week the list has grown considerably, but yet it falls far short of reaching the demand. Several new cases have been called to our attention, some of which are in urgent need of help—who cannot go on without it, and while we have set our stakes at nothing less than seed and feed for all who were struck, we shall not be satisfied unless we succeed in supplying the most needy. Is it possible that Polk County farmers will allow a few of their number to be driven to the wall for the lack of only about 1,000 bushels of wheat, about the same amount of barley and perhaps 2,000 bushels of oats? Minnesota contributed most nobly to the starving poor sending a whole shipload of flour to their assistance, and that was well; but here we have a few cases among us that need a little aid just as badly as do those poor Russian peasants, only not nearly as much of it, and the work, it seems to us, goes fearfully slow. If every farmer in the county would put in only a few bushels there would be more than enough; or if one or two farmers in each town would spend a few hours among his neighbors in procuring subscriptions the work would be easy and the amount soon raised. Let us take hold of this work in earnest and then for the future let us not rest until a system of hail insurance is devised that shall render all aid in this manner unnecessary in the future. Why, we know farmers enough in Polk County who are perfectly able to pull this thing through and we believe perfectly willing to do so, if they would take hold of it. A postal card and a minute's time is all that is required to inform The Journal what you are willing to contribute to this cause. Shall we hear from you?

IN RUSSIA,

For Sale Cheap.

Buffalo robes and cutters. Mrs. Mary Schreader, Crookston, Minn. [35-tf]

WANTED!

Two or three men to work for me in Polk County. $4 to $12 per day, sure. If you are idle or working for small money now is the time. Any one can do the work and make big wages. Particulars free. Address,

W. Albert Lanctot,
[41-48] Crookston, Minn.

BUY A FARM

I have some of the best land

IN

Polk County

In my hands for sale

CHEAP!

And you can make prices and terms to suit you. Write me for lists.

L. F. Menage,
14-39] Minneapolis, Minn.

Ship your wheat to O. Tharaldson general agent of the Northwestern Farmers' Protective Association, at Duluth, and make from 4 to 7 cents a bushel. For further particulars as to membership, &c., inquire of L. K. Hassel, Grand Forks, N. D. [25-tf]

For Sale Cheap.

Buffalo robes and cutters. Mrs. Mary Schreader, Crookston, Minn. [35-tf]

LOST.

Near Beltrami, Polk Co., Minn., one note for Six Hundred Dollars, ($600.), give by A. Boddy to H. B. Budd, with interest at 10 per cent per annum, drawn on Jan. 3rd 1892, due in 90 days. all parties are hereby cautioned against buying said note as payment has been forbidden. H. B. Budd.
[41-43]

Left-Over-Remnant-Sale

—AT—

FONTAINE & ANGLIM'S.

DRESS GOODS.

Cheviots, Homespuns, Ladies Cloths, ... 1¼ to 6 yards long.
Dress Flannels, Black Goods, Wide Wale Diagonals, ... 40 in. to 45 in. wide.

SILKS.

CHINA, SURAH'S, PRINTED, PLAIN BLACKS, RIBBONS, TRIMMINGS, VELVETS, ... The CHEAPNESS will ASTONISH You.

DOMESTICS.

PRINTS, MUSLINS, GINGHAMS, WHITE GOODS ...... May Be Just What You Want.

REMNANTS OF LACES AND EMBROIDERIES IN ABUNDANCE.

S. B. Palmer was up from Lockhart on Wednesday and gave The Journal a pleasant call. That Mr. Palmer's heart is in the right place is evidenced in the fact that, though he lives in Norman County, his name is added to our hail list. He has taken the agency for the Lewis gasoline engine, and our readers will doubtless hear more from him later.

J. B. Bren dropped in on Tuesday to encourage us a bit and succeeded in doing it. Bren Bros. run a threshing machine every fall, but last fall they broke all threshing records by pounding out 92,000 bushels of grain in 60 days. They put up their machine about Dec. 31st, but expect to start it again as early in the spring as it is possible to run, in order to finish out what is left up there, which is about 20 per cent. J. B. says he threshed many 30 bushel crops of wheat and says the crop was the best general average he ever saw raised in that neighborhood.

Goodwin Leppert, of Wylia, dropped in last Thursday to put that subscription ahead a peg and contribute 10 bushels of oats for the victims of hail. Good enough. We should like to hear from others up that way and secure enough contributions to make a load, or several. Mr. L. says that there is a good bit of threshing yet to do up that way and this fact, no doubt, is one reason why our hail list grows so slowly.

Comrade John Lyndall, was up from Norman County on Saturday and dropped $1.50 in the till to help us along. Comrade Lindall applied for a pension several years ago but as yet gets no shekels. He has an excellent case and will get the money after awhile, and when he does it will be a goodly wad. Adjutant Carruth, of Col. Cobham Post, put a spoke in his wheel that will do him good, as he does for every deserving comrade.

DO NOT FORGET THE

60--DAYS--60

IT WILL INTEREST YOU
—IF YOU WISH—
To Save Money.

MARKED DOWN Red Figure SALE

OF CLOTHING
And Gents' Furnishing Goods,
AT THE BOSTON
ONE PRICE CLOTHING HOUSE.

Mossefin & Lindell, Props.

A number of our friends have kindly remembered us on subscription during the past week for which we feel very grateful. Many others have written us that they will attend to the matter when they thresh—for all of which we are duly thankful. We are aware that some have been unable to thresh and we have tried to be very patient this fall, though very much needing all that is due us to enable us to settle our losses by hail and to add to our outfit certain machinery that our large and steadily growing list renders absolutely necessary. We do not intend to put on any frills with the money we receive, but we intend to devote every cent of it toward making a better paper, and this is for the interest of our patrons. We do not intend to be cross in this matter nor do we expect our patrons to accomplish impossibilities, for as we simply ask them to do all they can for us this fall (which we consider reasonable) and if each one will do that we promise that he will not regret it.

"The Journal" Hail Fund.

The following named persons have contributed the amounts set opposite their names to the fund for the relief of those who lost their crops by hail. Everybody should have a hand in this good work. Send in your names and the amount you are willing to contribute (in money or grain) to The Journal or Lewis Ellington, Scandia-American Bank, Crookston, Minn:

The Journal	$ 5.00
B. C. Jorgenson	10.00
O. H. Richardson	10 bushels barley.
Frank Bivins	10 bushels seed wheat.
W. G. Lytle	10 bushels seed wheat.
Lewis Ellington	$5.00.
E. Lanctot	10 bu. oats, 10 bu. barley.
Thomas Wallace,	20 bu. barley
Goodwin Leppert (Wylia)	10 bu. oats.
Hayes Bros.	20 bu. wheat.
Earnest Mueller	20 bu. barley.
Ben Geroux	2 " "
K. Hanson	4 " "
Ole Olson	2 " wheat.
E. W. Johnson	50 cents.
Will Himmelsback	10 bu. barley.
S. B. Palmer (Lockhart),	10 bu. potatoes.

Don't Be Backward

ABOUT

COMING FORWARD.

AND SECURING SOME OF THE

BARGAINS

OFFERED HERE BY

E. M. Walsh,

Real Estate Broker,

I. O. O. F. Block, Crookston, Minn.

80 ACRES adjoining city of Crookston, well cultivated, suitable for market garden. A bonanza for the right man and can be had for $3,000.

1,000 ACRES, five miles from city, first-class buildings, 200 acres cultivated, 200 acres Timothy, pasture fenced. Nothing better for dairy or stock farm. A snap at $12,000.

240 ACRE FARM in Town of Crookston; good farm buildings, well improved and only $20 per acre.

320 ACRE FARM in Euclid Topnship. Good farm buildings, 300 acres cultivated, 200 acres ready for seeding. Cheap at $4,000.

160 ACRES in Sec. 18, Town of Angus, partly improved, fine rich soil. Only $10 per acre.

320 ACRES land in Town of Louisville, well located near R. R. station, and near Red Lake River. Only $1,900 on long time.

160 ACRES good Farm Land in Grove Park, 60 acres cultivated, two miles from R. R. station, one-half mile from school A Bargain at $800.

ANOTHER Quarter Section in Grove Park, good farm buildings, good water, 30 acres cultivated, 40 acres pasture, one-half mile from R. R. station, school and church. Cheap at $8.00 per acre.

SIX first-class farms in Town of Lambert, one of the best Townships in Polk County, from $600 to $1,200 each, well adapted for mixed farming. Look this up. Sure to find something to suit.

SECTION 21, Andover Township, every foot of which can be cultivated, only 5 miles from Crookston. Cheap at $12.50 per acre.

200 ACRE FARM in Fairfax, four miles from Crookston, 180 acres cultivated. Cheap buildings, easy terms. A bargain at $2,400.

TWO first-class farms in Lowell, two miles from city of Crookston, good farm buildings, artesian well, high state of cultivation. One at $28 and the other at $20 per acre.

THREE fine farms in town of Sanders. All near R. R. station, good soil. Most of them partly improved and are to be had at $6.00 per acre. Easy terms.

GOOD STOCK FARM, with good house and barn, 160 acres, two miles from Thief River Falls. Only $1.000, one-third cash, balance long time.

HALF Section Land, Town of Reis, two miles from R. R. station, 130 acres under cultivation, 76 acres ready for seeding in spring. Good house and barn, artesian water. Cheap at $2.500, one-quarter cash, balance 5 years time.

160 ACRES in Town of Godfrey. Good land, near railroad. Only $5.00 per acre.

160 ACRES Town of Gervais. This land is on the Red Lake River. Some good timber and partly improved and is cheap at $9 per acre.

ANOTHER piece in Town of Gervais, four miles from Red Lake Falls. $950.

320 ACRE FARM in Parnell, six miles from Crookston, well improved, good buildings. Can be had for $3,000.

TWO good farms in town of Fanny, two miles from railroad station. Partly improved. Only $6.00 per acre.

320 ACRE FARM only one-half mile from St. Hilaire and is offered at $8.00 per acre, easy terms.

160 ACRES in Town of Crookston, four miles from city, and only $1,000.

ANOTHER piece in same town, well improved and can be had for $1,350 on easy terms.

320 ACRE FARM in Town of Kertsonville, two miles from railroad sta- partly improved. Cheap—no mistake. Only $1,200 and on easy terms.

TWO good farms in Town of Liberty, 160 acres each. $750 buys either.

320 ACRE FARM in Town of Roome. Fine state of cultivation. Good farm buildings. 170 acres ready for seeding in spring. Dirt cheap at $4,000, one-half cash, balance to suit. Stock and farm machinery can also be bought cheap.

TWO good farms in Town of Lowell can be had for $959 each. Easy terms, long time.

This is the Cap-sheaf of All!

520 ACRES land, 3 miles from Fisher, all under cultivation, 420 acres ready for seeding. Good farm buildings. Good water. $25 per acre takes this, and will throw in 20 head horses and harnesses, 7 wagons, 4 binders, 2 mowers, 2 rakes, 4 gang plows, 2 harrows, new press drill, 2 sleds, 2 cows, full sett Blacksmith tools and small farm implements. $3,000 cash and balance long time at 7 per cent.

Big Attraction Coming.

The Mabel Snow Opera company holds forth in the Opera House, Tuesday evening, February 9th. This show is well spoken of by the press in general. There are twenty-five members in the company, and they are all artists in their profession. The entertainment they give never fails to draw crowded houses after the first night. The following is an extract from the Minneapolis Tribune in regard to the company: "Mabel Snow's Spectacular Burlesque company made a hit at the Pence and greatly pleased the large audience. It is a very neat, clever and compact performance. The opening act, The Artist's Models, represents some of the masterpieces in sculpture in a most pleasing manner, the songs are catchy and the jokes really funny. In the olio hits were made by Kherns and Cole, two very comical Dutch comedians; the Griffith sisters, a duo of French high kickers, who threatened to raise the roof; the Alicotes, very clever sketch artists, and the Ahems, two very daring gymnasts. The burlesque called Adam and Eve created roars of laughter, while the pretty young (really young this time) girls in marches, songs and dances, choruses, etc., were nice to look upon and listen to."

Let The Good Work Go On.

Since last issue The Journal has received letters by the score, mostly on the subject of subscription, and as a personal reply in each case would require more time than we can spare we make this general reply. The Journal has only asked for fair and square treatment from its friends, and no person, with a spark of manhood left in him can object to that. We have always made great efforts to accommodate our friends, cheerfully carrying them along when they could not pay, even when we have had to borrow money to do so, and now that the time has come when The Journal really needs the help of its friends we do not think it unreasonable to expect them to make extraordinary efforts in our behalf and we shall be satisfied if convinced that they are doing so, and everyone in that class need have no fears of our making them extra expense or trouble. In 1890 our statements were not sent out until December; in 1891 they were sent out early in October, yet our receipts last year were very much greater than they have been so far this, and 1890 was not nearly so good a crop year as 1891 was, but the promises we are receiving are encouraging and we are led to hope that our collections will be satisfactory which they certainly will if our patrons will show a disposition to do their best for us. We have done the best for them that our facilities will allow and we are ambitious to do better for them and are making arrangements to obtain greater facilities for our work and need the help of all to accomplish it. If every one in arrears could chip in the amount due we could easily accomplish our designs and we do not deem it unreasonable to ask such to write us just what they will be able to do for us so that we may know just what to depend upon. We shall give all such a reasonable time to respond before we proceed to extremidies so that no one can accuse us of taking an unfair advantage. We certainly do not wish to wrong any one, and no one who intends to deal squarely and honestly by us need have any fears, but we would like to know from each one personally what he intends to do.

LIST OF LETTERS remaining unclaimed at the Crookston, Minn., Post Office, for the week ending Jan. 30, 1892:

Adams, Miss Mary
Conlon, James
Eakun, Jay A
Mortenson, Even
Bryant, C E
Dinnerson, Mrs Karen
Hooen, Joseph
Farr, Paul

Persons calling for the above please say advertised. WM. B. DAWLEY, Postmaster.

J. V. E. WYATT

Undertaker,

BROADWAY,

Crookston, - - Minn.

Carries a full supply at all times.—Always ready to attend to calls and take full charge if necessary.

—o-o-o—

Can supply anything in the line of

FURNITURE,

PICTURE FRAMES,
MOULDINGS, Etc., Etc.

Give Me a Call.

JOHN CROMB,
Attorney-at-Law,
SECOND STREET, CROOKSTON

A. A. JUST, M. D.,
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

THE CHILIAN FUSS.

President Harrison's Message on the Trouble With the Chileans Goes to Congress,

With Its Proof That the United States Has Been Repeatedly Insulted by Chile.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The following is the full text of President Harrison's message on the Chilean trouble sent to congress to-day:

To the Senate and House of Representatives: In my annual message, delivered to congress at the beginning of the present session, after a brief statement of the facts then in the possession of this government touching the assault in the streets of Valparaiso, Chile, upon the sailors of the United States steamship Baltimore, on the evening of the 16th of October last, I said:

"This government is now awaiting the result of an investigation which has been conducted by the criminal court at Valparaiso. It is reported unofficially that the investigation is about completed, and it is expected that the result will soon be communicated to this government, together with some adequate and satisfactory response to the note by which the attention of Chile was called to this incident. If these just expectations should be disappointed or further needless delay intervene I will, by a special message, bring this matter again to the attention of congress for such action as may be necessary."

In my opinion the time has now come when I should lay before the congress and the country the correspondence between this government and the government of Chile from the time of the breaking out of the revolution against Balmaceda, together with all other facts in the possession of the executive department relating to this matter. The diplomatic correspondence is herewith transmitted, together with some correspondence between the naval officers for the time in command on Chilean waters and the secretary of the navy, and also the evidence taken at the Mare Island yard since the arrival of the Baltimore at San Francisco. I do not deem it necessary in this communication to attempt any full analysis of the correspondence or of the evidence. A brief restatement of the international questions involved and of the reasons why the responses of the Chilean government are unsatisfactory is all that I deem necessary.

EGAN'S ACTIONS APPROVED.

It may be well at the outset to say that, whatever may have been said in this country or in Chile in criticism of Mr. Egan, our minister at Santiago, the true history of this exciting period in Chilean affairs, from the outbreak of the revolution until this time, discloses no act on the part of Mr. Egan unworthy of his position or that could justly be the occasion of serious animadversions or criticisms. He has, I think, on the whole, borne himself in very trying circumstances with dignity, discretion and courage and has conducted the correspondence with ability, courtesy and fairness.

It is worth while also at the beginning to say that the right of Mr. Egan to give shelter in the legation to certain adherents of the Balmaceda government who applied to him for asylum has not been denied by the Chilean authorities, nor has any demand been made for the surrender of these refugees. That there was urgent need of asylum is shown by Mr. Egan's note of Aug. 24, 1891, describing the disorders that prevailed in Santiago, and by the evidence of Capt. Schley as to the pillage and violence that prevailed at Valparaiso. The correspondence discloses, however, that the request of Mr. Egan for a safe conduct from the country, in behalf of these refugees, was denied. The precedents cited by him in the correspondence, particularly the case of the revolution in Peru in 1865, did not leave the Chilean government in a position to deny the right of asylum to political refugees and seemed very clearly to support Mr. Egan's contention that a safe conduct to neutral territory was a necessary and acknowledged incident of the asylum. These refugees have very recently, without formal safe conduct, but by the acquiescence of the Chilean authorities, been placed on board the Yorktown and are now being conveyed to Callao, Peru. This incident might be considered wholly closed manifested toward this government by the close and offensive police surveillance of the legation premises, which was maintained during most of the period of the stay of the refugees therein. After the date of my annual message and up to the time of the transfer of the refugees to the Yorktown, the legation premises seem to have been surrounded by police, in uniform, and police agents or detectives, in citizens' dress, who offensively scrutinized persons entering or leaving the legation and, on one or more occasions, arrested members of the minister's family. Commander Evans, who by my direction, recently visited Mr. Egan at Santiago, in his telegram to the navy department, described the legation as a "veritable prison," and states that the police agents or detectives were, after his arrival, withdrawn during his stay. It appears further, from the note of Mr. Egan of Nov. 20, 1891, that on one occasion at least these police agents, whom he declares to be known to him, invaded the legation premises, pounding on its windows and using insulting and threatening language toward persons therein. This breach of the right of a minister to freedom from police espionage and restraint seems to have been so flagrant that the Argentine minister, who was dean of the diplomatic corps, having observed it, felt called upon to protest against it to the Chilean minister of foreign affairs. The Chilean authorities have, as will be observed from the correspondence, charged the refugees and the inmates of the legation with insulting the police; but it seems to me incredible that men whose lives were in jeopardy, and whose safety could only be secured by retirement and quietness, should have sought to provoke a collision which could only end in their destruction, or to aggravate their condition by intensifying a popular feeling that, at one time, so threatened the legation as to require Mr. Egan to appeal to the minister of foreign affairs.

BUT FOR THE DISRESPECT

THE BALTIMORE ASSAULT.

But the most serious incident disclosed by the correspondence is that of the attack on the sailors of the Baltimore in the streets of Valparaiso on the 16th of October last. In my annual message, speaking upon the information then in my possession, I said: "So far as I have yet been able to learn, no other explanation of this bloody work has been suggested than that it had its origin in hostility to these men as sailors of the United States, wearing the uniform of their government, and not in any individual act or personal animosity."

We have now received from the Chilean government an abstract of the conclusions of the fiscal general upon the testimony taken by the judge of crimes in an investigation which was made to extend over nearly three months. I very much regret to be compelled to say that this report does not enable me to modify the conclusions announced in my annual message. I am still of the opinion that our sailors were assaulted, beaten, stabbed and killed, not for anything they or any of them had done, but for what the government of the United States had done, or was charged with having done, by its civil officers and naval commanders. If that be the true aspect of the case, the injury was to the government of the United States, not to these poor sailors, who were assaulted in a manner so brutal and so cowardly. Before attempting to give an outline of the facts upon which this conclusion rests, I think it right to say a word or two upon

THE LEGAL ASPECT OF THE CASE.

The Baltimore was in the harbor of Valparaiso by virtue of that general invitation which nations are held to extend to the war vessels of other powers with which they have friendly relations. This invitation, I think, must be held ordinarily to embrace the privilege of such communication with the shore as is reasonable, necessary and proper for the comfort and convenience of the officers and men of such vessels. Capt. Schley testifies that when his vessel returned to Valparaiso, Sept. 14, the city officers, as is customary, extended the hospitalities of the city to his officers and crew. It is not claimed that every personal collision or injury in which a sailor or officer of such naval vessel visiting the shore may be involved raises an international question; but I am clearly of the opinion that where such sailors or officers are assaulted by a resident populace, animated by hostility to the government whose uniform these sailors and officers wear, and in resentment of acts done by their government, not by them, their nation must take notice of the event as one involving an infraction of its rights and dignity; not in a secondary way, as where a citizen is injured and presents his claim through his own government, but in a primary way, precisely as if its minister or consul or the flag itself had been the object of the same unprovoked assault.

The officers and sailors of the Baltimore were in the harbor of Valparaiso under the orders of their government, not by their own choice. They were upon the shore by the implied invitation of the government of Chile and with the approval of their commanding officer; and it does not distinguish their case from that of a consul that his stay is more permanent or that he holds the express invitation of the local government to justify his longer residence. Nor does it affect the question that the injury was the act of a mob. If there had been no participation by the police or soldiers in the cruel work, and no failure on their part to extend protection, the case would still be one involving international rights.

BLOODY WORK.

The incidents of the affair are briefly as follows: On the 16th of October last Capt. Schley, commanding the United States steamship Baltimore, gave shore leave to 117 petty officers and sailors of his ship. These men left the ship about 1:30 p.m. No incident of violence occurred, none of our men were arrested, no complaint was lodged against them, nor did any collision or outbreak occur until about 6 o'clock p.m. Capt. Schley states that he was himself on shore and about the streets of the city until 5:30 p.m.; that he met very many of his men who were upon leave; that they were sober and were conducting themselves with propriety, saluting Chilean and other officers as they met them. Other officers of the ship and Capt. Jenkins, of the merchant ship Keweenaw, corroborate Capt. Schley as to the general sobriety and good behavior of our men. The Sisters of Charity at the hospital to which our wounded men were taken, when inquired of, stated that they were sober when received. If the situation had been otherwise we must believe that the Chilean police authorities would have made arrests. About 6 p.m. the assault began, and it is remarkable that the investigation by the judge of crimes, though so protracted, does not enable him to give any more satisfactory account of its origin than is found in the statement that it began between drunken sailors. Repeatedly in the correspondence it is asserted that it was impossible to learn the precise cause of the riot. The minister of foreign affairs, Matta, in his telegram to Mr. Montt, under date Dec. 31, states that the quarrel began between two sailors in a tavern, and was continued in the street, persons who were passing joining in it.

The scene at this point is very graphically set before us by the Chilean testimony. The American sailors, who after so long an examination have not been found guilty of any breach of the peace, so far as the Chilean authorities are able to discover, unarmed and defenseless, are fleeing for their lives pursued by overwhelming numbers and fighting only to aid their own escape from death or succor some mate whose life is in greater peril. Eighteen of them are brutally stabbed and beaten, while one Chilean seems from the report to have suffered some injury, but how serious or with what character of weapon, or whether by a missile thrown by our men or by some of his fellow rioters is unascertained.

The pretense that our men were fighting "with stones, clubs and bright arms" in view of these facts is incredible. It is further refuted by the fact that our prisoners when searched were absolutely without arms, only seven pen knives being found in the possession of the men arrested, while there were received by our men more than thirty stab wounds, every one of which was inflicted in the back and almost every contused wound was on the back or back of the head. The evidence of the ship's officer of the day is that even the jack knives of the men were taken from them before leaving the ship.

CONVINCING PROOF.

As to the brutal nature of the treatment received by our men, the following extract from the account given of the affair by the La Patria newspaper of Valparaiso of Oct. 17 cannot be regarded as too friendly:

"The Yankees, as soon as their pursuers gave chase, went by way of the Calle del Arsenal toward the city car station. In the presence of an ordinary number of citizens, among whom were some sailors, the North Americans took seats in the street car to escape from the stones which the Chileans threw at them. It was believed for an instant that the North Americans had saved themselves from popular fury, but such was not the case. Scarcely had the car begun to move when a crowd gathered around and stopped its progress. Under these circumstances and without any cessation of the howling and throwing of stones at the North Americans, the conductor entered the car and seeing the risk of the situation to the vehicle ordered them to go out. At the instant the sailors left the car, in the midst of a hail of stones, the conductor received a stone blow on the head. One of the Yankee sailors managed to escape in the direction of the Plaza Heelright, the other was felled to ground by a stone. Managing to raise himself from the ground where he lay, he staggered in an opposite direction from the station. In front of the house of Senor Mazzini he was again wounded, falling senseless and breathless."

No amount of evasion or subterfuge is able to cloud our clear vision of this brutal work. It should be noticed in this connection that the Americans arrested after an examination were during the four days following the arrest every one discharged, no charge of any breach of the peace or other criminal conduct having been sustained against a single one of them. The judge of crimes, Foster, in a note to the intendente, under date of Oct. 22, before the dispatch from this government of the following day, which aroused the authorities of Chile to a better sense of the gravity of the affair, says: "Having presided temporarily over this court in regard to the seamen of the United States cruiser Baltimore who have been tried on account of the deplorable conduct which took place, etc."

AMERICAN SAILORS VINDICATED.

The noticeable point here is that our sailors had been tried before Oct. 22, and that the trial resulted in their acquittal and return to their vessel. It is quite remarkable and quite characteristic of the management of this affair by the Chilean police authorities that we should now be advised that Seaman Davidson, of the Baltimore, had been included in the indictment, his offense being, so far as I have been able to ascertain, that he attempted to defend a shipmate against an assailant who was striking at him with a knife. The perfect vindication of our men is furnished by this report; one only is found to have been guilty of criminal fault, and that for an act clearly justified.

As to the part taken by the police in the affair the case made by Chile is also far from satisfactory. The point where Riggin was killed is only three minutes walk from the police station and not more than twice that distance from the intendencia, and yet, according to their official report, a full half hour passed after the assault began before the police were upon the ground. It has been stated that all but two of our men have said that the police did their duty. The evidence taken at Mare Island shows that if such a statement was procured from our men it was accomplished by requiring them to sign a writing in a language they did not understand, and by their representation that it was a mere declaration that they had taken no part in the disturbance. Lieut. McCrea, who acted as interpreter, says in his evidence that when our sailors were examined before the court the subject of the conduct of the police was so carefully avoided that he reported the fact to Capt. Schley on his return to the vessel.

HATRED FOR THE YANKEES.

The evidences in existence of animosity towards our sailors in the minds of the sailors of the Chilean navy and of the populace of Valparaiso are so abundant and various as to leave no doubt in the minds of any one who will examine the papers submitted. It manifested itself in threatening and insulting gestures towards our men as they passed the Chilean man-of-war in their boats and in the derisive and abusive epithets with which they greeted every appearance of an American sailor on the evening of the riot. Capt. Schley reports that boats from the Chilean war ships several times went out of their course to cross the bows of his boats, compelling them to back water. He complained of this discourtesy and it was corrected.

That this feeling was shared by men of higher rank is shown by the incident related by Surgeon Stitt, of the Baltimore. After the battle of Pacilla, he with other medical officers of the war vessels in the neighborhood gave assistance to the wounded in the hospitals. The son of a Chilean army officer of high rank was under his care, and when his father discovered it he flew into a passion, and said he would rather have his son die than have Americans touch him and at once had him removed from the ward. This feeling is well concealed in the dispatches of the foreign office. The Chilean boatmen in the bay refused even for large offers of money to return our sailors who crowded the mole to their ship when they where endeavoring to escape from the city on the night of the assault. The market boats of the Baltimore were threatened and even quite recently the gig of Commander Evans, of the Yorktown, was stoned while waiting for him at the mole.

A PREMEDITATED ATTACK.

The evidence of our sailors clearly shows that the attack was expected by the Chilean people, that threats had been made against our men, and, that, in one case somewhat early in the afternoon, the keeper of one house into which some of our men had gone closed his establishment in anticipation of an attack which he advised them would be made upon them as darkness came on.

In a report of Capt. Schley to the navy department he says: "In the only interview that I had with Judge Foster, who is investigating the case, relative to the disturbance before he was aware of the entire gravity of the matter, he informed me that the assault on my men was the outcome of hatred for our people among the lower classes because they thought we had sympathized with the Balmaceda government on account of the Itata matter, whether with reason or without he could of not admit, but such he thought the explanation of the assault at that time. Several of our men sought security from the mob by such complete or partial changes in their dress as would conceal the fact of their being seamen of the Baltimore and found it then possible to walk the streets without molestation. These incidents conclusively establish that the attack was upon the uniform, the nationality and not upon the men.

WHY THEY HATE US.

The origin of this feeling is probably found in the refusal of this government to give recognition to the congressional party before it had established itself, in the seizure of the Itata for an alleged violation of the neutrality law, in the cable incident and in the charge that Admiral Brown conveyed information to Valparaiso of the landing at Quinteros.

It is not my purpose to enter here any defense of the action of this government in these matters. It is enough for [illegible]

IS TOO BASE TO GAIN CREDENCE

with any one who knows his high personal and professional character. Recurring to the evidence of our sailors, I think it is shown that there were several distinct outbreaks, [illegible] so nearly at the same time as to cause this confusion. The La Patria, in the same issue from which I have already quoted, after describing the killing of Riggin and the fight which from that point extended to the mole, says:

"At the same time, in other streets of the port, the Yankee sailors fought fiercely with the people of the town, who believed to see in them incarnate enemies of the Chilean navy."

The testimony of Capt. Jenkins, of the American merchant ship Keeneewa, who had gone to Valparaiso for repairs and who was a witness of some part of the assault upon the crew of the Baltimore, is strongly corroborative of the testimony of our own sailors, when he says that he saw Chilean sentries drive back a seaman seeking shelter, upon a mob that was pursuing him. The officers and men of Capt. Jenkins' ship furnish the most conclusive testimony as to the indignities which were practiced toward Americans in Valparaiso. When American sailors, even of merchant ships, can only secure their safety by denying their nationality, it must be time to readjust our relations with a government that permits such demonstrations. As to the evidence of our sailors shows that our men were struck and beaten by police officers before and after arrest, and that one at least was dragged with a lasso about his neck by a mounted policeman. That the death of Riggin was the result of a rifle shot fired by a policeman or soldier on duty is shown directly by the testimony of Johnson, in whose arms he was at the time, and by the evidence of Charles Langen, an American sailor not then a member of the Baltimore's crew, who stood close by and saw the transaction. The Chilean authorities do not pretend to fix the responsibility of this shot upon any particular person, but avow their inability to ascertain who fired it. Further than that it was fired from a crowd.

THE PARTICIPATION OF THE POLICE.

The character of the wound, as described by two surgeons of the Baltimore, clearly supports his opinion that it was made by a rifle ball, the orifice of exit being as much as an inch or an inch and a quarter in width. When shot the poor fellow was unconscious and in the arms of a comrade, who was endeavoring to carry him to a neighboring drug store for treatment. The story of the police that, in coming up the street, they passed these men and left them behind them, is inconsistent with their own statement as to the direction of their approach and with their duty to protect them, and is clearly disproved. In fact, Riggin was not behind but in front of the advancing force and was not standing in the crowd, but was unconscious and supported in the arms of Johnson when he was shot.

FAR FROM AN APOLOGY.

After summarizing the correspondence up to a certain point, the president says:

The communications of the Chilean government in relation to this cruel and disastrous attack upon our men, as will appear from the correspondence, have not in any degree taken the form of a manly and satisfactory expression of regret, much less an apology. The event was of so serious a character that if the injuries suffered by our men had been wholly the result of an accident in a Chilean port, the incident was grave enough to have called for some public expression of sympathy and regret from the local authorities. It is not enough to say that the affair was lamentable, for humanity would require that expression, even if the beating and killing of our men had been justifiable. It is not enough to say that the incident is regretted, coupled with the statement that the affair was not an unfrequent occurrence in ports where foreign sailors are accustomed to meet. It is not for a government to seek for words of small or equivocal meaning in which to convey to a friendly power an apology for an offense so atrocious as this.

In the case of the assault by a mob in New Orleans upon the Spanish consulate in 1851, Mr. Webster wrote to the Spanish minister, Mr. Calderon, that the acts complained of were "a disgraceful and flagrant breach of duty and propriety," and that his government "regrets them as deeply as Minister Calderon or his government could possibly do;" that "these acts have caused the president great pain and he thinks a proper acknowledgment is due to his majesty." He invited the Spanish consul to return to his post, guaranteeing protection, and offered to salute the Spanish flag if the consul should come in a Spanish vessel. Such a treatment by the government of Chile of this assault would have been more creditable to the Chilean authorities; and much less can hardly be satisfactory to a government that values

ITS DIGNITY AND HONOR.

In our note of Oct. 23 last, which appears in the correspondence, after receiving the report of the board of officers appointed by Capt. Schley to investigate the affair, the Chilean government was advised of the aspect which it then assumed and called upon for any facts in its possession that might tend to modify the unfavorable impressions which our report had created. It is very clear from the correspondence that, before the receipt of this note, the examination was regarded by the police authorities as practically closed. It was, however, reopened and protracted through a period of nearly three months. We might justly have complained of this unreasonable delay, but in view of the fact that the government of Chile was still provisional, and with a disposition to be forbearing and hopeful of a friendly termination, I have awaited the report which has but recently been made.

On the 21st inst I caused to be communicated to the government of Chile by the American minister at Santiago, the conclusions of this government after a full consideration of all the evidence and of every suggestion affecting this matter, and to these conclusions I adhere. They were stated as follows:

First—That the assault is not relieved of the aspect which the early information of the event gave to it, viz: That of an attack upon the uniform of the United States navy, having its origin and motive in a feeling of hostility to this government and not in any act of the sailors or any of them.

Second—That the public authorities of Valparaiso flagrantly failed in their duty to protect our men, and that some of the police and of the Chilean soldiers and sailors were themselves guilty of unprovoked assaults upon our sailors before and after arrest. He (the president) thinks the preponderance of the evidence and the inherent probabilities lead to the conclusion that Riggin was killed by the police or soldiers.

Third—That he (the president) is therefore compelled to bring the case back to the position taken by this government in the note of Mr. Wharton of Oct. 23 last, and to ask for a suitable apology and for some adequate reparation for the injury done to this government.

MATTA'S INSULTING NOTE.

In the same note the attention of the Chilean government was called to the offensive character of a note addressed by Mr. Matta, ex-minister of foreign affairs, to Mr. Montt, its minister at this capital, on the 11th ult. This dispatch was not officially communicated to this government, but as Mr. Montt was directed to translate it and give it to the press of this country, it seemed to me that it could not pass without official notice. It was not only undiplomatic, but grossly insulting to our naval officers and to the executive department, as it directly imputed untruth and insincerity to the reports of the naval officers and to the official communications made by the executive department to congress. It will be observed that I have notified the Chilean government that unless this note is at once withdrawn and an apology as public as the offense made I will terminate diplomatic relations.

The request for the recall of Mr. Egan upon the ground that he was not persona grata was unaccompanied by any suggestion that could properly be used in support of it, and I infer that the request is based upon official acts of Mr. Egan which have received the approval of this government. But, however that may be, I could not consent to consider such a question until it had first been settled whether correspondence with Chile could be conducted upon a basis of mutual respect.

MUST COME TO TIME.

In submitting these papers to congress for that grave and patriotic consideration which the questions involved demand I desire to say that I am of the opinion that the demands made of Chile by this government could be adhered to and enforced.

If the dignity as well as the prestige and influence of the United States are not to be wholly sacrificed we must protect those who in foreign ports display the flag, wear the colors of this government, against insult, brutality and death, inflicted in resentment of the acts of this government, and not for any fault of their own. It has been my desire in every way to cultivate friendly and intimate relations with all the governments of this hemisphere. We do not covet their territory, we desire their peace and prosperity. We look for no advantage in our relations with them except the increased exchanges of commerce upon a basis of mutual benefit. We regret every civil contest that disturbs their peace and paralyzes their development, and are always ready to give our good offices for the restoration of peace. It must, however, be understood that this government, while exercising the utmost forbearance toward toward weaker powers, will extend its strong and adequate protection to its citizens, to its officers and to its humblest sailor, when made the victims of wantonness and cruelty in resentment, not of their personal misconduct, but of the official acts of their government.

Upon information received that Patrick Shields, an Irishman and probably a British subject, but at the time a fireman of the American steamer Keweenaw, in the harbor of Valparaiso for repairs, had been subjected to personal injuries in that city, [illegible]

BENJAMIN HARRISON.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, Jan. 25, 1892.

AT LAST IT IS ENDED

The Trouble Between the United States and Chile a Matter of History.

Another Message From the President Announcing That Chile Had Come to Time.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The following is the president's message transmitting the additional Chilean correspondence to congress:

Washington, Jan. 28.—To the senate and House of Representatives: I transmit herewith additional correspondence between this government and the government of Chile, consisting of a note of Mr. Montt, the Chilean minister at this capital, to Mr. Blaine, date Jan. 23, a reply of Mr. Blaine thereto, of date Jan. 27, and a dispatch from Mr. Egan, our minister at Santiago, transmitting the response of Mr. Pereira, the Chilean minister of foreign affairs, to the note of Mr. Blaine of Jan. 21, which was received by me on the 26th inst. The note of Mr. Montt to Mr. Blaine, though dated Jan. 23, was not delivered at the state department until after 12 o'clock meridian of the 25th, and was not translated and its receipt notified to me until late in the afternoon of that day.

The response of Mr. Pereira to our note of the 21st, withdraws, with acceptable expressions of regret, the offensive note of Mr. Matta, of the 11th ult., and also the request for the recall of Mr. Egan. The treatment of the incident of the assault upon the sailors of the Baltimore is so conciliatory and friendly that I am of the opinion that there is a good prospect that the differences growing out of that serious affair can now be adjusted upon terms satisfactory to this government by the usual methods and without special powers from congress. This turn in the affairs is very gratifying to me, as I am sure it will be to the congress and to our people. The general support of the efforts of the executive to enforce the just right of the nation in this matter, has given an instructive and useful illustration of the unity and patriotism of our people. Should it be necessary, I will again communicate with congress upon the subject.

BENJAMIN HARRISON.

CHILE'S APOLOGY.

The Little Republic Comes Off the Perch Very Gracefully.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The reply to Secretary Blaine's ultimatum of Jan. 22 was received from Senor Pereira, minister of foreign affairs, under date of Jan. 25, but was not received in Washington until the following day. The note is as follows:

The undersigned has had the honor to receive your excellency's communication, dated the 23d inst., received in this department the 23d, and the duly authenticated copies of the instructions which the honorable secretary of state at Washington has sent to your excellency by cable under dates of the 21st inst. and the 23d of October, 1891. In the instructions of the 21st inst. the honorable secretary of state informs your excellency, Mr. Harrison, after carefully examining all that has been submitted to him by the government of Chile, with respect to the event which occurred at Valparaiso on the evening of the 16th of October, and, taking into consideration the testimony of the officers and crew of the vessel, the Baltimore, and of others who witnessed the event, has arrived at the MINISTER EGAN.

FOLLOWING CONCLUSIONS.

First—That with regard to that assault there has been no change whatever made in the character given to it by the first reports of that event, to wit; that it was an attack upon the uniform of the navy of the United States, which had its origin and motive in a feeling of hostility toward the government, and not in any act of the individual sailors belonging to it.

Second—That the public authorities of Valparaiso evidently did not do their duty in protecting these sailors, and that a part of the police and some Chilean soldiers and sailors rendered themselves guilty of unprovoked assaults on the sailors of the United States before and after the latter were arrested, and that he believes that Riggin was killed by the police or the soldiers; and Third—That he is consequently compelled to carry the question back to the state in which it was placed by the note of the Hon. Mr. Wharton, dated Oct. 28, and to ask for suitable satisfaction and some adequate reparation for the injury done the government of the United States.

The honorable secretary of state, Mr. Blaine, regrets that the government of Chile has not from the very first appreciated the gravity of the question raised, and that it has attributed to it no other importance than that of an ordinary quarrel between sailors, adding that no government which respects itself can consent to civil or military persons employed in its service being maltreated or killed in a foreign territory on account of resentment, for acts which it may have committed, or which may be imputed to it, without REQUIRING ADEQUATE REPARATION.

The Hon. Mr. Blaine in this connection recalls the fact that the government of the United States has voluntarily recognized this principle and has acted accordingly when any injury has been committed by its people against any one holding an official position in a foreign country in consequence of acts which had aroused resentment. In such cases the United States has never sought words of little weight or ambiguous meaning in order to make reparation, but has condemned such acts in vigorous and energetic terms, and has never refused to give other adequate satisfaction. The honorable secretary of state, Mr. Blaine, states, moreover, that it is not his intention to discuss the details of the incident of October, but only to set forth the conclusions at which his government has arrived. The honorable secretary of state says: "We have given every kind of opportunity to the government of Chile to offer explanatory or extenuating circumstances, and we have given due consideration to the fact that the government of Chile, during a great part of the time which elapsed since the 16th of October, has been in a provisional situation."

He then adds that he is directed by his excellency, Mr. Harrison, to say that he has been compelled to take notice of the instruction as sent by Mr. Matta, minister of foreign affairs, to the Chilean minister in Washington, under date of Dec. 11, because, although they were not officially communicated to this government, they received the greatest possible publicity, and that, consequently, he demands the immediate withdrawal of the said instructions as to those parts which he considers offensive, and adequate satisfaction, in order that the diplomatic relations between the two nations

MAY NOT BE INTERRUPTED.

Without any intention of opening a discussion as to the facts referred to by the communication which I have extracted, and confining himself to the first part of the instructions of the honorable secretary of state, the undersigned must state to your excellency the regret with which the government of Chile sees that his excellency, the president of the United States, finds reason to continue to regard the incident of October as an attack caused by a hostile feeling towards the uniform of the navy of the United States, [illegible]

TO OFFER SUCH REPARATION

as might be due. The preliminary examination [illegible] the independence with which the judicial authorities must act, has compelled the government of the undersigned to delay, greatly to its regret, the settlement of the difficulty pending with your government, and a spontaneous offer of reparation for any injury done to the sailors of the Baltimore, and that might be attributed to Chilean soldiers or sailors, or that might affect the responsibility of Chile in view of your communication, and, considering that up to date it has been impossible for the trial initiated by the judge of the criminal court of Valparaiso to be decided, the undersigned regards it as his duty to declare once more that the government of Chile laments the occurrence of Oct. 16, and, by way of showing the sincerity of his following and the confidence he has in the justice of his cause, he declares his willingness to await the decision of the examining judge, and proposes to the United States government that the case be submitted to the consideration of the supreme court of justice at Washington, to the end that that tribunal, with its learning and impartiality, may determine, without appeal, whether there is any ground for reparation, and in what shape it should be made. The undersigned would remind you, referring to the conduct of the Valparaiso authorities, that it appears from the preliminary examination that they sent without delay to the scene of the conflict all the forces at their disposal belonging to the special guard of the Intendencia and to the police. Swanson, Coze, Nicholls, Darony, Honies, Cunningham, Williams, Talbot, Hallard, Hodge, Butler, etc., seamen belonging to the crew of the Baltimore, stated to the interpreter of that vessel that the object of the police in arresting them was to shelter them from any attempt at attack

BY THE EXCITED PEOPLE.

The undersigned thinks that the action of the police in this matter should be considered with a due allowance for the civil war which had recently been brought to a close. The body was not yet properly organized, nor did it have the force that was required to put down a disorder of such proportions in a short time."

In this connection it is proper to recall the words used by the honorable secretary of state at Washington in his note addressed to the Marquis Imperiall and bearing date of May 21, 1891: "There is no government, however civilized it may be, however great may be the vigilance displayed by its police, and however severe its criminal code may be, and however speedy and inflexible may be its administration of justice, that can guarantee its own citizens against violence growing out of individual malice or a sudden popular tumult."

This was precisely the situation of the administrative authorities at Valparaiso on the occasion of the occurrence which took place in October.

The undersigned hopes that the foregoing will convince the honorable secretary of state that the government of Chile attaches due importance to the question now under discussion. That he does not for a moment hesitate to the act committed on the 16th of October, or to offer such reparation as is just, and that he has not neglect the opportunity to express these sentiments before now, since, on various occasions and through the present plenipotentiaries of both countries, he has forwarded explicit declarations on the subject to Washington. The undersigned takes the liberty to recall the fact that five days after he had taken charge of the department of foreign relations he addressed to the minister of Chile in the United States a telegram which, in the part relating to this matter, says:

CONDEMN IN VIGOROUS TERMS

"Express to the United States government what has already been stated, adding all the data that are known in the most correct and amicable form. Express to the United States government very sincere regret on account of this unfortunate incident, which, although not strange in the ports of the world, this government doubly laments owing to its sincere desire to cultivate friendship with the United States."

If the United States government should not accept the foregoing explanations as satisfactory, notwithstanding that the judicial authorities hold the guilty parties responsible for the disorder of Oct. 16, the undersigned must recall the circumstance that the government of Chile, through the medium of its minister in Washington, has expressed the desire to submit any misunderstanding to decision by arbitration by any power or tribunal which may be indicated to it; and, in fact, arbitration was suggested in conference with the minister of Chile in Washington on the 30th of December. There is, therefore, submitted to the honorable secretary of state and the department of foreign relations at Washington the designation of either the supreme court of justice of the United States or a tribunal of arbitration to determine the reparation which Chile may have to make for that lamentable occurrence.

THE MATTA LETTER.

As for the dispatch addressed under date of Dec. 11 to the Chilean minister in Washington by the minister of foreign relations of the provisional government, the undersigned submits that there could not be on the part of the government of Chile the purpose to inflict any offense upon the government of the United States with which it desires ever to cultivate the most friendly relations. Consequently the undersigned deplores that in the telegram there were employed through error of judgment the expressions which are offensive in the judgment of your government, declaring in fulfillment of a high duty, courtesy and sincerity toward a friendly nation, that the government of Chile absolutely withdraws the said expressions, the undersigned trusts that this frank and explicit declaration, which confirms that which had already been made to the honorable secretary of state in Washington will carry to the mind of his excellency, Mr. Harrison, of his government, that the people of Chile, far from entertaining a feeling of hostility, have the lively desire to maintain unalterable the good and cordial relations which up to the present time exist between the two countries, a declaration which is made without reservation, in order that it may receive such publicity as your government may deem suitable.

With regard to the suggestion made touching the change of the personnel of your legation to which the instructions of the honorable secretary of state refers it is incumbent upon the undersigned to declare that the government of Chile will take no positive step without the accord of the government of the United States, with which it desires to maintain itself in friendly understanding. The undersigned brings this already long communication to a close in the assurance that he has therein set forth everything that can fully satisfy your government. The government of Chile cherishes the conviction that the relations with the government of the United States should be sincerely and cordially maintained under the shelter of the mutual respect, and that good understanding which are based upon the just and equitable appreciation of the facts and in the appreciation to be given to the spontaneous declarations made on either side. The undersigned, moreover, declares that in presenting its explanation his government finds its inspiration in the words of the instructions which you have quoted and which you assure the government of Chile that the president is not disposed to exact or ask anything which your government would not under the same circumstances spontaneously concede.

MONTT CALLED DOWN.

Secretary Blaine Corrects Some of the Minister's Mistakes.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Secretary Blaine, replying to Minister Montt's note, says that Mr. Montt has made some mistakes. He says that the offer of arbitration was never conditional and exact, for had it been he (Mr. Blaine) would have insisted on it being reduced to writing, as it would necessarily have been laid before the president for consideration, and he would never bind his government by verbal agreements. As to the Matta note Mr. Blaine says:

By your own statement you evidently attempted to justify the Matta note. I certainly could not have accepted your language, and never did accept language of that kind as an apology sufficient for the case. The Matta note was highly discourteous to the president and the secretary of the navy, imputing to them untruth and insincerity. Such language does not admit of conditional or contingent apology, which you offered. It could be apologized for only by a frank withdrawal. You always contended that it was a communication between officers of your own government and that it was not proper for this government to take any cognizance of it. You quoted the well known declaration in the Hulzmann case in regard to the message of a president to congress not being subject to criticism in a foreign country. You did not see the great difference involved by your government sending the Matta circular to all the legations of Chile and requesting its several ministers to publish it; so that Chile was not only responsible for the discourteous language, but for its publication throughout the civilized world.

Allotting Lands to Indian.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Secretary Noble has ordered the agents now in the field to proceed as soon as possible to the allotment of lands to the Cheyenne and Arapahoe Indians in the western part of the Indian Territory. It is the secretary's purpose to have everything in readiness, if possible, for the opening of 3,000,000 acres of surplus lands on or about April 1.

May Cause a Rate War.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—General Passenger Agent Hibbard, of the Soo line, issued notice to-day that beginning next Monday the rate from St. Paul to Detroit, via Mackinaw, will be reduced to $12.50. This action, it is feared, will precipitate a general rate war.

WHATEVER YOU DO.

Do It to the Glory of God, Says Dr. Talmage in the Brooklyn Tabernacle.

The Church and the Sabbath are Only the Armory Where We Are to Get the Weapons.

Brooklyn, N. Y., [Special.]—Dr. Talmage's sermon was on the topic on which he is never tired of insisting, and which, more than any other, constitutes his message to this generation—the application of religion to the affairs of daily life. His text was taken from I. Corinthians 10, xxxi, "Whether, therefore, ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God."

When the apostle, in this text, sets forth the idea that so common an action as the taking of food and drink is to be conducted to the glory of God, he proclaims the importance of the affairs of our life. In all ages of the world there has been a tendency to set apart certain days, places and occasions for worship, and to think those were the chief realms in which religion was to act. Now, holy days and holy places have their importance. They give opportunity for the especial performance of Christian duty, and for regaling of the religious appetite; but they cannot take the place of continuous exercise of faith and prayer. In other words, a man cannot be so much of a Christian on Sunday that he can afford to be a worldling all the rest of the week. If a steamer put out for Southampton, and go one day in that direction and the other six days in other directions, how long before the steamer will get to Southampton? It will never get there. And though a man may during the holy Sabbath day, if, during the following six days of the week, he is going toward the world, and toward the devil, he will never ride up into the peaceful harbor of Heaven. You cannot eat so much at the Sabbath banquet that you can afford religious abstinence the other six days. Heroism and princely behavior on great occasions are no apology for lack of right demeanor in circumstances insignificant and inconspicious. The genuine Christian life is not spasmodic; does not go by fits and starts. It toils on through heat and cold up steep mountains and along dangerous declivities, its eye on the everlasting hills crowned with the castles of the blessed.

SEEM TO BE VOYAGING HEAVENWARD

I propose this morning to plead for a religion for today.

In the first place, we want to bring the religion of Christ into conversation. When a dam breaks, and two or three villages are overwhelmed, or an earthquake in South America swallows a whole city, then people talk about the uncertainty of life, and they imagine that they are engaged in positively religious conversation. No. You may talk about these things, and have no grace at all in your heart. We ought every day

TO BE TALKING RELIGION.

If there is anything glad about it, anything beautiful about it, anything important about it, we ought to be continuously discussing it. I have noticed that men, just in proportion as their Christian experience is shallow, talk about funerals, and graveyards, and tombstones, and death-beds. The real, genuine Christian man talks chiefly about this life, and the great eternity beyond, and not so much about the insignificant pass between these two residences.

My friends, the religion of Jesus Christ is something to talk about with a glad heart. It is brighter than the waters; it is more cheerful than the sunshine. Do not go around groaning about your religion when you ought to be singing it or talking it in cheerful tones of voice.

Again I remark: We must bring the religion of Christ into our employments. "Oh," you say, "that is very well if a man handle large sums of money, or if he have an extensive traffic; but in my thread and needle store, in my trimming establishment, in the humble life that I am called to, the sphere is too small for the action of such grand heavenly principles." Who told you so? Do you not know that God watches the faded leaf on the brook's surface as certainly as he does the path of the blazing sun. And the moss that creeps up the side of the rock makes as much impression upon God's mind as the waving tops of Oregon pine and Lebanon cedar; and the alder, crackling under the cow's hoof, sounds as loud in God's ear as the snap of a world's conflagration. When you have anything to do in life, however humble it may seem to be, to help you do it. If your work is that of a fisherman, then God will help you, as he helped Simon when he dragged Gennesaret. If your work is in drawing water, then he will help you as, when he talked at the well-curb to the Samaritan woman. If you are engaged in the custom house, he will lead you, as he led Matthew sitting at the receipt of customs. A religion that is not good in one place is not worth anything in another place. The man who has only a day's wages in his pocket as certainly needs the guidance of religion, as he who rattles the keys of a bank, and could abscond with a hundred thousand dollars.

GOD IS ALWAYS THERE

I think that the church of God and the Sabbath are only an armory where we are to get weapons. When war comes, if a man wants to fight for his country he does not go to Troy or Springfield to do battling, but he goes there for swords and muskets. I look upon the church of Christ and the Sabbath day as the armory, a place and time where we go to get armed for Christian conflict; but the battle field is on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. "St. Martin's," and "Lenox," and "Old Hundred" do not amount to anything unless they sing all the week. A sermon is useless unless we can take it with us behind the plough and the counter. The Sabbath day is worthless if it last only twenty-four hours.

Again, we need to bring the religion of Christ into our commonest trials. For severe losses, for bereavement, for trouble that shocks like an earthquake and that blasts like a storm, but, business men, for the small annoyances of last week, how much of the graces of God did you apply? "Oh!" you say, "these trials are too small for such application." My brother, they are shaping your character. They are souring your temper they are wearing out your patience, and they are making less and less of a man. I go into a sculptor's studio, and see him shaping a statue. He has a chisel in one hand and a mallet in the other, and he gives a very gentle stroke—click, click, click! I say, "Why don't you strick harder?" "Oh!" he replies, "that would shatter the statue. I can't do it that way; I must do it this way." So he works on, and after a while the features come out, and everybody that enters the studio is charmed and fascinated. Well, God has your soul under process of development, and it is the little annoyances and vexations of life that are chiseling out your immortal nature. It is click, click, click! I wonder why some great providence does not come, and with one stroke prepare you for heaven. Ah, no. God says that is not the way. And so he keeps on by strokes of little annoyances, little sorrows, little vexations, until at last you shall be a glad spectacle for angels and for men. You know that a large fortune may be spent in small change, and a vast amount of moral character may go away in small depletion. It is the little troubles of life that are having more effect upon you than great ones.

WE PRESCRIBE RELIGIOUS CONSOLATION;

Now, be careful and let none of those annoyances go through your soul unarraigned. Compel them to administer to

YOUR SPIRITUAL WEALTH.

The scratch of a sixpenny nail sometimes produces locked-jaw, and the clip of a most infinitesimal annoyance may damage you forever. Do not let annoyance or perplexity come across your soul without its making you better.

Our national government does not think it belittling to put a tax on pins, and a tax on buckles, and on shoes. The individual taxes do not amount to much, but in the aggregate to millions and millions of dollars. And I would have you, Christian man, put a high tariff on every annoyance and vexation that comes through your soul. This might not amount to much, in single cases, but in the aggregate it would be a great revenue of spiritual strength and satisfaction. A bee can suck honey even out of a nettle; and if you have the grace of God in your heart, you can get sweetness out of that which would otherwise irritate and annoy.

Again, we must bring the rligion of Christ into our commonest blessings. When the autumn comes, and the harvests are in, and the governors make proclamation, we assemble in churches and we are very thankful; but every day ought to be a thanksgiving day. We do not recognize the common mercies of life. We have to see a blind man led by his dog before we begin to think ourselves of what a grand thing it is to have eye-sight. We have to see some one afflicted with St. Vitus's dance before we are ready to thank God for the control of our physical energies. We have to see some wounded man hobbling on his crutch, or with empty coat sleeve pinned up, before we learn to think what a grand thing God did for us when he gave us healthy use of our limbs. We are so stupid that nothing but the misfortunes of others can rouse us up to our blessings. As the ox grazes in the pasture up to its eyes in clover yet never thinking who makes the clover, and as the bird picks up the worm from the furrow not knowing that it is God who makes everything, from the animalcula in the sod to the seraph on the throne, so we go on eating, drinking, and enoying, but never thanking, or seldom thanking; or, if thanking at all, with only half a heart.

I COMPARED OUR INDIFFERENCE

to the brute; but perhaps I wronged the brute. I do not know but that, among its other instincts, it may have an instinct by which it recognizes the Divine hand that feeds it. I do not know but that God is, through it, holding communication with what we call "irrational creation." The cow that stands under the willow by the water course, chewing its cud, looks very thankful; and who can tell how much a bird means by its song? The aroma of the flowers smells like incense, and the mist arising from the river looks like the smoke of a morning sacrifice. Oh, that we were as responsive! Yet who thanks God for the water that gushes up in the well, and that foams in the cascade, and that laughs over the rocks, and that patters in the showers, and that claps its hands in the sea? Who thanks God for the air, the fountain of life, the bridge of sunbeams, the path of sound, the great fan on a hot summer's day? Who thanks God for this wonderful physical organism—this sweep of the vision—this chime of harmony struck into the ear—this nervous tissue—this rolling of the crimson tide through artery and vein—this drumming of the heart on our march to immortality? We take all these things as a matter of course.

But suppose God should withdraw these common blessings! Your body would become an Inquisition of torture, the cloud would refuse rain, every green thing would crumble up, and the earth would crack open under your feet. The air would cease its healthful circulation, pestilence would swoop, and every house would become a place of skulls. Streams would first swim with vermin, and then dry up, and thirst and hunger, and anguish and despair would lift their sceptres. Oh, compare such a life as that with the life you live this morning with your families about you! Is it not time that, with every word of our lips and with every action of our life, we began to acknowledge these every-day mercies? "Whether ye eat or drink or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God."

TAKE THIS PRACTICAL RELIGION

I have recommended into your every-day life. Make every day a Sabbath, and every meal a sacrament, and every room you enter a Holy of Holies. We all have work to do; let us be willing to do it. We all have sorrows to bear; let us cheerfully bear them. We all have battles to fight; let us courageously fight them. If you would go right you must live right. Negligence and indolence will win the hiss of everlasting scorn, while faithfulness will gather its garlands, and wave its sceptre, and sit upon its throne, long after this earth has put on ashes, and eternal ages have begun their march. You go to your home and attend to your little sphere of duties. I will go home and attend to my little sphere of duties. Every one in his own place. Our every step in life shall be a triumphal march, and the humblest footstool on which we are called to sit will be a conqueror's throne.

Polk County Journal

CROOKSTON, . . . MINN

President Diaz says the Garza uprising is simply a speculator's scheme to depress Mexican bonds. In other words, it is a bear movement. It would seem to be proper for Diaz to propose a bull fight.

And in the parliament of Italy there was a personal row the other day. Ex-Premier Crispi charged Premier Rudini with knuckling to France, and the charge was denied and resented. Really the effete parliaments of Europe are waking up.

Mrs. Mona Caird, who is not at all a particularly brilliant writer, and whose celebrity really grew out of a "catchy" phrase, "Is Marriage a Failure?" is about to publish a novel. It is to deal with socialism. She is also collecting for publication in book form her essays on marriage.

The latest story about Bruiser and Boozer Sullivan is that Francis Murphy has succeeded in getting a blue ribbon on him. Now the big fellow is making temperance speeches in the dives of Tacoma. It would be interesting to know just how keen an appreciation of humor John has.

If all the locomotives in the United States were coupled together they would make a train of solid iron and steel over 300 miles long. Add the passenger cars and we would have 300 miles more of wood and iron; this would give us a gigantic passenger train 600 miles in length, counting both engines and cars.

A circus ostrich died the other day in Cincinnati, and in its stomach was found an $800 diamond the bird had plucked last summer from a man's shirt front. The stone was undigested, and its genuineness is undisputed after a crucial test of that kind. Anything an ostrich can't digest must be all wool and a yard wide.

The proprietors of an enterprising bakery firm in Detroit neatly turned the tables on the banks which had refused to take deposits in small change. The pennies were saved until there was demand enough to make the banks buy them at a premium. The banks scorned to take care of the pennies so the pennies took care of themselves.

Mrs. Edward C. Rutledge, who recently died at Statesburg, S. C., was the daughter of William Lowndes, who Henry Clay said was the wisest man he ever knew. Lowndes during the war of 1812 was recognized as the founder of the United States navy. At the time of his death, in 1822, he was a prominent candidate for the Presidency.

A bill introduced in the French Chamber of Deputies empowers the Government to dissolve any association having a majority of foreign members or a foreigner among its directors. It is aimed only at religious orders, but injures literary, scientific and charitable societies, as they will be compelled to exclude foreigners.

Tewfik Pasha, the late Khedive of Egypt, had but one wife, and the notices in the dispatches of his harem refer to the companions and servants of his wife. In this respect he set his subjects an example that is said to have done much toward the uplifting of Arab women. The Khedive's widow is a short, portly woman, good-natured and rather good-looking, but of somewhat limited education.

Harvard and Yale have been famous for their rowing matches and foot-ball games for some years. They have now struck upon a novelty. They are going to have an "oratorical contest." Such amusements as that have heretofore been relegated to the smaller colleges. It is gratifying to know that our great universities still have longings for mental as well as musclular science.

Boston has a Dante scholar of local repute who follows the unscholastic but progressive occupation of an electric car conductor, and chats about the gloomy Florentine with women on the way to their Dante class. Boston papers "point with pride" to his learning, but in doing so they really confess the degeneracy of the Old Bay State, which a few years ago had in Elihu Burritt a humble blacksmith whose erudition was really something to marvel at.

The late Cardinal Manning was a tall, gaunt man, with a vigorous frame and a large head that was almost completely bald. He had a face that bore the impress of old Roman firmness, and he looked like the picture of a great churchman of old. He was a teetotaler, unlike many of his predecessors, and ate only enough to keep body and mind in a healthy condition. There was absolutely no ostentation about him. When he was made Cardinal an influential member of his flock said to him: "I would like to see your Eminence riding in something better than that shabby old brougham." "Ah!" replied the prelate with a twinkle in his eye, "when cardinals went about in fine carriages they generally went to the devil."

THE NEWS SUMMARY

The Latest News of the World Condensed and Arranged in Convenient Form.

Washington, Personal, Foreign, Criminal, Casualty and Other Important News.

THE CAPITAL.

The senate committee on elections decides in favor of Dubois of Idaho.

The World's Fair is to have a postoffice large enough to supply hourly mails to 160,000 exhibitors.

Acting Secretary Spalding has decided that a Chinese woman who marries an American citizen is entitled to admission in the United States.

PERSONAL.

Archbishop Ireland's attitude on the school question pleases the pope.

Ex-Senator Ingalls is erecting a building at Atchison in which he intends to practice law, associating himself with his son, Ellsworth.

An interesting guest at a Baltimore hotel the other day was Prince Augustin Iturbide, the adopted son and heir apparent of the unfortunate Mexican Emperor Maximilian.

Mme. Ratazzi is now somewhere between 60 and 70 years of age. The granddaughter of Lucien Bonaparte, she was accounted in her day the most beautiful woman in Paris.

Solomon Hanes, one of the most prominent men in Ohio and a cousin of Abraham Lincoln, died at his home fifteen miles east of Wapakonetta, Ohio, at the advanced age of ninety-two years.

CASUALTIES.

The train robber who was wounded in Missouri dies of his injury, bringing a most extraordinary career of crime to a close.

Thirty-nine horses were destroyed by a fire which broke out in the basement of George Darby's livery and boarding stable, 826 Broadway, N. Y. Losses, $30,000.

Cedar Bluff College for women was burned at Franklin, Ky. The 60 inmates were not hurt. They are mostly pupils from Kentucky and Tennessee.

The towboat George W. Stone sunk at the lower incline, Cairo Ill. It is supposed to have sprung aleak. It lays in about 50 feet of water. Her watchman is missing. The boat will probably be raised. It was owned by the Huntington Towboat Company of Cincinnati, and valued at about $20,000.

A serious as well as peculiar collision happened at the union depot at Omaha by which three Burlington engines were smashed, entailing a loss of $20,000. A light engine had backed into the depot ahead of an accommodation train. The switch was left open and a through train dashed into the engine, telescoping it with the accommodation and demolishing the three locomotives. Two trainmen were hurt.

THE WICKED WORLD.

Patrick Boyle was hanged at Edwardville, Ill., for the murder of John Meunch Aug. 12 last.

Memphis has a very sensational tragedy, a prominent young society lady killing another with a razor.

William Earle, the St. Paul diamond robber, who conducted his own defense, is convicted.

At Chicago recently, charges of fraud and conspiracy were made in a petition filed in the Superior court by Edward A. Filkins, receiver of the insolvent bank of S. A. Kean & Co.

Ex-County Treasurer Likens was arrested at Basset, Neb., and is now in jail charged with embezzling $7,533.60 of the county's funds. An expert accountant has unearthed this amount and expects to find more. Likens, it is alleged, speculated in Chicago corn too heavily, with the above result.

The jury in the action of Edward S. Stokes against John Mackay and Hector D. Castro at New York were decided by Judge Ingraham, of the supreme court, to find a verdict in favor of Mr. Stokes for $75,000, with interest from Dec. 20, 1888. This is the full amount that Stokes claimed.

Cashier W. P. Robinson, of the Farmers' bank at Hope, Kavy county, has mysteriously disappeared. The creditors grew frightened and attachments were issued for claims amounting to about $6,000, while there are as many more yet to come. The loss will probably be total unless, as some surmise, Mr. Robinson is detained from home by foul means.

FOREIGN FLASHES.

A Frenchman devises a rival to the whaleback style of war vessels.

A half-million-dollar fire occurs at Columbus, Ohio.

Barges are swept out to sea with sixty New York laborers aboard.

The Grand Duke Constantine, an uncle of the czar, is dying. He was born in 1827.

France has concluded commercial arrangements with all the powers except Spain.

The Chester (S. C.) cotton factory was burned. Loss, $220,000; insurance, $150,000.

The thirty-third anniversary of the birth of Emperor William was appropriately observed throughout Germany recently.

Rev. Mr. Spurgeon, the great London preacher, has had a relapse and is confined to his bed. He is unable to write.

Three Americans are jailed in Mexico charged with irregularities in locating mines.

At Oakland, Neb., Johnny Bock, aged 12, killed his brother, aged 10, while playing with a loaded shotgun. The boy's head was blown to pieces.

The Ferdinand street branch of the Boston Electric Light company was destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at $150,000; insurance, $108,000.

The editor of a paper called Gaiete at Paris has been sentenced to imprisonment for three months, and to pay a fine of 300 francs for the publication of an immoral article.

Father Debongnie, the widely known rector of Ste. Anne De Beaupre, better known as the "shrine of St. Anne," is dead in Montreal.

At Chicago Mrs. Fanny Wise was fatally burned in extinguishing flames that spread from an open grate to the clothing of her 8-year-old child. The little one burned to death.

There were several quite severe shocks of earthquake felt in various parts of Italy recently, which caused a panic in the more crowded quarters of the cities, and did some damage, but no lives were lost.

The entire central part of Beverly, W. Va., was burned recently including the court house. The county records were nearly all saved; but with great difficulty. Over 500 people practically lose their homes.

The troubles between the governor of Mendoza and the legislature have resulted in a serious outbreak. Many persons have been killed or wounded. The national government has sent a commission with full powers to restore order.

While two painters named Wenck and Woods were painting a furnace cupola at the Black Diamond Steel Works, Pittsburg, the scaffold upon which they were standing gave way, and they were precipitated to the ground, a distance of 50 feet. Both were fatally injured.

The Chronicle's Rome correspondent says: The driebund powers have been discussing the next conclave. The Austrian cardinals will be instructed to combine with the Italian and endeavor to elect a pontiff likely to establish a modus vivendi with the quirinal. With this view the driebund seeks the support of Spain and Portugal.

The influenza is so prevalent in Saxony that energetic measures have been adopted to prevent, so far as possible, the spread of the infection by means of public assemblage. With this object in view the authorities have ordered eight colleges and a large number of larger schools to be closed until the wave of disease subsides.

In the Perryman libel case at London, the jury gave verdict for the crown, finding that the libel of Sept. 5 was untrue. The foreman of the jury agreed with Mr. Perryman's counsel, that finding is tantamount to branding Mr. Pulbrook as an unscrupulous attorney, and that his name ought to be struck off the rolls. Sentence was postponed until the next sessions.

The representatives of the various trades in London are arranging for a great public demonstration in support of the measure proposed by Wm. Randal Cremer, M. P., for the Shoreditch vision of London, looking toward negotiations with America for a general treaty of arbitration. The object of the demonstration is to call public attention to the benefits expected to be derived from such a measure.

THE RAILROADS.

The Kansas railroad commissioners order a reduction in freight rates.

The earnings of the Canadian Pacific for the week ending Jan. 21 were $347,000, as against $293,000 for the same period last year, an increase of $54,000.

SPORTING MATTERS.

Tommy Callaghan of England is knocked out in fourteen rounds by Cal McCarthy in New Orleans.

The fight at Pastime club in San Francisco between page and Duncan was very unsatisfactory, being but little more than a walk-around. The battle was awarded to Page in the fifty-fifth round.

THE TOILERS.

There is trouble between the flint glass combine, known as the United States Glass Company, and their employes and a general strike may result.

Delegates from 23 large cities between Pittsburg and Omaha, have organized the International Metal Polishers' Union. The constitution adopted permits the acceptance by unions of Knights of Labor cards and asks the Knights of Labor assemblies to recognize union men. Labor men say this is the commencement of the amalgamation of both bodies.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Thousands of Idaho cattle are starving to death.

The case against "Heretic" Briggs is dropped for the present.

Wolves are unusually ravenous and destructive in the vicinity of Black River Falls, Wis.

The third annual convention of city and borough superintendents of public schools in Pennsylvania has convened.

The steamer La Normandie, collided with and sank the tug which had been towing her. Five persons were drowned and one was seriously injured.

The committee having in charge the arrangements for the national saengerfest to be held in Reading, Pa., next summer, have selected July 25, 26, 27 and 28 for the dates.

Fraud is charged in connection with the settlement of the affairs of S. A. Keane & Co., the insolvent bankers of Chicago.

A committee is appointed by the Ohio legislature to investigate the charge of bribery in connection with Senator Sherman's election.

The Western Sugar Refining company, of San Francisco advanced its rate one-eighth cent a pound on all grades in large lots. This is the first change in sugar product since Jan. 2.

Twenty deaths occurred from grip in Jefferson county, Ohio during five days. In Richmond township 100 families are reported with one or more cases.

The New York senate finance committee has decided to report favorably without ammendment Cantor's bill appropriating $300,000 for the state's exhibit at the World's Fair.

Creditors of Richardson's bank, Lake Geneva, Wis., met and ascertained that the liabilities of the defunct concern are $105,000 and assets only $83,000, of which $20,000 is worthless paper.

Indian Agent A. Sacatin, of the principal Indian Agency of Arizona, says 100 Pimas have died in the past three weeks of grip. The epidemic is spreading through the Pahagos and other adjoining tribes.

It has been practically decided that no more sky-scraper structures can be erected in Chicago. A sub-committee of the city council voted to recommend that no permits be issued for new buildings exceeding 150 feet in height.

The Philadelphia Academy of Natural Science has decided to send a relief expedition for Lieut. Peary and his party. Prof. Alexander Heilprin will lead the expedition which will leave New York about June 1 next.

The thirty-third degree of Masonry was conferred upon Hon. T. W. Palmer, president of the world's fair commission, in Chicago, and was made the occasion of a notable gathering of prominent Masons of the country.

A. Peabody & Co., wholesale dealers in diamonds at 182 Broadway, New York are reported in financial difficulties and have placed their affairs in the hands of their creditors. The liabilities are estimated to be $75,000; assets, $70,000.

State Auditor Henderson of Indiana has issued a list of the insurance companies not entitled to do business in Indiana on account of various non-conformations to the insurance law of the state. No Northwestern companies are on the list.

In the presence of the army officers of the department of the Missouri stationed at headquarters in Chicago, Gen. Miles presented Capt. Frank D. Baldwin with a bronze medal awarded by congress for conspicuous bravery in two engagements during the late war.

The Gliddon & Joy Varnish Company, of Cleveland, Ohio, filed an involuntary petition in insolvency against the Henry M. Richardson Company, manufacturers of children's carriages at Leominster, with Boston offices in Exchange Building. Debts about $173,000; assets estimated at $175,000.

The Marquette Club of Chicago, will give its sixth annual banquet at the Auditorium Hotel on Feb. 12. Among those who are expected to respond to toasts on that occasion are Senators Cullom and Wolcot, Henry Cabot Lodge, J. J. Ingalls, J. P. Dolliver, Gen. Ben. F. Butterworth and Gen. Runnels.

THE NORTHWEST.

A Summary of the Important Events of the Week in the Northwestern States.

Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, North and South Dakota News in a Nutshell.

MINNESOTA.

A Pine City special says half of the logs to be cut this season have been hauled to the stream on which they will be rafted. The cut is far in excess of any season's work.

John Adamson, a brakeman on the Great Northern freight train, fell from a car at St. Cloud, striking his head on the rail. He will die.

Fire broke out the other night in Robinson's drug store at Pipestone. The fire department succeeded in getting the flames under control, but the stock is almost a total loss.

H. T. Budd's barber shop at Northfield was burglarized recently, some one making an entrance with a false key. Thirty-six dollars and six razors were stolen.

Diseases of various types especially typhoid fever, is prevalent at Park River, three adult funerals from the Arlington house in a single week.

Kandiyohi county's contribution to the fund for the starving Russians has now been forwarded to the proper authorities. It is the amount of 75,735 pounds—nearly four car loads—of flour.

The friends of Andrew Thompson, of St. Olaf, who dropped dead in B. N. Johnson's office at Fergus Falls, while talking about his land contest, have demanded an inquest, claiming that there was trouble. The coroner has gone to investigate.

Nicollet county has contributed 14,700 pounds of flour to the Russian relief fund. This amount was sent to Minneapolis by W. G. Gresham, who was appointed to receive contributions by Gov. Merriam.

James Becker, a dealer in boots and shoes at St. Cloud, made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors, naming John Schaefer as assignee. The liabilities are said to be $2,500 with assets of $3,500.

Several of the bondsmen of the defaulting county treasurer, McKenna of Waseca, have gotten together and jointly paid the judgement recovered against them by the board of county commissioners on the official bond, compromising the same at $6,600.

Thomas Trussel, a graduate of the State University, who has been teaching the district school at Champlin, has been forced to resign by the board of education because he whipped the children too promiscuously. He is succeeded by a Mr. Lynch.

Joseph Ondracek and family while returning from church at Glencoe, were struck by a train on the Great Northern between Silver Lake and Hutchinson. Ondracek's son and team were killed and the others injured.

G. C. Cooley a general merchant of Heron Lake made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors. Assets $15,000, liabilities, $18,000 to $20,000. L. F. Lammers was made the assignee. This is the first general assignment made in this town.

Frank Wachhot has sold his general merchandise business, at Glencoe, to C. F. Brass, who will take possession soon. Mr. Brass has been a partner in the firm of C. Henry & Co., and has recently dissolved partnership.

The new 50-barrel roller mill that was built last fall by E Siskron, of Minneapolis, was sold to T A Baker, formerly head miller of the Washburn mills at Anoka. The mill has a large custom trade and manufactures first-class flour.

Mrs. John Crain, an aged widow of 74 and pioneer of Spring Valley, dropped dead of heart disease on the street while on her way to Belva Lockwood's lecture. She was accompanied by her son Charles and before he could summon a physician she was dead.

A banquet was tendered the Hon. H. D O'Phelan, of Winnipeg the other evening at Graceville by a large number of prominent citizens as a token of the high esteem in which he is held for the valuable aid he rendered during the earliest days of that city to help make it what it now is.

The family of August Johnson of Plainview report that they think that their daughter Tillie has eloped with a former boarder named Robert Williams. Williams left some days ago, claiming he was going to Milwaukee, but bought a ticket to Dundas, Minn., the girl followed a day or so after.

Much excitement prevails over the robbery at Dawson the other night. A young man 16 years old, arrested recently and lodged in the county jail at Madison, turned state's evidence, accusing W. D. Sumner, a well-to-do and prominent business man, as his accomplice. Sumner was arrested and placed under $1,590 bonds. In default he was placed in jail at Madison.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Eastern men negotiate for the purchase of a large tract of land in North Dakota.

J. Christianson has been appointed postmaster at Ojata, Grand Forks county.

An Indian at Fort Yates, kills another Indian with whom his wife had been intimate, and commits suicide.

Snavely brothers, who were arrested at St. John, Rollette county, for selling liquor without a license were examined at Devils Lake before United States Commissioner McClory and discharged.

Lewis Burke, of Crystal, was arrested charged with the seduction of Ann Westall, aged 17, of the same town. Burke is married and has two children. His family lives at Langdon. He will be taken to Crystal for trial.

The assignee of the lately defunct Farmers and Merchants' State bank of Ellendale made his first accounting to the depositors, when each received 25 per cent of his original deposit, together with 7 per cent interest since the date of the failure. The general impression is that the depositors will in time be paid in full.

County Auditor Anderson of Grand Forks comes out on top regarding the sale of public school lands in which he and the state board of university and school lands have been in dispute. Gov. Burke wired Anderson authorizing him to publish the list according to law and to publish in whatever paper he sees fit.

More than 600 threshing machine boilers were inspected last season in Grand Forks, Walsh, Pembina, Cavalier and Nelson counties. This is official. Yet with all these facilities it is reported that nearly one-third of the crop of this district is yet unthreshed, and that more than one-third of this year's product is yet in the hands of the farmers.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Efforts are made for the establishment of a national park in the Black Hills, S. D.

Grip is ruler at Elk Point. One hundred cases is a fair estimate in the immediate vicinity. Business and schools are crippled.

David Gramberg, sixteen years old who was accidentally shot by his father at Webster died.

The motion of defendant for leave to amend his answer in the Baroness Destuer's divorce case at Sioux Falls was argued before Judge Aikens and denied. The case was set for hearing Feb. 8.

At the rain convention at Doland a representative of the Artificial Rain Company of Goodland, Kan., was present. A committee of five from five counties was appointed, and has decided to have a trial rain at this place between April 15 and 30.

A Hecla special says: Eisenhood, sheriff of this county arrested here today Wallace Walker and Chas. Walker for stealing 400 bushels of wheat from W. A. Ward, Aberdeen. The prisoners were taken to Aberdeen.

Word has just reached Kimball of a fire at the home of John W. Myers, a farmer 10 miles north of there. Only Mrs. Meyers, a woman neighbor, and a little boy were there. The women burned their hands badly and then caught terrible cold from exposure in the zero weather. There was no insurance on the house.

Charles Meyers, dubbed "Cole Younger" for his habit of carrying a gun, was arrested near Ludden, charged with stealing 400 bushels of wheat belonging to William H. Bennett, of Minneapolis. He was brought to Aberdeen and will be examined. About half of the wheat has been marketed. The rest was recovered.

WISCONSIN.

An attempt is made to blow up and burn the house of a judge at Chippewa Falls.

Fire destroyed the residence of Mrs. Valentine Brown of Neenah with a loss on house and goods of $1,200.

Herman Hungar, employed at Louis Ourthel's camp at Rice Lake, had his left leg crushed by a log rolling on it.

Advices from the logging camps are to the effect that grip is very prevalent and rapidly spreading, although few deaths have occurred. Quite a number of cases are reported in Chippewa Falls.

Wells & Son, sewer and paving contractors made an assignment at Appleton to H. D. Ryan. The liabilities are $31,000; normal value of assets, $44,000; actual value, $18,000.

W. S. Halley, the young man accused of embezzlement while employed by the West Superior Iron and Steel Company, and who announced his intention to plead guilty to the charge, was sentenced by Judge Roberts to a year in the penitentiary.

The trial of John Fertig at Ellsworth, charged with the murder of Robert Spalding, Nov. 17 last, closed, the jury bringing in a verdict of murder in the first degree. Judge Bundy sentenced him to the penitentiary for life.

D. McDonald, superintendent of bridges and buildings of the Northern Pacific, fell under the wheels of a moving train at Brule and his remains were horribly mangled. Supt. McDonald was forty years of age, an old employe of the company and has a family at Brainerd.

A sad accident occurred at Perron's camp, a few miles east of Clear Lake. A young man, 18 years old, named Ole Johnson, of the town of Cylon, was engaged in loading a long log on to his sleighs when it fell and crushed his head, killing him instantly. His remains were taken home.

A horrible accident happened at a funeral in the town of Rosendale, near Fond du Lac. The team of horses attached to the hearse became frightened, broke from the control of the driver and dashed away. The hearse was reduced to splinters and the casket was broken. The remains were lifted into a farmer's wagon and carried to the cemetery.

IOWA.

David Eades, a pioneer citizen and one of the oldest employes of the Burlington road, died at Creston, aged 61 years.

Charles Bainhill was sentenced at Burlington to two years in the penitentiary for robbing a freight car.

Burglars made a raid on the Union Bank of Wilton, fifteen miles west of Newport. They opened the safe and got away with $4,000 in paper, silver and gold.

The grand jury at Dubuque indicted Hansen and Lee for murder in the first degree for the killing of Street Car Driver Lochner last fall.

H. B. Stibbs died at Cedar Rapids of diabetes after a lingering illness at the age of 54 years. He had been a resident of that city for nearly 30 years.

Grace Episcopal church at Cedar Rapids burned to the ground recently. The fire started in the basement from a defective furnace. Loss $50,000.

Col. John O'Keefe, widely known in Iowa as the leader among the anti-Prohibition Republicans, has received notice of the death of his aunt, Mrs. Bridget Hess, at Melbourne, Australia, who bequeathed him £1,500.

John Norris pleaded guilty in the United States District court at Keokuk, to robbing the postoffice at Clarksburg, on the night of Dec. 21, and was sentenced to the penitentiary. He belongs to an organized gang of postoffice robbers.

The grip continues its ravages at Lyons and at Clinton. There are hundreds of cases, especially in the latter city. Deaths are few in Lyons, but many have occurred in Clinton, and for 24 hours 12 deaths from that cause were reported in and near that city.

A Creston special says: Seven claimants have turned up for Mulligan's estate, including one from St. Louis who claims to be a son by a mismated Tennessee marriage and one who claims Mulligan is an assumed name and that he was a deserter from the Union army and a member of Quantrill's Missouri guerrillas. All their stories are pretty well authenticated. The body of Mulligan is still held for proof.

MIXED THOSE BABIES UP.

Queer Predicament of a Priest at a St. Louis Christening.

One of the queerest incidents that ever befell a Catholic priest in the performance of his duties occurred at the old Cathedral not more than a week ago, and was witnessed by a large crowd who were viewing the decorations. The baptismal ceremony was being performed at the font and the recipients of the sacrament were a pair of lusty-lunged twins. One of the youngsters had come into the world weakly and was baptized instantly by an attendant. The priest got wind of the matter, and when the time came for performing the ceremony asked the godmother which was the regenerated babe. Consternation reigned supreme. The twins had got hopelessly mixed, as usual, and the similarity of appearance rendered identification impossible. The nurse was called in and eyed the babies for birthmarks, and gave it up in despair. The priest ended the dilemma by giving both the youngsters conditional baptism, and the family went home satisfied.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

What He Did

Contractor—"Did you offer that alderman a hundred pounds, as I directed?"

Secretary—"Yes, sir."

"How did he act?"

"He looked insulted."

"What did he say?"

"He said I ought to be in jail."

"What did he do?"

"He took the money."

SPURGEON IS DEAD.

England's Most Celebrated Preacher Breathes His Last at Mentone.

The Czar Said to Have Resolved Upon the Re-Establishment of Serfdom.

London, Feb. 1.—Rev. Charles H. Spurgeon died at Mentone at 11:05 to-night. Mr. Spurgeon's end was painless. He remained unconscious to the last. His wife and Dr. Fitz Henry and Mrs. Thorne were present when he died.

At the services held to-day in the Metropolitan tabernacle, of which Mr. Spurgeon was pastor, the auditorium was packed. Rev. Mr. Pronson and others offered earnest prayers at these services and read to the congregation telegraphic bulletins from Mentone. The papers contain long memoirs and obituary notices on Mr. Spurgeon. The Standard appears with a mourning border. It compares the dead pastor to Martin Luther. The Telegraph characterizes him as a great, fearless minister. It adds: "All agree that he leaves a void that will be filled with difficulty."

REV. CHARLES H. SPURGEON.

THE MEMPHIS MURDERESS.

Conflicting Theories as to the Motive of Miss Mitchell's Crime.

Memphis, Feb. 1.—This was Miss Mitchell's and Miss Johnson's first Sunday in jail. Crowds of people crushed through the corridors eager to see the young ladies. At an early hour a Presbyterian preacher went to Miss Mitchell's room and asked to pray for her, but the young lady does not put much faith in the efficacy of prayer. Miss Johnson, being a Catholic, the preacher's offer to pray in her behalf was respectfully declined. An Evangelist went to the jail and preached to the prisoners almost in ear-shot of the young ladies, referring to Miss Mitchell as an awful example as to what false ideas of right and wrong would drive people to do.

The attorney general will attempt to show that Alice Mitchell either killed Freda Ward to avenge herself on Miss Ward's sister, Mrs. Valmer, or that there had been a misunderstanding between the slayer and her victim and that Miss Mitchell, moved by hate, killed her. One of the theories of the state is that there is a man in the case. The attorney general will prove her love for flirting by the recitation of several of her escapades, the principal of which was her meeting several young men in an out-of-the-way part of the city.

The state has several detectives at work and they have already unearthed some damaging facts. One of these is that when Miss Mitchell slew Freda Ward a man was seen following Misses Mitchell and Johnson in a buggy. When Alice Mitchell leaped into the buggy. After the commission of the crime this man drove rapidly away. On the following morning he left the city and has been tracked to New Orleans. It is thought that it was he to whom Miss Mitchell on Sunday night communicated her intention of killing Miss Ward.

The attorneys for Miss Mitchell will at once put in a plea of insanity. If Miss Mitchell be sent to the asylum then Miss Johnson will have to fight for her life alone. This afternoon Miss Johnson said that Miss Mitchell kept her in ignorance as to her intentions, and when she left the buggy to cut the Ward girl's throat, she informed her that she intended once more to kiss Freda good-bye.

There is a young lawyer here who says that some time ago he received a letter from a young lady inclosing a fee and asking him if, under the common law, one woman might marry another. He was directed to mail his reply to a certain postoffice address. He did as requested, and after the tragedy discovered that his client was Miss Mitchell.

YOUNG MEN IN TROUBLE.

Arrested on Serious Charges and Brought to Minnesota.

Kokomo, Ind., Special Telegram, Feb. 1.—Yesterday the sheriff of Marshall county, Minnesota, came here and arrested William and Wesley Kinder, sons of Joseph Kinder, one of the most highly respected and prominent men in this vicinity. Last summer the Kinder boys bought a threshing machine in this city, and with a number of others with whom they went into partnership shipped it to the wheat regions of the West, returning home after the season's run. It is charged that the boys in purchasing the outfit deposited forged security, some $1,500, and that before leaving Minnesota for home they borrowed $800 on the machine, giving a lien on the same, alleging that the outfit was free of encumbrance. The young men were taken to Argyle, Minn., to-day by the officer, where they will be held to answer to the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. The forgery charge will be pushed later, after the first charge has been settled.

The boys have heretofore stood well here, and the revelations created great surprise. The young men were badly broken up by their arrest and at first protested innocence. They have hitherto borne irreproachable characters, and their arrest created a genuine sensation.

Uncertain and Unknown.

Paris, Feb. 1.—Enormous exertions have been made to have all consignments of foreign goods to French buyers passed over the frontier before to-night, as the new tariff goes into operation to-morrow. The Temps speaks deprecatingly of the new tariff, saying that French trade now finds itself confronted by the uncertain and the unknown. The Liberte and other journals speak of the tarif in a similar vein.

May Be a Complete Wreck.

London, Feb. 1.—The accident to the British man-of-war Victoria, which went ashore on the Greek coast, is worse than at first reported and the vessel is in danger of becoming a complete wreck. She is considered one of the finest armor-clad battle ships and the loss of such a vessel would be a most serious blow to the navy.

A Prominent Manitoban Dead.

Winnipeg, Man., Special Telegram, Feb. 1.—John B. Mather, one of Winnipeg's most highly respected citizens, died to-day of typhoid fever. He was prominent in politics and sporting circles and was for years an alderman and president of the Manitoba Curling association. The remains will be taken to Toronto for interment.

For Letting Him Go.

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 1.—Sheriff W. T. Hill of Davidson county and his bondsmen are to be served with a process from the United States court. It informs the sheriff and his bondsmen that they are defendants in a suit for $25,000 damages, brought by the government. The damages are claimed on account of the escape of Thomas Boalen, the celebrated mail robber, from the county jail last November. In endeavoring to arrest Boalen the government expended $15,000. Boalen is still at large.

A Jamestown Ball.

Jamestown, N.D., Special Telegram. One of the largest private parties ever given in this part of the state occurred to-night at the opera house. Nearly three hundred guests, many from a distance, accepted the invitation of the Jamestown gentlemen who gave the ball. Sickness prevented Gov. Burke's presence. Music was provided by a full orchestra from the East.

A Dakota Murderer Captured.

Philadelphia, Special—Sheriff Weaver of Pierre, S. D., arrived at Plainfield, Cumberland county, Pa., yesterday and arrested J. W. Lafevre, who is carged with the murder of Miss Mary Gardner in May last in that state. The reward for Lafevre's capture was $5,000. He was taken to South Dakota last night for trial.

THE LAST WORD.

Text of Blaine's Dispatch Accepting the Chilean Apology.

Washington, Feb. 1.—The following is the reply, addressed to Minister Egan, sent by Secretary Blaine to the Chilean government's note of apology of the 25th instant:

"I am directed by the president to acknowledge the receipt of Senor Pereira's dispatch of the 25th instant. It has been communicated to congress and has given great pleasure to the people of the United States and to the executive department, as it restores the correspondence between the two republics to a basis of cordiality, and makes, as he believes, a full and honorable adjustment of all unsettled matters easily attainable. The president notes with gratification the expressions of regret for and condemnation of the assault upon the sailors of the Baltimore offered by Senor Pereira, and congratulates the Chilean government upon the frank and prompt withdrawal of the Matta circular and upon the spirit of justice displayed towards Minister Egan. You will assure the Chilean government that the president will be glad to meet, in the most generous spirit, these friendly overtures.

"Believing that the subject of reparation for the assault upon the seamen of the Baltimore is now capable of adjustment between the two governments by the usual diplomatic methods, the president postpones, for the present, any discussion of the suggestions made by Senor Pereira as to the other methods, not doubting that the sense of justice of Chile will enable the two governments to speedily and honorably make a full end of the whole matter."

HORSE THIEVES.

An Effort Will Be Made to Break Up the Entire Gang.

Helena, Mont., Special Telegram, Feb. 1.—War on horse thieves will soon be vigorously begun in Southwestern Montana and Northern Wyoming. Detectives have been with the gang and they are now located, together with 1,000 head of stolen stock. A posse of thirty stockmen struck their trail and news of an engagement may be expected at any time. But this is only the beginning of the war of extermination, which will be waged as relentlessly against the horse rustlers as it was against the cattle thieves. To carry it out, each round-up district will have a separate organization, but all working in harmony.

A fund of $20,000 is being raised, and with this the growers believe they will be able to put a stop to horse stealing in the state. Agents will be kept at all the shipping points in Montana, Idaho and Wyoming, and every possible outlet guarded. Unless the rustlers soon dispose of the horses they have corralled in Wyoming near the Montana line and scatter a big force will be upon them, and the result will be a pitched battle, for which the stockmen will be prepared. The rustlers are strongly entrenched in the mountains, and will fight to the last ditch. Their operations have extended from Washington to Pierre, S. D.

Edward Deakin of that city says that five hundred animals have been run off from the ranges in that vicinity within the last few weeks, and it is known that many animals stolen in Washington have been driven east through Montana in the year past, notably fifteen head of fine horses belonging to Lafayette Wright of Sprague, Wash., as they were afterwards identified at Valley City, Dakota.

A year or so ago D. A. G. Flowers of this city lost four hundred head of horses at one time and not a trace of them has ever been had. The past summer the complaints have come from all over Montana, especially from growers in the Eastern part of the state and in Custer county. Advices from that section say that Tom Kent, a well known grower, lost four hundred head last season. Other growers also lost largely.

NEGRO VS. DAGO.

Miners Get Drunk and Fight, Two Being Fatally Hurt.

West Newton, Pa., Feb. 1.—A riot occurred between Italian and negro coal miners at Smithton, a small mining town near here, last night, in which two men were fatally wounded and a third so badly hurt that he will lose a leg. A dozen others were slightly injured. A score or more of miners assembled at the saloon and soon all were drunk. A fight was started and all were ejected from the saloon. As soon as they were outside the negroes opened fire on the Italians and a riot ensued. The fight lasted twenty minutes. Revolvers, knives, razors and billies were used with terrible effect. When the fight had been quelled three men were lying on the ground and blood was flowing from the wounds of others.

Those seriously injured are: Charles Beinza, Italian, shot in the groin, will die; Louis Anderson, an American, spectator of the fight, hit in the neck by a stray bullet and may die; Thomas Newport, a bystander, shot in the leg, necessitating amputation. The injuries of the others are unknown, as they were hurried away, and four were captured at Whittsett station. They were locked up to await the result of the injuries of the wounded. The assault on the Italians was unprovoked, and indignation against the negroes runs high.

A LA SCHNEIDER.

The Vienna Horrors Nearly Paralled by a German and His Paramour.

Berlin, Feb. 1.—A case resembling that of the Schneiders, the horrible details of whose crimes have just shocked the world as revealed in court in Vienna, has come to light in Magdeburg. As in the Schneider case, the victims in the present instance were serving women.

A man named Erbe and his paramour, a woman named Buntrock, have been arrested on a charge of making way with a young woman named Klags, daughter of the steward of an estate near Magdeburg. It is alleged that Erbe and his female accomplice lured the girl to Hanover on pretense that she was desired to accompany a family of that city on a trip to Italy. At Hanover, where the girl was a total stranger, it was comparatively easy to filch her small stock of funds and put her out of the way without leaving a clue to direct suspicion towards the murderers; at least this is what the police expect to prove was done, and they also claim to have evidence that the first victim of the couple was a woman named Kasten of Magdeburg, and those two were not the only ones robbed and murdered by the imitators of the Vienna monsters.

Hostile to Salvationists.

Paris, Feb. 1.—A band of members of the Salvation army met with a highly hostile reception on the Boulevard des Italiens here to-day. There were a number of scuffles between roughs and Salvationists.

Shot by an Officer.

San Francisco, Feb. 1.—Harry De Greayer, a well known local contractor, who was shot last evening in Golden Gate by Mounted Policeman Harper, died to-day. The policeman claims that De Greayer was driving too fast and when remonstrated with he pulled a pistol and fired, and in self-defense the officer shot him through the left shoulder. The wounded man stated before his death that the officer fired first, and that he only drew his weapon after he had been shot. This is corroborated by several eye-witnesses.

An Absolute Divorce Granted.

Milwaukee, Wis., Special.—Mrs. Margaret Lynde, daughter of Prof. Eissfeldt of St. Paul, yesterday secured an absolute divorse from her husband, ex-Ald. Tilly Lynde, son of ex-Congressman William Pitt Lynde. The court allowed Mrs. Lynde to resume her maiden name. Mrs. Lynde's charges against her husband were dissipation and failure to support. Lynde fell heir to several hundred thousand dollars, but lost it all on the board of trade and in gambling dens. His wife was compelled to join an opera company to gain a livelihood. The couple moved in the finest society and the case has caused a great flutter in social circles.

THE grievance committees of the trainmen and conductors on the Union Pacific system, which have been in session at Omaha for two weeks, are nearly to the end of their labors, and it is intimated that they will ask the railroad company to change a number of rules governing trainmen.

You can't always judge by appearances. The man who wears a diamond pin may be really wealthy.

Burns or wounds should be attended to carefully, especially in cold weather. We would recommend Salvation Oil for such cases. All druggists sell it for 25 cents a bottle.

The dark ages are the ones that elderly spinsters refuse to divulge.

"All alone, unheard, unknown—he makes his moan"—in a fifth-story bedroom. The reason is obvious, he is suffering every thing with a cold and hasn't got out to step across the street for one small bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

There is much at stake when a faction organizes a rump.

THE LADIES.

The pleasant effect and perfect safety with which ladies may use the California liquid laxative Syrup of Figs, under all conditions, make it their favorite remedy. To get the true and genuine article, look for the name of the California Fig Syrup Co., printed near the bottom of the package.

There is a tide in the affairs of men which if not skillfully dodged at the proper time drowns them.

All That is Needed.

In our physical needs we want the best of anything required, and we want all that is required to be done, to be done promptly and surely, and those in pain, especially, will find all that is needed in what is herein recommended. Mr. T. J. Murphy, 61 Debevoice pl., Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "Having been afflicted with sciatic rheumatism for some time past and finding no relief, I tried St. Jacobs Oil, which I found very efficacious."—Miss Clara Alcott, Mahwah, N. J., writes: "I bruised my limb and it became greatly swollen and stiff. I used two bottles of a patent linament which did not relieve me. A physician was called who ordered the limb to be poulticed, and he gave me medicine internally, without benefit. I then got a bottle of St. Jacobs Oil, which cured me. It acted like magic." Mr. Lorenzo Buck, Bancroft, Shiawassee Co., Mich., says: "I had chronic rheumatism for years, contracted during the war. After sitting or lying down, at times, I could not get up, from stiffness and pains. At work my strength would give out, then I would pass through a sickness of several weeks. I had to walk with a cane and was at one time so ill I could not lie down without terrible pains in back and limbs. I tried St. Jacobs Oil; next morning got up out of bed without assistance. To-day I'm a new man and walk without a cane."—Mr. A. H. Cunningham, Perryopolis, Fayette County, Pa., writes: "My wife was sorely afflicted with lame back for several years. She used innumerable liniments, but experienced little relief until St. Jacobs Oil was used. I can confidently say we owe her cure to its wonderful effects and would not keep house without it."

You can't measure a girl's love by its sighs.

The Only One Ever Printed.

CAN YOU FIND THE WORD? There is a 3 inch display advertisement in this paper, this week, which has no two words alike except one word. The same is true of each new one appearing each week, from The Dr. Harter Medicine Co. This house places a "Crescent" on everything they make and publish. Look for it, send them the name of the word and they will return you BOOK, BEAUTIFUL LITHOGRAPHS OR SAMPLES FREE.

It seems a paradox, but the close fellow seldom gets tight.

For nervous prostration take Allen's Iron Tonic Bitters. All genuine bear the signature of J. P. Allen, Druggist, St. Paul, Minn.

Is a man never home because his sins find him out?

Sudden changes of weather cause Throat Diseases. There is no more effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, etc., than Brown's Bronchial Troches. Sold only in boxes. Price 25 cents.

Keep your temper and your temper will keep you.

A Hearty Welcome

To returning peace by day and tranquility at night is extended by the rheumatic patient who owes these blessings to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Don't delay the use of this fine anodyne for pain and purifier of the blood an instant beyond the point when the disease manifests itself. Kidney trouble, dyspepsia, liver complaint, la grippe and irregularity of the bowels are relieved and cured by the Bitters.

COPYRIGHT 1891

The smallest is the best in pills, other things being equal. But, with Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, nothing else is equal. They're the best, not only because they're the smallest, and the easiest to take—but because they do more good. They cleanse and regulate the liver, stomach and bowels in a way the huge, old-fashioned pill doesn't dream of. Think of, trying to regulate the system with the ordinary pill. It's only good for upsetting it.

These are mild and gentle—but thorough and effective, no pain—no griping. One little pellet for a laxative—three for a cathartic. The best Liver Pill known. Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels are prevented, relieved and cured.

Put up in sealed vials—a perfect vest-pocket remedy, always convenient, fresh and reliable.

They're the cheapest pill you can buy for they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned. It's a plan peculiar to Dr. Pierce's medicines.

You pay only for the good you get. Can you ask more?

Tutt's Tiny Pills

The dyspeptic, the debilitated, whether from excess of work of mind or body or exposure in malarial regions, will find Tutt's Pills the most genial restorative ever offered the invalid.

CONSUMPTION.

I have a positive remedy for the above disease; by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed so strong is my faith in its efficacy, that I will send TWO BOTTLES FREE, with a VALUABLE TREATISE on this disease to any sufferer who will send me their Express and P. O. address.
T. A. Slocum, M. C., 183 Pearl St., N. Y.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.
CATARRH
Sold by druggists or sent by mail. 50c. E. T. Hazeltine, Warren, Pa.

DEAD.

Oh weary eyes! that oft did weep,
Closed now; rest well in dreamless sleep.

O tired hands! that did their best,
Lie still—be folded into rest.

Oh heart! so torn with love and pain,
Thy troubles ne'er can come again.

Oh busy brain! so full of thought,
Thy work is ended; all is naught.

Oh feet! that trod life's stony road,
There's rest for you 'neath grassy sod.

O fragile body! sad and worn,
Rest thee—ah, rest thee from life's storm.

And thou, oh soul! that wing'st thy flight,
From earth's dark prison into light—

Great gain, oh soul! be thine for aye—
From earth's dark night to endless day.

—Chambers' Journal.

STORY OF TWO BIRTHDAYS.

IT is a sweet face upon which the man is gazing tenderly, very sweet indeed. The cheek is whiter than the pillow beneath it, the hair waves prettily back from the wide forehead, the dark eyes are full to overflowing of a happiness as beautifying as it is complete.

"And you are quite sure he looks like me?" she is saying eagerly. "Draw the cradle closer, Fred, closer yet, and look attentively. Now, tell me just what you think."

"I think—oh, I can't tell you half I think, dear." His voice is a trifle unsteady, and the hand her fingers clasp lightly is shaking nervously.

"Always to be with us," the low voice goes on; "ours to watch and tend and hold within our hearts. Our boy—my boy—ah! God is very kind. And the beautiful, serious eyes will soon learn to read our hearts, and our faces, the baby fingers will hold us tightly, and the tender lips we kiss will teach wonderful things, for heaven's own wisdom is in a child's imperfect speech, and the little hands—dear little hands! I feel like weeping for very joy when I think of them."

He lifts one baby fist and kisses it softly.

"I will teach him all the fair and good things of life and guard him from all evil. Think of the little white soul, Fred. Is it not terrible to think of the world touching it?" The smile fades from her lips, and for a moment her eyes meet the sorrowful ones of the Madonna.

"But our boy will grow up good, and pure, and true," she goes on earnestly. "He will be clever, too. I want him to be, don't you?"

"Indeed I do."

"He will be a student, a man whom the people will reverence, a writer of books, or it may be, a great minister, and the whole world will be glad because he was born to us this Christmas time. I am going to be so economical now that I have his future to look forward to; I am going to be so careful."

"Of yourself, I hope." He laughs. Then she comes back to the beginning of the conversation.

"And to think he should look just like me! They say he has even the little ridge in his nose that I have, and the same curve to his eyebrows." She laughs softly, and draws her husband's face down close to hers. "I—I am rather pretty, Fred?"

"Rather, yes."

"But I really wished him to have red hair, dear."

"Never mind. The world at large hasn't your predilection for red hair. I think if you realized all that my fiery locks have meant to me you would be relieved that baby's hair is brown."

Her answer is to press her lips to the close cropped head so near.

"We must hunt a name for him the next thing," says this young father, in quite a business tone. "We might call him Cyrus, after his rich old bachelor uncle. He—"

"No, no," she protests; "Uncle Cyrus is not a good man, Fred. I wonder if you will laugh when I tell you what I wish to call this child of ours. It sounds very much like a bit of 'Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress,' and I dare say few will understand. But he came to us this Christmastide—the bells were ringing the very hour of his birth. He seems set apart in my heart as something holy, and I wish—now, don't even smile, my darling—I wish to call him 'Christian.'"

He does not dream of smiling. "If you love the name, I love it with you," he whispers.

"They say the fairest child born of love may grow up into an evil man or womanhood now." Her voice is deep and thrilling in its earnestness. "When we lose a prized thing, the gift of one we loved, we search and watch for it again, and if we find it, though soiled and battered almost beyond recognition, we prize it in our heart of hearts and hold it even dearer than it was before—dearer, not fairer, mind. And I've been thinking, dear, that this babe is heaven's Christmas gift to you and me. If it happens in the coming years that he is lost in any maze of sin, in any mire of wrongdoing, you—you will remember, dear."

Her hand is still in his, and the firm clasp and the solemn earnestness of his "I will" suggests a covenant.

Whence comes it, this wonderful flood of tenderness surging through his heart, bringing the unwonted moisture to his eyes?

His son and hers. He stoops to lay his first kiss on the soft pink face, and as he does a tear slips from his cheek and splashes on the little hand. A great warm sunbeam, the first of the new day, creeps noiselessly in and lays its radiant face above the sleepers. Ah, little one, a holy baptism is thine—a father's tear, God's yellow sunlight!

* * * * * * *

Was ever anything quite so soft, and warm and white?

And to think that only yesterday the great elms stood naked and ashamed before their old-time enemy, the wind, and their old-time mistress, the sun. How the wind flouted them, to be sure! No tyrant in the old fierce days of warfare ever took such vast delight in the ignominy of a fallen foe, stripped and set up as a mark for public scorn, as did that biting, boisterous wind of yesterday! And the sun, forgetting former graciousness, veiled its warmth and held aloof.

But nature seldom neglects her children for any length of time. She came last night with the shadows, and, after listening to the sobbing and grieving, shook from its folds her softest, thickest ermine robe, and spread it tenderly over each naked, throbbing breast, and above each tossing, restless arm.

It is so still to-day. Upon the snow-clad highway leading to the village no traveler goes as yet. But one has traversed it since the day broke, for all the way from the solitary station to the gray house on the hill there is the footprints of one who came "from a far country."

Such irregular, faltering steps they must have been, judging from the zigzag path out-lined in the snow.

Up in that room facing the east a woman is kneeling beside the bed, sobbing out disjointed sentences of endearment, clinging passionately to a wasted hand, devouring with her gaze the face upon the pillow.

Such a wreck! He is not more than 20, this man, worn out, weary unto death. His hair waves up from the wide forehead, his dark eyes, hollow and bloodshot, are still very like the tender ones of the woman beside him, and when he speaks we notice that his voice is soft and plaintive as hers.

"My birthday, is it not?" he says, brokenly. "I remember you used to call me God's Christmas gift. Oh, mother! mother!"

The wasted fingers cannot press back the flood of hot and bitter tears. Her arms are about him now, her face is pressed to his. "My boy, you are his gift to me today." How exultant her tone! "I remember as though it were but yesterday, my pride and joy and thankfulness, when I held you first close to my heart and knew you mine—my own. But to-day far transcends that other day, and if my tears fall with yours, why they are but tears of happiness."

"But, my father? How can—" A knock comes on the closed door, a voice calls, "Mary may I come in?"

She draws the curtains before the bed and opens the door for her husband. He is rather stern, this gray-eyed man of 45, but his face softens as he notes her agitation. "Is it not a beautiful day?" he remarks. It is three years now since either have said the simple words, "A merry Christmas."

"It is a beautiful day, a glad day," she returns softly, "a day of rejoicing. Twenty years ago our gift from heaven was a white-souled babe, was it not?"

He bows with averted face.

"Do you remember that morning? I know you do. We planned his future out for him; he was to be wise, and good, and great; and I said—you remember, dear—if we lose the gift of one we love we search and wait for it again, and if we find it, though soiled and battered beyond recognition almost, we prize it in our heart of hearts."

"But why speak of this to-day?" he says brokenly.

"And I said," she goes on, "if in the coming years our boy is lost in any maze of sin, in any mire of wrong-doing, you will remember. You have never forgotten?"

"No, never!" he answers; "though God knows there is bitterness in remembering."

"Come!" she says, and throws the curtains back. "That day I showed you a white-souled babe; to-day I show you one who was 'dead, but is now alive, one who was lost, but now is found!'"

Just for a moment the memory of the heart-break caused by the erring one makes him cold and unforgiving; then he gathers the trembling hands into his own and holds them close. The cathedral chimes come softly from the distant village; outside the clouds are scattering. "My boy! My boy!" he cries, and stoops to kiss the wan white face; "what happiness is this!"

Through the window a great warm sunbeam steals; a new-born child receives once more that holy baptism—a father's tears—God's yellow sunlight!—Jean Blewett in Chicago Times.

A PECULIAR CIRCUMSTANCE.

A Scene not Usually Witnessed by Man Described by An Old Cruiser.

"Wal, some strange things air seen by a feller when he haint got no gun, as the sayin' goes," said the lank cruiser with the blonde whiskers, as he sat down on a stump and lighted his pipe. "Trees fall in the forest, thet hev stood fer years through ragin' storms, when ther aint no wind, en many things happen thet air curious to behold. Last year, 'bout this time, I were travelin, through the timber en the brush were so dry thet it cracked loud enough to hear it a mile so I took no gun as didn't 'spect I'd see nothin' in such a time. My feet got warm from walkin' en I went down a ravine to the creek en sat dangling my feet in the waters with my shoes off mind.

Well, I hedn't been there long when heard a mighty noise, growlin' and snarlin' like a pack of mad dogs, en 'fore I hed time to run, a bar hove in sight, come right down the ravine en run round a saplin' two or three times as though chasin' its tail."

Here the man with the blonde whiskers puffed meditatively for a moment and gazing at the smoke as it rolled from his pipe, he continued:

Wal then it lay down en sort o' wound itself round the saplin' en begun to claw its own back, like mad."

Taking a few huge puffs to gain time.

En began to bite en git madder en madder, en growl en scratch, till the sight were sickening, then it begun eatin itself en the more it et the madder it got, by gosh twant five minutes before there want nothin' left of thet bar but its mouth, he hed taken hisself fer another bar thet he had a grudge agin' en fore he found out his mistake he swallowed his self whole. I wouldn't hev believed it possible if I hedn't seed it with my own eyes.

Lets go down that ravine now en set on the runway till Bill comes along.—JONATHAN QUILDRIVER.

A Delicate Subject.

"It is a delicate subject with us," says a Western editor, "but we are very much embarrassed financially and as free from money as a frog is of feathers. If some of you folks that owe us on subscription could have a photograph of our empty st—pockets, you would hustle a dollar or so and change the picture. Our cash receipts have been so light the last month that a Hessian fly could cast them up in ten seconds. We dislike this contraction of the currency very much, and you, one and all, should extend a hand to help us out of the money panic we are undergoing. P. S.—Don't forget to have your silver in your hand when extended."—Northwest Magazine.

TO INTEREST THE FARMER.

PRACTICAL HINTS ABOUT FARM WORK.

Laying Out the Farm Garden—More Than Hard Work Necessary—The Profitable Hen—Repairing Fences.

Laying Out the Farm Garden.

One of the important features of a well-regulated farm is a good kitchen garden of ample proportions. It should be carefully cultivated, and should contain a sufficient variety of vegetables to supply the farmer's table, early and late, with an abundance of the best the season affords.

With such a source of supply at command womankind would find no difficulty and much satisfaction in presenting wholesome and palatable dishes for the family consumption, with less amount of meat than would otherwise be required—a distinct gain, in point of healthfulness, especially when the meat, as is too often the case, is fat pork.

In order that the kitchen garden may be what we have described it, and be easily and economically cultivated, it should be laid out in such a way that the greater part of the work can be done by horse power.

A small inclosure, hopelessly run to weeds, and containing nothing really worth attention, is not what we contemplate, but a large area, proportioned to the needs of the family (and not without a "weather eye" to the sale of fresh "garden sass" to less favored neighbors), of the best land the farm affords—not too far away, however, from the house.

This space should be well manured and brought by repeated working to the finest possible tilth. It should not be thought a waste to put the best manure, and plenty of it, on this land, for it will return good interest in one shape or another. Then lay it out in long rows, as straight as they can be made, and of varying widths, according to the habit of growth of the plants.

A plan which lies before us, has been carefully thought out, and may serve as an indication (subject, of course, to modification according to taste) of how such a plot should be divided up. The part assigned to vegetables is four rods wide, and as long as may be desired. Around three sides is a wall or turning ground eight feet wide. This may be graveled or—as we have seen it—sodded; or, winter squashes might be planted in a part or all of the space without seriously interfering with the cultivation.

On the fourth side is a row, five feet wide, of asparagus, artichokes and rhubarb. Then follow, in successive rows: 1. Parsnip, salsify and early peas, followed by winter spinach, 5 feet; 2. Peas, 3 feet; 3. Early potatoes, followed by celery, 3 feet; 4. Early lettuce, etc., from hot bed, radish, cress, mustard, followed by turnip, 3 feet; 5. Onions, 1½ feet; 6. Lettuce, endive, parsley, sweet herbs, 1½ ft.; 7. Bush beans, 2½ ft.; 8. Beets and turnips 2½ feet; 9. Early cabbage and cauliflower, 2½ feet; 10. late cabbage, 3 feet; 11. Early sweet corn, 3 feet; 12. Late sweet corn and summer squash, 4 feet; 13. Tomatoes and pole beans, 5 feet; 14. Cucumbers and musk-melons, 6 feet; 15. Watermelon and winter squash, 8 feet.

To this we should add, for localities as far north as it can be grown, the dwarf okra, excellent for soup, and the common nasturtium for pickles.

In another plot there should be all the varieties of berries, currants and grapes, and of course, plantations of cherry, plum, pear, peach, and apple trees. None of these should be in the vegetable garden, as they would interfere with cultivation and give too much shade.

With such a garden and such supplies of fruit the farmer's table could be, with care in cooking and with abundance of milk, cream, fresh butter, etc., made as attractive as a Delmonico spread, and a great deal more wholesome.

More Than Hard Work Necessary.

The men who make the most money on the farm are not, generally, the ones who work hardest, or who put in the most hours in the field. There is more than hard work that influences for success on the farm. It is not necessary that the farmer should be a slave to drudgery and hard labor. Neither is it necessary for him to make himself the biggest hog on the farm. Intelligence, with a knowledge of how to manage, counts for more on the farm than with any other class of labor. The greatest reason of failure on the farm may be traced to ignorance of how to plan and manage properly the farm operations. The next prevailing source of dissatisfaction grows out of laziness, and it is so closely related to its leader that they are often hard to distinguish one from the other.

Life, energy and ambition are necessary properties in the make-up of the farmer. Such a person will see the importance of system and will proceed to arrange a place for everything and see that it is in its place when not in use. He will have a time to go to work and a time to quit; a time to feed and a time to water; in short, everything will be systematized in a way to accomplish the most in the least number of hours. The social features of life will not be neglected and the family will share a portion of his time. The long winter evenings will be spent in reading and discussing subjects of interest to farm and household, as well as learning something of what is going on all over the world.

There is no business that affords better opportunities for cultivating irregular hours, and running fifteen hours into a day's work than farming, if permitted to be prosecuted without a system. The disposition to greed is almost sure to follow this plan of farm management, and man then practically places himself a rival with the largest hog on the farm and surrenders all prospects and advantages for enjoyment to the one object, that of accumulating wealth. Such farmers are neither a credit nor an advantage to any community.—Omaha World-Herald.

The Profitable Hen.

The profitable hen may be a Brahma, Cochin, Plymouth Rock, Leghorn, Hamburg, or any other of the good breeds. On the other hand, the Brahma, the Cochin, Plymouth Rock, Leghorn, Hamburg, or a hen of any of the good breeds, may be an unprofitable one. First, the breeds, and then the care. In selecting the breed to obtain the greatest profit, the climate is a matter of importance; if the climate is cold, the Leghorn and Hamburg would not be the profitable selection; then again the purpose for which they are raised is a matter of importance. If it is for market we wish to breed poultry, the Hamburg would be unprofitable, or even the Leghorn unless it be used to cross with some larger breed, says Western Poultry Breeder. Having selected the breed to suit the climate and purpose, the next consideration is the care; this matter of care extends over a period which includes the mating, gathering and selection of eggs; incubation, rearing, and keeping after maturity—if kept for market, egg or breeding purposes. As a pre-requisite to the raising of the profitable hen, the proper mating of only vigorous parents is of great importance. The imbecile hen is not profitable. The eggs must not become chilled nor be old when used for incubation, or else the vigor of the forthcoming hen will be impaired. Use only fresh eggs. The young chick must be kept dry and warm or its vigor will be lessened. The food must be varied. Provide pure water and plenty of sharp grit, in order that the chick be kept vigorously growing until it reaches maturity. The hen thus reared and properly cared for is the profitable hen.

Repairing Fences.

Among the first items of farm work that usually have attention in the spring is the building or repairing of fences. Our own plan is to attend to this in the fall, so that there will be no possibility of its interfering with work that has to do directly with the production of crops. We do not intend now, however, to discuss the best time for doing that work, but to ask whether so much of it is really necessary. About the heaviest tax we have to pay on our own farms in the way of an expenditure that brings nothing back is the labor and material employed in fence-building; but we have got so accustomed to cutting our farms up into little fields that it is hard to overcome the practice. We see adjacent fields grown to corn and wheat and meadow, with strong fences between them, as if the owner was afraid that one crop would encroach on the territory of the other. The theory is, we believe, that he may want to pasture one of the fields at a season when there is a standing crop in another. but if he does so the chances are very much against his getting value enough from it to pay for maintaining the fences. Then there is the waste land of the fence row—no small item, and the fence row is very apt to be a harbor for weeds, and time is required to keep them down that ought to be given to the cultivation of crops. These things may have all been said before, but we want to bring them fresh to your mind just now, so that before you rebuild those fences you may stop and ask yourself if they can not better be wholly dispensed with. Some day we shall get to the point of keeping our cattle up, to the greater economy both of land and feed, and then we shall be able to do away with our fences wholly.—Philadelphia Inquirer

About Poultry.

Poultry in health need no medication. Patent nostrums sold as "egg food "condition powders," etc., to be fed to poultry to make them more prolific, are humbugs. "The whole need not a physician, but they that are sick," is as true of fowls as of men. Healthy fowls need to be kept healthy and the only way to do that is to feed them wholesome food, wholesome water, and protect them from inclement weather. All medicine is foreign to the digestive apparatus of healthy creatures. The surroundings may be sickly and need medical treatment. Filthy houses, nests and runs should be purged by mechanical means, altered with disinfectants, and toned with tonics. Or, what amounts to the same in English, clean up with rake and hoe, burn with fire, whitewash with lime and sprinkle with carbolic acid or sulphuric acid, fumigate with brimstone, and cease not until everything is pure and sweet; then keep them so. These are the prime conditions of health in the poultry yard.—Texas Farm and Range.

Valuable Hints.

Small turkeys sell better than the larger carcasses. It requires about a year and a half to produce a twenty-five-pound gobbler, hence the large birds are not as tender as those that are smaller.

Good shelter during the winter means that less grain will be needed. It is cheaper to keep up the animal from the outside than from the inside. When cold, cattle burn feed for fuel. Then they make no gain upon it.

The experiment of burning old strawberry beds over while the ground is frozen has given good results to those who have practiced it. The plants come out thick and strong in the spring, and some growers maintain that it is equivalent to having a new bed of young plants.

It does not pay to feed potatoes to stock unless they are very low in price. In proportion to the amount of solid matter in potatoes—they being composed mostly of water—they are expensive, and should only be substituted for grain as an article of diet in promoting the condition of animals by a change of food.

The best way to prevent sheep from getting cockleburs in their wool is to kill the weeds before they produce burs.

Texas sheep raisers can produce mutton cheaper than those of any other state, and can compete with the best in wool.

The old practice of feeding a farrow cow everything she will eat to fatten her, and milking her until she is sold, is a good one that might be followed with profit by many a family now going without milk.

VIRTUE OF PEELED ALMONDS.

An English Physician Upsets the Common Opinion of the Dainties.

An English physician is till this moment the sole authority for the statement concerning the nutritive value of peeled almonds. "I seldom go my rounds," he says, "without taking a little packet of almonds with me, and I find I am carried on for hours without so much as remembering that I have missed my tea or luncheon." He does not advocate their wholesome qualities except indirectly, but he will doubtless find many ready disciples to his theory.

Peeled and browned and salted almonds are a much-prized dainty, hitherto indulged in with caution under the impression that they were most pernicious in their effects upon the digestive organs. A few seasons ago, in Washington, the serious illness of several society women was alleged to have been caused by persistent almond munching, and the discussion evoked at that time created a prejudice against the crisp and toothsome edible. If we have been mistaken all these years, the gayety of the future, at least, is added to.—New York Times.

Fast Eating.

And irregular meals are causes of Dyspepsia, which will soon become incurable except by careful attention to diet and taking a reliable stomach medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla. Read this:

"Owing partly to irregularity in eating, I suffered greatly from dyspepsia, accompanied by

Severe Pain After Meals

I took two or three bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla and entirely recovered, much to my gratification. I frequently have opportunity to praise and am glad to, for I consider it a great medicine." C. I. TROWBRIDGE, Traveling salesman for Schlotterbeck & Foss, Portland, Me.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Completely Broken Down.

"For three years I suffered with dyspepsia, growing so bad that I was completely broken down in health. After taking six bottles of

Hood's Sarsaparilla

I gained strength and appetite and was restored to my former health." JOHN E. RUSSELL, Clerk at Commercial Hotel, Brookville, Penn

IVORY SOAP

99 44/100 Pure.

THE BEST FOR EVERY PURPOSE.

"German Syrup"

Just a bad cold, and a hacking cough. We all suffer that way sometimes. How to get rid of them is the study. Listen—"I am a Ranchman and Stock Raiser. My life is rough and exposed. I meet all weathers in the Colorado mountains. I sometimes take colds. Often they are severe. I have used German Syrup five years for these. A few doses will cure them at any stage. The last one I had was stopped in 24 hours. It is infallible." James A. Lee, Jefferson, Col. ①

I CURE FITS!

When I say cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office.
H. G. ROOT, M. C., 183 Pearl St., N. Y.

Health Restored!

NERVE
DR. E. C. WEST
BRAIN.
TREATMENT.

Dr. E. C. West's Nerve and Brain Treatment

A guaranteed specific for Hysteria, Dizziness, Convulsions, Fits, Nervous Neuralgia, Headache, Nervous Prostration caused by the use of alcohol or tobacco, Wakefulness, Mental Depression, Softening of the Brain resulting in insanity and leading to misery, decay and death, Premature Old Age, Barrenness, Loss of Power in either sex, Involuntary Losses and Spermatorrhea, caused by over-exertion of the brain, self-abuse or over-indulgence. Each box contains one month's treatment. $1.00 a box, or six boxes for $5.00, sent by mail, prepaid on receipt of price.

WE GUARANTEE SIX BOXES

To cure any case. With each order received by us for six boxes, accompanied with $5.00, we will send the purchaser our written guarantee to refund the money if the treatment does not effect a cure. Guarantees issued only by JOSEPH R. HOFFLIN, Druggist, Minneapolis, Minn.
THE GENUINE IN YELLOW WRAPPERS ONLY.

HOW TO MAKE MONEY QUICKLY AND EASILY!

Send 50 cents to pay postage on our Daily Market Report and Special Letter of Advice, for one month. We can make you lots of Money. Agents wanted. Address, S. H. WOOD & CO., Investment Brokers, 212, 213, 214 and 215 Wright Block, Minneapolis, Minn.

MEN BE MANLY

We send you the marvelous French Remedy CALTHOS free, and a legal guarantee that CALTHOS will STOP Discharges and Emissions, CURE Varicocele, Spermatorrhea and RESTORE Lost Vigor.
Use it and pay if satisfied.
Address VON MOHL CO., Sole American Agents, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Please mention this paper when writing.

THE QUEEN OF FASHION (monthly) with its hundreds of superb illustrations ranks first, 30 cts., yearly with free 35 ct. pattern of any style. Send 2 (2 ct) stamps for sample copy. Baldworth & Co., 46 E. 14th st., N. Y. City.

THE Hussey Manufacturing company of Pittsburg has begun suit against the McCormick Harvesting Machine company of Chicago, alleging infringement of patents of complainant's mowing machines.

ELY'S CREAM BALM—Cleanses the Nasal Passages, Allays Pain and Inflammation, Heals the Sores, Restores Taste and Smell, and Cures

CATARRH

Gives Relief at once for Cold in Head.
Apply into the Nostrils.——It is Quickly Absorbed.
50c. Druggists or by mail. ELY BROS., 56 Warren St., N. Y.

THE CURE FOR CATARRH COLD IN HEAD
HAYFEVER
DEAFNESS HEADACHE
ELY'S CREAM BALM
50c

WILSON'S 1892 PLANT, TREE AND SEED CATALOGUE. LIVE STOCK ANNUAL.

112 Pages, 200 Fine Engravings, Handsome Colored Plates. Full of useful and instructive information. Unquestionably one of the most reliable catalogues published. All kinds of guaranteed Garden, Flower, and Field Seeds. Fruit and Ornamental Trees. Small Fruits. Choice Roses, Flowering Plants and Bulbs. Thoroughbred Land and Water Fowls. Registered Pigs, German Hares, &c., &c. Sent free, on application. Address, mentioning this paper,
SAMUEL WILSON, SEED GROWER, MECHANICSVILLE, PA.

CHICHESTER'S ENGLISH, RED CROSS DIAMOND BRAND
PENNYROYAL PILLS

THE ORIGINAL AND GENUINE. The only Safe, Sure, and reliable Pill for sale. Ladies, ask Druggist for Chichester's English Diamond Brand in Red and Gold metallic boxes sealed with blue ribbon. Take no other kind. Refuse Substitutions and Imitations. All pills in pasteboard boxes, pink wrappers, are dangerous counterfeits. At Druggists, or send us 4c. in stamps for particulars, testimonials, and "Relief for Ladies," in letter, by return Mail. 10,000 Testimonials. Name Paper. Sold by all Local Druggists. CHICHESTER CHEMICAL CO., Madison Square, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

And now Washington wants a toboggan slide. It might build one out of the proverbial good resolutions.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

It is not slang to remark "shute the toboggan."

Cod-liver oil suggests consumption; which is almost unfortunate. Its best use is before you fear consumption—when you begin to get thin. Consumption is only one of the dangers of thinness.

Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver-oil makes the thin plump, and the plump are almost safe.

Let us send you a book on CAREFUL LIVING—free.

Scott & Bowne, Chemists, 132 South 5th Avenue, New York.
Your druggist keeps Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil—all druggists everywhere do. $1. 25

Young Mothers!

We Offer You a Remedy which Insures Safety to Life of Mother and Child.

"MOTHER'S FRIEND"

Robs Confinement of its Pain, Horror and Risk.

After using one bottle of "Mother's Friend" I suffered but little pain, and did not experience that weakness afterward usual in such cases.—Mrs. ANNIE GAGE, Lamar, Mo., Jan. 15th, 1891.

Sent by express, charges prepaid, on receipt of price, $1.50 per bottle. Book to Mothers mailed free.
BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO., ATLANTA, GA.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

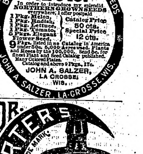
PENSION JOHN W. MORRIS, Washington, D.C. Successfully Prosecutes Claims. Late Principal Examiner U.S. Pension Bureau. 3 yrs in last war, 15 adjudicating claims, atty since.

PILES Remedy Free. INSTANT RELIEF. Final cure in 10 days. Never returns: no purge; no salve; no suppository. A victim tried in vain every remedy has discovered a simple cure, which he will mail free to his fellow sufferers. Address J. H. REEVES, Box 3290, N. Y. City, N. Y.

ASTHMA CURED TO STAY CURED. We Want Name and Address of Every ASTHMATIC. P. Harold Hayes, M.D. BUFFALO, N.Y.

MOTHERS Dr. Snyder's Kidney Balsam cures Enuresis (BED WETTING.) For circulars and testimonials address, with stamps Dr. O. W. F. SNYDER, McVicker's Theatre, Chicago, Ill. For sale by all Druggists. Price $1.00.

BUY NORTHERN GROWN SEEDS
FOR 12cts.
In order to introduce my splendid NORTHERN GROWN SEEDS everywhere, I offer postpaid
1 Pkg. Melon, 1 Pkg. Radish, 1 Pkg. Lettuce, 1 Pkg. Tomato, 5 Pkgs. Elegant Flower Seed, Catalog Price 50 cts. Special Price 12 cts.
9 Pkgs. listed in no Catalog in America under 50c. 5,000 Acres Seed. Plants and Roses by the 100,000. Send 5c. for finest Plant and Seed Catalog published. Many Colored Plates.
Catalog and above 9 Pkgs. 17c.
JOHN A. SALZER, LA CROSSE, WIS.
JOHN A. SALZER, LA CROSSE, WIS.



RELIEVES all Stomach Distress.
REMOVES Nausea, Sense of Fullness, CONGESTION, PAIN.
REVIVES FAILING ENERGY.
RESTORES Normal Circulation, and WARMS TO TOP TIPS.
DR. HARTER MEDICINE CO., St. Louis, Mo.

LOVE FOR A DAY.

CHAPTER XII.—CONTINUED.

I could not help it—doubtless it was very undignified; but, when I saw the pain on the honest face, the humble sorrow in the dear eyes, when I saw Mark distressed, grieved with the misery of a life-time on his face, I forgot my wounded love for one short moment. How could I refuse him anything to whom I had never said "nay"? How could I refuse him pardon when he asked it with tears in his eyes? He had marred my life, ruined my happiness, made every hope bankrupt; but I loved him still. I held my hands to him; I tried to smile, although the raining tears blinded me.

"I will forgive you Mark," I said "Ah, my dear, I could not, if I would, be angry with you! We must never meet again, Mark. The wide world must be ever between us two who were once to be always together; a deep grave lies between us, and in it I must bury my love; but I forgive you, even as I hope to be forgiven."

He held my hand in his for a moment; and then said, with tears that did not shame his manhood—

"My dear lost love farewell!"

I knew what he meant. It would be better for him, better for me, that we should meet as strangers. He would be leaving in a few days and we should see each other no more. Better so!

Trembling, fainting, dazed by my own misery, I dared not go back to the house just then, lest any one meeting me should ask what ailed me. I had a strange, vague idea that I had changed my own identity, and that the sorrow stricken woman walking by herself under the summer trees could not be Nellie Chester.

That evening Lady Yorke came to my room. She was always kind and considerate to me.

"You have not been well today, Miss Chester. Masham tells me that you have had one of your bad headaches. Are you better? You look very pale and changed in some way. I came to ask you if you would bring your music to the drawing-room this evening. It would be a great help to me."

I thought for a few moments before I answered her. I could crush down my own pain and anguish, for I had plenty of self-control; and I longed to see Mark's wife. How the words pierced my heart—"Mark's wife!" I kissed the white jeweled hand laid so kindly on my shoulder, and said what was true—that I would do anything to please Lady Yorke.

"If you feel tired," she said, "do not join us for a little while; come later on. And, Miss Chester, make yourself look nice. We must not let Lady Severne think herself the handsomest woman in the world. Bring some of your best songs. Lord Severne is very fond of music."

I knew that. Had I not sung to him a hundred times by the river and in the woods?

That evening it seemed to me that I was about to rival Mark's wife. Was it foolish or wicked that I went to my box for the long plain blue silk dress that Mark liked, and that I made the most of my golden hair, that I found some white roses for it, and that I tried to look bright and happy while my heart was dead?

I need not speak of the other guests. My story deals only with Mark, and Mark's wife. Lady Yorke introduced me to all her visitors. I had gone to the drawing-room before the gentlemen had left the dining-room. I could not have entered with Mark looking at me. I remember no names, no faces; my whole soul seemed waiting until we reached Mark's wife.

"Lady Severne," said the clear voice by my side; and, raising my eyes, I saw Mark's wife—the most beautiful, brilliant, dazzling woman I had ever beheld.

She had the vivid bloom of a carnation, a face of exquisite Grecian type, a wide low brow, straight dark eyebrows, lovely mouth, though the lines and curves were rather proud than tender, a beautiful chin with a delicious dimple. As I thought of Mark kissing those lovely lips, the pain in my heart was more bitter than death. A superb woman, with dark blue eyes and dark hair, she was dressed in white velvet, relieved by a rich bordering of purple heart's-ease; a diamond necklace clasped the white firm throat, a diamond cross lay on her white breast: and the very moment I stood before her I noticed the sweet odor of violets.

Mark's wife! She looked at me with a kindly smile; and then I noticed that there was something peculiar in her face. I did not like it, beautiful, brilliant as it was. There was a vague inexplicable something—a metallic brightness in the eyes, a hard peculiar color on her cheeks. Love for Mark, interest quickened by affection, made me wonder, and, as I looked at her, so beautiful, so brilliant, I asked myself, What was his sorrow? What was the secret that clouded his life? What was the mystery that sapped all the pleasure and happiness of his existence? What could it be?

Lady Severne drew aside the folds of her velvet dress, and asked me to take a seat beside her.

"Lady Yorke tells me that you have a beautiful voice, Miss Chester," she said, "I hope you will sing for us. Lord Severne is fond of music."

Long before her fair face had wiled Mark from me I knew that. What would she say if she knew that I was Mark's first love, that—Ah, what nonsense! Was I mad? Mark was no longer for me. She talked to me kindly enough for a few minutes. I felt, rather than knew, that there was something strange about her, but I could not define it.

The gentlemen came in. My only hope lay in not looking at Mark. I was keenly, painfully conscious of his presence. I knew where he went; when he spoke, I heard no other sound. But my eyes never sought him. Even when Lady Yorke introduced me to him, I never saw him; but five minutes afterward, when I went to the piano, the music fell from my nerveless hands. Ah, woe was me! The first song I found was this—"Remember and Forget."

"I sat beside the streamlet:
I watched the waters flow,
As we together watched it
One little year ago.
The soft rain pattered on the leaves,
The April grass was wet—
Ah, folly to remember!
'Tis wiser to forget.

"The nightingales made musical
June's palace paved with gold;
I watched the rose you gave me
Its warm red heart unfold.
But sight of rose and song of bird
Were fraught with wild regret—
'Tis madness to remember;
'Twere wisdom to forget.

"I stood among the gold corn—
Alas, no more I knew!—
To gather gleaner's measure
Of the love that fell from you.
For me no gracious harvest.
Would God we ne'er had met!
For, cruel as remembrance is,
'Tis harder to forget.

The streamlet now is frozen,
The nightingales are fled,
The corn-fields are deserted,
And ev'ry rose is dead.
I sit beside my lonely fire,
And pray for wisdom yet,
For calmness to remember, or
For courage to forget."

There was no sound in the room as the last notes died away. I knew they had gone straight to Mark's heart, for he left the group of ladies with whom he had been talking, and went to one of the great bay-windows. The May sun had set, and the light was dead in the sky.

Lady Yorke's voice broke the spell. She was asking for her favorite, and the words came readily to me—Virginia Gabriel's beautiful song, "Ruby:"

"I opened the leaves of a book last night—
The dust on its cover lay dusk and brown;
As I held it toward the waning light
A withered flowerlet fell rustling down.
'Twas only the wraith of a woodland weed
Which a dear dead hand in the days of old
Had placed 'twixt the pages she loved to read
At the time when my news of love was told;
And memory sweet, but as sad as sweet,
Swift flooded mine eyes with regretful tears
As the dry dim barebell skimmed past my feet,
Recalling an hour from the vanished years.
"Once more I was watching her deep fringed eyes
Bent over the Tasso upon her knee,
And the fair face blushing with sweet surprise
At the passionate pleading that broke from me.
Ah, Ruby, my darling, the small white hand
That gathered the harebell was never my own,
But faded and passed to the far-off land,
And I dreamed by the flickering flame alone.
I gathered the flower and I closed the leaves,
And folded my hands in silent prayer
That the reaper Death, as he seeks his sheaves,
Might hasten the hour of our meeting there."

Was I dreaming, or did my own voice die away in a wail of pain—die in a long-drawn bitter sob?

Lady Yorke was near me, and I saw tears in her eyes.

"One more, Miss Chester," she said. "Your songs are so sad and so sweet, they take me out of this world. One more, if you are not too tired."

I had forgiven Mark not very long since; but the longing was upon me to make him feel, to pierce his heart with some little of the anguish which had pierced mine. Never mind what I suffered, if I could send my words flying like barbed arrows across the room.

I looked at him. The handsome profile stood out clearly and distinctly. He stood gazing through the long windows at the night-sky. Ah, yes, I would sing him into feeling. And this was my song—

A DEAD LOVE.

"Down deep in my heart in its last calm sleep,
A dear dead love lies buried deep;
I clasped it once in a long embrace,
And closed the eyes and veiled the face
I never again might see.
I breathed no word and I shed no tear,
But the onward years looked dark and drear,
And I knew, by the throbs of mortal pain,
That a sweetness had fled which never again
Would in life come back to me.
"And dreams of the past, like roses, still shed
Their fragrance around my cherished dead;
While tears that ever are falling unseen,
Like soft summer rain, keeps its memory green
As the turf of the church-yard sod.
And weeping and watching I pray and wait
That an angel may open the golden gate;
For I think that the love of long ago,
Though cold and dead to me here below,
Will be mine in the rest of God."

There was a little stir in the room when my song was finished. The last words rang through my brain—"Will be mine in the rest of God." I had touched him. All those other men and women were nothing to me—only shadows. They had no identity. I saw moving figures, I heard voices, but to me Mark was there alone.

I saw a quiver of pain pass over his face. I had made him feel. Then, so true, so weak a woman was I that I longed to cross the room and kiss the pain away. The odor of violets came to me; Lady Severne was standing by my side.

"How exquisitely you sing, Miss Chester! You make me long for things that I have quite forgotten. How differently we should all live if we could lead our lives over again!"

The brilliant face was softened; the hard metallic light had died from her eyes. I liked her better in that moment than I had before. Then I heard Lady Yorke asking Mark to sing. I remembered the rich cheery voice that had trolled out many love songs.

"You never refused to sing for me in Italy," said Lady Yorke; "why refuse here?"

"Lord Severne has a beautiful voice and a perfect ear," Lady Severne remarked, turning to me.

It comforted me just a little to remember that I had known that long before she did. An uncontrollable trembling came over me, for Mark stood by my side.

"Will you play Lord Severne's accompaniment?" asked Lady Yorke.

"I would rather not," I replied.

"I will," said Lady Severne; "I like to play for him."

Was he thinking of her or thinking of me? Not of me. He could not sing such words to me now; for the song he had chosen was Sullivan's beautiful "My Dearest Heart."

"All the dreaming is broken through;
Both what is done and undone I rue.
Nothing is steadfast nothing is true,
But your love for me, and my love for you,
My dearest, dearest heart!
"When the winds are loud, when the winds are low,
When the roses come, when the roses go,
One thought, one feeling, is all I know,
My dearest, dearest heart!
"The time is weary, the year is old,
And the light of the lily burns close to the mold;
The grave is cruel, the grave is cold,
But the other side is the city of gold,
My dearest heart, my dearest heart!"

The lights and the flowers, the fair faces and jewels, swam before me. It seemed to me that I was faint and ill with the odor of violets. I went from the piano to the other end of the room. I could sing no more that night. A tall jardiniere, filled with exquisite white hyacinths, which stood near afforded me shelter, and from behind the white fragrant flowers I could see and hear all that passed. Lady Yorke came to me there, and said that I must rest.

"You musical people take so much out of yourselves" she said. "You throw your whole souls into your songs. Look at Lord Severne. Who is his 'dearest heart,' I wonder?"

"Lady Severne," I replied quickly.

But Lady Yorke shook her head.

"This is a marriage I cannot understand," she said slowly; "but I begin to see what Lord Severne's secret is."

I would have given worlds for courage to ask her to explain her words, but I did not dare to do so.

She left me, and I watched husband and wife. There was something between them—some shadow. She seemed to me half afraid of him. He regarded her closely. He was ill at ease if she said much, if she laughed or attracted much attention. He reminded me of some one who had the care of a froward child always on the point of breaking out into mischief. They never looked at each other with eyes of trust or love. I had not watched them one half hour before I felt and saw that Mark was wretched.

What could it be? Lady Severne was beautiful, graceful, elegant, and well-bred. What could be wrong with her? There was something, I felt sure.

Later on that evening, when I sat with aching heart and tired eyes, longing for the hour of dismissal, Lady Yorke came to me again. "You look so tired, Miss Chester," she said. "I will not ask you to sing."

We both glanced across the room to where Lady Severne, in her white velvet and diamonds, was the center of a laughing group.

"How beautiful she is!" I said: The words seemed to be wrung from me in very bitterness of heart.

"Yes," said Lady Yorke. "It is a strange thing that the canker always eats the heart of the fairest rose;" and then, seeming vexed at her own words, she hastened to change the subject.

When she had done, I looked long and earnestly at Mark's wife. What could be wrong with this beautiful woman? Nothing with her moral character, or she would not be here at Westwood. With all her nonchalance and indifference, there was no prouder woman living than Lady Yorke. She would not have associated with a duchess who had a blot on her character. There could be nothing of that kind. I saw no blemish in Lady Severne's manner. She was lively, animated, but not "fast;" she was witty and clever but not "loud." I lost myself in conjecture. Only one thing was plain to me—there was something wrong with Mark's wife, and between them there was no love.

The days that followed were busy ones. The month of May was bright and warm. Lady Yorke enjoyed picnics, and several were organized. Whatever flirtations were going on had no interest for me; I saw only Mark and Mark's wife. He and I never spoke, we never exchanged even a look; we were as perfect strangers. The only time we broke through our rule of silence was when he told me that he hoped I would forgive the intrusion of his presence, but that he could not leave Westwood so soon as he had intended, Lady Severne was not willing.

I did not go to any of the picnics. Lady Yorke seemed to understand that I was neither well nor happy just then, and she was very kind to me. I noticed that once or twice Lady Severne was absent. She remained at home while the others went, and on those days I saw uneasiness on Lady Yorke's face and misery in Mark's eyes. On these occasions Lady Severne remained secluded in her own room, and her maid in strict attendance upon her.

That maid, Martha Glyde by name, was a puzzle to me. Prim, reticent, never using two words where one word would suffice, kind, but with never a smile on her face; gentle, yet with a certain grim manner—to me she soon became a living mystery. I thought it so strange that a young and beautiful woman like Lady Severne should prefer a grim, old-fashioned, elderly person like Martha Glyde to a young and pretty maid with a fresh face and quick, tripping footsteps. Moreover, I was not sure in my own mind that Lady Severne did like her.

The woman always assumed a tone of authority that I thought most unbecoming.

As yet I suspected nothing. I had no tangible reasons for any of the shadowy fears that surrounded me. I had watched Lady Severne with eyes and instincts sharpened by love and jealousy, but I saw nothing wrong.

One morning—it was almost the last in May, and the June roses were beginning to bloom—a picnic was arranged. Many of the county families had been invited. Lady Yorke had resolved upon giving an entertainment which should not soon be forgotten. A first-rate military band was one of the chief attractions, and every one looked forward to the day with delight. It had been decided to visit the old Abbey of St. Ninian—a magnificent ruin only a few miles from Woodheaton, and a favorite place of resort.

I was with Lady Yorke in her boudoir half an hour before the time for starting; she was telling me about her letters, when Lord Severne came to the door. Seeing me there, he did not enter. Lady Yorke went to him, and he spoke in a low tone of voice to her. I could see that they were both angry and amazed. Then Lady Yorke spoke in a soothing voice, as if she were trying to comfort him. Shortly afterward he went away, and she returned to the writing-table, with a crimson flush on her face, and an angry gleam in her eyes. I saw that her hands trembled so that she could not hold her pen. She flung it impatiently upon the table.

"You must write this for me, Miss Chester," she said quickly; "I am vexed and grieved;" and she walked to the window, and stood for some minutes looking out.

I knew that it must be something about Mark's wife—my instinct told me so—but I could not solve the mystery. On the previous night she had been unusually gay and animated. Indeed Lord Severne had hovered near her, as though he feared her high spirits might "carry her away." What then could be wrong this morning? His voice, when he spoke to Lady Yorke, was full of pain.

I was right; for, when the long line of carriages started with their loads of gay pleasure-seekers, Lady Severne was not there, and her husband's dark handsome face was clouded and distressed. I was weak enough as I watched him from afar off, to stretch out my hands to him with a longing cry.

"Oh, Mark, my dear lost love, what has gone wrong with you?"

Wells Advocate

CHAPTER XIII.

Lady Yorke had left me very busy. I had many letters to write; I had several gifts of food and clothing to send away, some music and books to select, and I promised, if possible, to visit a poor woman who lay ill in one of the cottages outside Woodheaten. More work was before me, I feared, than I could get through, but I began with a good will. I tried hard to keep my thoughts from wandering, but they would stray to Lady Severne. Why had she not made one of the picnic party? She had so often talked about St. Ninian's Abbey and wished to see it. Why had she remained at home? She could not be ill, or we should have heard of it, and I remembered that Lord Severne and Lady Yorke had spoken in anger rather than in sorrow. It was perfectly clear that there was a mystery, but what was the nature of it I could not imagine. TO BE CONTINUED.

A New Dispensation.

Now when he had milked the kine and his wife had strained the milk into pots made of clay,

The farmer sat himself down and, putting his hands into his pocket, sought for a shekel.

And behold he found none.

Then he said unto his wife: "Why is it that we have so few shekels? Work I not hard from early morn till dewy eve? Yet the shekels disappear as fast as I take them in and I get me none to lay away for a rainy day."

Then his wife answered and said unto him: "I also have been thinking of these things lately and I fear me we are not walking in the right dairy path, in the one that leadeth to a pocketful of shekels. Let us therefore take some good farm papers and learn the uttermost of this business."

And he taketh his wife's advice and subscribeth for a few papers.

After a few months he beginneth to see wherein he had been making mistakes.

And he sayeth to his wife "Let us hasten and do exactly as the papers teach," and they hastened.

Then he selleth all the kine which were poor milkers and investeth of the shekels in a new dairy outfit, and had enough left and to spare to purchase several tons of good feed wherewith to nourish the rest of the herd.

He resolveth to keep winter dairy and breedeth his cows with that object in view.

He maketh granular butter and wrappeth it in parchment paper.

He selleth his butter to persons living afar off in a large city, and he getteth twice as much for it as he got in times past for his buttermilk flavored butter.

He raiseth the heifer calves from his best kine which he has bred to a bull whose name is recorded in a herd book.

He groweth crops for soiling when the drouth comes, and be talketh of building a silo.

His wife resteth and regaineth her strength, by reason of the more convenient dairy machinery her husband had bought.

His children became acquainted with store clothes and go to school, while his big dog churneth the butter.

He worketh not so many hours as heretofore but the work he now doeth is profitable.

Now, when he putteth his hand into his pocket it graspeth many shekels.

He layeth by shekels abundantly in a bank, that when he getteth old he will be provided for.

His wife also employeth a servant girl and findeth time to grow some flowers.

He improveth his farm and keepeth the house newly painted.

Yes, verily, he becometh a model dairyman, chief among the men of that country, and he so enlighteneth his neighbors that they seeing his prosperity, do likewise, so the whole land floweth with milk and fatness.—National Stockman.

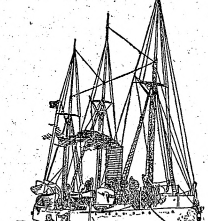
A Queen's Life Insurance.

Emma the Queen Regent of Holland has insured her life for the sum of three millions of florins, which amount is to be paid to the young Queen Wilhelmina, if she survives her mother.—La Gazette de Bruxelles.

ROME'S FAMOUS CORSO.

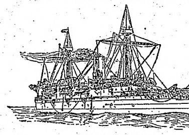
A Street That Carries the Memory Far Back Into the Past.

Of all the historic streets the great cities of the world possess, none can surpass if indeed any can vie with, the so-called Corso of Rome. Shorn as it is now of its ancient and mediaeval glories, it is haunted by trains of memories which consecrate it to every student.



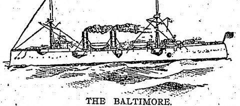
ARGUMENTS FOR PEACE—THE YORKTOWN.

In our times, even in Rome, upstart rivals, of modern growth—and one in particular, that Via Nazionale—assume to compare with it. It exceeds it in length and in breadth; it has many modern arts and graces and conveniences that the narrow and dear old Corso lacks. Larger and newer buildings are ranged along its sides. Broader paths for foot passengers have there been constructed.



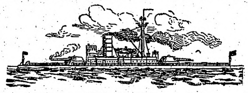
THE CHARLESTON.

Gayer shops, with larger windows, flaunt their goods and invite the world of purchasers. Tramways have there been laid down, and the sound of the trumpet from the tramway omnibuses warns the carriages and foot passengers to clear the road. All is new, modern, and the birth of to-day.



THE BALTIMORE.

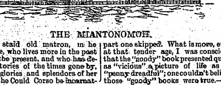
But there are no memories there, no gleams and visions of old days and customs and persons such as cling about the narrow lengths of the old and world-famous street. There are no haunting spirits, no historic reminiscences, no legends of the old, no figures of the past, writes W. W. Story in Scribner's.



THE PURITAN.

There is all the difference between these two streets that there is between the gay young girl just entering into life, full of thoughtless gayety and looking forward into the future and the staid old matron, in he serene age, who lives more in the past than in the present, and who has delightful stories of the times gone by, and the glories and splendors of her youth. the Could Corso be incarnated, with what delight should we hang upon her lips and listen to her old-world tales, and live over with her the long-vanished past!

THE MIANTONOMOH.



THE MONTEREY.

The best of society is not always the best educator.

The Population of the World.

Professor Hermann Wagner and Dr. Supan have given the following estimate of the population of the world, according to the latest statistics. In Europe—excluding Iceland, Nova Zembla, and the Atlantic Islands—there are 3,756,850 square miles of territory, inhabited by 357,379,000 persons, giving a density of 92 persons to the square mile. In Asia—without the Polar Islands—the corresponding figures are 17,044,182; 825,954,000; 48. In Africa—excluding Madeira, etc.—they are 11,277,325; 163,953,000; 14. In America—excluding the Polar Islands—they are 14,801,400; 121,713,000; 8. In Australia—the Mainland and Tasmania—they are 2,971,440; 3,230,000; 1. In the Oceanic Islands they are 733,120; 7,420,000; 10. The total area of these continents is 52,315,147 square miles, with a population of 1,479,729,400, and a total density of 28 to the square mile.

Good Books or Penny Dreadfuls for Children.

"Good books for the young"—that is a stock phrase. "The influence of vicious literature upon the masses"—that is another. Then there is that black bogey, "the penny dreadful." When I was young—I am not ashamed to own it!—I read everything. I read every "penny dreadful" I could lay my hands upon. I read "good books"—that is, "goody" books—and did not particularly like them. I never met a boy or girl who did. One did not mind the story part, what story there was, but the "goody" part one skipped. What is more, even at that tender age, I was conscious that the "goody" book presented quite as "vicious" a picture of life as the "penny dreadful"; one couldn't believe those "goody" books were true.—All the Year Round.

No domestic animal should ever be kept in a dark stable. Give plenty of good wholesome sunlight. The eyes of many animals are permanently injured by the sudden transitions from inner darkness to outer sunshine.

HOW TO SET A TABLE.

Delmonico Tells How a Table Should Be Set and Arranged.

"Learn first," says Delmonico in an article in the Ladies Home Journal, "how to set a table. A round table is better than a square table, if the dining room is large enough to permit it. If not, then the ordinary oblong extension table must be used. The round table is much more preferable and easier to seat people at; besides, it gives a suggestion of the famous 'King Arthur and his Knights of the Round Table.' A few prominent society ladies still cling to the old-fashioned long, narrow table. Mrs. Astor, for example, still uses that style of dining-table in order that her famous gold dinner set may be placed to the best advantage. Mrs. August Belmont, on the contrary, prefers an oblong table, and the decorations for an elaborate dinner are carried out to make the shape more pronounced. Flowers should never be absent from the dinner-table. No matter how homely, they add to the picturesqueness of the feast.

"Let us see how a table is set for a fashionable dinner party. On the table is first placed a thick flannel cloth, the thicker it is the better as it prevents noise of the dishes as they are placed on it. Over this is spread a snowy-white damask tablecloth, bearing the family crest or coat-of-arms. Sometimes over this is placed still another, of elaborate embroidery and lace, lined with pink or yellow satin, as taste dictates, or whatever color is to predominate at the dinner. The plates are first placed upon the table. As these are to remain until after soup is served, they are always the handsomest in the gold or china sets, as the case may be. Don't crowd. Each guest should be allowed a space of two feet or twenty-six inches if the table will admit of it, and the plates placed at equal distances apart. Place two dinner forks to the left of each plate; also an oyster fork with prongs resting on the edge of the plate. On the right must be a dinner knife and a spoon for soup. The glasses are arranged at the right of each guest on a line with the inner edge of the plate. The water glass is set next to the plate. Then glasses for whatever other beverages are intended to be served. A glass, whether of water or any other liquid, should never be filled more than three-quarters full."

How the Rooster Flaps His Wings.

William Hamilton Gibson, who is a trained observer of plants and animals, satisfied himself some time ago that a rooster makes the flapping noise that accompanies his crowing by striking his wings together over his back. The popular notion is that the bird produces the noise by striking his wings against his hard, fat thighs. Mr. Gibson discussed the subject with a farmer once, and the latter laughed at the artist's idea and said: "I've been brought up among chickens, and I guess I know how a rooster flaps his wings." "Very good," said Mr. Gibson, "but just watch your own fowls for a week, and tell me what you think then." The scornful farmer promised, and returned at the end of the week with the humble confession that Mr. Gibson was right.

GRAINS OF GOLD.

Wrong doing begins with wrong thinking.

People who never ask any questions never learn very much.

It is easier to run with the crowd than it is to walk by yourself.

A life that helps others is always widening and deepening itself.

There isn't much faith in the prayer that doesn't look for an answer.

Everything we ought to do is duty; we owe somewhere all we ought to do.

It is more difficult to dissimulate the sentiments we have than to simulate those we have not.

It comes so much easier to forgive those who have caused us suffering, when we learn that we, too, have made others to suffer.

Do everything else in a rush, if you must, but eat slowly. This advice is old, but you will live to be the same if you take it.

We have learned that conscience whispers to each one "I ought," and that it does so because what we ought to do is good and right.

Remember we may not always know the right, and that is why we must study it. But let our intention be for the right, even though we may make a mistake.

Pleasing in company is the only way of being pleased in it yourself. Sense and knowledge are the first and necessary foundations for pleasing in company; but they will by no means do alone, and they will never be perfectly welcome if they are not accompanied with manners and attentions.

THE SECKEL PEAR.

It Grew for Fifty Years Without Having Been Tasted.

"He who discovers a new dish confers a greater benefit on mankind than he that discovers a new star," says a famous writer, and the majority of persons would be willing to accept the statement without dissent, says the Youth's companion.

Five miles from Philadelphia, at the confluence of the Delaware and Schuylkill rivers, there is a fine old place, once known as the Lawrence Seckel estate, afterward the property of Stephen Girard.

In the time of the Seckels the abundance and variety of its fruit, especially its fine pears, made the place famous. Not many years ago there was still standing in a corner of the grounds an old pear tree—a very patriarch among the trees, and the most celebrated of them all.

For more than half a century the fruit of this tree was not tasted. No one thought of eating the insignificant pears—not much larger than marbles—and the tree was condemned as worthless, while its fruit rotted on the ground or was eaten by cows or goats.

Mr. Seckel, Lawrence's father, threatened many times to cut down the tree, but years passed and it stood, biding its time. How it came there or who planted it no one knew. Lawrence Seckel came into possession of the estate, and the pear tree, being in a sense an ancient landmark, was allowed to stand, although the owner had it in his mind to cut it down some time.

One afternoon in early fall Mr. Seckel was returning from a long walk and chanced to pass beneath the worthless tree. He stood for a minute resting in its shade. Suddenly a pear dropped, struck him upon the head, from which he had removed his hat, and rolled into his open palm.

Half automatically he fumbled the fruit between his fingers and was in the act of throwing it away when it occurred to him to bite it. "Ah, the flavor of that pear," Mr. Seckel used to say in telling the incident, "I had thought myself a connoisseur in pears, but I had never tasted the equal of that aforetime despised little fruit."

Thus was the Seckel pear discovered. That year the pears were not left to rot on the ground or to feed cows and goats. They became the favorite on Mr. Seckel's table. Scions from the tree were soon in demand, and the Seckel pear has now become a favorite.

FASHIONS AT HOTELS.

How to Behave Yourself When Away From Home.

Always leave the water standing in the wash-bowl when done with it.

Fill up your coat pockets with hotel stationery; it will help to advertise the hotel.

Look over the papers and books on the news-stand without any intention of buying anything.

Suck the soup from off the end of the spoon. The harder you suck the further you can be heard.

Step up to the bootblack stand and brush yourself or black your own boots, thereby saving a dime.

If anything is mislaid or lost in a hotel it is proper to accuse the chambermaid or other help of pilfering.

It is proper to wash your mustache in the finger-bowl, there being no law by which you may be stopped.

Stand in front of the counter and publicly proclaim that you think the hotel is about the worst you ever saw.

Stick your feet upon the writing desk in the reading and writing room next to your neighbor who is endeavoring to write.

It is proper to ballast your coat-tail pockets with oranges, apples and a general supply of fruit when leaving the dining room.

Invite chums to your room and keep up such a racket during the night that no one in rooms adjoining can get a moment's sleep.

Tell the waiter he is the stupidest fool you ever saw, and be sure you speak loud enough, so that others can hear you all over the dining room.

Photographer—"Is there any particular way in which you would like to be taken?" Mr. Sim Johnsing—"Yes, sah. If dere's no dejection, I'd like to be taken a light cream color."—Smith, Gray & Co.'s Monthly.

A mother was calling the attention of her little boy to the moon, which was to be seen clearly, but pallidly, in the early afternoon. "Why, you can't see the moon in the day time!" replied the youngster. "Oh, yes you can—there it is over the trees!" The little fellow looked and had to admit the fact that he saw it, but he added, "Tain't lighted, anyhow.—Babyhood.

Ammonia and Alum Officially Condemned.

INDIANAPOLIS IN THE WAKE OF OTHER CITIES.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder is Pure.

IT CONTAINS NO DELETERIOUS INGREDIENTS.

(See Report of Indianapolis Board of Health, on Baking Powder November 4, 1891.)

AMMONIA AND ALUM NOT FITTED FOR FOOD.

Dr. Latz, chemist to the Board of Health, who made the investigation of the Baking Powders on the market, at the request of the Board says: "Physiologists of high standing consider Ammonia and Alum deleterious substances unfitted for use in food."

These are the brands condemned by the Board of Health: Royal, Climax, Atlantic and Pacific, Kenton, Crown, Sea Foam, Bon Bon, Early Rising, Queen, Regal, Ruckelhaus, Forest City, Calumet.

Dr. Latz, City Chemist also says: "Dr. Price's Baking Powder, contains only such ingredients as a Pure Baking Powder ought to be composed of and I recommend the same to every housekeeper as pure, wholesome and effective."

(Signed)

PETER LATZ, City Chemist.

Proceedings of the County Board.

AT THE MEETING CONVENED JAN. 22ND.

Financial statement read and ordered published.

County orders and warrants paid in 1891 examined and destroyed.

The bids of the following named banks, as depositories of the county funds, were accepted and bonds approved, viz: 1st National Bank of Crookston, Merchants National Bank of Crookston, 1st National Bank of East Grand Forks, and Bank of Fisher, all 3 per cent on daily balances and the Citizens' Bank of McIntosh, 4 per cent.

The bids of the Scandia-American Bank of Crookston, the 1st National Bank of Red Lake Falls, and the Bank of Fertile were accepted provided the said banks furnish suitable bonds and present them at the next meeting.

Application of W. F. McLennan, of Angus, for correction of personal taxes was granted.

The bridge committee reported in favor of building an iron bridge at Thief River Falls at a cost of $7,800, that being the bid of the Wraught Iron Co., of Canton, Ohio, and auditor and chairman were authorized to enter into contract with said company for the work.

Commissioner DeMers offered the following resolution which was adopted.

Be it resolved by the board of county commissioners of Polk County, Minn., that the sum of $3,000 be appropriated out of the county road and bridge fund and that the bonds of Polk County for the sum of $3,000 be issued and sold for the purpose of constructing and building an iron wagon bridge across the Red Lake River at Thief River Falls in said county, and said amounts so appropriated to be used together with the sum of $1,000 appropriated by the village of Thief River Falls, and the sum of $450 appropriated by the Legislature in the year of 1891, and be it further

RESOLVED—That we approve of the location of said bridge as recommended by the committee.

A. C. Rhinehart offered the following resolution which was adopted, viz:

Whereas, pursuant to an act passed by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota and approved on April 21st, 1891, that the board shall issue the bonds of Polk County in the sum of $3,000 for the purpose of building a bridge across Red Lake River at Thief River Falls in Polk County, therefore be it

RESOLVED—That the county auditor be and is hereby directed to advertise for bids for said bonds, the bonds to be issued in series of $1,000 each and to run for ten years.

The bond of Christianson Bros., abstractors, referred back asking a proviso to be inserted as follows: "and to make good any losses which persons or corporations might suffer through any errors of consequence appearing in the abstracts furnished by said Christianson Bros., as such abstractors."

The appointment of W. N. Dixon as assistant supt. of schools was approved.

The following resolution was adopted:

RESOLVED—That the report of the county surveyor, locating the Crookston and Gentilly county road be accepted, and the County directed to record said road in accordance therewith, and, be it further

RESOLVED—That the county commissioners do hereby assess and determine the damages sustained by reason of the location and establishment of said Crookston and Gentilly county road, over the lands of the following owners, and do hereby assess and award the same as follows, viz:

To Edward Lanclot, on lot 1, section 25, Tp. 150, R. 46, $20.

To Charles Olson, on lots 4, 5 and 6, section 24, Tp. 150, R. 46, $1.

To Frank Lefevre, on south ½ s w ¼ sec. 24, Tp. 150, R. 46, $1.

All other owners having released damages as it appears on file in auditor's office.

Petition of Ole Mortenson and others for attaching secs. 29 and 30 in Tp. 154, R. 49, and sec. 25 in Tp. 154, R. 50 to school district No. 207 was granted.

The following resolution was offered and adopted, viz:

RESOLVED—That that portion of sec. 1, Tp. 150, R. 49, lying north of Red Lake River, be, and the same is hereby detached from Bygland township and attached to the town of Huntsville, in accordance with a petition on file and acted upon favorably at a previous meeting of this board, it appearing that proper notices having been given the chairman of supervisors of the respective towns named of this proposed change in the boundaries of said towns and no remonstrance having been filed by either of the towns affected, it is hereby ordered that the portion named above be hereafter recognized as part of the town of Huntsville.

Register of deeds John H. Locken submitted the following report:

Total number of instruments filed in said office during the year ending Dec. 31st, 1891, 4,001, as follows, viz:

Warranty, bonds and quit claim deeds	1,340
U. S. patents	226
Receiver receipts	122
Miscellaneous	399
Real estate mortgages	815
Satisfactions of mortgages	625
Assignments of mortgages	193
Certificates of foreclosure sales	281
Total cash receipts from Jan. 6th 1891 to May 1st 1891	$1,521 40
Paid for clerk hire	640 00
Postage and stationery	48 00
Bal. proceeds for 4 months	858 90
	$1,521 40
Total cash receipts, May 1st 1891 to Dec. 31st 1891	2,865 95
Clerks' salaries	1,136 00
Bal. net profits 8 mos	1,729 95
	2,865 95

The following bills were audited and allowed:

Wm. Marin, labor assisting county surveyor	$ 5 00
Wm. Marin, making a book case and truck	12 00
A. Halverson & Co., boarding Murley and McGurk	15 00
John Flesch, taking prisoners to county jail	10 40
Charles Kindler, constable fees	17 50
McKinnon Bros., coal and wood for county hospital	45 42
John Evenson, emptying vault under county jail	50 78
Alderman & Sylvester, hardware and work for county jail	50 78
John Larson, nightguard at county jail from Oct. 23rd to Dec. 31st, 1891	114 94
J. O. Brandt, undertaker's fees on "Little Chief"	7 00
E. A. Vineland, examining of the body of "Little Chief"	10 00
A. McEachran, holding inquest of "Little Chief"	10 20
Brown Tracey & Co., blanks and 1 set Kelley's statutes	22 30
V. D. Carruth, postage and express	5 25
Dr. A. Nelson, services on Andrew Nelson bill of $117.00 allowed at	13 00
Dr. A. Nelson, services on John Nelson	10 00
Dr. A. Nelson, services on Skaar, Nelson & Thorpet bill of $38.00 allowed at	11 00
Dr. A. Nelson, services N. Sundo bill of $48.00 allowed at	12 00
O. L. Hamery, surveyor's fees	12 00
P. Bodine, 4000 county bill blanks	18 00
Dr. C. E. Dampier, visits to county prisoners	6 00
Arny Grundysen, paid John Larsen for nightguard at Co. jail, Jan. 1, 1892 to Jan. 8	10 60
Arny Grundysen, boarding prisoners	54 84
Arny Grundysen, sheriff fees	81 45
Arny Grundysen, sheriff fees	107 70
A. R. Holston, cash advanced on fare	2 50
Gunder Haraldson, two days on surveying with team	7 00
S. O. Brandt, justice fees	1 95
S. H. Bang, cleaning vault under jail	7 00
D. F. McDonald, cleaning sidewalk	4 00
J. O. Brandt, justice fees	2 55
John Ross, janitor's work	22 00
Charles Myers, constable fees bill of $15.40 allowed	12 00
C. U. Webster, postage and express	3 65
A. C. Rhinehart, comr. per diem and mileage	41 20
C. P. DeMers, comr. per diem and mileage	54 20
M. E. Kirsch, comr. per diem and mileage	34 20
Paul Felix, labor on the Crookston and Gentilly road	5 00
Nap Gauron, labor on the Crookston and Gentilly road	5 00
Joseph Netzer, boarding hospital janitor	5 00

The bills of James Cambell, T. H. Knickerbocker and John Evenson ($7.00) were rejected.

The following report of Supt. of schools was read and ordered published.

To the Board of County Commissioners of Polk County,

Gentlemen: I beg leave to submit the following report of schools in this county:

No. of scholars entitled to apportionment	5,451
Of these attending independent and special districts	1,128
Leaving in attendance on common school districts	4,323
Number of scholars not entitled to apportionment	2,114
Of these attending independent and special districts	194
Leaving in attendance on common school districts	1,920

FOR SCHOOLS OF MORE THAN ONE DEPT.

Entire No. of scholars enrolled in each term:
Fall	1,496
Winter	1,802
Spring	1,639
Average daily attendance of fall term	1,044
Average daily attendance of winter term	1,244
Average daily attendance of spring term	1,071
Average length school in months	8 8-9
" number months of school voted for coming year	91.9
No. teachers, each sex in each term:
Fall, males	8
" females	27
Winter, males	8
" females	30
Spring, males	9
" females	30
Average monthly wages of teachers, for year, males	$67 18
Average monthly wages of teachers, for year, females	41 22
No. of teachers who have taught in one district continuously the past three years	10
No. who have taught two but less than three years	12
No. who have taught one but less than two years	16
No. independent district	8
No. special "	1
Common school districts having more than one department	5

COMMON SCHOOL DISTRICTS OR THOSE OF ONE DEPARTMENT.

Entire number of scholars enrolled each term:
Fall	2,516
Winter	1,908
Spring	4,085
Average daily attendance each term:
Fall	1,459
Winter	1,010
Spring	2,401
Average length of school in months	5 8-9
Average length of school in months voted coming year	6
No. teachers, each sex, each term:
Fall, males	17
" females	96
Winter, males	26
" females	37
Spring, males	21
" females	114
Average monthly wages of teachers for year:
Males	$36 08
Females	32 40
No. teachers who have taught in one district continuously the past 3 years	4
No. teachers who have taught in one district continuously two, but less than three years	16
No. teachers who have taught in one district continuously one, but less than two years	52
No. common school districts	209

FINANCIAL STATEMENT FOR ALL DISTRICTS.

Receipts.
Cash on hand at beginning of year	$33,520 86
Rec. from school funds, fines, estrays and licenses	22,870 53
Rec. from local one mill tax collected	5,299 47
Rec. special taxes collected	51,225 90
Rec. bonds sold	22,546 06
Rec. from all other sources	13,279 79
	$148,760 61
Per Contra.
Paid for teachers' wages and board	$51,538 37
Paid for wood and school supplies	6,359 32
Paid for repairs and improving grounds	3,634 00
Paid for new school houses and sites	7,552 20
Paid for bonds and interest	22,546 64
Paid for library books	162 10
Paid for other purposes	6,481 64
Cash on hand at end of year	50,486 34
	$148,760 61
No school houses built, frame 9, log 2, total	11
Value of new school houses built	$ 9,278 56
Whole number school houses:
Frame	151
Brick	2
Log	33
Total	186
Value of all school houses and sites	174,211 00
Value of all seats and desks	15,819 00
Value of apparatus	8,163 00
Aggregate indebtedness	77,706 68
Number of districts included	169
No. of visits made by county superintendent	166
No. of districts not visited	43
No. of first grade certificates granted:
Males	5
Females	3
Second grade certificates:
Males	16
Females	45
Third grade certificates:
Males	12
Females	68
Rejected	20
Examinations held, spring, 4; fall, 4.
No. of scholars between 5 and 8 yrs.	1,682
" " " 8 " 16 "	3,621
" " " 16 " 21 "	336
" school houses in natural grove	60
" having trees about them	99
Institutes held	1
Enrollment at institute	109
Average number of voters present at annual meetings	10

V. D. CARRUTH,
Co. Supt. Schools.

Dated, Crookston, Jan. 22, 1892.

Our Duluth Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

DULUTH, Feb. 1.—Two events of much interest to our people and to a considerable number outside have occurred the past week. They were the visit here of the members of the Northwestern Retail Lumber Dealers' association and the talk to the citizens, by Jas. E. York, the well known iron man, upon the making of steel in this city.

The lumbermen numbered over 300 and came from Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska, North and South Dakota. They were given a reception by local lumber manufacturers and dealers and the Jobbers' union. Before arriving here on Thursday they visited the big Cloquet mills and one or two logging camps. While here they looked over the big saw mills at West Duluth, and saw not only two or three of the latest improved mills and some of the largest, but also two iron factories where saw mills are made. Duluth is so important a lumber center that this visit was an appropriate one. Unlike most other lumber centers this one is becoming more important every year, and it is to this city and the immediate vicinity that much of the Northwest as well as a considerable portion of the East must look in the future for their lumber supply. The industry is constantly increasing and is a most important factor in the growth of Duluth. What it will become may be seen by the information given by well informed men, that there are to-day in the Duluth district, most of it directly tributary to the city, about 6,000,000,000 feet of standing pine. The visitors went away well pleased with their day's visit and its results. They were not only entertained, but also proved in their minstrel performance good entertainers.

Mr. York is the patentee of a valuable method of making structural steel, and is one of the most foremost men of his line in America. He has recently organized a company to manufacture the steel, and is looking to Duluth as the most desirable location of the big plant he and his associates will erect. He consented to address our people on the subject of iron and steel making especially in regard to Duluth as a great iron center. After a history of the development of the iron and steel trade, he compared the cost of manufacturing at different points. He showed that it was much cheaper to manufacture pig iron from the Lake Superior ores than from the Alabama, for one ton of the former is equal to two of the latter. Chicago produces pig iron from Lake Superior ores at $14 a ton, and Duluth can produce it cheaper. He said "The recent discoveries in the Mesabi Range are of great interest to Duluth. I have been informed by a reliable gentleman that contracts can be made for ore at Duluth that will not only permit the successful manufacture of iron and steel, but will permit the shipping of pig iron to both Chicago and Pittsburg." Mr. York sketched the history of the making of Bessemer steel and the grand results of Bessemer's invention, which had enabled the production of steel rails at $30 a ton, had doubled the carrying capacity of freight cars and lowered the rates of freight 50 per cent in 20 years. His process, the open hearth, was equally important. The Bessemer cannot utilize scrap steel that comes back into the market and 75 per cent of this material comes back. He is satisfied that he can buy steel scraps at Duluth $4 a ton cheaper than at Pittsburg. After showing where he would find a market he closed by saying: "If the products of Lake Superior manufactured into steel give a value of $200,000,000, you can form some idea of the possibilities of this location when this material is put into many diversified articles that take in the use of wood and steel."

HAYS.

REMNANT SALE.

Remnant Sale.

GERVAIS'------The Hustlers,

GREAT SALE OF

REMNANTS,
ODDS AND ENDS
AND BROKEN LINES
OF ALL KINDS.

BIG BARGAINS OFFERED.

Cloaks and Shawls
—o—AT—o—
Tremendous Reductions.

Gervais' - The Hustlers.

REMNANT SALE.

OUR HOLIDAY STOCK
—IS—
ON DISPLAY

THE FAIR
DEPARTMENT STORE,
Cor. Main and Robert Sts., Crookston.

P. J. RUSSELL,
Attorney- t-Law
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Next to Merchants' Bank.

Farmers' Egg Cases.

Call and Get a Ticket

And when you purchase anything at our store have the amount punched. The case is made of tin, handsomely Japanned and ornamented. The Fillers are made of cloth paper and very durable. Saves both packing and counting, obviates loss from breakage and miscounts and is an ornament to any home. This case will be given you when your cash purchases amount to $25.00.

When empty these cases can be used to carry groceries in, and are very handy for that. Remember the place,

A. Sture's New Store,
CROOKSTON, MINN
Opera House Block,

NEW BARBER SHOP.
On Main St. C. E. MISNER, Prop.
Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.

RAZORS HONED. If you desire your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 30 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it.
Yours Respectfully,
C. E. MISNER.

U. S. LAND OFFICE
Crookston, Minn., February 3rd, 1892.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register or Receiver of U. S. Land Office, at Crookston Minn., on March 11th, 1892, viz: ALFRED SAVARY, Hd. 14,686, for the n½ nw¼ and lots 1 and 4 Sec. 27, Tp. 150, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Jacob R. Barb, Frank Robert, Edmund M. Walsh, Christopher Hanson, all of Crookston, Polk County, Minn.

[42-47] HUGH THOMPSON, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minnesota, Jan. 18, 1892.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register or Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on February 29th, 1892, viz: Tosten L. Oleson, Hd. No. 12,259, for the S W¼ Sec. 14, Twp. 147, Range 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: Knut S. Akre, John J. Ellingson, Halvor Ellingson, Edevart T. Ramse, all of Nellsville, Minn.

[40-45] HUGH THOMPSON, Register.

CHRISTIANSON BROTHERS
(Correspondents Fargo Loan Agency.)
REAL ESTATE
Farm Mortgage Loans and Insurance.

☞ Special Bargains in Choice Farm Lands, improved and unimproved. Low prices and easy terms.

— OFFICE ON ROBERT STREET, —
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN

DENTISTRY

Artificial Teeth and Roofless Plates.
BY NEW PATENT.

Don't Have Teeth Extracted if Two Teeth or Roots Remain in Proper Position in Either Jaw. An Entire Set of Teeth can be Attached to them.

PATENT GOLD CLASPS

The teeth never tip or drop down while eating, talking or laughing, the gold clasps admitting of tightening or loosening in all cases. This new method for inserting where as discovered by experimenting, patented February 11th, 1890 and I am now able to make perfect fits for all. This process is absolutely without pain and at a price within the reach of all.

Call on me before you have your teeth extracted as I make a specialty of Removable Bridge, and Roofless Plates. A perfect fit guaranteed in every case. Gold fillings inserted. Vitalized air and electricity for painless operations.

DR. J. H. THOMAS,
Owns Polk County, Minn., for this patent.

STUDY LAW
AT HOME.
Take a Course in the Sprague Correspondence School of Law. Send ten cents (stamps) for particulars to
J. COTNER, Jr., Sec.,
No. 80 Whitney Block
DETROIT, MICH.

MILLER & FOOTE,
ATTY'S-AT-LAW,
McKinnon Block, - Crookston, Minn.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

THE
Great Transcontinental Route

Passes through Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, Manitoba, Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington.

The Dining Car Line

Dining cars are run between Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Winnipeg, Butte, Helena, Tacoma, Seattle and Portland.

PULLMAN SLEEPING CAR ROUTE.

Pullman service daily between Chicago, St. Paul, Montana and the Pacific Northwest; and between St. Paul, Minneapolis and Minnesota, North Dakota and Manitoba points.

THE POPULAR LINE.

Daily Express Trains carry elegant Pullman Sleeping Cars, Dining Cars, Day Coaches, Pullman Tourist Sleepers and Free Colonist Sleeping Cars.

YELLOWSTONE PARK ROUTE.

The Northern Pacific R. R. is the rail line to Yellowstone Park; the popular line to California and Alaska; and its trains pass through the grandest scenery of seven states.

THROUGH TICKETS

Are sold at all coupon offices of the Northern Pacific Railroad to points North, East, South and West, in the United States and Canada.

For rates, maps, time tables, or special information, apply to

CHAS. A. SHARKEY,
Agent Northern Pacific R. R.,
Crookston, Minn.

CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent,
St. Paul, Minn.

NEW CIGAR STORE
SIGN OF THE BIG INDIAN.
H. F. BROWN, Proprietor.
Second Street,
CROOKSTON, MINN

Cigars of every known brand, from a cheroot to a 25 center. Cigarettes, Chewing and Smoking Tobaccos of all kinds, Snuff, Pipes to suit the fancy of all, from a corn-cob pipe to a meerchaum.

CALL IN.

FRANK IVES, Notary Public and U. S. Coms'r.
D. E. HATLESTAD, District Court Commissioner

IVES & HATLESTAD,
Attorneys and Counselors at Law,
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.

Will practice in all the courts and before the U. S. Land Office at Crookston and Washington. Pensions and Soldiers' Claims and Patents carefully and promptly adjusted.

We loan money on improved farms and city property and have facilities for placing large loans at low rate of interest. We give special attention to collection and all business pertaining to our profession.

MINNESOTA HOUSE,
ONE-HALF BLOCK FROM DEPOT.
WM. HEIDRICH, - - Proprietor.

Having rented this Popular House and thoroughly re-fitted and re-furnished it throughout, I am now prepared to meet the wants of all who want good and cheap accommodations. ☞ Farmers custom especially invited.

Terms $1.00 per Day.

DR. M. WATTS.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
Office over Merchants' Bank.
☞ Professional calls by day or night.

L. E. GOSSMAN,
Attorney-at-Law,
No. 2 Fournet Block, CROOKSTON, MINN.

THE NEW
NORTHWEST

FARM LANDS. Home seekers will find the last of the public domain of agricultural and grazing value along the Great Northern Ry. in North Dakota and Montana.

NEW TOWNS. 100 or more, along the Great Northern Railway Line. Business chances. Write F. I. Whitney, St. Paul, Minn., for Books, Maps, &c. Write now.

LOW RATES. Settlers on free Government lands along the Great Northern Ry. Line in North Dakota and Montana get low rates and fine markets for products.

Horses, Cattle. Montana produces the finest Horses and Cattle. Free ranges yet in Mouse, Milk and Sun River Valleys and Sweet Grass Hills.

Health, Wealth. In the Northwest. Free Lands. New Towns. New Railways. New Mines. Low Rates. Largest area of good vacant land.

Sheep, Hogs. Sweetest Grass Hills, Milk and Sun River Valleys, Montana, reached only by the Great Northern Railway Line. The stock raisers' paradise.

Herds, Mines. These have made Montana the richest State per capita in the Union. Plenty of room for more miners and stock raisers. Now is the time.

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON

PAID IN CAPITAL, - $100,000
SURPLUS, - - $12,700

Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittance.

GEO. Q. ERSKINE, President.
WM. ANGLIM, Vice President.
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashier.

DIRECTORS:
Wm. Anglim, E. D. Chase, F. D. Childs,
Geo. Q. Erskine, R. B. Northrop, A. A. Miller,
E. M. Walsh, John Moore, W. H. Crosby,
Chas. E. Sawyer.

Polk County Journal.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.

Crookston, February 4, 1892.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

	Leave Crookston Daily.	Arrive Crookston Daily.
For Duluth, Ashland, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago, and all points East and South............	10:08 p. m.	8:25 a. m.
For Grand Forks, Grafton, Pembina, Winnipeg and points in N. Dakota and Winnipeg........	8:25 a. m.	10:08 p. m.

FOR PRINCIPAL POINTS IN

GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY LINE

MINNESOTA,
NORTH DAKOTA,
SOUTH DAKOTA,
MANITOBA,
MONTANA, AND
PACIFIC COAST.

TIME CARD.

MONTANA EXPRESS DAILY.

7:40 p. m. de..........St. Paul..........ar. 6:55 a. m.
7:00 a. m. de......CROOKSTON......de. 7:25 p. m.
8:15 a. m. de......Grand Forks......de. 6:20 p. m.
2:30 p. m. ar..........Helena..........de. 11:00 a. m.

ST. VINCENT BRANCH.

Daily, except Sunday.

Depart 7:30 a. m.....................................Arrive 6:45 p. m.

FOSSTON BRANCH.

DAILY, EXCEPT SUNDAY.

Depart 7:30 a. m.....................................Arrive 5:00 p. m.

ST. HILAIRE BRANCH.

Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

Depart 10:45 a. m.....................................Arrive 4:00 p. m.

W. W. FEGAN,
Agent, Crookston.

IF YOU ARE GOING EAST OR SOUTH ASK YOUR NEAREST AGENT FOR TICKETS VIA THE BURLINGTON AND TAKE NO OTHER LINE.

Council Proceedings.

Proceedings of a special meeting of the City Council of the City of Crookston held in the city hall on Tuesday January 6th, 1892.

Meeting called to order by President Cromb.

ROLL CALL.

Aldermen present—Jerome, Marshall, McGlogan, Walker, Steenerson, Cromb.

Aldermen absent—Buhn, Childs, Jennings, Marlette, Schmidt.

CALL OF THE ACTING MAYOR.

CROOKSTON, Minn., Jan. 26, 1892.

A special meeting of the City Council will be held at the city hall at five o'clock p. m. to-day, to make arrangements to purchase a jail site and park, and provide for the payment of the same.

JOHN CROMB,
President City Council,
Acting Mayor.

At a special meeting of the city council of the city of Crookston, held the 26th day of January 1892, Alderman Walker offered the following resolution, which was seconded by alderman McGlogan:

Resolved, that the city purchase the following described parcel of land for a jail site and park purposes, for the sum of eight thousand four hundred dollars, viz.: Beginning at the intersection of the northerly line of Second Street, in the city of Crookston, Minnesota, if extended, with the westerly line of the right of way of the Duluth, Crookston and Northern Railway; thence northerly in a curved line to the right, with a radious of 766 77-100 feet and along said right of way line two hundred and four (204) feet; thence westerly in a straight line to a stake at the southwest corner of the land described in deed from M. O. Zwickey to Martha A. Wright, which deed is of record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, in book 47, page 285, of deeds; thence southerly on a line drawn at right angles to said northerly line of said Second Street, if extended eleven (11) feet; thence easterly on a line drawn parallel to said northerly line of said Second Street, if extended forty (40) feet; thence southerly on a line drawn at right angles to said northerly line of said Second Street if extended one hundred and fifty (150) feet to said northerly line of said Second Street, if extended; thence easterly along said northerly line of said Second Street if extended one hundred and twenty-six (126) feet to the place of beginning.

And resolved further, that the city officers be, and they are hereby instructed to issue the orders of the city payable out of the Improvement Fund for the purchase price of said tract of land, in the sum of eight thousand four hundred dollars, upon the delivery of a warranty deed for said tract of land by the owners thereof, Scott and Braley, to the City Clerk for the use of the city.

Upon the call of ayes and nays the vote stood as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative—Jerome, Marshall, McGlogan, Walker, Cromb.

Steenerson asked to be excused.

Aldermen voting in the negative—none.

Upon this vote the resolution was declared carried by the President of the Council.

Passed this 26th day of January, 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
President of the Council.

Approved this 26th day of Jan. 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
Acting Mayor.

Attest: E. C. CARRUTH,
City Clerk.

On motion council adjourned.

E. C. CARRUTH,
City Clerk.

M. R. Brown, whose advertisement appears elsewhere in this issue, has probably sold more horses in this county than any other man ever did. He came to Crookston in the fall of 1878, and after a thorough examination of the then village and surrounding country concluded to make Polk County his future home and, investing every dollar he had in the world he thus identified himself with our interests in as substantial a manner as a man can. He has ever been zealous in any movement calculated to enhance the interests of the county putting in many a dollar in the effort to enlighten outsiders upon the advantages of this county as a place to reside and has been instrumental in bringing many people to the county, and he tells us that he expects next spring to see more than ever before. He early saw the necessity for good teams here and having advantages for buying such that not everybody possesses, he has been able to bring into the county horses that no one need be ashamed to own. Being a great lover of a good horse he is seldom deceived in one, and a horse, to meet his approval must needs be all horse. He takes especial pride in the business and when Mr. Brown recommends a horse to be "all right" you can come pretty near betting that that horse is all right. As usual, Mr. Brown will be prepared this spring to supply the demand for good horses in Polk County and THE JOURNAL takes great pleasure in recommending its readers to go and see what he can do for them when they need a team of good work horses or mares. In case you buy of Brown and should happen for any cause to be disappointed you always know where to find him. When you buy of foreign dealers you don't always know where to find them if you should happen to want them bad.

HUBBARD ITEMS.

HUBBARD, Jan. 27, 1892.

The farmers held a meeting at the Fossos school house a short time ago for the purpose of discussing the advisability of buying Mr. Kolden's stock of merchandise and starting a co-operative store. Owing to the severe weather very few were present. They will probably hold another meeting in the near future.

Miss Tilda Berg, who taught the fall term of school near the post office, is now attending the Normal school at Moorhead.

Union Sunday school services every Sunday in the school house near John J. Ellington's, at 2 p. m. Come and learn what man is to believe concerning God, and what duty God requires of man.

Miss Matilda Johnson closed a very successful term of school in district 19 last Friday and has been engaged for the spring term at an advanced salary.

A Norwegian school was started here on Monday last by an experienced teacher.

NEILSVILLE.

Good Market For Oats

Having had a fine oat crop swept away by hail in few minutes time we are obliged to buy oats to supply our farm teams, and we will be glad to pay the highest market price to any who are owing us several years subscription. We shall need about 1000 bushels and will take them as fast as offered. Bring on your oats and get your receipts.

[33-tf]

Work Horses & Mares.

FOR GOOD, SOLID WORK HORSES AND MARES, GO TO

M. R. BROWN,

The old reliable dealer, who has sold horses in this county since 1878 and who is always on hand to make his guaranty good. Every man who ever sold horses here is ready (when he sells) to guaranty, but later, if you happen to want him to make his guaranty good you can't most always sometimes find him. You can always find Brown, and always find him ready to make his recommend good. He handles only good young horses and has sold more than and dealer in the county. He is now prepared to supply the demand for GOOD teams—he handles no other, and guaranty them just as recommended. Before you buy you will do well to call at

Brown's New Stables,

Main Street, one door north of the old M. E. church building.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. In Probate Court, Special Term, Jan. 21st, 1892.

In the matter of the estate of William G. Cooke, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of H. E. Cooke, administrator of the estate of William G. Cooke, deceased, representing among other things that he has fully administered said estate and praying that a time and place be fixed for examining, settling and allowing the final account of his administration, and for the assignment of the residue of said estate to the parties entitled thereto by law.

It is ordered that said account be examined, and petition heard, by this Court, on Monday, the 15th day of February, A. D. 1892, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the Probate Office in the city of Crookston, in said county.

And it is further ordered, that notice thereof be given to all persons interested by publishing a copy of this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, in said county.

Dated at Crookston, the 21st day of January, A. D. 1892.

By the Court:
C. M. BENSON,
Judge of Probate.

[41-43]

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

(First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.)
(Last publication Feb. 25th, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of thirty-two and 49-100 dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Eugene Boulie and Melvina Boulie, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company, of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of August, 1890, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the twentieth day of August, 1890, at 3 o'clock p. m., in book 52 of mortgages, on page 393.

And whereas, the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of four hundred and ninety-six and 4-100 dollars, (496.04), with interest on four hundred and eighty-one (481) dollars thereof, at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The south half of the northwest quarter (s½ nw¼) and lots three (3) and four (4), all in Section two (2), of Town one hundred and forty-nine (149), of Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of four hundred ninety-six and 4-100 dollars ($496.04) and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five (25) dollars Attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee.

[39-45]

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale

(First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.)
(Last publication Feb. 25th, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of forty-three and 25-100 dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Napoleon Gonyea, an unmarried man, mortgagor, to The Loan and Guarantee Company, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of November, 1890, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the third day of November, 1890, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 54 of mortgages, on page 345.

And whereas the said, The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of six hundred and fifty and 83-100 dollars ($650.83) with interest on six hundred and forty-two (642) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The west half of the northeast quarter (w½ ne¼) and the west half of the southeast quarter (w½ se¼) of Section thirty (30), of Town one hundred and fifty (150) of Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892.

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of six hundred and fifty and 83-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars Attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee.

[39-45]

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Jan. 7th, 1892.]
[Last publication Feb. 18th, 1892.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain indenture of mortgage, executed and delivered by Ida D. Van Tuyl and John E. Van Tuyl, her husband, mortgagors, to the "Union Central Life Insurance Company," mortgagee, bearing date the 22d day of November, 1889, with a power of sale therein contained; which mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 27th day of December, A. D. 1889, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, in book 51 of mortgages, on page 265, and whereas said mortgage was given to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars and interest thereon from its said date at the rate of eight per cent. per annum, due and payable on the first day of January in each year. And whereas default has been made in the payment of the sum of forty-eight dollars interest due and payable January 1st, 1891, and default having also been made in the payment of the sum of forty-eight dollars interest due and payable on January 1st, 1892, and both of said defaults still continue, and no part of said principal has ever been paid. And whereas the conditions of said mortgage are such that if default be made in the payment of the principal sum secured by said mortgage or interest thereon when the same becomes due, then the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage shall thereupon become due and payable at once.

And whereas both by the terms of said mortgage and the election of said mortgagee hereby made the whole amount secured by said mortgage both principal and interest accrued to this date is now due and payable.

And the amount now claimed to be due and which is due at the date of this notice upon said mortgage, including interest in accordance with the terms of said mortgage is the sum of six hundred and ninety-nine and 95-100 dollars. And no action or proceeding at law having been instituted to recover said debt or any part thereof secured by said mortgage.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained which by reason of the defaults aforesaid has become operative, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to-wit: The west half of the southeast quarter and the east half of the southwest quarter, both of the above described tracts being in Section ten (10), Township one hundred and forty-nine (149), Range forty-three (43), in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and containing 160 acres of land, together with all the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging or in any wise appertaining. Said sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on Tuesday, the 23d day of February, 1892, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to satisfy and pay the amount which will then be due upon said mortgage according to the terms thereof, and interest and fifty dollars attorney's fees as provided by said mortgage in case of foreclosure and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated January 4th, 1892.

Union Central Life Insurance Company,
Mortgagee.

Chas. P. Barker,
Attorney for said Mortgagee,
613 Guaranty Loan Building,
Minneapolis Minn.

[38-44]

W. A. ROBERTSON
D. D. S.

Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland.

OPERATIVE AND MECHANICAL

DENTIST.

N. B. Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.

OFFICE, IN McKINNON BLOCK.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication, January 21st, 1892.]
[Last publication, March 3rd, 1892.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred and thirty and 16-100 dollars, interest which is due at the date of this notice, upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Alphonse Paridis and Elmira Paridis, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company, of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the 1st day of October, 1889, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 9th day of November, 1889, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 48 of mortgages, on page 52.

And whereas the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of nine hundred and forty-six and 82-100 Dollars, with interest on nine hundred and twelve ($912) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the 18th day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north-east quarter (ne¼) of Section thirty-four (34) Town one hundred and fifty (150) of Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston in said County and State, on

SATURDAY, THE FIFTH DAY OF MARCH, 1892

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of nine hundred and forty-six and 82-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated January 18th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee.

[40-46]

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Thursday, Jan. 14th 1892.]
[Last publication Thursday, Feb. 25th 1892.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred and fifty and seventy one hundredths Dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Thomas Plante and Mary Plante his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the First day of June, 1889, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 1st day of July, 1889, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 45 of mortgages on page 470.

And whereas, the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of the said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of nine hundred and fifty-six and fourteen hundredths dollars ($956.14), with interest on nine hundred and forty (940) dollars, thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum, from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north half of the south-east quarter (n½ se¼) and the north half of the south-west quarter (n½sw¼) of section thirty four (34) of town one hundred and fifty (150) of range forty-one (41) in Polk county and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of nine hundred and fifty-six and fourteen hundredths dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee.

[39-45]

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.]
[Last publication Feb. 25th, 1892.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of Seventy-one and seventy eight one hundredths dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Luc Jenot, and Elenore Jenot, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of December, 1888, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the seventh day of December, 1888, at 11 o'clock a. m., in book 41 of mortgages, on page 57.

And whereas the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of Ten Hundred and seventy-eight and fifty-eight dollars, ($1078.58), with interest on Ten Hundred and Seventy ($1070) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum; from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The south-east (se) quarter of section nineteen (19) of town one hundred and fifty (150) of range forty-one (41) in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Ten Hundred and Seventy-eight and fifty eight one hundredths dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises and fifty ($50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee
Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee.

[39-45]

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minnesota, Jan. 18, 1892.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register or Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on February 29th, 1892, viz: Tosten L. Oleson, Hd. No. 12,259, for the S W¼ Sec. 14. Twp. 147, Range 43. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: Knut S. Akre, John Ellingson, Halvor Ellingson, Edward Ramsey, all of Neilsville, Minn.

[40-45]

HUGH THOMPSON, Register.

DR. LENOX's Periodical Pills—The French remedy, Paris. A reliable female regulator. Acts directly on the generative organs. Cures all ailments peculiar to women. $2, 3 for $5. Sold by A. G. Anderson, Crookston, Minn.

Northern Pacific

BETWEEN

Winnipeg, Gilby, Drayton, Grafton
Grand Forks, Crookston,
AND ALL POINTS

EAST AND WEST.

There is nothing better than the service on

THE DINING CAR LINE

Through Pullman Sleeping Cars Daily between points

IN THE RED RIVER VALLEY
—AND—
ST. PAUL AND MINNEAPOLIS.

PACIFIC COAST TRAINS
PASSING THROUGH

Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana
Idaho, Oregon and Washington

CARRY COMPLETE EQUIPMENT OF

Pullman Palace Sleeping Cars,
First and Second Class Coaches,
Pullman Tourist and
Free Colonist Sleeper
AND ELEGANT DINING CARS

THROUGH TICKETS are sold at all coupon offices of the Northern Pacific Railroad to points North, East, South and west, in the United States and Canada.

TIME SCHEDULE.

East bound.

Passenger 7:10 p. m. | Freight 9:20 p. m.

West bound.

Passenger 8:20 a. m. | Freight 8:00 p. m.

For rates, maps, time tables or special information, apply to C. A. Sharkey, Agent Northern Pacific R. R. at Crookston, Minn., or

CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent,
St. Paul, Minn.

Mortgage Foreclosuse Sale.

(First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.)
(Last publication Jan. 25th, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of eighty-eight and eighty-five one hundredths dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Martin Thompson and Ann G. Thompson, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the second day of December 1889, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 10th day of January, 1890, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 48 of mortgages, on page 242.

And whereas the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of six hundred and ninety-two and eighty-one one hundredths dollars, ($692.81), with interest on six hundred and eighty-four (684) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum, from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north-west quarter (nw¼) of Section twenty (20) of Town one hundred and forty-nine (149) of Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of six hundred and ninety-two and 81-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee
Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee.

[39-45]

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

(First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.)
(Last publication Feb. 25th, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of eighty-eight and 85-100 dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Peder H. Mesedalen and Kari Mesedalen, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company, of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the second day of December, 1889, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the tenth day of January, 1890, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 48 of mortgages, on page 240.

And whereas, the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of six hundred ninety-two and 81-100 dollars, ($692.81) with interest on six hundred and eighty-four (684) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The northwest quarter (nw¼) of Section seventeen (17), Town one hundred and forty-nine (149), Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of six hundred and ninety-two and 81-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars Attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee.

[39-45]

M. LeGUEE.
Veterinary Surgeon.

Residence and office on Jerome's Addition.

CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.

MILLER & FOOTE,
ATTY'S-AT-LAW.

McKinnon Block, - Crookston, Minn.

ALDERMAN & SYLVESTER,

—DEALERS IN—

Shelf and Heavy

HARDWARE,

Sash, Doors and Mouldings

Mixed Paints, Linseed and Machine Oils, Flying Dutchman Gang Plows, J. Thompson & Sons Walking Plows. Sole agents for the Domestic Sewing Machine.

A FULL AND COMPLETE STOCK OF

STOVES AND RANGES

Corner Main and Fletcher Sts., - - - - Crookston.

McKINNON BROS.,

—DEALERS IN—

ALL OF THE LEADING

Agricultural Implements.

MAIN STREET. McKINNON BLOK.

Before Purehasing, Give Us a all.

SCANDIA-AMERICAN BANK,

OF CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

Organized Under the State Laws.

Authorized capital $200,000. Paid up capital, $50,000. Undivided profits $10,500

Buys Bonds, School and Town Orders. Special attention to collections
Interest on time deposits.

OFFICERS.

C. HENDRICKSON, President.
O. H. LUCKEN, 2d Vice-President.
A. G. GALLASCH, Vice-President
L. ELLINGTON, Cashier.
A. P. HANSON, Assistant Cashier.

DIRECTORS.

C. O. [illegible]ristianson. E. P. Pierce O. H Lucken. A. D. Stephens. A. G. Gallasch.
H. Steenerson. J. H. Lockin. C. Hendrickson.
Max Ericsson. L. K. Aaker. A. E. Johnson. St. Pau

Sylvester & Finseth,

—Wholesale and Retail Dealers in—

Heavy and Shelf Hardware

Stoves, Tinware, Paints and Oils, Doors, Sash, Barbed Wire, Lime, Buckeye Binders and Mowers, Hollingsworth Rakes, Favorite Wagons and Buggies, National Cordage Co's Binding Twine, Rock Island Plows, Buford Gang and Sulky Plows, Fairbanks Scales, Hose for Lawn Sprinkling, Screen Doors, Ice Cream Freezers, Gasoline Stoves, Varnish and Paper, Lawn Mowers, North Star Refrigerators and Garden Sprinklers.

Agents for Standard Rotary Shuttle Sewing Machines.

Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

S. L. COLLINS,

—PROPRIETOR OF—

MAIN STREET
Livery, Feed and Sale Stables

CORNER MAIN AND FOURTH STS, WEST SIDE,

Crookston, - - - - Minnesota.

Horses bought and sold on commission.
Everything neat and nobby.
Feeding a specialty.

FINE HEARSE

In connection which I will attend to in person

Crookston Business College.

FACULTY:

R. S. KNUDSON, L. E. GOSSMAN, C. M. WASSON.

BOOKKEEPING.	Faculty composed of specialtists.	GRAMMAR.
SHORTHAND.	Most advanced methods of instruction.	ARITHMETIC.
TYPEWRITING.	Students may take full course or special braches.	SPELLING.
PENMANSHIP.	Special English department.	READING.
COMMERCIAL LAW.	Day and evening sessions.	HISTORY.
CIVIL GOVERNMENT.	Tuition Fees Low.	GEOGRAPHY.
CORRESPONDENCE.	Students may enterat any time.	COMPOSITION.

For catalogues and circulars address

R. S. KNUDSON, Principal,
Crookston, Minn.

H. STEENERSON

ATTORNEY AT LAW

CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA

MARTIN O'BRIEN,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

I. O. O. F. BUILDING. Crookston, Minn

Historical Society

The Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Editor and Proprietor.
DEVOTED TO THE WELFARE OF POLK COUNTY.
TERMS---$1.50 Per Annum
VOL. XV. CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FEBRUARY 11, 1892. NO. 43

Polk County Journal.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents. if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

ADVERTISING RATES.

SPACE.	1 w.	2 w.	3 w.	1 m.	3 m	6 m.	1 year
½ inch	$.50	$1 00	$1 25	$1 50	$3 00	4 50	$ 6 00
1 inch	75	1 25	1 75	2 00	4 50	6 00	10 00
2 inches	1 50	2 25	3 00	3 50	6 50	9 50	15 00
3 inches	1 75	2 75	3 75	4 50	9 50	13 50	20 00
4 inches	2 50	3 50	4 50	5 50	10 00	18 00	25 00
5 inches	3 00	4 00	5 00	6 00	12 50	20 00	30 00
¼ column	3 50	4 50	5 50	6 50	15 00	25 00	35 00
½ column	6 00	7 50	10 00	12 00	25 00	35 00	50 00
1 column	9 50	12 00	15 00	18 00	35 00	60 00	100 00

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.
2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.
3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.
4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class matter.

McIntosh Times: The Scandia Alliance of Knute township is on record as the first alliance in this vicinity to contribute to the relief fund for the starving Russians. The alliance is a small one but its members contributed 149 bushels of wheat and $16.25 in cash. The wheat was ground into flour free of charge at the McIntosh roller mills, and was shipped yesterday over the Great Northern Railway Line which carries all shipments to the relief fund free.

That was, indeed, a very laudable thing to do, but would it not have been fully as much so to have devoted it to those in our own county who lost all their grain in the hail storm of last summer? Of course, we have but few who were unable to provide for pressing wants, but it is a fact that there are some who, had they not been helped, would have been in as bad a condition as the starving Russians, and while the immediate wants of such have been attended to, they still lack for seed and feed for their teams. The object of THE JOURNAL fund is to provide seed and feed for those extreme cases and at the rate at which the list is growing we are confident that we can accomplish it—by next fall. We would really like to see grain enough subscribed by March 1st to supply their needs. Will we see it?

St. Paul Globe, Feb. 2d.

Ex-Senator, Halvor Steenerson, of Crookston, spent yesterday in St. Paul looking after some legal matters. Mr. Steenerson was teased by many of his friends over his reported combination with the Sage of Nininger, but to all he declared he was not guilty.

"I am after no office and I am not making any combinations with Donnelly or any one else," he said with a smile. "I have too good a business at home to think of officeholding, and I propose to stick to it."

"But you are reported to be an Alliance man?"

"I shall read all the platforms next year," replied the Crookston statesman, "and then vote as I think best."

"What do you think of Senator Davis' chances of succeeding himself in the senate?"

"I think he ought to go back. He is an able man and deserves a re-election. He will have to make some big gains in the next election for members of the house, but if there is any doubt about his being returned it is time for good men to get out of politics."

"How many republicans will be sent to the house from Kittson, Marshall, Polk, Norman, Clay, Becker, Otter Tail, Grant, Douglas, and other counties in the western part of the state, Mr. Steenerson?"

"Well," remarked the tall pine of the Red River Valley, "there were but few in the last legislature from these counties, and I am of the opinion that the farmers have not been losing much of their strength."

Importing Industries.

New York Press.

The McKinley law continues to act as an efficient agent in bringing about the importation of industries. The additional duty which it imposes on satins, foulards and the finer grade of cottons has had the natural effect. A huge mill for the manufacture of these goods is to be erected in Adams, Mass. The capital of the new manufactory will be $1,000,000, and it will give employment at American wages to 800 persons. The new enterprise will create a profitable home market for the American sea island cotton. It is one more illustration of the tendency of a wisely framed tariff to develop home manufactures along new lines.

Why Chili Apologized.

New York Press.

The fact grows plainer every day that but for the uncompromising attitude of the United States government and the vigorous preparation for action by the United States navy the Chilian apology for the murder of our seamen and the open insult of the Matta circular would never have been made. Cable dispatches show that the war party in Chili was powerful and bitterly aggressive. The navy and the half savage masses, who have been trained to think Chili the strongest nation on either American continent, were bent on war. Only the conviction on the part of the Chilian Government that all the vast resources of the United States would be called into play if necessary to enforce the just demands of the Republican administration of Washington brought about the tardy offer of redress. There is good reason for believing that up to a comparatively recent date the Government of Chili entertained the idea of forcible resistance. The desparate attempts of Chilian agents in Europe to buy a squadron of powerful warships and their extensive purchases of ammunition and materials of war abroad confirm this idea. If the administration had shown the slightest sign of faltering in its determination to maintain the honor of the nation and secure the safety of American sailors in foreign ports, if the whole American nation had not unmistakably indicated its purpose to support the administration, the Chilian oligarchy would have continued to defy the United States, reparation for the foul wrong to our flag would have been contemptuously refused and American citizenship abroad would have been made, not a shield, but an invitation to insult. The Chilians did not yield until the United States government had made preparations for promptly concentrating a formidable fleet in Chilian waters and the certainty of the President's message to Congress was as well known in Santiago as in Washington.

These are facts which no amount of partisan misrepresentation can obscure. Peace with honor is the direct consequence of the unvarying Republican policy of maintaining the national dignity and the rights of American citizens at all times and under all circumstances; and the three men to whom the gratifying result is chiefly due are Benjamin Harrison, James G. Blaine and Benjamin F. Tracy.

The New French Tariff.

New York Press.

At midnight last night the new French tariff went into force. Hereafter the leading republic of Europe will stand side by side with the great American republic in the ranks of protection. The French tariff is eminently and essentially protective. The increase of revenue is, of course, important, but the principal aim, and the one chiefly discussed in the Legislature, while the tariff was under discussion, was the protection of French industries from foreign competition. The French tariff is avowedly intended not merely to build up industries, for in the competition of skill France need not dread the rivalry of any other nation. The simple fact is that the French people, exceeded by none in business energy and in thrift, have decided that the welfare of the workingmen and workingwomen of France demands that they shall be protected against the labor of other countries, and in this decision France is in line with nearlye very other civilized nation in the world except Great Britain; and even in Great Britain the protective sentiment is rapidly gaining headway.

Chili.

New York Press.

The terms upon which the United States Government will consent to regard the controversy with Chili as closed have been made public. They are simple, definite and eminently just. The United States accepts the withdrawal of the Matta note and the apology tendered by the Santiago government for the murderous assault upon our seamen at Valparaiso. The amount of pecuniary indemnity to those dependent upon the murdered men is to be decided by friendly negotiations between the two governments.

The dispatch sent to Mr. Egan shows the desire of the President and his Cabinet to make reparation as easy as possible for Chili. Having won the main point at issue the United States can well afford to deal magnanimously with the smaller republic. There is no wish in this country to humiliate Chili unduly. The administration will undoubtedly show as much generosity in settling the final terms of the affair as it did courage and firmness in insisting upon the vindication of the nation's honor and full atonement for the insult to the flag.

Popular Talks On Law.

BY WM. C. SPRAGUE, ESQ.

NATURALIZATION—THE PROCEDURE.

Having in former talks discussed in whom the power of naturalization is vested and who may be naturalized, we shall now consider the procedure; and first as to the preliminary declaration of intention. Before an alien can become a citizen, he must take certain steps, prescribed by the federal laws, the first of which is, that he shall declare upon his oath before a Circuit or District Court of the United States, or before a District or Supreme Court of the Territories, or before a Court of Record of any of the States having common law jurisdiction and a seal and a clerk, that it is his bona fide intention to become a citizen, and he must declare that he renounces his allegiance to any prince, potentate or state, and particularly naming the prince or state whereof he is at the time a subject or citizen. This declaration must be made at least two years prior to the time of his admission to citizenship. It has been held that the declaration may be made before city, police and county courts of the various states, when such courts are courts of record and have a clerk. In a case arising in Tennessee, a Probate Court was held incompetent. In admitting aliens, State courts in the part they take, act as United States courts, being a sort of agents of the government for this purpose. The declaration may be made before the clerk of the court under the law and not necessarily before the court itself. It was held in a federal case that a clerk of the United States court had no authority to take the alien's declaration at the private residence of the party and for that purpose to carry the records of the court from the clerk's office to such residence. After a foreigner by birth has thus declared his intention to become a citizen, he is regarded as having secured to himself and his children, who are minors, the rights of a naturalized citizen, except so far as pertains to voting. The declaration having been made, must be recorded and the original affidavit, or a copy properly certified by the clerk or deputy clerk, attested by the court's seal, is competent evidence of the declaration. After the declaration of intention to become a citizen has been properly made and recorded and two years has elapsed, final proceedings may be had for admission to citizenship. These proceedings must be had before such court as described above.

In the first place, an alien must declare on his oath that he will support the Constitution of the United States. That he renounces and abjures all allegiance and fidelity to every foreign prince, potentate or state, particularly naming the prince, potentate or state, of which he was before a citizen or subject, and he shall renounce any hereditary title or order, if he has borne any such title, or been a member of any order of nobility. This oath when taken confers the rights of citizenship and an order of court in admitting him is not essential. He must take the oath at the time of his admission. It is not sufficient that he took both oaths at the time of his giving notice to become a citizen. He must, of course, prove that he has made a preliminary declaration, which is to be proved by the record, and that he has resided within the United States five years at least, and within the State or Territory where the court sits for one year, and that during that time he has behaved as a man of good moral character, attached to the principles of the constitution of the United States and well disposed to the good order and happiness of the same. It should be noted that the oath of the applicant is in no case allowed to prove his residence. It must be proved in court by the testimony of witnesses. The oath of an alien, as to his good moral character, should be corroborated by other evidence. One alien cannot vouch for another. All the proceedings, including the court's action thereon, must be recorded and the record is conclusive evidence of the fact recited. The naturalization of an alien confers upon him the privileges of a native citizen, save only such as withheld from him by the Constitution of the United States. The principal disability is the following: Under article two, it is provided that "No person, except a natural born citizen, etc., shall be eligible to the office of President."

THE COMMON LAW.

How many of the readers of this question understand the meaning of the oft-used phrase, "the common law?" We say, "Such and such is the rule at common law;" "The common law is so and so, but statute law is otherwise." I fear the vast majority of people, including a very respectable number of practicing lawyers, do not know the full import of the phrase, if, indeed, they even have a tolerable idea of its meaning. The reason for the failure to comprehend it is easily found. It is not something that may be defined. Justice Swayne denominated it "reason dealing by the light of experiece with human affairs." Blackstone called it, "Nothing else but custom, arising from the universal agreement of the whole community," or, in another place, he says, it is "Custom handed down by tradition, use and experience." It is something that grows and expands with new ideas of right and justice. The common law of one country may not be the common law of another country. We are accustomed to use the phrase "the common law" as referring to the common law of England, because, when our ancestors came to this continent they brought with them this common law, and claimed it as their right. What was this common law of England, and what can now be said to be the common law of the United States? In the earliest days of the history of law in England, we find certain laws recognized and in force throughout more or less extended districts, the origin of which is obscure. They are generally customs of immemorial usage grown to be recognized and enforced as law. They have originated thus as edicts of kings or enactments of councils or legislative bodies, records of which are lost in the obscurity of the past. These well established usages became authenticated by the decisions of judges from the earliest days, modified and enlarged to suit the growth of ideas and the emergencies of advancing civilization. They form the great body of the English law, finding their authority not in parliamentary enactments, but in their immemorial and continued usage and the sanction of courts from the earliest days.

When our ancestors landed on these shores they brought with them the common law of England, and adopted it so far as it suited the conditions of their new life. The war of the revolution grew out of the infraction on the part of the Government of England of the common law rights of the colonists, who, although colonists, were none the less Englishmen. Up to the signing of the Declaration of Independence the common law of England was as much a part of our system of jurisprudence as it was that of Great Britain. Strictly speaking, the United States has no common law. The Constitution declares that the judicial power of the United States extends to all cases arising under the Constitution, the laws of the United States and treaties. There was no principle which pervades the Union and has the authority of law that is not embodied in the Constitution and acts of Congress. However, as the common law was the substratum on which the Constitution was founded, we must go to the common law for a definition and an interpretation of its terms.

All of the States, with the exception of Louisiana, have adopted the English common law as its local law, subject to statutory alterations, and only to such extent as suits its conditions. This will effectually answer the complaint of many who cannot see the necessity in the study of the law or of spending so much time on study of the common law of England from the Commentaries of of Blackstone. When it is remembered that this magnificent body of unwritten law (so-called because in its origin not so far as known the subject of legislative enactment) was the law of the colonies prior to the Revolution, was the birthright for which the great war for independence was fought, is the source of the interpretation of our constitution, our laws and our treaties, in so far as they use words and expressions to which the common law alone gives a meaning, became the law (subject to statutory changes) of all but one of the States of the Union. We are prepared to assign it the place it deserves in the estimation of the student—the foremost and best.

Our Washington Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

It seems to be decided, as far as a majority of the Democrats in the House can decide anything, that the "McKinley Bill" shall be attacked in detail. For instance, a New England Democrat will present a bill demanding free hides and free wool. He will do this because his constituents have the plant and can make shoes and clothing from the imported articles and charge a larger profit for the product than they could upon the raw material. As that really bright man in Ohio, Governor McKinley, says, they wish to drop the tax from the wool on the sheep's back and keep it on the purchaser. Mr. Springer, chairman of the ways and means committee of the house, has ideas of this kind also. He wants to have salt made free of import duty. Of course, in a matter of this kind, the expense to the individual is nothing, and so, for the sake of the argument, it is well enough to admit that Mr. Springer's bill, if made law, would save a cent a year to each householder in the United States. But, if this is a matter of principle, and if the Democratic party is a party of principle, why should not some of these things appear in the party platforms, instead of coming up for discussion in the House to disturb business, when there is no possibility of such schemes becoming law?

If there is one thing more than another that has given the Republican party solid and enduring support among the people, it is the straightforwardness with which its platforms are written. The Republican party believes in protection, for example, and says so every four years, and nominates a protectionist for President and elects him. The Democratic party in its platform, as in its present course in the House of Representatives, shuffles and equivocates. It has not had a manly declaration as to tariff in any platform since the rebellion. It doesn't dare to have one. By shifting and evasion it catches at times the support of dissatisfied Republicans or secures alliance with bodies of undetermined men in various States, and gains an occasional victory, as in Kansas two years ago, and as in the national when Cleveland was elected. But beyond the talk of "tariff reform," which may mean much, little or nothing, as the local conditions happen to be, the party really has nothing to go on. The present session of congress will show, doubtless, the twenty odd meanings that individual Democrats give to the wards "tariff reform," and will open the eyes of tens of thousands of voters, especially in the West, who have been led away in the past.

As a matter of news, important or otherwise, it may be stated upon authority that the Alliance in Congress is reduced to three members—Simpson, Watson and Otis. The others go directly to the Democracy, or, rather, stay there. The three named, if going that way, are more deliberate in their movements. Anyway, however, all the influence they have is Democratic.

There is a movement in Washington which has hardly taken form as yet, but which has an appearance of vitality, to give vigor and tone to "Civil Service reform." The machine reform has gone on regularly for years, but the work has not really been satisfactory even to the friends of the present commission. Whether from lack of general support, from incapacity or unfitness of members, or from other cause or causes, their has been dissatisfaction. The idea is to put new men in charge and in otherwise popularize the reform idea.

THE OLD RELIABLE
CROOKSTON
LOAN AGENCY
STILL ON DECK.

MONNY
On Real Estae
MONEY
On Approved Chattels,

Always on hand at the Lowest Rates. Consult your best interests by giving me a call when you Want Money.
A. D. STEPHENS,
Second Street, Crookston Minn.

KOPS BRO'S
105 Third Street,
GRAND FORKS, N. DAKOTA

PIANOS, ORGANS.

WEBER, HAINES BROS., KURTZMANN, MATHUSHEK, McCAMMON PIANOS, Estey and Chicago Cottage Organs. New Upright Pianos from $250 to $1,000, on terms of $10 to $25 per month. New Organs from $60 to $250 on terms of $5 to $10 per month.
Satisfaction guanteed. Write for catalogue and prices, KOPS BROS.
Grand Forks, N. D.

G. G. HENAULT
Practical Dentist
SECOND STREET,
CROOKSTON, - - MINN
OFFICE IN DOBSON'S BLOCK,
All work in my line skilfully and promptly performed. Give me a call.
G. G. HENAULT.

NEW FEED MILL
CHRIS. ANDERSON, Prop.

I desire to annouce to the farmers of Polk County that I have rented the
LAURENCE BUILDING, ON MAIN STEERT,
Next to Brown's New Livery Stable, and am now prepared to grind feed of all kinds promptly. You can get your feedin two hours after you bring me your grain. Prices Reasonable

Try My New Mill!

A. J. & A. McKINNON,
CROOKSTON
CARRIAGE WORKS.
Manufactures everything that runs on wheels. Repairing done on short notice and in workmanlike manner.
GIVE US A CALL
A. J. & A. McKINNON, - - - Main Street, Crookston.

Schmidt, the Painter,
CARRIES A FULL AND COMPLETE STOCK OF PAINTS,
OILS AND
VARNISHES.
ALSO A FULL AND COMPLETE LINE OF
WALL PAPER.
Painting in all its branches, and Paper Hanging artistically done.
Call at the Shop on Broadway.

TRY PEAKE,
THE MAIN STREET HARNESS MAKER,
FOR BARGAINS.

G. SLATER.
H. ROTHERT.
E. N. HILL.
J. A. GEORGE.
Chase & Slater Law and Claims Co.,
1331 F Street, Northwest,
WASHINGTON, D. C.
Practice in the Supreme Court of the United States, the Court of Claims, all the executive departments and before Congress. Claims for Indian Depredations collected. Pension cases prosecuted. Patents promptly secured. Careful attention given to all classes of land cases.
Liberal arrangements made with Local Attorneys or for transfer of cases.

Drunkenness
CURED.
THE
Moorhead Institute
Is now ready for the treatment of patients addicted to the
DRINK and OPIUM
HABIT.
Send for pamphlet containing testimonials, certificates of cure and terms. Address,
MOORHEAD INSTITUTE,
[41-1] Moorhead, Minn.

Valley Roller Mills
MANUFACTURERS OF
FINE FLOUR
From Selected Red River Wheat.

Lee & Herrick's Best, $2.65
North Star. - - - 2.50
Fife. - - - 2.15
Skip Jack. - - - 1.15

We exchange flour for wheat on equitable terms.
LEE & HERRICK.

HOW TO SAVE MONEY
BUY OF SLOCUM,
The Leading Grocer. The Best Goods for the Least Money.
SPECIALTIES | I MAKE A SPECIALTY OF | SPECIALTIES
TEAS, COFFEES, CANNED SALMON and CHOICE BUTTER.
HAVE YOU TRIED MY Wheat Germ Meal?
Everything in my line fresh from the wholesaler at the VERY LOWEST LIVING RATES. Give me a Trial.
W. E. SLOCUM. - - BROADWAY.

Polk County Journal.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.

Crookston, February 11, 1892.

'Round Home.

Wheat—1 Hard 70.
1 Northern 69.
2 Northern 63.
3 Northern 59.

Somewhat colder this week.

Ed. Walsh was in St. Paul last week.

See those elegant dress goods at Sture's.

Geo. M. Swift was down from Mentor on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Anglim have gone to St. Paul on a visit.

Sture sells creamery butter at 25 cents per pound.

See the jolly Cleveland Minstrels to-morrow evening.

Sture has everything you need to keep house with.

Charlie Rapp was down from St. Hilaire this week.

Judge Montague spent some time in St. Paul last week.

Considerable Snow Tuesday afternoon—and evening.

The editors of the State are in session in St. Paul this week.

G. H. Palmer has moved his office into the Reckett block.

Charlie and Will Attix came in from Mentor on Monday evening.

J. G. McGrew went to Fertile last week to prosecute liquor cases.

The train on the Northern Pacific was four hours late on Monday morning.

The U. S. Land Office is removed into the Reckett block on Second St.

E. E. Abbott, of Mentor, gave this office a pleasant call on Monday evening.

Call and see that fine line of dress goods now on display at Sture's in the opera block.

A. M. Childs has secured rooms in the Reckett block, over Tom Morris' jewelry store.

Cleveland's Minstrels will appear at the Opera House on Friday (to-morrow) evening.

Gus Felsing was in from Maple Lake last week and made THE JOURNAL a pleasant and profitable call.

Wheat started in on Monday morning at 70 cents for 1 Hard. The best informed look for higher prices soon.

Iver Krohn has decided to go to his farm at Rindal until spring and may conclude to be a granger for awhile.

Work upon the new railroad bridge was commenced this week and will be pushed until the bridge is completed.

H. G. Mitchell, of Woodside, came down with a carload of wood on Monday evening, remaining over Tuesday.

Geo. Vine gets another carload of hogs from below this week. For choice meats of all kinds go to Vine's Robert street meat market.

Hib. Palmer has been under the weather—but that don't signify, you can't down a lawyer and keep him down.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Congregational church meets with Mrs. Fegan Thursday afternoon of this week.

On the 9th inst. Senator W. D. Washburn introduced a bill for an appropriation of $75,000 for a public building in this city.

The Mabel Snow Company drew a large house at the Grand on Tuesday evening. The performance as a whole was light.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Copeland arrived on Sabbath morning on a visit to friends in the city. Mr. C. was formerly a resident of this city.

T. G. Thompson and Charlie Robbecke returned from St. Paul on Sunday morning where they had been doing jury duty for five weeks.

A very enjoyable time was had at the M. E. church parlors on Friday evening of last week. The sociable was a financial as well as a social success.

Our pleasant weather took a tumble to itself and came up cooler and more confident this week. We may now confidently expect spring to arrive—sometime.

The Northern Pacific contemplate a change in time at an early day. They also talk of putting on a day train which would be a great convenience to our business men.

The ladies of the Congregational church society organized a raid up to John Wyand's on Monday evening. An enjoyable time is reported. About 70 people enjoyed the outing.

Walt Lee went to Minneapolis last Friday to see about the new machinery and on Saturday wired head miller, F. W. Bugg to come down. Bugg went down via N. P. on Saturday evening.

We need a little help from some of our subscribers just now and we will make it pay you large returns on the investment. Let us hear what you can do, please, those who have not reported.

The masons had a pleasant sociable at the lodge rooms on Saturday evening. After work the call was sounded from labor to refreshment in the dining hall and a good social time enjoyed by all.

Owing to the fact that the glass in the M. E. church windows were badly broken upon their arrival the work of putting them in must be delayed until they can be sent to the factory for repairs.

Charlie Jefferson's little boy was severely hurt on Sunday by a runaway. Comrade Jefferson informs us that the little fellow sustained no serious injury, and save various and sundry scratches is all right.

M. R. Brown will be ready by Saturday to show you as fine a lot of horses and mares as were ever brought to this market. Go to his new stables on Main street and look them over. It is better to deal with reliable home dealers than with transients.

Farmers are thinking this year. This fact gives the ordinary scheming politician the shivers but everybody interested in good government is not worrying for when men begin to think and plan then you see that good government follows.

The Kramer case, from Mentor, on trial before Probate Judge Benson on Tuesday, resulted in sending Kramer back to his claim. The doctors could not find sufficient indications of insanity to warrant them in sending the man to the asylum.

Sheriff Grundysen went down to Stillwater on Monday evening after W. E. Munsell, who was court reporter for Judge Mills during Capt. Von Bornstad's absence. It is alleged that one or two orders which Munsell cashed for services were irregular.

Mr. M. R. Brown left for a business trip to Iowa on Friday evening of last week. He expects to return this week with a carload of fine solid work horses and mares to supply the demand of all those needing good horses for the spring's work. Before you buy see what Brown has.

E. O. Flanders returned last Saturday from his trip to New York in the interests of immigration and by next summer sometime we suppose there will be nobody living in the section he visited—they will all be happy Polk County grangers by that time. At any rate there will be lots of 'em here—if all come who said they would.

The annual meeting of the Grand Army of the Republic for the State of Minnesota occurs next week in Minneapolis. Col. Cobham Post will be well represented. Should any of the comrades require reduced hotel rates they will find it to their advantage to address Ira De Camp at the Hotel Brunswick, Minneapolis. Ira will take care of the boys and do it right.

Wm. Wylia came down from Black River on Monday with a man whom he had found badly frozen near a haystack. He intended to put the man in the hospital, but, as that institution was not quite ready he has to be cared for elsewhere. The physician who examined the man expresses the hope that he will recover all right with possibly the loss of some fingers and toes.

Edward George and wife returned last week from a visit with his mother in Rochester. It will be remembered that Mrs. George was convalescing from a long siege of typhoid fever when she went and Ed. was also very much out of health, but we are pleased to know that both are now in excellent health and Ed. will now settle down to business with his accustomed vigor.

Geo. Bunzy and Frank Steelman came down on Monday evening bringing bringing the man Kramer, who was said to have been so badly frozen awhile ago, to have him examined before Judge Benson as to his mental condition. If the man was as badly frozen as reports indicated he has recovered in a wonderful degree as he is as lively and chipper as any man to-day.

Some men high in authority in Alliance ranks think they are completely fooling the farmers and just having everything their own way. Well, maybe they are—just now, but never mind, the farmers are thinking and it was a very wise and noble man who once said "you can't fool all the people all the time." Farmers are thinking and reasoning among themselves and no harm can come of that.

Larsen, Carpenter & Co. have taken possession of their new quarters in the Opera house block and will be ready to supply the wants of all needing farm implements as soon as spring opens. They will begin to receive their goods at once and as they buy for spot cash will be prepared to give the largest discounts of any house in the Northwest. Mr. Larsen is well known to our readers, having done business here before.

The Message, which has been the organ of the Baptist church in this city, came out last week under its new management. R. H. Battey, the editor and proprietor, has had sufficient experience in editorial work to enable him to get up a very readable paper, which he is doing. The paper will be devoted to the interests of church work in the Northwest and we predict for it a successful career, and recommend JOURNAL readers to secure a copy.

Good Market For Oats

Having had a fine oat crop swept away by hail in few minutes time we are obliged to buy oats to supply our farm teams, and we will be glad to pay the highest market price to any who are owing us several years subscription. We shall need about 1000 bushels and will take them as fast as offered. Bring on your oats and get your receipts. [33-tf]

BUY A FARM

I have some of the best land

IN

Polk County

In my hands for sale

CHEAP!

And you can make prices and terms to suit you. Write me for lists.

L. F. Menage,

14-39] Minneapolis, Minn.

Ship your wheat to O. Tharaldson general agent of the Northwestern Farmers' Protective Association, at Duluth, and make from 4 to 7 cents a bushel. For further particulars as to membership, &c., inquire of L. K. Hassel, Grand Forks, N. D. [25-tf]

For Sale Cheap.

Buffalo robes and cutters. Mrs. Mary Schreader, Crookston, Minn. [35-tf]

LOST.

Near Beltrami, Polk Co., Minn., one note for Six Hundred Dollars, ($600.), give by A. Boddy to H. B. Budd, with interest at 10 per cent per annum, drawn on Jan. 3rd 1892, due in 90 days. all parties are hereby cautioned against buying said note as payment has been forbidden. H. B. BUDD.
[41-43]

A SERIAL.

Webster says a serial is a publication appearing in a series or succession of parts. We think we will call this a serial. It may be of interest. It ought to be of profit.

DRESS GOODS.

Ginghams—Fifty pieces of Anderson's great productions, you know they have no equal, and to say that "we are stuck up" about the selection is just about the truth. Toille du Nord Ginghams, beautiful patterns,

12½ Cents.

WOOL SUITINGS.

In advanced spring styles, are already shown in considerable variety. The south window is full of them and only 25c yd. Well worth 35c.

DRAPERIES.

A few Chenille Portiers, 3½ yds. fringe top and bottom, but slightly soiled from exposure, at $4.90 pair. Were $8 and $8.50.

WINDOW SHADES.

50 doz. genuine opaqe (not paper) shades, 6 feet long, 36 inches wide and mounted on Minette shade rollers, at 35c complete.

REMNANTS.

(Like broken candy in a jar) fill the counters. Can't help it, we give people what they want, nd someone will take the remants if they are cheap enough. Now is your time.

SHEETINGS.

10-4 bleached at	29c
9-4 " "	27c
8-4 " "	22c
10-4 unbleached "	25c
9-4 " "	22c
8-4 " "	20c
46 in. pillow casing	12½c

EMBROIDERIES.

We will now ask your attention to the

—EMBROIDERIES—

as you might be asked to partake of some choice bit of confection after a hearty meal, just to have a nice taste in your mouth, don't you see? Everybody says they are so dainty and beautiful. We knew it all the time.

FONTAINE & ANGLIM.

Mrs. D. T. Herriott was in the city on Tuesday and THE JOURNAL acknowledges a pleasant call. Mr. Herriott was for a long time a prominent citizen of Polk Co., but is now a resident of New Castle, Pa. His wife is visiting with her daughter, Mrs. H. B. Budd, of Edna.

Attorney A. A. Miller is undoubtedly good authority on points of law and his counsel no doubt sound, but when it comes to piloting a sleighload of ladies out to John Wyand's he is off, 'way off. At least he was on Monday night, so far off that he did not reach Mr. Wyand's until about 10 o'clock, at which time he arrived from his wandering to and fro on the bleak prairie. As near as we can figure it he went about 'steen miles further east than need be, however, he kept going until he won his case.

They Made a Hit.

CLEVELAND'S MINSTRELS TOOK FARGO BY STORM SATURDAY NIGHT.

Grand Forks Daily Plaindealer:—"Cleveland's Minstrals gave a performance in Fargo on Saturday night to the largeest audience ever in the opera house; the "Standing Room Only" sign being displayed before seven o'clock. The show made the biggest hit ever made by a minstrel company in Fargo and the papers are enthusiastic in its praise. Owing to the lack of room the elaborate first part could not be properly staged, but at the Metropolitan the stage room is ample and the performance will be given in its entirity. The singing donkeys, Jack and Jill, created a furore."

The company appears in Winnipeg for the first three days of this week, appearing here on Friday next.

DO NOT FORGET THE

60--DAYS--60

IT WILL INTEREST YOU —IF YOU WISH— To Save Money.

MARKED DOWN Red Figure SALE

OF CLOTHING And Gents' Furnishing Goods, AT THE BOSTON ONE PRICE CLOTHING HOUSE.

Mossefin & Lindell, Props.

Writing to set that subscription one year ahead, comrade N. H. Fulton writes that he has just engaged with the Hawley Creamery Co. for his third year with them. Since Comrade Fulton took hold of that concern the Hawley creamery has proved a great success, its products gaining an enviable notoriety in the markets and proving a great benefit to the farmers in that vicinity. Comrade Fulton sends his regards to the members of Col. Cobham Post, and says he intends to join us around the campfire in June.

Strayed.

Saturday night, Feb. 6th 1892, one grey mare, nine years old, weight about 1,050 lbs., with white spot on left eye. Answers to the name of Kate. When last seen she had a pair of blankets and canvasses strapped upon her, also a halter on her head. Any information leading to her recovery will be suitably rewarded. W. A. MARIN, Sec. 8, T 148, R. 5, Melvin P.O., Polk Co., Minn.

"The Journal" Hail Fund.

The following named persons have contributed the amounts set opposite their names to the fund for the relief of those who lost their crops by hail. Everybody should have a hand in this good work. Send in your names and the amount you are willing to contribute (in money or grain) to THE JOURNAL or Lewis Ellington, Scandia-American Bank, Crookston, Minn:

THE JOURNAL	$ 5.00
B. C. Jorgenson	10.00
O. H. Richardson	10 bushels barley.
Frank Bivins	10 bushels seed wheat.
W. G. Lytle	10 bushels seed wheat.
Lewis Ellington	$5.00.
E. Lanctot, 10 bu. oats,	10 bu. barley.
Thomas Wallace,	20 bu. barley
Goodwin Leppert (Wylia)	10 bu. oats.
Hayes Bros	20 bu. wheat.
Earnest Mueller	20 bu. barley.
Ben Geroux	2 " "
K. Hanson	4 " "
Ole Olson	2 " wheat.
E. W. Johnson	50 cents.
Will Himmelsback	10 bu. barley.
S. B. Palmer (Lockhart),	10 bu. potatoes.

Don't Be Backward

ABOUT

COMING FORWARD.

AND SECURING SOME OF THE

BARGAINS

OFFERED HERE BY

E. M. Walsh,

Real Estate Broker,

I. O. O. F. Block, Crookston, Minn.

80 ACRES adjoining city of Crookston, well cultivated, suitable for market garden. A bonanza for the right man and can be had for $3,000.

1,000 ACRES, five miles from city, first-class buildings. 200 acres cultivated, 200 acres Timothy, pasture fenced. Nothing better for dairy or stock farm. A snap at $12,000.

240 ACRE FARM in Town of Crookston; good farm buildings, well improved and only $20 per acre.

320 ACRE FARM in Euclid Topnship. Good farm buildings, 300 acres cultivated, 200 acres ready for seeding. Cheap at $4,000.

160 ACRES in Sec. 18, Town of Angus, partly improved, fine rich soil. Only $10 per acre.

320 ACRES land in Town of Louisville, well located near R. R. station, and near Red Lake River. Only $1,900 on long time.

160 ACRES good Farm Land in Grove Park, 60 acres cultivated, two miles from R. R. station, one-half mile from school. A Bargain at $800.

ANOTHER Quarter Section in Grove Park, good farm buildings, good water, 30 acres cultivated, 40 acres pasture, one-half mile from R. R. station, school and church. Cheap at $8.00 per acre.

SIX first-class farms in Town of Lambert, one of the best Townships in Polk County, from $600 to $1,200 each, well adapted for mixed farming. Look this up. Sure to find something to suit.

SECTION 21, Andover Township, every foot of which can be cultivated, only 5 miles from Crookston. Cheap at $12.50 per acre.

200 ACRE FARM in Fairfax, four miles from Crookston, 180 acres cultivated. Cheap buildings, easy terms. A bargain at $2,400.

TWO first-class farms in Lowell, two miles from city of Crookston, good farm buildings, artesian well, high state of cultivation. One at $28 and the other at $20 per acre.

THREE fine farms in town of Sanders. All near R. R. station, good soil. Most of them partly improved and are to be had at $6.00 per acre. Easy terms.

GOOD STOCK FARM, with good house and barn, 160 acres, two miles from Thief River Falls. Only $1.000, one-third cash, balance long time.

HALF Section Land, Town of Reis, two miles from R. R. station, 130 acres under cultivation, 76 acres ready for seeding in spring. Good house and barn, artesian water. Cheap at $2.500, one-quarter cash, balance 5 years time.

160 ACRES in Town of Godfrey. Good land, near railroad. Only $5.00 per acre.

160 ACRES Town of Gervais. This land is on the Red Lake River. Some good timber and partly improved and is cheap at $9 per acre.

ANOTHER piece in Town of Gervais, four miles from Red Lake Falls. $950.

320 ACRE FARM in Parnell, six miles from Crookston, well improved, good buildings. Can be had for $3,000.

TWO good farms in town of Fanny, two miles from railroad station. Partly improved. Only $6.00 per acre.

320 ACRE FARM only one-half mile from St. Hilaire and is offered at $8.00 per acre, easy terms.

160 ACRES in Town of Crookston, four miles from city, and only $1,000.

ANOTHER piece in same town, well improved and can be had for $1,350 on easy terms.

320 ACRE FARM in Town of Kertsonville, two miles from railroad sta- partly improved. Cheap—no mistake. Only $1,200 and on easy terms.

TWO good farms in Town of Liberty, 160 acres each. $750 buys either.

320 ACRE FARM in Town of Roome. Fine state of cultivation. Good farm buildings. 170 acres ready for seeding in spring. Dirt cheap at $4,000, one-half cash, balance to suit. Stock and farm machinery can also be bought cheap.

TWO good farms in Town of Lowell can be had for $959 each. Easy terms, long time.

This is the Cap-sheaf of All!

520 ACRES land, 3 miles from Fisher, all under cultivation, 420 acres ready for seeding. Good farm buildings. Good water. $25 per acre takes this, and will throw in 20 head horses and harnesses, 7 wagons, 4 binders, 2 mowers, 2 rakes, 4 gang plows, 2 harrows, new press drill, 2 sleds, 2 cows, full sett Blacksmith tools and small farm implements. $3,000 cash and balance long time at 7 per cent.

A traveling man, giving his name as H. Claudius, and claiming to represent A. Bauer & Co., wholesale liquor dealers, of Chicago, was arraigned before Justice C. S. Spendley on Wednesday of last week, charged with committing an unmentionable crime. The day was spent in examining witnesses behind closed doors and the case adjourned until Friday for summing up. On Friday the man was committed to await the action of the Grand Jury. It is lucky for him that deed was not committed in some countries or he would have danced at one end of a tight rope ere this.

Mrs. F. L. Durand received a telegram last Friday announcing the dangerous illness of her father, and left for Wisconsin on Friday evening. Fred. went with her as far as St. Paul and remarked to our reporter: "While in St. Paul I tried to enlighten the natives down there as to the resources of the Red River Valley and succeeded in getting one man interested to such an extent that he returned with me, bringing his wife along to look the country ouer, and should he find it as I represented he may conclude to stay and grow up with the country. His name is Mr. George Copeland and I think he would make a right smart settler and our people up here would like him real well. His brother John (at my earnest request) a few years ago took a claim, built a house on it, plowed a good deal of it up (the land, not the house) and I have often heard him say that he made almost enough out of it to pay half of the expense of running it; but then, John had a railroad on his hands at the time—John always would fool with railroads, and he has now become President of one railroad—association. So far George seems to like this country real well and I have great hopes that he will settle down—somewhere."

(Communicated.)

EDITOR JOURNAL.—The Times in its last issue has an article on the advantages to be derived from a government ship canal from the great lakes to New York City. Such a work would be of incalculable benefit to the Northwest, as it would lessen the transportation of our wheat and flour more than one-half. but why build a canal from Lake Ontario to New York City? Why not deepen and enlarge the Erie canal from Buffalo to Troy? As compared with the expense of an entirely new canal, the cost would be trifling, and it would have the advantage of being shorter and all in American territory. By the other route we shall still be compelled to send our vessels via the Welland canal through British territory and subject to any amount of tolls the Canadian government might see fit to exact. Again, under existing treaties, but one war vessel is allowed on each lake. Should a war break out between England and the United States, (and such an event is liable to occur at any time) Great Britain, by her admirable system of canals, could send a fleet of ironclad war vessels to the lakes on short notice and our entire lake coast would be at their mercy. With the Erie canal enlarged so that vessels drawing from 15 to 20 feet of water could pass through, we could have a fleet on the lakes as soon as England and meet them on an equal footing. It should not be forgotten that during the last war with England, one of the most important if not THE most important naval battles, was fought and won by Commodore Oliver Hagard Perry on lake Erie. It is important that the United States have a system of defences for our lake as well as our sea coast. Buffalo, Chicago and Duluth with the minor cities and towns along the lakes need defences as well as Boston, New York, Philadelphia and other seaports. It seems to me that petitions from each congressional district throughout Minnesota and the Dakotas, as well as from all the lake cities should be forwarded to their representatives at Washington, asking congress to take some action in this matter immediately.

FAIRFAX FARMER.

WANTED!

Two or three men to work for me in Polk County. $4 to $12 per day, sure. If you are idle or working for small money now is the time. Any one can do the work and make big wages. Particulars free. Address,

W. ALBERT LANCTOT,
[41-48] Crookston, Minn.

Grand Opera House!

ONE NIGHT ONLY.

Friday, February 12th.

First in All Things.
"The Big City Show."

W. S. CLEVELAND'S
CONSOLIDATED
THE EIFIEL TOWER OF MINSTRELSY

FRANK CUSHMAN,
ARTHUR RIGBY,
JOHN QUEEN,
JOHN H. BLACKFORD,
JAMES BOSTROM.

EUROPEAN HILTON MARVEL.

4—Emperors of Music—4

Edgar Wilson, Harry J. Howard,
P. E. Baer B. h. Carnes,
Earnest Sinclair, Chas. Gardner.

Girard Leon and his Singing Donkeys.
Watch for the Proper Caper Parade,
"THE OUTING OF THE SWELLS."

FOR YOU

For you, dear heart! the light—
God's smile, where'er you be,
And if He will—the night,
Only the night for me!

For you Love's own dear land
Of roses fair and free;
And if you will—no hand
To give a rose to me.

For you Love's dearest bliss
In all the years to be;
And if you will—no kiss
Of any love for me.

Thankful to know you blest,
When God your brow adorns
With the sweet roses of His rest,
I thank him for the thorns!
—Frank L. Stanton in the Atlanta Constitution.

MEMORABLE OPERATION.

As I entered the office of Dr. Sparkman, that gentleman had a bright-looking instrument in his hand, examining it. When the door slammed to, the doctor looked up and, with an exclamation of "at last you have arrived," had me take a seat. Then with increased haste he took up a piece of flannel and began rubbing the instrument, which I had now recognized as a sharp and keen-bladed knife of the kind generally used by surgeons. He appeared to be intent upon cleaning it and getting off any particle of blood which may have remained thereon from former operations.

Dr. Sparkman had a widespread reputation, notwithstanding he had one of the worst habits known to mankind, that of being an habitual cocaine-user.

His office resembled that of an apothecary shop, for the doctor was not only one of the best of physicians, but also a chemist, surgeon and druggist. When I came to his office this day, it was upon the receipt of a note which invited me to pay him a visit, as he wished to discuss certain questions of law which affected people of his occupation, he knowing that I, being well versed in law, was able to enlighten him therein.

"Now, Rathburn," he began when I had seated myself, "what could have possessed the law-makers to make such—but—never mind the law—I want your opinion on this," and at the same time he laid down the surgical instrument and stepping back to a case brought forward a vial in which was a whitish-looking fluid, and which he extended to me.

I gave the fluid a good look, and then placed it to my nostrils to find what odor it possessed. If there was any smell to it, my olfactories failed to ascertain it.

"What is it?" I asked, "and for what purpose is it used?"

I received no answer at first, for the doctor had returned to the table near his medical case, and was rolling up his sleeves. When he had laid bare his arm I saw innumerable scars. Then I realized what was contained in the vial. It was cocaine.

"Do as I do," replied the doctor, a very few moments after my question, "for I am going to give you a trial."

At first I felt like declining, but curiosity possessing me, I made up my mind to try it.

I did as he had—rolling up my sleeves—and displayed my bare arms.

The doctor came toward me. He drew forth a silver-plated syringe, placed it in the fluid which I held in my hands, gave the valve a slight pull, by suction filled it. He then placed the end of the instrument to my arm, making a slight puncture, forced the contents in to mingle with my blood. A moment thereafter he had treated himself likewise.

We then replaced our wearing apparel and took seats in the large arm chairs. The doctor then began relating incidents which he assured me were facts. They told of harrowing operations that had been performed by surgeons who were very particular friends of his.

"And do you know," he said, his eyes beginning to peer forward as if trying to catch an expression, whether favorable or not, that I should make, "that I'm going to perform an operation this very afternoon and in this very room, and that I'm going to ask you to assist me in it."

I gave vent to surprise and demanded the kind of operation it was to be. My answer was interrupted by a slight tap on the door. Though light it was made, the doctor, nevertheless, heard it, but he only turned his head and exclaimed: "Come in!"

The door opened and the form of a beautiful young lady presented itself.

"Well," said the doctor, "you're on time, I see. You can come in and take a chair."

As she was bid the lovely creature entered the room and took a chair, which resembled greatly the kind used by barbers, though this one was minus the head-rest.

Beholding this young lady, one became bewitched. Her auburn hair, flowing loosely down her back, captivated the beholder; her dark-brown eyes once cast upon an ogler scorched deeply; and her dimpled cheeks, tinted as if with the brush of an artist, tended to finish the makeup of a beauty.

What her purpose could be in visiting the doctor all alone, seemed to bother me no little. In my revery I was disturbed by the doctor, who, having risen from his seat and having retired behind his medical case remarked aloud:

"We will be ready for the operation in a moment, my dear Miss Staples."

It then became clear to my mind that the doctor intended using the instrument, which I saw him handling as I entered the room, upon this fair young creature. To be sure, this was the proposition, for did he not tell me a few minutes before she had entered that he intended peforming an operation this very afternoon, and in this very room? I would object.

Rising, I advanced toward the case, behind which was the door, and in loud tones began to denounce the scheme and to offer objections.

"Ah," coolly said the doctor, coming from behind the case and meeting me, "be not so hasty, my dear friend, be not so hasty. See what is to be done first. If we fail, we fail; if we succeed a fortune awaits us. Here, hold this," and he handed me a vial in which was another preparation—one of greenish color.

As I slightly inclined the vial the fluid would seek its level in a lazy sort of way, something like oils.

The doctor then brought forth a large sheet which he bound round the form of the young lady, from her neck down, leaving to view part of her neck, her head, and the long, flowing hair.

He then brought out the sharp knife again, and bade me come closer with the fluid. With a dexterous twist of the hand he had made an incision in the beautiful throat of the young lady, who, the moment the knife touched her flesh, gave only a slight sound of dissent. Pushing his thumb and forefinger within the incision he had made, he bent out the larnyx and held it with one hand, while with the other he began making other cuts with the knife. It took but a second, and leaving go the large vein and throat pipe, he held out toward me in both his hands the head. It looked quite natural, the eyes being still open.

"My God, Sparkman," I cried, "what have you done?"

"Now we see if it's a failure or not," was the answer he gave me.

He quickly set to work again. Taking up the part of the throat which hung over the front of the young lady he passed it through the cavity it had vacated in the head. Taking hold of the vial which I held he sprinkled the contents on the bare flesh of the neck. He then replaced the head. As if by magic it went together. He then covered up the body.

"Did it succeed?" I asked.

"In twenty minutes," he replied. "we'll find out."

Then we both settled in chairs and moments began to pass like ages. I kept my eyes steadily on the seemingly inanimate body of the young lady to catch, if possible, any slight movement it might make, thereby notifying us that we had succeeded. But the moments came and went, and the limited number had passed, and still the body did not move. I decided to wait another twenty minutes before asking more questions. Five minutes passed and the body was as still as it was at first! Fifteen minutes were gone and still no motion had crept into the body.

"My God, what have we done? My wife and children at home will never believe this. And I go to jail, perhaps to be hanged."

With the frenzy of a madman I sprang from my seat. With my hands clutching I tore my hair. My eyes began bulging.

Someone held my arms. It must be an officer. "No, sir," I loudly exclaimed, "I'll not go to jail. Watch out, or I will kill you. Don't dare attempt to arrest me."

Amid my wild gesticulation. I heard the soothing voice of the doctor. "Oh, Rathburn," he said, "you're all right. Oh, now, don't behave so badly. Nobody wants to arrest you. You haven't done anything. You've been dreaming."

Then I became calm and I opened my eyes. The room was just like it was when I took my seat after the injection.

Glancing at the clock and discovering I had been there just four hours, I silently buttoned up my coat, and without bidding the doctor adieu, took my departure for home.—Cincinnati Post.

As You Like It.

The reader may remember the story of that non-committal editor who, during a presidential canvass, desiring to propitiate all his subscribers of both parties, hoisted the ticket of "Gr—and—n" at the top of his columns, thus giving those who took the paper their choice of filling the gaps so as to make "Grant and Wilson" or "Greeley and Brown." A story of similar character is told of an army officer's mess in France. The period is that one of change and uncertainty following the downfall of the empire, before the present republic was completely established.

A brother-soldier from a neighboring detachment having come in, a bottle of wine was uncorked in his honor.

"Gentlemen," said the guest, raising his glass, "I am about to propose a toast at once patriotic and political." A chorus of hasty ejaculations and murmurs at once greeted him. "Yes, gentlemen," cooly proceeded the orator, "I drink to a thing which—an object that—Bah! I will out with it at once. It begins with an R and ends with an e."

"Capital!" whispered a young lieutenant whose commission came from the provisional government at Bordeaux. "He proposes the Republique, without offending the old fogies by saying the word."

"Nonsense! He means the Radicale," replied another, an old captain from Cassel.

"Upon my word," said a third, as he lifted his glass, "our friend must mean la Royaute."

"I see!" cried a veteran of Froschweiler; "we drink to la Revanche."

In fact, the whole party drank the toast heartily, each interpreting it to his liking.

No Vacancy.

It is not true that "The tailor makes the gentleman," but it is true that a gentleman cannot safely neglect the tailor's service, if he wishes people in general to take him for what he is. A man prominent in Canadian political life was somewhat too careless in this respect.

This statesman was once on his way to call upon a well-known gentleman in Quebec, and stopped an Irishman in the street to inquire the way.

"Can you tell me where Mr. Hunter lives?" said the statesman.

"It's no use your going there," was the unexpected reply.

"But do you know where he lives?"

"Faith, and I do; but it's no use going there."

The inquirer began to get angry.

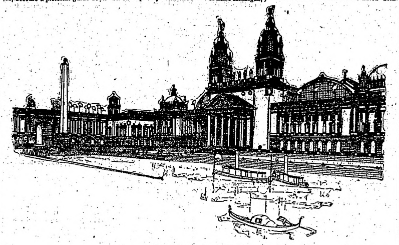
"I didn't ask your advice. I simply want to know where Mr. Hunter lives."

"Oh, well, he lives down that street yonder, the first house round the corner; but I tell you it's no use your going there, for I've just been there myself, and he's already got a man."

Mr. Hunter had advertised for a servant the day before, and the statesman, so the story goes, went at once and bought a new hat.

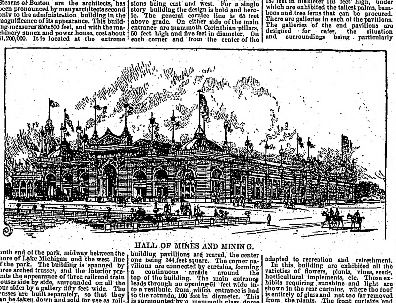
WORLD'S FAIR BUILDINGS.

As work on the buildings for the Columbian Exposition progresses, curiosity is naturally aroused as to what the buildings will look like. We give herewith cuts of five of the most prominent structures together with a brief description of each. These will interest especially four great classes of industry, the farmers, mechanics, miners and horticulturists, as well as giving anticipated pleasure to the thousands of Northwestern people who intend to visit the great fair. They will also if well studied, become a pictorial guide book which will furnish information to the envious eye when Jackson Park is visited.



THE MAC HINERY HALL.

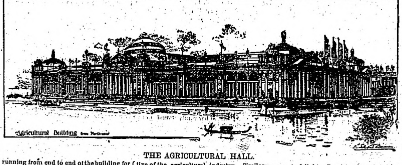
Machinery hall, of which Peabody & Stearns of Boston are the architects, has been pronounced by many architects second only to the administration building in the magnificence of its appearance. This building measures 850x500 feet, and with the machinery annex and power house, cost about $1,200,000. It is located at the extreme south end of the park, midway between the shore of Lake Michigan and the west line of the park. The building is spanned by three arched trusses, and the interior presents the appearance of three railroad train houses side by side, surrounded on all the four sides by a gallery fifty feet wide. The trusses are built separately, so that they can be taken down and sold for use as railroad train houses. In each of the long naves there is an elevated traveling crane running from end to end of the building for the purpose of moving machinery. These platforms are built so that visitors may view from them the exhibits beneath.



HALL OF MINES AND MININ G.

Located at the southern extremity of the western lagoon or lake, and between the electricity and transportation buildings, is the mines and mining building. This building is 700 feet long by 350 feet wide, and the architect is S. S. Beman of Chicago. Its architecture has its inspiration in early Italian renaissance, with which sufficient liberty is taken to invest the building with the animation that should characterize a great general exposition. There is a decided French spirit pervading the exterior design, but it is kept well subordinated. On each of the four sides of the building are placed the entrances, those of the north and south fronts being the most spacious and prominent. To the right and left of each entrance, inside, start broad flights of easy stairs leading to the galleries. The galleries are sixty feet wide and twenty-five feet high from the ground floor and are lighted on the sides by large windows and from above by a high clearstory extending around the building.

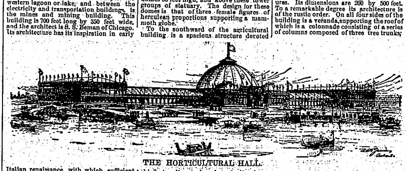
The main fronts look southward on the great central court, and northward on the western and middle lakes and an island gorgeous with flowers. These principal fronts display enormous arched entrances, richly embellished with sculptural decoration emblematic of mining and its allied industries. At each end of these fronts are large square pavilions, surmounted by low domes, which mark the four corners of the building and are lighted by large arched windows extending through the galleries.



THE AGRICULTURAL HALL.

One of the most magnificent structures raised for the exposition is the agricultural building. The style of architecture is classic renaissance. This building is put up very near the shore of Lake Michigan, and is almost surrounded by the lagoons that lead into the park from the lake. The building is 500x800 feet, its longest dimensions being east and west. For a single story building the design is bold and heroic. The general cornice line is 65 feet above grade. On either side of the main entrance are mammoth Corinthian pillars, 50 feet high and five feet in diameter. On each corner and from the center of the building pavillions are reared, the center one being 144 feet square. The corner pavilions are connected by curtains, forming a continuous arcade around the top of the building. The main entrance leads through an opening 64 feet wide into a vestibule, from which entrance is had to the rotunda, 100 feet in diameter. This is surmounted by a mammoth glass dome 130 feet high. All through the main vestibule statuary has been designed, illustrative of the agricultural industry. Similar designs are grouped about all of the grand entrances in the most elaborate manner. The corner pavilions are surmounted by domes 96 feet high, and above these tower groups of statuary. The design for these domes is that of three female figures of herculean proportions supporting a mammoth globe.

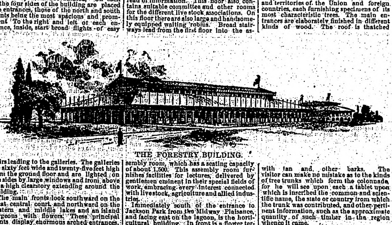
To the southward of the agricultural building is a spacious structure devoted chiefly to a live stock and agricultural assembly hall. This building is conveniently near one of the stations of the elevated railway. On the first floor near the main entrance of the building is located a bureau of information. This floor also contains suitable committee and other rooms for the different live stock associations. On this floor there are also large and handsomely equipped waiting rooms. Broad stairways lead from the first floor into the assembly room, which has a seating capacity of about 1,500. This assembly room furnishes facilities for lectures, delivered by gentlemen eminent in their special fields of work, embracing every interest connected with livestock, agriculture and allied industries.



THE HORTICULTURAL HALL.

Immediately south of the entrance to Jackson Park from the Midway Plaisance, and facing east on the lagoon, is the horticultural building. In front is a flower terrace for outside exhibits, including tanks for Nymphæa and the Victoria Regia. The front of the terrace, with its low parapet between large vases, borders the water, and at its center forms a boat landing. The building is 1,000 feet long, with an extreme width of 250 feet. The plan is a central pavilion with two end pavilions, each connecting with the central one by front and rear curtains, forming two interior courts, each 88x270 feet. These courts are beautifully decorated in color and planted with ornamental shrubs and flowers. The center of the pavilion is roofed by a crystal dome 187 feet in diameter 116 feet high, under which are exhibited the tallest palms, bamboos and tree ferns that can be procured. There are galleries in each of the pavilions. The galleries of the end pavilions are designed for cafes, the situation and surroundings being particularly adapted to recreation and refreshment.

In this building are exhibited all the varieties of flowers, plants, vines, seeds, horticultural implements, etc. Those exhibits requiring sunshine and light are shown in the rear curtains, where the roof is entirely of glass and not too far removed from the plants. The front curtains and space under the galleries are designed for exhibits that require only the ordinary amount of light. Provision is made to heat such parts as require it.



THE FORESTRY BUILDING.

The Forestry building is in appearance the most unique of all the exposition structures. Its dimensions are 200 by 500 feet. To a remarkable degree its architecture is of the rustic order. On all four sides of the building is a veranda, supporting the roof of which is a colonnade consisting of a series of columns composed of three tree trunks, each 25 feet in length, one of them from 16 to 20 inches in diameter and the others smaller. All of these trunks are left in their natural state, with bark undisturbed. They are contributed by the different states and territories of the Union and foreign countries, each furnishing specimens of its most characteristic trees. The main entrances are elaborately finished in different kinds of wood. The roof is thatched with tan and other barks. The visitor can make no mistake as to the kinds of tree trunks which form the colonnade, for he will see upon each a tablet upon which is inscribed the common and scientific name, the state or country from which the trunk was contributed, and other pertinent information, such as the approximate quantity of such timber in the region whence it came.

He Got the Lower Berth.

The smallest man in the state is not Superintendent Thomas Jefferson Charlton. All reports to the contrary, he is one of the heaviest men in the west. His weight is not altogether in his diameter, either. He is big up, big in brain and heart and every way. When he had sport it is colossal. Last night he boarded a sleeper to start for the Baltimore conference of charities. All the lower berths were taken. There was one upper berth, and Col. Charlton engaged it. He had the conductor point out to him the possessor of the ticket for the lower berth, same section. He was a slim, dudish young man.

"My friend," said the big man approaching the youth, "I am glad to become acquainted with you before bed-time. Are you a Christian?"

"Well—er—I don't know. Why?"

"The last man that slept under me was not, and I always felt some measure of remorse."

"Why?"

"I ought to have told him that I weighed 315 pounds. However, he carried accident insurance. I hope, by the way, that you carry a large policy in a good company. These upper berths are not insured. Still, it is only about a three-foot drop. What word shall I send to your friends?"

"Are you—can't I induce you to exchange berths with me? Really, I never could sleep in these close lower berths." The dicker was made and the hefty superintendent peacefully slept in the lower story, while the slim young man made scarcely an impression on the berth above.

Bishop Peck of the methodist church was as large a man as the talented Plainfield superintendent. Once he stopped off here and went to the house of a well-known citizen to spend the night. About the time he retired the family heard a crash of bed-timbers in his room. The husband rushed to inquire the state of things.

"Tell your wife," the bishop said, "if she does not find me here in the morning to look in the cellar."—Indianapolis News.

Kleptomaniacs.

From the Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

"What do you do with such people?" the reporter asked of a merchant.

"We send them bills for what they take, when we know them. If they are strangers we act according to circumstances. A few days ago a lady was in this store with her daughter—a beautiful little girl of twelve years. The child was seen slipping a roll of costly ribbon into her satchel. We spoke to the mother, who became indignant. She opened the satchel to convince us that we were mistaken, when it was found to contain three lace handkerchiefs, two pairs of gloves and the ribbon. All these articles had been appropriated."

"That was a plain case of stealing. What did you do?"

"We took the things back and said nothing. We can't afford to arrest wealthy people and injure our trade by making enemies among our rich customers."

"You were speaking of sending out bills for stolen goods; are they ever paid?"

"Always, where the person is a kleptomaniac. We never have any trouble in that way. I have known of stores which kept a regular list of kleptomaniacs. Whenever they lost anything they sent bills to all of them. As they all settled for the stolen goods, you can imagine that the business was quite a profitable one, can't you?"

Fish Diet.

A theory has been suggested that eating too much fish may be a cause of leprosy. In support of this fact is pointed out that this dreaded disease prevails chiefly in localities where fish are abundant and largely used as food. Leprosy is decreasing in all civilized countries, and is far less common in Europe than one or two hundred years ago. This may result from using less fish as food or from cooking it better. We are inclined to think that the latter is the true explanation. It is probable that fish, if at all injurious, is so only under exceptional circumstances. Long ago in England, as noted in Macaulay's history, working-men were fed largely on fish, in place of meat, and as times grew better they stipulated that they should only have fish a limited number of days per week. This popular prejudice against fish diet had no reference to its unhealthfulness, but only to the supposed fact that it was less nutritious and strengthening than meat. As compared with an exclusively vegetable diet this prejudice did not seem to exist. Fish are natural scavengers, living on smaller fish often of the same kind, and it is quite likely that they thus often get food that makes their flesh unfit to eat. In some kinds of fish this unwholesomeness is recognized, and they are rejected as food fishes.

The Snake Was Hungry.

Capt. T. J. Tucker, who lives just north of this city, is telling a remarkable snake story among his friends around town. It seems that the captain was fishing in Lake Ivanhoe and had been lucky enough to catch a pretty good sized trout. Thinking he would clean it before returning home he sat down on the bank of the lake and as he was washing the fish, with his hand in the water, he suddenly felt something pulling at one of his fingers. Imagine his surprise and consternation when, upon looking down at his finger, he saw a large moccasin snake had hold of it. With a sudden jerk he pulled his finger out of his snakeship's mouth, the only harm done being that considerable skin was scraped off in the act.—Orlando Record.

HIS HAPPY LOOK.

A Case Where He Made the Mistake of His Life.

"Say, boy!" called out an excited man, of middle age, rushing forth from one of the tall office buildings on Dearborn street one afternoon, "what will you take for your whole stock of those infernal things?"

The boy had been standing on the side-walk in front of the building all day, rasping a calliope whistle back and forth across his mouth, stopping only when somebody wanted to buy one and beginning again with renewed energy when the sale was completed.

He counted up the whistles he had on hand, made a rapid calculation and replied:

"I'll take a dollar 'naf fur de lot."

"If I buy all you've got will you go away from here and not come back any more?" asked the excited man.

"Sure! I go out o' de business."

"Hand'em over. Hold on! I want the one you're blowing, too. Here's your money."

"All right, boss. Here's de goods."

He turned over his entire stock, pocketed his $1.50 and disappeared.

The middle-aged man went inside the building with his load of calliope whistles, and a few minutes later he was at his desk near one of the front windows in the third story. The wooden whistles, broken to fragments, were in his waste basket, and a look of peace to which he had long been a stranger was on his face.

Fifteen minutes had passed away—fifteen quiet, peaceful, happy minutes.

Then a weird, horrible, agonizing yet strangely familiar sound broke on his ear.

He raised the window and looked out.

The sidewalk directly below was black with a struggling mass of boys. Each boy was loaded down with calliope whistles and each was blowing one of the instruments of torture with all his might. The uproar was frightful and getting worse every moment.

Then the peaceful, happy look faded out of that middle-aged man's face. He shut down the window, closed his desk, put on his hat and overcoat, went out of the building by the back stairs and faded away, presently in the gloom of Randolph street.

He had made the mistake of his life.—Chicago Tribune.

HINTS ABOUT LAMPS.

How to Take Care of Them and Have Them Burn Nicely.

To begin with the lamp should be cleansed and the lamp filled up every morning. Once a week the oil container should be thoroughly emptied out and the dirty oil thrown away.

Next see that the burner is clean. Whenever the lamp burns badly this should be at once looked to, as it is often the cause. If the burners are boiled for a few minutes in soda and water at regular intervals there will be little difficulty in the burning. Next see that the wicks fit exactly. For this purpose when new wicks are required the lamp burner should always be sent. Some people buy their wicks by guess, but this is a most foolish plan, for not only should the wick be of the right width, but it should also be of the right thickness, so that it will turn up and down easily and be in all respects a good fit.

Another thing to ascertain is if the wick is worn out. A lamp should have a fresh wick every month at least. Be careful before fitting in a new wick to see that the latter is perfectly dry. It should be placed for ten or fifteen minutes upon a hot pan before fixing it into the lamp, so as to remove any moisture. Soaking the wicks in vinegar and then drying them thoroughly prevents all chance of smoking, but of smoke there is little fear if the lamp is regularly and properly cleaned and trimmed. Be careful in trimming the wick not to let any of the charred part fall into the burner. This is a fruitful source of trouble.

Lamps with metal reservoirs are undoubtedly safer than those of glass or china, and the former, if upset, can be picked up and replaced before the oil can escape. Of course the oil must be of good quality. There is no saving, but, on the contrary, waste and some danger in poor oil. Bad oil clogs the wick and the burner, besides giving off an unpleasant and very dirty vapor. Under the title of petroleum or rock oil are also included paraffine and kerosene.

One more hint. Never turn down a lamp, allowing it just to glimmer. It is meant to burn with the flame at full height, and when allowed to smoulder in this way it will either smoke or smell, possibly both, and will most certainly heat rapidly and become a distinct source of danger.—Buffalo Times.

How to Manage Unruly Sheep.

See that the fences are well put up before the sheep are turned out. If they form the habit of getting out of a certain pasture it is not an easy matter to stop them, but if those same sheep are moved to a pasture where they are not acquainted they will very often lie quiet. A brush, rail, board or wire fence three to three and a half feet high, if made close enough, will usually stop sheep, but it will generally be necessary to top-pole a stone wall it it is four feet high. If sheep are not kept on both sides of the wall the poles should not be placed over the center but towards the side on which the sheep are kept. This will make it much more difficult for them to climb over. If fences be properly attended to and in season there will be very little trouble with unruly sheep.—J. D. Avery, in Farm and Home.

Luxurious Railways.

Mexico has certainly the most luxurious, if not the most comfortable, railway in the world. The rails of the Mexican Gulf Railway are laid on sleepers of Mahogany, and the bridges are built of white marble. On the west coast of Mexico there is another line which has sleepers of ebony and ballast of silver ore drawn from old mines beside the track. The reason for this extravagance is that the engineers had no other materials on the route, and found it cheaper to use these than import the ordinary plant.

Polk County Journal

CROOKSTON, - - MINN

THE first overhead trolley electric street railroad in England is under construction in the suburbs of Leeds by an American company.

ONLY one woman of the upper class in Egypt is permitted to see men. She is the widowed Princess Naza, for whom the Sultan has issued an order granting her that privilege.

GOVERNOR RUSSELL, of Massachusetts, has a salary of $5,000, and the Mayor of Boston receives $10,000 a year. There is a movement to remedy this inequality by increasing the salary of the Chief Magistrate.

SENOR MOTA, a moral reformer who is Mayor of Mosquera, a town in the United States of Columbia, has decreed that women arrested for disorderly conduct in his bailiwick shall have their heads shaven before they are set at liberty again.

THE travel by water in Maine for the year 1891 amounted to over 2,000,000 persons. Of this the Casco Bay Steamboat Company carried 406,567, or about one-fifth of all. This shows the extent of pleasure travel in and about Portland harbor.

THE development of the science of electricity has created a demand for very fine wires. The platinum wires in incandescent lamps are drawn through sapphire plates, and the very finest plantinum wires are used in many delicate and sensitive electrical instruments.

ELI WHITNEY BLAKE, nephew of Eli Whitney, of cotton-gin fame invented the Blake ore crusher now in use all over the world. Like his uncle, he was robbed of the profits of his invention by infringements. Both inventors were born in Westboro, Mass., and both are buried in New Haven, Ct.

BARONESS BERTHA VON LUTTNER, of Austria, author of the book, "Away with War Weapons," and one of the principal delegates to the recent Peace Congress in Rome, has established a monthly magazine in Berlin for the purpose of promulgating her views regarding the uselessness of war.

THE exceeding brevity of obituary notices of the disreputable Grand Duke Constantine suggests the obsequies of the unpopular early settler. When painful silence prevailed in the house of mourning, where it was customary to extol the virtues of the departed, a German broke the silence by remarking, "Vell, he vas a goot schmoker."

NOT long ago a figurehead of a ship was picked up near a little island off the coast of West Australia, which from the course it was pursuing had evidently just arrived there. It was identified as belonging to a vessel that had been burned at sea near Cape Horn, at a point of 6,000 miles away, two years and a half before. So it had made an average of six and a half miles a day.

THE Emperor William, of Germany, before he came to the throne, was much given to skating, and was frequently seen on the ice with his wife. He would put one hand on her shoulder and she one on his, and then they would skate forward and backward. Their skill excited wide admiration, and the fashion they set was taken up by many other people.

THE cries of none of the animals approach more closely that of the human voice than those of seals when lamenting the loss or capture of their young. They emit a wailing and affecting cry, similar to that of a woman in deep grief. The cry of a wounded hare resembles that of a child in distress. Its piercing shriek can, on a still night, be plainly heard at a distance of more than a mile.

THE late John Sharp was the last of the old Mormon leaders and had been a resident of Utah forty years. Scotland was his native land, and he worked for years in the coal mines of that country. After joining Brigham Young's society he became a director or stockholder in many Mormon enterprises. Of the Deseret Bank he was President, and even of the Union Pacific he was a director. In the church he was a Bishop. His wives were three in number, and his family was large.

JUST how important to Chili are its nitrate beds shown by the output from them last year. Roundly this aggregated 1,000,000 tons, representing a value of $30,000,000. Upon this Chilli levied an export of duty of about $12,000,000. The beds are worked by about a dozen different companies and the titles to them are vested in these. Had Chili preferred war to an apology these fields would undoubtedly have been scenes of hostility. No more serious blow could have been struck at Chili's revenues than by checking the working of these beds.

AROUND THE GLOBE.

A Record of the Week's Happenings That are Now Part of the World's History.

The More Important Foreign and Domestic Events Arranged for Rapid Reading.

WASHINGTON.

THE senate passes the Well and La Abra claims bills.

AN important rule proposed by ex-Speaker Reed is adopted by the house.

THE president has issued an order directing that the local land office at Folsom, N. Mex., be removed to Clayton.

THE comptroller of the currency has decided to pay an additional dividend of 20 per cent on the claims proved against the Maverick National Bank of Boston, Mass.

THE president has recognized Riccardo Motta as cousul of Italy at New Orleans for the states of Louisiana, Texas, Mississippi, Arkansas, Alabama and Florida.

SIR JULIAN PAUNCEFOTE, the British minister, and Postmaster-General Wanamaker signed a parcel post convention between the United States and British Guiana. The convention will go into effect April 1, 1892.

IN response to an inquiry made by the commissioner on Indian affairs in regard to alleged immorality among Indian girls, numerous replies have been received from the various Indian agents, the tenor of which is favorable to the moral character of the girls.

MR. MCCREA, of Arkansas, has prepared a resolution calling on the secretary of the interior for information as to the amount of the land that is being patented to the Union Pacific railroad. He objects to having the company acquire title to vast tracts of public land while it is so largely in debt to the government.

PERSONAL MENTION.

SIR MORRELL MACKENZIE, the distinguished English physician, dies of bronchitis.

PRINCE ITURBIDE of Mexico has decided to postpone his marriage with the daughter of Senator Stanford of California owing to his mother's recent death.

MR. and Mrs. Rudyard Kipplıng and Mrs. Kippling's mother and sister will visit the United States early in the spring. The party will remain a few months in America and will then start on a tour of the world.

VON MOLTKE's sister, Frau Brocker, has just died at the age of 84. The field-marshal was wont to refer to her in letters as his favorite sister. Empress William sent a wreath to be laid on her coffin.

RUSSELL SAGE, JR., the favoite nephew of Russell Sage, is dead in New York. He was fifty-three years old and unmarried. He never recovered from the shock caused by the attempt upon his uncle's life by the bomb thrower.

JAMES MCCULLOUGH, the last-surviving son of the distinguished tragedian, John McCullough, died at the old homestead at Philadelphia. McCullough's daughter, Letitia, is now the only surviving descendant of the great actor and will inherit an estate valued at $60,000.

Imposing ceremonies marked the celebration of the silver jubilee of the taking of holy orders by Bishop Fitzgerald. At Little Rock, Ark., pontifical high mass was celebrated in the cathedral with Bishop Fitzgerald as celebrant. The jubilee sermon was preached by Archbishop Ryan, of Philadelphia.

UNFORTUNATE EVENTS.

THE steamer Eider is stranded on the Isle of Wright and the passengers have a narrow escape from death.

Two families, Watkins and McGuffey, who started to Oklahoma from Cedar Glades, Ark., were frozen to death in the recent blizzard. Their bodies were found on the prairie near the Arkansas line.

A THIRTY-INCH water main on the corner of Warren and Tenth streets St. Louis bursted and flooded the cellars along Warren street to the river, about a distance of ten blocks. The damage will reach up into the thousands of dollars.

ONE of the worst fires ever known in Danvers, Mass., destroyed the shoe factory of Joseph E. Farrar, occupied by C. C. Farwell & Co. The total loss on the building is $15,000, partly insured; Farwell's loss, $70,000, insured for $50,000; Burn's loss, $20,000, insurance, $15,000.

FURIOUS storms, playing havoc with ship and shore property, are raging along the Baltic. The damage to property is enormous, and much loss of life is reported. Rostock and Swinemund are the worst sufferers among the ports. Scores of vessels have been wrecked and others are adrift in the ice and likely to be disabled

SINS AND SINNERS.

ITALIAN and negro miners in Pennsylvania fight with fatal results.

A MILWAUKEE boy of fifteen fatally stabs another boy of the same age.

A MILWAUKEE man kills his wife and himself.

HARRIS, the New York wife poisoner, has a remarkably bad record.

A GREEN BAY (Wis.) saloonkeeper shoots three men who had attacked him. One of the men is killed and another will die.

A SOUTH Dakota man, under sentence of death in Kansas for murder, secures his freedom under very peculiar circumstances.

Two young men wanted at Argyle, Minn., on charge of forgery, are arrested in Indiana.

Wills Howard, the famous Kentucky desperado who killed thirteen men in the famous Howard-Turner feud of two years ago, has been convicted of murder at Lebanon, Mo., and will hang.

HENRY H. YARD, who was involved with ex-City Treasurer John Bardsley and President Gideon W. Marsh in the wreck of the Keystone Bank of Philadelphia, was held for trial recently in $20,000 bonds.

THE bank of Addison was robbed the other night. The robbers succeeded in opening the vault, but not the safe, and obtained $500 in currency and $200 in gold. From the appearance of things, the authorities are satisfied that it was the work of experts.

THE embezzlement cases of the Allegheny, Pa., officials have begun with David H. Hastings, market clerk, on trial. The trial of Mayor Wyman, for embezzlement and extortion, will be taken up as soon as Hastings' trial is over.

THE court martial of Maj. L. C. Overman, of the army engineering corps, upon the charge of conduct unbecoming a gentleman and an officer in the misappropriation of funds entrusted to his disposal, began in Cleveland recently.

FRED NEEDICK, at Milwaukee, aged sixty-three, a tailor, quarreled with his wife over money matters, and then cut her throat with a razor. He tried to kill his twelve-year-old daughter, but she got away. Needeck closed the tragedy by severing his own jugular. Both are dead.

A DYNAMITE bomb was discovered on the Union Pacific tracks near West Kearney, Neb. The bomb had been placed on the switch in such a position that it would have exploded when struck by a train. Two boys found the bomb just before the east-bound passenger train was due, and removed the deadly missile, which was turned over to the police.

FOREIGN NUGGETS.

M. GLADSTONE issues a manifesto to the English Liberals.

POPE LEO is getting the opinion of cardinals as to whether his successor should be an Italian.

THE czar intends to re-establish serfdom in Russia.

TWENTY persons lost their lives as a result of the election riots in Hungary recently.

The Moscow Gazette publishes an article, warlike in tone, in which it says the German colonists in Russia are the advance guard of the German army.

THE Westminster chapter will support the nomination of Mgr. Gilbert as archbishop in succession to the late Cardinal Manning. The meeting Feb. 13 will forward the nomination to the Vatican.

THE new imperial and Prussian loans, which together amount to 340,000,000 marks, will be issued on Feb. 9 at 83 marks and 60 pfennigs. A syndicate of Berlin bankers has been receiving subscriptions for the loan.

A NUMBER of historical documents of greatest and rarest importance and beyond all, pecuniary valuation, have been destroyed by a fire which ruined the contents of several rooms in the castle of Grand Duke of Baden.

Prince Augustus of Saxony, heir to the throne, entered Leipsic recently in state, accompanied by his bride. In the evening the students of the university formed a torchlight procession and marched through town singing.

A COMMISSION composed of the members of the American legation in Paris and a representative of the French government has drafted an extradition treaty between France and the United States for submission to Foreign Minister Ribot and United States Minister Reid.

A decree of divorce was recently granted Col. Gatacre by the divorce division of her majesty's high court of justice. Col. Gatacre charged his wife with adultery committed with George Fitzgerald with whom she went to America at the end of 1890 and returned on the steamer Majestic in May last.

THE latest details of the suppression of the Chinese rebellion on the border of Manchuria show that the imperial troops are carrying out their orders to exterminate the rebels. Several thousand insurgents were slain at Kon Tse, and those in the intrenchments near by were surrounded and slaughtered to a man.

PARISIAN tradesmen are already taking advantage of the new tariff law by effecting a general raising of their prices, even on French goods. Certain newspapers invite the public to impart to them the names of tradesmen who have advanced prices on all their goods, with a view of stopping the practice.

INTEREST in the case of Mrs. Florence Ethel Osborne was revived at London by an assertion that that lady had decided to surrender herself to the police to answer the charges of perjury made against her in connection with the suit for libel she brought against Mrs. Hargreaves for charging her with the theft of a quantity of valuable jewelry.

A SAD occurrence marred the festivities on the occasion of the celebration at Blankenburgs of the German emperor's birthday. During the progress of a ball given by the officers of the garrison, a young lady fell to the floor, and before her partner in the waltz could raise her prostrate body she was a corpse. The physicians give the cause of death as tight lacing.

RAILROAD RUMBLINGS.

The Wisconsin Central auditing department is to be removed to St. Paul.

Russell Sage loses his $1,000,000 suit against the St. Paul, Stillwater & Taylor's Falls Railroad company, in a St. Louis court.

JOHN JERVIS, yardmaster of the Great Nortnern at Minneapolis, has been appointed to the same position at St. Paul, O. O. Winter has been appointed to succeed him.

THE railroad and warehouse commissioners received a report of the gross earnings of the Duluth, Red Wing & Southern Railroad company for the past year. The earnings were $54,252.60, a 1 per cent tax on which, amounting to $542.53, goes to the state.

SPORTING TRIFLES.

BOB COOK announces that it will be impossible for him to leave his business to coach this year's Yale crew.

JOE KENT, of South Brooklyn, and Tom Ryan, of Williamsburg, fought three rounds in a resort near Stamford, N. Y., for a purse of $50. At the end of the third round Kent refused to continue the fight, claiming that the time had been called a minute too soon in the third round. There was a free fight among the 200 spectators, when referee "Kid" Hogan awarded the contest to Ryan.

LABOR CIRCLE.

THE employes of the steel department of Moorhead, McCleane & Co. mills of Pittsburg, struck against an obnoxious rule, by which the men were compelled to remain at the mill from ten to fourteen hours, while some could finish their work in less time. The strike directly affects 300 men and indirectly 700 more.

OTHERWISE.

IT is again stated that Henry Villard will resign as president of the Edison General Electric company.

THE Niagara county (N. Y.) Democratic convention has elected a solid Cleveland delegation to the state convention.

THE dedication of the Conemaugh Valley memorial hospital took place in Johnstown, Pa.

THE anti-Pinkerton bill has passed the New York assembly. It prohibits the hiring of any private detective by corporations.

MR. SMITH, United States minister to Russia, furnishes a statement of the actual condition of the sufferers in that country, who number at least fourteen million.

EX-GOV. THAYER of Nebraska declines to vacate the governor's office. He asserts that he will be governor at least a month longer.

PRESIDENT CARTER's biography of Mark Hopkins, his predecessor as president of Williams college, is expected to appear a fortnight hence.

EX-CONGRESSMAN J. G. CANNON of Illinois, declines to run for governor, but will accept a renomination to his old seat at Washington.

At a meeting of the Pittsburg presbytery recently resolutions were adopted declaring that unless the world's fair was closed on Sundays and the sale of liquor prohibited on the grounds they would not visit the fair and would use their influence to prevent others from attending.

A STRANGE matrimonal alliance was brought to light through the testimony in the divorce case of Mary Jackson against William Jackson, at Belleville, Ill. The plaintiff was about fourteen years of age when she was married to the defendant, who is passed thirty, in East St. Louis, two years ago. She is white and the man is black. Her mother forced her to marry Jackson, the latter paying $300 for the girl. Divorce was granted.

THE NORTHWEST.

A Summary of the Important Events of the Week in the Northwestern States.

Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, North and South Dakota News in a Nutshell.

MINNESOTA.

A St. Paul young man commits suicide.

A Democrat mayor of Duluth is elected.

Bishop McGolrick of Duluth is badly injured by a runaway.

Wilkin county's apportionment to the world's fair fund will be promptly raised. Supt. Hunt left here for Grant county.

A novel battle is in progress between a pretty girl school teacher and the school board near Northfield.

The largestock farm of Gen. M. S. Chandler in Featherstone has been sold to Henry Schwartan for $10,398.75.

The proposition to bond Wells for the purpose of erecting a city hall this season carried by a vote of two to one at a special election.

The county commissioners appropriated $370 as Crow Wing county's quota of the world's fair fund. Public sentiment was favorable to this means of raising the amount.

The death of Mrs. M. Brady occurred suddenly at Carlton. Deceased is an old resident there, and well known in St. Paul and vicinity. She leaves a large estate by will to her children.

The Chicago & Northwestern Railroad Company has let the contract for a well 600 feet at Lake Benton. Prescot & Miles, of Sleepy Eye, are now there with an artesian well outfit and will commence drilling at once.

William E. Lee of Long Prairie secures a verdict of $1,600 against the Pillsbury Milling company in a test case involving infringement of a patent. Mr. Lee is thus enabled to collect perhaps a million dollars in royalties from Northwestern millers.

A car load of flour, containing 40,000 pounds, was forwarded to New York from Red Wing as the contribution of citizens of Goodhue county to the fund for the relief of the starving Russians. Other contributions will follow later.

Judge Farmer has appointed J. D. Sheedy receiver in the insolvency matter of Barclay & Albertson, general merchandise dealers at Le Roy. The liabilities of the firm amount to over $5,000, and the assets between $3,000 and $4,000.

John Tosney, a saloonkeeper at Northfield, was closed out by Sheeran & Filler, of Faribault, on an account of $300, and assigned to T. J. Dougherty. The exact amount of liabilities and assets is not known.

A Pine City special says: A hermit named Williams, who has inhabited this region for the past 20 years, has mysteriously disappeared. He was last seen on Sunday. His rabbit skin coat was found on the bank of a small creek. It is supposed he is drowned.

Albert Kovan, while oiling the gearing in his brother's feed mill, at Owatonna, was caught in the gearing and both arms run into the cogs, smashing them to pieces up to the elbow. His chest was also hurt badly. The probabilities are he cannot live.

The Madelia Board of Education let the contract for the new high school building to Messrs. Leck & McLeod, of Minneapolis, for $26,633 to be completed Sept. 1. This does not include furnishing. The whole will cost over $30,000. There is to be a large library and labratory.

A Knights of Pythias lodge was organized at Northfield with formal services. Delegations of the Knights of Pythias lodges from St. Paul, Faribault, Owatonna, Austin, Waterville and Red Wing were present at the ceremonies, and a very presentable showing was made.

John Wallingford, of Oak Valley, a well known farmer with a family, has been arrested on the charge of bastardy. A warrant was sworn out by Nettie Darling, or Nettie Taunt, a young girl, stepdaughter of G. L. Taunt. The case is to be tried at Perham.

The doctors examining Mrs. S. C. Soule at Mankato as to her sanity found not evidence enough to declare her insane, and she was released. She says she is not able to identify any of the gang except one who has a dark mustache, but will not do so now since she has been treated so meanly by the police and others.

Electricity for the first time in the history of Carlton lights the large saw mill plant of Paine & Co., and negotiations are now in progress whereby the streets of the village and some of the largest business houses will soon be furnished with arc and incandescent lights. Wires are already being strung for the purpose.

J. R. Guddis was arrested at Luverne for the theft of some grain. He was bound over under $300 bonds, and the same night left the country. The sheriff has received word that he has been arrested at Lake View, Sac county, Tex. It is not known yet whether he will return without requistion papers or not. If not, application will immediately be made to Gov. Merriam for the necessary document.

NORTH DAKOTA.

The sale of school lands at Grand Forks is set for April 6, the state board having postponed the sale till that date.

The unthreshed wheat in Walsh and Grand Forks counties is well stacked and will come out in good shape in the spring. Scores of horse-power threshing machines have been sold and are in use in North Dakota.

Robert Howard, of Walshville, about twelve miles north of Manvel, was aroused from sleep by the unusual barking of dogs, and going outside he discovered his granary on fire, and with much trouble he put it out. Examination indicated incendiary origin. A few nights afterward it was again fired and burned to the ground with a total loss of grain and some stock.

Judge Thomas, of the United States district court, rendered a decision at Fargo in the case of Lee Lum, a Chinaman, who has been in jail for several months for smuggling himself across the line from Canada. The judge decides that Lum must return to Canada. This decision differs from that rendered by Commissioner Spalding, which ordered that he be returned to his native country.

The Pembina presbytery met at Grand Forks for the trial of Rev. J. R. Crum, of Dunseith, charged with divorcing his wife for other than Scriptural grounds and marrying another woman. Rev. W. A. Brodwell, of St. Thomas, is moderator. The feeling is evidently against Crum. The divorce was procured on the ground of desertion. The facts are said to be that Crum deserted his wife, who, with her children, continue to reside at La Moure.

Mr. Bierly, agent at Hamilton of the Great Northern, and Brownie Sarver, daughter of Martin Sarver, merchant, eloped the other night and drove over to Emerson and were married. Mr. and Mrs. Sarver had ordered their daughter not to keep company with Bierly. She is seventeen years of age. Excepting one or two in whom Bierly put confidence, no one there knew of the escapade until long after.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Halvor Halvorson, a farmer, suicided by shooting on his farm near Yankton. His wife's first husband suicided by poison.

The Daily Gazette, a new Democratic daily, edited and published by W. W. Goddard, has appeared at Sioux Falls.

The statement from the register of deeds' office for Codington county shows that $89,000 of mortgages were paid during December, 1891, and January, 1892.

The supreme court granted a writ of error in Editor Sweetland's case, and the latter was released from jail on $100 bail. The hearing is to come off in April.

The chairman of the Democratic state central committee has called a meeting of the committee at Huron on the 24th inst., to call a state convention to elect delegates to the national convention.

The Black Hills' base ball league was organized at Deadwood by an association of well-known base ball men. The league will be composed of Deadwood, Hot Springs, Rapid City, Sturgis, Lead and Chadron, Neb.

Word has been received at Pierre, of the death of Dell Coy, of the Pierre Pioneer, the Democratic politician and prominent official there. He held positions of trust and was a large property owner. He died suddenly in Sac county, Iowa, at the home of his father.

Sheriff Wilson arrived at Rapid City, Mont., where he captured Charles G. Lincoln the runaway cashier of the Hill City bank. Lincoln's friends claim he is not a defaulter as charged by the bank. The woman and other facts in the case will be developed at the preliminary trial in a few days.

The state superintendent is in receipt of a number of inquiries from teachers over the state where schools have been closed on account of contagious diseases, asking if they can collect wages for time schools were thus closed. The superintendent holds that they can collect unless they have specially made an agreement to cover such an emergency.

A number of prominent stockmen in the vicinity of Pierre have recently received blooded horses from the East, which are to be put on the range with their big droves, to bring up the standard of their stock. While the stockmen of other states have met with big losses this winter from the severe winter, stock in western South Dakota was never in better condition, and no losses whatever have been reported.

WISCONSIN.

Jos. Lipke, of Butternut, was arrested on charge of attempting to poison Mr. Krause. He said he wanted to marry Mrs. Krause.

A way freight out of Ashland on the Omaha road was partly derailed three miles out of Ashland Junction and six cars were slightly damaged.

A Scandinavian named Gust Johnson was brought to the Clear Lake Union House, having been struck a terrible blow on the head by a flying skid at Perron's camp.

In Beloit college home oratorical contest, J. C. Burchard of Ft. Atkinson, Wis., and George R. Jenkins, Chicago, won first and second places respectively and will represent the college in the state contest, Feb. 26.

H. A. Young, proprietor of the flouring mill at Blair, was drowned. The board on the dam broke, precipitating him into the water, where he disappeared under the ice. He leaves a wife and two children. The body has not yet been discovered.

The mystery surrounding the sensational disappearance of Alice and Myrtle Hodge of Black River Falls was cleared up recently. They were traced to Beaver Dam, this state, where they were found in the care of wealthy relatives. No attempt will be made to force their return to their parents.

Andrew Turner, a farmer who resides in the town of Spring Brook, Dunn county, was arrested at his home and brought to Eau Claire to answer a charge of "beating" a board bill. When the case was called no one appeared against Turner, who was discharged. He will now sue for false imprisonment.

A candle and matches were found in the pocket of the man Belkhe, who committed suicide at Eau Claire. He was a dismissed employe and was heard to make threats against Mr. Walters, the owner of the Eau Claire brewery. Belkhe is suspected of having set fire to the building and then blowing his own brains out.

A tough character, who goes by the name of Wilson, was released from the county jail at Eau Claire, after serving a sentence for larceny. He was jailed again on the charge of breaking into Dell Lumber company's mill and carrying off a lot of tools, which he sold at a second-hand store. He is also accused of stealing a coat. He claims to be a printer, and says his home is in Chicago. He came here from Minneapolis.

IOWA.

The coroner's jury, after a two days' session, on the body of the tailor, Tietel, killed at Sioux City by being thrown down stairs from a dance hall held Barney Walker for manslaughter.

Burglars blew open the safe in Foxes' store Madison county, and secured $70, set fire to the building, which was totally destroyed with contents, and made their escape.

J. J. Winge, a butcher, was found at Sioux City unconscious from serious wounds. He was out collecting bills and has been traced to saloons as late as 9 o'clock. He was waylaid and slugged by parties of whom there is no trace.

The American Missionary Union of the Baptist Church held its annual meeting at Des Moines. Fully 300 delegates were in attendance, Secretary Mabie, of the union, presided. The exercises were in the nature of welcome speech.

A trio of postoffice robbers were sentenced in the federal court at Keokuk. Matt Andrews and James Murphy were fined $1,000 and given four and two years respectively at hard labor in the Ft. Madison penitentiary. John Craig was fined $250 and sent up for 18 months.

A stock company for the purpose of "aiding such people in Russia as may desire to make America their home, by organizing them in societies and loaning them money at 5 per cent per annum," has been organized in Burlington with an authorized capital stock of $50,000.

The Sioux City & Northern and the Winona & Southwestern are jointly surveying a line across northern Iowa from Osage to Lyon county. The Northern terminal system in Sioux City will give the new road entrance there via the Sioux City & Northern from the junction with the Winona & Southwestern in Lyon County.

A decision of the United States supreme court, in the case of the Iowa Falls & Sioux City Railroad vs. S. T. Davis of Sioux City, confirms Davis' title to 160 acres of real estate in the heart of Sioux City. The land has been in litigation since 1856, and is now worth from $500,000 to $1,000,000.

Stormy Jordan is in jail again at Ottumwa. The sheriff has had a mittimus for his incarceration for some time, but failed to serve it. The district court convened, and the sheriff got on to the fact that there was a movement on foot to have him suspended unless Jordan was put in jail, and so had him arrested. He occupies the living apartment and lives like a lord.

FALSE PRETENSES

Obtaining Money by Fraud Is the Charge Against a Mankato Prisoner.

An Insane Chicago Husband Literally Cuts to Pieces His Sick Wife.

MANKATO, Minn., Special, Feb. 6.—G. M. Dutton, charged with obtaining the signature of a prominent farmer of Mankato township under false pretenses, had an examination and was placed under $800 bonds to appear at the next term of the district court.

Ex-Mayor P'au, who assisted the county attorney in the matter, startled the prisoner and everybody else when he asked the judge to also hold Dutton on the charge of forgery in the second degree, which the judge accordingly did.

For some time the county has been infested with men who established agencies for a particular kind of wire fence. They made H. H. Studt an agent, and to bind the bargain he signed a paper to that effect. He was then handed what he supposed was a duplicate, and he signed that, too. A few days later it turned up at the Citizens' National bank here as a note for $120; but the cashier thought something was strange and would not cash it. The letter "H" was afterward added to the signature. All the farmers for miles around are interested.

FORGERY ALLEGED.

A Woodchopper Living in St. Paul in Trouble at Mankato.

MANKATO, Minn., Special, Feb. 6.—William King was brought before the municipal court judge to day, charged with committing forgery in the second degree.

During January he was at work in the woods of M. J. Ryan, near Smith's mills, as a woodchopper. One day he left camp, and going to the store of Ryan he wrote out an order and, it is alleged, signed the names of those assisting in chopping the wood, and presented it at Ryan's store. It was honored for $5 in cash and a pair of overshoes.

The boys in camp told Ryan they had not signed the order, and hearing this he had a warrant issued and put in the hands of Chief Yates, who learned that King was at St. Paul. He went there and found the defendant at the home of his parents. He was arrested and brought here. The prisoner was held to await the next term of the district court.

AN INSANE BRUTE.

A Sick Chicago Woman Cut Nearly to Pieces by Her Husband.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—To-day Patrick Hurst, a laborer, attacked his wife with a knife while she was sick in bed, stabbing again and again until he had slashed her thirty-eight times.

Many of the cuts were inflicted after the woman, succumbing to the frightful hacking, was dead. Hurst was arrested. He shows no concern and only says, "I killed her because she would not take care of me for the past twenty-five years." Hurst is believed to be insane.

BEATING HOTELS

By Representing Himself as the Son of Ex-Senator Rust.

EAU CLAIRE, Wis., Special Telegram, Feb. 6.—A story was sent out from Chicago today that a young man who claims to be Paul Rust, son of Eau Claire's millionaire lumberman, had, with his wife, been performing strange antics in that city, beating hotels, etc. Ex-Senator William A. Rust was interviewed to-night in regard to the Chicago reports and said:

This story from Chicago is utterly absurd. My wife and the two sons, Lee and Paul, are in Boston. I have just received a letter from my wife, in which she speaks of the boys. I believe the fellow who has been going under my son's name is the same one who played the same trick a year ago. Paul is only sixteen years old.

MARRIAGE A FAILURE.

A Father Keeps His Eloping Daughter From Her Husband.

BUFFALO, Feb. 6.—The story of the elopement of Bessie Chaffee two weeks ago with Charles Stowell, a young Springfield dude, still furnishes material for gossipers.

The young lady's father obliged her to accompany him to Rochester last week and he there applied to the Convent of the Sacret Heart to have her placed under charge of the sisters, but admission was refused her on the ground that she is a married woman. She was taken also to the state industrial school, but as she had committed no crime the angry parent was unsuccessful there, too. Then he took the girl home and today she was sent to an Eastern seminary. The young husband declares that he will follow his young wife and rescue her. He will shortly come into a fortune of $30,000.

For the last three weeks Miss Chaffee has been kept a prisoner in her father's house. The father's attempt to have the marriage annulled was unsuccessful. He swears that his daughter shall never live with her husband.

Violated the Revenue Laws.

OTTUMWA, Iowa, Feb. 6.—Twenty-five saloonkeepers of the city are in a dilemma. It is alleged that they have been violating the internal revenue laws by failing to destroy stamps on empty packages, thus getting ahead of the government 90 cents on every gallon of whisky sold. Revenue Collector O'Neill of Burlington got wind of this, and secured the necessary evidence to indict the whole lot.

A Mayor Secretly Marries.

ASHLAND, Wis., Special Telegram, Feb. 6.—It was learned to-day that Mayor O'Keefe was secretly married Dec. 15 by Municipal Judge Calkins to Miss Allie Seachrist. The affair has been kept a profound secret and the news is the occasion of much interest.

Highwaymen.

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, Feb. 6.—Highway robberies are becoming frequent here of late. Two robberies occurred last night. A business man was stopped in the heart of the city by two highwaymen, who held revolvers at his head while a third emptied his pockets of $100 and valuable.

Receivers Not Included.

GALVESTON, Tex., Special—The state supreme court sitting here has rendered a most remarkable decision in the case of S. S. Turner vs. The Missouri, Kansas & Texas road, Cross and Eddy, receivers. John Turner's mother sued for damages for the death of her son, who was killed on the Missouri, Kansas & Texas road. The case came before Williamson county on an appeal, and the judges decided that, inasmuch as the law mentions specifically as liable owners, proprietors, etc., and omits receivers, the latter cannot be held responsible for injuries inflicted nor compelled to pay damages.

Alice Wants to Hang.

MEMPHIS, Special—Miss Alice Mitchell, the slayer of Freda Ward, when informed yesterday by her lawyer that she would escape the gallows, grew frantic, and said that she looked forward to the day when she would be hanged as the happiest day of all. Beyond the gallows she believes that she will once more meet Freda. She became terribly despondent, and fears are entertained that she will commit suicide. She is watched by relatives.

The plea of insanity has been entered by her attorney. The taking of depositions of experts at a distance will consume considerable time, and the inquiry will not be held for some days.

Cut by a Razor.

ASHLAND, Wis., Special Telegram, —T. S. Knight, a barber, was seriously cut to-day by a colored man named Will Anderson, who was armed with a razor. Anderson was arrested and held for trial.

CONGRESS.

Proceedings of the House and Senate.

THURSDAY, JAN. 28.

SENATE.

The president's message transmitting additional Chilian correspondence was read. Mr Hale, calling up his resolution asking the secretary of state for information on the progress of reciprocity, addressed the senate on the subject.

Senator Hawley presented a petition from the centennial board of finance accompanied by the draft of a bill providing for the termination of its corporate existence.

HOUSE.

The president's message transmitting additional Chilian correspondence was read. The report of the committee on rules was again taken up and general debate followed.

Bills will be reported favorably to the house appropriating $25,000 for a monument a tPut-In-Bay, Ohio, commemorative of Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry and the battle of Lake Erie, and $25,000 for a monument to William Henry Harrison, the grandfather of President Harrison at North Bend, Ohio.

FRIDAY JAN. 28.

SENATE.

Not in session.

HOUSE.

The entire day was consumed in debate on the rules.

SATURDAY JAN. 30.

SENATE.

No business was transacted in the senate to-day.

HOUSE.

Mr. Reed of Maine asked unanimous consent to introduce bills during the day but was refused.

Tributes of respect were paid by about a dozen members to the memory of Mr. Houk after which the house adjourned as a mark of respect to his memory

MONDAY. FEB 1.

SENATE.

Mr. Kyle gave notice that he would on Wednesday next ask the courtesy of the senate to make some remarks on his proposed constitutional amendment as to the marriage and divorce laws in the United States.

Senator Washburn presented a bill which may attract some attention later on. It provides for the incorporation of the Yellow-stone Park Company.

The senate today passed the La Abra claim bill, yeas 43; nays, 5.

The bill to establish a first order light-house on Northhead Cape Disappointment, Wash., was passed.

HOUSE.

Representative Simpson, of Kansas, introduced a bill yesterday to promote and encourage agriculture by authorizing the United States government to lend money on farm land at 2 per cent interest per annum.

A joint resolution requesting the president to return to Mexico the flags captured by the United States army during the Mexican war was introduced in the senate and house.

Representative Bushnell introduced in the house a resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution providing as follows:

Section 1. Polygamy shall never exist within the United States, or any place subject to their jurisdiction.

Sec. 2. Congress shall have power to make all needful laws to enforce this article and punish its violation.

A resolution was introduced by Mr. Arnold of Missouri demanding the recall of Minister Egan.

TUESDAY, FEB. 2.

SENATE.

Mr. Mitchell from the committe on privileges and elections made a report on the Clagget-Dubois contest for a seat in the senate from Idaho, declaring Mr. Duboise entitled to the seat. Mr. Vauer gave notice of a minority report.

Mr. Vorhees rose to a question of privilege and denied the report in a Philadelphia paper that the judiciary committee had been straining "senatorial courtesy" at his request by postponing action on the nomination of Judge Woods of Indiana.

Senator Casey of North Dakota introduced today the first petition from his state favoring the Washburn option bill. The petition is signed by S. S. Wiser, state senator; J. T. Walker, president of the Valley City Farmers' Alliance and thirty-five others, residents of Valley City, N. D.

HOUSE.

The house to-day resumed consideration of the new rules. The debate was participated in by Messrs. Reed, Mills, Springer and others. Nothing decisive was done.

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 3.

SENATE.

The joint resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution of the United States relating to marriage and divorce, heretofore introduced by Mr. Kyle, was taken up, and Mr. Kyle addressed the senate in support of it. The amendment proposes that congress shall have exclusive power to regulate marriage and divorce in the several states and territories.

Mr. Dolph, from the committee on foreign relations, reported back adversely various anti-Chinese bills introduced and referred at the present session, and reported in lieu of them a bill continuing in force for 10 years all laws now in force prohibiting and regulating the coming into this country of Chinese persons and persons of Chinese descent.

Senator Sawyer introduced a bill to construe the act of February, 1887, allowing a pension of $37 a month to soldiers who have lost both an arm and a leg, so as to allow to those persons the same rate of pension for each of the disabilities described.

The senate passed the bill for the creation of a fourth judicial district in the territory of Utah.

HOUSE.

The rules were under discussion to-day and the whole day was taken up in discussion.

Quick-Witted.

An actor now famous made his first appearance on the stage in a provincial city where theater-goers were accustomed to make their disapproval felt when an entertainer did not succeed in pleasing them.

He was young and nervous, and failed dismally in the part he was endeavoring to present, and soon found himself the target for an assortment of objectionable bric-a-brac. When the uproar was at its highest, one of his disgusted auditors flung a cabbage-head at him. As it fell on the stage the actor picked it up and stepped forward to the foot-lights. He raised his hand to command silence, and when his tormentors paused to hear what he had to say, exclaimed pointing to the cabbage-head.

"Ladies and gentlemen, I expected to please you with my acting, but I must confess I did not expect that any one in the audience would loose his head over it."

He was allowed to proceed without further molestation.—Harper's Magazine.

Looks Slim for Private Claims.

WASHINGTON, Special—All the private bills in the hands of the committee on ways and means were to-day directed to be reported back to the house for reference to various committees having jurisdiction of private claims. This was understood to indicate the determination of the committee not to give consideration to private claims during this congress.

Highwaymen.

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, Special—Highway robberies are becoming frequent here of late. Two robberies occurred last night. A business man was stopped in the heart of the city by two highwaymen, who held revolvers at his head while a third emptied his pockets of $100 and valuable.

SOME FARMING HINTS.

INTERESTING READING FOR SONS OF THE SOIL.

Animal and Commercial Manures. Hens Must Have Ground Shells—Wasted Fertility—Agricultural Items.

Animal and Commercial Manures.

The necessity of the use of the so-called commercial or artificial manures in farming and gardening operations increase every year. In many localities agriculture could not be carried on with profit without them.

Yet where it is possible to obtain good barnyard manure in sufficient quantity to maintain the fertility of the soil, nothing has yet been found, alone or in combination, to equal it. But let emphasis be put upon "good."

It too often occurs that the substances sent to the fields as a fertilizer has left the greater part of its value behind it in the barnyard or along the roadside into which the rains have leached most of its fertilizing elements. An animal manure that has been well cared for, and goes to the fields in the best possible condition is a fertilizer that can be depended upon to enrich the soil.

A Western gardener, who has for more than a score of years been experimenting with the different brands of commercial fertilizers, and with single chemicals, has found that barnyard manure, costing him not less than $2 a cord on the soil, is the best and cheapest fertilizer he can get. Good stable manure, he testifies, never fails to do what he needs, namely, to enrich his soil and make all kinds of crops grow very rapidly.

One of the serious difficulties in the way of depending upon barnyard manure is, of course, its scarcity. As the natural fertility of the soil decreases, the need of a larger amount of manure increases, and the farmer often finds himself short of a supply. Those whose farms are contiguous to a large town can generally obtain a supply, at considerably greater expense for hauling, etc., and thus eke out the stock from their own stables. But this lessens the profits of the farm.

In many cases it would be profitable to increase the stock of animals on the farm. This would not only enlarge the manure pile, but if the animals were well selected and well managed they could be made a source of profit. The addition of a small flock of sheep would be especially advantageous, as we have often pointed out in these columns.

It is, however, becoming more and more evident that, as the natural fertility of the soil diminishes and the supply of stable manure runs short, the artificial fertilizers must of necessity occupy a larger place in the farm economy.

How to use them to the best advantage will then become a problem of profound interest to the farmer and gardener, as, indeed, it already is to a large extent. The farmer of the future will need to be a keen observer of the results of his applications of chemicals to the soil, and something of a chemist himself, to insure success in his operations.

Hens Must Have Ground Shells.

One of the necessaries of the poultry yard is a good supply of oyster shells. Nothing furnishes so easily and so surely the requisite material for eggshells as these natural productions of the sea. Lime is supposed to be necessary to egg-raising, and there is a tradition that gravel (decomposed by the grinding to which it is subjected in that extraordinary machine, a fowl's gizzard,) helps largely in the formation of eggshells. But better than either of these, or both combined, are the above-named oyster shells; and it is a question in our mind whether the good which they accomplish in poultry economy ends with the round, firm, polished, white egg shell. To obtain the shells for use, those living in the neighborhood of large towns or villages can have them for the asking, at the back yards of hotels or restaurants, and very likely the owner will give you an old barrel in which to remove them from the premises. The only mill required for their grinding is a good-sized stone in each of your hen houses and a hammer in your hand; and you must be careful that the eager beaks of your fowls do not get crushed as well as the shells. Once, at least, in three or four days, you should add this to the other supplies; and even then, probably, a barrel will last 50 hens for a year or more.—American Poultry Yard.

Wasted Fertility.

When water in ravines is discolored by the drainage from the barn yards which border them somebody is paying dearly for his improvidence and laziness, says Drainage Journal. There may have been some excuse for first settlers locating their feeding yards in sheltered places along the streams, but the practice ought to have been abandoned long ago. The yards should be removed from the ravines and placed on high ground, and if such places are necessarily bleak shelter should be erected. Keep your stock confined to the yards and stables as much as possible and bed them well with straw or refuse from the hay stacks. Permit no prairie hay or straw to remain in the field because useless for feeding. Haul it into the yard to increase the size and value of the manure heap. Manure made and kept under shelter is worth double that made in the open yard, exposed to drenching rains which take away its most valuable elements.

A Little Farm Well Tilled.

Thousands of farmers are "land poor" and will remain so to the end of their weary lives. How absurd it is to pile up treasures in many times more land than can be properly operated. The wise and happy men are those who are operating small farms to their full capacity and enjoying life as they go along. Holding on to a a section or two may or may not be a good thing for one's children or grandchildren, but it certainly keeps many a man's nose to the grindstone continually. The number of acres properly worked that will insure the old folks a good comfortable living, allowing them to take a trip or some sort of recreation once every year or two, and a small surplus over the costs of educating the children, is the size of a farm to have. Many men who could easily be well-to-do, however, prefer to be always head and ears in debt in order to add more acres to their already too large holdings.—Drovers' Journal.

For Dairy Men.

The business of dairying is quite as important as the feeding and management of stock. Some men seem, however, to wholly ignore this point, and pay little or no attention to knowing the wants of consumers; to placing their products on the market in good shape, or to building up a reputation for themselves, so that their brands may acquire a distinctive value. No matter how well or how cheaply goods are manufactured, business principle must be brought to bear in disposing of them, if complete success is desired. A man may select his cows with care, breed them with judgement, feed scientifically, observe the most scrupulous care and cleanliness in manufacturing, and yet let the profit slip through his fingers because he does not put his goods upon the best market in the best shape. In fact, dairying is pretty much like any other branch of farming—it demands a combination of all good and wise qualities.

Raising Turnips.

An exchange thinks that if farmers would realize how many bushels of turnips can be raised from an acre, and their value as a substitute for hay in wintering sheep and cows, no one would be without at least half an acre. They can be raised without cultivation or hoeing, and are not an uncertain crop. Any fairly good piece of land, a clover sod from which the hay has been taken, will do. Make a well-harrowed seed bed. For an acre, mix thoroughly half a pound of seed with 200 pounds of commercial fertilizer and sow with phosphate attachment of a grain drill. Nothing more is necessary, except perhaps to roll the ground. Last year, from an acre of land situated near Fairport, N. Y., prepared as above stated, 1,050 bushels of turnips were taken.

Water Your Fowls.

Plenty of water is as essential to the health and productiveness of hens as food. Without it they cannot produce eggs, no matter how well cared for in other respects, and the water must be clean and fresh to be wholesome. In winter it should also be warm, as the taking of ice-cold water into the stomach chills the body, which should by all means be avoided. Farm and Fireside recommends that in order to avoid this wasteful loss of bodily heat warm water should be served to the poultry at regular hours the same as other stock, and in long troughs, at which all can drink at the same time. Then, after they have drunk until satisfied, the troughs should be emptied and so kept clean. The idea is a good one.

Cost of Carelessness.

It doesn't pay to be careless when dealing with live stock of any kind, especially with chickens. A poultryman in Maine found this out to his sorrow last year. He hatched out over eight hundred chickens last spring and they did well until about the size of robins, when two or three hundred came to an untimely end. Some were lost by skunks, for whose convention the coops were obligingly left open one night. Then a severe rain came on, the broods were not looked after, and there was another heavy deficit in the poultry account. These two bits of carelessness cost the owner from $150 to $200—rather a costly experience.

For Eggs and Flesh.

Many people are easily satisfied. If they get the fewest possible eggs from their common "dunghills" and the poorest flavored flesh they don't seem to mind, but take things as they happen along. To be content is wise, but contentment with the meager results of common stock is otherwise. If one has a flock of White Leghorns and treats them fairly, he will be pretty sure to be wisely content with his supply of eggs; if he desires meat no better birds can be found than Plymouth Rocks or Wyandottes.

Agricultural Items.

Something does not come of nothing. The elements of the crop must be in the soil.

It is the last load of manure that feeds your crop. All before feeds the land.

The best and most excellent articles of food for poultry is wheat, or parched corn.

Poultry should be fed regularly, and a change should not be made in food too often.

Keep the barnyard cleared up. A nail in a horse's hoof may cause you more trouble than it would to keep the yard clean for a life time.

It is of no use to attempt to run a dairy properly unless the utensils are thoroughly cleaned. Rinsing is not enough. Use a little elbow grease.

The vast majority of cows will respond promptly to kind treatment. If a cow has mischief born in her, it is better as a rule, to get rid of her.

Burn nothing that can be rotted by plowing it down or burying it in the manure pile. One exception to this—weeds that have seeds mature enough to grow. Burn them root and branch.

The only safe plan for the poultry keeper is to be prepared for a cold and snowy winter, for it is the unexpected that happens.

Feeding steaming hot messes, red pepper, ginger, etc., subjects fowls to attacks of cold and roup. Be sparing with your stimulants.

AN EXPERIENCE AT DWIGHT.

How a Patient Felt While Receiving the Usual Treatment.

The following is the story told by a graduate of the Keeley Institution for the reformation of drunkards, as his experience in Dwight, as related by "Bourbon:"

"I went down on the jag train," said he, "and I tell you I had a jag on as big as a Kansas wheat rick. You see, I was afraid I wouldn't be able to get any whisky at Dwight, so after filling myself up to the collar button with budge I secreted four or five quart bottles about my personal premises. I had two in my grip and my pockets fairly bulged with booze. When I got to Dwight I was escorted to a hotel, where I found numerous sympathizing friends, who, however, refused to join in my libations, although they did not attempt to deprive me of my stock. The next morning I joined the procession to the shot-tower, where I received a dose of "dope" and a hypodermic injection of the gold cure in the arm. Whisky is given to each patient who desires it. In fact, no attempt is made to deprive him of his accustomed beverage. I kept up my 'toot' for two days, being gloriously full all the time, but taking my regular course of treatment.

"But on the third day came a frost, a killing frost, and nipped my enthusiasm in the bud. The first effect was a suspicion that somebody had surreptitiously inserted a dead mouse into my beloved whisky bottle. I held it up to the light, but couldn't see anything, and then concluded that I was simply not feeling well.

"On the fifth day I had a taste in my mouth like a diseased cat stuffed with Limburger cheese. I was afraid to go into society with my mouth, and was afraid it would have to be amputated. The doctor made matters worse by telling me I was all right.

"'It's a sign,' said he, 'that you are cured.'

"'But have I got to carry this morgue around with me all my life?'

"'Oh, that bad taste will pass away.'

"'Pass away? Why doctor, it has already passed away. It is so dead that it is beginning to spoil.'

"The doctor comforted me and I went out on the prairie and let the wild winds blow through the rafters of my mouth until supper time, when I felt better and ceased to weep over the remains of my breath. In ten days I was all right again, and could take a drink of water without being ready to swear that it had been strained through a soured hen's nest."—Mount Carmel Herald.

A GOOD AND CHEAP FOOD.

Hints About Whole Wheat and How to Cook It.

The structure of a grain of wheat is marvelous in symmetry and orderly as a fine piece of architecture. Protected by six coats, so as to keep for three thousand years, it incloses a body made up of polished germs and granules of starch and gluten inclosed by connective fibrous tissue in bundles or cells built on the principles of spherical geometry. Each bundle fits its fellow perfectly. The gluten cells which form the sixth coat are beautifully ranged around, and remind one of the lovely Norman arches in England. Under polarized light the starch becomes a thing of beauty and joy. When cooked properly starch does not polarize light. Hence a test of cooking.

When one considers the admirable protection coats of wheat, it seems strange to remove all these coats and expose the body, unprotected, so long before use as is done. We don't do so with potatoes, tomatoes, onions, etc. Hence, the idea that whole wheat cleaned is a good article of food. It is found that the flavor is excellent and appetizing even when eaten raw, as the old Roman soldier did, and got the full amount of mineral matter that our Creator intended should be got, when wheat was eaten. It saves money and health. Four parts of cold water to one part of whole wheat (cleaned in a smutting-mill) steamed in an all-double boiler for ten or more hours gently and continuously; then served with butter, cream or milk, and seasoned with salt, makes a dish of vegetable food fit for kings and queens or the sovereigns in a republic. In all eleemosynary institutions, hospitals, asylums, camps, ships or prisons, it is a concentrated and cheap diet, building up the nervous system, teeth and bones. Even dogs, who are carnivorous, fed on wheat, thrive, and fed on flour died in forty days. The objections to the hull I have found to be fallacious, after careful morphological examinations. The process of cooking may be shortened by cracking the whole wheat in a coffee-mill beforehand.

A Useful Coffin.

A writer in a Church magazine once found in a collier's cottage in Staffordshire a coffin used as a bread and cheese cupboard. Notwithstanding his wife's remonstrance, he told the story of the coffin as follows:—"Eighteen years ago," he said, "I ordered that coffin. The wife and me used to have a good many words. One day she said, 'I'll never be content till I see thee in thy coffin.' 'Well, lass,' I said, if that will content thee, it'll soon be done.' Next day I gave directions for to have the thing made. In a few days it came home: to the wife's horror. I got into it, and said, 'Now, lass, art thee content?' She began to cry, and wanted the 'horrid thing' taken away. But that I wouldn't allow. In the end she got accustomed to seein' it, and, as we wanted to turn it to some use, we had some shelves put in and made it into a bread and cheese cupboard. We have niver quarrelled since it came."

Kinds of Toothache.

For ordinary nervous toothache, which is caused by the nervous system being out of order or by excessive fatigue, a very hot bathe will so soothe the nerves that sleep will naturally follow, and upon getting up, the patient will feel much refreshed and the toothache will be a thing of the past. For what is known as "jumping toothache," hot dry flannel applied to the face and neck is very effective. For common toothache, which is caused by indigestion, or by strong, sweet acid, or anything very hot or cold in a decayed tooth, a little piece of cotton steeped in strong camphor or oil of cloves is the best remedy.

RUSSIAN DUST.

It Has No Equal in the World—Mud in Winter.

None but those who have seen it, breathed it and felt it would believe in the dust of a Russian village or a little town. It has no equal in the world save in the winter's mud of the same village. In the summer we look upon our ill-kept streets through a haze of golden mist—golden enough when the sun's rays streams through it, but which leaves a coating of gray powder upon furniture, floors, hair, face and hands. In the winter this dirt is converted into a mass of liquid mud, black, sticky, and tenacious, in which pigs wallow to their hearts content, and with which every passing vehicle so bespatters walls and houses that their original color becomes indiscernible! The back of our house opens upon a piece of waste ground overgrown with weeds, save where they have been beaten down by mounds of dirt, broken crockery and other refuse, but here a few kopecks and liberal use of tea speedily brought improvement. The lower classes in Russia, especially the servants, are delightfully good-natured. They are also for the most part very intelligent, though unhappily, their cleverness not infrequently degenerates into cunning; nevertheless, their idleness, their carelessness, their reckless indifference to truth, make them both difficult and trying to deal with. One is so delighted at first with their good temper and willingness to oblige; it is such a pleasure to look into their beaming faces and hear their ready assent to every proposition, but unluckily, nine times out of ten their readiness stops with their assent. You are so pleased with them, and they are so pleased with themselves, that they do no more. They are satisfied, though you are not. I am ashamed to acknowledge how often I have felt that a few blows would have soothed my irritated feelings, and I had often also felt additional mortification of perceiving that they not only expected these blows, but despised me for not inflicting them.—Murray's Magazine.

CONGRESS.

At Last Takes Action.

A bill has been introduced at Washington requiring all baking powders containing alum and ammonia to be so labeled. This is a step in the right direction, and has been long foreshadowed by the action of state legislatures, boards of health, food commissioners, etc., in the matter. The bill affords needed protection to the public, for the evidence as to the injurious effects of alum and ammonia is very heavy; but it will nevertheless be fought bitterly by the manufacturers whom it effects who are accustomed to sell their goods as "pure Cream of Tartar," "absolutely pure," etc.

The bill is something needed. If a maker uses a drug in his powder, the name of which he does not want to have printed on his label, it is prima facie evidence that there is something wrong. We hope the subject will be vigorously prosecuted all over the country, not only as regards baking powder, but also all other food adulterations.

The bill may incidentally benefit the makers of pure articles, but if it should, this is only an additional point in its favor.

How Victoria Is Informed.

The unofficial post of "queen's reporter" has become vacant by the removal of Lord Lewisham to the House of Lords. Since George III. required Lord North to send him a nightly account of the House of Commons debates, the sovereign has always been supplied with a special report, which has been invariably written by the leader of the House, except during Mr. Disraeli's last two years, when the late Lord Barrington did the work; and since 1887 it was confided to Lord Lewisham, in cosequence of Mr. Smith's reluctance to undertake it.

The parliamentary reports of Lord John Russell, Sir Robert Peel, Lord Palmerston, Mr. Disraeli and Mr. Gladstone were all very bright and graphic, those of Mr. Disraeli being particularly lively and much resembling the political passages in his earlier novels. These are all preserved in the present library at Buckingham Palace, and it may be hoped that some day they will be published, for they form a complete House of Commons history during the present reign of the most brilliant and interesting description.—London Truth.

A Real New England Dinner.

We venture to say that a New England dinner should include roast turkey—a purely American dish—roast chicken, roast beef, venison, for the Pilgrims did shoot deer, chicken pie, baked beans and brown bread, Indian pudding, apple sauce, doughnuts, pears and grapes, walnuts and butternuts. And we venture to say, further, that if a vote were taken, nine-tenths of those present would prefer these comfortable, homely, and we also assert, healthy dishes, to the long succession of split up courses invented by French gourmands and spiced beyond any healthy palate's discovery of their constituent elements. Let Paris rule the kitchen for the Union Club and board of trade dinners; but when we sit down to a New England feast let us have at least something to remind us of our New England childhood.—New York Independent.

Took His Word for It.

School-ma'am, Boston.—I am told that Willie Brown uses improper language on the play-grounds. He may come forward.

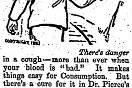
Willie Brown.—I didn't say no bad words.

School-Ma'am—Since Willie owns up so readily I will excuse him this time.

What He Did.

The Sunday-school Teacher—What did Adam do after leaving the Garden of Eden?

Pupil, reflectively—Please, ma'am, I think he started the express company.—Pittsburg Bulletin.



There's danger in a cough—more than ever when your blood is "bad." It makes things easy for Consumption. But there's a cure for it in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. A positive cure—not only for Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Bronchitis, Asthma and all lingering Coughs, but for Consumption itself in all its earlier stages. It's reasonable. All these diseases depend on tainted blood. Consumption is simply Lung-scrofula. And for every form of scrofula and blood-taint, the "Discovery" is a certain remedy. It's so certain, that its makers guarantee it to benefit or cure, in every case, or the money is refunded. With a medicine that is certain, this can be done.

There's a cure for Catarrh, too, no matter what you've been led to believe. If there isn't, in your case, you'll get $500 cash. It's a bona-fide offer that's made by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. There's risk in it, to be sure, but they are willing to take the risk—you ought to be glad to take the medicine.

CONSUMPTION.

I have a positive remedy for the above disease; by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed so strong is my faith in its efficacy, that I will send TWO BOTTLES FREE, with a VALUABLE TREATISE on this disease to any sufferer who will send me their Express and P. O. address. T. A. Slocum, M. C., 183 Pearl St., N. Y.

In one respect the ladies have a parallel. The spring chicken never tells its age.

In nothing has the wonderful improvement of modern machinery over the old appliances been more marked than in tools for drilling deep into the earth for pure water, and in no line of business is there as good a chance for an energetic man with a small capital to become independent. Any man can make money rapidly who is intelligent, energetic and has a small capital. The business is easily learned and the demand is absolutely unlimited. The profits are large when improved machinery is used. Great improvements have been made in this line within the past year or two, and Rogers & Ordway, St. Paul, Minn., carry a complete line of machinery suitable for any depth or formation. Any man who wants to learn more regarding this matter will do well to send to Rogers & Ordway for an illustrated catalogue, which will give him a more detailed description of the different styles of machines carried, as well as a list of Wind Mills, Pumps, Fittings, etc., which go with this business.

It is better to have one hand on the post office than both eyes on a foreign mission.

All Sorts and Conditions of Men.

No matter how widely at variance on other points, concede to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters sovereign potency in cases of malaria. This is the universal testimony from all classes. Chills and fever, intermittent, dumb ague and ague cake invariably succumb to it. So do dyspepsia, la grippe, constipation, biliousness, rheumatism and kidney trouble. Emigrants to and sojourners in malarious regions should provide themselves with this genial means of protection.

The man who ought to suit you well—your tailor.

"I have been occasionally troubled with Coughs, and in each case have used Brown's Bronchial Troches, which have never failed, and I must say they are second to none in the world."—Felix A. May, Cashier, St. Paul Minn.

A temperance lecturer is always backing water.

A howling swell—an ulcerated tooth.

Don't give up and say there is no help for Catarrh, Hay Fever and Cold in head, since thousands testify that Ely's Cream Balm has entirely cured them.

I have been bothered with catarrh for about twenty years; I had lost sense of smell entirely, and I had almost lost my hearing. My eyes were getting so dim I had to get some one to thread my needle. Now I have my hearing as well as I ever had and I can see to thread as fine a needle as ever I did, my sense of smell seems to be improving all the time. I think there is nothing like Ely's Cream balm for catarrh.—Mrs. E. E. Grimes, Rendrill, Perry Co. O.

Apply Balm into each nostril. It is Quickly Absorbed. Gives relief at once. Price 50 cents at Druggists or by mail. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., New York.

A MAN spends half of his life in the Michigan penitentiary for a crime of which he was innocent.

SYRUP of FIGS

ONE ENJOYS

Both the method and results when Syrup of Figs is taken; it is pleasant and refreshing to the taste, and acts gently yet promptly on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels, cleanses the system effectually, dispels colds, headaches and fevers and cures habitual constipation. Syrup of Figs is the only remedy of its kind ever produced, pleasing to the taste and acceptable to the stomach, prompt in its action and truly beneficial in its effects, prepared only from the most healthy and agreeable substances, its many excellent qualities commend it to all and have made it the most popular remedy known.

Syrup of Figs is for sale in 50c and $1 bottles by all leading druggists. Any reliable druggist who may not have it on hand will procure it promptly for any one who wishes to try it. Do not accept any substitute.

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

LOUISVILLE. KY. NEW YORK. N.Y.

A Full Stock.

A New York chemist was boasting, in company of friends, of his well-assorted stock in trade. "There isn't a drug missing," he said, "not even one of the most uncommon sort."

"Come, now!" said one of the bystanders, by way of a joke. "I bet that you don't keep any spirit of contradiction well-stocked as you pretend to be."

"Why not?" replied the chemist, not in the least embarrassed at the unexpected sally. "You shall see for yourself." So saying he left the group and returned in a few minutes leading by the hand—his wife.—The Comic.

Another Proof.

Sharp.—Do you see that mansion over there? That's where Thompson, the millionaire, lives. Another proof of the assertion that advertising pays.

Flat.—Ah, a merchant prince, I presume?

Sharp.—No; he's the owner of a newspaper.

AT Topeka, Kan., Frank McLain, who has been on trial several days charged with beating out the brains of his step-child, an infant, against a window sill, has been convicted of murder in the first degree.

"Oh speak, ye ghosts of the dead, and say what killed you?" The answer came, borne on the fierce east wind: "Cold! cold! cold!" Then let us be thankful that since teen we have Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

Egotism is a man without a collar carrying a gold-headed cane.

Physicians' prescriptions have failed to reach many cases of rheumatism known to have been subsequently cured by Salvation Oil. That is the reason why the popular voice is practically unanimous in its favor. One bottle is usually sufficient.

Contentment is better than money and just about as scarce.

How's This!

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & CO. Props., Toledo, O.

We the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by the firm.

West & Truax, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo O., Walding, Kinnan & Marvin, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, Ohio.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Price, 75c. per bottle. Sold by all Druggists. Testimonials free.

The fool that kills himself never mistakes the wrong person.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

THE New York chamber of commerce appeals to the country on behalf of the Russians.

The Only One Ever Printed.

CAN YOU FIND THE WORD? There is a 3 inch display advertisement in this paper, this week, which has no two words alike except one word. The same is true of each new one appearing each week, from The Dr. Harter Medicine Co. This house places a "Crescent" on everything they make and publish. Look for it, send them the name of the word and they will return you BOOK, BEAUTIFUL LITHOGRAPHS OR SAMPLES FREE.

Chicago clergymen sincerely hope that the ballet is on its last legs.

La Grippe.

How to Avoid Its Attacks and How to Recover from Its Effects.

As la grippe is undoubtedly caused by some micro-organism carried in and by the air, the best general advice which can be given is to avoid exposure in inclement weather, and keep your strength up, your blood in good condition, and your digestive organs in regular action. These last three conditions can best be attained by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which so happily meets the requirements that with its protection you Need Not Fear La Grippe.

It has been wittily said that la grippe "keeps you sick fifteen days after you are well," so slowly is strength recovered. Hood's Sarsaparilla has been found of inestimable value in restoring desired vigor after la grippe and also after scarlet fever, diphtheria, pneumonia, and other prostrating diseases. The system finds in the building-up qualities so much needed, through the life-giving properties it imparts to the blood.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Common Soap

Rots Clothes and Chaps Hands.

IVORY SOAP

DOES NOT.

"August Flower"

I had been troubled five months with Dyspepsia. I had a fullness after eating, and a heavy load in the pit of my stomach. Sometimes a deathly sickness would overtake me. I was working for Thomas McHenry, Druggist, Allegheny City, Pa., in whose employ I had been for seven years. I used August Flower for two weeks. I was relieved of all trouble. I can now eat things I dared not touch before. I have gained twenty pounds since my recovery. J. D. Cox, Allegheny, Pa.

Tutt's Tiny Pills

A single dose produces beneficial results, giving cheerfulness of mind and buoyancy of body to which you were before a stranger. They enjoy a popularity unparalleled. Price, 25cts.

I CURE FITS!

When I say cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office.

H. G. ROOT, M. C., 183 Pearl St., N. Y.

PILES Remedy Free. INSTANT RELIEF. Final cure in 10 days. Never returns: no purge; no salve; no suppository. A victim tried in vain every remedy has discovered a simple cure, which he will mail free to his fellow sufferers. Address J. H. REEVES, Box 3290, N. Y. City, N. Y.

MANY LIKE THESE.

NEURALGIA.—Bethany, Mo., Aug. 4, 1888: "Suffered for years with neuralgia, but was finally cured by St. Jacobs Oil."
T. B. SHERER.

SPRAINS.—Constantine, Mich., Feb. 10, 1887: "Was troubled 30 years with pains in the back from strain; in bed for weeks at a time; no relief from other remedies. About 8 years ago I bought St. Jacobs Oil and made about 14 applications; have been well and strong ever since. Have done all kinds of work and can lift as much as ever. No return of pain in years.
D. M. REARICK.

BRUISES.—760 Dolphin St., Balto., Md., Jan. 18, 1890: "I fell down the back stairs of my residence in the darkness, and was bruised badly in my hip and side; suffered severely. St. Jacobs Oil completely cured me."
WM. C. HARDEN,
Member of State Legislature.

WILSON'S 1892 PLANT, TREE AND SEED CATALOGUE. LIVE STOCK ANNUAL.

112 Pages, 200 Fine Engravings, Handsome Colored Plates. Full of useful and instructive information. Unquestionably one of the most reliable catalogues published. All kinds of guaranteed Garden, Flower, and Field Seeds, Fruit and Ornamental Trees, Small Fruits, Choice Roses, Flowering Plants and Bulbs. Thoroughbred Land and Water Fowls, Registered Pigs, German Hares, &c., &c. Sent free, on application. Address, mentioning this paper,

SAMUEL WILSON, SEED GROWER, MECHANICSVILLE, PA.

When an office goes out and hunts up a man it frequently uses a microscope.

SIR JOHN THOMPSON and Finance Minister Foster leave Ottawa soon for Washington to renew the discussion with Secretary Blaine and arrange a basis for negotiations looking to reciprocity between the United States and Canada.

WILBUR FOLSOM, a traveling salesman, committed suicide a short time ago at Ironton, Ohio. He is said to have been a relative of Mrs. Grover Cleveland.

FAT FOLKS REDUCED

Mrs. Alice Maple, Oregon, Mo., writes: "My weight was 320 pounds, now it is 195, a reduction of 125 lbs." For circulars address, with 6c., Dr. O. W. F. SNYDER, McVicker's Theatre, Chicago, Ill.

BORE WELLS with our famous Well Machinery. The only perfect self-cleaning and fast-dropping tools in use. LOOMIS & NYMAN, TIFFIN, OHIO.

THE "OHIO" WELL DRILL

Catalogue FREE.

PISO'S CURE FOR

Consumptives and people who have weak lungs or Asthma, should use Piso's Cure for Consumption. It has cured thousands. It has not injured one. It is not bad to take. It is the best cough syrup. Sold everywhere. 25c.

CONSUMPTION.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

ALLEN'S IRON TONIC BITTERS

The most Elegant Blood Purifier, Liver Invigorator, Tonic and Appetizer known. The first Bitters containing Iron ever advertised in America. J. P. ALLEN, Druggist & Chemist, St. Paul, Minn.

HOW TO MAKE MONEY QUICKLY AND EASILY!

Send 50 cents to pay postage on our Daily Market Report and Special Letter of Advice, for one month. We can make you lots of Money. Agents wanted. Address, S. H. WOOD & CO., Investment Brokers, 212, 213, 214 and 215 Wright Block, Minneapolis, Minn.

DR. HARTER'S TRADE MARK

THE ONLY TRUE IRON TONIC

Will purify BLOOD, regulate KIDNEYS, remove LIVER disorder, build strength, renew appetite, restore health and vigor of youth. Dyspepsia, Indigestion, that tired feeling absolutely eradicated. Mind brightened, brain power increased, bones, nerves, muscles, receive new force.

LADIES suffering from complaints peculiar to their sex, using it, find a safe, speedy cure. Returns rose bloom on cheeks, beautifies Complexion. Sold everywhere. All genuine goods bear "Crescent." Send us 2 cent stamp for 32-page pamphlet.

DR. HARTER MEDICINE CO., St. Louis, Mo.

SEEDS NORTHERN GROWN BEST FOR ALL SOILS & CLIMES. —100,000— ROSES & PLANTS. SEND 12¢ FOR A PKG VEG & 5 PKG FLOWER SEED (WORTH 50¢) FINE CATALOG 5¢ JOHN A. SALZER LA CROSSE WIS.

LOVE FOR A DAY.

CHAPTER XIII—CONTINUED.

I remember how calm the day was. The sunshine was delightfully warm; and, as the drowsy, musical hum of the bees as they worked busily fell on my ears, I thought of the beautiful line—

"The bee is betrothed to the broom."

The birds were silent; there was but a faint murmur of the wind; the house was strangely still. Many of the servants had gone to the Abbey to be in attendance. I could hear quite plainly the rush of the river in the distance, and the tapping of leaves against the window-glass. Once or twice I fancied that I heard a most unusual sound—whether it was a laugh, a scream, or a moan, I could not tell, for it was gone almost as soon as heard. I went down to the library in search of something that I needed for my writing. On the grand staircase I met Lady Severne's maid, Martha Glyde, and I felt sure that she had the key of a bedroom door in her hand. She was taking some soup, I thought, upstairs, for she was carrying a covered basin. Martha had always a grim smile for me. I was one of her favorites. I stopped impulsively.

"How is Lady Severne this morning?" I asked and the smile died in a moment. A hard, cold impenetrable look came into the honest face. "I am sorry she is ill," I continued.

"She is not"—"ill," the woman was going to say, I am sure; but she checked herself and substituted "well."

"I am sorry," I said; "for I knew she wanted to see St. Ninian's. What is it—cold or headache?"

"I must make haste," replied Martha, ignoring my question; "her ladyship is waiting;" and she brushed past me with far less ceremony than usual. "Good-morning, Miss," she added hastily, as though she knew she had been abrupt.

An hour afterward I had finished my writing and begun to pack the parcels of clothes that Lady Yorke had wished me to send away.

My rooms were in the part of the house called the "Queen's wing;" Lady Yorke's suite of apartments was in the centre of the building; while the rooms set apart for the guests were in the western tower. Some of the clothes I wanted were in one of the wardrobes in a spare room. Crossing the broad corridors that led to the western tower, I was struck by the unusual silence. There was no sound of visitors or servants, but profound stillness—no hurry of footsteps, no voices.

I went to the cedar-room, opened the wardrobe, found what I required, and was on the point of reclosing it, when I heard a sound that almost froze the blood in my veins.

Was it a cry, a shriek? I could not tell—only that it was unearthly in its horror. I knew by the sound that it must have come from Lady Severne's room.

Half frantic with fear, the next minute I was rapping at her door.

"What is the matter, Lady Severne?" I cried. "Are you ill? Are you hurt?"

There was a moment of deadly silence. I turned the handle of the door, and found that it was securely locked.

"Who is there?" Martha Glyde called out.

"It is I—Miss Chester. What is the matter," I replied.

"Nothing," was the curt reply

"But Martha, I heard Lady Severne scream. I am sure she is ill. Do let me in."

The next moment Martha had half-opened the door, and I saw her face; it was white and angry—yes, and alarmed.

"Miss Chester," she said—and the effort to speak calmly was a great one—"do not try to come in. You will only make things worse. Believe me, there is nothing the matter. Lady Severne is often hysterical. She is not ill; but she would be annoyed if she knew you were here."

I went away; but I retained my own belief that the scream I heard was not hysterical. I wondered if Mark's wife could be mad; but I was not aware that people could be mad one day and sane the next.

I found that Lady Severne did not leave her room that day; nor did she join the dinner-party. Lady Yorke apologized for her, saying that she had taken cold through being out on the terrace on the previous evening, but that she hoped she would be better on the morrow. I saw Mark's face twitch and his lips quiver, but he spoke no word. There was a murmur of regret: for several of the gentlemen present there could be no attraction that evening.

When the visitors retired, I remained to give Lady Yorke a report of all that she left for me to arrange, and then I told her of the unearthly noise that I had heard coming from Lady Severne's room.

She looked at me with a strange expression on her face.

"Did you really hear this yourself, Miss Chester?" she asked.

"Certainly, just as I have told you, Lady Yorke."

"Had any one been in those rooms, would they have heard it in the same fashion?" she asked.

"They must," I replied.

"Then," she said, speaking to herself rather than to me, "it must be seen to at once. Poor Mark!"

I did not like to say any more; but I went to my room more unhappy than ever about Mark, more puzzled than ever about the mystery surrounding his wife.

I looked forward with some curiosity to seeing her the next day; but at breakfast-time came the apology—Lady Severne did not feel well enough to come down-stairs. Mark's face was a study, yet no one seemed to notice it except myself. The knowledge that there was a mystery in the house was painful to me. Lady Yorke too seemed distressed—not merely anxious, but distressed. I saw tears in her eyes; and, when we were alone, she sighed frequently and deeply, as though she had something on her mind.

In the evening, just before the dressing-bell rang, to my astonishment Martha Glyde rapped at the door of Lady Yorke's boudoir.

She wanted "to speak to her ladyship most particularly," but she would not keep her long. I went away and left them together.

During dinner I saw that Lady Yorke was quite unlike herself, nervous, agitated, unequal to the occasion, and more than once she glanced imploringly at Lord Severne.

Dinner over, I was not much surprised when a servant came to say that Lady Yorke wished to see me in her boudoir at once. I went. I had never seen the mistress of Westwood look so sad or so distressed before.

"Just turn the key in the door, Miss Chester," she said. I want a few minutes conversation with you without interruption."

I did as she wished, and then stood before her, wondering at her agitation, her pale face, the sorrow expressed in her whole demeanor. She wrung her hands, began to speak, and then hesitated.

"The fact is," she said, "I am at a loss what to say or how to begin. I feel the shame and disgrace keenly, as though they were my own. I must tell you, but I don't know how."

"Is it—is it Lady Severne?" I asked.

"Yes," she replied. "Thank you for breaking the ice thus far: it is of her I want to speak. You asked me once if anything were wrong with her, and I told you. Yes the canker was always at the heart of the fairest rose; the worm always destroys the sweetest bud."

"I remember, but I did not understand in the least," I said.

"Probably not. Lady Severne is beautiful, charming, she has many admirable qualities, she is very popular; but there is one fatal drawback, so fatal that all the others are neutralized by it."

"What is it, Lady Yorke?" I asked anxiously.

"I am ashamed to tell you. They are almost the most horrible that can be said of a woman, but, they are unhappily tr.., Miss Chester. The fact is, Lady Severne drinks."

I recoiled as though she had struck me a terrible blow; but Lady Yorke looked relieved at having told her horrible secret at last.

"It is true; she drinks."

"But," I cried, aghast with horror, "she is a—a lady; it cannot be possible!"

"It is quite true, Miss Chester."

"Drinks!" Such a solution of the mystery had never occurred to me for one moment. If Lady Yorke had said, "She cheats at cards, she would rob her neighbor, she has committed murder"—even then I should not have felt so surprised. It was horrible to think that this beautiful woman, Mark's wife, should be guilty of so degrading a vice.

"But how is such a thing possible?" I cried eagerly. "Surely she could avoid it if she would?"

"I cannot tell. She says it is a disease that seizes her and holds her fast in its clutches. At times, for weeks together she is all that can be desired—a most agreeable, charming, fascinating woman, then for a few days she appears absolutely to lose all control over herself."

"But why do they let her have intoxicating liquors? Why not keep them from her?" I asked.

"They cannot. You may be sure that Lord Severne has tried everything, so has that faithful maid of hers, Martha Glyde. It is easier to soothe the paroxysms of the insane than to appease such a craving as hers. I have heard Martha say that when this horrible craving is on her, she will stoop to anything to get what she wants."

"How terrible!" I cried. "Oh, Lady Yorke, I wish I had not known it!"

"I am obliged to tell you," she said; "you may be sure that it is an unavoidable necessity. It is impossible that Lady Severne can remain in the western tower. Up to this present time no one in the house knows her secret, except her husband, Lord Yorke, Martha Glyde, you, and myself; but, if she remains in the western tower, every one must guess it. Martha Glyde told me that she has never been so bad as she is now, and she begged me to remove her to where she could be neither seen nor heard. Every one thinks that she is ill; and it will occasion no remark if I say that she has asked for a quieter, warmer room. I thought," continued Lady Yorke, "if you were willing, I would give her the room next to yours in the 'Queen's wing.' There she will be quite safe; and you are so kind, Miss Chester, you are so gentle and good, that this pitiful case must touch your heart. Will you see her sometimes? You did me good; you might do her good. You reclaimed me from a life of idle self-indulgence; you might reclaim her."

"I will do anything you wish, Lady Yorke—anything."

"It will be a great relief to me if you will help Martha Glyde to remove the unhappy woman. I do not want Masham or any of the servants to know it. I must return to my visitors. I shall trust entirely to you."

She hastened away, leaving me horror-stricken and bewildered. Oh, Mark, my dear lost love, it would have been better had you died.

CHAPTER XIV.

That was the solution of the mystery. That was the cause of Mark's watchfulness and misery, and of Lady Severne's peculiarities. From that originated the cold metallic light in the eyes that should have been so tender and lustrous. That was the cause of the hetic color that so often took the place of the dainty bloom. That was why a pretty bright young maid would have been quite useless—why the elderly woman kept watch and ward over her mistress. Of all the horrible fates that could have overtaken my poor Mark surely none could have been more horrible than this! All the anger died in my heart; there was nothing left but profound compassion. Now I could understand why he would not say anything to me about his wife. He might well look so worn and haggard. I forgot that he had deceived me, blighted my life; and my heart went out to him, not with the old love, but with a great pity and yearning. I would have given my life to save his wife and help him.

I will not dwell on the terrible scene that was enacted when Lady Severne was taken to her new rooms. I hope that I may never see such a sight again—such a leering smile, drooping heavy head, sullen eyes, and reeling figure.

"I am glad you know about it, Miss Chester," said Martha. "It is a heavy secret to carry all by one's self. At times I can hardly bear it. I told Lady Yorke you would be the right one to trust."

Partly from her and partly from Lady Yorke I heard the whole sad story. I am no advocate of total abstinence, although I have a horror of excessive drinking. I simply tell this sad story as it was told to me, and record the incidents I saw.

There is no need to go far back into Lady Severne's life. She was well-born, well-bred, married when she was very young, and went with her husband, Captain Nugent to India. When this horrible vice first took hold of her no one knew. There was some little rumor of it in India; but she was so young and so beautiful that no one believed it. It was not until she became Lady Severne that it attracted any attention. She said afterward that she took no more than other ladies—two or three glasses of wine at luncheon—perhaps a little champagne if she felt tired or "low:" a little more wine at dinner; and, during the evening, champagne at one party, sherry at another, and always brandy at night. She liked it; she was careless, and never thought about the consequences. More than once Lord Severne, seeing her glass filled and refilled, would say, "Be careful, Lurline, that wine is strong." She would answer laughingly, "I do not mind how strong it is if it sparkles." More than once he was distressed at finding bottles of brandy hidden away in her room. A bad habit grows quickly. The terrible day came when Lord Severne, returning home earlier than usual, found her—Ah, well, I cannot write the word! From that time all semblance of happiness ceased between them. They had been married only six weeks when he made the discovery. He decided at once what to do. They could never live at the Severne Court; the grand inheritance that had come to him was useless. He dared not make her mistress of the household; she was too far gone in her downward course for that. He could never make his home in England, where his misfortune must be made known at once. He could never know when or how the shame and disgrace might fall upon him. He took her to Italy, hoping by travel, novelty, and constant care to wean her from her weakness.

At first there was some slight improvement, and it was while that improvement lasted that they met Lord and Lady Yorke. But Lady Severne was not cured, and there were irregularities in her manner which made them think strangely of her, and prevented her from being a favorite with them. They liked Lord Severne exceedingly; they were attracted by his melancholy, which at first they did not understand. Lady Yorke exacted from Lord Severne a promise that when they came to England they would visit Westwood, and when business matters compelled Mark to return he kept that promise; but it was in fear and trembling. Lurline had assured her husband, as she had often done before she would keep a strict guard over herself; but again and again she had relapsed into her old habits. For during these long months, when she had plenty of money at her command, Lady Severne had gone from bad to worse. Her husband was at last compelled to have the assistance of Martha Glyde; but, in spite of all the care lavished upon her, in spite of all precautions, when these terrible fits came upon Lady Severne, she always managed to get that for which her heart craved. Nothing was of any avail—prayers, tears, advice, anger, all were useless. The beautiful and admired Lady Severne was a secret drinker, a woman who delivered herself to the bondage of an evil spirit, to the heavy yoke of a shameful habit. She bribed servants; she did things that in her better days she would have recoiled from doing. Yet so faithful was Martha Glyde, so loyal and thoughtful was her husband, that her terrible secret was hardly known. When Martha saw that a fit was inevitable, she locked her in her room, and gave out to the world that she was ill. At those times Lord Severne went almost mad with mortification and annoyance. There had been some terrible scenes once or twice, when Martha had been off her guard, and Lady Severne made her escape.

Lady Yorke, who had suspected in Italy what was wrong, now saw it plainly, and for the sake of the household Lord Severne had been compelled to tell her. She was distressed and grieved, but nothing could be done. Until Lady Severne came to her senses again she could not be removed. The only thing was to maintain the fiction of illness, and keep her secluded in her room. It was now three days since Martha Glyde, going one evening to put away her lady's jewels, found her insensible, and knew what had happened.

"We shall have a week of it," she said to me; "I know that."

"Surely not, if we keep everything from her?"

"That we cannot do. I have been sharp and diligent as a detective; so has my lord. You may baffle the cunning of a rogue or a thief, but never the cunning of a drunkard. His lordship was very unwilling to come here," Martha continued; "but Lady Severne promised faithfully to give no trouble in this way. She is fond o Lady Yorke, and she said it was so long since she enjoyed herself. The third day we were here his lordship said to me, 'Martha, I had better have died than have brought her here!' He talked to her, oh, so kindly! She cried and made all sorts of promises, but it was all in vain. Look at her now."

Lady Yorke told me much the same story, adding that Lord Severne's distress, when he was compelled to tell her the truth, was terrible.

"I am sorry for her," said Lady Yorke: "but for him my pity knows no bounds. He cannot go into society. If he takes her with him, he lives in constant fear; if he leaves her at home alone, his fear is greater still. His whole career is spoiled, his whole life blighted; he is miserably unhappy, and I see no hope or help for him. It is a milestone tied around his neck."

Her words were so many blows to me. The very novel of the discovery made me the more miserable. I could not help asking—

"If you knew of this, Lady Yorke, why did you ask her here?"

Yet the thought came to me that, if they had never come, I should have always believed Mark to be dead.

"I was not quite sure of it in Italy, and I never thought—I could never have dreamed—that it had reached this point. Honestly, much as I like and pity Lord Severne, if I had known the whole truth, I should not have invited them, nor would Lork Yorke have done so. I cannot tell you how unpleasant it is. Every moment of the day I am in anxious suspense and misery. What an expose it would be if any of the guests should get to know it! And in a large household like this it is almost impossible to keep such a secret."

"It is very difficult," I replied.

"You will do your best," I know, Miss Chester," said Lady Yorke, to whom anxieties of any kind were quite new. "Lord Severne has promised me that he will take his wife away as soon as she recovers, and I shall be glad."

"Where will they go?" I asked.

She looked just a little surprised at the question, believing them to be strangers to me.

"Somewhere on the continent," she answered. "He will never be able to live at that beautiful home of his."

"Why does he not send her away?"

"I suppose he would if she were always alike; but, you see, there are many weeks together when she is herself, charming and beautiful."

"Does he love her?" I asked abruptly.

"I think he did love her. My opinion is that he was carried away by her beauty, and married her in a sudden fit of impulse. I do not think she is the woman whom he would have chosen calmly. I do not think he loves her now. No man could love a woman addicted to that vice. He is very anxious, very unhappy; he smarts under the disgrace; he is always nervous and apprehensive; but I do not think he loves her."

Was it so much the better, or so much the worse?

Lady Yorke hastened away, and I was left to my own thoughts. Granted that it was Nemesis, granted that Mark had done wrong, it was a terrible punishment. It rendered all the gifts of fortune useless to him. I could sympathize with his difficulties. If he tried to put her away from him, it would only draw public attention to that which he was most anxious to conceal. It seemed to me that some noble motive actuated him. He had taken the hapless woman for better for worse, and he was trying his best. He gave her the shield, the protection of his name and his home

TO BE CONTINUED.

"CHARGE HIM IN THE BILL."

An Oil Baron's First Visit to Foreign Lands.

It was in the days when oil was first struck in Pennsylvania that one lucky possessor of some valuable land sold it at an excellent bargain. He had long had a desire to visit Europe, and as his present means enabled him to gratify his wish, it was not long before he was on one of the ocean liners plowing his way to the old world. He did England and Ireland in first-class style, acquiring a fund of experiences from contact with landlords and others that were certainly valuable, if only for what it cost him to acquire it. Learning what he did at the price among those who spoke his own language, it made him in a measure curious to see how the counterparts of these gentry would treat him in sunny France and Italy. The few inquiries he made did not reassure him that Gallic or Italian hosts were any less frugal or exacting than those of the British Kingdom, so that he not unnaturally judged from past experience that so much of his time as was not employed in sleeping would be chiefly occupied in opening his pocket-book and making various payments and donations more or less just to almost everyone he was brought in contact with.

Whether he was right or wrong in thus assuming that everything went so long as it was paid for, he could not possibly decide for some time. The theory that it was all right had carried him through Paris and other of the principal cities, after visiting which he had come to Marseilles. Here his eyes were delighted with reading the legend on a rather fair-looking hotel that English was spoken there. Entering, he found this statement only partly verified, as a knowledge of that speech was confined to the proprietor. Still as he had made out hitherto, this was nothing of a shock, although he soon found the petty extortions practiced upon him were. The slightest service was treated in the light of an item for the bill. Opening a window seemed to be made a memorandum of by the officiating waiter, and handing him a light for a cigar had the character of a special extra.

This went on for about half a day, when he had an altercation with an official whom he erroneously took for the man that blacked his boots. As neither understood the other too well, the traveler, possibly mistaking the garcon's natural vivacity for offensiveness, knocked him over a couple of trunks and down the stairs.

In a moment up rushed the proprietor.

"Mon Dieu, monsieur," he cried, "you have killed the waiter!"

"Killed him, did I!" was the somewhat surprised answer. "Oh, well, charge him in the bill."—Philadelphia Times.

How to Keep Dry.

For the girl who loathes rubber shoes or "gums," as the English call them, there is comfort in the fact that she can keep her feet warm and dry without them. A sheet of heavy or blotting paper, cut to fit the shoe, can easily be slipped in before the shoe is donned, and will be as efficient a protection as a cork sole; of course it will not keep your feet dry if you step in a puddle, but then neither will rubbers, and these latter retain the water they collect and give it ample opportunity to soak thoroughly into the leather.—New York Press.

IN WILDWOOD DELLS.

In wildwood dells, where shadows meet
In dim half-lights, and hours run fleet,
Daylong, thou hearest the charmed bee,
In snow blooms of the hawthorne tree,
Hum to the wind-tune's soft repeat.

The dawn unveileth darkingly;
And thou canst hear, half audibly,
The enraptur'd heart of nature beat
In wildwood dells.

The brook's low call from cool retreat,
The thrush's love-tale caroled sweet
From leafy ways—these tempted me,
In schoolboy days, to truancy,
And led my eager, tireless feet
In wildwood dells.

—M. ALFONTE in Chicago Inter Ocean.

THE DOCTOR'S CHARGE.

It is thirty years since I put my shingle up. I had a very little money, so had Matilda; we were desperately in love with each other—so much so that we really could not afford to wait so Matilda and I got married. I lay in wait for patients behind my office door. Like a hungry tiger (figuratively speaking) I cried aloud: "Ducky ducky darling, come and be killed." But they did not come. The ducks—I mean the patients—merely said "Quack!" (figuratively speaking again) and passed me by. They evidently looked on my shingle as a danger signal. But I soon got a large practice among the poor, and those who could not or would not pay. They appointed me their body physician. I need hardly add that it was a purely honorary post.

Now, there was a rich old maiden lady who lived opposite us; she was an eccentric but charitable old woman, and her name was Glumper—Clarissa Glumper. There was no chance of a woman like that coming to me for advice. Dr. Dulle was her medical attendant; he seemed to be everybody's medical attendant that was worth attending. My blood used to boil within me with indignation whenever I saw his mud-bespattered carriage and pair tearing about the neighborhood.

One afternoon, I saw Dr. Dulle's coachman pull up at Miss Glumper's door, and Matilda watched him through the blind.

"Jack," she said, excitedly, "he's only stopped five minutes; I timed him; and, oh, Jack! when he came out, he was as red as a turkey-cock. Perhaps he's apoplectic," added Matilda, with a wistful sigh. "Oh, Jack!" cried my wife, after an interval of a few moments, "there's the footman going post-haste for the medicine," and then she suddenly clutched my wrist, her face grew ashy pale, and she hissed, in a hoarse whisper: "Oh, Jack! he's coming here. Quick—quick!" cried Matilda.

In an instant she had carefully regulated my cravat. There was a tremendous ring at the door. Of course, as ill-luck would have it, Mary, our servant, was out, so, my heart beating wildly, I opened the door myself, and tried to look as unconcerned as possible.

"You're to come across to the missus at once," said the pampered menial, in a patronizing tone.

"Is it very urgent?" I said, looking at my watch.

"It's a matter of life and death," said the man, with a vulgar grin, which I could not understand.

"I will attend to it immediately," I said.

I had been smoking, so I took some tincture of cloves. Matilda sprinkled my hair and whiskers with eau-de-Cologne. I thrust my instrument-case into one pocket and my emergency case into the other, and then I tried to walk across the street in a dignified manner, and, of course, failed miserably. The footman, who was awaiting my arrival, was still grinning maliciously; he ushered me at once into the drawing-room, where, by the fire, sat an old lady in black, sobbing bitterly. It was Miss Glumper—the great Miss Glumper herself.

"Are you the young man of the name of Pestle?" she said.

"I am Dr. Pestle, madam," I replied, in my haughtiest manner.

"Quite so, quite so; I am sure I beg your pardon, Dr. Pestle," said the old lady, still sobbing copiously. "Dr. Pestle," she said, very solemnly, "are you a man of the world?"

A mystery—evidently a mystery. "Madam," I began, "I have never divulged a professional secret——"

"We are wasting precious time, Dr. Pestle," said the old lady, interrupting me; "I believe her to be sinking fast. She's all I have in the world, doctor. You won't mind seeing her, will you as a favor?"

"Madam," I began, "as a matter of common humanity——"

"She isn't human," she said.

The old lady was in deep grief, and she carefully lifted a shawl which covered something that lay upon the sofa. On the cushion was a fat pug-dog, panting convulsively.

"Dr. Pestle," cried the old lady, "only save my darling's life, and there's nothing I won't do for you! Is there hope?" she added, in a voice of agony.

"While there's life there's hope, madam." I said oracularly.

I whipped out my emergency-case and I attempted to administer a remedy to my unfortunate patient. The beast tried to bite me at once.

"That's a good sign, madam." I said; "a capital sign. He'll require care, great care," I added, "the greatest possible care; but we must do what we can for him."

"Dr. Pestle," said Miss Glumper, reprovingly, "Flora is a lady dog."

"Quite so, quite so, dear madam," I replied; "that's what renders the case so much more difficult. If, madam," I went on "I can have her under my own eye, I might be able to do a great deal for her," I said.

"We'll make up a bed for you, with pleasure," replied Miss Glumper. "I beg you'll not leave her for a single instant, Dr. Pestle. Expense is no object, I need hardly add."

"Madame," I said, in my best professional manner, "she needs absolute change of scene; rest, seclusion, and—er—the usual remedies," I added vaguely. "If you will permit me to remove the little patient to my own residence, all that human skill can do shall be done for her; otherwise," I added, and I looked unutterable things, "success is well nigh impossible."

Miss Glumper clasped her hands in agony. "It's so hard to part with her, doctor," she said.

"The matter is for your consideration, madam," I remarked.

"But may I come and see her?" exclaimed Miss Glumper.

"No, madam," I said, sternly; "the excitement of such interviews might prove fatal to the patient's life."

"Oh, Flora! Flora!" cried Miss Glumper, and she dropped upon her knees and kissed the patient's fat back. "Would you believe it, Dr. Pestle," cried the lady excitedly, "that Dr. Dulle actually declined to prescribe for the little patient. I've lost all confidence in Dr. Dulle," she said; and then rang the bell.

The footman answered it.

"Adolphus John," said his mistress, "you will take Flora to this gentleman's private residence; you will carry her with the utmost care. I will send my man every hour for tidings, Dr. Pestle," said the old lady. "I have trusted you, doctor," she said tragically; "see that you do your duty," and then, overcome by her feelings, she hurried from the room.

I accompanied Flora and Adolphus John to my own house. As soon as the man had left I began to consider Flora's case seriously. I determined to call in a consultant at once. I knew nothing about dogs; but I knew a man who did. After dark a person of villainous appearance presented himself at my back door. No sooner did he see the unfortunate Flora than he pronounced her case hopeless. "I'd have her drowned at once, sir, if I was you."

"You're quite sure the beast won't get over it?" I asked.

"She's as good as dead already," said the man; "she's got the 'yallers,' and her liver's gone to nothing."

I had never even treated a case of "yallers!" He did not seem in any doubt about his diagnosis.

"I could get ye a better nor she for the matter of fifteen bob," he added. "I know of a dawg as is as like her as two peas; they might be twins, for the matter of that."

"If you'll bring her tonight and she suits me, I'll give you a sovereign," I said.

I gave him half a crown, and, with a wink of thanks, he departed.

In about an hour Flora had passed away. I buried her secretly in the back garden; I did not breathe a word of what had happened to a living soul. About midnight the dog fancier arrived, bringing another pug dog in a bag, the very image of the deceased, but it was not so fat.

"Answers to the name of Popsy, gov'nor," remarked the man, "and I wouldn't be seen with her in Camberwell if I was you. D'ye tumble?"

I hastened to assure him that I did tumble. I gave him his sovereign and let him out.

All that night the new dog howled continually. We tempted it with the choicest viands, but the brute would not eat.

"She must be better to make all that noise," remarked Matilda.

"There is a marked improvement, my dear. What we have to dread is a relapse. In cases of—er—malignant yellows, solution of continuity frequently takes place."

Matilda was perfectly satisfied. "How dreadful!" she said.

My wife and I fed that beast for a whole fortnight as though we had been Chinese and were fattening it for the table. Each day I visited Miss Glumper and reported the patient's gradual improvement. "You'll find her much changed," I said; "the poor thing's terribly pulled down and the memory almost entirely gone. It has been a wonderful case," I said—"a wonderfully successful case; and, strange to say," I added in a pathetic voice, "I've got to love the little thing as though she were my own."

Miss Glumper took my hand and burst into tears; her heart was too full for words.

Of course Matilda and I always addressed the brute as Flora; but it was some time before she would answer to the name. At length, I brought home Flora to her expectant mistress.

"I shouldn't have known her," cried Miss Glumper, as she fondled the brute and fed it with slices of cold chicken. "Oh, Dr. Pestle, how shall I testify my gratitude to you? Pray let me know the amount of my indebtedness."

But I drew the line at taking her money. "Madam," I said, "I am only too glad to be of use to you."

"Doctor," replied the lady, "I'm eternally obliged."

For five-and-twenty years Miss Glumper's account was as good as a hundred a year to me. She left me a thousand pounds in her will: but she did more than that. "Dr. Pestle," she used to say to everybody, "saved a life that was very, very dear to me." Under the circumstances, it would have been my own fault if I had not, in course of time, managed to put together one of the tidiest little practices in the neighborhood.

BOOTH AS AN AMATEUR.

Recollections of His Cellar Theater in 1846.

Many people know of Edwin Booth's first appearance on the stage at the Boston Museum as Tressel in "Richard III.," but few know anything of his career as an amateur for several years prior to that time.

In 1846 he organized a theatrical company of his friends and relations. Though only 13 years of age, and by no means the oldest, his was the spirit that carried the organization through with success. Among the members of this group that afterwards became widely known were Wilkes Booth, his brother, John S. Clark and Somer Fieldbarrow.

The theater was the cellar of a residence on Exeter street, below Fayette street, in Baltimore, Md. At one end of the cellar was the stage, raised three feet from the floor, and at the other was the main entrance which was the large cellar window, reached by a ladder. The place was light and airy; the floor was strewn with sawdust and abundantly provided with benches.

The fact that the stairway to the cellar was used by the young Thespians as their entrance to the "green-room" made the entrance much more pretentions than it might otherwise have been.

Both the brothers, Edwin and Wilkes, were enthusiastic in their play acting, and did not confine themselves to tragedy, though Edwin was never more pleased then when in full regalia he could take the character of Jack Cade. Fieldbarrow was the great song and dance man, and Clark was the funny man when they gave negro minstrel shows. Even Booth had no objections to blacking his face with burnt cork and joining in with the chorus. Benefits were occasionally given for the various members.

Booth continued the amateur performances until the earlier part of 1849, at which time he began to study seriously for the stage.—Philadelphia Press.

THE MAGIC BOTTLE.

How Danial Slattery and the Village of Lackabeg Were Upset by It.

"The ignorance of the average peasant in Ireland in regard to simple remedies to alleviate pain is dense as a Newfoundland fog" said a resident of this city, who has recently returned from a trip through the southern and western portions of the Emerald Isle. "The common ills of humanity," he continued, "such as slight fevers, colds, rheumatic twinges and headaches are borne with the stoicism of the North American Indian. In some cases a physician has never entered the thatched cottage, even in times of direst stress. I had been suffering severely from catarrhal headache. To relieve it I bought a small heart shaped bottle of green glass, with a plated silver top, containing concentrated ammonia. I used it very carefully, for the preparation was strong. While seated in my hotel before a turf fire taking a sniff now and then of the ammonia and experiencing the usual relief, a brawny peasant named Daniel Slattery, from the hamlet of Lackabeg, came in. At sight of the bottle his curiosity was aroused. Said he:

"'That's a quare little bottle ye hav', sir!'

"'Oh, it is common in America,' I replied.

"'And do ye tell me so,' exclaimed Daniel with an accent of surprise. Fwhat good is it?'

"'It will alleviate headache.'

"'Usha, is that thrue? Shure and if ye were alin' me, sir, I hav' the headache meself?'

"'What kind of a headache is it? Nervous?'

"'Devil's the wan o'me knows fwhat kind of a headache is it, sir; but shure as nails is nails I hav' it right under me hair.'

"The truth was in all probability Daniel had never had the headache in his life. His object was to get hold of the little bottle. All the time the conversation was going on he had been looking longingly at it, and his fingers were itching to get possession of it. To prolong his suspense, and also to give him an exaggerated idea of the curative powers of the contents of the bottle, I took a dainty sniff at it, and then showed signs of lively satisfaction. Daniel sat on nettles. He squirmed with ardent desire to handle the bottle, and yet his sense of politeness restrained him from making a direct request for it. It was as good as a play to watch him. At last he became roused to such a pitch of desire that his scruples melted like butter in the tropics. He blushed like a school girl, stammered, and then, with an apologetic smile, blurted out:

"'Axin' yer pardon, sir, but w'u'd ye giv me a thrifle of a schmell o' the weeny bottle, till I see w'u'd it make me feel any betther!'

"I handed him the bottle and he received it with dainty touch, as if it had been a fragile flower. He held it up to the light, and looked through the green glass at its contents.

"'Faix,' he exclaimed, "the stuff in the bottle is granel'

"He unscrewed the silvered top and twirled it around on the end of one of his calloused fingers. When he had amused himself for a few minutes like a child with a new toy, he seized the bottle between his thumb and forefinger, raised it to his nostrils, and drew in a long breath. There was almost a vacuum in the room after that inhalation. He was seated when he made it. The effect was electrical. He gasped like a dying codfish, and rose to a standing posture. The tears ran from his eyes. The shock was so severe that his hair almost stood on end. He tried to speak, but for nearly a minute could only utter broken sentences. As he slowly recovered he raised his right hand as if about to strike me. Then he resumed his seat with a bewildered look and exclaimed:

"'Begorra, sir, it cured me intoirely!'

"By the time he had fully recovered an idea occurred to him, for his face brightened perceptibly. Suddenly he jumped to his feet and ran out of the door, with the bottle in his hand. He started for his home in Lackabeg, three miles away, as fast as his three-mile-an-hour donkey could pull the cart. The subsequent proceedings were related by a neighbor of Slattery's a few days later thus:

"That's a square bottle ye ara afther givin' Daniel Slattery, sir. He's afther playin' thricks wid it all over Lackabeg. Divil's the stroike o' work ded he do these three days, sir, but go around curin headaches wid it. There is ne'er a house, sir, but Dan wint in. 'I have a cure," says he, 'for ivery mortal pain in yeer body," says he, sober like a praist. All ye hav' to do is to sniff the little quare bottle and the pain is gone from ye like steam from the kettle,". Well, sir, he had thim fallin' down wid the fright he gev them, 'til he came to Michael O'Brien. Michael was that jarred and frekened by the shmell that he got that he let the bottle fall on the hearthstone and such mournin' as there was in Lackabeg bekase the bottle was bruk ye niver heerd before, sir. Faix ivery wan of O'Brien's family was on their two knees on the flure pickin' up little bits o' the broken glass. Ye haven't another wan o' the little bottles, hav' ye, sir?"—New York Sun.

He Didn't Look As If He'd Lie.

He was sitting on the lower deck of one of the Staten island rapid-transit ferry-boats. He was an old man, with a serious expression in his gray eyes, and his mouth above his snowy beard was thin and tightly closed. He did not look like a man who would joke upon any subject. He did not look like a man who would lie unless there was money to be made by so doing. Yet, according to the veracious New York Sun, this is a truthful account of what he said to acquaintance who came and sat near him. There were several horses on the boat, and a few words concerning one of them gave the old man a chance to unburden his mind. This is how he did it:

"Yes, sir; talkin' of horses reminds me of suthin' that happened to me t'other day when I was out ridin' with my little boy. We was in my buggy an' I was drivin' that old mare o' mine. You know that old mare. I've hed her now goin' on six year. Never was a kinder animal in harness than that mare. She ain't got no bad tricks an' she never hed. My old woman has driv her ever sence I got her, an' she never had no trouble o' no kind with her. Well, sir, I was drivin' her, as I was a-sayin', with my little boy last Thursday afternoon. Remember what a showery day it was last Thursday? Well, one o' them showers come up when I was a-drivin' an' I put the mare into a trot to git to shelter so's the boy wouldn't get wet. 'Make her go faster, pop,' says my little boy, an' I hit her a lick with the whip to sort o' hurry her up. First thing you know she was goin' at a two-forty gait an' I leant back an' put the whip away. Just then we ran over a tin bucket that was a-lyin' in the road, an' somehow or other the handle of the bucket got caught 'round one of the spokes of the buggy wheel an' went a-circlin' round with it. It made the durndest clatter I ever did hear, an' it like to have scart the wits clean out o' that there mare. She jest laid back her ears kin' o' snorted like, an' humped herself for all she knowed how. Go! I never seed the like in my life. She jest whizzed along, an' every time that old tin bucket pounded the ground she humped herself along faster. You bet my little boy didn't tell me to drive no faster then. He was scart as the mare. I took him between my knees an' helt onto him tight. Well, sir, I don't know what wouldn't a happened if it heedn't been that the tin pail fetched loose from the wheel, an' went a whizzen by my head toward the mare, an' I'll be gosh durned if it didn't hit her in the flank an' ketch onto her tail an' stick there. That's what it did. Then she did go. D'ye ever see any race horses a comin' down the homestretch in a close heat? Well, they wasn't a circumstance to the way that mare o' mine run last Thursday. She got right down close to the ground an' skimmed along the street like a lightnin' express on a down grade with all the brakes wide open. The tin bucket kept swingin' from side to side, an' hittin' her on first one flank an' then the other, an' at every lick she went faster. I do reckon she was a-goin most a mile a minute, when at last the bucket broke loose from her tail. Then I got a fresh hold on the lines an' sorter slackened her up, an' 'fore long she was a-trotting jest as nice an' easy as you please. It was the queerest thing that ever happened to me in all the years I've been a-drivin', and I don't want nothin' like it to happen agdin. The next time I see a tin pail a-lyin' in the road you can bet I'll give it all the room it wants. Hello! Here we are in the slip. I didn't think we was much past Gov'nor's island. I reckon we'd better be movin' to git off the boat."

And the old man shut his lips close together again and was lost in the crowd which was hastening to get up town from the battery. The man to whom he had been talking was standing stock still gazing after him and shaking his head slowly from side to side.

It Reached Him.

From the New York Evening Sun.

A woman just returned from Rochester tells of a letter which had just passed through the Rochester post-office. "Now, I saw the letter with my own eyes," she said, "and the address was as follows: 'To the Widow Mulrooney's son-in-law, who goes much into society on Throop Street.'" And such is the perfection of the postal service in Rochester that the Widow Mulrooney's son-in-law received the letter without much delay.

Why Dr. Price's Baking Powder is Superior to all others.

No great efforts are made by other manufacturers to procure and use pure materials.

It is true that one other company has the facilities, but its greed and cupidity induced it in an evil hour to use ammonia, in order to swell its profits. Hence the Price Baking Powder Company stands alone in its fight for a pure baking powder.

No other article of human food receives greater care in its production, or has attained higher perfection. Dr. Price's Cream is surely a perfect baking powder. Free from every taint of impurity. No other article used in the kitchen has so many steadfast friends among the housewives of America.

A letter, said to be written by James G. Blaine, declining to allow his name to be brought before the convention in Minneapolis next June, is going the rounds of the press. The candidacy of James G. Blaine for President has been, so far, more of the nature of a spontaneous demand for the man by the people than anything else, and we do not believe that Mr. Blaine will ever refuse to use his best endeavors in the interests of the people in any capacity in which they may call upon him to act. With Blaine, the success of the Republican party is reasonably sure; without his name at the head of the ticket success is problematical.

Red Wing Argus:—Rev. Conrad F. L. Risch died at his home near Huntingburg, Ind., on Tuesday, Ind., on Tuesday, Jan. 26th, aged 91 years, 1 month and 16 days. Mr. Risch was born in Germany, but came to this country in 1848, and settled in southern Indiana. He resided for over three years near Crookston, in this State, and was actively connected with the work of the Lutheran church until a few years ago. His wife and four children survive him, the latter being Mrs. Julia Spitzer, of Huntingburg, Ind., Henry Risch, of Euclid, this State, and Herman and Gustav Risch, of this city.

The answers we have received to our notice to delinquent subscribers, in our issue of January 28th, have been many and very satisfactory, yet there are a few who still remain as mum as oysters—they seem determined to force us to use extreme measures, at least their silence implies that much, and that is just what we don't like to do. We are compelled to incur considerable expense this spring in order that THE JOURNAL may keep up with and ahead of the procession and we have money enough due us on our list to PAY CASH for all the material we need if we should proceed to force collection of all long past due subscriptions. We do not imagine that we have one subscriber on our list who does not intend to settle his account some time, but the fact of our hail losses added to the fact that we are bound to put in added facilities in our work compels us to push our collections more vigorously than we ever have before, and compels us to find out from every one what he can do for us and no reasonable man can object to this request. If a person does not pay us but writes us stating when he can, or offers to give us negotiable paper, then we have something to bank on—we know what we can do and THAT is all we ask and that much we must insist upon. Every dollar received now will go right into the business to improve the paper and our patrons thus get the benefit of it. Let us hear from you, please.

The illustrations of the Review of Reviews is as timely in the February number as in any preceding issue. The frontispiece is a fine portrait of Cardinal Manning. In the Progress of the World are portraits of Senators Cullom and Palmer, of Illinois, Lord Hartington, Joseph Chamberlain and Mr. Collings, M. P., the late Price Albert Victor, the Princess May of Teck, the late Emile de Lavelaye, Mr. G. W. Childs and Mr. A. J. Drexel of Philadelphia, Mr. and Mrs. Ballington Booth of New York, and a striking likeness of Walt Whitman with a characteristic autograph post card. In the record of Current Events are portraits of the novelist Guy de Maupassant, the late Khedive, the new Khedive, and the late Wolcott Balestier. The cartoon department is as interesting as ever, and the character sketch of David B. Hill begins with a fine full-page portrait of Mr. Hill, which is followed by another striking likeness from a favorite photograph, and by portraits of Mr. Dana of the Sun, Mr. Howell of the Atlanta Constitution Senator Gorman, Mayor Grant of New York City, Mr. Richard Croker, the chief of Tammany, and a large number of striking cartoons reproduced for the most part from Puck and Judge. Portraits of Mr. Edgar and Col. Reeve of Minneapolis, of Count Tolstol and his daughter, and of Madame Novikoff accompany the article upon the Russian famine. The article upon the London Polytechnic and its Chicago excursion contains three portraits and ten other illustrations. Mrs. Humphry Ward's portrait accompanies the review of her new book, and the review of the first year of the "Darkest England" social scheme is well illustrated. Thus the Review of Reviews for February is a pictorial as well as a journalistic and literary review and summing up of the preceding month.

Cleveland's Minstrels.

The Grand Opera House will be occupied Friday evening, Feb. 12th, by Cleveland's Consolidated Minstrels. Everybody and everything are promised to be absolutely new, and not only to possess novelty, but genuine artistic ability. Manager Cleveland is always alive to the wants of the people, and he fully appreciates the facts of the case, that seeing the same old faces and hearing the same old gags is more than tiresome. This season he commences in a glow of unusual brightness with a great congregation of mirth provokers, singers and a host of foreign specialists. The stage settings and effects will be fully up to Mr. Cleveland's standard of sumptuous stagings. A special feature has been made of the vocal corps, which, it is promised, will eclipse any of Mr. Cleveland's former efforts. The sale of seats and boxes is now in progress.

Our Duluth Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

DULUTH, Feb. 8.—The visit of Secretary Thompson of the Chamber of Commerce to Washington, in the interest of the lake channels and the harbors at the head of Lake Superior, has resulted in much good. His addresses before the congressional committees have been commented upon far and wide, and there is reason to believe that congress will not turn a deaf ear to our needs. A correspondent of the Pittsburg Dispatch says the figures of the lake commerce, indisputable as they are, have the fascination of a fairy tale.

The secretary of war has appointed Col. O. M. Poe, of the engineering corps, chairman of a board of engineers to examine the plans of the proposed bridge across the canal entrance to Duluth harbor. A hearing will be had either at Washington or Detroit.

Members of the Wellington Steel company of Findlay, Ohio, were here Saturday, looking for a site on which to erect works to replace their Findlay plant, which was recently destroyed by fire. The company wants 25 acres of land and is greatly attracted to Duluth by its splendid situation as an iron manufacturing point. The company will employ nearly 1,000 men.

Good progress is reported in the efforts to locate the New York structural steel works here, and it is probable that this great institution will find a home in Duluth.

Two new pits have been opened on the Cincinnati mine on the new Mesabi range and both show a fine body of ore. They are important as establishing a greater extent of the big ore bed than had previously been shown up. Nearly enough work has been done now to show that the Cincinnati has as large a body of ore as the Bewabik.

The contract for the building of the Duluth, Mesabi & Northern has finally been signed, and the contractors, Donald Grant and Foley Brothers & Guthrie have already begun to push things.

Wheat has again begun to move this way and receipts are running from 100 to 150 cars a day. As the time for the opening of navigation approaches this movement will be considerably increased.

Duluth has just gone through the turmoil of a very exciting municipal election. It resulted in giving the city a Democratic mayor, Chas. d'Autremont, and a Republican council. The new government will be a good one.

HAYS.

FARMS FOR SALE!

A RARE OPPORTUNITY.

For a small cash payment and a mortgage for the balance at seven per cent, payable semi-annually, you can buy either of the following fine farms. They were taken on foreclosure and those prices only slightly exceed the amounts of the loans there have been on them.

1. E½ ne¼ and e½ se¼ Sec. 7, Town 150, Range 42. Cultivated land; 80 acres; 1½ story frame house, 18x24; log barns 18x24 and 16x18, log granary, 18x20. Price $1,700.
2. S½ se¼, and s½ of sw¼ Sec. 10, Town 151, Range 45. Forty acres cultivated land, two story frame house, 18x24, log barns 16x22 and 14x21, and log granary 16x20, and stock sheds. Price $1,360.
3. E½ sw¼ Sec. 10, and e½ nw¼ Sec. 15, Town 150, Range 42. 45 acres cultivated, one story log house 14x18, log barn 16x20, log granary 12x15 and stock sheds. Price $1,200.
4. W½ nw¼ Sec. 13, and e½ ne¼ Sec. 14, Town 150, Range 43. 45 acres cultivated, one story log house 14x18, log barn 16x20, log granary 12x14, and stock sheds. Price $1,500.

I have 50 quarter sections ranging in price from $3.50 per acre to $10.00 on five and ten years time. Address

A. HUMPHREYS,
Loan and Trust Building,
Minneapolis.

The Moorhead Institute for the Cure of Drunkenness and the Opium Habit

Is meeting with excellent success. It has treated several cases with satisfactory results and has several cases under treatment at the present time. The treatment used is "The Silver Ash" remedy by Dr. O. J. Gronendyke, of New Albany, Ind., and is proving all that is claimed for it, and Dr. Darrow and H. D. Scott, who have established the Moorhead Institute, consider themselves extremely fortunate in securing this remedy. They are responsible parties and guarantee a cure in all cases that are placed in their hands where directions are implicitly followed, and there is an honest and earnest desire on the part of the patient to reform. All patients placing themselves under the care of the Institute will be dealt with in an honest, straightforward manner and treated skilfully. Any who are addicted to the drink or opium habit, who desire to reform, will find this remedy a support that will sustain their resolution as nothing else will. Many have dear relatives or friends who are destroying their prospects in this world and their hopes of salvation in the next, by their unfortunate appetite. Let all such be assured that there is yet hope for them if they will make the resolve and faithfully try this remedy. Apply in person or address

MOORHEAD INSTITUTE,
Moorhead, Minn.

World's Fair Notes.

Director-General Davis has declared that all applications for space ought to be presented by July 1, 1892.

The French steamship line, Havre to New York, has agreed to return free all exhibits which it brings to the Exposition at regular tariff rates.

Herr Wermuth, the Imperial German World's Fair commissioner, has already received nearly 2,000 applications for space from the intending exhibitors of his country.

The California World's Fair state commissioners have authorized the formation of a Woman's Board. Each commissioner will appoint one member of this board. Each member is allowed $1,000 a year for travelling expenses.

The North Carolina legislature failed to make a World's Fair appropriation. Whereupon the state board of agriculture announced that it would undertake to provide all necessary means and superintend the collection of an exhibit that will be creditable to the state. It is the intention to have the state building at the exposition a reproduction of the state capitol.

Of the $5,000,000 of bonds, which the city of Chicago voted in aid of the Exposition, $3,000,000 have been sold in New York at par and accrued interest, and the Exposition treasury has been replenished accordingly. The terms of sale are regarded very satisfactory. They are equivalent to a premium of one-third of one per cent. on the first million, two-thirds on the second, and one per cent. on the third million.

The Exposition authorities have tendered to the shoe and leather manufacturers a site for their desired building in which to make a united exhibit of the leather industry. A site was selected twice before, but had to be withdrawn owing to changes in construction plans. The site now offered is near the lake shore, not far from the dairy building. There is little doubt that the leather men will accept the site and, if they do, they will put up a building 150x600 feet, costing $100,000.

The King of Italy has appointed a World's Fair commissioner. Italy, it is believed, will yet formally decide to participate in the Exposition. It is already assured that its participation, even if only informal, will be of no mean description. Exceptionally fine exhibits in sculpture and painting are promised.

A practical, working business college, which is purely an American institution, will be one of the exhibits at the Fair.

New South Wales has asked for 300,000 square feet of space.

The watchmakers of Switzerland, at a recent convention in Berne, decided to make an exhibit at Chicago of their finest and costliest watches, but not to attempt any competition with American manufacturers in cheaper grades. They have applied to the Swiss Council for financial and other aid to enable them to make a creditable exhibit.

In Colorado's exhibit will appear a very complete showing of the flora of the state. Miss Alida P. Lansing, who has been in charge of the matter, gathered more than 1,000 varities last summer, including fifteen or more which had never been classified.

A cablegram states that the French government is about to ask the chamber of deputies for an appropriation of 3,500,000 francs ($700,000) for the French exhibit at Chicago.

Georgia, like Texas and South Dakota, is trying to raise a large portion of its needed World's Fair fund through the instrumentality of the school pupils and teachers.

The Grand Rapids, Mich., furniture manufacturers will make a united exhibit and want half an acre of space, in which to display it.

For Sale Cheap.

Buffalo robes and cutters. Mrs. Mary Schreader, Crookston, Minn. [35-tf]

Alliance Social.

There will be an Alliance social at the residence of Geo. M. Swift, Esq., at Mentor, on Thursday, Feb. 18th, to which all are invited. The object is to have a good social time and to raise some money for a campaign fund.

LIST OF LETTERS remaining unclaimed at the Crookston, Minn., Post Office, for the week ending Feb. 6, 1892:

Flowers, Herbert
Johnson, George
Wood, Anthony—2
Knudson, Mrs. H. Andrew
McMartin, James—3

Persons calling for the above please say advertised. WM. B. DAWLEY, Postmaster.

Notice of Sale Under Decree.

STATE OF MINNESOTA. County of Polk—ss.
District Court, 14th Judicial District.

Kari Sletten, Plaintiff, vs. Carl Ulsteen and Julie Ulsteen, Defendants.

In pursuance to a judgment and decree of the Court in the above entitled action, dated February 1st 1892, a certified copy of which has been delivered to me with instructions to enforce the same, I, the undersigned sheriff of Polk County, Minnesota, shall expose for sale, as the law directs, at the front door of the District Court House in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, on Friday, the 8th day of April, A.D. 1892, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, the real estate and premises described in said judgment and decree, to wit: The south-west quarter of the north-west quarter of section twenty (20), township one hundred and fifty-three (153), range forty-three (43), in the County of Polk, Minnesota, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said judgment, together with the costs and expenses of such sale.

Dated February 5th, 1892.

ARNY GRUNDYSEN,
Sheriff of Polk County.

H. STEENERSON,
Attorney for Plaintiff,
Crookston, Minn. [43-49]

P. J. RUSSELL,
Attor ney-t-Law
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Next to Merchants' Bank.

REMNANT SALE.

Remnant Sale.

GERVAIS'------The Hustlers,
GREAT SALE OF
REMNANTS,
ODDS AND ENDS
AND BROKEN LINES
OF ALL KINDS.
BIG BARGAINS OFFERED.
Cloaks and Shawls
—AT—
Tremendous Reductions.
Gervais' - The Hustlers.

REMNANT SALE.

OUR HOLIDAY STOCK
—IS—
ON DISPLAY
THE FAIR
DEPARTMENT STORE,
Cor. Main and Robert Sts., Crookston.

J. V. E. WYATT
Undertaker,
BROADWAY,
Crookston, - - Minn.

Carries a full supply at all times. Always ready to attend to calls and take full charge if necessary.

Can supply anything in the line of
FURNITURE,
PICTURE FRAMES,
MOULDINGS, Etc., Etc.
Give Me a Call.

$75 MONTH $300
Do You Want
Employment ?

Cy which you can make from $75.00 to $250.00 per month—the amount depending on whether you work part or all your time, and on the amount of VIM and VIGOR and PLUCK and PUSH you put into the work. If so, it might pay you to write to us. WE'VE GOT SOMETHING THAT GOES, and there's room for a few more to come in. It won't cost you much to investigate—only a two-cent stamp. WE WANT A LIVE, WIDE-AWAKE REPRESENTATIVE IN OUR COMMUNITY. EITHER MAN OR WOMAN. If you are interested we'd like to hear from you We'll show you where there's some money. All information by return mail. Then if you are not convinced, all right; there'll be no harm done—only YOU'LL MISS A GOOD THING. Aetter write at once. Address

The Brodix Publishing Co.
WASHINGTON, D. C.

JOHN CROMB,
Attorney-at-Law.
SECOND STREET, CROOKSTON

A. A. JUST, M. D.,
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

Farmers' Egg Cases.

Call and Get a Ticket

And when you purchase anything at our store have the amount punched. The case is made of tin, handsomely Japanned and ornamented. The Fillers are made of cloth paper and very durable. Saves both packing and counting, obviates loss from breakage and miscounts and is an ornament to any home. This case will be given you when your cash purchases amount to $25.00.

When empty these cases can be used to carry groceries in, and are very handy for that. Remember the place,

A. Sture's New Store,
CROOKSTON, MINN
Opera House Block,

Work Horses -
- - & Mares.

FOR GOOD, SOLID WORK HORSES AND MARES, GO TO

M. R. BROWN,

The old reliable dealer, who has sold horses in this county since 1878 and who is always on hand to make his guaranty good. Every man who ever sold horses here is ready (when he sells) to guaranty, but later, if you happen to want him to make his guaranty good you can't most always sometimes find him. You can always find Brown, and always find him ready to make his recommend good. He handles only good young horses and has sold more than and dealer in the county.. He is now prepared to supply the demand for GOOD teams—he handles no other, and guaranty them just as recommended. Before you buy you will do well to call at

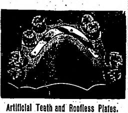
Brown's New Stables,
Main Street, one door north of the old M. E. church building.

NEW BARBER SHOP.
On Main St. C. E. MISNER, Prop.
Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.

RAZORS HONED.
If you desire your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 30 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it.
Yours Respectfully,
C. E. MISNER.

THE PIONEER
HARNESS SHOP,
M. RAUENBUEHLR, Proprietor.
A full supply of everything kept by the trade.
Cor of Broadway and Third Sts,
CROOKSTON, - - MINN

DENTISTRY



Artificial Teeth and Roofless Plates.
BY NEW PATENT.
Don't Have Teeth Extracted if Two Teeth or Roots Remain in Proper Position in Either Jaw. An Entire Set of Teeth can be Attached to them.

PATENT
GOLD CLASPS

The teeth never tip or drop down while eating, talking or laughing the gold clasps admitting of tightening or loosening in all cases. This new method for inserting where as discovered by experimenting, patented February 11th, 189 and I am now able to make perfect fits for all. This process is absolutely without pain and at a price within the reach of all.

Call on e before you have your teeth extracted as I make a specialty of Removable Bridge, and Roofless Plates. A perfect fit guaranteed in every case. Gold fillings inserted. Vitalized air and electricity for painless operations.

DR. J. H. THOMAS,
Owns Polk County, Minn., for this patent.

STUDY LAW
AT HOME.
Take a Course in the Sprague Correspondence School of Law Send ten cents (stamp) for particulars to
J. COTNER, Jr., Sec.,
No. 30 Whitney Block
DETROIT, MICH.

MILLER & FOOTE,
ATTY'S-AT-LAW,
McKinnon Block, Crookston, Minn.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.
THE
Great Transcontinental Route

Passes through Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, Manitoba, Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington.

The Dining Car Line

Dining cars are run between Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Winnipeg, Butte, Helena, Tacoma, Seattle and Portland.

PULLMAN SLEEPING CAR ROUTE.

Pullman service daily between Chicago, St. Paul, Montana and the Pacific Northwest; and between St. Paul, Minneapolis and Minnesota, North Dakota and Manitoba points.

THE POPULAR LINE.

Daily Express Trains carry elegant Pullman Sleeping Cars, Dining Cars, Day Coaches, Pullman Tourist Sleepers and Free Colonist Sleeping Cars.

YELLOWSTONE PARK ROUTE.

The Northern Pacific R. R. is the rail line to Yellowstone Park; the popular line to California and Alaska; and its trains pass through the grandest scenery of seven states.

THROUGH TICKETS

Are sold at all coupon offices of the Northern Pacific Railroad to points North, East, South and West, in the United States and Canada.

For rates, maps, time tables, or special information, apply to

CHAS. A. SHARKEY,
Agent Northern Pacific R. R.,
Crookston, Minn.

CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent,
St. Paul, Minn.

NEW CIGAR STORE
SIGN OF THE BIG INDIAN.
H. F. BROWN, Proprietor.
Second Street,
CROOKSTON, - MINN

Cigars of every known brand, from a cheroot to a 25 center. Cigarettes, Chewing and Smoking Tobaccos of all kinds, Snuff, Pipes to suit the fancy of all, from a corn-cob pipe to a meerschaum.

CALL IN.

CROOKSTON
STEAM LAUNDRY
O. D. ROOD, Prop.,
SECOND STREET, NEAR ASH,
Opposite Commercial Hotel.)

I have just added New Machinery and Facilities for doing

Washing and Ironing

Upon the Shortest Notice in the Best Manner and upon the Most Reasonable Terms.

All Those Wanting
FAMILY WASHING
Done will find it to their interest to call at the Laundry. Goods called for and delivered.

See the old reliable dealer, M. R. Brown, if you want to buy a team this spring.

Try M. R. Brown for a goood team of working horses or mares.

L. E. GOSSMAN,
Attorney-at-Law,
No. 2 Fournet Block } CROOKSTON, MINN.

THE NEW
NORTHWEST

Home seekers will find the last of the public domain of agricultural and grazing value along the Great Northern Ry. in North Dakota and Montana — FARM LANDS

N W TOWNS — 100 or more, along the Great Northern Railway Line. Business chances. Write F. I. WHITNEY, St. Paul, Minn., for Books, Maps, &c. Write now.

Settlers on free Government lands along the Great Northern Ry Line in North Dakota and Montana get low rates and fine markets for products. — LOW RATS.

Montana produces the finest Horses and Cattle. Free ranges yet in Mouse, Milk and Sun River Valleys and Sweet Grass Hills. — Horses, Cattle.

Health, Wealth. — In the Northwest. Free Lands. New Towns, New Railways, New Mines, Low Rates. Largest area of good vacant land.

Sweetest Grass Hills, Milk and Sun River Valleys, Montana, reached only by the Great Northern Railway Line. The stock raisers' paradise. — Sheep, Hogs.

Herds, Mines. — These have made Montana the richest State per capita in the Union. Plenty of room for more miners and stock raisers. Now is the time.

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON
PAID IN CAPITAL, - $100,000
SURPLUS. - - - $12,700

Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittance.

GEO. Q. ERSKINE, President.
WM. ANGLIM, Vice President.
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashi

DIRECTORS:
Wm. Anglim, K. D. Chase, F. D. Childs
Geo. Q. Erskine, B. B. Northrop, A. A. Miller
E. M. Walsh, John Moore, W. H. Crosby
Chas. E. Sawyer.

Polk County Journal.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.

Crookston, February 11, 1892.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

	Leave Crookston Daily.	Arrive Crookston Daily.
For Duluth, Ashland, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago, and all points East and South	10:08 p. m.	8:25 a. m.
For Grand Forks, Grafton, Pembina, Winnipeg and points in N. Dakota and Winnipeg	8:25 a. m.	10:08 p. m.

FOR PRINCIPAL POINTS IN

GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY LINE

MINNESOTA, NORTH DAKOTA, SOUTH DAKOTA, MANITOBA, MONTANA, AND PACIFIC COAST.

TIME CARD.

MONTANA EXPRESS DAILY.

```
7:40 p. m. de..........St. Paul..............ar. 6:55 a. m.
7:00 a. m. de.......CROOKSTON.........de. 7:25 p. m.
8:15 a. m. de.......Grand Forks.........de. 6:20 p. m.
9:40 p. m. ar.........Helena.............de. 11:00 a. m.
```

ST. VINCENT BRANCH.
Daily, except Sunday.
Depart 7:30 a. m..........................Arrive 6:45 p. m.

FOSSTON BRANCH.
DAILY, EXCEPT SUNDAY.
Depart 7:30 a. m...........................Arrive 5:00 p. m.

ST. HILAIRE BRANCH.
Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Depart 10:45 a. m..........................Arrive 4:00 p. m.

W. W. FEGAN,
Agent, Crookston.

IF YOU ARE GOING EAST OR SOUTH ASK YOUR NEAREST AGENT FOR TICKETS VIA THE AND TAKING OTHER LINE. BURLINGTON

Church and State.

New York Press.

Following close upon an editorial article in The Press, pointing to Cardinal Ledochowski as likely to be the chief adviser of the next Pope, the cable brought the news of the Cardinals appointment as Prefect of the Propaganda, an office made vacant by the death of the late Cardinal Simecni. This is one of the most important places near the Vatican, and the official occupying it has a broad authority in dealing with the United States, Great Britain and other countries in which the Catholic is not recognised as a state religion, and which are treated as missionary ground. The appointment will give to Cardinal Ledochowski unlimited opportunity for making himself known to the world in general and the Catholic world in particular, and thus preparing himself for a greater task should the future have such in reserve.

The position of the Papacy in Europe is extremely delicate. The state connection, which has been regarded as almost indispensable, is proving in many ways to be an embarrassment. In France, for instance, as shown in the recent prosecution of the Archbishop of Aix, the government assumes to treat the prelates and clergy as officials, subject to the same control and direction as others receiving pay from the public treasury. In Germany the church has succeeded, after many years of struggle in getting rid of the more oppressive restrictions imposed by the Falk laws, but even now an educational measure supposed to be chiefly for the benefit of Catholics and supported by the Kaiser, is meeting with powerful opposition. Dr. Miguel, the Kaiser's favorite Minister, who, however, is not willing to forget his Huguenot traditions, has, it is understood, resigned rather than to appear to indorse a bill so obnoxious to his religious principles, and the agitation throughout Germany threatens to be serious.

Austria has not deviated from the strict adherence to the Holy See, but matters are different in Hungary. There the government, indorsed on Friday at the polls, has taken a firm and determined stand against clerical independence, and apparently neither remonstrances from Rome, nor ecclesiastical influences at home, can swerve it from the course determined upon. In Italy, while reports are afloat of reconciliation between the Pope and the King, there seems to be no official assurance on the subject, and fuel is just now added to the long standing antagonism by a summons addressed to leading cardinals to testify in a civil court, a summons of which they have refused to take any notice. This incident does not look like conciliation.

In Russia the Catholics as well as the Jews are being persecuted. The government has issued orders that no new Catholic churches shall be built, and that when those now existing become dangerous for occupation they shall be closed. This, of course, means the gradual extinction of Catholic public worship. Besides, there is a good deal of actual individual persecution of Catholics in Russia, and members of that faith forced from their country by ill treatment have mingled with the tide of Jewish emigration.

Sweden, the most Protestant country in Europe, while barely prosecuting Catholic worship, has recently enacted a measure intended to prevent the spread of that faith. Spain, in its period of decay, adheres to the church of which it was the champion in its centuries of power. In Central and South America the Catholic church is more or less embroiled with the various governments on account of a former or existing state connection.

As a matter of fact the Catholic religion appears to flourish best in the United States and other lands where it has no relation whatever to the state, and where the support of the church is wholly voluntary. Here, religion unfettered, finds ready and liberal sustenance not at the hand of the state, but of worshipers who testify their devotion to the church by willingness to support it. After awhile. the moral which these facts convey may be studied to advantage in those countries where the church is still bound in subjection to the state.

In Good Time.

New York Press.

The alleged Democratic scheme to get up as a party dodge an international silver conference to be held during the World's fair has apparently fallen into the waste basket of the committee room and the party is marching on to the free coinage precipice at double quick speed. The World's fair silver conference deceived nobody except at first, for any man with eyes in his head could see at a second glance that it was only an effort to postpone a troublesome issue until after the Presidential election.

It is fortunate that the mask has fallen off so soon. If it becomes so plain nine months before election that nothing can be expected of the Democracy in the line of currency legislation except a crazy and dangerous determination to dify conditions and to follow theories framed in the interest of speculators and against the interest of the people, there is time to educate the people in the significance of this attitude before they are called on to vote.

The point that the Republican press of the whole country should keep on making and driving home in this: The silver speculators want free coinage without an international ratio expressly for the sake of the profit that will go into their pockets by virtue of the difference between seventy-five cents' worth of silver coined free of charge into "a dollar" and a real dollar, a dollar's worth of gold in the form of coin. Of course that is the very reason why the people should not want free coinage without an international silver treaty. Such a treaty would give to us a sound bimetallic currency by advancing the price of silver, so that the silver dollar agreed on would be really worth a dollar. Of course, in that event free coinage would be of no considerable profit to the big silver speculators. That's why they do not want it. But it would mean a good price and a steady market for the product of our great silver mining industry, as well as a currency in which the workingman could buy a dollar's worth of goods for the wages of a dollar's worth of work. The workingman has sense enough to know that if he is hired for $3 a day, legal tender money, and if there is free coinage without a treaty with other nations, he will be liable at any time to find that, in consequence of heavy gold exports, the price of what he buys today for his $3 will have been put up to $4. And he will still be getting $3 a day. Wages won't go up. Oh, no! And the butcher and the baker and the candlestick maker won't be allowed to say, "Your dollar is worth only seventy-five cents; we won't take it for more." They will have to take it as a dollar. But marking three dollar goods up to $4 will amount to the same thing.

The National Debt of the United States.

New York Press.

Estimating five persons to each family, census bureau calculations demonstrate that the federal debt of the United States amounts to $78.15 per family. On a similar basis of calculation the debt of Great Britain is $337.60 per family; of Austro-Hungary, $354.20, and of France, $581.75. Germany has no statistics from which to figure out accurately her debt per family, but the indebtedness is estimated at $400. It is one of the notable features of the financial stability of this nation that the national debt per family is so low, and it is the subject of comment that while the ratio of national debt to families has decreased steadily, the national wealth has been growing faster than that of any nation on the globe, and our capital and resources have improved more rapidly than those of any other nation.

DR. LEDUC'S Periodical Pills—The French remedy, Paris. A reliable female regulator. Acts directly on the generative organs. Cures all ailments peculiar to women. $2, 3 for $5. Sold by A. G. Anderson, Crookston, Minn.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. In Probate Court, Special Term, Jan. 21st, 1892.

In the matter of the estate of William G. Cooke, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of H. E. Cooke, administrator of the estate of William G. Cooke, deceased representing among other things that he has fully administered said estate and praying that a time and place be fixed for examining, settling and allowing the final account of his administration, and for the assignment of the residue of said estate to the parties entitled thereto by law;

It is ordered, that said account be examined, and petition heard, by this Court, on Monday, the 15th day of February, A. D. 1892, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the Probate Office in the city of Crookston, in said county.

And it is further ordered, that notice thereof be given to all persons interested by publishing a copy of this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, in said county.

Dated at Crookston, the 21st day of January, A. D. 1892.

By the Court: C. M. BENSON, Judge of Probate.
[41-[illegible]

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

(First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.)
(Last publication Feb. 25th, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of thirty-two and 49-100 dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Eugene Boulie and Melvina Boulie, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company, of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of August, 1890, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the twentieth day of August, 1890, at 3 o'clock p. m., in book 52 of mortgages, on page 393.

And whereas, the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does herely elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of four hundred and ninety-six and 4-100 dollars, ($496.04), with interest on four hundred and eighty-one (481) dollars thereof, at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The south half of the northwest quarter (s½ nw¼) and lots three (3) and four (4), all in Section two (2), of Town one hundred and forty-nine (149), of Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of four hundred ninety-six and 4-100 dollars ($496.04) and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five (25) dollars Attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee Company,
Mortgagee.
A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [39-45]

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

(First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.)
(Last publication Feb. 25th, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of forty-three and 25-100 dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Napoleon Gonyea, an unmarried man, mortgagor, to The Loan and Guarantee Company, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of November, 1890, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the third day of November, 1890, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 54 of mortgages, on page 345.

And whereas the said, The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of six hundred and fifty and 83-100 dollars ($650.83) with interest on six hundred and forty-two (642) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided. the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The west half of the northeast quarter (w½ ne¼) and the west half of the southeast quarter (w½ se¼) of Section thirty (30), of Town one hundred and fifty (150) of Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of six hundred and fifty and 83-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars Attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee Company,
Mortgagee.
A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [39-45]

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Jan. 7th, 1892.]
[Last publication Feb. 18th, 1892.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain indenture of mortgage, executed and delivered by Ida D. Van Tuyl and John E. Van Tuyl, her husband, mortgagors, to the "Union Central Life Insurance Company," mortgagee, bearing date the 22d day of November, 1889, with a power of sale therein contained, which mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 27th day of December, A. D. 1889, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, in book 51 of mortgages, on page 255, and whereas said mortgage was given to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars and interest thereon from its said date at the rate of eight per cent. per annum, due and payable on the first day of January in each year. And whereas default has been made in the payment of the sum of forty-eight dollars interest due and payable January 1st, 1891, and default having also been made in the payment of the sum of forty-eight dollars interest due and payable on January 1st, 1892, and both of said defaults still continue, and no part of said principal has ever been paid. And whereas the conditions of said mortgage are such that if default be made in the payment of the principal sum secured by said mortgage or interest thereon when the same becomes due, then the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage shall thereupon become due and payable at once.

And whereas both by the terms of said mortgage and the election of said mortgagee hereby made the whole amount secured by said mortgage both principal and interest accrued to this date is now due and payable.

And the amount now claimed to be due and which is due at the date of this notice upon said mortgage, including interest in accordance with the terms of said mortgage, is the sum of six hundred and ninety-nine and 95-100 dollars. And no action or proceeding at law having been instituted to recover said debt or any part thereof secured by said mortgage.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained which by reason of the defaults aforesaid has become operative, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to-wit: The west half of the southeast quarter and the east half of the southwest quarter, both of the above described tracts being in Section ten (10), Township one hundred and forty nine (149), Range forty-three (43), in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and containing 160 acres of land, together with all the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging or in any wise appertaining. Said sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on Tuesday, the 23d day of February, 1892, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to satisfy and pay the amount which will then be due upon said mortgage according to the terms thereof, and interest and fifty dollars attorney's fees as provided by said mortgage in case of foreclosure and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated January 4th, 1892.

Union Central Life Insurance Company,
Mortgagee.
Chas. P. Barker,
Attorney for said Mortgagee,
618 Guaranty Loan Building,
Minneapolis Minn.
[38-44]

W. A. ROBERTSON
D. D. S.
Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland.
OPERATIVE AND MECHANICAL
DENTIST.
N. B. Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.
OFFICE IN McKINNON BLOCK.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication, January 21st, 1892.]
[Last publication, March 3rd, 1892.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred and thirty and 15-100 dollars, interest which is due at the date of this notice, upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Alphonse Paridis and Elmira Paridis, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the 1st day of October, 1889, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 9th day of November, 1889, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 48 of mortgages, on page 52.

And whereas the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of nine hundred and forty-six and 82-100 Dollars, with interest on nine hundred and twelve ($912) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the 18th day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north-east quarter (ne¼) of Section thirty-four (34) Town one hundred and fifty (150) of Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston in said County and State, on

SATURDAY, THE FIFTH DAY OF MARCH, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of nine hundred and forty-six and 82-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated January 18th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee
Company,
Mortgagee.
A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [40-46]

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Thursday, Jan. 14th 1892.]
[Last publication Thursday, Feb. 25th 1892.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred and fifty and seventy one hundredths Dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Thomas Plante and Mary Plante his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the First day of June, 1889, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 1st day of July, 1889, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 45 of mortgages on page 470.

And whereas, the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of the said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of nine hundred and fifty-six and fourteen hundredths dollars ($956.14), with interest on nine hundred and forty (940) dollars, thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum, from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north half of the south-east quarter (n½ se¼) and the north half of the south-west quarter (n½sw¼) of section thirty four (34) of town one hundred and fifty (150) of range forty-one (41) in Polk county and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of nine hundred and fifty-six and fourteen hundredths dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee
Company,
Mortgagee.
A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [39-45]

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.]
[Last publication Feb. 25th, 1892.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of Seventy-one and seventy eight one hundredths dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Luc Jenot and Elenore Jenot, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of December, 1888, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the seventh day of December, 1888, at 11 o'clock a. m., in book 41 of mortgages, on page 57.

And whereas, the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of Ten Hundred and seventy-eight and fifty-eight dollars, ($1078.58), with interest on Ten Hundred and Seventy ($1070) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum, from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The south-east (se) quarter of section nineteen (19) of town one hundred and fifty (150) of range forty-one (41) in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Ten Hundred and Seventy-eight and fifty eight one hundredths dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty ($50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee
Company,
Mortgagee.
A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [39-45]

MINNESOTA HOUSE,
ONE-HALF BLOCK FROM DEPOT.
WM. HEIDRICH, - - - Proprietor.
Having rented this Popular House and thoroughly re-fitted and re-furnished it throughout, I am now prepared to meet the wants of all who want good and cheap accommodations.
Farmers custom specially invited.
Terms $1.00 per Day.

DR. M. WATTS.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
Office over Merchants' Bank.
[illegible] by day or night.

CHRISTIANSON BROTHERS
(Correspondents Fargo Loan Agency.)
REAL ESTATE
Farm Mortgage Loans and Insurance.
Special Bargains in Choice Farm Lands, improved and unimproved. Low prices and easy terms.
—OFFICE ON ROBERT STREET.—
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN

FRANK IVES, Notary Public and U. S. Com'r.
D. E. HATLESTAD, District Court Commissioner
IVES & HATLESTAD,
Attorneys and Counselors at Law,
CROOKSTON, - - - - MINN
Will practice in all the courts and before the U. S. Land Office at Crookston and Washington.
Pensions and Soldiers' Claims and Patents carefully and promptly adjusted.
We loan money on improved farms and city property and have facilities for placing large loans at low rate of interest. We give special attention to collection and all commercial business pertaining to our profession.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., February 3rd, 1892.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register or Receiver of U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on March 11th, 1892, viz: ALFRED SAVARY, Hd. 14,686, for the n½ nw¼ and lots 1 and 4 Sec. 27, Tp. 150, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Jacob R. Barb, Frank Robert, Edmund M. Walsh, Christopher Hanson, all of Crookston, Polk County, Minn.

[42-47] HUGH THOMPSON, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minnesota, Jan. 18, 1892.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register or Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on February 29th, 1892, viz: Tosten L. Oleson, Hd. No. 13,259, for the S W¼ Sec. 14, Twp. 147, Range 43. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: Knut S. Akre, John J. Ellingson, Halvor Ellingson, Edevart T. Ramse, all of Neilsville, Minn.

[40-45] HUGH THOMPSON, Register.

Mortgage Foreclosuse Sale.

(First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.)
(Last publication Jan. 25th, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of eighty-eight and eighty-one one hundredths dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Martin Thompson and Ann G. Thompson, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the second day of December 1889, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 10th day of January, 1890, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 48 of mortgages, on page 242.

And whereas the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of six hundred and ninety-two and eighty-one one hundredths dollars, ($692.81), with interest on six hundred and eighty-four (684) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum, from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north-west quarter (nw¼) of section twenty (20) of Town one hundred and forty-nine (149) of Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of six hundred and ninety-two and 81-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee
Company,
Mortgagee.
A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [39-45]

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

(First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.)
(Last publication Feb. 25th, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of eighty-eight and 85-100 dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Peder H. Mesedalen and Kari Mesedalen, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company, of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the second day of December, 1889, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the tenth day of January, 1890, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 48 of mortgages, on page 246.

And whereas, the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of six hundred ninety-two and 81-100 dollars, ($692.81) with interest on six hundred and eighty-four (684) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The northwest quarter (nw¼) of Section seventeen (17), Town one hundred and forty-nine (149), Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of six hundred and ninety-two and 81-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars Attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee Company,
Mortgagee.
A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [39-45]

M. LeGUEE.
Veterinary Surgeon.
Residence and office on Jerome's Addition.
Crookston, - - - Minn

ALDERMAN & SYLVESTER,
—DEALERS IN—
Shelf and Heavy
HARDWARE,
Sash, Doors and Mouldings
Mixed Paints, Linseed and Machine Oils, Flying Dutchman Gang Plows, J. Thompson & Sons Walking Plows. Sole agents for the Domestic Sewing Machine.
A FULL AND COMPLETE STOCK OF
STOVES AND RANGES
Corner Main and Fletcher Sts., - - - Crookston.

McKINNON BROS.,
—DEALERS IN—
ALL OF THE LEADING
Agricultural Implements
MAIN STREET. McKINNON BLOK.
Before Purehasing, Give Us a all.

SCANDIA-AMERICAN BANK,
OF CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.
Organized Under the State Laws.
Authorized capital $200,000. Paid up capital, $50,000. Undivided profits $10,500
Buys Bonds, School and Town Orders. Special attention to collections
Interest on time deposits.
OFFICERS.
C. HENDRICKSON, President.
O. H. LUCKEN, 2d Vice-President.
A. G. GALLASCH, Vice-President
L. ELLINGTON, Cashier.
A. P. HANSON, Assistant Cashier.
DIRECTORS.
C. O. ristianson. E. P. Pierce H. Steenerson. Max Ericsson. O. H Lucken. J. H. Lucken, L. K. Aaker. A. D. Stephens. A. G. Gallasch. C. Hendrickson. A. E. Johnson, St. Paul

Sylvester & Finseth,
—Wholesale and Retail Dealers in—
Heavy and Shelf Hardware
Stoves, Tinware, Paints and Oils, Doors, Sash, Barbed Wire, Lime, Buckeye Binders and Mowers, Hollingsworth Rakes, Favorite Wagons and Buggies, National Cordage Co's Binding Twine, Rock Island Plows, Buford Gang and Sulky Plows, Fairbanks Scales, Hose for Lawn Sprinkling, Screen Doors, Ice Cream Freezers, Gasoline Stoves, Varnish and Paper, Lawn Mowers, North Star Refrigerators and Garden Sprinklers.
Agents for Standard Rotary Shuttle Sewing Machines.
Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

S. L. COLLINS,
—PROPRIETOR OF—
MAIN STREET
Livery, Feed and Sale Stables
CORNER MAIN AND FOURTH STS, WEST SIDE,
Crookston, - - - - Minnesota.
Horses bought and sold on commission.
Everything neat and nobby.
Feeding a specialty.
FINE HEARSE
In connection which I will attend to in person

Crookston Business College.
FACULTY:
R. S. KNUDSON, L. E. GOSSMAN, C. M. WASSON.
BOOKKEEPING.
SHORTHAND.
TYPEWRITING.
PENMANSHIP.
COMMERCIAL LAW.
CIVIL GOVERNMENT
CORRESPONDENCE.
Faculty composed of specialtists.
Most advanced methods of instruction.
Students may take full course or special braches.
Special English department.
Day and evening sessions.
Tuition Fees Low.
Students may enter at any time.
GRAMMAR.
ARITHMETIC.
SPELLING.
READING.
HISTORY.
GEOGRAPHY.
COMPOSITION.
For catalogues and circulars address
R. S. KNUDSON, Principal,
Crookston, Minn.

H. STEENERSON
ATTORNEY AT LAW
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA

MARTIN O'BRIEN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
I. O. O. F. [illegible] Crookston, Minn

Historical Society

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Editor and Proprietor. DEVOTED TO THE WELFARE OF POLK COUNTY. TERMS---$1.50 Per Annum

VOL. XV. CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FEBRUARY 18, 1892. NO. 44

Polk County Journal.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

ADVERTISING RATES.

SPACE.	1 w.	2 w.	3 w.	1 m.	3 m	6 m.	1 year
½ inch	$.50	$1 00	$1 25	$1 50	$3 00	4 50	$ 6 00
1 inch	.75	1 25	1 75	2 00	4 50	6 00	10 00
2 inches	1 50	2 25	3 00	3 50	6 50	9 50	15 00
3 inches	1 75	2 75	3 75	4 50	9 50	13 00	20 00
4 inches	2 50	3 50	4 50	5 50	10 00	18 00	25 00
5 inches	3 00	4 00	5 00	6 00	12 50	20 00	30 00
¼ column	3 50	4 50	5 50	6 50	15 00	25 00	35 00
½ column	6 00	7 50	10 00	12 00	25 00	35 00	50 00
1 column	9 50	12 00	15 00	18 00	35 00	60 00	100 00

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.
2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.
3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.
4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class matter.

Council Proceedings.

Proceedings of a regular meeting of the City Council of the City of Crookston, held in the City Hall on Tuesday evening, February 9th, 1892.

Meeting called to order by president Cromb.

ROLL CALL.

Aldermen present—Buhn, Jennings, Childs, Jerome, McGlogan, Marlette, Schmidt, Walker, Cromb.

Aldermen absent—Marshall, Steenerson.

The minutes of the previous meetings were read and approved.

The committee who were appointed by the council to wait on the County Treasurer and get what money had been paid [illegible] the last settlement, reported that they had done so, and had secured the sum of $5,000.

The City Attorney presented a written opinion of the Attorney General on the question of liquor licenses. On motion the same was ordered spread on the records.

CROOKSTON, Minn., Feb. 9, 1892.

To the Honorable, the City Council of the city of Crookston:

GENTLEMEN:—In response to the desire expressed by your honorable body in its resolution of the last regular meeting, on the 13th ult., I wrote the Attorney General of the State requesting his opinion regarding the limit placed by the existing law of the state upon the issuances of licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors by the city council. On the 15th ult. I received from Attorney General Clapp the letter which I herewith present to you. As we have in our city annual charter elections, the limitation specified in the opinion of Mr. Clapp applies to us and our licenses should be issued as be therein specifies.

Yours very truly,
MARTIN O'BRIEN,
City Attorney.

ST. PAUL, JAN. 14, 1892.

Hon. Martin O'Brien, Crookston:

DEAR SIR:—If under the charter of Crookston, annual charter elections are held, a license issued now would expire twenty days after the next charter election. Sec. 3, Chap. 5, Gen. Laws 1887, provides that no license shall be issued for a longer term than one year or for a period beyond 20 days after the annual election in such village or city next ensuing of the date of the license. The question has not been before the Supreme Court but some of the District Courts have held that the proviso should be construed as if it read "nor" where the word "or" is found.

Yours very truly,
MOSES E. CLAPP.

Moved by Alderman Childs, that the chief of police be instructed to inform all parties who hold licenses from the city of Crookston to sell intoxicating liquors, of the construction of the law placed on it by Attorney General Clapp. There being no second to the motion the president ruled that it was not before the council.

A communication was read from Alfred Savary relating to taking his team from the street and putting it in a livery barn on the 18th day of January. No action taken.

The finance committee reported as follows:

GENTLEMEN:—Your finance committee beg leave to report on bills held in abeyance from last regular meeting as follows: That said bill number 815 is correct and should be paid, and bill of G. A. Ralph and the report of Justice Spendley be referred to the council without recommendation. Bill number 803 of J. E. O'Brien be allowed at $8.76, and bills number 818 and 819 of C. W. W. P. & L. Co. are referred back without recommendation.

Respectfully submitted,
A. C. SCHMIDT.
R. G. MARLETTE.

On motion the report was accepted and the bills reported upon favorably ordered paid.

A copy of a permanent injunction relating to the $50,000 bonds of the Duluth, Crookston & Northern Ry. was presented.

The bond of O. Ducharme as constable was accepted and approved.

Alderman Marlette offered an ordinance repealing chapter 3 of ordinances entitled "An Ordinance to Codify, Consolidate and Amend the General Ordinances of the city of Crookston, and all ordinances and parts of ordinances amendatory thereof."

AN ORDINANCE.

At a regular meeting of the City Council of the city of Crookston, held the 9th day of February, 1892, the following ordinance was offered by Alderman Marlette:

An Ordinance repealing Chapter III of an ordinance to codify, consolidate and amend the general ordinances of the city of Crookston:

The City Council of the city of Crookston do ordain:

SECTION 1. That chapter III of an ordinance of the city of Crookston, entitled "An ordinance to codify, consolidate and amend the general ordinances of the city of Crookston," and all ordinances and parts of ordinances amendatory of said chapter III are hereby repealed.

SEC. 2. This ordinance shall take affect and be in force from and after its passage, approval, publication and recording.

Upon the call of ayes and nays the vote stood as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative—Buhn, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, McGlogan, Marlette, Schmidt, Walker, Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative—none.

Upon this vote the resolution was declared [illegible] Council.

Passed this 9th day of February, 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
President of the Council.

Approved this 9th day of February, 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
Acting Mayor.

Attest: E. C. CARRUTH,
City Clerk.

A petition was presented relating to houses of ill fame in Chase's addition. On motion the same was referred to the ways and means committee.

New business then being in order, Alderman Childs offered an ordinance entitled "An ordinance relating to houses of ill fame within the corporate limits of the city of Crookston," which was taken from the table.

Alderman McGlogan moved to amend seconded by Alderman Jennings, that twenty-five dollars be substituted where fifty dollars appears.

Aldermen voting in the affirmative—Jennings, McGlogan, Schmidt, Walker, Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative—Buhn, Childs, Jerome, Marlette.

Amendment declared carried by the President of the Council.

Alderman Childs moved to amend the amendment, that the amount be placed at $45 instead of $25. No second.

Alderman Childs raised a point of order on the amendment which was that it should pass with a vote of a majority of all members of the council.

Chairman declared the point not well taken.

Alderman McGlogan offered the following ordinance:

At a regular meeting of the City Council of the City of Crookston held the 9th day of February, 1892, Alderman McGlogan offered the following ordinance:

AN ORDINANCE

Relating to houses of ill-fame within the corporate limits of the city of Crookston:

The city council of the city of Crookston do ordain:

Sec. 1. Any person or persons who shall within the corporate limits of the city of Crookston, keep a house of ill-fame, or house resorted to for the purpose of prostitution and lewdness; and all persons, male or female, who resort to such house of ill-fame, shall on conviction thereof before a justice of the peace of said city, be punished by a fine of not less than twenty-five nor more than one hundred dollars, or imprisonment not to exceed ninety days, at the discretion of said justice of the peace.

Sec. 2. It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to demise, let or hire, any house or other building, buildings or premises within the limits of the city of Crookston, to any person or persons for any of the purposes mentioned in the first section of this ordinance, and if any person shall knowingly offend against this section of this ordinance, he, she or they, upon conviction thereof, before a justice of the peace of said city, shall be fined in a sum not exceeding one hundred dollars and costs of prosecution for every such offence.

Sec. 3. Any person, male or female, who shall, within the corporate limits of the City of Crookston, resort to any house of ill-fame for the purposes of prostitution or to associate with a prostitute or prostitutes, or who shall procure another to resort to any house of ill-fame for the purpose of prostitution or to associate with prostitutes shall, for each such offence on conviction thereof before a justice of the peace of said city, be punished by a fine of not less than twenty-five nor more than one hundred dollars and costs of prosecution or by imprisonment not more than thirty days in the discretion of said justice.

Sec. 4. All ordinances and parts of ordinances in so much as they may be inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

Sec. 5. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage, approval, publication and recording.

Upon the call of ayes and nays, the vote stood as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative—Buhn, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, McGlogan, Marlette, Schmidt, Walker, Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative—None.

Upon this vote the president declared the ordinance carried.

Passed this 9th day of February, 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
President of the Council.

Approved this 12th day of February, 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
Acting Mayor.

Attest: E. C. CARRUTH,
Clerk.

Alderman Childs offered an ordinance entitled "An ordinance relating to disorderly houses within the corporate limits of the city of Crookston," which was taken from the table.

Alderman McGlogan moved to amend the ordinance, seconded by Alderman Walker, that the sum of $25 be substituted where $50 now appears.

Moved by Alderman Childs, seconded by Alderman Buhn, that the amendment be laid on the table.

Aldermen voting in the affirmative—Childs, Buhn.

Aldermen voting in the negative—Jennings, Jerome, McGlogan, Marlette, Schmidt, Walker, Cromb.

Motion to lay on the table declared lost.

The vote on the amendment was taken and resulted as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative—Jenninngs, Jerome, McGlogan, Marlette, Schmidt, Walker, Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative—Buhn, Childs.

Amendment declared carried.

Alderman McGlogan offered the following ordinance:

At a regular meeting of the City Council of the city of Crookston, held the 9th day of Februuary, 1892, Alderman McGlogan offered the following ordinance:

AN ORDINANCE

Relating to disorderly houses within the corporate limits of the city of Crookston:

The city council of the city of Crookston do ordain:

Sec. 1. Any person or persons who shall within the corporate limits of the city of Crookston, keep a disorderly house for the practice of fornication, or for the resort of persons of evil name or fame, or who shall commit or suffer to be committed therein any immoral, immodest or other improper conduct or behavior, or any tippling, reveling, rioting or disturbance, calculated to disturb the neighbors or annoy travelers or the general public, and all persons who resort to such disorderly house for any unlawful purpose shall, on conviction thereof before any justice of the peace of said city, be punished by a fine of not less than twenty-five nor more than one hundred dollars and costs of prosecution or by imprisonment not to exceed ninety days at the discretion of said justice of the peace.

Sec. 2. No person or persons within the limits of the city of Crookston, shall commit or suffer to be committed in any house or other building or premises by him, her or them occupied, any rioting, quarreling, fighting, reveling, drunkenness, or any other disorderly conduct, calculated to disturb the neighborhood or annoy travelers, or the general public; and any person or persons violating any of the provisions of this section of this ordinance, shall on conviction thereof before any justice of the peace of said city be punished by a fine not less than twenty-five nor more than one hundred dollars and costs of prosecution, or by imprisonment not to exceed ninety days as to the discretion of said justice may seem just.

Sec. 3. All ordinances and parts of ordinances in so much as they may be inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

Sec. 4. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage, approval, publication and recording.

Upon the call of ayes and nays the vote stood as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative—Buhn, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, McGlogan, Marlette, Schmidt, Walk er, Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative—None.

Upon this vote the ordinance was declared carried this 9th day of February, 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
President City Council.

Approv ed the 12th day of February, 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
Acting Mayor.

Attest: E. C. CARRUTH, Clerk.

Moved by Alderman Marlette, seconded by Alderman Buhn, that the bill of the C. W. W., P. & L. Co. for $2,030,-19 be paid. Carried.

Moved by Alderman Buhn, seconded by Alderman Marlette that the bill of the C. W. W. P. & L. Co. be allowed at the sum of $1,502.28. Carried.

Moved by Alderman Schmidt, seconded by Alderman Jennings that the bill of Geo. Ralph be allowed, amounting to $137, providing Mr. Ralph donate the maps to the city upon the paymen of the amount.

Alderman voting in the affirmative—Buhn, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, McGlogan, Marlette, Schmidt, Walker and Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative—none.

On motion Council adjourned.

E. C. CARRUTH,
City Clerk.

Our Washington Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 15, 1892.

The Democrats must be in desperate straits and recognize that fact when Mr. Fithian introduced a resolution with a string of whereases longer than the moral law, setting forth the necessity of putting agricultural implements on the free list. This, of course, is intended to capture the farmer vote, but does Mr. Fithian or any one else suppose that there is any farmer in the United States who is such an infernal fool as to believe that the putting of agricultural implements on the free list will lower the price of these implements. There never has been for twenty years and there never will be for a hundred years an agricultural implement imported into the United States. There is not a country that manufactures an implement, that if it was imported and a bounty offered for it, an American farmer would use. This kind of buncombe in Congress will not win any votes to the Democratic party, but it does show that the party is in a bad condition and knows it.

The question raised by Senator Stewart, sometime ago in the Senate, is now in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, and will probably go very soon to the Supreme Court of the United States. Some time last fall three well known gentlemen offered a silver brick of the necessary fineness and weight at the Philadelphia mint and asked for its coinage into silver dollars, offering to pay the rates charged. The superintendent of the mint refused to coin this silver into money, saying that there was no law for it. An appeal was taken from his decision to that of the Director of the Mints at Washington, and he affirmed the decision of his subordinate at Philadelphia; another appeal was taken to the Secretary of the Treasury and he made the same statement, and now the parties are in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia asking a mandamus from that court to compel Secretary Foster and Director of the Mints, Leech, to coin that silver into money; this brings up the whole question, and it matters not what the Supreme Court of the District decides, it will go to the Supreme Court of the United States.

The withdrawal of the Louisiana Lottery from the fight in that State has not settled the differences between the Democratic party there. The lottery and anti-lottery tickets both continue in the field. The anti-lottery men have just received a large shipment of arms, openly sent to the chairman of their committee, and the chairman of that committee says there is no concealment and no attempt at concealment, that if the votes cast for their candidates are not counted they intend to see that they are if it requires arms to do it. This is very illustrative of Louisiana methods, and it may be that the Democrats, who a few years ago were engaged in shooting down the Republicans to prevent them from exercising the privilege of franchise, and who have since been swindling them out of their votes will now go to shooting each other and swindling, if possible, each other out of their votes. Retributive justice follows them close, and the overthrowing of law and the constructing of mob law, as has been done in Louisiana, always reacts.

The rules have been adopted in the House, and the Holman amendment, putting riders on appropriation bills along with the balance. The object of the Holman amendment is to put on the appropriation bills each one of Mr. Springer's little tariff bills, and in that way to force the Senate to accept them and the President to sign them. The Democrats of the House may prepare themselves to sit in session until the third of March, 1893 if this is their game, because if the Senate should give way and accept these appropriation bills with tariff repealing riders on them there is a man in the White House who will not give way, but will let the appropriations go until they come to him in proper form to be signed.

There has been a great deal of talk, and it was particularly the case during Gen. Grant's administration, of Republican nepotism. An examination of the record of the secretary of the senate shows that seven senators have their sons as clerks of the committees of which they are chairmen, and five of these senators are democrats, who hold the committee by courtesy, as the senate is republican. A further examination would show that several of the senators have their sons as private secretaries; one had his wife and some have their daughters. Of course it is no nepotism, because it is democrats who do it.

FARMS FOR SALE!

A RARE OPPORTUNITY.

For a small cash payment and a mortgage for the balance at seven per cent, payable annually, you can buy either of the following fine farms. They were taken on foreclosure and those prices only slightly exceed the amounts of the loans there have been on them.

1. E½ ne¼ and e½ se¼ Sec. 7, Town 150, Range 42. Cultivated land; 80 acres; 1½ story frame house, 18x24; log barns 18x24 and 16x18, log granary, 18x20. Price $1,700.

2. S½ se¼ and s½ of sw¼ Sec. 10, Town 151, Range 45. Forty acres cultivated land, two story frame house, 18x24, log barns 16x22 and 14x21, and log granary 16x20, and stock sheds. Price $1,360.

3. E½ sw¼ Sec. 10, and e½ nw¼ Sec. 15, Town 150, Range 42. 45 acres cultivated, one story log house 14x18, log barn 16x20, log granary 12x15 and stock sheds. Price $1,200.

4. W½ nw¼ Sec. 13, and e½ ne¼ Sec. 14, Town 150, Range 43. 45 acres cultivated, one story log house 14x18, log barn 16x20, log granary 12x14, and stock sheds. Price $1,500.

I have 50 quarter sections ranging in price from $3.50 per acre to $10.00 on five and ten years time. Address

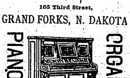
A. HUMPHREYS,
Loan and Trust Building,
Minneapolis.

KOPS BRO'S

105 Third Street,

GRAND FORKS, N. DAKOTA

PIANOS, ORGANS.



WEBER, HAINES BROS., KURTZMANN, MATHUSHEK, McCAMMON PIANOS, Estey and Chicago Cottage Organs. New Upright Pianos from $250 to $1,000, on terms of $10 to $25 per month. New Organs from $60 to $250 on terms of $5 to $10 per month.

Satisfaction guanteed. Write for catalogue and prices. KOPS BROS.
Grand Forks, N. D.

G. G. HENAULT

Practical Dentist

SECOND STREET,

CROOKSTON, - - MINN

OFFICE IN DOBSON'S BLOCK,

☞ All work in my line skilfully and promptly performed. Give me a call.
G. G. HENAULT.

NEW FEED MILL

CHRIS. ANDERSON, Prop.

I desire to annouce to the farmers of Polk County that I have rented the

LAURENCE BUILDING, ON MAIN STEERT,

Next to Brown's New Livery Stable, and am now preparedto grind feed of all kinds promptly. You can get your feedin two hours after you bring me your grain. Prices Reasonable

Try My New Mill!

A. J. & A. McKINNON,

CROOKSTON

CARRIAGE WORKS.

Manufactures everything that runs on wheels. Repairing done on short notice and in workmanlike manner.

GIVE US A CALL

A. J. & A. McKINNON, - - Main Street, Crookston.

Schmidt, the Painter,

—CARRIES A FULL AND COMPLETE STOCK OF—

PAINTS,

OILS AND

VARNISHES.

—ALSO A FULL AND COMPLETE LINE OF—

☞ WALL PAPER. ☜

Painting in all its branches, and Paper Hanging artistically done.

Call at the Shop on Broadway.

TRY PEAKE,

THE MAIN STREET HARNESS MAKER,

FOR BARGAINS.

Drunkenness

CURED.

THE

Moorhead Institute

Is now ready for the treatment of patients addicted to the

DRINK and OPIUM

HABIT.

Send for pamphlet containing testimonials, certificates of cure and terms. Address,

MOORHEAD INSTITUTE,
[41-1] Moorhead, Minn.

C. SLATER. E. N. HILL.
H. ROTHERT, J. A. GEORGE.

Chase & Slater Law and Claims Co.,

1331 F Street, Northwest,

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Practice in the Supreme Court of the United States, the Court of Claims, all the executive departments and before Congress. Claims for Indian Depredations collected. Pension cases prosecuted. Patents promptly secured. Careful attention given to all classes of land cases. Liberal arrangements made with Local Attorneys or for transfer of cases.

Valley Roller Mills

MANUFACTURERS OF

FINE FLOUR

From Selected Red River Wheat.

Lee & Herrick's Best,	$2.65
North Star,	2.50
Fife,	2.15
Skip Jack,	1.15

☞ We exchange flour for wheat on equitable terms.

LEE & HERRICK.

HOW TO SAVE MONEY

BUY OF SLOCUM,

The Leading Grocer. The Best Goods for the Least Money.

SPECIALTIES | I MAKE A SPECIALTY OF | SPECIALTIES

TEAS, COFFEES, CANNED SALMON and CHOICE BUTTER.

—HAVE YOU TRIED MY— Wheat Germ Meal?

Everything in my line fresh from the wholesaler at the VERY LOWEST LIVING RATES. ☞ Give me a Trial.

W. E. SLOCUM, - - BROADWAY.

Polk County Journal.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.

Crookston, February 18, 1892.

'Round Home.

Wheat—1 Hard 71.
1 Northern 70.
2 Northern 64.
3 Northern 60.

Mrs. W. E. Slocum has been quite ill with tonsilitis.

Wheat dropped off a cent on Wednesday, opening up at 71.

Mrs. Geo. W. Tice, of Mentor, was in the city on Monday evening.

Mrs. Geo. W. Peake is convalescent from an attack of pneumonia.

The thermometer indicated 28 below at 6 o'clock on Monday morning.

The N. P. Express office has been moved into the the Reckett Block.

Only two more weeks of regular winter yet—but what will the spring time be?

If you want to borrow money call on J. W. Wheeler at the Scandia-American bank.

Fred Anderson has been getting up a lot of green elm sawed stove-wood lengths.

H. B. Parker, representing a Boston paper house, was in the city on Wednesday.

Mrs. Chris Houston, who has been sick for some days is reported convalescent.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Miller returned on Saturday morning from a short visit to Fargo.

Gilt edged farm loans wanted. Call on J. W. Wheeler at the Scandia-American bank.

Geo. Vine still continues to cut up corn-fed pork to the delight of his many customers.

See A. Humphrey's ad. elsewhere in this issue and write him for particulars on farm lands.

Wheat took a spasm and opened up three cents higher on Tuesday morning, reaching 72.

Wm. Price, of Edna, died suddenly at that place last week and was interred here on Tuesday.

W. C. Andrews, representing Wright, Barrett & Stilwell, of St. Paul, was in the city on Monday.

The Ladies' Relief Corps held a session at their hall in Odd Fellows' Block on Monday evening.

See the new ad of Larsen, Carpenter & Co. and give the boys a call when you want a square deal.

Alderman A. C. Schmidt was celebrating the arrival of a fine girl baby at his home on Saturday last.

Meetings are being held every night this week at the Presbyterian church and much interest manifested.

W. E. McKenzie, of The Times, went to St. Paul on Monday evening to attend the Democratic love-feast.

Ed. Bivens has been confined to his room with rheumatism for some days. Has had a pretty hard time of it.

Wheat opened out on Monday morning at 69 cents for 1 Hard. A gain of one cent on Friday's closing price.

S. L. Dobson returned last week from a trip below, enjoying the sights and scenes of Minneapolis by gaslight.

Miss Mabel Duntley returned from Euclid on Monday evening. She reports the sick ones at Mr. Davis' doing nicely.

Anton R. Erickson has been appointed special administrator of the estate of John L. Hanson, who died a few weeks since.

Mr. and Mrs. James McAnulty, of Dugdale, spent the Sabbath in the city with their children who are here attending school.

Go to Geo. Vine's meat market in Robert street for choice cuts. Geo. had one himself a week or so since but he don't sell that kind.

F. L. Hampson, formerly editor of the Norman County Herald, favored THE JOURNAL with a pleasant call on Friday of last week.

A consignment of exhibits for the Exposition—the first received from a foreign country—arrived at Chicago Jan. 26, from Japan.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Copeland, after a pleasant visit with friends and relatives in this city returned to their home in St. Paul on Thursday.

Crookston Alliance held a regular meeting on Saturday last. But few were in attendance so no business of importance was undertaken.

Bert Duntley expects his brother from Michigan about March 1st. The young man, if he likes the country, will become a resident of Polk County.

It is announced that the imperial band of Emperor William of Germany will attend the Exposition, having already obtained permission to do so.

Mrs. I. U. Jennings and Mrs. J. V. E. Wyatt left for Minneapolis on Monday evening to attend the annual meeting of the Ladies Relief Corps in that city.

The prospects are that more building than ever before will be done in this city next season, and all of a permanent character. That is all proper and just.

Supt. V. D. Carruth and assistant Supt. Dickenson have been busy visiting schools. Last week they visited the schools on the east side.

Iver M. Johnson writes us to ask if the $3.00 sent us last month was received. It was received on Jan. 13th and our printed form of receipt sent in paper.

John Lester was on the sick list last week but is now all O. K. again. John says he was "clean out of his mind all day Sunday but has got it all back again."

Walter Lee brought up a span of fine steppers when he returned from Minneapolis last week. Also a new safe for the mill wherein he can deposit stake money.

Comrade Geo. Holt went down to Minneapolis on Tuesday evening to be present at the annual State encampment, to represent Col. Cobham Post therein.

Parties living along the railroad, however remote, need not hesitate about subscribing to our hail fund as arrangements for shipment are now being made.

Alderman & Sylvester have done so much business in the hardware line this winter that they have worn their floor all out and were obliged to lay new flooring this week.

The last issue of the Warren Register mentions the serious illness of T. R. Davis, an old-time resident of Warren, and this week the news that he is dead reaches THE JOURNAL.

Wheeler loans money on farm security. He is too busy to write up an ad for this issue, but if you will call he will not be too busy to tell you what he can do for you in that line.

Dept.-Sheriff M. Losey went out east after Paul Matthey, accused of selling mortgaged property. Matthey secured the services of Martin O'Brien to defend and his case was set for Wednesday afternoon.

C. L. Hanson was up from Valley on Tuesday. Mr. H. says farmers in his neighborhood have their threshing all done—got their plowing done last fall and are now ready for spring's work as soon as it comes.

Mrs. Rose has rented the whole of the third story of the Reckett Block, a portion of which she will use as a restaurant and the balance for sleeping rooms. She has gone to St. Paul to purchase furniture.

Mrs Bert Duntly went up to Euclid on Tuesday morning to see how the sick ones are getting along. Her father, Mr. M. Davis, has been very sick and the others more or less so; but they are reported very much better.

E. M. Walsh reports two important real estate deals this week. The Barnes property on Broadway to A. Chabot, and his lot on the corner of Broadway and Fletcher to Martin Finseth who will build a business block thereon.

Last week W. A. Marin advertised a lost horse in these columns and on Tuesday he came up after his horse, having found him by means of his ad in THE JOURNAL. He says it always pays him to advertise in THE JOURNAL.

C. C. Bartlett, formerly editor of the Fertile Journal, was in the city on Monday. Mr. B. is looking for a job in Polk County again. Having been away for two or three years he finds that there is no place like the Red River Valley.

It has been decided by the powers that be to hold the annual district encampment of the G. A. R., which was voted to this city at Moorhead last June, on July 4th, 5th and 6th next. Crookston will do herself proud on that occasion.

Very interesting revival services are in session at the Presbyterian church this week. They are union evening meetings by the Congregational and Presbyterian churches, Rev. Messrs. R. H. Battey and O. H. Elmer preaching alternate evenings.

Policeman Ellingbo was kept busy on Tuesday night taking care of the exuberant spirits that did much abound. Ellingbo comes as near being a whole police force as one man can. When he sees a noisy crowd, faith he surrounds them and runs 'em in.

The Scandia American bank folks have been re-arranging the interior of the bank with a view to the better accommodation of their growing business. They have not lost sight of artistic points in the deal and neatness and beauty still reign supreme.

C. P. Swanson was down from Bray on Friday of last week. He has purchased a horse-power and will put in the balance of the winter threshing, or so much of it as is necessary to complete what remains to thresh, which he estimates at one-fourth of the full amount raised.

Commissioner L. P. Hunt will be in the city next week to see about raising our proportion of the World's Fair fund. It shouldn't be a hard matter to do, as every other place where the call has been made has responded promptly and Crookston should not be behind in the good work.

Next Sunday, Feb. 21st, at the Congregational church, Mr. Battey will preach at 11 a.m., subject: "What is it, Lord?" Sabbath School after the sermon. Union services in the evening, Rev. O. H. Elmer preaching the sermon at 7:30. All kindly invited to attend church here next Sabbath. Come early and join heartily with us in the singing.

BUY A FARM

I have some of the best land

IN

Polk County

In my hands for sale

CHEAP!

And you can make prices and terms to suit you. Write me for lists.

L. F. Menage,

14-39] Minneapolis, Minn.

To all of those who so promptly responded to our last week's statements with the cash we return our warmest thanks, as well as for the kind words spoken. If the responses continue so favorable we shall accomplish our desires without being obliged to make trouble nor expense for any. We certainly do not WISH to do that.

E. M. Walsh is preparing for a lively real estate business this coming season. If you would see the list of names he has you would think he intended to sell a farm to every man in the United States and Canada. He went down to Minneapolis to talk city lots with some monied men there and has several important deals under consideration.

For Sale Cheap.

Buffalo robes and cutters. Mrs. Mary Schreader, Crookston, Minn. [35-tf]

A SERIAL.

Webster says a serial is a publication appearing in a series or succession of parts. We think we will call this a serial. It may be of interest. It ought to be of profit.

DRESS GOODS.

Ginghams—Fifty pieces of Anderson's great productions, you know they have no equal, and to say that "we are stuck up" about the selection is just about the truth. Toille du Nord Ginghams, beautiful patterns,

12½ Cents.

WOOL SUITINGS.

In advanced spring styles, are already shown in considerable variety. The south window is full of them and only 25c yd. Well worth 35c.

DRAPERIES.

A few Chenille Portiers, 3½ yds. fringe top and bottom, but slightly soiled from exposure, at $4.90 pair. Were $8 and $8.50.

WINDOW SHADES.

50 doz. genuine opaqe (not paper) shades, 6 feet long, 36 inches wide and mounted on Minette shade rollers, at 35c complete.

REMNANTS.

(Like broken candy in a jar) fill the counters. Can't help it, we give people what they want, nd someone will take the remants if they are cheap enough. Now is your time.

SHEETINGS.

10-4 bleached at	29c
9-4 " "	27c
8-4 " "	22c
10-4 unbleached "	25c
9-4 " "	22c
8-4 " "	20c
46 in. pillow casing	12½c

EMBROIDERIES.

We will now ask your attention to the

—EMBROIDERIES—

as you might be asked to partake of some choice bit of confection after a hearty meal, just to have a nice taste in your mouth, don't you see? Everybody says they are so dainty and beautiful. We knew it all the time.

FONTAINE & ANGLIM.

The Best is Always the Cheapest

THE DOWAGIAC

SHOE DRILL,

With the Direct Spring Pressure and Solid Bottom Shoe is copied by many but eqalled by none. It runs lighter and lasts longer than any Drill on earth. We have also the

RUSHFORD WAGON

"Good lumber and bone dry," Columbus and Racine Buggies, Grand Detour and Scandia Plows, Boss Harrows, Minneapolis Binders, Walter A. Wood Mowers, Advance Threshers and Engines, Hay Rakes, Garden Tools, Road Wagons, Carts and a

FULL LINE OF REPAIRS.

Give Us A Call and Let Us Make Your Acquaintance.

Larsen, Carpenter & Co.,

T. H. Bjoin's Old Stand, Opera Block. CROOKSTON.

A. R. Holston:—You may say to your readers that I have so many cases on hand just now that I shall be unable to attend the St. Louis convention and I am looking for a good substitute to send in my place. I must attend to the business whereunto I was elected if I have to neglect every convention what there is.

Writing in response to our statement of last week a McIntosh friend says: "I regret not having remitted for THE JOURNAL which is an ever welcome visitor to our household. ' I think you have more patience than many ordinary mortals." Thanks, friends. Like all ordinary mortals we like to be appreciated.

Last Friday evening the Epworth League of the M. E. church gave a social in the church parlors. A large number were present and and enjoyed a fine program. Especial mention should be made of the recitation of Miss Hill, who delighted the audience, and all wished for another opportunity to hear her.

Our list for hail sufferers grows slowly but the prospects are more encouraging as we know of several who will chip in later. Meanwhile any who feel like helping out a goood cause can drop us a postal card stating the amount they are willing to contribute and their name will be added to our list. Let the good work go on.

OATS WANTED.

S. L. Dobson wants to secure all the oats in Polk County that are suitable for his business, for which he will pay the highest market price.

Hugh Thompson:—How does your hail list prosper? I had made up my mind to give 40 bushels of wheat to the Russian sufferers but I believe THE JOURNAL is right on that question that charity should begin at home and so what I do this year will be done for our own citizens. You may put me down for 25 bushels of wheat as a starter and if you need it later I will raise my ante. We certainly should encourage all who have the ambition to go ahead and raise grain.

"The Journal" Hail Fund.

The following named persons have contributed the amounts set opposite their names to the fund for the relief of those who lost their crops by hail. Everybody should have a hand in this good work. Send in your names and the amount you are willing to contribute (in money or grain) to THE JOURNAL or Lewis Ellington, Scandia-American Bank, Crookston, Minn:

THE JOURNAL	$ 5.00
B. C. Jorgenson	10.00
O. H. Richardson	10 bushels barley.
Frank Bivins	10 bushels seed wheat.
W. G. Lytle	10 bushels seed wheat.
Lewis Ellington	$5.00.
E. Lanctot, 10 bu. oats,	10 bu. barley.
Thomas Wallace,	20 bu. barley
Goodwin Leppert (Wylia)	10 bu. oats.
Hayes Bros	20 bu. wheat.
Earnest Mueller	20 bu. barley.
Ben Geroux	2 " "
K. Hanson	4 " "
Ole Olson	2 " wheat.
E. W. Johnson	50 cents.
Will Himmelsback	10 bu. barley.
S. B. Palmer (Lockhart),	10 bu. potatoes.
Hugh Thompson,	25 bu. seed wheat.
E. M. Walsh, 10 bu. oats,	10 bu. barley

Don't Be Backward

ABOUT

COMING FORWARD.

AND SECURING SOME OF THE

BARGAINS

OFFERED HERE BY

E. M. Walsh,

Real Estate Broker,

I. O. O. F. Block, Crookston, Minn.

80 ACRES adjoining city of Crookston, well cultivated, suitable for market garden. A bonanza for the right man and can be had for $3,000.

1,000 ACRES, five miles from city, first-class buildings, 200 acres cultivated, 200 acres Timothy, pasture fenced. Nothing better for dairy or stock farm. A snap at $12,000.

240 ACRE FARM in Town of Crookston; good farm buildings, well improved and only $20 per acre.

320 ACRE FARM in Euclid Topnship. Good farm buildings, 300 acres cultivated, 200 acres ready for seeding. Cheap at $4,000.

160 ACRES in Sec. 18, Town of Angus, partly improved, fine rich soil. Only $10 per acre.

320 ACRES land in Town of Louisville, well located near R. R. station, and near Red Lake River. Only $1,900 on long time.

160 ACRES good Farm Land in Grove Park, 60 acres cultivated, two miles from R. R. station, one-half mile from school A Bargain at $800.

ANOTHER Quarter Section in Grove Park, good farm buildings, good water, 30 acres cultivated, 40 acres pasture, one-half mile from R. R. station, school and church. Cheap at $8.00 per acre.

SIX first-class farms in Town of Lambert, one of the best Townships in Polk County, from $600 to $1,200 each, well adapted for mixed farming. Look this up. Sure to find something to suit.

SECTION 21, Andover Township, every foot of which can be cultivated, only 5 miles from Crookston. Cheap at $12.50 per acre.

200 ACRE FARM in Fairfax, four miles from Crookston, 180 acres cultivated. Cheap buildings, easy terms. A bargain at $2,400.

TWO first-class farms in Lowell, two miles from city of Crookston, good farm buildings, artesian well, high state of cultivation. One at $28 and the other at $20 per acre.

THREE fine farms in town of Sanders. All near R. R. station, good soil. Most of them partly improved and are to be had at $6.00 per acre. Easy terms.

GOOD STOCK FARM, with good house and barn, 160 acres, two miles from Thief River Falls. Only $1.000, one-third cash, balance long time.

HALF Section Land, Town of Reis, two miles from R. R. station, 130 acres under cultivation, 76 acres ready for seeding in spring. Good house and barn, artesian water. Cheap at $2.500, one-quarter cash, balance 5 years time.

160 ACRES in Town of Godfrey. Good land, near railroad. Only $5.00 per acre.

160 ACRES Town of Gervais. This land is on the Red Lake River. Some good timber and partly improved and is cheap at $9 per acre.

ANOTHER piece in Town of Gervais, four miles from Red Lake Falls. $950.

320 ACRE FARM in Parnell, six miles from Crookston, well improved, good buildings. Can be had for $3,000.

TWO good farms in town of Fanny, two miles from railroad station. Partly improved. Only $6.00 per acre.

320 ACRE FARM only one-half mile from St. Hilaire and is offered at $8.00 per acre, easy terms.

160 ACRES in Town of Crookston, four miles from city, and only $1,000.

ANOTHER piece in same town, well improved and can be had for $1,350 on easy terms.

320 ACRE FARM in Town of Kertsonville, two miles from railroad station, partly improved. Cheap—no mistake. Only $1,200 and on easy terms.

TWO good farms in Town of Liberty, 160 acres each. $750 buys either.

320 ACRE FARM in Town of Roome. Fine state of cultivation. Good farm buildings. 170 acres ready for seeding in spring. Dirt cheap at $4,000, one-half cash, balance to suit. Stock and farm machinery can also be bought cheap.

TWO good farms in Town of Louisville can be had for $959 each. Easy terms, long time.

This is the Cap-sheaf of All!

520 ACRES land, 8 miles from Fisher, all under cultivation, 420 acres ready for seeding. Good farm buildings. Good water. $25 per acre takes this, and will throw in 20 head horses and harnesses, 7 wagons, 4 binders, 2 mowers, 2 rakes, 4 gang plows, 2 harrows, new press drill, 2 sleds, 2 cows, full sett Blacksmith tools and small farm implements. $6,000 cash and balance long time at 7 per cent.

Mrs. C. Snyder received a telegram on Monday announcing the serious illness of her father, and together with her husband left for the old home on Monday evening.

An auroral display was witnessed last Saturday night that has seldom if ever been excelled. At about 6 p. m. a broad crimson belt spanned the heavens from the northwest to the southeast forming a bow of beauty indescribable. We notice by the papers that the same phenomenon was witnessed in many states, more or less vividly. It was a sight long to be remembered.

A weary individual sought shelter in a storm porch on Tuesday night about 10:15, where he lay sweetly sleeping until policeman Ellingbo could be hunted up when he was given more comfortable quarters. It took about one hour and fifteen minutes to find a policeman, as Robinson was sick and Ellingbo was busy on another case. He rounded 'em both up.

A man named O'Brien was brought down from Fosston on Monday evening under arrest, charged with having set fire to a bed upon which he was sleeping. The Fosston tangle-foot must be red-hot for not long since we read of an Indian who loaded up with it and was burned up before he could be rescued and now comes this case where a man's breath sets the bedding on fire.

Judge Benson went down to Fergus Falls last week and brought back O. A. Larson who was committed to the insane asylum last May. He says the hospital is the best conducted of any in the State, and the patients are in excellent hands. They seem to regard the Superintendent, Dr. Bartlett, very highly. A large addition is nearly completed, and when ready, about 200 patients from St. Paul will be received.

Read the manly letter of President Mitchell, on our last page. Mr. Mitchell makes some very wise and timely suggestions in connection with the efforts being put forth to secure seed and feed for those who lost their crops last season by hail. If every sub-alliance should act upon this suggestion the work would be light and the amount donated by each need not be very large. Here is an opportunity for practical work. Shall it be improved?

Cleveland's Minstrels drew a big house on Friday evening and gave a fine entertainment, but had to cut down their program fearfully to allow them to leave on the N. P. train at 10:15. The management should not contract with any show that has to leave that soon as their patrons pay for the whole program and are entitled to it—good or bad—entire and the result will be that people will not go for fear they will not get what they pay for. We have mentioned this before.

Not long since THE JOURNAL published a circular letter from parties in New York offering to sell counterfeit money and elsewhere in this issue we re-produce an account of how they came out, taken from the Minneapolis Evening Journal. People are not giving away fortunes in this day and age of the world and whoever is fooled by these captivating circulars is not wise. If these chaps had the kind of money they claim to have they could dispose of it to better advantage than by selling it at such discounts.

The ladies of the Relief Corps are making preparations to give a grand ball on the evening of Feb. 25th, at McKinnon's Hall. It is known that next year the annual G. A. R. Encampment will be held in this city and the object of this ball is to provide funds for that affair and every citizen of Crookston, who takes a pride in his city, should help on the good cause by buying at least one ticket. Every other place where the Encampment has been held has done itsself proud and Crookston must not be behind.

One of our city papers not long since repeated the rumor that Will Kops had gone insane over business matters. Elsewhere we give space to a letter letter from C. DeBruyn Kops, Will's father, which shows how much truth there is in the rumor. It is singular how such reports obtain. We clip the following from the Hot Springs Graphic. We also note in the list of arrivals at the ten hotels that the list of arrivals at the Hotel Pullman leads the list in number. There don't seem to be anything very "crazy" about this showing:

"The Hotel Pullman is doing a business that is a very flattering tribute to the enterprise and growing popularity of its manager, Mr. W. C. Kops. For the past month its accommodations have been taxed and the prospects bid fair to a continuation of its present era of prosperity."

Ship your wheat to O. Tharaldson general agent of the Northwestern Farmers' Protective Association, at Duluth, and make from 4 to 7 cents a bushel. For further particulars as to membership, &c., inquire of L. K. Hassel, Grand Forks, N. D. [25-tf]

For Sale Cheap.

Buffalo robes and cutters. Mrs. Mary Schreader, Crookston, Minn. [35-tf]

Taken Up.

Came to my place on Feb. 3d, one light sorrel horse with white face and three white feet. Owner can recover by proving property and paying expenses of keeping and advertising. JOHN JOHNSON, Town of Kertsonville. [44-49]

Here It Is.

To the man who labors with his hands, physical trouble is a very serious thing. It is not merely the pain he endures, racking and tormenting as it is, but the prospective loss of time, money and place haunts him and aggravates his suffering. He is bent on having prompt relief and sure cure. He wants the best and the proof and here it is: —Mr. W. H. Schroeder, Gilbertville, Iowa, stated April 10, 1884, that he had used St. Jacobs Oil in his stables for horse complaints and upon himself for rheumatism, and had found it the best remedy he had ever tried. Again Feb'y 11, 1887, he writes: "I have used St. Jacobs Oil for rheumatism and sore back, as stated, and it cured; and for burns and bruises it does its work as recommended to do. I always keep it in the house and recommend it to my neighbors." —Mr. John Garbutt, 656 Minna St., San Francisco, Cal., writes: "Some time back I sprained my knee and suffered agony until I tried St. Jacobs Oil. The result was a speedy and permanent cure." —Miss Ida M. Fleming, 7 S. Carey St., Baltimore, Md., says: "I had been afflicted for two years with neuralgia, and tried every means to get rid of the tormenting disease. I had been given so much quinine that my nervous system was seriously injured. I was advised to use St. Jacob's Oil, which I did, and it relieved me entirely.

THEODORE GRIM, a prisoner in the county jail at Milwaukee awaiting trial in the federal court on a charge of selling liquor to the Indians in Oconto county, hanged himself in his cell.

A CONDITION of lawlessness prevails at Sioux City, Iowa.

THE LADIES.

The pleasant effect and perfect safety with which ladies may use the California liquid laxative Syrup of Figs, under all conditions, make it their favorite remedy. To get the true and genuine article, look for the name of the California Fig Syrup Co., printed near the bottom of the package.

A bar in the river and a bar on shore have the same name, because water is scarce in both places.

He Bobs up Serenely

From bed whose liver is all right. The bilious subject arises slowly, wearily, with a sensation of languor and nausea after a night of unrest. His skin and eyeballs are sallow, his right side bothers him, his tongue is furred, he has sick headache. His department of the interior needs the reform brought about by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the leading remedy for biliousness, constipation, malaria, nervousness, kidney troubles, and more recently for la grippe.

Why is it that editors who "prefer a pipe to a cigar" make a specialty of accepting cigars?

$100 Reward $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address,

F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo O.

☞Sold by Druggists, 75c.

It is proper for an old toper to speak to his drunken companion as his booze-um friend.

The Only One Ever Printed.

CAN YOU FIND THE WORD? There is a 3 inch display advertisement in this paper, this week, which has no two words alike except one word. The same is true of each new one appearing each week, from The Dr. Harter Medicine Co. This house places a "Crescent" on everything they make and publish. Look for it, send them the name of the word and they will return you BOOK, BEAUTIFUL LITHOGRAPHS OR SAMPLES FREE.

The cold wave appears to have arrived in unbroken packages.

COPYRIGHT 1891

A woman "run-down," overworked, weak, nervous and debilitated—that's a woman that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is made for. It gives her health and strength. All woman's weaknesses and all woman's ailments are cured by it. It's a legitimate medicine—not a beverage; an invigorating, restorative tonic and a soothing and strengthening nervine, free from alcohol and injurious drugs. It imparts tone and vigor to the whole system.

For all functional irregularities, periodical pains, organic displacements and uterine diseases, it's a positive remedy.

And a guaranteed one. If it doesn't give satisfaction, in every case, the money paid for it is refunded. No other medicine for women is sold on these terms. That's because nothing else is "just as good." Perhaps the dealer will offer something that's "better." He means that it's better for him.

CHILD BIRTH
MADE EASY!

"MOTHERS' FRIEND" is a scientifically prepared Liniment, every ingredient of recognized value and in constant use by the medical profession. These ingredients are combined in a manner hitherto unknown

"MOTHERS' FRIEND"

WILL DO all that is claimed for it AND MORE. It Shortens Labor, Lessens Pain, Diminishes Danger to Life of Mother and Child. Book to "MOTHERS" mailed FREE, containing valuable information and voluntary testimonials.

Sent by express on receipt of price $1.50 per bottle
BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO., Atlanta, Ga.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

I CURE FITS!

When I say cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office.
H. G. ROOT, M. C., 183 Pearl St., N. Y.

LITTLE BOY BLUE BEREAVED.

Little Boy Blue has lost his mother—
Nevermore will he find another
This side of Happy Land;
O Earth, be kind to little Boy Blue,
He has need of tender friends and true,
Though he does not understand!

His eyes were the last blue skies she saw,
And his little heart was filled with awe
As they led him away from her;
But now there are tears in those azure deeps,
As Boy Blue back to his mother creeps
And she does not smile or stir.

O loving mothers of other Boy Blues.
'Tis the saddest thing in the world to lose
Your darlings out of your sight—
And yet it is better that they should go
Than be left, like little Boy Blue, below
To grieve for you in the night.
—TOM MASSON.

HER SON AND HIS.

THE snow had been falling all day long, and the dark November weather had changed the streets of Paris to dismal drains for the melting flakes.

An omnibus stopped at the head of Prony street, and from its aristocratic interior stepped a 12-year-old boy with a morocco sachel under his arm. He ran to the door of an elegant house, and the next moment was clattering up the marble steps to the vestibule.

"Is mother home?" he asked of the servant, as she helped him off with his wet overcoat and leggings.

"No," was the answer. "Her ladyship has not come in."

"And my sisters?"

"Miss Christine and Miss Yvonne are in the reception-room with Diana and their dolls."

In the reception-room he found Christine seated before a cheerful fire.

"Oh, how glad I am that you have got home!" she cried, throwing her arms about his neck. We are so lonely! Father went out after breakfast, and mother about the time you left for school. Father came back with some cakes, but he went right out again."

I have been thinking of father and mother all school time. Something is wrong. Have you not noticed Christine?"

"Mother seemed a little put out with father. But this is nothing new. I have noticed that this long time."

"Yes cried little 6-year-old Yvonne. "I have often seen papa crying when I caught him in the study and put my hands over his eyes. Ever since the lady in red—"

"What is that she is chattering about?" interrupted the boy, with a superior air.

Yvonne was touched in her feminine weak spot. "I know better than you, for I was with mamma. We were coming out of the Louvre shops, and I had my baloon—that one you broke—"

"You should say burst," said her brother.

Taking no notice, the child went on with her story:

"Then mamma said to Firmin, 'I am going to walk across the Palais Royal; have the carriage for us before the Bourse.'"

Christine and Gaetan looked at each other, hardly able to keep from laughing. But Yvonne kept on with her reflections.

"I know what I saw, at any rate. And when we met papa with the lady in red, mamma drew me away and squeezed my wrist so hard she hurt me."

"What lady in red?" exclaimed Christine.

"There, now!" cried Yvonne, "perhaps you'll believe me. And the lady had an elegant bonnet and a gold veil, and a silk parasol, and, and—"

But Gaetan jumped up suddenly, exclaiming; "Don't listen to her nonsense! Why should not papa walk with a lady in red if he wants to? There are plenty of ladies who come here on mamma's Thurdays, and she and pa don't get angry over them."

"Of course not," said Christine.

The hours crept on, the Greek theme is written and Ovid is in a fair way to be converted into bad French, when loneliness proves too much for Gaetan's philosophy, and he gets up to rejoin his sister by the fire.

Just then several quick sharp peals of the bell were heard, and a young and beautiful woman made her appearance. The children had hardly finished a stormy but affectionate welcome to their mother, when the door again opened and their father came in. He received the children's caresses in an abstract way, and, turning to the Countess said with some emotion:

"Clotilde, we must arrange our affairs immediately. Take the children out and come back here, I beg you."

"As you like," she said.

Left alone, Count Bellefontaine took the code from the table and opened it at articles 1448 and 1449, and read: "The wife who has obtained a decree of separation from bed and board assumes the free control of her property. She must contribute to the expense of educating the children of the marriage. If her husband has no property, she must bear the whole of this expense."

He closed the book and leaned on the mantel with his back to the fire, "I don't care for the money but the children. None of them are to go with me. The judge so ordered, and they are to be brought to see me once a month. As if I was no longer their father, because—No consideration! Temptation, passion, weakness . . . never taken into account, and then in three years divorce—unless Clotilde should forgive. She'll never do that, for she has chosen this course."

"Thank you, Clotilde. You have not kept me waiting. Here are the keys of my secretary. You will find cash and title-deeds all safe."

"And how about yourself? How are you to live? Though I have been wronged, I bear your name, and can not permit you to suffer."

"I thank you Clotilde, for your commiseration, but I can not accept it at your hands."

"So, having broken your faith, you wish now to play the magnanimous!"

"Remember that I have been defeated. I am punished enough."

"That is so. But that punishment weighs upon me too, and more heavily than you can imagine. The sight of my ruined home, the publicity of all, and the scandal afloat."

"You were inflexible."

"My dignity was at stake, sir!"

"Say your pride."

"Yes and my hate. I could not forgive you for giving me a rival."

"A rival! I have told you a hundred times how it was. You were off in the country, nursing your mother. You had all the children, and there I was alone in Paris for months, with nothing to do and bored to death. Then the opportunity came.

"However, enough of this. I shall say nothing further than is necessary, and I hope you will spare me any more recriminations. But promise me that you will not try to alienate the children from me. For I am still their father!"

"I promise."

"Very well. I have only to bid good bye. You have judged me strictly, and have given me blow for blow. I can't complain, for the law is on your side. Will you call the children and let me kiss them before I go?"

"Certainly."

The Countess left the room, returning presently with the girls.

"Are you going away?" exclaimed Christine in alarm, clinging to him.

The Count faced about and saw Yvonne sleeping heavily in her mother's arms.

He drew her close to him and gently kissed her.

"Yes," he answered. "I am going on a journey, a rather long one, little girl, but I shall be back soon, and find you quite grown up."

As the two little girls left the room Gaetan rushed in. He brushed by the Countess, gathered up his books and exercises, and hastily bundled them into his satchel.

"Are you not going to kiss me?" asked his father. "Don't you know that I am going away?"

"Wait till I get my things," he said. Then he took the satchel and fastened it on his father's valise by the straps.

"What are you doing, Gaetan?" asked the Countess. "Did I not tell you that your father was in haste?"

Gaetan straightened himself up and turned toward his mother, saying in a tone of resolute defiance: "I must certainly take my books, for I am going with father!"

In vain the countess held out her arms to him. He only cried still more vehemently: "No, no; I do not love you. I heard you drive papa away."

His father tried in turn to draw him toward his mother, saying gently: "My boy be reasonable; you are causing your mother much pain."

But in the middle of his nervous fury the boy suddenly sank to the floor and lay at his length upon the carpet, crying over and over again: "Papa, papa," as though his heart would break.

The Count lifted him and placed him in the great arm-chair, and his mother in great agitation, kneeling by his side. But with a violent movement of his arm the boy pushed her rudely away.

"Who could have told Gaetan such stories?" asked the Count.

"Nobody has told me anything," said Gaetan through his tears. "They took us into dinner, but I saw John packing a valise, and I came back. The door of the room was open, and I got behind the screen. And when I heard mamma scolding you, and found she had taken her keys I made up my mind not to love her, and to go away with you."

"My boy, you did very wrong to listen, and you did not understand what your mother said. Be quiet, and believe what I tell you. I have given her the keys because I am going away."

"Come, my dear Gaetan, papa is telling the truth. He will return in a few days."

"Why do you say that mamma? I heard father say he would never return, even to come and see us. Besides, Yvonne warned us. She has often caught papa crying in his study."

"Ah!" said the Countess. "You wept! Why did you hide that, and let me think you wrapped in your proud insensibility?"

"Because you would have laughed at my distress, and I would not give you the pleasure of seeing my tears."

Both parents were now kneeling by the side of their boy, and the Countess was gazing into her husband's eyes as though she would read his very soul.

"You see very well that I must go with him," said the boy. "You will have Christine and Yvonne, and it is not fair to leave him alone."

"So you refuse to stay with me?" said the Countess.

"Yes, because you are so mean."

"And suppose I give the keys back to your father and make him stay here?"

"Oh, my dear good mamma!"

The boy had passed one arm arouna his mother's neck, his other one being still around his father's, so that he held them both in one embrace.

"Then, mamma, as you have made him cry, kiss him and then I will kiss you with all my heart."

"Clotilde!" begged the Count, overcome, "for our boy's sake!"

"Yes! And for yours, too," sighed the Countess, letting her head fall upon her husband's shoulder.

DYING BY INCHES.

How a Man Felt Who Suffered from Progressive Paralysis.

A Los Angeles physician told us the other day, says the Pomona Progress, that the most trying time in all his experience was during the past five weeks, when he stood hopelessly by and saw a poor ranchman near Puente die by inches of what is known as progressive paralysis.

The patient was first taken in one big toe. In a short time the limb was paralyzed to the knee. Two physicians were called, and all the known remedies were applied to stay the progress of the deadening attack, but in vain. Hour by hour death moved on its victim. The patient was propped up in an armchair and fully realized his condition. He awaited the end with the coolness and bravery of a martyr. As the lines of death crept nearer and nearer his heart he made calculations as to how much longer he could live. He said: "Now it has reached the body," indicating the exact place with his finger. In a little while he said: "It has reached the bottom of my lungs." Another short wait and he said faintly: "It has reached my heart," and he fell over dead!

SOME TIMELY FARM TOPICS.

USEFUL INFORMATION FOR AGRICULTURISTS.

The Advantageous Hot Bed--Oatmeal for Poultry-- Kindly Shelter--Pumpkins and Pump-- General Farm Hints.

The Advantageous Hot Bed.

The hot bed is one of those inexpensive little conveniences which every farmer may have if he will, without very much trouble. And the advantage of having one in starting cabbage cauliflower, lettuce, radish, tomato, celery and other plants, and in getting an early supply of lettuce for the table, well compensates for whatever expense and care is involved in providing one.

The best situation for a hot bed is one where a building, close fence, or other obstruction breaks the full force of the wind, and where the full heat of the sun may fall upon it.

For heating material manure fresh from the horse stable should be used, mixed, if they can be procured, with about an equal quantity of forest leaves. Five or six wagon loads of this material, placed in a compact heap, will soon heat up, especially if under cover of a shed where it is protected from cold until it begins to heat.

One method of making the hot bed is to stack fermenting manure on the surface, building it up regularly and solidly, and taking care to distribute the long and short manure evenly. The pile should be two and a half feet high, with square, solid sides, and should be two feet wider and longer than the frame of the hotbed. A better plan is to dig a pit two feet larger each way than the frame and pack the manure evenly in it. After this is done the sash should be put on and kept close until the heat is again active in the manure. A thermometer should be used to ascertain the degree of heat generated.

Different plants require different degrees of heat, so that it is well to have two or three compartments, each with its own sash. Thus cucumbers, egg-plant and peppers do best in a temperature warmer and moister than the hottest room, while tomatoes require somewhat less heat, and cabbage, cauliflower, radish, lettuce and celery need still less. If only one sash is used, the plants requiring the greatest heat may be placed in the center, and the others nearer the outside, where they can be more readily cooled off by raising the sash.

Should the bed prove to be very hot, an increased supply of water will be required. Care should be taken to have it fully up to blood heat. It will also be necessary to have the sash open longer through the day.

Until all danger from frost is over, it is indispensable to have a supply of mats or shutters to cover the frames at night. Straw mats can readily be made by tying ropes of long straw together with twine. It is also necessary to see that the beds are properly ventilated during the day, as the heat of the sun, added to that of the manure, will raise the temperature too high for the safety of the plants. No exact rule can be laid down with regard to this point, which must be learned by observation and experience—sometimes at the cost of failure. But when the management of a hotbed is once well understood, it is a very useful bit of knowledge.

The soil suitable for a hotbed should be light and fine. It should be sifted to remove all stones lumps and rubbish. The addition of leaf mold, such as is to be found in the woods, of decomposed leaves and sand, improves the soil, while sohagnum moss, thoroughly dried and sifted is better still added in the proportion of two or three quarts to each peck of soil. A rich soil is not necessary for starting plants from seed, but it needs to be fine and light.

Plants may also be started to great advantage in window boxes in the house, or cold frames may be used if the hotbed is too much trouble. This is simply a hotbed without the packings of manure. It is not surprising what a high degree of heat may be obtained in this way, but great care must be exercised not to lose at night all that is gained by day, for which a thick covering is indispensable. For those who can afford it, and the cost is not or need not be great, a greenhouse with a hot-water system of heating is a great convenience and a source of pleasure. One who had a taste for such employment will soon master the details of management and make the greenhouse one of the most delightful adjuncts of the farm.

Pumpkins and Pump.

Many dairymen in this section learned, for the first time, during last fall's drouth the value of pumpkins in milk production. One raised more than forty top-box loads of exceptionally nice quality in a 12-acre cornfield and got a good crop of corn besides. His pastures were all dried up when the corn was fit to cut and he began feeding pumpkins to ten cows and followed it up three months. The pumpkins were stored in a feed passage in a basement stable out of the way of frost, and mostly fed in the barnyard. The seeds fell out when the pumpkins were crushed and were eaten by swine, which also consumed any pumpkin the cattle left. He estimates that these pumpkins were the equivalent of 200 bushels of corn; and I found it capable of demonstration, as he feeds 8 qts. per cow daily of cob-meal since the pumpkins were gone.

While this man and many others found it paid to feed pumpkins, others let many go to waste and I can see on many fields the remains of them, in some cases an acre or more. It might reasonably be asked: Why raise a crop to waste, when it is so easily harvested and with a little care kept until consumed. I have now in cellar several sound pumpkins that have been there over three months, and I have known pumpkins to be thus kept until March. I do not know what effect growing pumpkins has on succeeding crops, but I have never been able to see that it diminished the corn grown with them.

Pumpkins are not only relished by cattle but greatly lessen their desire for water; a cow fed two or three good pumpkins a day will require two or three gallons less water. Perhaps this is the reason they are called pumpkins, because they in a measure usurp the functions of that dairy assistant, the pump! By the way, isn't it about time to drop the usual spelling of this word and spell it phonetically—punkin? Squashes are more valuable than pumpkins as cow-feed and when they drop to half a cent a pound are cheaper to use than millfeed. Both squashes and pumpkins may be grown by suburban residents who have no cornfield, in odd corners around the barnyard, in the hotbed, etc. I have known two vines of the cheese pumpkin to produce a wagonload; they came up by chance in a hotbed after it had completed its earlier mission.—L. B. Pierce, in New York Tribune.

Oatmeal for Poultry,

"Bozzy's" famous report to Dr. Johnson's sneer at Scotchmen for eating the grain fed to horses in England—"that is the reason there are such fine horses in England and such fine men in Scotland"—was a deserved tribute to one of the most wholesome and nourishing of grain foods. It is good not only for horses and men, but for poultry also. In reply to an inquiry as to whether it pays to buy oatmeal at 4½ cents a pound to feed to chicks, an exchange says it does pay, and pay well, to buy the meal at $7.25 to $7.70 per barrel, of the same quality as is used for the table. Chicks fed with a ration composed in part of oatmeal will lay on flesh more rapidly, and when mature will weigh one or two pounds more than if raised on corn meal or other food less nutritious than oatmeal.

The special value of oatmeal is that it builds up the chick from the very beginning, and every experienced poultry raiser knows the importance of steady growth from the word "go." Mr. Wright, in his "Practical Poultry Keeper," remarks that the best food for chicks "is decidedly oatmeal," but thinks it too high-priced for general use, except for valuable broods. He still advises it, however, for the first week, in order to lay a good foundation. But the writer above referred to says that the total cost of the oatmeal used last year, in connection with other food, was only five cents per chick—certainly not an extravagant addition to the cost, especially if one to two pounds per chick and earlier maturity were accomplished by its use.

Kindly Shelter.

As I look out of the window at the wintry landscape and realize what comfort and protection my home and stock derive from the now magnificent rows and groups of stately evergreens that stand a beautiful and never-failing barrier to winter as well as summer storms, I wonder why more farmers do not avail themselves of the kindly shelter afforded by a few rows of our common and hardy evergreens. They are now offered so cheaply and with very little care and attention grow so rapidly, and add so much to the beauty and value of the farm, that they are certainly among the best investments for a little money and time that can be made on the farm.

So with a grove that is planted for the timber that is always in demand on the farm. There is a never-ceasing demand and use for small straight timber for posts, bars, fencing, small buildings, sheds, etc.; for this use larch is the best. It grows rapidly and does not expend its strength in making branches, but in a straight, symmetrical trunk. Planted in rows 5 ft. apart and 3 ft. in the row, about 3,000 will grow on an acre. If planted where protection is needed, an added benefit is derived. Such a grove, planted and cared for at small expense, would in ten years be a source of profit, and the more as it gets older for fenceposts. Nothing will bring better return than a grove of red cedar.—Germantown Telegraph.

General Hints.

It is poor policy to keep pigs of all ages and sizes together.

The best butter in all the world naturally can be sadly injured by the use af very poor salt.

During the six months ended December 31, 1890, this country shipped abroad 205,163 cattle, valued at $16,484,638. A gain of nearly two million over the same period in 1889.

Be careful not to feed to many roots to the breeding ewe. Roots are largely composed of water and too much cold water all understand is injurious to the ewe.

It is of the utmost importance that the breed of sheep selected shall be fitted to the conditions under which they are to be kept, else the wool will necessarily be affected.

The winter season is the time for the accumulation of knowledge on bee culture, as well as on other topics. The winter is also the proper time to prepare hives, making and painting them for summer use.

The ambition needed among farmers is not to be lawyers, doctors nor politicians, but to be better farmers. When this ambition is general, agriculture will look up and taxation be more evenly distributed.

Keep a cheerful spirit, stop all wastes, study the possibilities of your family and the demand of your market, and take courage, for we must make the best of the times that are here if we are to succeed.

The use of the horse as a motive power throughout the country is rapidly diminishing. During the past year more than 25,000 horses have been taken from the numerous street car lines in the country.

Better farming is to be secured by more intelligent effort on the part of the individual. Better laws can be had only through the organized efforts of the producers at the caucuses, conventions and polls.

The descendants of a single wasp number as much as 30,000 in one season. November is the fatal month which kills them off, except two or three females, on whom depends the perpetuation of the race.

There's many a slip between the pulpit and the church door.

"What makes that joy, that merriment?
Rheumatic pains, neuralgic gout,
Salvation Oil has put to rout—
Salvation Oil, for healing sent,
Salvation Oil, the liniment.

The man who goes out by himself and drinks five cent whisky is a sin-nickle fellow.

They sat under the moonlight, with clasped hands trying to guess "what star would be their home when love became immortal" but soon, alas how soon she caught a cold and they had temporarily to stop guessing. They cured her however, with one bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

Why is a good speller in a school like a glass of champagne? Because they both go to the head.

Coughs and Hoarseness.

The irritation which induces coughing immediately relieved by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." Sold only in boxes.

Put a rich man on a mule's back, and the mule with throw him just as quickly as he would a beggar.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

In spite of their proverbial slowness, telegraph messengers go about with a great deal of dispatch.

For billious affections take Allen's Iron Tonic Bitters. All genuine bear the signature of J. P. Allen, Druggist St. Paul, Minn.

Four of the leaders of the recent anarchist attack at Xeres have been sentenced by the court martial by which they were tried to be executed Feb. 9.

A Big Profit
$200 Realized on an Investment of $2

Mr. W. F. Eltzroth, an esteemed school teacher in the town of Morrow, Ohio, states his case so clearly that no comment is necessary, further than to say to those run down and out of health,

Go and Do Likewise

"Hood's Sarsaparilla has been worth $100 a bottle to me in the following manner: I have been teaching school for 3 years. Last fall I became worn out, had no appetite, couldn't sleep at night, and became so debilitated it was impossible to perform my duty as a teacher. I

Wrote My Resignation

to take effect in two weeks, but I was persuaded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. Within a week I was so much better that I continued my school and am still teaching. I took 2 bottles, feel like a new man and have over $200 clear from $2 spent for

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Hood's Pills are the best family Cathartic.

IVORY
SOAP
99 44/100 Pure.
THE BEST FOR EVERY PURPOSE.

Obstinate Blood Humor.

I HAD TERRIBLE ECZEMA FOR EIGHTEEN YEARS—WAS in bed six months at a time—body and limbs swollen and scaly like a dead fish. The itching was terrible, and finally LOST MY SIGHT. After treatment by five physicians, and other remedies without relief, I took S. S. S. AND IT CURED ME. My skin is soft and smooth, and the terrible trouble is all gone.—R. N. MITCHELL, Macon, Ga.

I know the above statement to be true.—S. S. HARMON, Macon, Ga.

I was for some time troubled with an obstinate RASH OR HUMOR, that spread over my face and breast. I consulted physicians, and used many remedies without a cure. At the suggestion of a friend I used Swift's Specific, which completely cured me. This was two years ago, and I have had no return of the trouble.—E. H. WELLS, Chesterfield, Va.

S. S. S. is the safest and best remedy for all troubles of the Blood and Skin. It cures by removing the cause, and at the same time builds up the general health.

Send for our Treatise, mailed free. SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.

CHICHESTER'S ENGLISH, RED CROSS DIAMOND BRAND
PENNYROYAL PILLS
THE ORIGINAL AND GENUINE. The only Safe, Sure, and reliable Pill for sale. Ladies, ask Druggist for Chichester's English Diamond Brand in Red and Gold metallic boxes sealed with blue ribbon. Take no other kind. Refuse Substitutions and Imitations. All pills in pasteboard boxes, pink wrappers, are dangerous counterfeits. At Druggists, or send us 4c. in stamps for particulars, testimonials, and "Relief for Ladies," in letter, by return Mail. 10,000 Testimonials. Name Paper. CHICHESTER CHEMICAL CO., Madison Square, Sold by all Local Druggists. PHILADELPHIA, PA.

WILSON'S 1892 PLANT, TREE AND SEED CATALOGUE. LIVE STOCK ANNUAL.
112 Pages, 200 Fine Engravings, Handsome Colored Plates. Full of useful and instructive information. Unquestionably one of the most reliable catalogues published. All kinds of guaranteed Garden, Flower, and Field Seeds, Fruit and Ornamental Trees, Small Fruits, Choice Roses, Flowering Plants and Bulbs. Thoroughbred Land and Water Fowls, Registered Pigs, German Hares, &c., &c. Sent free, on application. Address, mentioning this paper,
SAMUEL WILSON, SEED GROWER, MECHANICSVILLE, PA.

"German Syrup"

Boschee's German Syrup is more successful in the treatment of Consumption than any other remedy prescribed. It has been tried under every variety of climate. In the bleak, bitter North, in damp New England, in the fickle Middle States, in the hot, moist South—everywhere. It has been in demand by every nationality. It has been employed in every stage of Consumption. In brief it has been used by millions and its the only true and reliable Consumption Remedy.

There is nothing that may not happen to a thin baby.

There is nothing that may not happen to a man who is losing his healthy weight.

We say they are "poor." They are poorer than we at first suspect.

Do you want almost all that is known of the value of plumpness told in a way to commend to you CAREFUL LIVING—and Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil if you need it.

A book on it free.

SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, 132 South 5th Avenue, New York.
Your druggist keeps Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil—all druggists everywhere do. $1.

ELY'S CREAM BALM IS WORTH $500 TO ANY MAN Woman or Child suffering from CATARRH
NOT A LIQUID OR SNUFF.
CATARRH
THE CURE FOR CATARRH COLD IN HEAD HAY FEVER DEAFNESS HEADACHE ELY'S CREAM BALM 50c
HAY-FEVER
A particle is applied into each nostril and is agreeable. Price 50 cents at Druggists or by mail. ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren St., New York.

CONSUMPTION.
I have a positive remedy for the above disease; by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed so strong is my faith in its efficacy, that I will send TWO BOTTLES FREE, with a VALUABLE TREATISE on this disease to any sufferer who will send me their Express and P. O. address.
T. A. Slocum, M. C., 183 Pearl St., N. Y.

Tutt's Tiny Pills
enable the dyspeptic to eat whatever he wishes. They cause the food to assimilate and nourish the body, give appetite and develop flesh. Price, 25 cents. Exact size shown in border.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

HOME WORK FOR LADIES: Writing addresses. Other work. No canvassing. Good pay. Something new. If unemployed send 3 (2 ct.) stamps for outfit E. Clark, 46 E. 14th st., N. Y. City.

FAT FOLKS REDUCED
Mrs. Alice Maple, Oregon, Mo., writes: "My weight was 320 pounds, now it is 195, a reduction of 125 lbs." For circulars address, with 6c., Dr. O. W. F. SNYDER, McVicker's Theatre, Chicago, Ill.

PILES Remedy Free. INSTANT RELIEF. Final cure in 10 days. Never returns; no purge; no salve; no suppository. A victim tried in vain every remedy has discovered a simple cure, which he will mail free to his fellow sufferers. Address J. H. REEVES, Box 3290, N. Y. City, N. Y.

HOW TO MAKE MONEY QUICKLY AND EASILY!
Send 50 cents to pay postage on our Daily Market Report and Special Letter of Advice, for one month. We can make you lots of Money. Agents wanted. Address, S. B. WOOD & CO., Investment Brokers, 212, 213, 214 and 215 Wright Block, Minneapolis, Minn.

MEN BE MANLY
We send you the marvelous French Remedy CALTHOS free, and a legal guarantee that CALTHOS will STOP Discharges and Emissions, CURE Varicocele, Spermatorrhea and RESTORE Lost Vigor.
Use it and pay if satisfied.
Address VON MOHL CO., Sole American Agents, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Please mention this paper when writing.

Health Restored!

NERVE
BRAIN.
DR. E. C. WEST
TREATMENT.

Dr. E. C. West's Nerve and Brain Treatment
A guaranteed specific for Hysteria, Dizziness, Convulsions, Fits, Nervous Neuralgia, Headache, Nervous Prostration caused by the use of alcohol or tobacco, Wakefulness, Mental Depression, Softening of the Brain resulting in insanity and leading to misery, decay and death, Premature Old Age, Barrenness, Loss of Power in either sex, Involuntary Losses and Spermatorrhœa, caused by over-exertion of the brain, self-abuse or over-indulgence. Each box contains one month's treatment. $1.00 a box, or six boxes for $5.00, sent by mail, prepaid on receipt of price.
WE GUARANTEE SIX BOXES
To cure any case. With each order received by us for six boxes, accompanied with $5.00, we will send the purchaser our written guarantee to refund the money if the treatment does not effect a cure. Guarantees issued only by JOSEPH R. HOFFLIN, Druggist, Minneapolis, Minn.
☞THE GENUINE IN YELLOW WRAPPERS ONLY.

DR. HARTER'S TRADE MARK LITTLE LIVER PILLS
DO NOT GRIPE NOR SICKEN. Sure cure for SICK HEADACHE, impaired digestion, constipation, torpid glands. They arouse vital organs, remove nausea, dizziness. Act like magic on Kidneys and bladder. Conquer billious nervous disorders. Establish natural DAILY ACTION.
ACTUAL SIZE.
Beautify complexion by purifying blood. PURELY VEGETABLE.
The dose is nicely adjusted to suit case, as one pill can never be too much. Each vial contains 42, carried in vest pocket, like lead pencil. Business man's great convenience. Taken easier than sugar. Sold everywhere. All genuine goods bear "Crescent."
Send 2-cent stamp. You get 32 page book with sample.
DR. HARTER MEDICINE CO., St. Louis, Mo.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.
CATARRH
Sold by druggists or sent by mail, 50c. E. T. Hazeltine, Warren, Pa.

MARIE.

DURING the "Reign of Terror" in France one dark morning an unusual number of the aristocracy had been marched forth and countless heads rolled from the block. A gaping multitude stood by and wild shouts rent the air as the aristocracy were thus butchered. Among the assembled multitude that morning were two females. One of them were plainly clad, while a cloak was thrown around her, with which she kept her features nearly concealed. But a close observation would betray the fact that the woman had been weeping. Her eyes were inflamed and red, and she gazed eagerly upon the platform, while a shudder passed over her frame as each shock of the glittering knife severed the head from the body of someone who had been unfortunate enough to fall under the ban of the bloody leaders. The face of the woman was very beautiful, and she was young—certainly not more than 16 or 18 years of age.

The other female was quite different in character. Her face was fair, but there was a brazen expression about it. She was clad in rags, and as each head fell she would dance, and in various ways express her delight, and then exclaim:

"There falls another aristocrat who refused me charity when I humbly sued to him!"

Each expression of the kind would create a laugh from those who heard her. But any thoughtful person must wonder how one so young could have become so depraved.

The first female watched this creature for a few moments, and then pressing her way to her side, she laid her hand upon the shoulder of the wretch, and whispered:

"Would you like to become rich at once?"

The female in rags turned about, with a look of surprise, burst into a loud laugh, and then replied:

"Of course I would."

"Follow me and you shall be."

"Enough. Lead on."

It was with considerable difficulty that the females extricated themselves from the crowd; but they did so at length, and then the first female asked of the other:

"What shall I call you?"

"Oh! I'm called Pauper Marie."

"You live by begging?"

"Yes; but what's your name and what do you want?"

"My name is Marie, the same as your own."

"Are you an aristocrat?"

"It does not matter. If you know where we can find a room, lead me to it, and you shall have gold."

The pauper led the way into a narrow and filthy street, and then down in a cellar, and into a dark and filthy room.

The other female could not but feel a sickening sensation creep over her, but she recovered herself. After contemplating for a time the apartment, and what it contained, she asked:

"Are you well-known in Paris?"

"Yes. Everybody knows Marie the Pauper."

"Are you known to Robespierre? If so, I want to make a bargain with you."

"I am. What do you wish?"

"You see my clothing is better than your own, and I wish to exchange with you. I want you to consent to remain here, and not to show yourself at all, for a short time, or until I come to you again. As recompense for aiding me I will give you a thousand francs, and when I come back I will give you a thousand more. As security for my return take this ring."

The lady drew a diamond ring from her finger and gave it to the pauper. Then she handed her a purse containing gold.

The girl appeared a little puzzled, and asked:

"Well, what are you going to do with my dress?"

"I want you to put it on and go where I first met you."

"Oh, I understand now. You want to see the chopping go on, and you are afraid you will be taken for an aristocrat if you wear that dress. You want to represent me."

"Yes. I want to look as near like you as possible."

"Well, that won't be very difficult. Your hair and eyes and even your mouth is like mine. Your face is too white, though. But you can fix that with a little dirt."

They exchanged dresses, and soon the young rich and noble Marie de Nantes was clad in the rags of Marie, the Pauper of Paris.

The history of Marie de Nantes was a sad one. Her father and two brothers had fallen victims to the remorseless fiends of she revolution and a third and last brother had been seized. But of his fate she was ignorant, although she expected that it would be similar to that of her other relatives. He had been torn from her side but a few hours before.

After the exchange had been made the pauper looked on the stockingless and shoeless feet and ankles of the lady and said:

"That will never do. Your feet are too white and delicate. Let me arrange matters."

In a few moments Marie was prepared, and in the filth and rags she merged into the street.

She now took her course back toward the guillotine, and at length reached the square where the bloody work was still going on. Gradually she forced her way through the crowd, and nearer and nearer she came to the scaffold. She even forced a laugh at several remarks she heard around her, but those remarks sounded strangely.

Now she stood within a few feet of the platform.

She swept it with her eyes. Her brother was not there.

The cry was now raised:

"Here comes another batch."

Her heart fluttered violently, and she felt a faintness come over her as she heard the tramp of the doomed men approaching.

The crowd opened as the body of men passed.

Marie gazed among them. A low cry escaped her.

Her brother was there. But he walked proudly and fearlessly forward, and ascended the very steps which led to the block.

Up to this moment the strength of poor Marie had failed her, and she was unable to put her resolve into execution.

But now a sister's love swelled up in her breast, and she recovered her strength. She sprang forward, bursting through the line of guard, and ran up the steps. Grasping her brother by the hand she cried:

"What does this mean? It is only aristocracy that are to die."

"Away, woman!" exclaimed one of the executioners.

"No. I will not go away until you tell me why my brother is here and thus bound."

"Your brother?" was the echo.

"Yes, this is my brother."

"Well, who are you?"

"I am Marie. Don't you know me?"

"The Pauper?"

"Ay! I look like one, don't I?"

"But this man is not your brother."

"It is. Ask him—ask him."

Young Antonio De Nantes had turned a scornful glance upon the maiden, but a light passed at once across his face as he murmured:

"Oh my sister!"

"Is this your brother?" asked Robespierre of the supposed pauper, advancing near her.

"It is."

"But his name is down differently."

"Then you are mistaken. He is my brother. Ask him."

"Does Marie speak the truth?" asked Robespierre.

"She does," was the brother's reply.

"And you are not De Nantes?"

"I tell you I am her brother."

"Why did you not tell us this before?"

"I attempted to speak but was silenced."

"But you might have declared yourself,"

"You would not have believed me."

"But your dress?"

"It belonged to an aristocrat. Perhaps to him for whom I am taken."

Robespierre advanced close to young Nantes and gazed earnestly into his face. Then he approached Marie, and looked steadily in her eyes for a short time.

It was a moment of trial for the poor girl. She trembled in spite of all her efforts to be calm. She almost felt that she was lost when the human fiend, whose word was law, turned and said:

"Release the man."

The chains were instantly removed, and Antonio De Nantes walked down from the scaffold followed by his sister, while the shouts of those around rent the air, for they supposed it was a commoner who had thus been saved.

The young man worked his way through the crowd as rapidly as possible, leading Marie.

They had scarcely escaped it before the poor girl fainted, from the intensity of her feelings. The brother scarcely knew what to do, but a hand was laid upon his arm and a voice said;

"Bring her to my room again. She will be safe there."

The brother conveyed her to the apartments of the pauper, and then asked of her:

"Have you seen the female before?"

"Yes, I know all about it," returned the pauper. "She borrowed my clothes to save her lover. She has done it and I am glad." Before the noble sister returned to consciousness the brother had learned all. When she did so they both sought secure quarters, after rewarding the beggar girl as had been promised,

"Do you think Robespierre was really deceived?" asked Marie De Nantes.

"I think not," returned the brother.

"Then why did he order your release?"

"He saw your plan. He admired your courage. Could a friend have done more?"

"Perhaps this was the case. But if so, it was a deed of mercy, and the only one that man ever did."

"You are right."

Antonio De Nantes was not again arrested, and lived happily with that sister who had so nobly imperiled her own life to save him by representing the Pauper of Paris.

ACTING OUT A DREAM.

Some Extraordinary Somnambulistic Freaks of a Young Lady.

A young lady who is treasurer of a mission band in one of our Sunday schools, and who had about $5 of the band's money in her possession, quietly performed a feat the other night that was quite dangerous, says the Huntington, Pa., Journal. The lady referred to rose at a late hour, dressed herself, went to the bureau where she had placed the $5, and took it to a little room in the house which the family did not occupy. Gathering together a few old skirts, she wrapped the money up in them and then securely tied it with a string and placed it in a dark, hidden corner.

After this was accomplished she went into her brother's room, took his loaded revolver and started for the yard. It is not known just how long she was out of doors, but the next morning the revolver was found in a barrel at the rear of the lot. When the revolver was discovered in the barrel it dawned upon the young lady that perhaps some person had been in the house and taken her mission money, and she quickly went to the bureau where she had the money concealed. On reaching the drawer she found that it had disappeared. A thorough search was made and the money found in the place above mentioned.

SUCCESS ON THE STAGE.

Fanny Davenport Says a Girl Must Be Good to Win.

The girl who wants to succeed on the stage owes nearly every thing to herself, writes Fanny Devenport in the Ladies Home Journal. She must, first, learn how to carry herself amid all forms of temptation. She must have that difficult little word in our language, "No," constantly on her tongue, and know how to use it. She must be strong enough to resist presents and resent flattery. She must rise above the overtures of strangers. Her art must be uppermost with her, first, last and all the time. She must be an actress because of her art, not for the flattery and attention it may bring her. Success comes from hard work, not from time spent in listening to the soft words of friends and strangers over a late supper. After the performance is the time for rest; not for play. I have always been proud of one fact—that in all my career on the stage, extending now over twenty years, I have never been late at a rehearsal. I can see where it helped me; and it will help any aspirant, who goes on the stage, to have a principle and stick to it.

LOVE FOR A DAY.

CHAPTER XV.

I hope I shall never have another such experience. It was too terrible. Watching and caring for a madwoman must be bad enough; this was worse. Strange to say, the hapless lady took a fancy to me. Looking at her, so changed, so repellent, I could not believe that she would ever be the same attractive woman again. But Martha said "Yes;" in a day or two she would recover herself, and no one on seeing her would have the least suspicion. This was the worst and the longest fit she had ever had.

There were times when she knew me, and times when she did not.

"You are Miss Chester," she said to me. "I like Miss Chester—a sweet face and a beautiful voice. Have they told you about me."

"They have told me that you are very ill, and I am here to help you get better."

"I shall never get better," she said, and that was the most sober and sensible interval she had.

At times she would cling to me wildly, crying out that I must get something for her; that they were keeping her there in prison, trying to starve her. Horrible paroxysms!

Poor Mark! This was the end of all his honors, happiness, and ambition! How I thought of him! How I pitied him! How I longed to comfort him! It seemed to me that never had a life been so cursed.

Lady Severne did not improve. The visitors were beginning to feel anxious. Lady Yorke was beset with inquiries. Was she really so ill that she could see no one? Why not have a doctor? A feverish cold did not last all this time. Was Lady Yorke sure there was nothing infectious—quite sure? It was a strange thing. Lady Yorke was at a loss how to parry such inquiries.

"I wish they would go," she said to me; "I am sure it will be found out."

Yet she, as well as I, saw how impossible it was to remove Lady Severne just at present.

One night I was very tired, and had gone earlier than usual to my room. It was fatigue that made me forget the door. Worn out with sorrow and dismay—grief about Lady Severne, distress for Lady Yorke, and sorrow inexpressible for Mark—I fell into a deep, dreamless sleep.

I was awakened by the consciousness that some one had stealthily entered my room, and was trying to find me. I am courageous by nature. If a thief had disturbed me I should have felt no fear, but this was no thief. A thick, muffled, hoarse voice whispered, "Miss Chester!" Then I felt the heat of a fevered breath on my face, and I knew that Lady Severne was there.

I rose hastily and turned up my lamp. A crouching, horrible figure was clinging to me. I could hardly believe that this was the beautiful Lady Severne, who held all men inthralled by her charms.

"You must get up," she said. "You are the only person in this house who is kind to me. You must get up and fetch me a bottle of brandy. I must have it."

It would be better, I thought, to take her a bottle of poison.

"I must have it," she continued. "I mean to have it. I know what is going on, although I am shut up. I know proud, refined Lady Yorke would not like her household raised during the dead of night by one of her guests clamoring for something to drink. She would not like it; but, if you do not give me what I want, I will beat the doors down, I will stand in the hall and scream until the whole house is raised."

A pretty dilemma! A nice visitor! I thought to myself: but I did not let her see my dismay.

"Where is Martha?" I asked, wondering how she had escaped, and thankful beyond all words that she was here with me in the "Queen's Wing," rather than in the western tower with the visitors.

Lady Severne laughed—and I think that laugh was the most horrible sound I ever heard in my life.

"Poor old Martha!" she said. "She is off her guard. She fell asleep, and I took the key. What will she say when she wakes? Now, Miss Chester, am I to raise the roof from the house, or will you get what I want?"

"Neither," I said. "I am stronger than you. If you attempt to scream or make a noise, I shall prevent it, even if I hurt you. You will go back to your now room, and remain there in quiet."

I was quite uncertain how my experiment would succeed. I was prepared to see her spring at my throat, as she had at Martha's a few days since, to see her beat the doors with horrible cries, as she had on the previous day, when Martha was compelled to send for Lord Severne.

I looked at her steadily and calmly. Gradually the wild eyes fell before mine. I know that, if I could assert and maintain my authority over her then, I should keep it—and I did so. I took her back to her room, and the prayer that rose to my lips every moment was "Heaven help Mark!" If this was his life, if these were the scenes to which he was accustomed, this creature, hardly human now the companion of his life, then indeed had he need of Heaven's help and pity.

I contrived to get her back safely to her room, and to wake Martha, who was horrified at her carelessness; but, as she told me with tears in her eyes, she was worn out. Never can I forget the night that followed. I could not describe it. To me it had the horror of an Inferno. I cannot tell what would have happened if Martha had not consented, at last, to give her some brandy.

The next night Martha was so worn out that I persuaded her to go to bed. Nothing else could restore her, and I promised not to leave her unhappy mistress for a moment.

"You will have a terrible night, Miss Chester," said the grim woman. "I shall not mind that, Martha, if you have a good one," I answered.

I found Lady Severne inclined to be quiet and to talk rationally. There was something of sullen defiance about her at first, but it died away when I had been some little time with her. I tried to interest her, and to make her forget the horrible craving for stimulant that was destroying her. She became more like herself.

It was about four in the morning—a lovely June morning, bright with sunshine, and with dew, fragrant with the odor of lily and rose. During her fits Lady Severne never went to rest like a rational being. That made her so difficult to manage. She would sit up all night and sleep in the day. A sudden gleam of gold shooting into the room showed me that the sun was rising. I drew aside the hangings and opened the window, letting in the sweetness and freshness of the morning air.

"Dear Lady Severne, do come here for one moment," I said.

She came and stood in silence by my side. I saw her look at the brilliant, beautiful tints of the morning sky, at the fresh tender beauty of the green trees; and then her eyes wandered round the room. The glasses, the bottles, the garish light of the lamp, the confusion and disorder, how they contrasted with the bright, pure heavens and the clear light of day! I knew that the contrast had touched her; I felt that the peaceful influences of the morning had reached her. The wind, which was like the breath of roses, seemed to change her face as it swept over it. She put her arms round me. "I am so tired," she said.

I took her in my arms and laid her head upon by breast—a lost unhappy woman, I knew, but still, Mark's wife. The warm tears were falling then from her eyes.

"How kind you are to me!" she said. "I am so tired that I could sleep forever, I think. Tell me something; Say to me some of the beautiful words that you sing."

There came into my mind one of those poems that my mother had loved—one she had often repeated to me—one which, when she lay dying, she had asked me to say once again for her. I shall never forget my surroundings as Lady Severene preferred her request—the bluesky flushed with rosy light, the green earth waking up to summer life, the dark background of the room that had been like a prison, the beautiful, yet haggard face that lay upon my breast, and the tears that fell like rain. I told her that what I was about to repeat was my mother's favorite, and that it was called "An Angel's Song."

"You have the face of an angel," she said, looking up at me, "with that golden light upon it;" and she listened to every word.

"I know I have heard them sing, child
And I know that they spoke to me,
With my mother's arms around me,
While I sat on my mother's knee.
And she told me of love that saved us,
And a Father we had on high,
And a grave that we need not fear, child,
And the soul that can never die.

'Again, when I walked with the loved one—
You remember the loved one, dear,
And the smile that is gone from among us,
And the voice we no longer hear?—
The voice was so tender and earnest,
That joy was too deep for mirth,
And the heart was too full for speech, child
And heaven came down on earth—

"Not a drop in the cup seemed wanting
The thirst of a life to fill,
And further and fainter the song died out,
But I heard the angels still.
I think it will not be long, child;
They are bidding me home at last,
To the place where the joy of the future
Shall be linked on the love of the past,
Where the houseless shall seek a shelter,
The lonely find a friend—
There the heart's desire shall be granted
That hath trusted and loved to the end."

Tears are the dew of heaven, the poet tells us. Tears fell from Lady Severne's eyes upon my dress and hands. She was clinging to me, wildly crying out that she wished she had been a better woman, that she loathed her sin, that she loathed herself. Would I show her the way to that heaven where angels sung? What could she do to atone to Mark? What could she do to regain her lost youth and goodness? She clutched my arm as she cried out—

"A demon holds me in his grasp—take me from him!"

Then, with tears of regret and repentance, utterly exhausted she fell into a deep sleep with her head upon my breast.

And I? Well, I knew so little of the hold this terrible vice takes of its victims that, as I held her closely clasped in my arms in the light of the morning sun, I thought she was saved, and tears of gratitude filled my eyes. I thought the sweet influences of the fair summer morn had spoken to her heart, that grace from heaven had fallen like dew upon her soul.

I let her sleep as long as she could, and then Martha came back. We laid her down pale and exhausted, on her bed. I whispered my hope to the old nurse. She said—

"Please Heaven! But I have seen her ladyship repent before now, and found her worse than ever a few hours afterward."

Despite these words, I had a hope.

"Further and fainter the song died out,
But I heard the angels still."

CHAPTER XVI.

My hope was vain. A few days afterward Lady Severne was, to use the nurse's phrase, worse than ever. The blow that Lady Yorke had feared fell; the terrible expose which she had dreaded came. She came down to dinner, and was careful what she drank. There was relief on Mark's face and on Lady Yorke's. On the third day an awful occurrence happened. Whether Martha was tired, off her guard, or in ignorance of what was going on, I know not. Perhaps Lady Severne had deceived her. I know only the results. Martha dressed her ladyship for dinner, and Lady Severne asked for a favorite dress of hers, a handsome white and gold brocaded satin. Martha was delighted that she should take so great an interest in appearance; that was always a good sign. She evidently did not perceive anything wrong in Lady Severne, or possibly the mischief was done after she left her. We were all in the drawing-room, waiting for the dinner-bell. Lord Severne was talking to Captain Forrester, more at ease and less anxious than I had seen him for many days; and Lady Yorke looked as though a great load had been taken from her mind. Some one had just inquired if we should have the pleasure of seeing Lady Severne at dinner, and Lady Yorke had answered, with a bright smile, that she was much better and would certainly join them, when the door opened, and we saw her standing on the threshold, saw the gleam of white and gold, saw the light in the diamonds, the graceful figure, the white jeweled hands. Alas, alas, how shall I tell it? In one moment I saw what was the matter—so did Mark and Lady Yorke; and we all three hastened toward her. Her face was ghastly, her eyes were wild, and a leering smile hovered on her lips. Half conscious herself that she was not able to move, yet with a mad defiance of her own feelings, she tried to walk with a dignified step into the room and, before one of us could save her, she had fallen upon her face to the dismay and distress of every one present. In less than a minute, Lord Severne had raised his wife in his arms and borne her away.

Lady Yorke, with a presence of mind I have never seen equaled, but with a face white as death, turned to her guests.

"Lady Severne has fallen over her train," she said quietly. "I wish those long sweeping trains were out of fashion; they are very dangerous."

There was a polite murmur of regret, but no one spoke. Whether any of those assembled there knew the truth, had really seen and understood her condition, I cannot tell. No one mentioned her name or spoke of her after that.

The same evening Mark, with an effort for which I admired him, returned to the drawing-room and spoke of his wife. His visit to Westwood, he said, had been a pleasant one, but he was afraid the air did not suit Lady Severne. She had not been well since her arrival, and he thought it would be better for them to go.

I believe every heart in the room ached for him; he looked so anxious and so sad. There were a few words of regret from the visitors, a kindly-expressed hope that Lady Severne would soon recover. Not one word of suspicion was breathed; but there was a strange quiet. No one talked much; we had no music, no singing. One or two spoke of leaving Westwood, and there was over all an indefinable shadow and gloom. Later on Mark, addressing me almost for the first time, said—

"Nellie, see—there are several people out on the terrace enjoying the moonlight. I want to say good-by to you. I shall never see you again. Will you come?"

I went. My heart was filled with anguish and despair, a horrible restless pain. He was going away—Mark, who had been my lover—in distress and sorrow, and we were never to meet again.

We stood together, as we had so many times before, in the bright moonlight, and Mark raised his haggard face to mine.

"You know my secret now, Nellie?" he said.

"Heaven help you, Mark!" I answered, with tears.

"You have been very good to my unhappy wife; you have been your own self—generous, noble, forgiving. I believe, Nellie, that if any one could do her good, it would be you. She loves you, she seems to have a certain faith and trust in you." He looked at me wistfully. "I dare not ask you—you would not, of course—you would not in any way take charge of her—travel with us? Ah, no—I am mad to think of such a thing!"

Yet to refuse him was the hardest thing I had ever had to do in my life.

"No, I could not do that. The wide world must lie between us, Mark, for evermore. I will think of you, but see you again—never!"

"You are right, Nellie, and I have no reason to complain. It is all my own fault. I have paid a bitter price for my weakness and folly—only Heaven knows how bitter; man can never tell. I deserve to suffer!"

"What shall you do?" I asked, looking with loving, longing eyes at the dark handsome face, so humble and so sad.

"I shall do my best, Nellie. After tonight I have done with the world. I will never visit nor receive visitors again; I have finished with society. I cannot bear the disgrace; but I shall do my best for my hapless wife. I broke one vow: I will not break another. It was for better, for worse; and it is for the worse. I shall take her away from England, find some place where there are few temptations, and take the greatest care of her. There is no hope, I fear; but I will do my best until the very end. I fastened the yoke around my own neck; I must bear it with patience and courage. I say good-bye to all that is bright in life to-night, Nellie. I would rather die a thousand deaths than risk such a scene again. I am going from light to darkness. There is one thing only that can make me less sad and less sorrowful."

"What is it, Mark?" I asked, with fast-falling tears.

"It is this, Nellie—that before I go you will say you forgive me. The burden of my life is a heavy one, and the heaviest part of it is the sorrow that my mad folly has brought upon you. Say you forgive me. Let me take into my dreary exile that knowledge, that it will be to me a gleam of happiness, the only one that can reach me after my cowardice, my weakness, my folly, my betrayal of your faith and trust. Oh, lost love of my youth, oh, true love of my heart, forgive me, forgive me!"

He was kneeling at my feet. Was it wrong, when, I saw his white face so full of anguish, his eyes so full of pain—was it wrong to bend over him, to put my face for one minute near his, to kiss him, with my whole soul on my lips; while I said—"I forgive you, dearest love! Good-by!"

The last sound I remember was the terrible, passionate sobbing of a strong man, and then came to me a merciful oblivion.

They left Westwood early the next morning. How the removal was managed I never heard, and I was too sick at heart to inquire.

I spent the next two years with Lady Yorke as happy as I could ever be in this world, helping her in all her good deeds and works of charity, thinking always, with a sorely aching heart, of Mark.

We heard nothing of him. He never wrote. He had kept his word; he had cut himself adrift from every social tie and from the world.

I asked Lady Yorke if she had received any letter from him. The answer was always "No," but we often spoke, when we were quite alone, of the beautiful, hapless woman who was worse than dead.

One morning Lord Yorke looked up from his paper.

"Louise," he said, "here is news. Listen. 'At Nice, the 18th inst., after a long and lingering illness, Lurline, Lady Severne, aged twenty-seven."

"How young to die!" said Lady Yorke.

And I wondered if the long and lingering illness had been sent to help to purify that poor sinful soul, in which, after all, there had been a yearning for good. Had she gone

"Where the houseless shall seek a shelter
The lonely shall find a friend—
Where the heart's desire shall be granted
That hath trusted and loved to the end?"

I never in all the after-years asked how she died. The only thing told me was, "She died in peace!" and I know how great is the mercy of heaven, how perfect this pardon for sin.

Mark came back to me, not then, but two years afterward, and asked me again to be his wife.

"I know, Nellie," he said, "that some women of a nature lower than yours would punish me now, would take their revenge, would send me away broken-hearted and wretched, would give me back pain for pain, would delight in heaping scorn and contempt on me. You might do so, Nellie; I am at your mercy. If you send me away I cannot complain; but, as there is mercy in heaven, there should be mercy on earth. Love, my love, take me; help me to be a better man; help me to be noble and strong! My life is in your hands, Nellie; will you say me nay?"

How could I, when I had loved him, and him only, all my life? How could I, when every glance, every word of his was dear to me, How could I, when my heart, my love, were his, as they had always been? I did not say him nay. Mark knows best what I said.

I am Lady Severne now, with fair children growing round me, and I love my husband just as much as I did when we met and parted under the lilac-trees. I love him so well and so dearly that I pray I may die looking on his face.

The only reference to the past that Mark ever made was one day when he took me in his arms, and said—

"Nellie, my love for you was never 'Love for a day,'"

THE END.

The Rich Man's Thought for Girls.

The worth of five minutes, of ten minutes, of half an hour or even of an hour, is often underestimated, for so much can be done or learned in a very little time. Some time the plea is "I don't know how the time goes because I haven't got a watch," and this lack of a watch is something I want to tell you about. Mr. George W. Childs who has more than any other man in this country, interested himself in the education of women, the education in more senses than one, for he is having them taught how they may support themselves, gives a prize every year at Bryn Mawr College. When he thought of this a medal came naturally to his mind; then he remembered that except as souvenirs they were of very little use, being worn for awhile and then put away, perhaps occasionally exhibited. So with great wisdom, Mr. Childs decided that a little gold watch warranted to keep good time and suspended from a suitable chain would, after all, be the wisest thing to give, and so this is what the child's prize at Bryn Mawr College is. It is worth working for, because telling you of your exertions in the past, it encourages you to make fresh ones for the future. And then, too, the quiet little tick-tick reminds you continually that time is flying away and that you mustn't let it get the best of you. The minute hand says, "Make the most of me;" the hour hand says, "How have you filled up the time since I last touched a figure?" Wouldn't it be a good thing if in more colleges the sensible watch, with its practical suggestions, took the place of the useless medals?—Ruth Ashmore.

A General Equipped "en Bete."

Among other types described by Gen. Marbot of this period (1799) is that of Gen. Macard, commanding a division of cavalry. "He was one of those officers raised by hazard and by their courage, and who, while of real value before the enemy, were not less incapable, from their want of instruction, of holding high rank. This singular person—a real Colossus, of extraordinary bravery—when about to make a charge at the head of the cavalry, was accustomed s'habiller en bete, as he called it.

He divested himself of his coat and shirt, leaving only his breeches, his boots, and his plumed hat. Thus naked to the waist, he exposed to view a trunk as hairy as that of a bear. Once equipped en bete, clenching his sabre, he rushed on the foe, swearing like a pagan, but he seldom came to close quarters, for the singular and terrible sight of this half-naked giant covered with hair, and who presented himself with yells, so terrified his foes that they flew on all sides, thinking they had to do with a wild beast."

Marbot gives illustrations of the extreme ignorance of this man. "It must not be supposed," he adds, "that all the officers in the army of Italy were like him; it contained in its ranks a great number of men distinguished by their education and their manners; but at this time it also included some chiefs who were very much out of place in the superior ranks. They were weeded out by degrees."—The Contemporary Review.

Bearing the Bell.

This old-time phrase, signifying to take the lead in anything, or to win a prize, is said to have originated in the early part of the seventeenth century, when it was the custom to award a small golden or silver bell as a prize to the successful rider at horse-races.

In Dudley Lord North's "Forest of Varieties" one may read:

"Jockey and his horse were by their masters sent
To put in for the bell;
Thus right, and each to other fell intent,
They are to run, and cannot miss the bell."

A RACE FOR COTTON.

An Incident of the Old Shipping Days in New York.

Edward Knight Collins was a great naval architect as well as shipping merchant, whose career was, on the whole, more noteworthy than that of any man engaged in similar pursuits. This public-spirited citizen, son of Captain Israel G. Collins, the owner and commander of a ship that traded between the United States and England, was born on the 5th of August, 1802. His mother, Mary Allan, a niece of Admiral Sir Edward Knight, of the British navy, dying ten days after the birth of her only child, the infant was reared by his aunt, Mrs. Elizabeth Small, of Truro, Cape Cod, whose kindness and affection Mr. Collins remembered with gratitude to the day of his death. In his fifteenth year, after a course of study at Sandwich, Cape Cod, and Elizabethtown, New Jersey, he entered as a clerk at No. 41 South Street, New York, the store of Messrs. McCrea and Slidell, the latter gentleman a brother of the Confederate minister John Slidell, who was captured on board the Trent by naval officers of the country he had disowned. For five years afterward Mr. Collins was making trips to the West Indies as super-cargo for John F. Delaplaine, sharing in the profits of the ventures of his new employes, and experiencing several hair-breadth escapes from pirates and two disastrous shipwrecks on the coasts of Cuba and Florida, so that when, in 1825, he became the partner of his father in the firm of Israel G. Collins and Son, on the north corner of South Street and Burling Slip, he was fully equipped for a notable commercial performance which may be called the foundation of his subsequent prosperity. The ship Canada, a regular Liverpool trader, had arrived in New York, after a short passage, with the news of a great rise in the price of cotton in England, and a number of speculators forthwith combined to buy all the cotton they could find. Several merchants, also seized with a similar purpose, determined to send an agent to Charleston, South Carolina, and at one o'clock on the day of the Canada's arrival proceeded to the office of I. G. Collins and Son, and asked the junior member of the firm to act in that capacity. A few minutes' reflection was enough to enable him to accept the appointment, and in reply to their question, "How soon can you start?" he said, quietly: "As soon as I can charter a pilot-boat and ship provisions and crew—about three hours. I will be ready to sail at four o'clock this afternoon."

"But the regular Charleston packet leaves at that hour, and the speculators will go out by her, and get there before you."

"Gentleman," was the reply, "I will go in the way I have named, or not at all."

Enough said. At precisely four o'clock, from the pier at Burling Slip, the packet hauled in her hawsers, and the pilot-boat, under command of E. K. Collins, cast loose her moorings, the vessels proceeding down the East River together, much to the amusement of the speculators on board the packet, who mercilessly chaffed the "boy," as they called him, for his temerity in attempting to beat them. But Collins, being an accomplished navigator, and sailing in a boat of so light draught that it could keep close to shore and take full advantage of tides, currents, and land-breezes, was soon out of sight of the merry-andrews, and reached Charleston long enough in advance of them to buy all the cotton in that city and on the Cooper and Ashley rivers, to arrange his exchanges, make out his invoices, and set sail for New York in his saucy little craft. She was crossing the bar homeward bound, with her whip at the mast-head, when the packet and the speculators hove in sight, and as the two vessels passed each other within speaking distance, an eye-witness relates that the would-be-cotton-buyers on board the bigger one laughed this time the other side of their mouths. That was certainly a splendid start for a young business man of twenty-three years.—Harper's Magazine.

She Spoke In Her Sleep.

Strange case of jealousy and bloodshed has come before the assize court of the department of the Nord, France. Some weeks ago a man living in the neighborhood of Valenciennes was sitting after dinner with a young woman, with whom he was on very affectionate terms, when suddenly she dropped off to sleep. During her nap she had a dream, and presently her lover heard her call out: "Charles, save me! Eugene is coming!" As the young man rejoiced in the name of Eugene his suspicions were aroused, and, shaking the dormant beauty roughly by the arm he awoke her and demanded an immediate explanation. Thus taken by surprise the girl made a full confession, and her companion, beside himself with fury, pulled a revolver out of his pocket and fired three shots at her. She was removed to the hospital in a very critical state, but although it was impossible to extract two of the bullets, she has recovered, and during the trial she made light of the affair, declared that she had forgiven her lover freely, and begged the court to allow him to return home with her. Moved by her supplications, the judge was merciful, and the impetuous Eugene was condemned only to three months' imprisonment.

HONEST "TRAMPS."

A Doubting Woman Has Her Faith Reestablished.

Two tramps applied at a Congress Street, east, residence early one morning for something to eat, and offered to clean the sidewalk of snow in the way of payment. They did the work well and received the promised food. Then they asked for the loan of the shovel and old broom which they had used in cleaning the sidewalk, saying that they had the promise of a job of cleaning a sidewalk in the next block. Mrs. A. kindly consented, although nine out of ten would have refused. An hour passed, and the tramps did not return. The lady felt that she had lost a brand new snow shovel, and her confidence in human nature was much shaken. As the afternoon wore away she was unmercifully "guyed" by other members of the family for trusting tramps, and the feeling of loss settled into a conviction. The blow to her philosophy of trust in human nature was felt more keenly than the absence of the shovel.

After dark, however, a ring at the door bell brought her face to face with one of the tramps.

"Say, missus," he said, "here is them things you let me take, an' I'm sorry we kep' 'em so long. You see, we could not get the jobs done fast enough. There was lots of work, and we wanted to make a pile. Can't I pay you something for the use of the things?"

Mrs. A. was delighted, and of course refused to take any money. The poor fellow left, after pouring out profuse thanks and apologies.

"Who says there are not honest tramps—men who find it almost impossible to get work?" the gentle lady is now inquiring triumphantly.

A Novel Proposition.

The Pioneer Press Co., of St. Paul, Minn., makes some remarkable offers in connection with its weekly edition. Election time is approaching as well as seed time. Of course every household desires the Weekly Pioneer Press during the campaign, and the publishers propose to reciprocate by giving their subscribers a benefit in the seed line. Following are their offers of northern grown, tested seeds furnished by L. L. May & Co., the leading northern growers:

Offer No. 1—"Ladies' Collection"—Every one sending $1.10 will receive the Weekly Pioneer Press one year and a collection of flower seeds, amounting at catalogue prices to $1.10. Included in this offer are Pansy, Nasturtium, Sweet Pea, Poppy, Mignonette, Petunia, Phlox, Forget-Me-Not, Snap Dragon, Candy-tuft, Silene, mixed, etc. 13 packets in all.

Offer No. 2—"Vegetable Garden"—Every one sending $1.20 will recieve the Weekly Pioneer Press one year and 20 packets of garden seeds, prepaid. Every gardener needs this offer. Included are Onion, Cabbage, Beet, Lettuce, Tomato, Radish, Corn, Parsnip, Pea, Cucumber, Turnip, Pepper, Water and Musk Melon, Celery, Carrot, Cauliflower, Endive, Spinach and Leek seeds are included. The seeds alone cost $1.40 at regular prices.

Offer No. 3—"Novelty Package"—This package includes the seasons' novelties in both vegetable and flower seeds and are offered for the first time now. The package and Weekly Pioneer Press one year for $1.30. All postpaid. The catalogue price of this seed is $1.95. We have taken this offer and recommend it highly. The flower seeds included are Phlox, Pansy, Chrysanthemum, Balsam, Aster Nasturtium, and Dianthus. The vegetables, Onion, bean, Lettuce, Water Mellon, Cabbage, beet, radish and Parsnip. All new varieties.

Offer No. 4—"Surprise Box"—For $1.10 we will send the Weekly Pioneer Press one year and this assortment, the seeds alone costing $1.15. This is destined to become a favorite offer. Included are Cucumber, Beet, Onion, Pea, Tomato, Cabbage, Lettuce, Pansy, Sweet Pea, Nasturtium, Morning Glory, Verbena and Aster.

All charges are prepaid and seeds ordered will be sent promptly. Old and new subscribers are included in the offer.

It you don't want seeds send postal for new book and picture premiums. Address all communications to

The Pioneer Press Co.,
St. Paul Minn.

GOOD LUCK.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder is often called the Good-Luck Baking Powder.

Owing to the fact that good luck always attends the use of Dr. Price's, it is not essential to use it the moment it is mixed nor is it required to have the oven always just so as in the case with ammonia or alum powders. It is not luck after all, but the exact accuracy and care exercised in the preparation and combination of all the ingredients of Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder. Competent chemists are employed to test the strength and purity of each ingredient. Nothing is trusted to chance. Hence; it is always uniform in its work.

House wives never fail to have "good luck" in making most delicious bread, biscuit, pastry and cakes that remain moist and sweet. Only Baking Powder that contains the white of eggs.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder is reported by all authorities as free from Ammonia, Alum, or any other adulterant. In fact, the purity of this ideal powder has never been questioned.

MINNESOTA EDITORS

Twenty-Fifth Annual Convention of the Minnesota Editorial Association at St. Paul.

Granville S. Pease of Anoka Elected President for the Ensuing Year.

The Minnesota Editors' and Publishers' association began their 25th annual convention in St. Paul on the 10th. President Hall called the convention to order and immediately began the delivery of his annual address, in concluding which he said:

> Let us also establish feelings of brotherhood and lines of co-operation which will result in pleasanter social relations and secure additional business advantages.

Treasurer D. Ramaley read his report, which showed a balance on hand of $50.04. Messrs. R. C. Gottry, F. A. Day, S. P. Jennison, F. C. Neumeier and Soren Listoe were appointed to act as the committee on resolutions. The delegates at the same time were requested to hand in to the committee any and all resolutions that they were desirous of submitting. Messrs. Irving Todd, E. A. Paradis and L. Osborn were appointed as a committee to receive the names of those wishing to attend the next convention of the national association at San Francisco. In connection with this matter, B. B. Herbert, of the National Journalist of Chicago, explained the arrangements for the meeting of the national association at San Francisco.

Mr. Ramaley, who, at the last meeting, had been appointed as a committee of one to ascertain if the form of the advertisement of the tax list could not be simplified for the benefit of country editors, reported that there seemed to be no disposition on the part of those having it in charge to make the change. The only hope, in his opinion, was legislation. A motion was made that the annual meetings hereafter be held in the latter part of each February after the county printing has been assigned, but it was decided to refer the matter to a committee for action. After the matter at hand had been thoroughly discussed the meeting adjourned until 2 o'clock.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Fred N. Van Duzee, of the Rock County News, read a paper on "The Relation of the Editor to Politics." The substance of the paper is given below:

> The modern and popular conception of politics is not that promulgated by the lexicographer, i. e., the science of government, but in a more restricted and etymological sense, politics is the science of getting the offices, getting all there is in them when obtained, and holding on to them as long as possible, and it is from this standpoint that the editor in common with the rest of mankind considers it. Is it not literally true that the words of ex-Senator Ingalls, "Purity in politics is an iridescent dream?" That this state of affairs is curable as long as men are constituted as they are, I doubt. Purity in politics will probably come along with many other needed reforms, when the millenium arrives. That it can be ameliorated and improved I have no doubt. If you agree with me then comes the pertinent question. What is the relation, or better, the duty of the editor to politics as he finds it? That we have a duty to perform is plain, and if there is any part of our social existence that needs reform any more than our politics it has yet to be discovered. We cannot avoid or shirk the duty. Let us endeavor to make officeholding more honorable, and we cannot do this by adhering strictly to party lines in our support of a ticket, particularly in local, municipal or county affairs. Let us be more independent, and as Col. Pat Donan advised a year ago, "Let us stop puffing peanut politicians."

Gen. S. P. Jennison, of the Red Wing Republican took the floor and began a very interesting and lucid discussion. He favored the ideas promulgated by Mr. Van Duzee, and considered them able ones and worthy of endorsement. He thought it should be the duty of every editor to remain pure in his politics and incorruptible, also do his duty toward his fellow man. An editor whose vote could be purchased would, it seemed to him, sell himself just as readily. As to holding office, the general held that it was the editor's privilege to do so, provided he could secure one.

J. L. Stack read a paper on "The Relations of the Advertising Agency to the Country Paper," the following is a substance of his remarks.

> Is the general advertising agent of any benefit to the country publisher? If not, why not? If the publisher is ambitious to enlarge his field by having foreign advertisements appear in his columns, then the advertising agent is the link which brings him in contact with the outside world of advertisers, of whom the publisher would not hear, were it not for the agent.
>
> Furthermore, the hustling advertising agent is constantly creating new advertisers; hence it is the duty of the publisher to protect him by allowing him the regular agent's commission from any figure quoted directly to advertisers.
>
> The manner in which the average country publisher conducts the business department of his paper can be materially improved. He has, usually, no fixed advertising rates which are consistent with his paper's actual paid-in-advance circulation.
>
> The average country publisher values the advertising space in his publication at a certain price per inch, whether the purchaser is a local or a foreign advertiser. This is an injustice to the latter.
>
> There should be a distinct price for each class—the local and the foreign advertiser—full rates to the former and a discount to the latter. The rate to the foreign advertiser should be materially less than that charged the local merchant, and the publisher could arrange a schedule of rates on this plan without doing an injustice to either.
>
> The reason for this difference of rates is one that must be apparent to every thinking man. The foreign advertiser can hope for a very small proportion of returns compared to the home merchant, who is practically addressing his friends and neighbors and has every benefit coming from such advantage.
>
> Then, too, the foreign or general advertiser necessarily uses a large list of papers of general or national circulation, and by advertising in the local papers he is covering some of the ground which these other papers reach.
>
> The net rate to the advertising agency for foreign advertisements should not exceed, on yearly orders with electrotypes furnished, one-third of a cent per agate line for each thousand paid circulation, and this rate should always be maintained. The public should never, under any circumstances, quote to the advertiser the same net rate which he quotes to the advertising agency.
>
> If the publisher adopts and maintains this course, the advertiser will gladly pay the rate for foreign advertising, and there will be no ridiculous offers to the country publisher—that is, no more than are at present made to the metropolitan paper. Adhere to such rates, under any and all circumstances, and you will be saved, not only annoyance, but the loss of business which you would otherwise secure.
>
> The following is an illustration of the present relations existing between the advertising agency and the country publisher:
>
> The agency has the country publisher's rate on file, which is, say, $12 per inch per year, net. The agent divides this price by two, takes off 25 per cent commission, and the order goes forward to the country publisher at $4.50 net, with a request for a prompt acceptance, or at least an early reply.
>
> My experience has been in cases of this kind that about one-third of the publishers will accept the price offered; one-third will return the order offering to accept it at a trifling advance, say a total of $5, and the other third will consign the order to the waste basket unanswered, feeling insulted, perhaps, that the agent should offer what seems to them such a ridiculously low price, and perhaps at the same time confiding to their desks a wish that the advertising agent was in heaven.
>
> Who is to blame—the publisher or the advertising agent? Gentlemen, I say unmistakably the former. Why? Because the country publisher can and should adopt a fair scale of advertising rates for his foreign patrons, and under all circumstances maintain these rates, and the most important feature of all, allow the advertising agent his commission from the rate quoted the advertiser direct.
>
> But this does not imply any necessary antagonism of interests as between the publisher and advertising agent. The publisher's interests will be best and most permanently subserved by uniting his efforts with those of the advertising agency, proving to the advertiser that for the consideration he asks the columns of his publication offer an ample equivalent.
>
> The publisher must never lose sight of the fact that the shrewd and successful advertiser places his newspaper advertising through a reputable and responsible advertising agency. That agency will secure for its client the greatest value for the money to be expended, both in extent and quality of circulation.
>
> It matters not to the agent whether he places the advertisement in one paper of 10,000 circulation or in ten papers of 1,000 each, and it rests with the individual publishers whether they shall share in the money invested or allow one of their number to secure it all.

A LENGTHY DISCUSSION

followed the reading of the paper. L. Osborne, of the Glyndon News, started the ball rolling by a somewhat lengthy speech.

B. B. Herbert, proprietor of the National Journalist of Chicago, read a paper, "A Review of the Quarter Century." Mr. Herbert is an old-time Minnesota editor and was at one time president of the state editorial association, and his remarks were listened to with profound attention and interest. His paper was of the reminiscent sort, reviewing as it did the work of the association for the past twenty-five years, and he brought out a number of interesting incidents connected with the members individually and as a whole. The association was organized on Feb. 20, 1867, and since that time there had been a quarter of a century of success and sunshine. When he had concluded the meeting was adjourned until 9 o'clock this morning.

In the evening the delegates were tendered a banquet which was followed by an informal dance.

SECOND DAY.

Owing to the mild though delightful dissipations of the night before the editors were a little late in getting to work yesterday, so that when the meeting was called to order in Litt's hall the attendance was small. As the forenoon advanced, however, the delegates dropped in one by one, and were soon engaged in the general discussion and business of the hour. The initial number on the programme was the reading of a paper on "The Country Correspondence of a Country Paper," by Elmer E. Adams, of the Fergus Falls Journal. Mr. Adams handled the subject in a masterful manner, demonstrating to his auditors that he knew what he was talking about. Country correspondence, he held, was one of the most important adjuncts to the rural editor's prosperity, and he believed that a quarter of a column of home news was worth a page of matter about China and Turkey. W. B. Mitchell, of the St. Cloud Journal-Press, and Joseph Leicht, of the Winona Westlicher Herold, were among those who discussed the merits and demerits of Mr. Adams' reasoning.

"THE ANNUAL ROW"

was the title of a paper read by W. C. Whiteman, of the Ortonville Herald-Star, and the subject related to the present system of awarding the county printing. He was of the opinion that the question should be solved by the legislature, and that the entire matter of county printing should be taken out of the hands of politicians and turned over to the people themselves. This paper created considerable discussion, and in the ensemble the editors coincided with the ideas promulgated by Mr. Whiteman.

Under the caption, "Independence in Journalism," V. C. Seward, of the Stillwater Messenger, delved into the fallacies of editorial partnership, and remarked facetiously that he hoped the time would come when country journalism would be independent of parties, type founders, paper manufacturers and spring poets. In discussing this subject Gen. Jennison said that it was nonsense to suppose that a politician-editor wrote political stuff simply because he was paid for it. The independent sheet was also up for the highest bidder, while the party sheet could only look to one. The last paper of the morning bore the somewhat gruesome title of

"JOURNALISTIC SUICIDES."

The literal meaning of the term was, however, not touched upon, the title being used as a simile and the paper itself dealt with the business branches of country newspapers and the occasional lamentable failures of the same, through inexperience on the part of the publishers and the eventual demonstration of the philosophy of the survival of the fittest. Mr. Gottry's advice to all was to "Get a Bonus."

Before the meeting closed an invitation was received from A. J. Meyers of the Lake City Sentinel to spend the annual outing at Lake Pepin, while Mr. Joubert of Litchfield wanted the editors to visit Brightwood again. The selection of a place was left to the executive committee.

THE AFTERNOON SESSION

began at 2 o'clock and but very few chairs were empty. No time was wasted in preliminaries inasmuch as the majority of the delegates were anxious to conclude the business, so as to catch the evening trains for home. E. C. Huntington of the Windom Reporter was hurried to the platform and read his paper on "The Business End of Country Papers." Although the topic was a somewhat prosaic one, the paper was a scholarly one replete with valuable suggestions.

Carl S. Eastwood, of the Heron Lake News, followed Mr. Huntington, and discoursed on the subject, "Newspapers and the Public," demonstrating to the convention that the way to run a newspaper is to eschew all indulgence in personalities, and print a "clean, crisp" paper. When Mr. Eastwood had finished L. P. Hunt, of the Mankato Free Press, asked the privilege of saying something on

THE WORLD'S FAIR.

This was accorded him, and as Mr. Hunt is superintendent of the state exhibit at the Columbian exhibit he was able to regale the editors with something entertaining on the subject. It was desired, he said, that the newspapers of Minnesota should be creditably represented at the air, and it would be apropos of the convention to appoint a committee to look after the details. In referring to the work of the state commission Mr. Hunt said:

> There have been a great many unjust criticisms made by people throughout the state on the work of the commission, but I think we have not been fully understood. The members of the commission receive nothing for their work, and they did not expect anything when they undertook the work. But we know that the $50,000 appropriation is not enough to represent the state properly at this great exposition, and therefore we have made this appeal for more funds to the people. I hope all you editors will place the matter before the people in its true light, for it all lies in their hands whether Minnesota is properly represented or not.

The convention decided to appoint a committee of seven editors, one from each congressional district to look after the newspaper exhibit, and later a resolution was adopted endorsing the actions of the state commission and pledging to aid in securing enough more funds to make the amount, together with what the legislature appropriated, $100,000.

THE NEXT MEETING.

When the question of fixing the time for the next meeting came up, a delegation from the Minneapolis Press club, Messrs. C. L. Smith and Herbert Connor, extended an invitation to the association on behalf of the club, to hold the next business meeting in the Flour City. This precipitated a lengthy and rather heated controversy, inasmuch as the constitution declares that the meetings were to be held in St. Paul, and several were in favor of amending it, so that any place in the state could be selected at the discretion of the association. The general sentiment was that St. Paul was the proper place to hold the meetings and one or two gentlemen stated that their objections to Minneapolis were that the city was too small. The whole matter finally ended in the committee on constitution amending the constitution so that St. Paul was designated the place to meet on the years that the legislature is in session, and the time fixed as the third Thursday in February. On other years the convention will be held at any place the convention decide. While the above amendment was passed, the by-laws so fix it that it cannot go into effect for one year from the time it was offered.

NEW OFFICERS.

It did not take long to finish the business of electing officers, for each one was nominated and then elected by acclamation. The roster of officers now stands as follows:

President, G. S. Pease; first vice president, Soren Listoe; second vice president, C. C. Whitney; third vice president, Bronson Strain; recording secretary, E. A. Paradis; corresponding secretary, Harry E. Ives; treasurer, D. Ramaley; executive committee, C. P. Stine, N. S. Gordon, William Hinds.

"Old" Pease, the new president, was called upon for a speech and responded with a few remarks in his own happy style and the retiring president spoke feelingly of his long connection with the association. The secretary was directed to send greetings to Maj. Newson, present United States consul to Malaga, and F. S. Verbeck of Chicago, both of whom are members of the association. W. D. Joubert, of the Litchfield News-Ledger, presented the association with a group picture of the association when it was first formed in 1867, and received the hearty thanks of the convention.

RESOLUTIONS.

The committee on resolutions as a grand finale to the meeting presented its report, which included many appropriate resolutions offered by various delegates and the association as a whole. The report was adopted unanimously. One resolution regarded adequate representation at the world's fair as a matter of vital importance, and favored the erection of Minnesota buildings on the fair grounds from materials produced in the state. Another thanked the daily press of the city, the Press club and kindred institutions for the entertainment furnished at the Windsor, also the Press club for the free use of its rooms and privileges, and other courtesies. Manager Frank L. Bixby, of the Grand, came in for a portion of the editors' overflowing thanks for the free use of the hall and the entertainment furnished the ladies at the theater. Among the other resolutions was one favoring a meeting for the purpose of effecting a closer business organization; another demanding legislation protecting the people from exorbitant express rates, and a third recommending the charging of usual advertising rates for the publication, by papers, of party tickets, and calls for conventions, caucuses and public meetings.

The meeting came to a close at 4 o'clock. For a few minutes there was a confusion of hand shaking and leave taking, then the hall was empty and the twenty-fifth annual convention of brainy men was again one of the things of the past.

The following is a list of the editors in attendance:

A. C. Buck, Sibley County Independent; C. R. McKinney, North St. Paul Sentinel; James Ruane, Slayton Gazette; C. E. Graham, Waseca Radical; C. S. Eastwood, Heron Lake News; John Lawson, Northfield Independent; H. G. Fisher, Long Prairie Leader; W. C. Whiteman, Ortonville Herald and Star; A. B. Allen, Jackson Republican; J. A. Henry, Janesville Argus; A. H. Bronson, New Richland North Star; F. W. Johnson, New Ulm Review; William B. Reed, Hastings, ex-editor; W. F. Talboys, Glencoe Register; T. J. Price, St. Paul Record; Luther Osborne, Glyndon News; W. B. Mitchell, St. Cloud Journal; R. W. McKinstry, Faribault Republican; A. C. Belyea, Elbow Lake Herald; F. C. Neumeier, Stillwater Post; W. Powers, N. W. Oddfellow; William Hinds, Shakopee Argus; H. G. Day, Albert Lea Standard; Bronson Strain, Battle Lake Review; S. Listoe, Nordvesten; L. Baker, Globe; G. S. Pease, Anoka Union; Alvah Eastman, E. C. Gottry, Pine County Pioneer; J. A. Johnson, St. Peter Herald; J. S. Dobson, Northwestern Newspaper Union; L. P. Hunt, Mankato Free Press. B. B. Herbert, National Journalist; E. A. Paradis, Midway News; W. R. Edwards, Tracy Republican; D. C. Lightbourne, Norman County Index; Frank A. Day, Martin County Sentinel; C. C. Whitney, Marshall News-Messenger; Irving Todd, Hastings Gazette; H. L. Peterson, Litchfield Review; C. H. Spencer, Atwater Press; E. L. Peet, Minneapolis Spectator; S. A. Phillips, Duluth Short Line; C. S. Schurman, West St. Paul Times; Hugh Whiteley, Morris Sun; Frank Meyst, Kellogg Newspaper Union; C. P. Stine, Northwestern Printer; D. Fichthorn, St. Peter Tribune; G. A. Loehl, St. Peter Tribune; H. P. Hall, St. Paul News; V. C. Steward, Stillwater Messenger; Hiram Smith, Stephen Leader; J. H. Manchester, Lake Benton News; N. S. Gordon, Austin Transcript; W. D. Belden, Caledonia Argus; A. B. Lange, Duluth Scandia; J. G. Hamlin, Blue Earth City Post; A. A. Caswell, Anoka Herald; S. P. Jennison, Red Wing Republican; E. V. Smalley, Northwest Magazine; D. Ramaley, A. O. U. W. Guide; J. Q. Adams, St. Paul Appeal; W. C. Whiteman, Ortonville Herald-Star; E. C. Huntington, Windom Reporter; E. S. Eastwood, Heron Lake News; Ben Houghtaling, Mazeppa Tribune; A. T. Whitman, Flandrau Herald; F. M. Van Duzee, Luverne News; J. L. Stack, St. Paul Advertiser; Joel Heatwole, Northfield News.

CONVICTING THE WITCHES.

The Ideas of Justice Prevailing in the Good Old Days.

One of the theories of the age was that the Devil set his mark upon each of his servants that witches were all marked," says Winfield S. Nevins in the February New England Magazine. "A jury of the sex of the accused was appointed to examine the body for such marks. It often happened that some excrescence of flesh common to old people, or one explainable by natural causes, was found. One such was found on the body of Goody Nurse, and reported to the court, all but one of the jury agreeing to the report. Rebeca Preston and Mary Tarbell knew that the mark was from natural causes. The prisoner stated to the court that the dissenting woman of the jury of examination was one of the most anceint, skillful, and prudent, and further declared, 'I there rendered a sufficient known reason of the moving cause thereof.' She asked for the appointment of another jury to inquire into the case and examine the marks found on her person. The jury of trials returned a verdict of not guilty. Thereupon all the accusers in court 'cried out' with renewed vigor and were taken in the most violent fits, rolling and tumbling about, creating a scene of the wildest confusion. The judges told the jurymen that they had not carefully considered one expression of the prisoner, namely, that when one Hobbs, a confessing witch, was brought in as evidence against her, she said: 'What! Do you bring her? She is one of us.' The jury retired for further consultation. Even then they could not agree upon a verdict of guilty. They returned to the court-room and desired that the accused explain the remark. She made no response, and the jury returned a verdict of guilty.

DRUNKENNESS AND SALOONS.

Localities in Which Saloons Are Least Known are not the Most Sober.

The belief that drunkenness decreases with the decrease in the number of licensed liquor stores is a favorite hobby with certain people. This theory has again exploded, this time in England. The Essex Standard has compiled from recent return tables showing the ratio of convictions for drunkenness to the number of public houses in a group of counties and boroughs in the eastern part of England. The remarkable fact that, with one or two exceptions, the greater the number the licenses, the lower the proportion of convictions for drunkenness.

For example: Cambridgeshire, with the large number of 4.5 licenses per 1,000 of the population, had only 0.7 of drunken convictions per 1,000 souls. The borough of Norwich, too, with the still more generous allowance of 6.4 licenses per 1,000, had only 0.43 of drink convictions. Yarmouth, on the other hand, has the pre-eminently large number of such convictions of 5.6 per 1,000 with only 3.6 licenses per 1,000 inhabitants.

In many places the decrease in the number of licensed places has brought about the establishment of larger and more enticing gin palaces, with a more varied and larger stock of intoxicant beverages. In this way intemperance has frequently increased on the diminution of license. The same experience has been made in this country in cities, notably so in Philadelphia and Pittsburg, in which high license has reduced competition in the sale of liquor to a minimum.—American Brewer and Distiller.

At the Head.

Excellence is after all a matter of comparison. A boy of six years who attends a private school where prizes are given on all sorts of provocations, but who as yet had never earned a prize, came home one afternoon and exhibited proudly one of these rewards of merit.

"Good!" said his mother; "but how did you get it?"

"I was first in natural history," said the boy.

"Natural history, at your age! How did it happen?"

"Oh, they asked me how many legs a horse had."

"And what did you say?"

"I said five."

"But a horse hasn't five legs, child!"

"I know it, but all the other fellows said six!"

BOUND TO PASS.

Washburn's Anti-Option Bill Certain to Get Through Both Houses.

Senators Will Not Dare to Vote Against It, Though Opposed to It.

WASHINGTON, Special Telegram, Feb 13.—The agricultural committee of the senate desires to get hold of the Washburn option bill if possible, and to this end reported in favor of the resolution authorizing a committee to investigate and report upon the depression of the price of agricultural products.

This committee desired to have control of the bill when it was introduced, but in order to have the judiciary committee pass upon its constitutionality Senator Washburn had it referred to that committee. It is probable that the investigation carried on by the agricultural committee will give it information that will make it possible to take charge of the bill.

Unless the sentiment changes materially, the bill is certain to pass both houses. It is a measure that senators do not care to vote against, even if they believe its provisions are not all they should be, on account of the capital that would be made against them by their political opponents if they should fail to pass the bill designed, as this is claimed to be, for the benefit of the agricultural classes.

The senators will not take the responsibility of defeating it because they see that it will only be another whip in the hands of their opponents, who claim that they are now too far from the people and are trying to make it as hard for the people as they can. Then those who think it should be materially amended may not interpose objections to it.

TRULY A TRIBUTE.

An Ex-Confederate Eulogizes the Martyr President.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—The annual dinner of the Union League Club of Brooklyn was given at the club house to-night. The club at the same time celebrated the birthday of Lincoln. The attendance was large and addresses were made by Hon. John S. Wise of Virginia to the toast, "Abraham Lincoln;" Hon. John C. Burroughs, "A Government of the People;" Hon. W. Hepburn, "How Shall We Extend the Labor Field of the United States," and Hon. Z. P. Pangborn on "The Republicanism of Abraham Lincoln and Its Lesson for Us To-Day." Mr. Wise said in part:

> How long ago it seems since Abraham Lincoln lived and died. Never before have men seen a nation, first rent asunder in doubtful fratricidal strife, then reunited and so hurried forward that all factions forget their bitterness; all acknowledge that the results reached were best of all; and in which the actors in its bloodiest tragedies, forgetting the passions which stirred them of old, became calm philosophers upon the causes and results of their own struggles. The nomination of Mr. Lincoln, I pictured in boyish fancy as the elevation of a bad man by an insane faction, with a cruel Quixotic purpose. The idea that he or his followers could or would prevail against the power of the South seemed to me utterly preposterous.
>
> I laughed in my heart as a school boy in the springtime of 1860 at the thought that anything could uproot and destroy the whole social and political fabric by which I was surrounded. Within five years from that time I stood upon the same spot a paroled prisoner of the army of the dead Confederacy. The outbreak of the war released Mr. Lincoln from every pledge that he had given to the South while endeavoring to maintain peace. He had the unquestioned right to proclaim the freedom of the slaves as a war measure. None but a bold, strong, independent nature would have assumed all responsibilities for the danger which the step involved to himself, his friends and to his cause. Looking at its consequences, friend and foe alike, now concur that it was a matchless stroke of a master hand.
>
> Lincoln will be remembered for all time to come by friend and foe alike, as the great, sad, almost lonely helmsman in the Union in the hour of its peril, who steered by the unfailing light of a single constellation; who, never veering a point, was always guided by his self-made chart, "with malice toward none and charity to all."

The Pensioners.

WASHINGTON, Special Telegram, Feb. 13.—Pensions granted to-day:

Minnesota—Original: Oscar E. Lawson, John Doyle, Henry Hamlin, A. G. Swetland, James Whalen, William Adams, Gustavus A. Glader, William Henry, George Coustans, John Schaefer, Ira H. Sanford, George E. Wilcox, Willoughby T. Vaughan, Eber K. Whiting, John Moriarity, Harvey H. Billings, F. Oostermann, Michael Doyle, James Tatro, Frank L. Kendall, William Crowley, Samuel Moore, Leander Watson, Christian Olsen, John F. Diegler, Leander H. Lane, A. A. Laflin, P. Gilmore, William N. Herrick, C. Cowan, C. H. Whipple, E. J. Sutherland. Additional: Loren B. Smith. Original widows, etc.: Eleonora Hummel.

North Dakota—Original: E. V. McKnight, Samuel Collard.

South Dakota—Original: Levi Fishbeck, John W. Thompson, George C. Lindley, A. J. Roberts, John H. Riskmire, George C. Beebe, Aaron Iverson, A. T. Bridgeman, George W. Hail.

Lured by Fraud.

HAMILTON, Ont. Feb. 13.—T. C. Ryan of Columbus, Ohio, connected with the treasury department at Washington, is here looking into the affairs of a concern which has induced Canadians to go to the United States by making misrepresentations to them. About 230 were sent over from Canada, among them an old soldier named James Whitley, who was induced to go to the United States and had to walk back home. The treasury department is proceeding against the company for violation of the alien contract law.

A Small Bit of Each.

WASHINGTON, Special Telegram, Feb. 13.—W. J. Dwyer of Logan county, N. D., is in the city and has secured Senator Casey's aid in having established a mail route from Napoleon to Elmira, with service twice a week and the establishment of a postoffice.

The house passed the military academy appropriation bill, having reduced it $65,000.

On motion of Mr. Pickler March 12 was set apart by the house for the delivery of eulogies upon the late J. R. Gamble of South Dakota.

The Canadian reciprocity commissioners had another conference with Secretary Blaine and Gen. Foster to-day. The preliminary negotiations will probably conclude in a few days.

The Accused Alleghenians.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 13.—Ex-Mayor Richard T. Pearson of Allegheny, who was charged with embezzlement while in office, was acquitted. Mayor Wyman, who was convicted yesterday of extortion, was at his office to-day exercising all his prerogatives.

Enthusiastic Republicans.

ATWATER, Minn., Special Telegram, Feb. 13.—The Local Republican club was re-organized to-night. It starts out with a membership of sixty-five. Hon. D. F. Reese of St. Paul addressed the meeting. Hon. Henry Feig also made a speech, followed by A. F. Norden.

Perrin Now in Charge.

CHIPPEWA FALLS, Wis., Special Telegram, —Frank L. Perrin of Madison has accepted the editorship of the Chippewa Herald, the Republican weekly organ of this county. The Herald is the late Gen. George C. Ginty's paper, and has been ably edited by Mrs. Ginty since her husband's death, nearly two years ago.

The Hop and Barley Duty.

WASHINGTON, Special—There is practical unanimity among the Democratic members of the ways and means committee in favor of the bill of Representative Fitch of New York reducing the duty on barley and hops, and there is little doubt that this measure will be favorably reported to the house.

CONDENSED TELEGRAMS.

Famine prevails in several districts in India.

Arrests of anarchists are being made in Berlin almost daily.

Efforts to reorganize the collapsed wrapping paper trust are being made.

The agitation against live cattle imports is gaining dangerous strength in England.

The examination of witnesses in the Delamater bank cases began at Meadville, Pa., yesterday.

The report that the troops in garrison in Montevideo had revolted is without foundation.

The total loss by the fire in the opera house block at Monmouth, Ill., is $150,000; insurance, $55,000.

The Chicago police raided several gambling dens Thursday night and arrested about 100 gamblers.

The French and Russian squadrons in the Mediterranean are about to make a joint visit to the Levant.

Judge Dundy has appointed Ellis L. Bierbower as receiver of the American Water works plant in Omaha.

The Morgan line of steamers, which was removed from the Galveston and New York trade last fall, will be replaced in thirty days.

Henry Welcome has been installed master of Fidelity lodge of Free Masons in London. He is the first American to be thus honored.

Mr. Gladstone has sent a letter to Sir William Vernon Harcourt, in which he pays a high tribute to the character and worth of the late duke of Clarence.

Two Americans have been murdered near El Paso, Tex. The bodies were naked and covered with blood. Some believe the murder to have been done by renegade Mescalero Indians.

North island, New Zealand, has been shaken by severe earthquakes, which are supposed to be connected with a violent eruption of Mount Ngasnhoe. The flames from the volcano reach a great height.

Gov. Chase has prepared a proclamation to the people of Indiana, setting forth the deplorable condition of the starving people of Russia and asking that generous contributions be made for their relief.

The London Times says that it doubts whether Blaine, in spite of his apparent renunciation, will resist an appeal from the Republican party should it appear that Harrison is losing any of his popularity.

The British chamber of shipping has adopted a resolution in favor of Great Britain negotiating a convention with the United States to prevent the "crimping" and desertion of British sailors in American ports.

The kaiser has given it to be understood that he is as anxious to build up the German navy and maintain the standard of the army and that in the event of the war he wishes the navy to take the aggressive.

The grand jury in New York yesterday returned an indictment for forgery in the second degree against Edward M. Field. It is alleged he forged the name of E. Moore to the bill of lading for 71,282 bushels of wheat.

Eugene Johnson, southern traveling correspondent of the Kansas City Sunday Sun, has been found guilty of criminally libeling citizens of Dallas, Tex., in the Sun, and sentenced to one year on the county chain gang, $700 fine and costs.

James Couch, one of Chicago's pioneer settlers, and owner of the Tremont House property, was killed Wednesday, missing his footing in alighting from a street car, and being run over by a heavy wagon following. He was 92 years old.

Near Monterey, Butler county, Alabama, Thursday, Tom Traweek, sixteen years old, a white boy, shot and killed Bill Thomas and Jim Jackson, two negro men, in self-defense. One of the men had knocked Traweek's four-year-old brother down with a shovel.

By a vote of seventy-three to three, the Maryland house of delegates has adopted a resolution expressing as the sense of the house that the national house of representatives should act upon the tariff question in harmony with the "broad lines" marked out by President Cleveland's message of 1887 and the Mills bill.

A TYPHUS SCOURGE.

A Large Number of Typhus Fever Cases in New York City.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—The typhus scourge upon which the board of health stumbled yesterday is increasing hour by hour. No man can tell its extent at this writing. In the early morning hours ten new cases were found in the East side lodging houses that shelter exiled Russians from the famine districts, making sixty seven in all up to that time.

At noon nine more cases were found in houses in the most densely populated district and among the poorest tenants, and that the plague will spread, despite the efforts now making by the health authorities to suppress it, there seems little doubt. The nine houses known to be infected are under police surveillance. The authorities have forbidden all communication with the rest of the world.

The Pope Interested.

ROME, Feb. 13.—The pope gave a special audience to-day to Thomas B. Bryan and his son, Col. Charles P. Bryan, the Chicago world's fair commissioners. The pope said he would be delighted to take part in the exposition and would contribute as far as possible to the success of the undertaking. He assured his hearers that he was moved in the matter by a special love and admiration for the American people, and said that he would issue a pontifical letter embodying the sentiments he had expressed. Mr. Bryan afterwards had a conference with Cardinal Rampolla, the papal secretary of state, in which arrangements were made in regard to the details of the exhibits which the Holy See will send to Chicago.

Bichloride of Gold Did It.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 13.—James Fair, son of ex-Senator Fair, died here to-day. His death is attributed by his doctors directly to bichloride of gold treatment. "Jimmie" Fair was among the first to try it. He declared it had effected a cure, but his friends noticed his listlessness. The doctors say strychnine which enters so largely into the bichloride treatment affected his heart. Several similar cases have occurred here. The dead boy's father is the wealthiest man in San Francisco, being probably worth $20,000,000.

Secured His Money.

WASHINGTON, Special Telegram, Feb. 13.—B. F. Daugherty of Duluth, a contractor upon the harbor improvements at that city, was in Washington to-day and called upon Senator Davis in reference to a claim he had against the government for work performed in which there had been considerable delay about the payment. Upon going to the war department accompanied by the senator the matter was soon fixed up and vouchers drawn for $8,500 for the Duluth gentleman.

To Be Left to the States.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—The house committee on irrigation has decided to leave the question of interstate waterways to the states to settle for themselves. The disposition of the committee is to turn all the arid lands over to the states without restrictions.

The Hop and Barley Duty.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—There is practical unanimity among the Democratic members of the ways and means committee in favor of the bill of Representative Fitch of New York reducing the duty on barley and hops, and there is little doubt that this measure will be favorably reported to the house.

Naval Demonstrations.

LONDON, Special—There is something portentous in the simultaneous assembling in the Levant of the fleets of the great powers. Since it became known that the French and Russian squadrons in the Mediterranean are going to Alexandria orders have been sent to the Austrian admiral Rorschidt, now at Smyrna, to sail with his five war ships for the Piræus, where he will be joined by two Italian ironclads and a division of the German squadron. Within a fortnight the united squadrons of the dreibund will be within cooperating distance of the English fleet at Alexandria. If France's design is to impress the khedive with a naval demonstration England and her allies are ready to make a more impressive demonstration.

THE YOUNG FOLKS CORNER

USEFUL READING FOR BRIGHT YOUNG PEOPLE.

A Ghost Story—The Jingle-Lesson—Not Complimentary—Good Infantile Theology—Humorous Young Folks.

A Ghost Story.

BY ONE OF OUR BOYS.

CHAPTER I.

"Mammy," said Jim, one day, "I's gwine to go chicken huntin' tonight—you see if I doan."

"Law sakes, does you know what you's talkin' 'bout, boy? Doan you know yit dat dem people over yander has ghosts?"

"Well, mammy, if you doan talk funny; dem people ain't thinkin' of sech a thing. Dar's Dorsey what been over thare the other night, and he says he neber see enny yit, and he got fore chickens and sole 'em."

"Well, thin, chile," said mammy, "go (for fried chicken was her greatest failing), but doan you come home with a ghost story, or you'll skeer ole mammy haf to deef."

CHAPTER II.

Any one who was out about 12 o'clock that night might have seen a very woolly-headed negro boy going by with a sack slung across his back. He kept chuckling to himself and would say: "Think of mammy bein' afeard of ghosts; I neber see anyone sich a coward."

When he reached the place he had started for, he climbed cautiously over the fence, and went to the chicken house. He easily got in, and as this was not his first experience in chicken stealing he got the chickens without making a noise. Putting five in a bag, he started to return home, but had gotten no more than half way across the yard when with a scream, he dropped the bag.

"Law, a marcy! Law, a marcy! I's killed. Help, help!" came from him in terror-stricken words, and Jim ran as fast as his legs would carry him.

CHAPTER III.

Such a thumping at the door. Mammy was awakened by it. She had intended sitting up to wait for Jim, but had fallen asleep, and do you wonder she was startled, being awakened so rudely? She thought the ghosts had come after her, but just then she heard a trembling voice calling, "Oh, Mammy, Oh, Mammy, please let me in, I'll never go out again at night. Do, Mammy, do?"

"Is that you Jim, calling Mammy?"

"Yas, Mammy, it's me."

"Well, come in then. Whare's the chickens?"

"Doan talk 'bout chickens, there's a ghost following me. Lock the door."

"Oh! Jim has you really seen a ghost?" and mammy fell to the floor. Jim grabbed the key from her, locked the door and stood there shivering. Soon mammy opened her eyes, and Jim told her to go to sleep, and he would tell her 'bout it tomorrow.

CHAPTER IV.

"Jim, has I been dreamin' 'bout ghosts, or has I really heard 'bout dem?" said mammy, next morning.

"No, mammy, you neber dreamed it, but I tole you 'bout it, I see it with my own eyes, and I neber am goin' to steal enny more. I see two real ones with clubs in tharehands. I tell you I was skeered. I jist know they's gwine to haunt us, and I neber kin live in peace enny mow. What's I gwine ter do? Let's go an' see them."

Mammy agreed to this, and what was their astonishment to see only scare-crows. But, said Jim, "I'se gwine to stick to my first resolution for ebber, 'neber to steal enny more.'"

The Jingle Lesson.

Kitty sat out under the sweet-apple tree in the golden October moontide, crying real salt tears into her Primary Arithmetic.

"Now, what's the matter, Kittyleen?" asked big brother Tom, coming out with his Greek Grammar under his arm. I supposed you were eating sweet apples and studying, and I came out to do so, too, and here you are crying."

"It's — this — dreadful — multiplication-table!" sobbed Kitty, "I can't never learn it, never!"

"Hard?" asked Tom.

"Oh, it's awful! Harder than anything in your college books, I know. It's the eights this afternoon, and I can't learn 'em, anyhow."

"Don't you know how much eight times one is?" asked Tom, picking up a sweet apple and beginning to eat it.

"Yes, of course. Eight times one is eight. I can say up to five times eight all right."

"Can you? Well, that's encouraging, I'm sure. Let's hear you."

Kitty rattled it off like a book. "Five times eight is forty"—and here she stopped.

"Oh, go right on?" said Tom. "Six times eight is forty-eight."

"I can't said Kitty. I can't learn the rest. I've tried and tried, and its no use."

"Do you learn so hard?" asked Tom. "Now hear this, and then repeat it after me as well as you can:

'When I go out to promenade
I look so fine and gay,
I have to take a dog along
To keep the girls away.'"

Kitty laughed, and repeated the nonsense word for word.

"Why, you can learn!"

"But that has a jingle to it. It isn't like the dry multiplication-table."

"Let's put a jingle into that, then,

'Six times eight was always late;
Hurried up, and was forty-eight;
Seven times eight was as cross as two sticks,
Had a nap and was fifty-six;
Eight times eight fell onto the floor,
I picked it up and 'twas sixty-four;
Nine times eight,—it wouldn't do,
I turned it over and 'twas seventy-two,'"

"Did you make it all up, now?" asked Kitty, in wonderment.

"Why, yes," laughed Tom.

"Oh, it's splendid! Let's see, how is it?" And she went straight through it with very little help. "Ten times eight is eighty. That one's easy enough to remember."

"And now, said Tom, when she had the jingle well learned, "say the table aloud and the jingle in your mind as you go along."

Kitty tried that, and in a very few times made it a success. With the ringing of the first bell she was ready to start to school, with those "dreadful eights" all perfect.

"You're the best Tom in the world?" she said with a good bye kiss. "And I don't believe there's another boy in college that could make such nice poetry."

Tom laughed as he opened his Greek Grammar.—Youth's Companion.

Humorous Young People.

"Now little boy," said a Columbus teacher, "what does the word 'worship' mean?"

Silence all around.

"Jimmy, what does 'worship' mean?"

"Dunno!"

"Why, how dumb! What does your papa do just before going to bed?"

"Oh! now I know. He goes into the pantry'n takes a drink out'n his bottle."—Columbus Post.

Mamma—Johnny, what do you say to the lady for the cooky?

Johnny, munching away,—I say it's a good one—has the old maid got any more?—Epoch.

His Mother—Tommy, why are you always fighting?

Tommy—'Cause I want peace.—Epoch.

They stood in the darkened vestibule of a double-flat house up-town. It was a late hour and a cold night, but these were nothing—it was he and she, and they were young and stood very closely together. Time had no show alongside of opportunity.

"You don't love me a bit," she said.

"Love you! I worship you, sweetheart—darling!" The blonde head was brought against the manly breast for the 15th time and a soft, clinging kiss was planted where it would do the most good.

"Break away!" came hoarsely from the feminine debris.

"What did you say, dearest?"

"Come off!" in a half-smothered whisper.

"Why, darling! I never heard you use slang before. Don't—"

"I never said a word," she declared.

"I must have been—" And a terrible dread overcame her.

"I never thought—" he began regretfully.

"You did—yes you did!"

"Why, who's that?"

Both young people suddenly started away from the wall against which they had been leaning, and stared at the two ranges of bright letter-boxes and owlish speaking tubes.

"Will you never come off down there?"

"Oh! plague on it! That's Johnny," said she, with deep disgust. "Our speaking tube's out of order—I forgot."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Little Boy—Mamma, the cat has eaten that seed I gave to the canary this morning.

Mamma—Cats don't eat bird seed. You must be mistaken.

Little Boy—No, ma'am. It was in the bird.—Good News.

Not Complimentary.

A certain Mrs. Malaprop, who lives in a large eastern city, is noted for her skill in unconsciously embarrassing other people, while she herself remains perfectly at ease. Not long ago she was introduced to two sisters, young ladies who had long been known to her by name, though she had never met them.

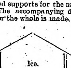
"Now, my dears," she said, addressing them collectively, with her usual bland smile, and regarding them earnestly through her glasses, "I have often heard of the bright and the handsome Miss Ratcliffe. Now, I am so glad to meet you both, and I want you to tell me at once which of you is the bright and which the handsome one!"

On another occasion she was dining with her nephew and his young wife, who had just set up housekeeping. The dinner did not go off quite so smoothly as the young couple had hoped, and the cooking was by no means perfect. The hostess unwisely began to murmur apologies, and her husband joined in, half-laughing, with references to his wife's youth and inexperience.

"Don't say another word, my dear children," interrupted their kind-hearted guest. "I can assure you I've eaten a great deal worse dinners than this in the course of my life; a great deal worse. Yes," she added, meditatively, "I've eaten some pretty bad dinners, you may be sure!"

A Meat Refrigerator.

A refrigerator for keeping meat in the summer may be made in this way: An icehouse is made in the usual manner on a dry air-tight foundation and with double walls filled in with sawdust, and a central chamber of the size required is built inside in the same manner. The roof above should be supported sufficiently to hold up the ice, and a galvanized iron floor is laid over the refrigerator to put the ice upon. A drain is needed to carry off the water of the melting ice, which wastes considerably in this case, and the drain must have an air trap. The needed supports for the meat are put in. The accompanying diagram shows how the whole is made.



Good Infantile Theology.

A four-year-old girl once asked: "Mamma, do you love God?"

"Yes."

"Does every lady love God?"

"Not as much as they ought to."

She thought a few minutes, and said: "Well, if they don't love him as much as they ought to, it's spoiled."

Orthodox infant.

The same little girl was one day looking over a book of Washington Alston's sketches, and when she came to Ithuriel with his spear, asked, "Mamma, is that God?" "No, dear." "Why, yes it is; you said that God was a spirit."

Her young brother once had a whitlow on his fingers, and one day in the midst of his play, called out, "Mamma, my finger has 'sploded."

Polk County Journal.

CROOKSTON, - - - MINN

AUTHORS who write books for boys are said to make the most money. And yet the author of the "Old Sleuth" library is not a man of mark in the literary world.

THE present governor of Oklahoma could barely read and write when he was 21 years old, and now experts can barely decipher his writing. He is a lawyer.

THE suit of Mrs. Forence Nash of London against Ali Khan, son of an Indian prince, for breach of promise, resulted disastrously to the lady. Ali Khan't be made to fulfill his promises, although the testimony plainly showed he made them.

MRS. GLADSTONE is said to be hardly inferior to her husband in energy and industry. She has always been interested in charity and church work and in politics, and has at the same time maintained close watch upon her household affairs and her children.

ADVOCATES of cremation do not find that their pet idea is making rapid strides toward popular favor, but they are a hopeful body and claim that some progress is being made. According to Lieut. Totten, however, the time when cremation will be universal is not so far off as the skeptical may desire to believe.

EVEN in leap year it is not quite prudent to go through the marriage ceremony as a joke. The law does not appreciate jocularity. A St. Louis young lady wishes the fun had not taken that direction. Even Dakota divorces are not to be had under ninety days.

IT is a tradition in Austria that has more than the force of law, "that if an unmarried man destroy the eye of an unmarried woman, he must within two twelve months make that woman his bride," or "mourn where'er he go, his days full of woe; in life or death he shall know no rest, his body accurst, his soul unblest; woe to him on earth or air; woe to him fore'er and e'er."

NEWFOUNDLAND and Labrador are almost at a standstill in the matter of population. The census returns show a population of 200,000, the increase in seven years being only 4,100, or about two and a half per cent. In the seven years preceding the increase was over twenty-two per cent. Unwise trade restrictions seem to have stimulated emigration.

THE committee appointed by the American Newspaper Publisher's Association to investigate the plan of machine composition has made a report in which typesetting by machinery is declared to be absolutely practicable and very much cheaper than hand composition. For ordinary newspaper work machine composition is strongly recommended.

THE City Council of Berlin, Germany, is considering the advisability of closing the halls for the lodgings and feeding of the unemployed. Similar halls for women were closed some time ago, as they were frequented almost exclusively by disreputable persons. The men's halls are said to shelter mostly tramps and theives.

IN midsummer some humming birds stray as far North as Canada, but after November they are hardly ever seen anywhere in the United States east of California Sierra, and probably pass the winter in Northern Mexico, in the evergreen forests of Tamaulipas, for instance, where the wild oranges and musk-lianas are covered with their finest flowers at New Year.

LEAST attractive among the insects which give light are the so-called "electric centipedes"—black crawlers with many legs which have been likened to serpents' skeletons in minature. They move in a snake like fashion, forward or backward, leaving behind them a bright track of phosphoric light. However, they are most accustomed to appear in the daytime, when the illumination they afford is not visible.

THE late Randolph Rogers, the celebrated American sculptor, was one of the sleek and portly men that Cæsar liked to have about him. His shoulders were broad, his chest immense, and it was said of him once that if his work had ever been subjected to criticism he had laughed and grown fat over it. He was a man of simple habits, genial in manner and entirely devoid of snobbery.

THE venerable Dr. Backus, of Schenectady, who for forty years was a pastor in that city, and who died recently, became entirely blind about ten years ago; and even while laboring under this affliction he occasionally preached from his old pulpit, and officiated at funerals. Subsequently his eyes were operated upon successfully, and he regained his sight. During the active period of his career he occupied a high place in Presbyterian councils.

THE NEWS SUMMARY.

The Latest News of the World Condensed and Arranged in Convenient Form.

Washington, Personal, Foreign, Criminal, Casualty and Other Important News.

THE CAPITAL.

SECRETARY BLAINE indignantly denies the report that he will leave the cabinet.

NEGOTIATIONS in regard to reciprocal trade with Canada are formally opened in Washington.

MR. BLAINE formally announces that he will not be a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

An amendment to the interstate commerce law which means the disintegation of that act is deemed certain to pass the house.

POSTMASTER GENERAL WANAMAKER issues an order which will more than double the present number of money order offices in the United States.

A CLAIM for $40,000 damages has been filed against Chili by Andrew McKinstrey, a member of the crew of the American steamer Keeweenaw, when the latter was arrested and so terribly maltreated by the Valparaiso police.

PERSONAL.

JOHN JAY KNOX, ex-controller of the currency is dead.

ADJT. GEN. MCCLELLAND of Pennsylvania died at Harrisburg.

MRS. L. H. ROGERS has just died at Adger, Ala., at the age of 106.

COL. JAMES AUGUSTUS GRANT, the African traveler, died at Nairn, Scotland.

EX-PRESIDENT Cleveland is to deliver an address at Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 22.

SIR JAMES CAIRD, the well known writer on agricultural subjects, died in London recently.

REAR ADMIRAL ANDREW BRYSON, U. S. N., retired, died at his residence in Washington in the seventieth year of his age.

MINISTER LINCOLN denies in the most positive terms that he is or intends to be a candidate for the presidency.

DR. NEWTON MORTON, inventor of the reclining chair for railway cars, died at Kansas City, aged 53 years.

IT is charged that Gen. R. A. Alger was dismissed from the army during the war. Gen. Alger, in a partial denial, casts reflections upon the veracity of the late Gen. Custer.

LLOYD TEVIS will retire as president of the Wells-Fargo bank, San Francisco, next August on account of old age. He has been president of the bank for twenty-one years, and is worth from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000.

CASUALTIES.

MEMPHIS has a million dollar fire.

THE Hotel Royal, in New York, is burned, and about thirty lives are lost.

A DISASTROUS fire occurs in Cincinnati.

Columbus, Ohio, is visited by a large and probably fatal fire.

Stephen Shinder, a Brennan, Tex. farmer, fell from a wagon, striking on his head. His neck is broken, but he has fair prospects to recover.

FIRE destroyed a large hotel at El Paso, Tex. All of the two hundred guests escaped, but many were rescued by firemen. Loss, $200,000; insurance, $100,000.

THE Polynesian, from Liverpool, for Baltimore, ran ashore near Cape Horn. The passengers were taken ashore without difficulty. The vessel is not thought to be damaged.

James Couch, one of Chicago's pioneer settlers, and owners of the Tremont House property, was killed recently, missing his footing in alighting from a street car, and being run over by a heavy wagon following. He was 92 years old.

AT Scranton Pa., Catcher Michael Logan, of the Scranton base ball club, made a misstep in chasing some roughs who had stoned him and two companions, and tumbled 100 feet from the Delaware, Lackawana & Western railroad bridge into the gully beneath, being dashed to instant death.

Carolina Garner, the fifteen-year-old daughter of a coal miner, living at Federal station, a few miles south of Pittsburg, was frightened to death by two men chasing her. She ran into the house and fell on the floor in convulsions from which she never recovered. The men were recognized and the coroner held them for manslaughter.

A SPECIAL from Eaton, Ohio, says. The boiler at the saw mill of Jacob H. Kissling, six miles north of here exploded killing two men, William Kissling, the son of the proprietor, and a hired man named Shiverlecker. Young Kissling was blown to pieces and only portions of his body can be found. Mr. Kissling, the proprietor of the mill, was also badly injured.

THE WICKED WORLD.

MADE insane by the grip, a St. Paul man shoots himself with probably fatal result.

Hedspeth, the notorious Missouri train robber, is captured in San Francisco.

AN insolvent firm's treasurer is arrested in Minneapolis on the charge of embezzlement.

O. F. WAGENER, an architect, was stabbed in the McGlynn house at La Conner by Milas Gallagher, a Seattle capitalist. Gallagher was sent to Mt. Vernon for trial by the superior court.

HERR LANGE, assistant cashier of Okester's bank at Manheim, Germany, has absconded, after having, it is alleged, uttered forged bills to the extent of 250,000 marks.

IT is stated at Bangor, Me., that the grand jury has indicted every rumseller in the city. There are over 200 of them, and it is expected that there will be a general exodus of such tradesmen to avoid appearance in court.

THE death of Padlewski, the nihilist, at San Antonio, Tex., grows daily in mystery, and it is now almost certain that the assassin of Gen. Silverstoff, instead of being a suicide, was the victim of the czar's vengeance.

AT Denver, a suit has been commenced by the receiver of the American Water Works company to call President C. H. Venner to account for $205,000 in bonds of the Denver company. The charges in the case are both grave and vigorous. This suit is in retaliation of the one brought against Mr. Sullivan by Mr. Venner.

EUGENE JOHNSON, the Southern traveling correspondent of a sensational paper, whose office of publications was recently changed from Kansas City to Chicago, was found guilty of criminally libeling citizens of Dallas, Tex., in the columns of his paper. He was sentenced to one year on the county chain gang, $700 fine and costs.

AT Sault Ste. Marie, Wm. O. Coulter, whose sensational confession, inspired by religious conversion, of the murder of his father, attracted much attention throughout the country, was brought before the circuit court here and pleaded guilty to the charge of perjury. This offence was committed during Coulter's trial for the murder of his father.

FOREIGN.

THE British parliament reopens.

THE new German loans have been poorly covered.

RUMORS are current in London and Liverpool of impending difficulties in the corn and cotton trades owing to a serious decline in prices.

RUMORS are current in Vienna that a revolution has broken out in Servia. The Servian minister in Vienna says there is no truth in the rumors.

Intelligence has been received of the capture by brigands of M. Vidal, the French explorer, who was traveling with a caravan of Kirghiz merchants to Yarkand, in Chinese Turkestan.

THE last memorial service over the remains of Rev. Mr. Spurgeon was held in London recently. The Metropolitan tabernacle was crowded and the services were very impressive. The burial took place in Norwood cemetery.

ADVICES from Guatemala received at the city of Mexico state that Guatemalan military officers are provoking street brawls, and that it is feared that it is the intention of President Barillas to declare a state of siege and so continue in power.

THE pope, in another letter to the archbishop of Paris, enjoins the immediate withdrawal of the electoral catechism, and declares that any political exhortations on the part of the clergy are a distinct encroachment on the province of the civil power, whether monarchical or republican.

SENSATIONAL rumors are current to the effect that the Greek steamer Embericos, which was recently wrecked off the Scilly islands, foundered, during a mutiny of the crew, in which the captain and some of the officers were murdered in a fight with knives to secure one of the boats after the accident.

THE Norwegian storthing was opened recently. The speech from the throne promised bills dealing with literary and artistic copyright, the building of new harbors, the supervision of labor in factories, the institution of accident and old age insurance, and the reduction of duties on articles of general consumption. The budget shows a good surplus.

THE four anarchists sentenced to death by court-martial at Madrid for leading the mob in the attack made a short time ago upon the city of Xeres will be garroted there. The executions will be made public, and a majority of the shops will be closed. The workingmen's associations are agitating for a general suspension of work on that day.

THE RAILROADS.

TROUBLES multiply in the Western Traffic association.

THE Omaha has contracted for 250 more box cars in addition to the 500 already ordered.

IT is reported that a large number of forged tickets of the Jacksonville, Tampa & Key West road have been sent to the Northwest.

THE board of rulings of the trunk Line and Central Traffic Association has appointed a general passenger agent to investigate all matters referred to him by the association lines.

IT is stated that when the reorganization of the Richmond Terminal property is completed Albert Fink, the former trunk line commissioner, will be offered the presidency of the new corporation.

SPORTING MATTERS.

THE Western league has adopted the Reach ball.

MIKE KELLY is still anxious to play in New York.

Paderewski, the pianist, is said to be a pool fiend.

Tommy Warren, as a fighter, is now supposed to be dead.

HOSMER will probably handle the regatta at Erie next August.

Sparring matches will be permitted in Providence, R. I., hereafter.

MAHER and Fitzsimmons are both reported to be getting in fine trim for their coming mill.

Ives doesn't like the date of the Schaefer match. He wants it March 23 instead of March 10.

MITCHELL and Slavin were roundly hissed each night during their recent engagement in St. Louis.

THE entry list of the Chicago dog show, includes 133 St. Bernards, 56 great Danes, 44 mastiffs, 52 pointers and 117 setters.

THE Chicago club is reported to have offered Pfeffer and Wilmot to Louisville in exchange for Tom Brown and Canavan.

Henry Boyle, the pitcher wants to run the Indianapolis club in the Western association. He thinks he can make it a success.

THE TOILERS.

THE United Mine Workers' association has refused to send delegates to the People's party convention in St. Louis, Feb. 22.

FORTY-EIGHT contract laborers were returned to Europe from the immigrant station at Ellis Island. The total number returned during the week was 121.

AFTER a conference the St. Joe & Grand Island road has granted the demands of the men, thereby averting a threatened strike. The schedule provides for the payment of three cents a mile and thirty cents an hour for overtime.

THE wholesale discharge of Adams express messengers continues on Pennsylvania railroads. The only way that the men can account for their removal is that they joined the union of express messengers. The dismissals may result in a strike involving other railroad employes.

MISCELLANEOUS.

PHILADELPHIANS will charter a steamer to take supplies to Russia.

THE Minnesota Humane society holds its annual meeting in St. Paul.

REPUBLICAN members of the Iowa house resolved in caucus to stand by prohibition.

A MINNEAPOLIS man is heir to a fortune in the shape of an estate in Michigan.

A TYPHUS fever scourge of alarming proportions rages in New York city.

A BILL is to be introduced in congress imposing so heavy a tax upon cigarette manufacturers as to suppress it.

ARCHITECT ADLER makes a report on the Minneapolis convention hall, and says that it will be the finest in the country.

A RECEIVER is appointed for the Western Farm Mortgage Trust company, Denver. The liabilities are heavy.

THE liabilities of the failed Deming & Silver City bank, in New Mexico, are $252,000. The bank officers expect to resume in ninety days.

THE official count of the city election at Salt Lake City shows an average Liberal plurality of 1,882, and an average Liberal majority over all of 1,840.

A DISGRACEFUL quarrel occurs at a funeral at Council Bluffs, Iowa, because a priest objects to the body of a dead soldier, wrapped in stars and stripes being taken into the church.

IT was learned at St. Louis from the headquarters of the American Tobacco company, alias the cigarette trust, that no more rebates will be paid, and that a return to the old system will be had.

By a vote of seventy-three to three, the Maryland house of delegates has adopted a resolution, expressing as the sense of the house that the national house of representatives should act upon the tariff question in harmony with the "broad lines" marked out by President Clevelands message of 1887 and the Mills bill.

THE supreme court of Idaho decided the case of the Mammoth Mining Claim vs. the Lackawanna mine at Wardner, Idaho, in favor of Mammoth claim. The suit involves the ground claimed by the Sullivan mine, and the decision is adverse to the Bunker Hill and Sullivan Company, and in favor of John M. Burke & Co., owners of the Mammoth claim.

GOV. BOYD, of Nebraska is acting on the theory that he has been governor all the time, and has instructed all his old appointees to resume their duties in the several departments of the state. In most cases this has been done. It is probable that bills for their services for the time when they were dispossessed will be presented to the next legislature.

THE NORTHWEST.

A Summary of the Important Events of the Week in the Northwestern States.

Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, North and South Dakota News in a Nutshell.

MINNESOTA.

A Red Wing special says: Contributions are coming in which insure the shipment of another car load of flour from here for the suffering Russians.

Congressman Hall's bill providing for a $50,000 public building at Red Wing excites much favorable comment in that city. It was unexpected.

Elias Danielson, a farmer from North Dakota, visiting north of Mabel, while intoxicated undertook to sleep out doors and froze to death. He leaves a family.

Oscar Griswold, a young farmer living in the southern part of Pine county, fell from a load of hay, breaking both arms and the left shoulder bone in the fall.

Mrs. P. S. Lobdell committed suicide at Mankato by taking a dose of strychnine, which she purchased Jan. 28. It is believed by many that her mind has not been in a sound state for a number of years.

The body that was found at Duluth on the lake front, washed up by the waves, has been identified as that of a stonecutter named James Cassidy, who has been missing since last fall.

Anton Altman, of Fairfax, was arrested and brought to Winthrop on a charge of bastardy preferred against him by Minnie Clofs. She will also sue him for $3,000 damages for breach of promise.

Hon. John Carlin of South Stillwater, dropped dead recently of heart disease. He was 75 years of age and has resided in this county 25 years. A wife and two daughters survive him.

B. F. Holman, aged 64, was found dead in the timber beside his team near Spring Valley. His death was probably caused by heart trouble while lifting a heavy stick. He served a term in the legislature some years ago.

Henry Marker, aged twenty-six, disappeared mysteriously from Red Wing the other morning. The gravest fears are felt. He was a sufferer from influenza, and, possibly becoming insane, wandered away unconsciously.

In the town of New Hartford, two of the school trustees gave a traveling Methodist preacher permission to hold a series of revival meetings in the school house. This is objected to by the remaining trustee on the board, and steps are likely to be taken to stop the preaching.

The board of control of the Winona District Epworth league met in the Wesley M. E. church at Winona and transacted business. The next district meeting will be held in Spring Valley April 1, 2 and 3. An address was delivered by Rev. Thomas Hornby of Spring Valley during the evening.

Front street, Tracy, gets the prize in the location of the postoffice, and will put up a building for its occupancy, renting the same to the department for the sum of $100 per year. This settles the question as to whether the burned Front street district will be rebuilt, and building will begin early in the spring.

The most elaborate affair of the kind ever given in Sauk Center was the banquet given by the business men of the city to State Senator Henry Keller, in token of their appreciation of his worth as a citizen and of his many good offices in behalf of the city. Upwards of fifty of the prominent gentlemen of the place participated.

News has just been received at Brainerd of the good luck of the family of the late Judge E. N. Donaldson, of this city. The widow of Robert Stuart, of New York city, was a cousin of the judge, and at her death bequeathed to him $20,000, which will now go to his heirs. The estate was valued at $5,000,000.

Lumber dealers at Albert Lea, who are members of the combination, have reduced rates a dollar a thousand, and are cutting each other's prices. This is the result of the prosecution instituted by the Standard, which caused the indictment of the officers of the Lumbermen's association, and on which warrants have been issued for their arrest.

It is now stated at Hokah that Judge Farmer has hinted that he will not object to having his name go before the people of the First district as the Republican candidate for congressional honors. The campaign in that section will be very exciting for congressman, as will also be the election of a judge for that judicial district to succeed Judge Farmer.

The Merchants Bank of Moorhead has closed. It is a private bank, H. A. Bruns and T. C. Kurtz forming the partnership. It is believed that on liquidation depositors will receive from 60 to 70 per cent of their deposits. Public sympathy is largely with Mr. Kurtz. A petition has been signed by the creditors and sent to Judge Mills requesting the appointment of receivers, including the name of T. C. Kurtz. The deposits aggregate $173,000.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Gov. Burke appoints J. C. Gipson to succeed G. Kanouse on state normal board.

The ordinance granting a franchise to the new gas company at Grand Forks passed its final reading without alteration. Work is to be commenced by June 1. The plant is to be in operation Dec. 1.

A. Duchon, a farmer living near Michigan City, has lost over six hundred sheep out of a flock of two thousand since Dec. 1. Competent judges say it was caused by feeding rusty oat straw.

A new board of trade has been organized at Valley City and is working in fine shape. Its officers are: Hon. J. J. Dobbin, president; John Holmes, vice-president; J. J. Barclay, secretary; Arthur Miller, treasurer.

The Bismarck chamber of commerce completed its organization by electing officers as follows: President, Harvey Harris, vice president, J. R. Ganer; secretary, Gerald Pierce; assistant secretary, Dr. W. O. Dupuy; treasurer, L. C. DeGraff.

A train was badly wrecked two miles north of Conway. Five freight cars, the baggage car and the passenger coach were ditched. One lady and her child were seriously injured. The cause was rotten ties, permitting the rails to spread.

Bob Arnott, a German, was found dead in his house at Bismarck. He lived alone, and was drunk for a week before. He locked his door and would not allow any one to come in. An inquest was held, and the verdict was death from excessive drinking.

At a meeting of the Bismarck city council an ordinance was passed fixing the license of billiard and pool rooms at $20 per month, and a resolution was passed instructing the chief of police to close up all places where intoxicating liquors are sold. It is suspected that this action is a blind for an attempt to collect revenue from the illicit saloons which the authorities will not suppress.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

The Davenport Milling company will open an elevator at Clear Lake.

A New state bank is being organized at Clear Lake with a capital of $25,000. John Swenson of Canby, Minn., will hold a majority of the stock.

Minnie Newton, daughter of a leading merchant at Wolsey, met her lover at Running Water where the serious knot was tied and they are now living on a farm in northeastern Dakota.

Five hundred and twenty-three dollars in cash, contributed from the Russian farmers located in the vicinity of Yankton were sent recently direct to Northern Russia to the famine sufferers.

The Vermillion W. C. T. U. at its last meeting appointed a committee for each drug store in the city, with instructions to make a list of those purchasing liquor on affidavits last month. The work has begun, and shows some strange features.

At the preliminary trial Charles G. Lincoln, cashier of the Hill City bank, of rapid City, offered no defense and was bound over to the next grand jury. The general opinion is that he will be acquitted and that others are really the guilty parties.

Harry Pattee, living six miles west of Big Stone City with Chester Kingsley, his brother-in-law, has always been considered a harmless lunatic, but while Kingsley was out watering horses he went into the woodshed and cut his throat. He is not expected to recover.

J. M. Bunker, late of the Iowa division of the Milwaukee, has been appointed superintendent of the James River division, with headquarters in Aberdeen and arrived the other morning with the superintendent of the Hastings & Dakota division and other officials to assume his duties.

Rev. Dr. Shelland, pastor of the M. E. church at Aberdeen, and his wife have received their appointments as superintendent and matron, respectively, of Indian schools on the Sisseton reservation. The appointments take effect the 21st inst. The superintendent receives $1,000 and the matron $720 per annum.

The business men of Kimball have formed a banking corporation and applied to the secretary of state for permission to organize under the name "Kimball State Bank." The capital stock is $5,000. W. H. Wyant will be cashier of the bank. The building formerly occupied by the Farmers and Traders' Bank, which went out of business a year ago, has been rented.

WISCONSIN.

John Bantin, of the town of Utica, Winnebago County, died at the age of 82 years.

Martin Christianson, of Racine, had his leg broken by falling on the pavement.

The death is announced of John Comeford, of Madison, at the age of 69 years.

Mrs. Ferdinand Voight, of Appleton passed away at the age of 35 years.

A new 1,600 candle power arc dynamo has been received by the Electric Light Company at Appleton.

Frank Mealey, a well-known young man of Racine County, died at his home in Waterford, aged 31 years.

The marriage is announced of Miss May Webb, of Shullsburg, to William Ott, of Hampton, Ia.

Ransom Gaylor, pioneer of Winnebago County, died at his home in Oshkosh, aged 91 years.

John Mosher, an old resident of Racine County, died at his home in Racine, aged 51 years.

Miss Charlotte C. Hass was united in marriage to Henry Colwell, both of Appleton.

L. C. Parkhurst, a blind inmate of the county poor house, at Ashland committed suicide by cutting his throat. Parkhurst was to be taken to Millwaukee to have his eyes doctored.

Theodore Grim a prisoner in the county jail at Milwaukee awaiting trial in the federal court on charge of selling liquor to the Indians of Oconto county, hanged himself in his cell.

In the United States court at Millwaukee Ambrose M. Otis, ex-postmaster at Coleman, Marinette county, who was found guilty of robbing registered letters, was sentenced by Judge Jenkins to five years imprisonment in the state prison.

Charles Larzelere, the defaulting treasurer of Langdale county, who left Antigo about a year ago $9,000 short in his accounts, has been arrested by the sheriff of this county at Carrington, N. D. He will be brought to Antigo as soon as the necessary requisition papers can be secured.

Gardener Smith, who was formerly bookkeeper and cashier for C. Overby, of Rice Lake, was arrested at Fremont, by Sheriff Speed. He now lies in jail at Barron to await his examination, charged with theft and embezzlement by Mr. Overby. Smith is a young married man. This is not his first offense.

The jury in the case of the state vs. John Blazen at Ashland, returned a verdict of not guilty. Blazer was charged with murder, his victim being John Bredson, who was shot a few weeks ago. The shooting was admitted by Blezer, who claimed it was done in order to protect the honor of his home.

IOWA.

E. R. Lloyd died at his home in Mason City. He was an old settler and one of the most prominent capitalists. He was a member of the first city council and was also a member of the board of supervisors.

It is reported that marble has been found in large quantities and of fine quality near Bonaparte, a few miles west of Keokuk. Missouri parties have secured the privilege of developing the quarries.

William Hebener, a well-to-do farmer of Augusta township, near Burlington, committed suicide the other night. The deed was prompted by domestic trouble. He was the father-in-law of County Surveyor John Nan.

A new invention in the way of a safety passenger car has just been patented by J. A. Yerger, of New Hampton. The top of the car above the ventilators is so arranged that as soon as the car turns up on its side it is thrown off, allowing a means of escape for the occupants in case of wreck.

Among railroad men in Mason City it is the opinion that the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road will extend their line from Chamberlain to the Black Hills this summer. Their land grant expires this year, and they will probably not let the advantage pass.

The draw span of the new Burlington railroad bridge across the river at Burlington was swung successfully the other night, and none too soon, as the river rose 34 inches and the vast field of ice above the bridge moved out. The draw is now safe from any gorge of ice and the railroad men are happy.

To the astonishment and disappointment of a large crowd of spectators and attorneys in Judge Casey's court at Burlington the attorneys of Portlock on trial for the murder of James Andrews, entered a plea of guilty of manslaughter, thus concluding the trial. Judge Casey will sentence Portlock to the Anamosa penitentiary for eight years, the extreme limit for manslaughter.

The supreme court room at Des Moines was the scene of an unknown and unusual occurrence. Application was made for admission to practice by one of the oldest and most widely known men in the state, George W. Jones, of Dubuque. He was presented to the court by Judge Wright and took the oath. Gen. Jones is 90 years of age.

IOWA WHITE CAPS.

A Farmer Taken From His Home and Hanged to a Tree Till Nearly Dead.

His Wife, Who Witnessed the Terrible Scene, May Die From Fright.

OTTUMWA, Iowa, Special Telegram, Feb. 13.—An example of White Capism which broke out in the country several miles north of this city last night has wrought the farmers in that neighborhood up to a high pitch of excitement. Late last night three men, wearing white masks and otherwise disguised, rode up to the house of W. L. Morris, on the Fitzgerald farm, and knocked on the door.

Not suspecting anything wrong, Mr. Morris descended from his bed room and opened the door. Before he could make any resistance he was seized by the three ruffians, who threw him down, tied his hands behind him and took him into the woods about a quarter of a mile away. Arriving there a rope was made fast about Mr. Morris' neck and the other end thrown over the limb of a tree and the victim drawn up.

Almost senseless, he was dropped to the earth, and, after being warned to leave the country within twenty-four hours or suffer the penalty of death, the assailants took their departure and left him to get back home as best he could. Mr. Morris is not seriously injured, but his wife, who had been aroused by the knocking at the door, and who had heard the struggle and seen her husband bound and carried off by his masked assailants, was completely prostrated and is lying in a critical condition.

Some arrests are likely to be made to-morrow, which will effectually put an end to white cap atrocities in this region.

POISONING SUSPECTED.

Peculiar Circumstances Surrounds a Death at Ashland.

ASHLAND, Wis., Special Telegram, Feb. 13.—To-day the particulars of a suspicious poisoning case were brought out. About two weeks ago an attempt was made to poison Charles Krause, a German farmer living near Butternut, and suspicion points to Julius Lepke and Mrs. Krause as the perpetrators. Last evening Krause was found at his home dead, all evidence pointing to death from poisoning. Krause lay on the bed with his hands folded on his breast and a Bible laying on a chest beside him. A letter was found saying he had taken poison. At the time Mrs. Krause was at Butternut, and when the time came to go home she refused to go unless accompanied by her father and mother, which fact puts a peculiar light on the case.

Another peculiar circumstance is that the letter which was found was written with ink and on letter paper dated the same day. A diligent search proved that not a sheet of paper, pen or ink could be found in the house. These facts are looked upon as a mystery by the neighbors, who suspect foul play.

CONTRARY TO INSTRUCTIONS.

Prejudice Influenced the Verdict in the Gurnee Case at Eau Claire.

EAU CLAIRE, Wis., Special Telegram, Feb. 13.—The question of admitting Daniel C. Gurnee to bail pending the argument of the motion for a new trial, which argument is set for the 23d, came up in the circuit court to-day.

District Attorney Frawley, called upon by the court, said that there was no Wisconsin statute authorizing it. The judge said that if the prisoner was to be bailed at all there ought not to be any delay about it. Finally the matter was deferred till to-morrow.

Judge Bailey said, incidentally referring to the verdict of the Gurnee jury, that the verdict was directly contrary to the charge of the court and was evidently dictated by passion and prejudice; that juries should understand first and last that the court would decide upon questions of law; that where passion and prejudice swayed juries, as in this case, the rights of no one were safe, "and this will not be permitted," his honor added, "in my court. This is supposed to mean Gurnee will get a new trial.

FUNDS MISSING.

A Bank President at Moorhead Arrested Charged With Stealing.

MOORHEAD, Minn. Feb. 13.—Henry A. Bruns, president of the Merchants' bank, is under arrest, charged with defrauding depositors and his bank out of over $80,000. The complaint against him was made by George Engendahl, bookkeeper of the bank for the past eight years.

Thomas C. Kurtz, cashier of the bank and half-owner of it, is not implicated in the swindle. It is charged that Bruns in the past four months has been drawing funds from the bank and losing it buying wheat options in Chicago.

The amount of money in the vaults of the bank is about $100,000, whereas there should be over $200,000 according to the bank's books. The trial will come up before Judge Mills to-morrow.

An Editor Shot At.

SPOKANE, Wash., Feb. 13.—John F. Carrere, political editor of the Spokane Sportsmen and formerly of St. Paul, was shot at last night by A. C. Edwards. Edwards' son is editor of the Weekly Regulator, who is under indictment for publishing indecent literature. Edwards, Sr., met Carrere and accused him of saying he was backing his son. Carrere denied it, and hot words followed, and Edwards pulled his gun and fired, but missed. A companion of Carrere wrenched the pistol from Edwards and beat him into a state of insensibility. More trouble is feared on Edwards' recovery.

The Governor Somewhat Slow.

YANKTON, S. D., Special Telegram, Feb. 13.—Chairman Peemiller, of the Democratic state central committee received a letter to-day from Chairman Clough of the Republican state committee, in which the latter states that he deems it essential to the state world's fair exhibit that Gov. Mellette show more energy and determination in getting the legislature together and insisting on an immediate appropriation. It is urged that the three state central committees meet in joint session and call upon the governor to get a "move on himself." To this proposition Chairman Peemiller agreed and suggested Feb. 25 as the date and Huron as the place for holding such joint session.

Perrin Now in Charge.

CHIPPEWA FALLS, Wis., Special Telegram. —Frank L. Perrin of Madison has accepted the editorship of the Chippewa Herald, the Republican weekly organ of this county. The Herald is the late Gen. George C. Ginty's paper, and has been ably edited by Mrs. Ginty since her husband's death, nearly two years ago.

The Hop and Barley Duty.

WASHINGTON, Special—There is practical unanimity among the Democratic members of the ways and means committee in favor of the bill of Representative Fitch of New York reducing the duty on barley and hops, and there is little doubt that this measure will be favorably reported to the house.

CONGRESS.

Proceedings of the House and Senate.

FRIDAY, FEB. 5.

SENATE.

Not in session.

HOUSE.

The house went into committee of the whole on the census deficiency bill, a great many of the members took part in the discussion.

Mr. Sayers offered an amendment appropriating $115,514 for the subsistence of the Sioux Indians and calling upon the secretary of the interior to report to the house the names of all employes under the direction and supervision of the Indian bureau.

The latter clause of this amendment was the first general legislation to be incorporated upon an appropriation bill; but no objection being made, the amendment was adopted. The committee having arisen, the bill was passed.

SATURDAY, FEB. 6.

SENATE.

Not in session.

HOUSE.

The house did not meet today until a quarter to 1 o'clock. The attendance of members was not large, as the day was devoted to the delivery of eulogies, addresses being made by Messrs. Meredith, Edmunds, Tucker, O'Ferrall, Wise, Hermann, Washington, Herbert, Wilson (W. Va.), Cummings, Cowles, Elliott, Breckinridge (Ky.) and Culberson.

The resolutions were then adopted and the house out of respect to the memory of the deceased adjourned.

MONDAY FEB. 5.

SENATE.

Senator Washburn presented a petition from citizens of Fillmore county, Minnesota, urging the passage of the option bill.

Senator Paddock presented the memorial of the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce against the Washburn option bill.

Senator Wilson presented two Iowa petitions in favor of the option bill.

Senator Casey introduced an amendment to the urgency deficiency bill, appropriating $5,000 to be expended in making a survey of the lands in the diminished Ft. Berthold reservation, which are to be allotted to the Indians.

Senator Davis introduced a bill granting the Duluth & Missaba railroad the right of way through the Fond du Lac Indian reservation.

Senator Hansbrough's bill creating judicial districts in North Dakota was favorably reported.

HOUSE.

Representative Pickler's bill clearing up the difficulty in connection with the site of the Yankton asylum has been favorably reported.

Representative Hall introduced a bill for a public building at Red Wing, $50,000; also bills for the relief of Charles Wiedewitsch and Mary Shumate.

Mr. Rayner, of Maryland, from the committee of interstate and foreign commissioners, introduced a bill to allow railroad companies to give special rates to commerical travelers.

Representative Enochs introduced a bill appropriating $10,000 to defray the cost of a survey for a ship canal from Cleveland, on Lake Erie to Portsmouth on the Ohio river.

In the house, Mr. Boatner, of Louisiana, reported favorably from the committee on judiciary, a bill to require judges of the United States to give an opinion on the questions of fact.

TUESDAY, FEB. 9.

SENATE.

Senator Pettigrew introduced a joint resolution extending to the presidents of the American republics, to the kings and queens of Spain and others to visit the World's Fair.

Senator Washburn introduced a bill for a public building at Crookston—$75,000.

Senator Washburn presented resolutions of the Stillwater Chamber of Commerce indorsing the action of the Missouri River Improvement Association. He also presented the resolutions of the St. Paul Board of Trade favoring a canal between Lake Superior and the Mississippi river.

Mr. Sherman introduced a bill to prohibit the coming of Chinese persons into the United States and it was (with copies of correspondence) referred to the committee on finance.

HOUSE.

Mr. Powers, of Vermont, called up and the house passed the bill introduced by Mr. Hatch, of Missouri, placing the secretary of agriculture in the line of presidential succession after the secretary of the interior.

Mr. Baron, of New York, from the committee on banking and currency, reported a bill to promote the safety of national banks. House calendar.

Mr. Dockery, of Missouri, offered a resolution directing the judiciary committee to inquire into the right of the secretary of the treasury to employ the $100,000,000 gold reserve for current expenditures. Referred.

Mr. Outhwaite, of Ohio, from the committee on military affairs, reported back a bill authorizing the detail of army officers for special duty in connection with the World's Fair. Calendar.

The house then resolved itself into committee of the whole on the military academy appropriation bill, and after considerable discussion the committee rose and the house adjoined.

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 10.

SENATE.

Senator Casey has introduced an amendment intended to be offered to the urgency deficiency bill authorizing the secretary of the interior to survey the lands within the diminished Fort Berthold reservation in North Dakota, or at least a portion of them, so that the Indians on that reservation may take their allotments in severalty.

Senator Gibson, of Maryland, took the oath of office.

Senator Squire, from the committee on public buildings, reported a bill appropriating $500,000 for a public building at Seattle, Wash.

HOUSE.

Mr. Catchings of Mississippi, from the committee on rules, reported a resolution for the appointment of a select committee of five members to investigate the methods of business in the bureau of pension.

The Bland free coinage silver bill was today reported to the house with the recommendation of the majority of the committee on coinage, weights and measures that it do pass.

Mr. Stone, from the committee on war claims reported favorably the bill to reimburse California, Oregon and Nevada for moneys expended in the suppression of the rebellion. California is under the bill entitled to $2,451,369, Oregon to $224,526 and Nevada to $404,000.

THURSDAY, FEB. 11

SENATE.

Senator George offered a resolution instructing the committee to report a bill requiring the issue and keeping in circulation legal treasury notes to an amount equal to $100 per capita of the population of the United States, and increase of such issue every year so as to keep pace with the yearly increase of the population.

Senator Gibson introduced a bill to improve the navigation and to afford ease and safety to the trade and commerce of the Mississippi river, and to prevent destructive floods, appropriating $16,000,000.

Adjourned till Monday.

HOUSE.

Representative Scott, of Illinois, introduced a resolution instructing the ways and means committee to report a bill for the repeal of the provisions of the McKinley bill providing for a bounty on sugar.

The military academy appropriation bill was taken up and occupied the remainder of the day.

Assets and Liabilities.

NORTHFIELD, Minn., Special, —Q. A. O. Bergeren, assignee of A. Lidstrand of Cannon Falls, has filed a statement of assets and liabilities. The assets amount to $2,901.71, and consist of a stock at Cannon Falls valued at $1,185 62; a stock at Evansville valued at $750.59, and various book accounts to the amount of $965.50. The liabilities amount to $7,481.45. The creditors having claims of $500 or more are: Clement, Barn & Co., Chicago, $1,972.50; Goodyear Rubber company, St. Paul, $584.37; Powers Dry Goods company, $501.17; Wyman, Partridge & Co., Minneapolis, $884.23; Tarbox, Schliek & Co., St. Paul, $630.65.

FRAUD RUN DOWN

"Green Goods" Operators Caught at Their Own Game.

A MINNESOTAN'S DETECTIVE WORK

HE ANSWERS THEIR SUMMONS TO MEET THEM IN NEWBURY, N. Y.

ACCOMPANIED BY A PINKERTON.

THE SWINDLERS ARRESTED AND SENT TO JAIL—THEIR PURPOSE EVIDENTLY WAS ONE OF ROBBERY.

Minneapolis Journal.

BRAINARD, Feb. 13.—The country in the northern part of the state, and especially in this locality, is being flooded with circulars from "green goods" men, nearly every man in this city having received one during the past four weeks. These circulars purport to be of a strictly confidential character and lead the recipient to believe that he has been singled out by the writer through some mutual friend as the person to handle counterfeit money.

Edward Mahan, a gentleman who formerly resided in Brainard, but who is now located at Little Falls, received one of these circulars and a short time ago concluded to answer it out of curiosity. Accordingly he telegraphed in Cipher to J. S. Stone, 178 E. 120ts st, New York, as directed, and as soon as the mail could bring it came the answer enclosing a $5. $2 and $1 bill. The instructions told Mr. Mahan to come on immediately and he would be met at Newburgh, N. Y., where the business would be transacted in a certain room at a hotel named in the letter. Mahan was to telegraph to the New York address again as soon as he reached Buffalo, and when he reached Newburgh he was to know the man by his hat and a telegram which he was to have in his hand with large characters thereon written in green ink.

After getting this letter, his curiosity was greatly aroused, and he thought that he might be able to run these thieves down for the public benefit. He took the $5 bill to a national bank, and with his day's deposit he shoved it under the window, but the cashier did not detect anything wrong with it, and Mr. Mahan called his attention to it, saying he was a little suspicious of the bill, but it was thoroughly examined and the bank expert pronounced it genuine. However, he did not leave it. That night he telegraphed the Pinkerton detective agency at Chicago the facts, and received word back to come on there immediately, which he did the next day.

Stopping only between trains in Chicago, where he was joined by a detective, the two journeyed east. At Buffalo, Mr. Mahan followed the instructions and telegraphed ahead that he was coming, and the detective disguised himself, it being understood that they should keep apart from that time until the final windup came. At Newburgh, he got off the train and walked along the platform, when he was suddenly jostled and, looking around he saw a man who said, "Excuse me, I thought I knew you," and in his hand was this telegram with the "green ink" characters, by which he was to be recognized. The two walked along and entered the hotel together and the fellow said to him: "I'm sorry, but the old man couldn't get away and you will have to go down to New York and see him, if you have the money and are prepared to do business." They ate breakfast and the capper paid for it and also for tickets to New York, to which place they journeyed together, but without speaking, the instructions being for Mahan to keep 100 feet behind on their way from the car to the "business" place. In the meantime the detective was keeping a reasonable distance behind the two.

The capper wound around among the buildings in the vicinity of the river and finally started down a narrow alley, and here the detective hailed two policemen, who were given the tip. Mahan followed his man down the alley and when he saw him walk up a plank and unlock the door of a warehouse, which rested on piling over the river, his heart almost failed him, but as he saw the detective in the vicinity he went in and the door was shut behind him, and he found himself in a large unlighted room. His situation was not an enviable one, but with a gun in each coat pocket he thought he would be able to hold his own for a short time.

Just as the capper called to his confederate in another room, the policemen broke open the front door and the two men tried to escape, but were captured. There was nothing in the building that indicated a "green goods" establishment, neither of the men having any money on their persons, nor could any trace of such a thing as a counterfeit bill be found. Each of the men had a good-sized slugshot, which was the only weapon they possessed. The men were tried and sentenced to five years in the penitentiary on the charge of using the mail for swindling.

Mr. Mahan fully thinks that their game was to get him into the building and there he was to be knocked down and robbed, as he had telegraphed them he had $500 to invest, and he feels a certain degree of satisfaction to think he got out of it as lucky as he did, and also that he didn't undertake to run the "green goods" men to earth alone.

(Communicated.)

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 11th, 1892.

ED. CROOKSTON JOURNAL,—

DEAR SIR:—An anonymous report has been circulated in your city concerning my son "Will." The report states him to be insane in Cincinnati, owing to business troubles. The fact is Mrs. Kops, with our youngest boy Frankie and myself, have been his guests, for the past eight weeks in Hot Springs, at the popular Hotel Pullman, of which he is the successful manager. This hotel, although not the largest, is certainly one of the best conducted in the city and commands the most desirable patronage. It is the most centrally located of any and does the "commercial business" when the big resorts close for the season. No one here but has a good word for the Pullman and its popular manager. Among our fellow guests while here we had the pleasure to number several from the Northwest: P. B. Baker, Barnesville, conductor on the N. P.; Chas. Leonard, Grand Forks, traveller for a Minneapolis grocery house; Mr. Egge, Minneapolis, ex-sheriff of Hennepin Co.; also a Mr. Woodruff, St. Paul, connected with a silk house. The hotel accommodates 150 guests. We are now on the point of returning home and report a very pleasant sojourn here. The weather has been delightful, with indications of a change at present. Kindly refute the unfortunate report which has gained publicity in Crookston, and call attention to the fact that the "paper" in which it first appeared could easily have ascertained whether the report were true or false by writing to us at Grand Forks and thereby could and should have avoided causing us this annoyance.

Very respectfully yours,

C. DE BRUYN KOPS.

A Novel Proposition.

The Pioneer Press Co. of St. Paul, Minn., makes some remarkable offers in connection with its weekly edition. Election time is approaching as well as seed time. Of course every household desires the Weekly Pioneer Press during the campaign, and the publishers propose to reciprocate by giving their subscribers a benefit in the seed line. Following are their offers of northern grown, tested seeds furnished by L. L. May & Co., the leading northern growers:

Offer No. 1.—"Ladies' Collection."—Everyone sending $1 10 will receive the Weekly Pioneer Press one year and a collection of flower seeds, amounting at catalogue prices to $1.10. Included in this offer are Pansy, Nasturtium, Sweet Pea, Poppy, Mignonette, Petunia, Phlox, Forget-Me-Not, Snap Dragon, Candytuft, Siline, mixed, etc. 13 packets in all.

Offer No. 2—"Vegetable Garden"—Everyone sending $1.20 will receive the Weekly Pioneer Press one year and 20 packets of garden seeds, prepaid. Every gardener needs this package. Onion, Cabbage, Beet, Lettuce, Tomato, Radish, Corn, Parsnip, Pea, Cucumber, Turnip, Pepper, Water and Musk Melon, Celery, Carrot, Cauliflower, Endive, Spinach and Leek seeds are included. The seeds alone cost $1.40 at regular prices.

Offer No. 3—"Novelty Package"—This package includes the seasons' novelties in both vegetable and flower seeds. and are offered for the first time now. The package and Weekly Pioneer Press one year for $1.30. All postpaid. The catalogue price of these seeds is $1.95. We have taken special pride in the makeup of this offer and recommend it highly. The flower seeds included are Phlox, Pansy, Chrysanthemum, Balsam, Aster, Nasturtium, and Pianthus. The vegetables, Onion, Bean, Lettuce, Water Melon, Cabbage, Beet, Radish and Parsnip. All new varieties.

Offer No. 4—"Surprise Box"—For $1.10 we will send the Weekly Pioneer Press one year and this assortment, the seeds alone costing $1.15. This is destined to become a favorite offer. Included are Cucumber, Beet, Onion, Pea, Tomate, Cabbage, Lettuce, Pansy, Sweet Pea, Nasturtium, Morning Glory, Verbena and Aster.

All charges are prepaid and seeds ordered will be sent promptly. Old and New subscribers are included in the offer.

If you don't want seeds send postal for new book and picture premiums. Address all communications to

THE PIONEER PRESS CO.,
St. Paul, Minn.

The thing to do, if you want a good all round magazine, is to subscribe for Peterson. It will only need a glance through the March number to convince every woman of this. Peterson is the newest old magazine extant, and is nowaday one of the handsomest as well as one of the very best. "Posed For Her Picture," is the portrait of a child so lovely that she will win every heart. "A Windy Day," is a striking contrast in subject though equally attractive in its way. The celebrated French astronomer Camille Flammaron, contributes a brilliant paper called "News From Other Worlds." "Something About Aprons," is a useful and entertaining article. There are two excellent serials and "A Chapter on Clocks," is a charming paper and the illustrations of quaint time pieces most interesting. Fashion and Household departments are alike full and complete. Terms two dollars a year. Address Peterson's Magazine, 306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

In sending out our statements last week it seems that we sent to one or two who had written us in November. We thought we had kept perfect tab on all from whom we had previously had a satisfactory understanding, but it yet seems to be true that mistakes will happen in the best regulated families. We trust our friends will overlook our zeal in view of what we desire to accomplish. Our statements last week were designed to remind some of a fact that they seem to have quite overlooked and also for the purpose of becoming better acquainted with a few whose subscriptions have become moss-covered worse nor the old oaken bucket you read about, that hung so well, (we'll wager it "hung" no better nor longer than some we wot of,) and we want to say right here that we propose to get better acquainted with some of them, in a quiet, friendly way, if they will allow it or by requiring them to meet us in some office in Crookston hereafter to be designated, if we must, for we are DETERMINED to place our business in somewhat more satisfactory shape and we are determined to get a new press and power to run it,

AND PAY CASH FOR IT,

if it is in the power of man to do it, and we want to do it peaceably and in a friendly way if we can possibly, but WE PROPOSE TO DO IT or know why we cannot. We have an idea that there is enough due us from parties whom we imagine could just as well pay as not if they chose to accomplish our desires, and all we propose to do is to try and find out how near right we are in that.

Money, Not Food.

IS WHAT SUFFERING RUSSIA WANTS, ACCORDING TO A CONSUL.

ST. CLOUD, Feb. 28.—Geo. A. Freudenrich, the Swiss consul at Odessa, Russia, under date of Jan. 4, replies thus to the inquiries of his wife, who is here, concerning the famine in that country: "Yours of Dec. 29 came duly to hand a couple of days ago. As far as the starving Russians in the northern provinces are concerned, they are starving merely for the want of proper organization on the part of the authorities. Plenty of grain was raised in the south of Russia to feed the whole country, and if they had provided cars in time things would have been different. All along the northern Caucasius thousands of bushels of wheat are rotting (or were a few weeks ago) in sacks, waiting for transportation, while in the north hundreds of cars were sidetracked doing nothing. Such is Russia and ever has been. I say, on the contrary, don't send any provisions, but send money, and that to the committee of which the hereditary prince imperial, Nicholas, oldest son of the czar, is the head. Provisions will not be taken care of, and will be wasted after reaching Russia. There is plenty of wheat in the country to keep all the mills going if the wheat was only properly distributed around to the places where it is needed."

SONS OF VETS, TO ARMS!

The time for the Annual Encampment draws on apace; the young ladies of the Relief Corps are organizing a drum corps for the event and what are you doing for the cause? Wake up! Fall in! Re-organize your camp and get ready to join the big procession. Since the camp was first organized many, who were then "kids" are now on deck ready to join. Hi, there, Capt. Glenn, Lieut. Mason, Lieut. Mix, get a move on you or the drum corps will be ready to drum you out of camp first you know. Seriously now, the boys should catch on again and organize another camp. We believe there is plenty of material to be had for a good strong one. What do you say, boys?

LIST OF LETTERS remaining unclaimed at the Crookston, Minn., Post Office, for the week ending Feb. 13, 1892:

Desuran, John Bennett, Lary Larson, L. J.

Persons calling for the above please say advertised. WM. B. DAWLEY, Postmaster.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Feb. 15th, 1892.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register or Receiver U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on May 10th, 1892, viz: TOM SANDEM, Hd. 12411, for the sw¼ Sec. 26, Tp. 147, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz.: Gustav Christianson, Gitle Stromstad, Olaus Anderson, Bernt Bentson, all of Edna P.O., Polk Co., Minn.

[44-49] HUGH THOMPSON, Register.

THE OLD RELIABLE
CROOKSTON
LOAN AGENCY
STILL ON DECK.

MONNY
On Real Estaee
MONEY
On Approved Chattels,

Always on hand at the Lowest Rates. Consult your best interests by giving me a call when you Want Money.

A. D. STEPHENS,
Second Street, Crookston Minn.

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON

PAID IN CAPITAL, - $100,000
SURPLUS. - - $12,700

Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittance.

GEO. Q. ERSKINE, President.
WM. ANGLIM, Vice President.
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashi

DIRECTORS:

Wm. Anglim, K. D. Chase, K. D. Child,
Geo. Q. Erskine, B. R. Northrop, A. A. Miller
E. M. Walsh, John Moore, W. H. Crosby
Chas. E. Sawyer

REMNANT SALE.

Remnant Sale.

GERVAIS'------The Hustlers,

GREAT SALE OF

REMNANTS,
ODDS AND ENDS
AND BROKEN LINES
OF ALL KINDS.

BIG BARGAINS OFFERED.

Cloaks and Shawls
AT
Tremendous Reductions.

Gervais' - The Hustlers.

REMNANT SALE.

OUR HOLIDAY STOCK
IS ON DISPLAY
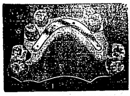
THE FAIR
DEPARTMENT STORE,
Cor. Main and Robert Sts., Crookston.

DENTISTRY



Artificial Teeth and Roofless Plates.
BY NEW PATENT.

Don't Have Teeth Extracted if Two Teeth or Roots Remain in Proper Position in Either Jaw. An Entire Set of Teeth can be Attached to them.

PATENT
GOLD CLASPS

The teeth never tip or drop down while eating, talking or laughing, the gold clasps admitting of tightening or loosening in all cases.

This new method for inserting where as discovered by experimenting, patented February 11th, 1890 and I am now able to make perfect fits for all.

This process is absolutely without pain and at a price within the reach of all.

Call on us if you have your teeth extracted as I make a specialty of Removable Bridge, and Roofless Plates. A perfect fit guaranteed in every case. Gold fillings inserted. Vitalized air and electricity for painless operations.

DR. J. H. THOMAS.
Owns Polk County, Minn., for this patent.

Work Horses -
- - & Mares.

FOR GOOD, SOLID WORK HORSES AND MARES, GO TO

M. R. BROWN,

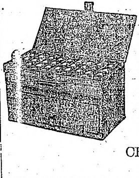
The old reliable dealer, who has sold horses in this county since 1878 and who is always on hand to make his guaranty good. Every man who ever sold horses here is ready (when he sells) to guaranty, but later, if you happen to want him to make his guaranty good you can't most always sometimes find him. You can always find Brown, and always find him ready to make his recommend good. He handles only good young horses and has sold more than and dealer in the county. He is now prepared to supply the demand for GOOD teams—he handles no other, and guaranty them just as recommended. Before you buy you will do well to call at

Brown's New Stables,
Main Street, one door north of the old M. E. church building.

JOHN CROMB,
Attorney-at-Law,
SECOND STREET, CROOKSTON

A. A. JUST, M. D.,
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

Farmers' Egg Cases.



Call and Get a Ticket

And when you purchase anything at our store have the amount punched. The case is made of tin, handsomely Japanned and ornamented. The Fillers are made of cloth paper and very durable. Saves both packing and counting, obviates loss from breakage and miscounts and is an ornament to any home. This case will be given you when your cash purchases amount to $25.00.

When empty these cases can be used to carry groceries in, and are very handy for that. Remember the place,

A. Sture's New Store,
CROOKSTON, MINN
Opera House Block.

DO NOT FORGET THE
60--DAYS--60

IT WILL INTEREST YOU
—IF YOU WISH—
To Save Money.

MARKED DOWN
Red Figure
SALE

OF CLOTHING
And Gents' Furnishing Goods,
AT THE BOSTON
ONE PRICE CLOTHING HOUSE.

Mossefin & Lindell, Props.

P. J. RUSSELL,
Attorney-t-Law
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Next to Merchants' Bank.

THE PIONEER
HARNESS SHOP,
J. RAE BUEHLER, Proprietor.

A full supply of everything kept by the trade.

Cor of Broadway and Third Sts,
CROOKSTON, MINN

STUDY LAW
AT HOME.

Take a Course in the Sprague Correspondence School of Law. Send ten cents (stamps) for particulars to J. COTNER, Jr., Sec., No. 80 Whitney Block DETROIT, MICH.

MILLER & FOOTE,
ATTY'S-AT-LAW,
McKinnon Block. - Crookston, Minn.

NEW BARBER SHOP.
On Main St. C. E. MISNER, Prop.

Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.

RAZORS HONED.

If you desire your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 20 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it.

Yours Respectfully,
C. E. MISNER.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

THE
Great Transcontinental Route

Passes through Wisconsin, Minnesota North Dakota, Manitoba, Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington.

The Dining Car Line

Dining cars are run between Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Winnipeg, Butte, Helena, Tacoma, Seattle and Portland.

PULLMAN SLEEPING CAR ROUTE.

Pullman service daily between Chicago, St. Paul, Montana and the Pacific Northwest; and between St. Paul, Minneapolis and Minnesota, North Dakota and Manitoba points.

THE POPULAR LINE.

Daily Express Trains carry elegant Pullman Sleeping Cars, Dining Cars, Day Coaches, Pullman Tourist Sleepers and Free Colonist Sleeping Cars.

YELLOWSTONE PARK ROUTE.

The Northern Pacific R. R. is the rail line to Yellowstone Park; the popular line to California and Alaska; and its trains pass through the grandest scenery of seven states.

THROUGH TICKETS

Are sold at all coupon offices of the Northern Pacific Railroad to points North, East, South and West, in the United States and Canada.

For rates, maps, time tables, or special information, apply to

CHAS. A. SHARKEY,
Agent Northern Pacific R. R.,
Crookston, Minn.

CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent,
St. Paul, Minn.

NEW CIGAR STORE
SIGN OF THE BIG INDIAN.
H. F. BROWN, Proprietor.
Second Street,
CROOKSTON, MINN

Cigars of every known brand, from a cheroot to a 25 center. Cigarettes, Chewing and Smoking Tobaccos of all kinds, Snuff, Pipes to suit the fancy of all, from a corn-cob pipe to a meerchaum.

CALL IN.

CROOKSTON
STEAM LAUNDRY
O. D. ROOD, Prop.,
SECOND STREET, NEAR ASH,
(Opposite Commercial Hotel.)

I have just added New Machinery and Facilities for doing

Washing and Ironing

Upon the Shortest Notice in the Best Manner and upon the Most Reasonable Terms.

All Those Wanting
FAMILY WASHING
Done will find it to their interest to call at the Laundry. Goods called for and delivered.

See the old reliable dealer, M. R. Brown, if you want to buy a team this spring.

Try M. R. Brown for a goood team of working horses or mares.

L. E. GOSSMAN,
Attorney-at-Law,
No. 2 Fournet Block } CROOKSTON, MINN.

J. V. E. WYATT
Undertaker,
BROADWAY,
Crookston, - - Minn.

Carries a full supply at all times. Always ready to attend to calls and take full charge if necessary.

—o-o—O-o-o—

Can supply anything in the line of

FURNITURE,

PICTURE FRAMES,———
———MOULDINGS, Etc., Etc.

Give Me a Call.

Polk County Journal.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.

Crookston, February 18, 1892.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

	Leave Crookston Daily.	Arrive Crookston Daily.
For Duluth, Ashland, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago, and all points East and South	10:08 p. m.	8:25 a. m.
For Grand Forks, Grafton, Pembina, Winnipeg and points in N. Dakota and Winnipeg	8:25 a. m.	10:08 p. m.

FOR PRINCIPAL POINTS IN

GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY LINE

MINNESOTA,
NORTH DAKOTA,
SOUTH DAKOTA,
MANITOBA,
MONTANA, AND
PACIFIC COAST.

TIME CARD.

MONTANA EXPRESS DAILY.

7:40 p. m. de..........St. Paul..........ar. 6:55 a. m.
7:00 a. m. de........CROOKSTON........de. 7:25 p. m.
8:15 a. m. de........Grand Forks........de. 6:20 p. m.
2:30 p. m. ar..........Helena..........de. 11:00 a. m.

ST. VINCENT BRANCH.
Daily, except Sunday.
Depart 7:30 a. m.....................Arrive 6:45 p. m.

FOSSTON BRANCH.
DAILY, EXCEPT SUNDAY.
Depart 7:30 a. m.....................Arrive 5:00 p. m.

ST. HILAIRE BRANCH.
Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Depart 10:45 a. m.....................Arrive 4:00 p. m.

W. W. FEGAN,
Agent, Crookston.

IF YOU ARE GOING EAST OR SOUTH ASK YOUR NEAREST AGENT FOR TICKETS VIA THE BURLINGTON AND TAKE NO OTHER LINE.

(Communicated.)

EDITOR JOURNAL.—I have noticed for some time past that you have been trying to enlist the sympathies of the citizens of Polk County in a substantial manner to aid our unfortunate fellow farmers who have suffered the the loss of their entire crop by hail, or so nearly an entire loss as to prevent them from cultivating their farms the coming season without aid; and that you suggested that the Alliance take the matter up. While I fully recognize the propriety and justness of that suggestion, I have no authority to request the Alliance to take any action. But, in the interest of those who have suffered the loss of their crops by hail and will be unable the coming season to work their farms unless they receive aid, and believing that our unfortunate fellow-citizens should first receive our sympathies and aid before extending them elsewhere, I would therefore recommend that each sub-Alliance in the county appoint a committee to solicit and receive, not only from the members of the Alliance but from all citizens in their respective localities, contributions of seed, feed or money to help those that otherwise would suffer severely, or entirely lose their homes. it would require but little from each one to enable the unfortunates to once more having bright prospects of retaining their homes, which are so dear to all.

H. G. MITCHELL,
Pres. Polk Co. Alliance.

HUBBARD ITEMS.

HUBBARD, Feb. 13, 1892.

One of the pleasantest surprise parties of the season was the one that met Elling Ellingson and wife on their return from Albert Lea. We voice the sentiment of this community when we say, welcome home again.

L. S. Kolden has sold his building, stock of general merchandise and good will to Kolden & Onstad, of Crookston. We regret Mr. Kolden's departure and wish him success in whatever he may undertake.

Ole G. Fossos, one of our most successful farmers, is spending the week at the county seat.

J. O. Sundet, of Crookston, is in this neighborhood selling gravestones.

John Swanson and Ole Benson, from the southern part of the state, are visiting their old friend, John J. Ellingson.

E. W. Johnson, of Edna, was calling on friends here last week. Come again, Ed.

The farmers of this township and the business men of Crookston would be greatly benefited by a graded road from here to the county seat.

A few wise young men and women are taking advantage of the winter term of school in district 5.

Barney and Fly receive all of Pete's affection now while his sweethart is away.

NEILSVILLE.

Good Market For Oats

Having had a fine oat crop swept away by hail in few minutes time we are obliged to buy oats to supply our farm teams, and we will be glad to pay the highest market price to any who are owing us several years subscription. We shall need about 1000 bushels and will take them as fast as offered. Bring on your oats and get your receipts.

[38-tf]

An Old City.

Old cities are not common in the West. In the eastern states of the Union are places which boast quite a respectable antiquity for the New World, but outside of the original thirteen colonies, most cities have been founded within the last half century. A notable exception among the larger western cities is St. Louis. The first recorded settlement, in the way of laying out a town, was by Pierre Laclede Liguest, a Frenchman, in February, 1764. At the time he supposed he was taking possession of the site in the interest of his native country. It was not until some months afterwards that he learned of the Treaty of Paris, in the previous year, by which the territory west of the Mississippi was ceded to Spain. In 1800 it became French again, until the financial necessities of Napoleon compelled him to sell it to the United States for $12,000,000, a purchase for which Thomas Jefferson was roundly abused at the time. Now St. Louis is one of the most beautiful, prosperous and stately cities in the Union. To reach it, for business or pleasure, The Burlington, with its line skirting the Mississippi, is the only route worth considering. For rates, tickets, maps and time tables, apply to your home ticket agent, or write to W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

Popular Talks On Law.

BY WM. C. SPRAGUE, ESQ.

THE MERCANTILE AGENCY.

There are few persons but are effected directly or indirectly by the mercantile or commercial agency. It may be said to wield a powerful influence in enlarging or restraining the business of the country, in the making and unmaking of credit upon which business largely rests. Its influence, extent and power have become so great that few people can act independent of it without more or less serious results. It has become so powerful and so useful a part of modern business life that a statement of the law regarding it and its relations to the general public may be interesting and profitable. And first a few words with respect to the history of the American system of mercantile agencies. It originated, says Errant, with a commercial traveller by the name of Church, who at first kept notes of information acquired on business trips which he permitted others to use, but eventually devoted himself to this work alone in the employ of certain New York houses. His success suggested to Louis Tappan the idea of establishing the first mercantile agency at Few York in 1841, which was shortly followed by Woodward & Dusenberry's Commercial Agency. Tappan's venture finally developed into the R. G. Dun & Co. agency. The "improved mercantile agency," organized a few years later than Tappan's, by J. M. Bradstreet, was finally incorporated as "The Bradstreet Company," and was the first concern to publish a book of rating. Special agencies, confining their reports to particular lines of business, have become numerous. In England such establishments are known as trade protection societies.

The business of a mercantile agency consists in collecting and furnishing to subscribers information relating to the credit, character, responsibility and reputation of merchants, and so extensive has become the system that no one, no matter how mean and humble is his little shop, but has his "size" taken, his business photograph struck off and kept for display in the agency books. Many questions of law have arisen of public interest respecting the rights and duties of the agency and how far it may go in thus entering upon a man's premises and taking notes with which to make up his credit proportions. We shall in future papers treat first of agency reports as "privileged communications;" second, as to contracts which limit the agency's liability for negligence; third, as to the liability of one who informs the agency, that is where one makes false representations of his solvency or where the representations are made by third parties.

(To be continued.)

WANTED!

Two or three men to work for me in Polk County. $4 to $12 per day, sure. If you are idle or working for small money now is the time. Any one can do the work and make big wages. Particulars free. Address,

W. ALBERT LANCTOT,
[41-48] Crookston, Minn.

DR. LEDUC'S Periodical Pills—The French remedy, Paris. A reliable female regulator. Acts directly on the generative organs. Cures all ailments peculiar to women. $2, 3 for $5. Sold by A. G. Anderson, Crookston, Minn.

Notice of Sale Under Decree.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. District Court, 14th Judicial District.

Karl Sletten, Plaintiff, vs. Carl Ulsteen and Julie Ulsteen, Defendants.

In pursuance to a judgment and decree of the Court in the above entitled action, dated February 1st 1892, a certified copy of which has been delivered to me with instructions to enforce the same, I, the undersigned sheriff of Polk County, Minnesota, shall expose for sale, as the law directs, at the front door of the District Court House in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, on Friday the 8th day of April, A. D. 1892, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, the real estate and premises described in said judgment and decree, to wit: The south-west quarter of the north-west quarter of section twenty (20), township one hundred and fifty-three (153), range forty-three (43), in the County of Polk, Minnesota, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said judgment, together with the costs and expenses of such sale.

Dated February 5th, 1892.

ARNY GRUNDYSEN,
Sheriff of Polk County.

H. STEENERSON,
Attorney for Plaintiff,
Crookston, Minn. [41-6]

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

(First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.)
(Last publication Feb. 25th, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of thirty-two and 49-100 dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Eugene Boulie and Melvina Boulie, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company, of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of August, 1890, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the twentieth day of August, 1890, at 3 o'clock p. m., in book 53 of mortgages, on page 393.

And whereas, the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of four hundred and ninety-six and 4-100 dollars, (496.04), with interest on four hundred and eighty-one (481) dollars thereof, at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the sixth day of January, 1892,, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The south half of the northwest quarter (s½ nw¼) and lots three (3) and four (4), all in Section two (2), of Town one hundred and forty-nine (149), of Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of four hundred ninety-six and 4-100 dollars ($496.04) and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five (25) dollars Attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [39-45]

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale

(First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.)
(Last publication Feb. 25th, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of forty-three and 25-100 dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Napoleon Gonyea, an unmarried man, mortgagor, to The Loan and Guarantee Company, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of November, 1890, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the third day of November, 1890, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 54 of mortgages, on page 345.

And whereas the said, The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of six hundred and fifty and 83-100 dollars ($650.83) with interest on six hundred and forty-two (642) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The west half of the northeast quarter (w½ ne¼) and the west half of the southeast quarter (w½ se¼) of section thirty (30), of Town one hundred and fifty (150) of Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892.

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of six hundred and fifty and 83-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars Attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892,

The Loan and Guarantee Company,
Mortgagee,

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [39-45]

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Jan. 7th, 1892.]
[Last publication Feb. 18th, 1892.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain indenture of mortgage, executed and delivered by Ida D. Van Tuyl and John E. Van Tuyl, her husband, mortgagors, to the "Union Central Life Insurance Company," mortgagee, bearing date the 22d day of November, 1889, with a power of sale therein contained, which mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 27th day of December, A. D. 1889, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, in book 51 of mortgages, on page 265, and whereas said mortgage was given to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars and interest thereon from its said date at the rate of eight per cent. per annum, due and payable on the first day of January in each year. And whereas default has been made in the payment of the sum of forty-eight dollars interest due and payable January 1st, 1891, and default having also been made in the payment of the sum of forty-eight dollars interest due and payable on January 1st, 1892, and both of said defaults still continue, and no part of said principal has ever been paid. And whereas the conditions of said mortgage are such that if default be made in the payment of the principal sum secured by said mortgage or interest thereon when the same becomes due, then the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage shall thereupon become due and payable at once.

And whereas both by the terms of said mortgage and the election of said mortgagee hereby made the whole amount secured by said mortgage both principal and interest accrued to this date is now due and payable.

And the amount now claimed to be due and which is due at the date of this notice upon said mortgage, including interest in accordance with the terms of said mortgage is the sum of six hundred and ninety-nine and 95-100 dollars. And no action or proceeding at law having been instituted to recover said debt or any part thereof secured by said mortgage.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained which by reason of the defaults aforesaid has become operative, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to-wit: The west half of the southeast quarter and the east half of the southwest quarter, both of the above described tracts being in Section ten (10), Township one hundred and forty nine (149), Range forty-three (43), in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and containing 160 acres of land; together with all the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging or in any wise appertaining. Said sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on Tuesday, the 23d day of February, 1892, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to satisfy and pay the amount which will then be due upon said mortgage according to the terms thereof, and interest and fifty dollars attorney's fees as provided by said mortgage in case of foreclosure and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated January 4th, 1892.

Union Central Life Insurance Company,
Mortgagee.

Chas. P. Barker,
Attorney for said Mortgagee,
618 Guaranty Loan Building,
[38-44] Minneapolis Minn.

W. A. ROBERTSON
D. D. S.

Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland.

OPERATIVE AND MECHANICAL

DENTIST.

N. B. Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.

OFFICE, IN McKINNON BLOCK.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication, January 21st, 1892.]
[Last publication, March 3rd, 1892.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred and thirty and 16-100 dollars, interest which is due at the date of this notice, upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Alphonse Paridis and Elmira Paridis, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the 1st day of October, 1889, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 9th day of November, 1889, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 48 of mortgages, on page 52.

And whereas the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained: and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of nine hundred and forty-six and 82-100 Dollars, with interest on nine hundred and twelve ($912) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the 18th day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north-east quarter (ne¼) of Section thirty-four (34) Town one hundred and fifty (150) of Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston in said County and State, on

SATURDAY, THE FIFTH DAY OF MARCH, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of nine hundred and forty-six and 82-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated January 18th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee
Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [40-46]

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Thursday, Jan. 14th 1892.]
[Last publication Thursday, Feb. 25th 1892.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred and fifty and seventy one hundredths Dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Thomas Plante and Mary Plante his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the First day of June, 1889, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 1st day of July, 1889, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 45 of mortgages on page 470.

And whereas, the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of the said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of nine hundred and fifty-six and fourteen hundredths dollars ($956.14), with interest on nine hundred and forty (940) dollars, thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum, from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north half of the south-east quarter (n½ se¼) and the north half of the south-west quarter (n½sw¼) of section thirty four (34) of town one hundred and fifty (150) of range forty-one (41) in Polk county and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of nine hundred and fifty-six and fourteen hundredths dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892,

The Loan and Guarantee
Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [39-45]

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.]
[Last publication Feb. 25th, 1892.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of Seventy-one and seventy eight one hundredths dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Luc Jenot and Elenore Jenot, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of December, 1888, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the seventh day of December, 1888, at 11 o'clock a. m., in book 41 of mortgages, on page 57.

And whereas the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained: and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of Ten Hundred and seventy-eight and fifty-eight dollars, ($1078.58), with interest on Ten Hundred and Seventy ($1070) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The south-east (se) quarter of section nineteen (19) of town one hundred and fifty (150) of range forty-one (41) in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Ten Hundred and Seventy eight and fifty eight one hundredths dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty ($50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee
Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [39-45]

MINNESOTA HOUSE,

ONE-HALF BLOCK FROM DEPOT.

WM. HEIDRICH, - - Proprietor

Having rented this Popular House and thoroughly re-fitted and re-furnished it throughout, I am now prepared to meet the wants of all who want good and cheap accommodations.

☞ Farmers custom specially invited,

Terms $1.00 per Day.

DR. M. WATTS.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.

Office over Merchants' Bank.
☞ Professional calls by day or night

CHRISTIANSON BROTHERS

(Correspondents Fargo Loan Agency.)

REAL ESTATE

Farm Mortgage Loans and Insurance.

☞ Special Bargains in Choice Farm Lands, improved and unimproved. Low prices and easy terms.

—OFFICE ON ROBERT STREET.—

CROOKSTON, - - - - MINN

FRANK IVES, Notary Public and U S. Com'r.
D. E. HATLESTAD, District Court Commissioner

IVES & HATLESTAD,

Attorneys and Counselors at Law,

CROOKSTON, - - - - MINN

Will practice in all the courts and before the U. S. Land Office at Crookston and Washington. Pensions and Soldiers' Claims and Patents carefully and promptly adjusted.

We loan money on improved farms and city property and have facilities for placing large loans at low rate of interest. We give special attention to collection and all commercial business pertaining to our profession.

U. S. LAND OFFICE
Crookston, Minn., February 3rd, 1892.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register or Receiver of U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on March 11th, 1892, viz: ALFRED SAVARY, Hd. 14,656, for the n½ nw¼ and lots 1 and 4 Sec. 27, Tp. 150, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Jacob R. Barb, Frank Robert, Edmund M. Walsh, Christopher Hanson, all of Crookston, Polk County, Minn.

[42-47] HUGH THOMPSON, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minnesota, Jan. 18, 1892.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register or Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on February 29th, 1892, viz: Tosten L. Oleson, Hd. No. 12,259, for the S W¼ Sec. 14, Twp. 147, Range 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: Knut S. Akre, John J. Ellingson, Halvor Ellingson, Edevart T. Ramse, all of Neilsville, Minn.

[40-45] HUGH THOMPSON, Register.

Mortgage Foreclosuse Sale.

(First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.)
(Last publication Jan. 25th, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of eighty-eight and eighty-five one hundredths dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Martin Thompson and Ann G. Thompson, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the second day of December 1889, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 10th day of January, 1890, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 48 of mortgages, on page 242.

And whereas the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of six hundred and ninety-two and eighty-one one hundredths dollars, ($692.81), with interest on six hundred and eighty-four (684) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum, from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north-west quarter (nw¼) of section twenty (20) of Town one hundred and forty-nine (149) of Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of six hundred and ninety-two and 81-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee
Company,
Mortgagee,

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [39-45]

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

(First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.)
(Last publication Feb. 25th, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of eighty-eight and 85-100 dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Peder H. Mesedalen and Kari Mesedalen, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company, of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the second day of December, 1889, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the tenth day of January, 1890, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 48 of mortgages, on page 246.

And whereas, the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of six hundred ninety-two and 81-100 dollars, ($692.81) with interest on six hundred and eighty-four (684) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The northwest quarter (nw¼) of Section seventeen (17), Town one hundred and forty-nine (149), Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of six hundred and ninety-two and 81-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars Attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

The Loan and Guarantee Company,
Mortgagee.

A. Humphreys,
Attorney of Mortgagee. [39-45]

M. LeGUEE.
Veterinary Surgeon.

Residence and office on Jerome's Addition,
CROOKSTON, MINN

ALDERMAN & SYLVESTER,

—DEALERS IN—

Shelf and Heavy

HARDWARE,

Sash, Doors and Mouldings

Mixed Paints, Linseed and Machine Oils, Flying Dutchman Gang Plows, J. Thompson & Sons Walking Plows. Sole agents for the Domestic Sewing Machine.

A FULL AND COMPLETE STOCK OF

STOVES AND RANGES

Corner Main and Fletcher Sts., - - - Crookston.

McKINNON BROS.,

—DEALERS IN—

ALL OF THE LEADING

Agricultural Implements

MAIN STREET. McKINNON BLOK.

☞ Before Purehasing, Give Us a Call. ☜

C. HENDRICKSON, President.
L. ELLINGTON, Vice-President.
H. STEENERSON, 2d Vice-President.
J. W. WHEELER, Cashier.
A. P. HANSON, Assistant Cashier.

Scandia-American Bank

OF CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

Organized Under the State Laws.

Authorized capital $200,000. Paid up capital, $50,000. Undivided profits $10,500.

Buys Bonds, School and Town Orders. Special attention to collections. Interest on time deposits.

DIRECTORS.

C. O. Christianson, E. P. Pierce, O. H Lucken, A. G. Galbsch, H. Steenerson, J. H. Lucken, C. Hendrickson, Max Ericsson, L. K. Aaker, J. W. Wheeler.

Sylvester & Finseth,

—Wholesale and Retail Dealers in—

Heavy and Shelf Hardware

Stoves, Tinware, Paints and Oils, Doors, Sash, Barbed Wire, Lime, Buckeye Binders and Mowers, Hollingsworth Rakes, Favorite Wagons and Buggies, National Cordage Co's Binding Twine, Rock Island Plows, Buford Gang and Sulky Plows, Fairbanks Scales, Hose for Lawn Sprinkling, Screen Doors, Ice Cream Freezers, Gasoline Stoves, Varnish and Paper, Lawn Mowers, North Star Refrigerators and Garden Sprinklers.

☞ Agents for Standard Rotary Shuttle Sewing Machines. ☜

Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

S. L. COLLINS,

—PROPRIETOR OF—

MAIN STREET
Livery, Feed and Sale Stables

CORNER MAIN AND FOURTH STS, WEST SIDE,

Crookston, - - - Minnesota.

Horses bought and sold on commission.
Everything neat and nobby.
Feeding a specialty.

FINE HEARSE

In connection which I will attend to in person

Crookston Business College.

FACULTY:

R. S. KNUDSON,	L. E. GOSSMAN,	C. M. WASSON.
BOOKKEEPING.	Faculty composed of specialists.	GRAMMAR.
SHORTHAND.	Most advanced methods of instruction.	ARITHMETIC.
TYPEWRITING.	Students may take full course or special braches.	SPELLING.
PENMANSHIP.	Special English department.	READING.
COMMERCIAL LAW.	Day and evening sessions. Tuition Fees Low.	HISTORY.
CIVIL GOVERNMENT	Students may enter at any time.	GEOGRAPHY.
CORRESPONDENCE.		COMPOSITION.

For catalogues and circulars address
R. S. KNUDSON, Principal,
Crookston, Minn.

H. STEENERSON
ATTORNEY AT LAW
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA

MARTIN O'BRIEN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
I. O. O. F. BUILDING. Crookston, Minn.

Historical Society

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Editor and Proprietor. DEVOTED TO THE WELFARE OF POLK COUNTY. TERMS---$1.50 Per Annum

VOL. XV. CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FEBRUARY 25, 1892. NO. 45

Polk County Journal.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

ADVERTISING RATES.

SPACE.	1 w.	2 w.	3 w.	1 m.	3 m	6 m.	1 year
½ inch....	$.50	$1 00	$1 25	$1 50	$3 00	4 50	$ 6 00
1 inch......	75	1 25	1 75	2 00	4 50	6 00	10 00
2 inches...	1 50	2 25	3 00	3 50	6 50	9 50	15 00
3 inches...	1 75	2 75	3 75	4 50	9 50	13 50	20 00
4 inches...	2 50	3 50	4 50	5 50	10 00	18 00	25 00
5 inches...	3 00	4 00	5 00	6 00	12 50	20 00	30 00
¼ column	3 50	4 50	5 50	6 50	15 00	25 00	35 00
½ column	6 00	7 50	10 00	12 00	25 00	35 00	50 00
1 column..	9 50	12 00	15 00	18 00	35 00	60 00	100 00

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.
2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.
3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.
4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class matter.

Grand Forks Herald: The schism in the alliance camp over the binding twine trust seems to widen. Jerry Simpson is after Loucks, Wardell and Crose, of the South Dakota Alliance, in this vigorous fashion:

The alliance made a narrow escape from getting into the hands of a gigantic trust. In my opinion there were men in the alliance anxious to sell the order for a consideration, and because I ferreted out their scheme and exposed them, they have followed me with deadly enmity ever since. H'd this cunningly devised scheme gone through, as some persons conspired that it should, what a spectacle the alliance with its motto, "death to combines," would have presented to the world? The National Union's name is "Dennis" to use a common expression, as far as the alliance is concerned, and no one need vex their souls because they fear that the order has fallen into the hands of knaves and fools.

Jerry doesn't say whether Loucks, Wardell and Crose, who still defend the twine trust, and acknowledge their connection with it, "in a business way," are knaves or fools, but in Jerry's judgment the South Dakota alliance must have fallen into the hands of one or the other of these delectable classes of worthies.

Our Duluth Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

DULUTH, Feb. 17.—That business has been improving here very much of late is very evident. Merchants all report trade good, all the manufacturing establishments are running on full time with good orders ahead, the wheat trade is larger, and money is easy. Architects report their business excellent and that present conditions indicate a large amount of building during the coming summer.

There was quite a good sale of lots yesterday in the new town of Merritt, which has been started in the midst of the big new mines on the Mesabi-range, the Cincinnati, Canton, Biwabic, Kanawha and Hale. The purchases were mostly by parties who will erect business houses there. The growth of iron mining in that locality will demand a large town, and this one seems sure of a great future. It will be to the Mesabi what Tower and Ely are to the Vermilion, Hurley, Bessemer and Ironwood to the Gogebic and Negaunee and Ishpeming to the Marquette range.

The continued bright reports from the new mining country keeps public interest aroused and there is much buying and selling of iron stocks. It was feared at one time that the rich deposits there and the splendid chances for money making might lead to an epidemic of wildcat companies, such as passed over the Gogebic in its early days. This is hardly possible now. People are more conservative than they used to be, and more prone to investigate. It so happens, too, that nearly all of the land in the iron belt is owned by strong men, financially, or by companies, who purchased it for the pine timber, and these parties are very generally refusing to sell or lease to any but good, solid parties, who will not countenance wild booming and speculation.

A party of capitalists from Louisville, Cincinnati, Chattanooga and other places interested in the Cincinnati and Chicago mines, reached here to-day and will go to the Mesabi to-morrow to examine their properties. The work on the former mine shows that it has about 1,000,000 tons of ore in sight, with every prospect of making as rich a mine as now exists anywhere. The Chicago will be developed at once. Its land is about as valuable as there is on the range and it has a large amount of it. Several of the new mines will be ready to ship ore as soon as railroad connection is made.

HAYS.

Queen Margaret, of Italy, has promised to loan her famous collection of rare laces for exhibition at the Fair.

Scientific Miscellany.

EXPERIMENTING WITH COLD.

The laboratory of Prof. Pictet, at Berlin, is designed for the investigation of the effects of cold. The refrigerating machinery, driven by several powerful engines, keeps the objects under observation at any temperature between 20 degrees and 200 degrees below zero as long as may be required. The cooling is effected by the evaporation of liquids, and is divided into three stages, each with its special apparatus. For the first stage is used the mixture of sulphurous carbonic acids known as "Pictets fluid," which is condensed at a pressure of about two atmospheres in a spiral tube cooled by water. Oxide of nitrogen (laughing gas) is the liquid chosen for the second stage. It is condensed at a pressure of 10 or 12 atmospheres in a tube kept at about 80 degrees below zero by the action of the first circuit. For the third stage air is employed, and passes into the liquid state at a pressure of 75 atmospheres when the temperature is kept at 135 degrees below zero by the other circuits. The evaporation of the liquified air gives a cold of about 200 degrees below zero. Absolute zero is placed at 273 degrees below zero C., but Prof. Pictet regards 255 degrees below zero as about the lowest attainable artificial temperature. One of the effects of great cold has been the conversion of quicksilver into beautiful fern-like crystals. Glycerine also has been crystalized; and cognac has been given by freezing the peculiar mellowness commonly attained only by long keeping. The most important result thus far, however, has been the purification of chloroform, the crystals that form in the commercial chloroform at about 86 degrees below zero being almost absolutely pure.

MAGNESIUM LIGHTING.

A new magnesium lamp, devised by M. Dronier, burns without attention for regular periods of 24 hours. A pound of magnesium is consumed in about 100 hours, giving a light equal to that of 130 pounds of candles, 80 pounds of petroleum, or somewhat more than 100 cubic yards of gas. The advantage is offered of freedom from risk of fire. The present running expense of the lamp exceeds 30 cents an hour, but with the anticipated great reduction in the cost of the metal, lighting by magnesium may be made fairly economical.

PROJECTED RAPID TRANSIT.

The schedule time for cars on the proposed electric railway between Vienna and Buda-Pesth is expected to be 75 minutes for the entire distance of 150 miles. As planned, the road will have two main power stations, with 100 sub-stations, but with only three or four stopping. Each car will be about 130 feet long, fitted with four bogie trucks, and an electric motor at each end will receive current through contact wheels running on conducting rails. The ends of the cars, to diminish air resistance, will be shaped like those of a ship.

POWER FOR SMALL BOATS.

The novel feature of a new electric boat, the idea of a French engineer, is a sea-water battery. The zinc and copper plates are under the boat and can be raised or lowered by pulleys, serving as a kind of keel while at the same time driving a propeller by means of a motor.

THE MAGIC OF MODERN SCIENCE.

In a paper on "The Ignis Fatuus of Photography," Mr. A. Adolphe mentions the following as among the specialties which modern men of science are seeking as a means whereby their results may be indirectly turned into gold. 1. The artificial production of the diamond from carbon, which means the crystallization of carbon. 2. A prevention or cure for epilepsy and consumption. 3. The complete combustion of coal, of which but 5 per cent is now available. 4. Photography in natural colors. 5. The direct utilization of solar heat, and the ebb and flood. 6. The production of "attar of roses" from worthless substances. Even the alchemist's original dream of direct and genuine transmutation is being revived, for the indications are increasing that the present elements are not the simple substances they have been supposed, and should gold prove to be a compound its artificial production would be but a question of time.

JAPANESE LACQUERING IN EUROPE.

The juice of the lacquer tree (Rhus vernicifera) is the natural varnish upon which depends the famous lacquer work of the Japanese. Specimens of this tree were brought from Japan 16 years ago and planted in the Botanical Gardens at Frankfort, where they have flourished and have yielded seeds from which thrifty young trees have sprung. This place now has 34 healthy trees 30 feet high. To determine whether the juice is affected by its changed condition, Prof. Rein has sent samples to Japanese artists for trial, and is having comparative analyses made by eminent chemists. If the reports are favorable it is expected that the lacquer tree will be quite extensively planted in Germany, and that Europeans will be instructed in the lacquering of wood by some worker from Japan.

WEIGHT OF LIGHT.

Prof. Oliver J. Lodge calculates that the impact of light-waves from the sun produces a pressure on the moon's surface of about 1,000 tons. In a total eclipse of the moon this force is withdrawn, but since the total attraction of the sun on the moon is to be estimated in millions of tons, this slight apparent diminution gives no appreciable effect. Upon a very small body, however, the pressure of solar light might be equal to, or even greater than, the attraction of gravitation. Such a body need not be infinitely minute, but of a size comparable with that of a grain of dust. It is conceivable that the dropping off of comets' tails on their approach to the sun is due to this action.

REMAINS OF BIRD GIANTS.

Bones recently found in New Zealand are estimated to represent 500 specimens of the moa. This immense wingless bird, now extinct, seems to have been hunted and eaten by the early inhabitants of New Zealand, and is believed to have stood at least 10 feet high. Madagascar had another giant wingless bird, whose eggs—10 or 12 inches in diameter, three times the size of those of the ostrich—have been discovered.

Immigration.

New York Press.

There are immigrants and immigrants. Sweeping condemnation of those who come to this Republic to better their condition is absurd, and it would be equally as absurd to deny that a proportion of the immigration is undesirable. Emigrants seldom belong to the higher social class in the countries from which they depart. Unless they are assisted paupers they seldom belong to the lowest. It requires something of energy, ambition and aspiration to tear loose from one's native land and seek more favorable circumstances under a foreign sky, and perhaps among people of a different tongue. The worst of the population of any country are more disposed to vegetate than to emigrate. A Scottish poet pictures the Highland lad reclining on his native heath, reflecting on his bleak and hopeless surroundings and exclaiming:

> "I'll hie me ower the heaving wave,
> And win myself a name,
> And in a palace or a grave
> Forget my Hieland hame."

That boy had an ambition above his fellows, and he was the type of a valuable immigrant. He might never achieve a palace, but he would be very likely to become an excellent citizen and win a comfortable home. Such immigrants are far more common than is generally supposed. From Great Britain, Ireland, Germany, Scandinavia and other countries they come, and have been coming these many years, and they have had no small share in building up the American Rebublic to be the most prosperous nation in the world.

We also receive many of the undesirable kind. As a rule these do not emigrate with any intention of permanent citizenship. They come to make what money they can and then go back to live in the land of their origin.

"Put none but Americans on guard," ordered General Washington, in a time of peculiar peril, "or foreign born soldiers who have families in the country to whom they are known to be attached." This, after all, is the true test for the foreigner who seeks the advantages this Republic affords. Is he prepared to make it his permanent home, to take an interest in its welfare and qualify himself to do his duty as a citizen? In a word, does he wish to become an American in all that the term implies? If so, and he is morally and physically qualified, he ought to be welcome.

Country Newspapers.

The Century.

Although country editors are nearly always poor, there are plenty of persons who believe that half the paragraphs in a country newspaper are paid for with enormous bribes. There are always two sides to every question, and whichever side an editor falls on, the partisans of the other accuse him of being "bought." It is little wonder, therefore, that the editor is seldom a popular man; I never knew one who was, and I never knew one who was not often accused unjustly. Probably the people believe in bribes to editors because it is a very rare editor who does not accuse his opponent of being a bribe-taker, creating a prejudice against themselves and their calling. Lazy and incompetent editors nearly always explain the success of their more vigorous opponents by declaring that they carry on a system of blackmail. I once visited a large city the newspapers of which I had long admired almost with reverence, and was surprised to hear a citizen say that what the city really needed was better papers; they would bring "eastern capital." Every citizen of a country town wants his locality "boomed," to the end that he may sell his fifty-dollar lot for five hundred; he can appreciate how a really good paper might aid him in this, and because his lot does not advance in value as he thinks it should, he has a grievance against the editor. He longs for an editor with some "snap" in him. I don't know what "snap" means, but I know this is the quality usually thought to be lacking. There are more great men in every country town than really exist in the entire nation, and if they are not recognized, the local papers are of no account. I was once bothered a good deal by a certain man who said he could clean more chickens in an hour than any other chicken-cleaner in the world, and he wanted the fact mentioned. Men who are never suspected of greatness by other people accuse themselves of it to the editors, and when they refuse to mention this greatness, they are told that their columns contain a great deal of stuff not half so interesting. It has occurred to me that when a citizen of a country town becomes drunk, the first thing he does is to hunt up the editor to tell him what is the matter with the community.

An Elastic Month.

The month which closes next week we may call elastic, because every fourth year it is stretched to accommodate an extra day. A good many hundred years ago it was found that the solar year was about 365¼ days in length, and that occasionally it would be necessary to add a day in order to keep up the average. Forty-nine years before the birth of Christ, the extra day was assigned to February as being the shortest month, 28 days. In the original arrangement of the calendar by Julius Cæsar, January, March, May, July, September and November consisted of thirty-one days each, while February had twenty-nine, and April, June, August and December were thirty-day months. In leap years February had thirty days. When Augustus Cæsar came to the throne, he felt affronted that the month of August, named for him, had not so many days as July, called after Julius Cæsar. Accordingly he issued a decree that August should have thirty-one days, and consequently February was shortened to twenty-eight in ordinary years. This is leap year, and hence the above may be interesting, but we wish further to say that be the months long or short, the elegant fast trains of The Burlington leave most of the principal cities of the West every day in the year. For tickets, rates, maps, etc., ask any railroad ticket agent, or apply to W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul Minn.

The Anarchists of Xeres.

New York Press.

The people of the United States have just cause to abhor the enemies of society who are called by the name of anarchists. They are as dangerous foes of liberty as an Ivan or a Nicholas, for they would destroy the fabric of orderly government, without which true liberty is impossible. Here there is no excuse for their teachings or practices, and popular opinion demands and approves the sternest measures in compelling their obedience and punishing their violation of the laws of the land.

But the Spanish anarchist, so-called, seems to be a different sort of person. In Spain a widespread popular sentiment is evidently in sympathy with the agitation against established authority, and the four men executed at Xeres were regarded as martyrs by hundreds of thousands of their countrymen. In the leading cities of Spain shops were shut and workingmen remained away from their daily employment in order to protest against the action of the government in putting these men to death. Manifestly the victims represented a powerful force that threatens the foundations of the Spanish monarchy.

The common people of Spain are thoroughly discontented. They are ground down with poverty and taxes. Their political privileges are but the shadow of a free constitution, and they have not been educated to a calm and law-abiding assertion of their rights. Bound for years under a haughty despotism, their awakening is not a gradual vindication, as in England and Germany, of the power and deserts of the masses. It is a violent and angry movement, accompanied by such acts as have brought about the tragedy of Xeres. Instead of preventing, the punishment of these men seems more likely to hasten the inevitable revolution.

Monarchy presents its most absurd aspects in Spain, where a child in short clothes is the nominal chief of the state; and it may be added that the Spaniards owe no loyalty to a system which has reduced their country from immense wealth to comparative penury and which continues to saddle an already overburdened state with a throng of unnecessary office-holders.

Members of the Farmers' Alliance in Kosciusko County, Ind., at a recent meeting in Warsaw, decided to assess themselves weekly to provide a fund to defray their expenses for a visit to the World's Fair. About 400 farmers and their wives will compose the visiting party.

Iowa, in its exhibits at the exposition, will show the various forms in which corn products are useful as food, and also the processes of their preparation.

H. Gloster Armstrong, of London, is in Chicago, making application for space upon which to show a reproduction of the Tower of London, or rather the most interesting portions of it, such as the "White Tower," "Beauchamp Tower," "Tower Green," "Traitors' Gate," etc. He represents a company willing to expend $250,000 in the enterprise.

The Illinois state exposition Board has set apart $40,000 as a special fund for the encouragement of live stock exhibits at the Fair. The fund is apportioned as follows: horses, 37 per cent; cattle, 30 per cent; hogs, 15 per cent; sheep, 12 per cent; poultry, 6 per cent.

The Sultan of Turkey has consented to the erection of a mosque at the Exposition grounds for the religious services of Mohammadans who attend the Fair. It is reported that $3,000 will be expended in its erection.

The bureau of music has issued letters of invitation to all the important choral societies in the larger cities asking them to co-operate in forming the grand chorus of 2,000 voices, which will render standard oratios at the ceremonies dedicatory of the Exposition buildings.

FARMS FOR SALE!

A RARE OPPORTUNITY.

For a small cash payment and a mortgage for the balance at seven per cent, payable annually, you can buy either of the following fine farms. They were taken on foreclosure and those prices only slightly exceed the amounts of the loans there have been on them.

1. E½ ne¼ and e½ se¼ Sec. 7, Town 150, Range 42. Cultivated land; 80 acres; 1½ story frame house, 18x24; log barns 18x24 and 16x18, log granary, 18x20. Price $1,700.

2. S½ se¼ and s½ of sw¼ Sec. 10, Town 151, Range 45. Forty acres cultivated land, two story frame house, 18x24, log barns 16x22 and 14x21; and log granary 16x20, and stock sheds. Price $1,360.

3. E½ sw¼ Sec. 10, and e½ nw¼ Sec. 15, Town 150, Range 42. 45 acres cultivated, one story log house 14x18, log barn 16x20, log granary 12x15 and stock sheds. Price $1,200.

4. W½ nw¼ Sec. 13, and e½ ne¼ Sec. 14, Town 150, Range 43. 45 acres cultivated, one story log house 14x18, log barn 16x20, log granary 12x14, and stock sheds. Price $1,500.

I have 50 quarter sections ranging in price from $3.50 per acre to $10.00 on five and ten years time. Address

A. HUMPHREYS,
Loan and Trust Building,
Minneapolis.

KOPS BRO'S

105 Third Street,
GRAND FORKS, N. DAKOTA

PIANOS, ORGANS.

WEBER, HAINES BROS., KURTZMANN, MATHUSHEK, McCAMMON PIANOS, Estey and Chicago Cottage Organs. New Upright Pianos from $250 to $1,000, on terms of $10 to $25 per month. New Organs from $60 to $250 on terms of $5 to $10 per month.

Satisfaction guanteed. Write for catalogue and prices. KOPS BROS.
Grand Forks, N. D.

G. G. HENAULT

Practical Dentist

SECOND STREET,

CROOKSTON, - - MINN

OFFICE IN DOBSON'S BLOCK,

☞ All work in my line skilfully and promptly performed. Give me a call.
G. G. HENAULT.

NEW FEED MILL

CHRIS. ANDERSON, Prop.

I desire to annouce to the farmers of Polk County that I have rented the

LAURENCE BUILDING, ON MAIN STEERT,

Next to Brown's New Livery Stable, and am now preparedto grind feed of all kinds promptly. You can get your feedin two hours after you bring me your grain. Prices Reasonable

Try My New Mill!

A. J. & A. McKINNON,

CROOKSTON

CARRIAGE WORKS.

Manufactures everything that runs on wheels. Repairing done on short notice and in workmanlike manner.

GIVE US A CALL

A. J. & A. McKINNON. - - Main Street, Crookston.

Schmidt, the Painter,

CARRIES A FULL AND COMPLETE STOCK OF

PAINTS,
OILS AND
VARNISHES.

ALSO A FULL AND COMPLETE LINE OF

☞ WALL PAPER. ☜

Painting in all its branches, and Paper Hanging artistically done.

Call at the Shop on Broadway.

TRY PEAKE,
THE MAIN STREET HARNESS MAKER,
FOR BARGAINS.

G. SLATER. E. N. HILL.
H. ROTHERT. J. A. GEORGE.

Chase & Slater Law and Claims Co.,

1331 F Street, Northwest,
WASHINGTON, D. C.

Practice in the Supreme Court of the United States, the Court of Claims, all the executive departments and before Congress. Claims for Indian Depredations collected. Pension cases prosecuted. Patents promptly secured. Careful attention given to all classes of land cases. Liberal arrangements made with Local Attorneys or for transfer of cases.

Drunkenness CURED.

THE

Moorhead Institute

Is now ready for the treatment of patients addicted to the

DRINK and OPIUM HABIT.

Send for pamphlet containing testimonials, certificates of cure and terms. Address,

MOORHEAD INSTITUTE,
[41-1] Moorhead, Minn.

Valley Roller Mills

MANUFACTURERS OF

FINE FLOUR

From Selected Red River Wheat.

Lee & Herrick's Best,	$2 65
North Star, - -	2.50
Fife, - -	2.15
Skip Jack, - -	1.15

☞ We exchange flour for wheat on equitable terms.

LEE & HERRICK.

HOW TO SAVE MONEY

BUY OF SLOCUM,

The Leading Grocer. The Best Goods for the Least Money.

SPECIALTIES | I MAKE A SPECIALTY OF | SPECIALTIES

TEAS, COFFEES, CANNED SALMON and CHOICE BUTTER.

HAVE YOU TRIED MY Wheat Germ Meal?

Everything in my line fresh from the wholesaler at the VERY LOWEST LIVING RATES. ☞ Give me a Trial.

W. E. SLOCUM, - - BROADWAY.

Polk County Journal.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY

Crookston, February 25, 1892.

'Round Home.

Wheat—1 Hard - 71.
1 Northern 70.
2 Northern 64.
3 Northern 60.

District court convenes next Monday.

Pat Russell has moved into the new Reckett block.

Chas. Westerberg has rented the Scandinavian hotel.

Clerk of the court, Nels Muus, went to St. Paul last week.

There will be lots of fun at the races on the ice to-morrow.

W. C. Lee has been purchasing city property heavily of late.

Rev. S. H. Barteau, of Stephen, was in the city a few days last week.

Bert Bivens was down from Argyle to spend the Sabbath with the folks.

Monday was an extremely warm day and the snow disappeared rapidly.

Andrew Eiken has purchased the Hurlbut property on Huston Avenue.

Don't forget the Ladies' Drum Corps Ball, at McKinnon's Hall, this evening.

Judge Benson went up to McIntosh last Friday and spent the night with friends.

Gilt edged farm loans wanted. Call on J. W. Wheeler at the Scandia-American bank.

Geo. Vine still continues to cut up corn-fed pork to the delight of his many customers.

County Attorney Holston started for St. Louis on Friday evening of last week to attend the convention there.

Pat Casey, of Parnell, was adjudged insane before Judge Benson last week and sent to the asylum at Fergus Falls.

The steppers were out in force on Monday. Everybody who has a speedy horse had him out on the ice trying to beat everybody else.

The Queen City Band gave one of their pleasant open air serenades on Saturday evening. That begins to look like summer time.

Those horses at Brown's are going off like hot cakes. He sold 8 head on Monday and it wasn't such an awful good day for sales either.

Will Waggoner, of Fisher, bought a span of fine young mares of M. R. Brown on Monday. They go elsewhere to look but they go to Brown to buy.

J. J. Ide comes to the front with seed grain for the unfortunate ones who lost their crop by hail, and says he will do some rustling in his neighborhood for them.

Call at Brown's stables and see those choice working mares he brought home with him last week. Two carloads of them and he intends to keep the market supplied fully.

S. Engebritson, of St. Hilaire, dropped in on Wednesday morning to condole with us in our grip business. Says the big crops of last year put the farmers in pretty good shape up that way.

Mr. Hallock, of Edna, chips in his mite this week for the benefit of the hail sufferers. There is room for many more on that list. Let us hear from you by card or any convenient way.

Real estate in the city seems to be enjoying quite a boom in these days. Property is changing hands at very good figures compared with that of a few years past and yet it is not high.

The editor of THE JOURNAL had an attack of La Grippe on Monday. Dr. Just was called who prescribed "Homœpathic Soup." After having got away with that we feel purty gude, thank you.

The Devil's Auction drew a big house at the Grand on Tuesday evening. Although the company left on the Northern Pacific train, they gave their full performance. The train was held for them.

R. A. Harris, of Sleepy Eye, Minn., was in the city last week selling a patent rigging to keep the cold out of houses. Mr. H. was once a jeweler, and knows something about the business yet.

Andrew Eiken has accepted a position with the Crookston Mercantile Co., and his smiling countenance may now be seen behind the desk in Anderson & Ringdahl's. Andrew will make friends wherever you put him.

From a letter received from comrade E. A. Bradish, formerly of Fisher, we should judge that he does not like it down there in Wisconsin. Better come home, comrade Bradish, and catch on with our coming spring boom.

John Quisnell, one of the supervisors of Grove Park, was in the city this week in the interest of the Kramer estate. John has been supervisor in that town for several terms and we are told that he makes an excellent official.

Only a few more of those horses at Brown's, but more on the way, to arrive next week. Several, who expected to buy out of this lot, and thought they would wait a few days to give the horses a chance to recuperate after their trip, were surprised to find when they did go, that they were nearly all sold. When you want Brown's horses you want to be in time.

Go to Geo. Vine's meat market in Robert street for choice cuts. Geo. had one himself a week or so since but he don't sell that kind.

Wheeler loans money on farm security. He is too busy to write up an ad for this issue, but if you will call he will not be too busy to tell you what he can do for you in that line.

M. R. Brown returned last week with two carloads of choice grade Percheron mares which he now offers for sale at his new stables on Main street. They are as fine a lot as we have ever seen brought to this country and if you want a choice team you will do well to go and see them.

Tom Harris:—"It begins to look like an early spring but I don't know but it would be best for the country after all to have a late spring—in that case very much land could not be put in and it would have to be summer-fallowed. This would mean better crops for a long time to come.

The Sheriff's office has been kept busy looking after the wayward ones of late. Dept. Sheriff Losey is, comparatively speaking, a "light-weight," but they don't want to play him for a spring chicken. He'll be very liable to fool 'em as he did several good sized husky fellows not long since.

Mr. Welter, who recently purchased the Herriott farm at Beltrami was in the city on Monday, and after looking the field all over carefully went to M. R. Brown and bought four fine young mares. Mr. Welter is a new man in Polk County but it seems that he knows good horses when he sees them.

The jail at Fosston took fire and burned up on Saturday last. A drunken man had been put in during the morning hours and it is supposed that he set the bedding afire in attempting to light his pipe. After the fire died out the body of the man—what remained of it—was taken out and the coroner summoned.

D. McMillan, of Edna, dropped in to see THE JOURNAL man on Monday to set that subscription ahead a peg and also to add his mite to our hail list. That list begins to loom up encouragingly but there is lots yet to if we accomplish our object. Let them come in as long as there is a patriotic man in Polk County.

S. L. Dobson: "It would be a good thing if farmers would dispose of the oats they are raising and secure only the White Russian or side oats which are longer, heavier and better every way besides yielding far more per acre. They would make money by making this change and many of them are already doing it."

Rev. R. H. Battey will occupy his pulpit, morning and evening, next Sunday at the Congregational church. Morning sermon, "Christ in His Church;" evening, "Alpha and Omega." Very cordial welcome extended to all. Strangers invited. Time of service 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Invite your friends to this church and come yourself.

G. F. Carpenter: "Look here a minute, I have a local for you. Larson, Carpenter & Co. are cleaning their windows. This is the first opportunity we have had since we moved in, having been kept busy adjusting things and selling machinery. What lines are selling best, oh, drills mostly, but we are selling some wagons and everything else we carry and we anticipate a great rush later on. So we propose to be ready for business as fast as it comes."

Joe Jarvais came up from Fisher on Monday to pay his personal taxes and that duty performed he went around to Brown's stables to see those horses THE JOURNAL has been telling about. He was so well pleased that he bought a fine span of mares to take home with him. He had no idea of buying when he went in, but those were too good a thing to miss. We notice that where an old settler wants anything in horseflesh he always goes to Brown, whom every old settler knows to be perfectly reliable.

A communication from a Mentor correspondent contains the following: "A fine display of fireworks took place on Maple Lake Saturday night last. Crookstonites have been wishing for a general "clean-up" of fish houses to give the fish a chance to replenish the lake. We believe they got their wish Saturday night. It seems the fishermen were more careless than usual, leaving much fire in their stoves, which caught into their furniture and, the wind being favorable, and cleared all the fish houses off Maple Lake. We havn't heard so far of any deaths in the fire."

In "The Millionaire," which is to be presented at the Grand Opera House, Crookston, Thursday evening, Feb. 25th, Dan'l Sully has found a play worthy of his abilities as an actor, and one which furnishes him an excellent opportunity to display to effect his notable success as an Irish dialect comedian. In this play he aims at and accomplishes what no other Irish comedian has succeeded in doing, namely, portraying faithfully the type of Hibernia's sons that we meet with in the every-day walks of life, exhibiting, together with the well-known wit and geniality a refined sentiment and lofty purpose that are not sufficiently credited on the stage to a nationality which possesses each to a marked degree. All next week, Criterion Comedy Co.

If you want to borrow money call on J. W. Wheeler at the Scandia-American bank.

BUY A FARM

I have some of the best land

IN

Polk County

In my hands for sale

CHEAP!

And you can make prices and terms to suit you. Write me for lists.

L. F. Menage,

14-39] Minneapolis, Minn.

Oleveland Ain't In It.

BY FRED W. DAVIS.

Cleveland run agin' Blaine once afore,
And Cleveland came out ahead on the score,
But ye bet yer boots it'll be so no more
'Cause Grover ain't in it.

We've had but one dem. in twenty-eight years,
And that's why the parties are so by the ears,
But this time, to everyone, it kinder 'pears
That Grover ain't in it.

Last time they kept it a-goin' 'bout free trade,
But this time, you bet, they'll be put in the shade,
Where they'll enjoy their free lemonade.
Grover ain't in it.

I tell yer what, it's a mighty big shame,
Insignificant Cleveland to run 'gin' Jim Blaine;
It'll be a disinterested campaign
'Cause Grover ain't in it.

Try M. R. Brown for a goood team of working horses or mares.

For Sale Cheap.

Buffalo robes and cutters. Mrs. Mary Schreader, Crookston, Minn. [35-tf]

—("We have no trash, don't keep it.")—

STILL
AT IT.

25 pieces, BEST QUALITY, 5-4 Table Cloth	25c
30 doz. Genuine Opaque Window Shades, (3x6)	35c
10 pieces Cheviot Shirting	7c
15 pieces Outing Flannels	6c
10 pieces Black Brocaded Satine	25c
25 pieces Shirting Prints	5c
2 pieces 36 in. Hemp Carpet (best quality)	20c yd

Fontaine & Anglim.

The Best is Always the Cheapest

THE DOWAGIAC SHOE DRILL,

With the Direct Spring Pressure and Solid Bottom Shoe is copied by many but eqalled by none. It runs lighter and lasts longer than any Drill on earth. We have also the

RUSHFORD WAGON

"Good lumber and bone dry," Columbus and Racine Buggies, Grand Detour and Scandia Plows, Boss Harrows, Minneapolis Binders, Walter A. Wood Mowers, Advance Threshers and Engines, Hay Rakes, Garden Tools, Road Wagons, Carts and a

FULL LINE OF REPAIRS.

Give Us A Call and Let Us Make Your Acquaintance.

Larsen, Carpenter & Co.,

T. H. Bjoin's Old Stand, Opera Block. CROOKSTON.

On Thursday evening of last week Mr. L. P. Hunt met a number of our citizens at the city hall and gave them an address upon the needs and intentions of the committee. He stated that Polk County's share of the $100.000 the commission is trying to raise is $1,100 and after he had talked awhile a committee was appointed to get signatures to notes amounting to $600. While the whole amount could have been secured by pledge right there and then, it was decided better to raise $600 in Crookston and the balance in the different villages of the county so that all could have an opportunity to help along the good cause.

Last Sunday was an interesting day at the Congregational church as about every Sabbath is. But especially were the evening services worthy of mention. The Presbyterians were present, pastor and people, and the church parlor was crowded at the young people's meeting at 6:30, while the audience room was completely filled an hour later for the regular evening worship. Rev. O. H. Elmer delivered a very plain and forcible gospel sermon on the subject of "Harden not your hearts." An excellent feature of the services was a wide-awake musical service led by Mr. D. E. Jones, of Minneapolis, and supported by about a dozen of resident musicians. some said it was the finest singing they had heard in Crookston churches for years, and a number rendered by Mrs. Adams was highly appreciated. Mr. Battey conducted the services and several made a public profession of religion when he made the appeal for any to do so for the first time.

For Sale.

I have for sale at my farm, 6 miles northeast of Crookston, a few choice young mares ready for farm work or driving purposes. Call early for choice.

[45-tf] S. M. McKee.

OATS WANTED.

S. L. Dobson wants to secure all the oats in Polk County that are suitable for his business, for which he will pay the highest market price.

"The Journal" Hail Fund.

The following named persons have contributed the amounts set opposite their names to the fund for the relief of those who lost their crops by hail. Everybody should have a hand in this good work. Send in your names and the amount you are willing to contribute (in money or grain) to THE JOURNAL or Lewis Ellington, Scandia-American Bank, Crookston, Minn:

THE JOURNAL	$ 5.00
B. C. Jorgenson	10.00
O. H. Richardson	10 bushels barley.
Frank Bivins	10 bushels seed wheat.
W. G. Lytle	10 bushels seed wheat.
Lewis Ellington	$5.00.
E. Lanctot	10 bu. oats, 10 bu. barley.
Thomas Wallace,	20 bu. barley
Goodwin Leppert (Wyha)	10 bu. oats.
Hayes Bros	20 bu. wheat.
Earnest Mueller	20 bu. barley.
Ben Geroux	2 " "
K. Hanson	4 " "
Ole Olson	2 " wheat.
E. W. Johnson	50 cents.
Will Himmelsback	10 bu. barley.
S. B. Palmer (Lockhart),	10 bu. potatoes.
Hugh Thompson,	25 bu. seed wheat.
E. M. Walsh,	10 bu. oats, 10 bu. barley.
D. C. Hallock, (Edna)	5 bu. barley.
Jake Ide	15 bu. oats, 15 bu. barley

Don't Be Backward

ABOUT

COMING FORWARD.

AND SECURING SOME OF THE

BARGAINS

OFFERED HERE BY

E. M. Walsh,

Real Estate Broker,

I. O. O. F. Block, Crookston, Minn.

80 ACRES adjoining city of Crookston, well cultivated, suitable for market garden. A bonanza for the right man and can be had for $3,000.

1,000 ACRES, five miles from city, first-class buildings, 200 acres cultivated, 200 acres Timothy, pasture fenced. Nothing better for dairy or stock farm. A snap at $12,000.

240 ACRE FARM in Town of Crookston; good farm buildings, well improved and only $20 per acre.

320 ACRE FARM in Euclid Topnship. Good farm buildings, 300 acres cultivated, 200 acres ready for seeding. Cheap at $4,000.

160 ACRES in Sec. 18, Town of Angus, partly improved, fine rich soil. Only $10 per acre.

320 ACRES land in Town of Louisville, well located near R. R. station, and near Red Lake River. Only $1,900 on long time.

160 ACRES good Farm Land in Grove Park, 60 acres cultivated, two miles from R. R. station, one-half mile from school. A Bargain at $800.

ANOTHER Quarter Section in Grove Park, good farm buildings, good water, 30 acres cultivated, 40 acres pasture, one-half mile from R. R. station, school and church. Cheap at $8.00 per acre.

SIX first-class farms in Town of Lambert, one of the best Townships in Polk County, from $600 to $1,200 each, well adapted for mixed farming. Look this up. Sure to find something to suit.

SECTION 21, Andover Township, every foot of which can be cultivated, only 5 miles from Crookston. Cheap at $12.50 per acre.

200 ACRE FARM in Fairfax, four miles from Crookston, 180 acres cultivated. Cheap buildings, easy terms. A bargain at $2,400.

TWO first-class farms in Lowell, two miles from city of Crookston, good farm buildings, artesian well, high state of cultivation. One at $28 and the other at $20 per acre.

THREE fine farms in town of Sanders. All near R. R. station, good soil. Most of them partly improved and are to be had at $6.00 per acre. Easy terms.

GOOD STOCK FARM, with good house and barn, 160 acres, two miles from Thief River Falls. Only $1.000, one-third cash, balance long time.

HALF Section Land, Town of Reis, two miles from R. R. station, 130 acres under cultivation, 76 acres ready for seeding in spring. Good house and barn, artesian water. Cheap at $2.500, one-quarter cash, balance 5 years time.

160 ACRES in Town of Godfrey. Good land, near railroad. Only $5.00 per acre.

160 ACRES. Town of Gervais. This land is on the Red Lake River. Some good timber and partly improved and is cheap at $9 per acre.

ANOTHER piece in Town of Gervais, four miles from Red Lake Falls. $950.

320 ACRE FARM in Parnell, six miles from Crookston, well improved, good buildings. Can be had for $3,000.

TWO good farms in town of Fanny, two miles from railroad station. Partly improved. Only $6.00 per acre.

320 ACRE FARM only one-half mile from St. Hilaire and is offered at $8.00 per acre, easy terms.

160 ACRES in Town of Crookston, four miles from city, and only $1,000.

ANOTHER piece in same town, well improved and can be had for $1,350 on easy terms.

320 ACRE FARM in Town of Kertsonville, two miles from railroad station partly improved. Cheap—no mistake. Only $1,200 and on easy terms.

TWO good farms in Town of Liberty, 160 acres each. $750 buys either.

320 ACRE FARM in Town of Roome. Fine state of cultivation. Good farm buildings. 170 acres ready for seeding in spring. Dirt cheap at $4,000, one-half cash, balance to suit. Stock and farm machinery can also be bought cheap.

TWO good farms in Town of Louisville can be had for $959 each. Easy terms, long time.

This is the Cap-sheaf of All!

520 ACRES land, 3 miles from Fisher, all under cultivation, 420 acres ready for seeding. Good farm buildings. Good water. $25 per acre takes this, and will throw in 20 head horses and harnesses, 7 wagons, 4 binders, 2 mowers, 2 rakes, 4 gang plows, 9 harrows, new press drill, 2 sleds, 2 cows, full sett Blacksmith tools and small farm implements. $3,000 cash and balance long time at 7 per cent.

Homeopathic Soup.

Take a robin's leg,
Mind, the drumstick merely,
Put it in a tub,
Fill with water nearly;
Set it out of doors
In a place that's shady;
Let it stand a week;
Three days, if for a lady;
Drop a spoonful of it
In a five-pail kettle,
Which may be made of tin,
Or any baser metal;
Fill the kettle up,
Set it on a-boiling.
Skim the liquor well
To prevent it oiling;
One atom add of salt,
For the thick'ning one rice kernel,
And use to light the fire
The Homeopathic Journal.
Let the liquor boil
Half an hour, no longer;
If 'tis for a man
Of course you'll make it stronger;
Should you now desire
That the soup be flavoury,
Stir it once around
With a stalk of savoury.
When the broth is made
Nothing can excel it;
Then, three times a day
Let the patient smell it.
If he chance to die,
Say 'twas nature did it;
If he chance to live,
Give the soup the credit.

—Edinburgh Medical Review, 1857.

Fergus Falls Daily Journal:—The Criterion company played to a large house and made an excellent impression Friday night in "Under the Gaslight," and will undoubtedly have a much larger house to-night, which it deserves. Among the actors are several of unusual strength and ability. To-night the play is "The Wedding March," a brilliant comedy which always pleases the audiences. Among the specialties, which will include several musical novelties, Miss Mabel Davidson will give a skirt dance on roller skates. Miss Seymour, the leading lady of the troupe, has traveled with Maggie Mitchell and Joe Jefferson, and is an actress of fine ability.

Will be at the Grand Opera House for one week, commencing Monday, Feb. 29th.

Leander Richardson's play of "The Millionaire," which will be seen at the Grand Opera House, Thursday, Feb. 25th, gives Dan'l Sully an opportunity to do some excellent work, and this opportunity Mr. Sully improves. The part of James O'Brien is strongly drawn and effectively presented. It is a different type of Irishman from that usually seen upon the stage and shows the son of the Emerald Isle rounded out by a residence in this free country, and what it is possible for industry, shrewdness and straightforward dealing to accomplish. The dialogue of the whole play is well written, and teaches a good, wholesome lesson of the necessity of honor in business as well as in the social relations of life. "The Millionaire" was seen here last year and was greatly liked by our theatre-goers. All next week, Criterion Comedy Co.

